Poetry.

Half-Way Doin's.

Belubbed fellow-trabelers:—in holdin' forth to-day,
I dosen't quote no special verse for what I has to say;
De sermon will be berry short, and dis here am de tex':
Dat half-way doin's ain't no 'count for dis worl' or de nex.'

Dis worl' dat we's a-libing in is like a cotton-row,
Whar ebery cullud gentleman hab got his line to hoe:
And ebery time a lazy nigger stops to take a nap,
De grass keeps on a growin' for to smudder up his crap.

When Moses led the Jews across the waters ob de sea,
Dey had to keep a goin' jes' as fas' as fas' could be;
Do you s'pose dat dey could ebber hab succeeded in deir wish.
And reached the promised land at last—if dey had stopped to fish?

My frien's, dar was a garden once, whar Adam libbed wid Eve,
Wid no one 'round to bodder dem, no neighbors for to thieve,
And ebery day was Christmas, and dey got deir rations free,
And eberyting belonged to dem except an apple tree.

You all know 'bout de story—how de snake came snoopin' roun',—
A stump tail rusty moccasin, a-crawlin' on de groun'—
How Eve and Adam ate de fruit, and went and hid deir face.
Till de angel oberseer he come and drove 'em off de place.

Now, s'pose dat man and 'oman hadn't tempted for to shirk,
But had gone about deir gardenin', and 'tended to deir work,
Dey wouldn't have been loafin' whar dey had no business to,
And de debbil nebber'd got a chance to tell 'em what to do.

No half-way doin's, bredren! It'll nebber do I say!
Go at your task and finish it, and den's de time to play—
For eben if de crap is good, de rain'll spoil de bolls,
Unless you keeps a-pickin' in de garden ob your souls.

Keep a-plowin', and a-hoein', and a-scrabin' ob de rows,
And when de harvest's ober you can pay up what you owes,
But if you quits a workin' ebery time de sun is hot,
De sheriff's gwine to lebby upon eberyting you's got.

Whateber 'tis you's dribin' at, be sure and dribe it through,
And don't let nuffin stop you, but do what you's gwine to do;
For when you see's a nigger fooliu,' den, as shore's you're born,
You's gwine to see him comin' out de small end ob de horn.

I thanks you for de 'tention you has gib dis afternoon—
Sister Williams will oblige us by a-raisin' ob a tune—
I see dat Brudder Johnson's 'bout to pass aroun' de hat,
And don't let's hab no half-way doin's when it comes to dat!

Miscellaneous.

The Mysteries of Paper-Hanging.

(From the Danbury News.)

The economical family is now at the zenith of its brilliancy. Everything is done by itself, and all the expense of hiring every little thing that is to be done about the house is thus saved. The smacking of the economical family's lips can be heard further than any other smacking. When new paper is to be put on the wall a paper hanger is not secured. The economical family makes its own paste, cuts the paper, trims out the border, and does the hanging. All the family is present at this performance. The man measures the height of the wall by his eye, and cuts the paper, the woman trims the border and snaps the children out of the paste. By one of these perversities of fate which no one can understand—unless he is a paper-hanger by trade—the first length of paper is not discovered to be three inches too short or divided at the wrong place until half its surface is clinging to the wall. This wasn't the man's fault. He never was more convinced of it than when he is standing on his toes on a chair, with his arms strained to their full length, the wet paper turning over at the lower end and clinging tenaciously to foreign objects. This conviction is so strong that he mentions it. He mentions it at the top of his voice. If he can get his eye in range of the cool, comfortable looking woman who is prodding him with advice, he becomes actually inspired. That length of paper has to be taken off again—taken off carefully to guard against loss.—It is a little unfortunate that a man was not so created as to take hold at any one time of every inch of nine feet of pasted paper. Until this error is remedied it is doubtful if taking down a piece of wet wall paper will ever become a national pastime.—Still, it must occasionally be done, and when it is doing the lower end of the sheet must be kept from clinging to the operator's legs while the upper end is being removed. It is also deemed best by many people not to step on it especially on the pasted side, and it is also just as well in removing a tight section not to lean too heavily against a loose section. But by carefully preserving one's temper and working thoughtfully, the whole length can be removed and wrapped two or three times around the man's form, and be part way down his neck and in between his legs when he steps down from the chair. There are various ways of getting the paper back whole on the table, or approach it side ways, or crawl under it and come up through the top, or cut a hole in the ceiling above and drop through that way. But in an emergency like this he rarely has that control of himself he ought to have, and it is more than likely he will have his wife and all the children to help him. If within the very brief space of two minutes he has not got both his whiskers and pockets full of that paper, and boisterously communicated things which no encyclopedia would undertake to carry, then his economy is above the price of rubies and he is a dangerous man to board with.

Why Lincoln was assassinated.

How John Wilkes Booth avenged the hanging of his friend, John Y. Beat.

(From Pomeroy's Democrat)

Among the chosen friends of John Wilkes Booth's boyhood was a dashing, chivalrous young man, named John Y. Beal, whose home was in the beautiful Shenandoah Valley, not far from Winchester. Damon and Pythias were not more attached to each other than were Booth and Beal. Beal was Southern in his sympathies, and planned raids on Northern cities, and at last was captured at or near Buffalo, tried for piracy on Northern lakes, and sentenced to be hanged on Bedloe's Island.

One afternoon, in the city of Washington, while Beal was under sentence of death, there alighted from a carriage two men who walked into the room occupied by Washington M'Lean, of Cincinnati, who was at the time in Washington, in the interest of his business. These men who called were Senator Hale, of New Hampshire, and John Wilkes Booth. Booth was anxious to save the life of Beal, his chum and confidential personal friend. He had interested Mr. Hale in his behalf.

They importuned M'Lean to go with them to the President, as a Democrat—as a friend of Booth—as a man who had much influence with Mr. Lincoln, and to vouch with Mr. Hale for any promises Booth might make in return for this great favour to him. After a protracted interview M'Lean accompanied Hale and Booth in a carriage to the residence of John W. Forney, who was then in bed, the hour being late. Forney was awakened from his sleep and told the object of his call. His sympathies were enlisted, and he was always ready to serve his friends.

It was an hour or more past midnight when Hale, Forney, M'Lean and Booth were driven to the White House. The guard, at the request of Forney, admitted the carriage to the grounds. Mr. Lincoln was called from his sleep, and there, in the dead of night, he sat and listened to the prayers of Booth and the endorsements of those who came with him to ask the favor of executive clemency.

This interview lasted till 4 in the morning. It was one of tears, prayers and petition. There was not a dry eye in the room as Booth knelt at the feet of Lincoln, clasped his knees with his hands and begged him to spare the life of one man—a personal friend who, in serving the ones he loved, had come to the door of death.

Booth told all. He told how long before in a fit of passion to do some bold deed, he had joined in a conspiracy to abduct the President and to hold him as a hostage for the release of certain military prisoners who were Booth's friends, and who, it was thought, were to be shot. He told of the meetings they had held at the house of Mrs. Surratt, and that all of that plan had fallen to the ground long before. He offered his services at any time and in any place or capacity, free of cost or fearless of consequences. The eminent gentlemen who were there with him joined in the request that the prayer of Booth be granted, and that Beal should be pardoned.

At last President Lincoln, with tears streaming down his face, took Booth by the hands, bade him rise and stand like a man, and gave him his promise that Beal should be pardoned. He asked the party to depart that he might gain rest for the work of the morrow, and said that the official document that they asked for should be forwarded at once to United States Marshall Robert Murray, in New York, and through him to the officers charged with the execution of Beal.

After breakfast Lincoln informed Seward, Secretary of State, what he had done or promised to do. Seward said that it must not be; that public sentiment in the North demanded that Beal should be hung. He declared that to pardon Beal would be to disgrace enlistments, lengthen the war and insult the sentiment that called for blood. He chided Lincoln for making such promises without asking the advice of his Cabinet, or advising with himself, Seward, on State policy. As the argument grew contentious, Seward declared that if the conduct of the war was to be trifled with by appeals for humanity he should go out of the Cabinet and use his influence against the President, and should charge him with being in sympathy with the South. Lincoln yielded and Beal was executed. The reaction to Lincoln's nervous system was such that for days he was far from well.

The effect on Booth was terrible. He raved like a madman and in his frenzy swore that Lincoln and Seward should both pay for the grief and agony he had been put to. From the death of Beal, Booth brooded vengeance for that which he considered a personal affront. His rage took in Seward, and he engaged Harold, Atserodt and others to avenge Beal's death by killing Seward, while he (Booth) wreaked human vengeance on the President.

At last came the hour. Booth killed Lincoln. His friends and the relatives or avengers of Beal tried their best to kill Seward, and when they left him stabbed, bleeding and limp as a cloth, as he rolled over behind the bed whereon they found him, they supposed their work was completely done.

Our story is told. We have given the truth of history and told exactly why Abraham Lincoln, the humane President of the United States, was killed.

Romantic Tale of an Indiana Boy's Adventur in Brazil.

(Indianapolis Despatch to Chicago Times.)

Sanford Morris of this city has just received from his son, Ernest Morris, the boy naturalist, now seeking fame and specimens in Brazil, a letter which tells the most romantic tale of his good fortune in quite a different field. Nearly two years ago young Morris, enthusiastic in natural history and only eighteen years of age, left Indianapolis, struck the Ohio and reached New Orleans by a skiff voyage, and thence sailed for Para, in Brazil, intending to ascend the Amazon and collect specimens in the wild and unknown South American forests. Reports of his explorations have been received and published from time to time, as he reached points of communication along the route. He has ascended to the fountains of the Amazon, in Equador, hundreds of miles beyond the point reached by the naturalist Bates, sent out some years ago by the British Government, and furnished with unlimited means. He writes to his family here relating the grandest of all adventures yet. The story is as follows, and reads like a chapter from the 'Arabian Nights.' While encamped one evening on the banks of the Amazon, near Santarm, below Villa Franca, a furious storm arose. While preparing shelter with palms he saw a young Indian maiden on the stream in a light canoe, and trying to make the shore before the storm came on. She was not equal to the task, and Morris, noticing she was being drawn slowly toward the powerful current, swam boldly out to her rescue, at great peril to himself, and pushed the canoe safely to the shore. Her gratitude took the shape of an invitation to conduct her home. The young hero accepted, and after a weary tramp, and some sharp shooting at wild beasts on the way, returned her home, only to find, to his surprise, that her father was a native chief of a powerful Brazillian tribe, and owned title deeds to the vast region lying between the river Amazon and the Sierra Acary range of mountains, and that the girl was his only child. The old chief overwhelmed him with kindness and gifts, has taken him into the family and now offers him the hand of Miss Princess, who is extremely beautiful and wears a diamond-studded girdle that would ransom a king. He promises Morris countless treasures from his diamond beds and gold fields, and the help of his whole tribe in collecting specimens; but his pride is pitched in a royal key, and before marriage can take place he insists that the son of science shall take the Indian beauty to his American home as a sister and obtain the consent of his parents to the match. The father runs a 10x12 lamp store here, and though he cautioned Ernest not to get mixed up with any of those girls down there, he shows a disposition to favor this diamond future for his son.

An Interesting Sight.

A spider captures a mouse and lifts it from the floor—wonderful work, astonishing many spectators.

(From the New Orleans Picayune, April 12)

The wonderful little spider which captured the mouse, and is elevating it in its parlour at Mr. Michael Gross's carpenter shop on Greatmeh, between Elsyian Fields and Marginy sts., of which we gave an account yesterday morning, is still busily engaged in its herculean task, and filling the numerous persons who visit it with amazement. This astonishing little insect is of the black species, and very small, a fact which renders the feat which it now performs the more marvellous. The mouse was accustomed, when on a predatory excursion, to emerge from a hole under the bench where the spider dwells, and pass into the carpenter shop, where the bench stands. The enterprising spider, who had no doubt watched for a long time the movements, laid a trap for the unsuspecting young mouse, and Monday morning, when it started out on its daily rounds, the little spider, who was on the lookout tightened the thread which she had prepared for her victim, whose hind legs had been entangled in them as it passed out of its hole, and soon secured it. Immediately after the legs had been caught, the spider fastened another thread to the mouse's tail, and after some several hours' constant work succeeded in raising her prey's hind quarters, and continued so doing until the tip of the mouse's nose only touched the floor. Having thus rendered it helpless, the little spider industriously set to work multiplying its fastenings. After a few more hours' labor, the mouse was raised one inch from the floor, the spider working as if with a pulley. In its terrible contortions to release itself, the mouse managed to sever the fastenings around its hind legs, but so strong were the threads which suspended it in the air, and so secure were they attached to its tail that all efforts to break them proved fruitless. Mr. Gross, taking great interest in the proceedings, left the spider undisturbed, and during almost the whole of Monday night, with several friends, watched its works attentively. The little insect, after taking her position on her victim's tail, commenced manipulating the threads and working. Gradually could the astonished witnesses of this wonderful feat see the mouse creep up, and the threads, descending from their fastenings under the corner of the bench to the mouse's tail, increased in number, and during the twenty-four hours ending yesterday evening, the threads had so increased that it became impossible to count them, and the mouse which was still alive though quite weakened, had been raised from one to three and a half inches from the floor. The spider during the whole time of its work sat on the mouse's tail, only leaving its position at long intervals, when it would cautiously creep down the tail to its root and there feed upon the blood of the mouse. Then resuming its position on the end of the tail, it would again begin its work. This unheard of capture of a mouse by so small an insect, and its ingenious manner of elevating it, has excited the wonder and admiration of thousands of visitors, among whom may be mentioned several scientific men and physicians, who assembled in large crowds at Mr. Gross's carpenter shop to witness the progress of the gigantic task which the little spider had undertaken, and is so successfully bringing to an issue. Mr. Gross will leave them undisturbed, and carefully watch the result, as every one is anxious to see what the spider will do with its captive after it dies, and how far it will elevate it.

A CURIOUS PRAYER.—The following quotation is from the diary of the Rev. Julian Young:—'One of the most noted men for fireside eloquence in prayer was Adam Scott, of Upper Dalgleish. I had an uncle who herded with him, and from him I had many quotations from Adam Scott's prayers. Here is a sample:—'We parteeclarly thank thee for thy great gudeness to Meg, and that it ever cam intil your head to tak' ony thought o' sic a useless bow-wow as her (alluding to a little girl of his who had been miraculously saved from drowning). For Thy mercies' sake—for the sake o' Thy puir sinfu' creeturs, now addressing thee in their ain shilly-shally way, and for the sake o' mair than we daur weel name to Thee,—hae mercy on our Rob. Ye ken Yourse!' he's a wild mischievous callant, and thinks nae mair o' committing sin, than a dog does o' licking a dish. But put Thy hook intil his nose, and thy bridle intil his gad and gar him come back to thee wi' a jerk that he'll no forget the langest day he has to live. Dinna forget puir Jamie, who's far awa frae us the night. Keep thy arm o' power about him, and ech sirs, I wish ye wad endow him wi' a little spunk and smeddum, to act for his-sel; for if ye dinna, he'll be but a banchel i' this warld, and a back sitter in the next. Thou hast added ane to our family, (one of his sons had just married against his approbation). So has been Thy will. It wad never ha' been mine. If it is of Thee, do Thou bless the connection, but if the fule hath done it out o' carnal desire, against a' reason and credit, may the cauld wind of adversity settle in his habitation.—Montreal Herald.

STILL IN A DANGEROUS CONDITION.

DEAR SIRS:—Friendly hints given in a friendly way are generally productive of good results, but in this instance we find an exception to the general rule. Mr. Elliott must certainly be of a very congealable substance, or the balmy winds of April and May would surely have removed him from his state of torpidity.—Though the 'thaws' of March were ineffectual in this respect we trust he has been aroused from his lethargy by 'the voice of Spring.' Bears hibernate for several months of the year, but at the approach of Spring they come forth, ravenous as wolves, seeking that which is essential to animal life. Man unlike this animal is endowed with reason and intelligence; but alas, how often do we find this intelligence within an obnubilated brain. I would not wish your readers to infer that such reference is made to Mr. Elliott, but his negligence, or that of the department which he represents deserves the censure of an intelligent and wise community.

Frequent mention has been made of the bridge at Wilson's Cove, but as it was so it is. A communication of September last excited him to such a degree that he or his 'private secretary' attempted to reply. But as we should only speak of the living and respect the dead, the communication from 'Lover of Justice' will be treated as it deserves.

Justice and equity are due to all, but I fear neither has been meted out to the inhabitants of Derby. Were the writer ignorant of the good qualities of those who manifest a deep interest in the public weal, he would naturally suppose that the letter in defence of Mr. Elliott, truly emanated at Derby. But as far as Mr. Elliott's home is from Derby so was 'Lover of Justice' from Wilson's Cove bridge and perhaps further. His communications exonerated Mr. Elliott, stating that the said bridge [illegible] requiring repair, but the [illegible] empty nothing could be [illegible] Protectionist would further [illegible] sentials. He (Protectionist) [illegible] granting his requests; but [illegible] ever be placed in the [illegible] Elliot or of our Chief

I am confident he will discharge all official duties to the best of his abilities. His competence can be proved by granting him a sinecure.

To make a long story short I will positively assert that the bridge in question is extremely dangerous and has been so too long. I do not wish to injure Mr. Elliott in his official capacty, or hurl obloquy upon the department, but any person who has seen the bridge in its present condition can only say it is a disgrace to the department, an imposition upon the public, and a neglect of duty.

Not intending the above to be defamation I would kindly request the proper authorities to be up and doing.

Thanking you for your space, I remain,

yours truly,
PROTECTOR.

Derby, May 10th, 1876.

To the Editors of the Union Advocate.

GENTLEMEN:—The correspondence in last week's Advocate signed "Vigilance," is a communication altogether uncalled for. That the work is grossly immoral and sensual, is not true. The publication in question is a book that is written on a delicate subject, it is true, but written in a high moral tone, in a truly christian spirit, and a book that will do a great amount of good by its general introduction. I care not what may be the opinion of "Vigilance," or persons of the class to which he belongs, when the work is endorsed by men of high attainments, and spoken of most favorably by the "Scottish American," the "Christian Union," "Christian Advocate." I would suggest that before "Vigilance gives his opinion of a book again, to read it carefully, and not merely see it. The better plan would be, to purchase a copy, and not see a book that some one else paid for.—But if "Vigilance" wishes to become a literary critic I will be happy to supply him with a copy of the work at the regular price; and when he reads it carefully I feel confident he will recommend the work, for

"Shallow draughts intoxicate the brain
And drinking largely sobers us again."

When I shall have placed a copy of it in the hands of every intelligent person in this part of the Province, I shall have accomplished a noble work and be a benefactor to humanity.

I remain, gentlemen,
yours respectfully,
N. JOHNSON, Book Agent.

Dalhousie, 13th May, 1876.

MESSRS EDITORS.—Mr. Geo. Fuller lectured here last evening to a very full house, and quite pleased his audience. He has a very pleasant voice, and an earnestness of manner which engages the attention of his hearers, and the effective way in which he handles his subject—carrying conviction without exciting animosity—has caused many to express the hope that we may ere long be afforded another opportunity of hearing Mr. Fuller on the same subject. As I understand he is to lecture in Bathurst and Miramichi on his homeward journey, I would advise the friends of Temperance in these places to avail themselves of Mr. Fuller's services in seeking to advance the interests of our great moral reform.

Yours &c.,
ONE WHO HEARD HIM.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 17, 1876.

VANDALISM.

THERE appears to be in our midst an element whose aim is to destroy everything which tends to beautify the town. Some miscreants, who are evidently training for the Penitentiary, have for some days past been mutilating and destroying the trees about Newcastle. Those in front of Hon. P. Mitchell's residence have been considerably broken, and a few nights ago several beautiful young elms in front of Mr. James Fish's property on Water Street were cut or broken down, and two or three more a few yards further on, in front of Mrs. Fowler's residence, have been so badly hacked, that they will in all likelihood die. It may be argued that this contemptible and criminal work was done when we had no policeman on duty, but this argument will not hold good, for the trees in front of Mr. Mitchell's residence were being mutilated before the policemen were dismissed, and the offender or offenders were never detected, nor has any attempt been made to discover who they were, so far as we have been able to ascertain. Water Street, we may say, is the only straight street in the heart of the town, and it is one which could be very much improved in appearance by tree planting. The work of improvement had commenced, and it was the intention of others to set out a number of trees this spring, but these efforts to adorn the town will in all probability be nipped in the bud by these acts of vandalism which are a disgrace to any civilized community, and which mark the perpetrators as persons depraved in heart, corrupt in morals, and utterly devoid of those qualities which mark the good citizen. We are ashamed to think that we have such characters in our community, and we hope that every effort will be made to place them where they cannot, for a time at least, perpetrate such dastardly acts.—Mr. Fish has replanted some trees, but it is doubtful if any others will now follow the praiseworthy example set by him to improve the appearance of our town, owing to these disgraceful actions—the like of which the most degraded barbarian, sunk in the lowest depths of heathen darkness and ignorance, would scorn to commit.

May Party.

One of the most agreeable parties [illegible] has been our pleasure to attend for [illegible] being g[illegible]e, was held in the Masonic [illegible] of [illegible]ssently day evening last, the [illegible]nature of which was the [illegible] of the Queen." The [illegible]hosen to fill the position [illegible]ie Davidson, daughter of A. A. Davidson, Esq., her Maids of Honor, eight in number, being Misses Maud and May Williston, Misses Annie and Lillie Thomson, Miss Jane Watt, Miss Mary Nicholson, Miss Agnes Marshall, Miss Ella M'Allister. Between 8 and 9 o'clock, the guests, numbering over 100, being present, and the arrangements for the Coronation being complete, the doors of the spacious hall were thrown open, and the QUEEN, accompanied by her Maids of Honor, made her appearance at the entrance to the audience chamber, the Queen looking charmingly beautiful in her well arranged dress of pure white, her Maids, prettily arrayed in white dresses, with pink and blue trimmings, adding considerably to the charm of the really captivating scene. Her Majesty and retinue then advanced towards the Throne at the further end of the audience chamber, the Maids, as they proceeded along with stately tread, singing sweetly, though timidly, "The Rosy Crown." As the Queen took her seat upon the Throne, (which was very tastefully arranged and draped) a beautiful wreath was placed upon her head by the leading Maids of Honor, Miss Maud Williston and Miss Lillie Thomson, just as the charmful attendants were singing the words, "take, Oh take, the rosy, the rosy crown." At the conclusion of the interesting ceremony, the Queen and her Maids were greeted with loud and well deserved applause. A few moments were then taken up by quite a number of the guests paying due homage to the lovely Queen, after which the scene was changed, and a number of persons took positions on the floor to engage in the pleasures of the mazy dance, in which the Queen and some of her Maids participated. This part of the programme was kept up with great spirit until after eleven o'clock, when refreshments were handed around, after which dancing was resumed for an hour or two. We must congratulate the ladies who made the arrangements, and in so short time, upon the very great success which attended their efforts, the impromptu May Party being in our opinion, the party of the season.

Opening of the Centennial Exhibition.

We condense from the St. John papers some interesting information respecting the opening of the Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia, on Wednesday last.

The great exhibition was opened under most favorable auspices, the sun being bright and warm, the air clear and balmy.

The inaugural ceremonies were commenced at 10.15, a. m. It is estimated that there were on the grounds fully 50,000 people, the number being largely increased every moment, and at the termination of the ceremonies there were thought to be present 100,000 persons.

Among the celebrities on the platform were President Grant and Dom Pedro, Emperor of Brazil, the latter being loudly cheered as he took his seat, the band playing the national hymn of Brazil. The platform presented a gay and animated appearance with the handsome dresses of the ladies and brilliant uniforms of the military.

During the interval between the time of opening and 11.10, a. m., the orchestra performed several pieces, including the Centennial Inauguration March. At 11.10 the following beautiful prayer was offered by Right Rev. Bishop Simpson, of the Methodist Church:—

"Almighty and Everlasting God, our Heavenly Father, Heaven is Thy throne and the earth is Thy footstool; before Thy majesty and holiness the angels veil their faces, and the spirits of the just made perfect bow in humble adoration: Thou art the Creator of all things—the preserver of all that exist, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers.—The minute, and the vast atoms and worlds alike attest the ubiquity of Thy presence and the omnipotence of Thy sway. Thou alone art the Sovereign Ruler of nations; Thou raiseth up one and casteth down another, and Thou givest the kingdoms of the world to whomsoever Thou wilt. The past, with all its records, are the unfolding of Thy counsels and the realization of Thy grand designs. We hail Thee as our rightful Ruler, the King Eternal, immortal and invisible, the only true God, blessed for evermore. We come on this glad day, O Thou God of our fathers, into these courts with thanksgiving, and into these gates with praise. We bless Thee for Thy wonderful goodness in the past, for the land which Thou gavest to our fathers—a land veiled from the ages from the ancient world but revealed in the fullness of time to Thy chosen people, whom Thou didst lead by Thy own right hand through the billows of the deep, a land of vast extent; of towering mountains and broad plains; of unnumbered products and of untold treasure.—We thank Thee for the fathers of our country. Men of mind and of might, who endured privation and sacrifices. Who braved multiplied dangers rather than defile their consciences or to be untrue to their God. Men who laid on the broad foundations of truth and justice the grand structure of civil freedom. We praise Thee for the closing century for the founders of the Republic. For the immortal Washington and his grand associates. For the wisdom with which they planned and the firmness and heroism under which Thy blessing led them to triumphant success. Thou wast their shield in hours of danger. Their pillar of cloud by day and their pillar of fire by night. May we, their sons, walk in their footsteps and imitate their virtues.—We thank Thee for social and national prosperity and progress. For valuable discoveries and multiplied inventions. For laborsaving machinery relieving the toiling masses. For schools Free as the morning light. For the millions of the rising generations. For the books and periodicals scattered like leaves of Autumn over the land. For art and science; for freedom to worship God according to the dictates of conscience; for a church unfettered by the trammels of State. Bless, we pray, the President of the United States and his constitutional advisers, the judges of the Supreme Court, the senators and representatives in Congress, the Governors of our several Commonwealths, the officers of the army and navy, and all who are in official positions throughout the land. Guide them, we pray Thee, with Thy wisest counsels, and may they ever rule in righteousness. We ask thy blessing to rest upon the President and members of the Centennial Commission and upon those associated with them in the various departments, who have labored long and earnestly, amid anxieties and difficulties for the enterprise. May Thy special blessing, O thou God of all the nations of the earth, rest upon our national guests and our visitors from foreign lands. We welcome them to our shores and we rejoice in their presence among us, whether they represent thrones, or culture, or research, or whether they come to exhibit the triumphs and genius and fit in the development of industry and in the progress of civilization, preserve Thou them, we beseech Thee. In health and in safety and in due time may they be welcomed by loved ones again to their own native lands. Let thy blessing rest richly on the Centennial Exhibition; may the lives and health of all interested be preserved in Thy sight; preside on its assemblage. Grant that the association in effort may bind more closely every part of our great republic, so that our Union may be perpetual and indissoluble. Let its influence draw the nations of the earth into a happy unity. Hereafter, we pray Thee, may all disputed questions be settled by arbitration and not by the sword, and may wars forever cease among the nations of the earth. May the new century be better than the past, more radiant with the light of true philosophy, warmer with emanations of a world under sympathy with Thee; may capital, gains and labour be freed from all antagonisms, by the establishment and application of such principles of justice and equity as shall reconcile diversified interests and bind in imperishable bonds all parts of society. We pray thy Benediction, especially on the women of America, who for the first time in the history of our race take so conspicuous a place in a national celebration; may the light of their intelligent purity and enterprise shed its beam afar, until in distant lands their sisters may realize the beauty and glory of Christian freedom and elevation. We beseech Thee, Almighty Father, that our beloved Republic may be strengthened in every element of true greatness, until her mission is accomplished by presenting to the world an illustration of the happiness of a free people with a free church in a free state, under laws of their own enactment, and under rulers of their own selection, acknowledging supreme allegiance only to the King of Kings and Lord of Lords, and as thou didst give to one of its illustrious sons first to draw the electric spark from heaven, which has since girded the globe in its celestial whispers of "Glory to God in the highest, peace on earth and good will to men," so to the latest time may the mission of America, under Divine inspiration, be one of affection, brotherhood and love for all our race—and may the coming centuries be filled with the glory of our Christian civilization; and unto Thee, Our Father, through Him whose life is the light of men, will we ever ascribe glory and praise, now and forever. Amen."

During the prayer the majority of the vast assembly stood with uncovered heads. The sublime prayer was followed by the singing of Whittier's beautiful Centennial hymn, the words of which we give.

Our father, God! from out whose hand
The centuries fall like grains of sand,
We meet to-day, united, free,
And loyal to our land and Thee,
To thank Thee for the era done,
And trust Thee for the opening one.

Here where of old, by Thy design,
The fathers spake that word of Thine
Whose echo is the glad refrain
Or rended bolt and falling chain,
To grace our festal time from all
The zones of earth our guests we call.

Be with us while the New World greets
The Old World, thronging all its streets,
Unveiling all the triumphs won
By art or toil beneath the sun;
And into common good ordain
This rivalship of head and brain.

Thou who hast here in concord furled
The war-flags of a gathered world,
Beneath the western skies fulfil
The Orient's mission of good will,
And freighted with Love's golden fleece,
Send back the Argonauts of peace.

For art and labor met in truce,
For beauty made the bride of use,
We thank Thee, while withal we crave
The austere virtues strong to save,
The honor proof to place or gold,
The manhood never bought or sold!

Oh make Thou us, through centuries long,
In peace secure, and justice strong;
Around our gift of freedom draw
The safeguards of thy righteous law,
And, cast in some diviner mould,
Let the new cycle shame the old!

The hymn, which was magnificently sung, was followed by the presentation of the Exhibition buildings to the United States Centennial Commission, by John Welch, President of the Centennial Board of Finance.

Then followed the

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES, AND THE PROCLAMATION OF THE OPENING OF THE INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION OF 1876.

My countrymen! It has been thought appropriate, upon this Centennial occasion, to bring together in Philadelphia, for the popular inspection, specimens of our attainments in the industrial and fine arts and in literature, science and philanthropy, as well as in the great business of agriculture and commerce. That we may the more thoroughly appreciate the excellence and deficiencies of our achievements, and also give emphatic expression to our earnest desire to cultivate the friendship of our fellow members of the great family of nations, the enlightened agricultural, commercial and manufacturing people of the world have been invited to send hither corresponding specimens of their skill and exhibit on equal terms, in friendly competition with our own. To this invitation they have generously responded. For so doing we render our hearty thanks. The beauty and utility of the contributions will this day be submitted to your inspection by the managers of this Exhibition. We are glad to know that a view of the specimens of the skill of all nations will afford to you unalloyed pleasure, as well as yield to you a valuable practical knowledge of so many of the remarkable results of the wonderful skill existing in enlightened communities. One hundred years ago our country was new and but partially settled. Our necessities have compelled us to chiefly expend our means and time in felling forests, subduing prairies, building dwellings, factories, ships, docks, warehouses, roads, canals, machinery, etc., etc. Most of our schools, churches and asylums have been established within an hundred years. Burdened by these great primal works of necessity, which could not be delayed, we yet have done what this Exhibition will show in the direction of rivalling older or more advanced nations, in law, medicine and theology, in science, literature, philosophy and the fine arts. Whilst proud of what we have done, we regret that we have not done more. Our achievements have been great enough, however, to make it easy for our people to acknowledge superior merits, wherever found. And now, fellow-citizens, I hope a careful examination of what is about to be exhibited to you will not only inspire you with a profound respect for the skill and taste of our friends from other nations, but also satisfy you with the attainments made by our own people during the past one hundred years. I invite your generous co-operation with the worthy Commissioners to secure a brilliant success to this international Exhibition, and so make the stay of our foreign visitors, to whom we extend a hearty welcome, both profitable and pleasant to them. I declare the International Exhibition now open.

When the President concluded by declaring the Exhibition open, he was loudly cheered, the Emperor of Brazil rising in his seat and joining in the demonstration by waving his hat.

At 12 o'clock, at a signal from Gen. Hawley, the American flag was unfurled from the main building. The Hallelujah Chorus was rendered with orchestral and organ accompaniment; a salute of 100 guns was fired from George's Hill, together with the ringing of chimes from different parts of the grounds.

During the chorus the foreign Commissioners passed into the main building and took their places before their respective departments, after which President Grant, accompanied by Gen. Hawley and Director General Goshorne and followed by the guests also passed into the main building, and thence to the machinery hall and from there to the judges quarters, where a reception by the President was held.

At 2 p. m., the procession, headed by the President, after passing through the main Exhibition building, passed to machinery hall, where the President, at 2.22 p. m., put in motion the great engine, thus starting all the machinery in that building. This closed formal ceremonies of the day.

After the reception in the Judges Hall the President was driven through the grounds.

The buildings now present a creditable appearance inside, the floor being swept, rubbish removed from the principal aisles and side passages, and the unfinished sections where goods remain unpacked have been partially concealed by curtains.

Visitors generally appeared satisfied with the Exhibition, and, after the rush to see the procession was over, numbers devoted their time to the careful study of the many interesting exhibits.

Work will be rapidly pushed, on the unfinished portion, and it is hoped will be completed by the 1st of July.

The Empress of Brazil visited the woman's pavilion this p. m., and made the tour of the aisles and passages. Don Pedro also visited the pavilion, and gave emphatic approval of the work there displayed by American women.

There was a grand illumination in the evening, which was continued until midnight.

A Sad Affair.

On Tuesday of last week, James Ramsay, a native of this town, who has been since April, 1870, an inmate of the Provincial Lunatic Asylum, died suddenly while working on the farm of Dr. Walker, South Bay, about three miles from the Asylum. From statements made in the St. John press, it appears that the deceased was frequently employed on Doctor Walker's farm, the Doctor himself stating at the Inquest that he had worked for him, at intervals, during the last five years.—On Tuesday, the 9th, he was clearing land, in company with Israel Hicks and Daniel Kennedy, (also inmates of the Asylum.) At noon he ate but little, and complained of not being well. Dr. Walker asked him to go at some lighter work, which he refused to do, being desirous of completing the job at which he was then engaged.—About half past four Hicks went away to weigh hay, leaving Kennedy and Ramsay in the field. Soon after preparations were made to return to the Asylum, but Ramsay was missing.—The Doctor called him, but received no reply. He then asked Kennedy where he was, who said that Ramsay "had taken a peak," and then shook his head and sat down. The Doctor thought that Ramsay had taken offence at something, and had left the farm. A search was made for the missing man, but it could not have been very carefully done, as it is stated that Dr. Walker and a man named Campion looked about the farm, not thinking it necessary to search among some shrubs near the spot where he was working, and where the body was actually found on Wednesday morning by James Tait, one of the farm hands. Information was at once forwarded to the Asylum and also to his brother in town.—When the despatch was received here, Mr. Ramsay was on his way down from Boiestown, reaching home at 3 p. m. on Thursday. On Friday the body was brought home, having been met by his brother at Weldford Station. The remains were interred [illegible] Saint James' Church burial ground on Saturday afternoon, and were followed to their last resting place by a number of his acquaintances and friends.

The body was examined by Dr. M'Farlane, of Fairville, who gave the following evidence at the Inquest held before Coroner Robinson.

"On Wednesday he found a rigor mortis well marked. In viewing the body, to ascertain whether or no there were any external marks of violence, he found none, with the exception of two slight abrasions or scratches on the left scalp, which he thought were probably produced by the fall amongst the twigs where the body lay. It might be that the deceased died from apoplexy. It was believed he came to his death by natural causes. It would be impossible for deceased to have come to his death by foul means without witness being able to discover it."

It may not be out of place to ask, whether it is customary to allow inmates of the Asylum to go three miles away, without a keeper, to work for a gentleman who has no official connection with the Institution. Also, whether there is or is not sufficient work for the inmates in and about the grounds and farm of the Asylum, where they can be employed under the direction of the keepers? It does certainly seem strange that the deceased was found working so far away from the Asylum, and apparently under the charge of no person who was responsible for his safe keeping, and even allowing that the inmates of the Asylum can be employed by outsiders, we maintain that none of the unfortunate inmates should be free from the surveillance of one or more of those who have them in charge. We hope the Commissioners will offer such explanations as shall be satisfactory to the public and the friends of the deceased.

Reports from friends had reached the family here during the spring, that the mental condition of Jas. Ramsay was much improved, and his brother had fully made up his mind to bring James home during this month, in order to see if such a change would result favorably. His unexpected death, away from home, out in a field, uncared for, and under nobody's charge, has naturally caused feelings of anguish and sorrow among the members of the afflicted family, and deep regret on the part of many friends. It does seem as if there was carelessness somewhere, and the proper authorities will do well to explain the matter as best they can.

The deceased was a native of Newcastle, and was 38 years of age.—During a residence here of over 30 years, he was generally esteemed, being a young man of sober and industrious habits, kind, and generous to a fault. He was a bridge contractor for several years, and it was while building the bridge over Barnaby River, (under government contract,) that he fell from the structure a distance of 25 feet, striking on a log, and received such injuries as finally resulted in his mental derangement.

The "Watchman" expresses its opinion of the "Advance" on the Fishery Question.

The Watchman, in an able article headed "'Reformers in Power," refers to the action of the Grit Government in dismissing competent public officers from office solely for political reasons, the dismissal of Mr. H. T. Stevens, of Moncton, a first class and reliable officer, a gentleman who "stood higher than any other official in the Inland Revenue Department in New Brunswick," being a case in point. Concerning the Advance, (that great Northern luminary which sees defeat staring our fishermen in the face) the Watchman says:—

"That other parts of the country may clearly understand that those who oppose Reformers on questions of public policy need not hope for any favor from the Government, even where matters which they regard as involving their inalienable rights are concerned, the Chatham Advance takes up the parable and unhesitatingly threatens the fishermen of Northumberland with the consequences of opposition to the Government policy as regards their claim to "riparian rights." In this connection it is proper to remark that so important did the claim of the fishermen to "riparian rights" appear even to the Mackenzie Government, and so strongly was it supported by prima facie evidence, that the Government was obliged to decide, and to announce to Parliament the decision, to allow a test case to be made up for the newly created Court of Appeal. It is under such circumstances as these that the Advance threatens the fishermen with the vengeance of the Government, in the following terms:—

"QUERY.—If the fishermen get up a representative case as Mr. Mitchell urges them to do; if they actually go to law with the Government—and they are beaten; if they learn that they have really no right to the privileges the Department of Marine and Fisheries offered to protect them in and give them licenses for, without any charge whatever, can they expect to be as well treated as if they had not placed themselves in antagonism to the Government at the instigation of Mr. Mitchell? It is the fishermen who will suffer, and not Mr. Mitchell, however; so the result makes little difference to that gentleman.'

It is clearly wise public policy to have this vexed question settled by the highest Court in the Dominion. It was due to the fishermen, in whose behalf the proposition was made to the Government by Mr. Mitchell; due indeed to all concerned, or who may hereafter be concerned, in these fisheries; due to the public and the country that are vexed by the dispute, that the question should be so settled in the Courts that it could not afterwards be unsettled. This was not only the wisest way but the shortest road out of the difficulty, and it has met with the approval of all who have given any attention to the subject,—blind partisans of the Government only excepted. Still, scarcely had the fishermen assembled and in good faith taken the preliminary steps towards the preparation of their case, than the local organ of the Government assumed a threatening attitude and sought to intimidate them from moving! The Globe tells the dismissed official that he lost his office because his friends were unable to protect him! The Advance tells the fishermen that if they venture to protect themselves in the Courts, according to the Government's agreement, and especially if they accept assistance from their County member, who happens to be in Opposition, they can not "expect to be as well treated as if they had not placed themselves in antagonism to the Government!" The plain English of which is that the Mackenzie Government is the fountain of all rights and privileges, and that men who place themselves in antagonism to this source of power, or show the slightest spark of manhood or independence in urging what they believe to be their rights, will be made to suffer for it!

These are useful illustrations of the Grits in Office. They supply striking contrasts to the professions of the Grits in Opposition. They will help to impress upon the country the fact that the Party in power is little better than a conspiracy against the public good—a conspiracy and combination of a most desperate and reckless character, whose motto is, "We shall either Rule or Ruin!" Thus far in the progress of Reform in Power, its steps have been marked by constant assaults on Constitutional safeguards and the liberties of the subject. As its chances of retaining power become more uncertain, it resorts to the most desperate measures, with a view of intimidating those who may be thinking of opposing themselves to its tyrannical rule; but, the more insolent, the more barbarous the Party and its Press become, the greater will be their humiliation when the time arrives for the people to pronounce on their repeated attempts to subvert the constitutional rights of Canadian citizens."

Unjust Treatment.

It is now nearly three weeks since Mr. John Johnson was summarily dismissed from his position on the Intercolonial Railway, and the Government, in withholding the reasons for the dismissal, are not treating their late officer with even common courtesy. If Mr. Johnson has done anything wrong, and his dismissal therefore a consequence of his wrong doing, why not state so at once, and not keep him in suspense, and his friends and the public also. The very delay seems to us to indicate that the reasons for the dismissal are so paltry that the railway authorities do not care to have them made public. Unless good and just reasons can be advanced for the dismissal, the people of Miramichi, of both sides of politics, will give determined expression to their indignation, for no paltry excuse will suffice for the dismissal of the son of the man who did such good service in the advocacy of the Intercolonial by the North—the late lamented Hon. John M. Johnson. In the interests of the public service, and in justice to the young man who has been so summarily dismissed, and no reasons assigned, we ask, we demand that an investigation shall be held at once. The Government may argue that they have a right to dismiss officials at any time. Without attempting to discuss this now, they certainly selected an unfortunate time to dismiss Mr. Johnson—when articles had been forcibly taken from the freight house, leading the public mind to think that some way the late officer was mixed up in the matter. This is the conclusion arrived at by many, thereby placing Mr. Johnson in a very unenviable position. We understand that the Government do intend to hold an investigation, why then the delay? Do they already see that injustice has been done, and do not therefore want to admit it? Their tardiness in this matter may certainly be so construed.

☞ The Moncton Times refers to the Advance as the "great luminary of the Northern hemisphere," and concerning the great three-column railway article of our local contemporary the Times says that "for pure, unadulterated "cheek" the like of this article no one has ever seen before and probably never will again. The waspish Editor proclaims war with all mankind, and with an impudence amusing for its boldness and its source, assumes to be THE ONE and THE ONLY disinterested advocate of prudence in railway expenditures amongst all the periodicals of New Brunswick." To the statement of the Advance that the Times is an opposition paper, the editor retorts by saying "that it must be so, for the Advance says it is and the Advance don't lie. (We wouldn't like to hazard the same assertion about its Editor.") We merely give these extracts to show the opinion entertained of the worthy Manager abroad. We can assure the Times that he need not be alarmed about our Northern luminary, the Advance, for the light it now reflects don't amount to the glimmer of a farthing rushlight.

BLANKS.—Log Hauler's Affidavit, Surveyors' Bonds, and all kinds of legal and shipping blanks for sale at this office.

"TWA HOURS AT HAME.—Notwithstanding that the weather on the night of Thursday last was exceedingly disagreeable, the rain pouring down incessantly, the large Masonic Hall here was comfortably filled, there being over 500 persons present. No greater compliment to Mr. Kennedy could be paid than this, or no clearer evidence of his popularity in this section. The large audience did not go away disappointed. The songs and anecdotes, descriptive of Scottish character, were sung and told in a manner which elicited frequent outbursts of applause, and Mr. Kennedy, a host in himself, was nobly supported in the programme by his talented family. The part songs were performed with excellent taste and precision, while much artistic skill was exhibited in the rendition of "Hail, Smiling Morn," glee for five voices, and also "The Cloud-Capt Towers," glee for six voices. Every true lover of music must have been charmed with these pieces. The very fine performance was closed by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," in which many of the audience joined.

The Kennedy family performed in Chatham on Friday night with great success. Many persons were disappointed by being unable to obtain admittance. The Kennedys gave another performance in Chatham last night.

Mr. Kennedy and his talented family leave by the noon train going south to-day, and we feel assured they carry with them the very best wishes of our people.

HORRIBLE.—Concerning the murder of poor little Mabel Young, the fiend Piper says:—"I took the bat from the lower room, before or about the commencement of the school, to kill somebody. At the time I carried it up into the auditorium, but during the session of the Sunday School took it from the auditorium and carried it to the belfry. After the close of the school I came down stairs and opened the doors. Then I went up again at the time I sent away the boys who were playing in the vestibule. After the boys had gone out I was still in the vestibule, the little girl came up stairs, and I induced her to go with me into the belfry. There I struck her with the club two or three times, and she fell where the blood was found.—Then I picked her up and carried the body where it was discovered."

The world will be well rid of such a cool, calculating villain. Piper says the murder of Mabel Young and Bridget Landregan was [illegible] prompted by the use of stimulants, under the influence of which he had an insane desire to shed blood.

EXPECTS TO GET HER OFF.—A number of hands are now engaged in preparing to launch the stranded brig St. Michael, which was wrecked last fall, and purchased by Mr. James Brown, of Newcastle. Preparations are being made to launch her sideways, the distance from her present position to where she will float when launched being about 200 feet. Mr. Brown went down on Monday to see how matters were progressing. There are good prospects of the vessel being safely conveyed to deep water.—Should the attempt to launch be successful, and we trust it will, Mr. Brown will doubtless make a good thing out of his speculation.

SAD.—Our last paper contained a notice of the death, at Halifax, of the eldest son of Mr. W. Deblois, a bright little fellow of seven years. As will be seen by to-day's paper, the same disease, diphtheria, has carried off another member of the family, a little girl of 2½ years. These two deaths occurred on the 8th and 11th of May, respectively. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Deblois in Bathurst and Miramichi, will, we feel assured, deeply sympathise with them in their dark hour of trial.

☞ James Devine, who with a man named Tole, was recently arrested for abstracting money from the counting room of George Philps, banker, St. John, has been tried, found guilty, and sentenced to 5 years imprisonment in the P. Penitentiary. Tole was acquitted. Devine made a bold attempt to escape while being conveyed to the jail, which was however frustrated by the officers who had him in charge.

☞ Andrew Phair, son of the deceased postmaster of Fredericton, accidently shot himself while out gunning on Saturday. He was in the act of drawing his gun from his canoe, when the charge went off, passing through his right arm, close to the shoulder. He will likely lose his arm.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Mr. John Dunne, late of Bathurst, and well known in Miramichi, was attacked by apoplexy at Boston on Wednesday last, from the effects of which he expired on Friday at 5 p. m. He was watched over and cared for by his children, passing away peacefully and without pain to his rest.

TO FISH SHIPPERS.—Parties engaged in the exportation of fresh fish are referred to Mr. Geo. Sparrow's advertisement in another column.—Mr. S. has made the necessary preparations for carrying on an extensive re-packing business, and guarantees that orders entrusted to him shall receive the very best attention. The references to which the notice of those in the trade is directed represent some of the leading firms of St. John.—adv.

☞ A. L. Light, Esq., has been appointed Chief Engineer on the North Shore Railway Company, Quebec, and Mr. Hamleyn, Resident Engineer, for Three Rivers District. Mr. Odell has been named engineer on the part of the contractor.

PIANO.—For Sale at a moderate price, a handsome Metropolitan Piano, new, with patent agraffe treble and bass, and all the modern improvements. Pronounced by good judges to be one of the best finished and finest toned instruments in this section of country. For particulars apply at this office.

DRUGS.—Mr. E. Lee Street has opened an establishment for the sale of drugs, &c., in Judge Williston's brick store. For particulars see his advertisement.

☞ Mr. Thomas Marshall has commenced business as a general dealer in the store fronting the Square and near the Bank of Montreal. He intends to keep on hand a well assorted stock, which he is prepared to sell at fair living rates to all who may favor him with their patronage. Give him a call.

The Queen's Birthday.

The Andover will make an excursion trip to Blackville and return on Wednesday next, which we hope will be largely patronized. See advertisement.

Parties attending the excursion will be back in good time to witness the Dramatic Performance in the evening, the particulars of which are given in our advertising columns. This entertainment is to be given for the purpose of raising funds to improve the Public Square, a laudable object, and one in which our people ought to manifest a deep interest. We hope the young men who have the matter in hand will be encouraged in their laudable endeavors to improve the appearance of the town, by a large attendance at the Hall on the night of the 24th. See advertisement.

There is some talk of a Cricket Match between the knights of the willow in Newcastle and Chatham, but as no Club has yet been formed here this season, we cannot say positively that the match will take place.

ACCIDENT.—On Saturday morning last Wm. Robertson, who belongs down river, and an Indian, belonging to Eel Ground, went to work on the landing of Robert and John Forsyth, Little South West. While at work the men were injured by being jammed between the logs on the landing. Robertson had both his thighs broken and is progressing as well as can be expected. The Indian was fatally injured about the chest, and died in about 12 hours after the accident. We understand that the men were warned of their danger, which exonerates the owners of the landing from blame in the matter.

☞ We are pleased to hear that Mr. Fuller's temperance meetings in Northern towns have been very successful. Mr. F. will, it is expected, deliver an address at Bathurst to-morrow evening. We are sorry to learn that, owing to pressing engagements which require his presence at home, Mr. Fuller will not be able to remain at Newcastle on his return, which will be a disappointment to the temperance brethren here.

☞ Flour is a scarce article in Newcastle and Chatham, it being reported yesterday that there was not a barrel to be obtained in either place. Our merchants have imported a large quantity of flour from St. John during the winter, but are now holding back, on account of the freight rate charged from St. John, believing that they can do better by steamer from Montreal or Quebec. The railway authorities will do well to note this fact.

DR. J. H. ARNOLD, of Berlin, Prussia, is now stopping at Bowser's Hotel, Chatham, where he will remain until the end of the month.—The Doctor makes specialities of diseases of the Eye and Ear, and the cure of Cancer without the use of the knife. He can also be consulted on all diseases free of charge.

DENTISTRY.—Dr. D. A. Baxter, Surgeon Dentist, has returned to Chatham, and can be consulted at Dr. J. Baxter's Office. The Dr. will remain in Chatham for a few weeks. adv.

☞ By advertisement it will be seen that there is to be a literary and musical entertainment in the Hall at Derby on Friday evening next. We hope there will be a good attendance.

☞ Travellers arriving in town yesterday reported clear water outside of Fox Island, but considerable ice in the Bay Chaleur northward.

☞ Mr. Ullock's new Hearse arrived by train from St. John on Monday afternoon. It is a well finished and handsome article.

The most serious object on which man can meditate is the maintenance of good health in himself and family. In this changeable climate of ours it is of the utmost importance at once to banish the slightest cold. The confirmed consumptive patient knows now that when he was assailed with his first cough, if he had made use of Dr. Wilson's Pulmonary Cherry Balsam, he would now have been well. Subdue at once, then, that cough which is getting more and more confirmed every day you neglect using this remedy. Pain, discomfort, and danger will then be arrested.

Clark's Derby Condition Powders were invented by one of the most experienced Veterinary Surgeons of England, and are the only English Condition Powders in the market. No time should be lost in giving them for all cases of Want of Appetite, Roughness of the Hair, Stoppage of Water or Thich Wnter, Coughs and Colds, Swelling of the Glands of the Throat, Worms, Horse-sil, Thick Wind, &c. They are equally good for cattle and sheep.

For horses that are troubled with Bone Spavins or Splints they should first be blistered, and then Dr. Dow's Sturgeon Oil Liniment applied once a day. Many horses have derived marvellous relief from this Liniment, which has brought round many such, and re-established their limbs, after their owners had despaired of a cure.

Dr. Wilson's Family Anti-Bilious Pills are composed of the best and purest materials that can be produced from vegetable extracts, and are the truest, safest, and surest purgative Pill known to medical men.

The Farmer's Corner.

Manure for Grass.

No crop gets less attention than grass. If manured at all, it is only incidentally with another crop, rarely for itself alone. Corn, wheat and barley get the manure, and when seeded, the young clover takes what is left. After that, if the field be pastured, the droppings of animals left in lumps over the field, are all that the lands get till ploughed again. This is considered improving the soil; and it is. No matter how managed, clover is a benefit, and whatever else he may do, the farmer who sows and grows clover, is making his farm better. What, then, might not the result be, if the same care were taken of the clover hill as of other crops! It does not need cultivating,—the long, deep reaching roots mellow and pulverize the soil as nothing else can. If the clover grows thriftily the top acts as a mulch, shading the ground and keeping it moist. A crop of two tons or more of clover, whether ploughed under or cut for hay, can hardly fail to leave the soil better than before. Aim to grow the largest possible crops of clover. A slight dressing of gypsum—one hundred pounds per acre in early spring—often produces wonderful results. But if a farmer has a little well rotted manure, the scrapings of barnyards, fall is the time to apply it. Clover is often injured by freezing and thawing in winter, and a very slight covering of manure will afford a great deal of protection. Rich earth from corners of the fences, is well worth drawing a short distance on young clover, provided the ground is hard and firm. If the field is not to be mowed next season, coarser manure can be used. Country Gentleman.

The Cream of Milk.

Few persons are aware, probably, of the extent to which the percentage of cream is influenced by the condition of the cow. At a Barre meeting of the Massachusetts State Board, Mr. Lewis, an old, experienced dairyman, said; 'I have taken a great deal of pains to test the value of milk that I have worked into cheese. I have graduated glasses for the purpose, and I have found a cow whose uniform percentage of cream was eighteen per cent. reduced to six in twelve hours—not from any change of food, but from a little excitement.

'You gentleman who make butter, be careful to adopt my advice and always treat your cow kindly and gently; never get her excited, because every ounce of excitement will take from the milk one per cent. of cream. I have known a cow to be abused by a furious, brutal milker, and the percentage of her cream went down one-half. It is astonishing what an effect excitement has on the percentage of cream in the milk a cow produces. You will be astonished if you will make the test, and make it carefully. I have known a cow excited from natural causes to drop from fourteen to six per cent. in twelve hours. So I would again repeat, whoever abuses his cow knocks out of his milk a large percentage of cream.'

THE FARMER'S FRIEND — THE CROW.—The poor crow finds every man's hand against him, notwithstanding the service he does to those who till the ground. If they do not kill him on sight, it is only because he is usually a match for even the most sharp-sighted gunner. He is quite as fond of bugs and worms, and little field mice and young snakes, as he is of the farmer's corn. He is a good policeman about the farmhouse, and drives away the hawk, who can do twice the amount of mischief he is guilty of. He hunts the grass-fields and pulls out the caterpillars and all manner of pests, and probably saves many other crops, if he is hard on the corn. A gentleman had a tame crow who trotted after him as he went out to wage his annual war on the squash bugs. His sable attendant put his head on one side and watched him a few minutes, as if to see how he did it. Comprehending the business, at last, he went for those bugs with a will, and cleared the patch in fine style. He took it for a business the remainder of the season, insuring a fine crop.—Our Dumb Animals.

It is an established fact, says the Scientific Farmer, that no one constituent of plant-food can keep a soil fertile. Some farmers buy freely of phosphatic manures, as bone-dust, superphosphate of lime, and experience good results for a few years, and praise it accordingly. Then the crops fall off and the fertilizer dealer and his goods are denounced, and some other manure is tried—nitrogenous probably. The change improves the yield, but this in time fails. Perhaps, now the farmer gets ashes or other manure containing potash into the system, and with still more marked results, it may be, than with the first use of the other sorts. But this does not last, and he returns in disgust to his stable manure, and again his results are good, for in barnyard manure are all the elements of fertility, though usually insufficient in quantity to secure the best results.

A Full Confession.

"There could, to our thinking, be no more conclusive evidence that the country is, on the whole, well off and well ruled, than the fact that the measures to which his Excellency's assent was craved the other day, were for the most part of small importance."—Ottawa Times.

This is an open-hearted admission that Sir John Macdonald and his colleagues did well by the country in the days of their rule, for since they were driven from office, the measures to which his Excellency's assent has been craved have been for the most part of small importance. What then does the Times honestly think of those who years thwarted, harassed, and that Government, but who that they cannot improve that they can find nature, in fact?—Toronto

m-engine at the Cen- ie600 tons; will drive eight miles of shafting; has a fly-wheel thirty feet in diameter and weighing seventy tons; is of 1400 horse power; has two walking beams weighing twenty-two tons each; two forty-inch cylinders, a ten-foot stroke, a crank-shaft nineteen inches in diameter and twelve feet in length; connecting-rods twenty-four feet in length; and piston-rods 44 inches in diameter.

In order to settle disputes on the national question in Ottawa, the Free Press has published a statement showing the relative proportions of persons of various nationalities holding 160 offices of trust and emolument in Ottawa to be—Irish, 89; English, 24; Scotch, 23; French Canadian, 15; Americans, 9.

ICED SALMON, 1876.

TO EXPORTERS OF SALMON ON THE NORTH SHORE.

THE Subscriber begs leave to inform the Fish Packers and Exporters at the North Shore, that he pays particular attention to the Business of

OVERHAULING AND RE-PACKING

SALMON

FOR EXPORTATION.

Parties wishing their Salmon Overhauled and Re-packed at the Saint John Station will find it to their interest to confer their favors on him, as he will pay strict attention to their orders, and forward their consignments promptly.

Parties sending Salmon this way should always mark the boxes on their ends, and not on the tops. The Agent of the International Steamship Company insists upon this rule being carried out.

The Freight over the Intercolonial, and the expense of overhauling and re-icing, is paid by the Steamship Company, and collected by them in Boston from Consignee.

The Subscriber will do the work cheaper than any in the trade, and guarantees satisfaction.

TERMS:

For re-packing 50 or more boxes at one shipment, 65 cents per box; for re-packing 40 to 50 boxes at one shipment 70 cents per box; for re-packing 20 to 40 boxes at one shipment 75 cents per box; for re-packing 20 to 30 boxes at one shipment 80 cents per box; for re-packing 10 to 20 boxes at one shipment 90 cents; for re-packing under 10 boxes at one shipment $1.00 per box.

What Brown, Seavey & Co. say about Salmon Packed by Geo. Sparrow.

MR. GEO. SPARROW:—

Dear Sir;—Yours of the 14th came duly to hand, and the contents noted. In reply, would say the fish shipped by you have always come in good condition, better than any that have arrived this season, that we have seen, and we have a chance to see all that come. Plenty of Ice, covered with shavings, is the proper and only way of packing.
