"Cold ! so cold !" and the night looks down On a shiviring wretch in a tattered gown, On a lone, lorn heart, and a pair of eyes Wildly fixed on the murky skies ; Kiss on kiss By the flakes are told :

Kiss on kiss-But oh ! so cold ; Even the touch that ought to bless Mocketh the wanderer's wretchedness.

How can the loved one in the land of the light Peer through the dismal depth of night, With never a star to break the gloom, Or sweep one cloud from the path of doom Flake on flake.

> O'er vale and hill ; Flake on flake, With touch so chill;

With touch that sinks like shafts of hate, Deep in the heart so desolate.

"Cold ! so cold !" and the ruddy glare "Of lights that glint in the frosty air Reddens each flake that falls upon The hapless, hopeless, friendless one; Drop by drop

Of the bloo l-red snow, Drop by drop In the cup of woe The chalice filled for Want's pale bride,

A pauper's feast for Christma-tide.

Joy sails out on the winter's wings And tuned for self is the lay she sings; Its echoes drift with the icy air, And mock the sufferer's piteous prayer :

Wave on wave With the night wind strong : Wave on wave

Of the bitter song, That floats where the sails of hope are furled And crowns the wounds of a heartless world

"Cold, so cold !" Not the cutting blast. Nor the frostly cloak of the night-cloud cast:-But the cra amed, unpitying hearts that beat The rhymne of life in a crowded street. Throb on throb,

With a chime of pelf, Throb on throb To the song of self, But not one pulse to the measure sweet,

That times the love at the mercy-seat. The night wears on and the moon sails out. And the cloud sweeps back to the reals of doubt And the stars look down for the shivering post of duty at Miss Patience Perkins' bed-

Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal promountains of California, the medicinal pro-perties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINZGAN BIT-TERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recov-ers his health.
