

WOMAN MURDERED BY FORMER LOVER.

Comely Young Wife of Niagara Falls Saloon-keeper Shot to Death.

The Murderer Escapes and Buffalo Police Are Searching for Him.

Buffalo, Sept. 28.—Chief Taylor, of the detective bureau, last night was notified by the Niagara Falls authorities to be on the lookout for a young Italian who is thought to have been responsible for the murder of a young French Canadian woman, the wife of an Italian saloon-keeper of Niagara Falls.

Immediately after the shooting Chief Lyons ordered the saloon closed and rounded up several inmates. There was another woman in the saloon at the time, and she was spirited away by some of her friends.

Marie Talley, 19 years old, wife of John Talley, a saloonkeeper, was murdered some time between 6 and 1 o'clock last night in a rear bedroom on the second floor of her husband's saloon at East Falls and Twelfth streets.

John Talley, the woman's husband, went to Rochester at 11 o'clock yesterday morning to visit a sister and left Frank Sovereign, a bartender, in charge of the place.

There are five small rooms on the second floor, all sparsely furnished. The room in which Mrs. Talley was shot is off the kitchen and its appearance indicates that a struggle took place before the shooting.

PRESIDENT AND BISHOP OF LONDON PLAYED TENNIS.

The Result Kept Secret, But More Than Two Sets Had to be Played.

Washington, Sept. 28.—A notable athletic event took place at the White House yesterday, when, by special invitation of the President, the Right Rev. and Honorable Arthur Foley Winnington-Ingram, Lord Bishop of London, joined in a game of tennis with Mr. Roosevelt, Secretary Garfield and Assistant Secretary Cooley.

ANOTHER CASE, NEW LORD MAYOR.

But No Danger of Smallpox Outbreak, Authorities Say.

Another case of smallpox has come to the attention of the Board of Health authorities. Mrs. Criel, 76 Birch avenue, is the patient. The house is under quarantine, and Dr. Woodhall, who has charge in the absence of Dr. Roberts, the Medical Health Officer, has taken every precaution to guard against any spread of the disease.

London, Sept. 28.—Sir John Charles Bell, ex-Sheriff of the city of London and head of a big brewery company, who has held a number of important offices in connection with the municipality, was today elected Lord Mayor of London, to succeed Sir William Treloar.

London, Sept. 28.—In to-day's Gazette, permission is given Major H. O. Thacker, of the R. C. G. A., to wear the Japanese war medal given him by the Mikado.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—Miss Mary G. Burdette, 66 years old, sister of Robert J. Burdette, and for many years corresponding secretary of the Baptist Home Missionary Society, died last night at the Baptist Training School for Missionaries.

Attention is drawn to the fact that the first rehearsal will be held on Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the Conservatory of Music, James street south.

TEA TABLE GOSSIP.

Mrs. Norman Ellis, 34 Ontario avenue, will receive the first and fourth Wednesdays of each month after November 1st.

Mr. Frank Parks, this city, left today to resume his position in Brandon, Man., after three months' vacation.

Mr. M. A. Pease, of this city, has been granted a Canadian patent on damping boxes for wagons.

Benjamin Cohen, 82 Ferguson avenue north, has reported that his house was entered last night by a side door, but nothing was missed.

Mr. E. Tolton, of Guelph, will lecture in C. O. F. Hall, 67 James street north, on Sunday at 7 p. m., on "The Keys of the Kingdom of Heaven."

Arden Lane, Gore street, who was so seriously injured a week or so ago in a fall down an area, is reported to be doing very well at the City Hospital.

George Mason, registered at the Waldorf, has told the police that a valuable tie pin was stolen from him while staying at another hotel last Thursday.

Division No. 2, Ancient Order of Hibernians, have changed their place of meeting from St. Lawrence Hall to the C. M. B. A. Hall, 37 James street south.

The funeral of Major F. M. Carpenter took place this afternoon from his late residence, Fruitland, to Fifty Church cemetery for interment.

An overheated gas plate caused a fire in Bain & Adams' grocery store shortly before 1 o'clock this morning.

A great cut price sale of wall papers starts Monday morning at Gay's book store, 95 and 97 King street east.

M. W. Bro. A. T. Freed, Grand Master of the Masonic Fraternity, responded to the toast of the Grand Lodge at Zetland Lodge's annual Canadian night celebration in Toronto last evening.

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Lady Mortimer Clark have accepted the invitation of the Women's Wentworth Historical Society to be present at the at-home to be given at the Battledown on October 22.

Hon. Clarence A. Buskirk, of St. Louis, Mo., will give a free lecture on Christian Science in Bennett's Theatre tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

At the Simcoe Street Methodist Church Rev. Herbert B. Christie will preach at both services.

At Toronto yesterday the application of the Bank of Hamilton and certain other creditors to Chief Justice Meredith in Chambers, to have the sheriff of the county of Dufferin substituted for Robert John Bennett, as assignee of the insolvent estate of John Bennett, of Orangeville, was enlarged for a week.

Abraham Schook was before Judge Monck this morning for election. He is charged with aggravated assault on B. Rohenstein. Both parties live in Dundas. Schook will be tried on Tuesday next, before Judge Monck.

Replying to the city's request for a definite proposition as to what it is prepared to do in the Herkimer street case, the Street Railway has sent a letter to the secretary of the Board of Works, saying it will give $250 on condition that the city performs all the work required and ordered by the Ontario Railway Board.

The health report for the week shows five cases of whooping cough, two of typhoid fever and one of smallpox.

Controller Hubbard, of Toronto, called on City Clerk Kent today.

City Engineer Barrow was given the plans of the Hamilton, Waterloo & Guelph Railway to check over today with the McCallum route, No. 2.

Chairman Sweeney says he is in favor of the city accepting the $650 offered by the Street Railway in the Herkimer street case. There will be a special meeting on Monday afternoon to deal with it.

The steamer Macassa is still carrying a large number of passengers between Hamilton and Toronto. The three cabins and smoking room are steam heated, making the trip very enjoyable at this season.

Constance, Grand Duchy of Baden, Sept. 28.—The Grand Duke Frederick of Baden, who has been suffering from intestinal inflammation for some time past, after remaining unconscious for many hours, died at 9 o'clock this morning.

Kingston, Jamaica, Sept. 28.—There is a bitter feeling against the English insurance companies here, growing out of actions following the disaster of last January. It is charged that the companies are delaying the cases by technicalities.

BOARD WANTS THAT MONEY

And Will Likely Ask Council to Hand It Over.

Ward Foreman Nelligan's Case Causing a Lot of Gossip.

Could Have Wide Cars With Narrow Strip, Aldermen Say.

The charges the Trades and Labor Council has promised to make against Ward Foreman Nelligan are causing a lot of talk in municipal circles, probably on account of the mystery attached to them.

Mr. Nelligan of having a man on the payroll when he was not working for the city. The charge that Mr. Nelligan was in the city when he claimed to be in Detroit is said to be without foundation.

He asked for permission to go away for ten days in advance, and John Sullivan, a well-known north-ender, has stated that he saw Mr. Nelligan in Detroit at the time he said he was there.

City officials, discussing the pay system, say it would be almost impossible for any foreman to use "dead" men. They do not know what way the pay ear is going, and when the men are being paid every man's name is read out, as a rule, always in the presence of at least half a dozen, so that they would easily detect any "dummies."

"A man may beat the system, but he would be taking a desperate chance," said one of the officials.

Some of the aldermen say the Street Railway Company had better not make too much noise over the point that it would be impossible to use large cars with a four-foot devil strip.

In Buffalo and Montreal, they explain, where the devil strip is four feet, the companies operate large cars, keeping them going one way by means of loops at the terminal, the broad part of the car being on the outside of the tracks all the time.

The Hamilton Street Railway has one loop near the House of Refuge now. Some years ago it discussed with the Grand Trunk the advisability of building a loop near the Stuart Street Station for the convenience of passengers from the railway, but the scheme did not materialize.

The city officials say they are quite satisfied with the judgment of Judge Snider, the arbitrator in the Separate School case, and that their contentions were upheld on every point. They explain that a wrong impression has gone abroad that they are fighting the School Board.

It is reported that the Separate School Board is anxious to get a little extra money this year without raising the rate, and will make application to the City Council for part of the $1,500, the difference shown during the arbitration proceedings.

If the other side of the question was gone into, Public School supporters being assessed for Separate Schools, they think it is quite probable the amount would more than balance.

An inspection tour over railways in the districts surrounding Hamilton and Niagara has just been completed by Messrs. Leith and Ingram, of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board.

The roads, bridges and general equipment of the following companies were examined and favorably passed upon: Hamilton & Dundas Street Railway Co., 7.25 miles.

Hamilton, Grimsby & Beamsville Railway Co., 25 miles.

Niagara, St. Catharines & Toronto Railway Co., 25 miles.

Niagara Falls Park & River Co., 15 miles.

Repeating to the city's request for a definite proposition as to what it is prepared to do in the Herkimer street case, the Street Railway has sent a letter to the secretary of the Board of Works, saying it will give $250 on condition that the city performs all the work required and ordered by the Ontario Railway Board.

The Man In Overalls

If you are doing nothing better you might take a walk down to the revetment wall to-morrow afternoon. You can get back in time for church.

Any borers at work in our shade trees, Mr. Wild?

Well, I'll back the Mayor against the Beach Commissioner.

The publication of the assessment rolls would give you a line on your neighbor's contribution to the civic exchequer, and also give him a chance to see if you were paying the limit.

Even Mr. Gurney, I hear, cheered Sir Wilfrid's speech.

If you are boarding and want to enjoy some of the privileges of a home-like club, go up and join the Liberal one. All Good Grits welcome.

The newspaper fakes to catch the nimble copper of the grubble are many and various. What will they try next?

"Advice to Wives," by the Police Magistrate, in book form, would be a rapid seller.

If Mayor Stewart is to appeal to force, Commissioner Van Allen will promptly mobilize the Beach yeomanry.

So far, and to my surprise, the Old Maids' Union has taken no notice of the thousand marriageable young women who are heading this way from the old country.

Mr. Colon Baellus and family have been "summering" at the Beach, enjoying lake and bay bathing.

The Separate School supporter whose taxes were going to the Public Schools was being defrauded.

Let us hope that the Mayor and Commissioner won't come to blows.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS.

I know that the worldly-wise affect to look with suspicion on the Sunday school superintendent—want to count the money every night lest he should skip out before morning, and hint that the more diligent he is in church work the more closely he should be watched.

But that is only a sort of salve for their own consciences, which convict them of dereliction of duty in not working in the vineyard. Without looking at the merits of the Sunday school teachers, some of them won't bear investigation in that respect. I have no hesitation in saying that they are a sadly neglected class of people.

The teacher's job is a trying one at best. Study and preparation are required and the young heathens they have to do with would sometimes try the patience of a saint.

But week in and week out they stick to their posts, teaching and exhorting other people's children to shun evil and learn to do well. This they do without remuneration and often without thanks or any sign of appreciation on the part of the people whose children they do so much for—work that the parents should do themselves.

It's hard work to get some of the parents to turn out even to the quarterly rally. I am not prepared to say that the Sunday school teachers should receive salaries, although I don't say they shouldn't; but I do think that congregations should once in a while at least show in some tangible way that their work is appreciated; and it would be an inspiration to them if parents would once in a while go to the trouble to hunt them up and thank them personally for what they are doing for their offspring. But how seldom is this done! Parents too often imagine that their duty is done when they see their children off to Sunday school.

WOOD RETIRES.

Will Not Contest South Brant in Liberal Interest.

Brantford, Ont., Sept. 28.—(Special)—William B. Wood, nominee of the South Brant Liberals to succeed T. H. Preston in the Provincial Legislature, announced his retirement from the contest this morning on the ground of increased business interests, which preclude his return to public life.

He formerly represented North Brant in the Legislature. The Conservatives have no candidate in the field yet.

ELECTRIC CURRENT RAN WILD IN DUNDAS.

Instantly Killed Samuel Sutton, a Respected Resident of the Town.

Caused Fire to Chief's Office and Burned the Hands of M. T. Sullivan.

A peculiar fatality occurred at Dundas last evening, and the wonder is that only one life was lost. At 7.05 p. m. an alarm was received at the fire station, and this was immediately followed by total darkness, all the electric lights going out. The firemen hitched up their horses, but they concluded that a crossing of wires somewhere had caused a false alarm.

At the same moment the electric current entered the office of Chief of Police Twiss and set fire to some papers. The Chief at once got into communication with Assistant Peaire and Fire Chief Knowles, and, provided with lanterns, started out to find the cause of the trouble.

They had not gone far along the west side of Main street, near the town hall, when they came upon the body of a man, lying upon a fallen wire. Chief Twiss was about to raise him, when Constable Peaire stopped him, pointing out the danger which he ran of receiving a fatal shock in that way.

The necessary precautions were then taken and the body was raised and taken into the Town Hall. It was found to be that of Samuel Sutton. Death must have been instantaneous. Deceased was 60 years of age and had resided in Dundas 16 years, coming from Freetown. He held a responsible position at the Steele & Wilson malting house. He is survived by a family of four, two sons, Laomi, in the Northwest, and John, at home; also two daughters at home.

Two theories exist as to the cause of the trouble. The town authorities believe that one of the wires of the Cataract Power Company's system broke where it had rubbed upon some trees, and in falling across the wires of the town fire alarm system, the Cataract people, after making an examination, said they were satisfied a wire of the fire alarm system caused the trouble by falling upon the company's feed wire. It is said that the wire which killed Sutton was the one which carried power to the stone crusher at the Peak, and which was charged with 2,000 volts.

There is no coroner in Dundas just now. The authorities consulted with Crown Attorney Washington, who thought it wise to have a county coroner hold the inquest, and Dr. McGregor, of Waterdown, was summoned. He opened the inquest this morning.

When the trouble occurred the electric current also entered the house of Mr. M. T. Sullivan, and in his efforts to adjust things Mr. Sullivan had both hands badly burned.

Frank J. Cummings was chosen foreman of the jury this morning. On viewing the body the jurors found a severe burn on the stomach of deceased, in the shape of a cross, 2 x 3 inches in extent and minor burns about the legs. Deceased had stepped on the wire and fallen forward, and there were some bruises in his face.

The inquest was adjourned until Tuesday evening. Drs. Bertram and Lockman will make a post-mortem examination.

IN THE AIR.

Count Zeppelin's Balloon Said to be a Success.

Frederickshaven, Sept. 28.—Dr. Felix Leland, of the Department of Finance, acting for the Imperial Government, has taken over Count Zeppelin's balloon-ship on Lake Constance. This means that the Government regards the Count's experiments in aerial navigation as successful, and that he has won the financial assistance promised him conditionally.

The Count's success in the last few days, when his airship manoeuvred over Lake Constance, remaining in the air for over four hours and travelling at the rate of 38 miles per hour, has attracted the attention of experts and scientists from foreign countries, as well as from Germany.

The Swiss meteorologist Guerin arrived here today for purposes of observation, and Patrick Alexander, the English flying machine maker, is coming shortly.

UNIONIST WON.

Defeated Socialist in Fight for Liverpool Seat.

London, Sept. 28.—The determined attempt yesterday by the Labor Socialist candidate to capture the seat in the House of Commons for the Kirkdale division of Liverpool, made vacant by the death of David MacIver, Unionist, resulted in failure, and the outcome of the by-election was that Charles M. Arthur, Unionist, secured the seat with a slightly increased majority.

FROM OLD IRELAND.

The Real Little Shamrock From Frank E. Walker.

Yesterday a little bunch of heather from Scotland, to-day a sweet little sprig of shamrock from Ireland! This morning's mail brought to the Times Office another token from Frank E. Walker, now numbered with those gone before. To a shamrock post card is attached a little envelope full of seeds and bearing the words, "This package contains the real Irish shamrock seed," and the following verse:

St. Patrick our dear little shamrock did bless
And with God's help forever will stand
A pocket of seed, I send you for sure
'Twill grow in some far distant land.

Arrangements have been made to have Mr. Walker's body shipped from England. It will likely arrive about the 10th or 11th of October.

TAKING A HAND.

Hon. J. S. Hendrie and Mr. Van Allen See Mayor.

The Provincial Government is evidently going to take a hand in straightening out the trouble between the city and the Beach Commissioners over the road between the filtering basins.

Hon. J. S. Hendrie and Chairman Van Allen were in conference with Mayor Stewart and City Solicitor Waddell at noon. An effort was made this morning to stop the work at the Beach, Constable Hazell ordering Jim Miller to call his men off. Miller refused to do this until served with injunction papers.

Mayor Stewart handed out a statement to-day in reply to Mr. Van Allen's letter of yesterday.

The C. P. R. telegraphers in utilizing the Lemieux Act in their effort to get an increase of pay instead of striking are wisely advised.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux is to bring in a bill to do away with the 2-cent drop letter postage in cities. Another step forward for the benefit of business, and one that will tend to increased usefulness in the postal department.

Some of the English papers are inclined to think that Canadians have no just cause to complain that British diplomacy has sacrificed Canadian interests in the past. But that only shows that they are unable to see things from the Canadian point of view.

But whether or not it lies in the province of the Beach Commission to force the city to treat Mr. Fitch justly in the matter of that road should make no difference in the course of the council. It should deal fairly in the case, and if injury is done to Mr. Fitch's property he should be compensated.

THE T. H. PRATT CO. LIMITED

The Last September Bargain Day

To make a driving finish to a grand month's business, we have prepared a bargain list of worthy goods that will save you at least half the money you would spend if you bought at regular prices.

These may yet be doubled. A large number are preference claims, the validity of which the court will have to decide. Pity the poor shareholder!

The Toronto World approves of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's preference policy and regards his speech to the Manufacturers on that subject as "unanswerable." On the question of contributions to the British Army and navy it also says, "The good common sense of Canada will endorse the declarations of the Prime Minister."

The Montreal Witness declares that the city treasury will lose nearly $50,000 this year again on water rates, three-quarters of it being the water tax of so-called poor people, who have a pull with the aldermen, and get begged off.

The women of Columbia S. C. have taken up the problem of the beautification of that city, and they are going about it in a sensible manner. Columbia is a growing manufacturing centre and possesses the largest cotton mill in the world.

Prof. Ross, of the University of Wisconsin, is not a believer in the theory that Government should give up in despair the task of controlling in the interest of all the people and plunge into ownership and operation of all and sundry great businesses. He is, however, a believer in Government closely controlling in the interest of the people and justice to all—the true work of Government, it says.

In the interests of an enlightened individualism the state will have to extend steadily its supervising functions. The state will have to regulate railroad, telegraph, express, insurance, pipe-line and news-service rates; wharf, dock and storage and charges; the price of oil, anthracite, coal, ice and school books; and to prescribe the conditions of manufacture and sale of articles all the way from dressed beef to corporation securities.

DRIFT OF OPINION IN MANY SANCTUMS.

Edward Gurney's Gallows Tariff. (Toronto Globe.)

Demos in King in Canada; and if the spirit of the Agagite becomes too haughty the King's anger may be kindled, and Haman may be hanged on his own gallows.

Fabrics and Converts. (Toronto World.)

Converts are always zealous. The Toronto Globe but recently called to the mourner's bench, and already it fairly outdoes even Deacon Maclean himself in exhorting everybody to accept the salvation of public ownership.

The "Scum" Too Prominent. (Vancouver Saturday Sun.)

One of the strongest arguments against the Oriental invasion is that when the Asiatics land in Canada they become a community unto themselves. Are we, as Canadians with our vaunted superiority over Orientals, displaying this dignity and respect for the law, which indicates us to be their superiors in any way? Those who took part in these lawless acts of a week ago Saturday night contributed nothing to the advancement of the cause of exclusion. None but the scum of our cities sympathize with such acts and none but the scum will take part in them.

Borden Approved the Treaty. (Ottawa Free Press.)

If Mr. R. L. Borden is so awake to the "consequences" of the treaty, why did not he himself or some member on his side of the House point out those "consequences" to the House and the country? Instead they sat silent and allowed the treaty to pass into law without a word. They must, therefore, share the responsibility of the treaty. They cannot escape it and it is childishness to pretend to the contrary.

Must Have Labor Supply. (Vancouver Saturday Sun.)

If organized labor opposes the importation of white immigration in the face of the present conditions, then the immigration policy of the country will have to be settled without reference to organized labor. That is the logical outcome of any such opposition to the immigration policy. We must have labor in the country, and we do not want Asiatics. That we must have some kind of labor is a fact that should be recognized by the labor unions.

Whitney's Apologist. (Kingston Whig.)

The humor of the situation is offered when Mr. Fraser names four-teen questions which the department has attempted to solve. He does this gratifying phrase advisedly. It may have attempted something, but it has not, as a matter of fact, accomplished very much, as Mr. Ellis avers. The university question was the work of a commission. The school book question, so far as it has been dealt with, bears the impress of a commission. But it is not serious from it. The serious difficulties which it presents are crowding the department at the present moment. The minimum salary! Was there ever a law which was attended with so much confusion? And the department is entitled to the credit of "concerning it." That law is going to be enforced said its author. But when the trustees in the land rose up in their might and bombarded the department there was a sudden drop in the demands of authority and a repeal of certain sections. This took place without consulting some of the trustees who were busy doing missionary work and exerting the influence which an alert public opinion would have anticipated. Thus one could go down in the list which Mr. Fraser submits and show that the education department has left things pretty much as they were and that the people who see great improvements are giving evidence of a most lively imagination.

(Montreal Herald.)

It is hardly becoming in Mr. Borden to be going around in Ontario towns telling how he was beaten in Halifax, how he was confident of election, confident that the Liberals could not be elected, and how he really was elected and was robbed of the seat. Nova Scotia is the place for that sort of whimpering, if it must be done, for in Nova Scotia they have a pretty good knowledge of the facts. And of the facts that are known not the least significant one is that Mr. Borden has availed himself of every technicality of the law to stave off the technicality brought against him and his Conservative running mate. What is more, he has succeeded, and the chances are his ease will never come to trial. His Liberal opponents say they have material to produce about what was done in Mr. Borden's interests in the Halifax election which he who practices electoral purity with so muchunction, would be ashamed to have come out. By staving off the trial he certainly gives color to the statement.

An Ozone Drunk, Probably. (Woodstock Sentinel-Review.)

Mr. Borden seems to be showing the effects of the atmospheric influence of the west. At Vancouver the other night he was able to make the announcement that W. T. R. Preston was responsible for the Japanese invasion of Canada. Mr. Preston, who appears to have won the eternal enmity of all good Conservatives by the playful expression of a desire on one occasion to hug the Grit machine, must be a wonderful man. He went to Japan a short time ago, and his arrival there was followed shortly afterward by the invasion of British Columbia. The report of Mr. Borden's speech that has come to hand does not explain how the two facts are connected by him, but his explanation probably is that Mr. Preston is such a giant, or carried such a load of Grit sins, that when he landed on Japanese soil he caused the earth to tilt over, so that it

Men in general and women in particular enjoy a toothsome nourishing breakfast food, and they find it when they try

Grape-Nuts WITH CREAM "There's a Reason"

SPORTING NEWS.

was necessary for several thousand Japanese to come over to Canada in order that the balance might be restored. A wonderful thing that western atmosphere must be, when it affects a man like Mr. Borden in such a way. He had better come home before somebody tangles him up in a land deal.

Cause of Borden's Delay. (Montreal Herald.)

Perhaps Mr. Borden's unexpected delay in Vancouver was occasioned by inquiries into that little grant of shares by which Sir Adolphe Caron made himself solid with the McBride Government, and for which the judge said his knightly decorations ought to be stripped from his breast.

Toronto's Lack of Civic Spirit. (Catholic Register.)

With daily appeals from the city press confronting them, with the list of reasons for the by-law furnished by their representatives, and the assurance that their tax bills would not be increased, staring them in the face—with the knowledge that every city tap was discharging disease—one citizen out of every thirty entitled to vote turned out to perform this duty! A more creditable example of civic apathy it would be hard to conceive. Complainers are often heard about the calibre of some of our aldermen. It would be a bad thing for Toronto if its representatives were not of a higher type than its civic spirit.

That Huge Corruption Fund. (Halifax Chronicle.)

Additional testimony is given by the Moncton Transcript as to the use of the Tory campaign fund for corrupt purposes. It says that ten dollars a head per vote was paid on the morning of the last general election of a gentleman who went to Nova Scotia and said, "Thank God," it was his own money which was spent. The Conservatives in the County of Westmorland in the last election had, the Transcript adds, probably the largest fund for corrupt purposes ever used in a single county in the Province of New Brunswick by any political party in any one election.

Explain Your Meaning. (Montreal Herald.)

It seems that there are a thousand young women, all bent on matrimony, coming to this country from England. The worriers about Ontario's birth rate will regret to learn that they intend to give that Providence the go by, and are headed direct for the West.

Mr. Edward Gurney's Idea. (Toronto Star.)

In time of peace prepare for war. And, much to the same principle, interested persons demand higher duties to head off lower ones.

Oh, La, La! (Montreal Star, Tory.)

Still the manufacturers should not grumble. They might be worse off. They might have an Opposition doing something more than patting Mr. Fielding on the back.

One Tory Organ's View. (Toronto Telegram.)

A Government headed by the Marquis Ito or Admiral Togo as Premier could probably carry British Columbia against an Opposition headed by King Edward. The best proof that British Columbia is not in earnest on this anti-Asiatic question is supplied by her Premier, Hon. Richard McBride, and his Government. An anti-Asiatic Act passed by the British Columbia Legislature has been vetoed by the Lieutenant-Governor, Hon. James Dunsuir.

The fact that the McBride Ministry is still in office proves that Hon. Richard McBride accepts responsibility for that veto.

If British Columbia is really the home of seething indignation against Asiatic labor, Hon. Richard McBride would have resigned the minute his anti-Asiatic bill was vetoed.

May Serve Its Purpose, Anyhow. (Brantford Expositor.)

The report of Mr. Commissioner Snow on matters affecting the management of the Ontario Institution for the Education of the Blind has at last been made public. After nearly nine months of incubation the proposed document has made its appearance, and, as the Expositor predicted, it finds in the main that the charges made against Principal Gardiner and his assistants have not been substantiated, but recommends, under the heading of "Reorganization," such changes in the work of the institution as will remedy almost all the present evils and his deputy. Such a clearing out of Liberal officials was undoubtedly what the commissioner, with the help of the gentleman who controls the Government patronage in this riding, was expected to pave the way for, and a way in which to do it had, of course, to be found.

The Manufacturers' Association's Fear. (Toronto Star.)

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, while in Opposition, said that when he came into power it would not be necessary to search the volumes of the census and the trade returns for evidence of the prosperity of Canada. This prediction has been fulfilled. The evidences of prosperity are found in the new buildings and machinery, in the armies of mechanics going to and from work, in the ledgers of the manufacturers. The Canadian manufacturer is so prosperous that he has to examine the blue books in order to discover reasons for anxiety and discontent. Having no tariff troubles, he worries himself by doing sums in arithmetic, and as we examine these laborious and painful calculations we think of the old lines:

Multiplication is vexation, Division is as bad, And Practice drives me mad.

The present outlook being bright, the advocates of a higher tariff are constrained to look for trouble a long way ahead.

Another Borden Plank Broken. (Montreal Herald.)

The President of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association puts in his demand for a tariff "high enough to reserve the home markets" for themselves, with as much calmness as if he never heard that Mr. Borden had come down from "adequate" to "reasonable" protection.

put up his arms to break and Burns smashed him in the stomach. The crowd hissed. Joe landed hard right uppercut then left to the mouth. Burns missed right swing. Joe is now punishing his man in the clinches. This was all Gans' round.

Round 20—The men came up and shook hands, both being very strong. Joe poked left to jaw. Burns tried a short swing to the body, but missed, and stuck three lefts to the mouth. Burns missed left swing, but landed to the body a moment later. They then clinched. Gans blocked left swing to the body and again blocked. Burns put left swing to Gans' ear and Joe uppercut him four times on the jaw and had his man groggy. Gans put a crushing right to stomach. They were fighting desperately. Joe put right hook to the cheek. Burns was backing up and they clinched. Joe put a crushing left to Burns' heart just as the gong sounded.

Gans was given the decision.

NO FREAK BOAT.

Sir Thomas Lipton and Designer Fife Are Firm.

London, Sept. 28.—Sir Thomas Lipton and Designer Fife conferred again this afternoon and evening. Mr. Fife adhered to his determination not to design a freak boat. Sir Thomas to-night reiterated his disinclination not to build a freak, principally on the ground that it would endanger the lives of the crew navigating it across the Atlantic. He wondered whether the New Yorkers would take the risk of sending one of their racing machines to England. Sir Thomas continues anxious for the New York Yacht Club to accept a challenge from a 90-footer under the universal rule.

M. C. C.'S SCORE.

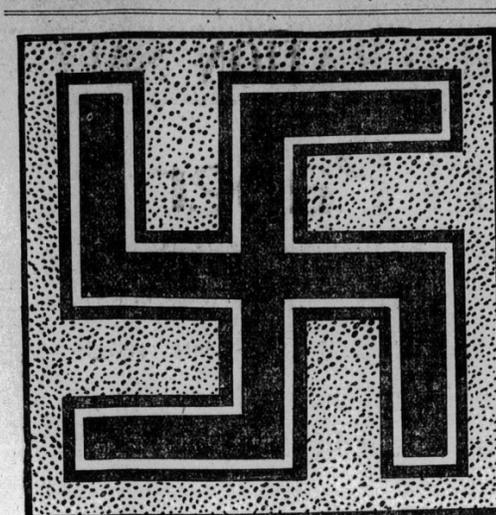

Three-Day Cricket Match Started at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Sept. 28.—The Marglebone cricketers began their three days' game yesterday with the Gentlemen of Philadelphia. The visitors batted first and made the good score of 222. The home team has up 60 runs, with only two wickets down, and a close finish is looked for.

King took one wicket for 35 runs. Hordern four for 68, Clark Cregar four for 78, and Leroy one for 23. Score: M. C. C.—First inning—

"SWASTIKA" A Good Luck Charm

The "SWASTIKA" is the oldest symbol in the world. Since time began it has been considered a sign of welfare by all primitive tribes and races—from the Moslems of Iceland to the Brahmins of India, from the Ancients of China to the Aborigines of America. The belief was that to the wearer of the "SWASTIKA" will come from the four winds of heaven, good luck, long life and prosperity.

Prize Contest Open to all Readers of this Paper

Stanley Mills & Co. have adopted the "SWASTIKA" as an emblem for their Fall Managers' Sale to be held from Thursday, Oct. 3rd, to Tuesday, Oct. 8th, and their advertising for that event will be profusely illustrated with it.

In order to get every one interested in the "SWASTIKA" we will give a SOLID GOLD SWASTIKA PIN to the person sending us the best original short story on the "SWASTIKA," and 25 ENAMEL SWASTIKA PINS to the writers of the 25 next best stories.

The stories must not exceed 300 words, and the contest closes next Saturday, Oct. 5th, 1907.

A Man of the Day. (Toronto Globe.) Mr. Edward Gurney, whose plea for a tariff "high as Haman's gallows" to keep out the Americans has been widely commented on, has a gift for saying odd and striking things. He belongs to the second generation of Gurneys, who have the foundry business of Canada. His father and uncle came to this country many years ago from Oneida county, New York, and established a foundry at Hamilton, and soon acquired a national reputation. It was at Hamilton that Mr. Edward Gurney was born in 1845, and after passing through the schools of the city he entered his father's shops to acquire a thorough knowledge of the business as machinist and moulder. Admitted as a member of the firm in 1863, he removed to Toronto to assume charge of the branch business in this city. Under his administration it has steadily grown, and West Toronto Junction are easily the largest of their kind in Canada. In 1891 the business was transferred to a joint stock company, of which Mr. Gurney is President, and his son, William Cromwell, Vice-President. Before this time the firm was known by reputation beyond the Canadian borders, and had established a branch foundry in Boston for the manufacture chiefly of hot water heaters and radiators. A man of genial temperament, Mr. Gurney has been since coming to Toronto one of the city's most popular citizens, and as a member of the Board of Trade has had no little influence on the industrial life of the community. He was Vice-President of the Board in 1895 and President in 1896. Mrs. J. Purell, of Ottawa, an elderly lady, was very seriously burned last night by falling with a lighted lamp. She was alone in the house at the time and was discovered by the neighbors, almost unconscious, with her clothing ablaze. She now lies in the hospital in a precarious condition. It's not the man who says the loudest amen who makes the most impression on heaven

Miss Gillard is visiting friends in Toronto.

Mrs. MacKellan and the Misses Dunlop leave the beginning of the week for Toronto.

Mr. George M. Hendrie, Detroit, is a visitor in town with Mrs. Hendrie, "Holmstead."

Mr. and Mrs. Burbridge, who have been the guests of Mrs. Turner, left to-day for their home in Winnipeg.

Mrs. Bruce Carey is visiting Mrs. David Leitch (Chealey).

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Morris have returned from their summer home in Burlington.

Mrs. James Moodie held her first reception since her marriage at her pretty home on Caroline street south.

Mrs. Moodie received in her lovely wedding gown of white satin trimmed with applique and lace and was assisted in receiving by her mother, Mrs. Holton, who wore a gown of pale blue voile. The table in the dining-room was prettily decorated with colored asters in a silver flower glass, resting on a handsome lace centrepiece and was presided over by Mrs. J. B. Moodie, Mrs. Holton, Mrs. Springer, assisted by Miss Shambrooke, Miss Grantham, Miss Irene Moodie and Misses Holton.

Mr. and Mrs. James Macpherson, Miss Macpherson, Mrs. W. R. Mills, Mrs. Robert Hobson, Mrs. Simonds, Miss Simonds, Miss Crear, Miss Leggat, Mr. H. Leggat, Mr. T. Crear, are among those who are spending the week end at the Caledon Club.

Mrs. Yates, Brantford, is the guest of Mrs. Herring Main street west.

Mrs. Ledyard, Detroit, is a visitor in town with Mrs. Hendrie, at "Holmstead."

Miss Pheope and Miss Florence Harvey are attending the golf tournament in Ottawa.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Franklin Lazer for the marriage of their daughter, Etel, to Dr. J. H. Haurer Mullin, at Centenary Church, on Wednesday afternoon, October 10th.

Mr. and Mrs. Pryce Montague have arrived in town from their wedding trip and are spending a few days with Mrs. Fletcher before leaving for their home in Winnipeg.

ager of the Bank of Hamilton, Gladstone, Man., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Rogers, Toronto, and Miss Helen Maud Dinaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Minaker, Cobourg. Rev. Dr. Storey, pastor of the church, conducted the ceremony. The bride, who was attended by her niece, Miss Alison Minaker, of Gladstone, Man., wore white silk crepe de chine over taffeta trimmed with lace, and brocade, bridal veil and orange blossoms, and carried bride roses. For ornament she wore the bridegroom's gift, a handsome pearl necklace. The bridesmaid's dress was cream silk, and she carried pink carnations. Her bouquet was of white roses and white lilies, and she carried pink carnations. Her souvenir from the bridegroom was a pearl and diamond ring. Mr. P. W. Rogers, Toronto, the bridegroom's brother, was best man.

The wedding of Miss Mary J., daughter of Wm. McLaughlin, of Seneca, to Mr. Henry A. Wolfe, also of Seneca, took place at St. Stephen's Church, Cayuga, on Thursday, Sept. 19, with considerable eclat. Ven. Archdeacon Lausie, performed the ceremony, and also celebrated Mass. The bride looked very handsome in her dainty gown of point d'esprit over white silk, with tulle veil and wreath, and bouquet of white roses and fern. She was attended by her sister, Miss Ellen McLaughlin, in cream all-overs cloth suit with pretty cream hat and bouquet of pink roses. Mrs. McLaughlin, niece of the groom, acted as bridesmaid. Among the out of town guests were Mrs. Milligan, Mr. and Mrs. Caffery, and Miss Cassidy, of Hamilton.

Bay City Tribune: One of the prettiest of the early September weddings took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Russell, 1213 North VanBuren street, Thursday evening last, when their only daughter, Annie L., became the wife of James Ross McLachlan, of Clifford, Ont. Rev. A. S. Zimmerman, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church, performed the ceremony. The bride wore a beautiful gown of white, the only ornament being a beautiful brooch of pearls and diamonds, the gift of the groom, and carried an arm bouquet of white roses. She was attended by Miss Alberta Paulin, who was attired in a beautiful blue gown and carried a bouquet of pink asters. The groom was attended by James W. Fraser, of St. Mary's, Ont. Mr. and Mrs. McLachlan left for a trip to Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Muskoka Lakes, Ont., and will be at home after Nov. 15 at Clifford, Ont. Mrs. Dexter and Miss Dexter, Hamilton, Ont., were among the guests.

The congregation of the Sherman Avenue Presbyterian Church have chosen from their number five men to be ordained to the eldership in their church. Up to the present time these important positions have been filled by the interim session, formed of six elders from Central Presbyterian Church. The appointment of these new elders from the local congregation will be of great assistance to the pastor, Rev. J. Roy VanWyck, in the pastoral oversight of the congregation. The ordination service will take place in two or three weeks. It is hoped that Rev. Dr. Lyle can be present to conduct the service. Those who have been elected to the eldership are Messrs. Herwich, Braid, Fletcher, Sutherland and Boyd.

Despite the rain, there was a good turnout at the meeting of International Lodge, held in the C. O. O. F. Hall last evening. Two candidates were initiated and one proposition for membership was received. After the transaction of business an excellent programme was presented by the following members: Miss Lizzy Smith, Miss Lily Boniface, Miss Mary Morrison, G. Porteous, H. E. Stone and J. Porteous. A brief history of the lodge was given by F. S. Morrison and a short address by A. H. Lyle.

Next Friday evening International will hold a musical and dramatic entertainment.

IS GOING AWAY.

Russell McGilvery Honored by Y. M. C. A. Juniors.

Last night a number of Y. M. C. A. Juniors met in their parlor, and presented Mr. Russell McGilvery with a beautiful travelling case. The address was read by Mr. Fred Myers, and the case was presented by Mr. Herbert Taylor. The address made mention of Mr. McGilvery's connection with the department for the past four years; his kindly words; his great influence; his beautiful Christian spirit, and his willingness to help in every good work. His genial manner won for him a host of friends, who will be sorry to see him leave the city.

Mr. W. J. Robinson, secretary of the department, expressed his personal regret for Mr. McGilvery's departure, for he said in him he had a true friend, and one on whom he could rely. Many congratulatory things were said by Mr. Kneale and Mr. Geo. Evans, regarding Mr. McGilvery's sterling qualities. Russell replied to all these kind words, very modestly feeling that he did not merit them all.

The evening broke up by the entire company singing the "Smiling Song" and "He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

WANT MONICA PIA.

KING OF SAXONY SEARCHING FOR DIVORCED WIFE'S DAUGHTER.

Police Trying to Get Possession of Her—Reward Offered for the Child—May be on Her Way to Florence—Flattering Offer to Toselli.

Florence, Sept. 28.—A Saxon commissary of police and a number of Saxon detectives arrived here for the purpose of obtaining possession of Princess Monica Pia, the youngest daughter of Mm. Toselli. Furthermore, working in collaboration with the Italian police, they are making a minute investigation into the conduct of Mm. Toselli during her stay here, when she was Countess Montegnoso.

M. and Mm. Toselli, who are said to have passed through Turin, probably will go to Mm. Toselli's villa near here, as all her personal effects are there. It is declared that an Italian impresario has offered Toselli $20,000 for a concert tour of Italy, Europe and America, on condition that his wife be present every time he plays.

Wants the Daughter.

Geneva, Sept. 28.—Agents of the King of Saxony are swarming on the Italian frontier, watching closely every traveler by train or by boat, and inquiring constantly regarding the whereabouts of Princess Monica Pia, the youngest daughter of the divorced wife of the King. It is said that a large reward has been offered for the location of the child. It is believed that Princess Monica Pia is on her way to Florence under strong guard, but there is every indication that the King of Saxony is determined to secure her by any means in his power.

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION.

The Ministerial Association will resume its meetings on Monday morning, Sept. 30th, when Rev. George Jackson, B. A., of Toronto, formerly of Edinburgh, will speak on "Ideal Preaching." This will be the first of a number of interesting meetings prepared by the Programme Committee for the season now opening. The meeting will be held as usual in the Board Room of Centenary Methodist Church at half past two o'clock.

A DANGEROUS PRACTICE.

T. H. & B. Detective McDonald took out summonses for two small boys from Vinemount for throwing stones through the windows of passenger trains. Detective McDonald was investigating a complaint and had a hard job to catch the youngsters, but they are said to have confessed to him when they were caught. This practice, not an uncommon one, is very dangerous and the company will ask the Magistrate to make an example of the two boys.

TOOK HIS LIFE.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 28.—A gruesome discovery was made by officers of one of the waiting rooms at the Grand Trunk Bonaventure station this morning. The body of a young foreigner was discovered hanging by means of his belt and a couple of towels. The man's name is Overy Yakowanko, supposed to be a Russian, and his ticket was purchased at Milwaukee. The case is clearly one of suicide, but there is nothing to indicate why the young man, for he was apparently about 21, took his life.

GLORY TO THE BRAVE.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 28.—Archbishop Duhamel, in the interests of peace, has counselled the Buckingham labor interests not to erect in the cemetery the stone that has been presented for the graves of the two labor men who were shot in the October riots. The stone has French inscriptions, saying, "Glory to the Brave," and the like. Meantime it is on exhibition in Ottawa.

SHOT BAILIFFS.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 28.—Two Pontiac county bailiffs were executing a warrant of seizure on Thomas Sarazin, of Otter Lake, yesterday, when his wife and daughter appeared with rifles, and fired a volley. Both bailiffs were wounded from the barricaded house, and though they returned the fire with revolvers, no harm was done to the occupants. A posse of Maniwaki police have gone up to the scene of the affray. The bailiffs are in Maniwaki hospital.

CHILDREN'S CHOIR.

The Conservatory Children's Choir is now being organized for the year. It is the purpose of the institution to select 100 of the most promising voices among the young singers of the city. Mr. James Johnson, who is recognized as one of the best authorities in Canada in this branch, will have charge, and all applicants must register with the Conservatory before Saturday morning, Oct. 3. A small fee is charged.

The Filling. (Toronto News.)

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Whitney spoke at the banquet last night. To-day they are filled with peaceful content and pate de foie gras.

WOMAN TOOK THE BLAME.

Wife of Complainant in Criminal Case Freen Accused.

Mary Coughlin Arrested on Charge of Drunkenness.

Other Cases Before Police Magistrate This Morning.

Charles Cook, 192 Princess street, was charged by G. Jarbedin, Niagara Falls, at Police Court to-day, with bringing stolen property into Canada. The property in question was $120 worth of furniture belonging to the complainant, but, as the complainant's wife went with Cook and said she took the furniture, the case was dismissed. Mrs. Jarbedin refused to go back to her husband's fireside, or to relinquish her hold of her child in his favor.

Mary Coughlin, who was witness in the charge of indecent assault against J. H. Barker and Samuel Van Norman was arrested last night for being drunk. The $5 bail she put up was exonerated when she failed to appear this morning. Kitty Burke, 73 John north, was fined $3 for disorderly conduct last night at Rebecca and John streets.

Thomas Staunton, who "chinned" a "Pink" at the race track yesterday, was fined $3 for being drunk and disorderly. John Thompson, arrested last week as a vag, was allowed to go as he promised to leave town immediately.

John Brown, also arrested as a vag last week, was allowed to go as the police knew nothing against him.

Dave Low, Garth street, John Lawrence, Sotheby street, and Arthur Gillespie, were each fined $2 each for being drunk.

M. Malone, a young fellow who drifted into the city for the races, pleaded guilty to assaulting Richard Bluet, clerk of the Grand Hotel, and to threatening Charles A. Hernan, proprietor of the same place. The Magistrate fined him $10 and instructed him to get out of town at once.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

Bible class at 3 p. m. Men's meeting at 4.15, led by Mr. T. F. Best.

The gymnasium classes are now in full swing, and are well attended. Those intending to join would do well to take out their membership, and join these classes early in the season.

The opening reception on Tuesday evening promises to be one of the best ever undertaken by the reception committee. Not only members will be welcomed, but all friends of the association. The class organized for the study of association history and methods will hold its first session on Tuesday evening at 4.15, led by Mr. T. F. Best.

Y.M.C.A. OPENING RECEPTION.

At the Y. M. C. A. opening reception on Tuesday evening, Oct. 1, an opportunity will be given to view the splendid collection of prizes won by R. Kerr, Canada's greatest sprinter. To those who are interested in athletics this display will be of unusual interest. Exhibition games of basketball will be played between the "Strollers" and the "Old Pals"; also gymnastics and other sports. Half past seven will be in attendance during the evening, and refreshments will be served in the lecture room. All members and friends of the association will be cordially welcomed by the reception committee, who have the evening's entertainment in hand.

The Lovely Women of Nice.

Many of the coquettes of Paris spend their winters in Nice and Monte Carlo, and these are to be seen promenading, dressed in the height of fashion, for the modesties of Paris furnish gowns of advanced styles to the French women, who carry them well enough to attract attention to the particular color and design, and thereby inaugurate a fashion which proves profitable to the modistes. Parasols of every known shade, and many of them covered with priceless lace, bob along like corks on a lake, and the parasols this year were fitted with shepherd's-crook handles, and were used as staffs by the fair owners. Apparently every woman and girl in Nice either buys, begs or borrows a dog of some kind for no other purpose than to put a big bow on his neck and lead, and to show him off on the promenade, where he tows the owner along like a disabled yacht. Grandmere and grandpère catch the infection of dress and frivolity, and they come tripping along as gaily bedecked and as irresponsible looking as any of the younger set.

Roman Art Find.

A Roman villa has been discovered at Perigny, in France, by M. Emile Chanel, a professor of the Bourg Lyceum. There were some mural paintings of great beauty, and many objects of bronze, iron and lead. Six columns were intact with bases and capitals. Some pottery was also found. The smaller objects will find a place in the Communal Museum.

The faith that shows up strong on the fence may fall altogether when it gets on the field.

Bridge's Fall Ends Romance.

American Horse Killed By St. Lawrence Disaster.

The name of Angus Montour appeared in the list of victims of the St. Lawrence bridge disaster near Quebec, and some of his friends in New York have received confirmation of his reported death. Many others of his friends will fail to connect him with that name, which was merely his official designation on the Government roll of Indians in Canada.

Montour was an Iroquois, domiciled on the Caughnawaga reservation. What his original name was the writer does not know, but it was said to mean man riding a horse and when he travelled with Indian shows, which he did extensively, he went under his stage name, American Horse.

Montour, or American Horse, as his white friends always called him, was about 35. He had travelled all over the United States as a showman and had retired to the reservation, when he was induced to join a large company of Indians that went to Europe for exhibition purposes early in 1905.

The journey lasted a year and in the course of it American Horse was a principal figure in a romance, which with many elements of the comic was nevertheless a serious affair with a strange result.

The Indians stayed some six months in England and then went to the Continent. Their entertainments were given on the floors of large halls and were of such a nature that the spectators were brought into close contact with the Indians, a part of whose duty it was to answer questions.

Most of them understood English and a few came to recognize the importance of conversations sufficiently to overcome their native reticence and volunteer the information that was always demanded by the curious patrons of the enterprise. Among the most valuable in this regard was American Horse.

He was an impressive looking man, 6 feet tall and straight, his rugged features as severe and warlike as his nature was docile and loyal. His one ambition apparently was to do his duty, and that consisted in understanding and faithfully regarding his employer's wishes.

Wherever the Indians went they aroused not only the superficial interest of the general public but the special interest of educated people. The latter made much of the redmen, taking on long drives to the cities, and making them guests at dinner in their homes, giving them all manner of presents from souvenir postal cards to articles of considerable value.

So it came about that to be talked to and petted was a matter of course with the Indians and they were happy and honest admirers with a quiet nonchalance that probably no company of whites could have equalled. They were matinee idols, but lacking in the conceit that usually attaches to that tribe.

It was in the Hague that American Horse met his fate. The company stayed there more than a week, and before the end of the engagement the manager noticed that American Horse was a favorite of a woman who came every day and spent many hours at the showhouse. It made no difference with the Indian's performance of his duties, for if he were summoned to talk with other patrons he immediately conveyed the matter to the manager and returned to her only when his task was finished to the manager's satisfaction.

There was nothing especially striking in this, merely another case of fascination, something that was happening less obviously perhaps every day, but when the company returned to the Hague for a few days and the woman from The Hague came over every morning and spent her time in the showhouse until evening, when she went home the manager began to be amused.

The woman uttered her sentiments in fluent French or Dutch, which the assistant conveyed in perfect English to the Indian, who responded in his own imperfect English to have it quickly transformed into Dutch or French. And so with the letters.

American Horse could not write so much as his own name in any language, but he was good at dictation in broken English, and the assistant was his amanuensis. When the day's mail was distributed American Horse always had a pale blue envelope from The Hague, which he put reverently in his deer skin pouch.

He never hurried. Not once did his fervor as a lover lead him to sacrifice a jot of his energy or time as a showman, but watching his opportunity he would in the course of the day see the assistant with nothing to do for a moment. Then the envelope would be produced and at a window or in a corner of the show wigwams the assistant would translate the love message and take notes for the answer.

Eventually business brought the company again to cities within easy reach of The Hague, and then the woman became a daily visitor. Her name was Van Dommelen and she was a widow with a 15-year-old son.

He too visited the Indians at frequent intervals. One after another several members of the Van Dommelen family came to make acquaintance with American Horse. There were two brothers from Amsterdam, a sister from Paris and other more distant relations.

American Horse withstood their inquisition with grave dignity, as if he were quite content to be measured as a man. He told them the truth. In no particular did he attempt to gild the poverty of his reservation life.

He told of his poor little farm at Caughnawaga, where his one cow was cared for in his absence by his grown-up son. Another grown-up son by the way, was a member of the travelling company. He confessed that to eke out a living he had to get such jobs as a laborer as he could pick up at or near Montreal.

One day the widow accepted the manager of the company at his hotel. The assistant was not at hand to interpret for Dutch and the conversation was in French.

"Tell me about American Horse," said she abruptly.

"Now, strange as it may seem, in that he was a showman, the manager had been getting such obstacles as he quietly could in the way of the lovers. He liked and respected American Horse, and he had taken to heart the advice of the famous philologists who would have his eyes 'behave if widder's'."

At all events, with no reason to distrust the widow Van Dommelen except that she was infatuated with a man of a different race, he could foresee nothing short of tragedy for the Indian if the proposed marriage should take place.

"What shall I tell you?" he returned. "You are well acquainted with him."

"She would not be put off."

"Is he a good man?" she demanded.

"Yes," admitted the manager, despatchly, "but he is illiterate—"

"I know that," she interrupted; "I shall marry him."

This was the first time the widow and the manager had conversed on any subject the first time the proposed union had been brought officially, so to speak, to his attention. It was impossible to offer the conventional congratulations. She had challenged to battle, and the manager plunged into the fray.

He told her bluntly that he was sorry to hear it, and when she demanded his reasons he discoursed earnestly of miscegenation, at which she sniffed contemptuously. He then began to assure her that she could not imagine the difference between the life to which she was accustomed and that to which she would have to submit as the wife of an Indian.

"I know all about his log cabin and his meagre furniture," she interrupted. "That is nothing. I would go to him if he lived in a pig sty. All I need to be assured of is that he is honest. Is there, perhaps, in his race a custom of which he has not informed me? Is the Iroquois practise polygamy?"

The manager reluctantly assured her to the contrary.

"Then he has no wife living?"

It was her final and in reality her one question. She departed re-enforced in her determination to marry, and the manager blessed his advance agent that no Dutch city had been booked for more than a ten-day stand.

The company escaped into Belgium, therefore, without a marriage ceremony, but after the continental tour ended there was a wait of sixteen days in London before the departure for France. The widow followed American Horse to London.

On the fourteenth day of his stay there he drew from his wages account the £3 or £4 necessary for a special marriage license, and on the next morning the widow became Mrs. Angus Montour at the registrar's office in Fulham. The manager, beaten and apprehensive for the future of his friend and employee, witnessed the ceremony and signed the certificate, and the only witness was the widow's sister from Paris.

American Horse and his bride started for Montreal the next day in the steerage of a Canadian Pacific steamer. Her son accompanied them.

The strangest and at this juncture most pathetic feature of this romance is that the expected tragedy never came. The Indian and his wife arrived at Caughnawaga about March 1, 1906, a time of year when the reservation with its widely scattered cabins presents a most desolate appearance and when the inconveniences of life there are at their worst.

What Mrs. Montour's first impressions were no one knows but herself, and whether her heart sank at the prospect is equally unknown; but what is known is that she applied herself to domestic work with energy, introducing Dutch principles of cleanliness and order into the household. She brought no dowry to her husband except her willingness to share his lot, and with no outward complaint she contrived to do with such materials as he could provide.

Observers of the odd courtship in Holland often asked how they would get on when the polyglot assistant manager was not at command as interpreter, and how about religious differences? For the widow Van Dommelen was a Protestant and American Horse a Roman Catholic.

Before the summer of 1906 they had made reciprocal concessions to cover these difficult matters. Mrs. Montour was received into the Catholic church and her husband undertook to learn French. It was not a hard task for him, for Indians generally are apt at learning languages, and he had the help not only of his own wife but of many of his tribesmen who speak the French patois of Canada.

For the rest Mrs. Montour's own words are a sufficient proof of the success of what appeared to be a fantastic episode destined to end in sorrow for both. She has written several times to her husband's former manager, and every letter has been a breath of courage and good cheer. For example, this from a recent letter: "We are poor, yes; but we keep our health; and as for my husband, I adore him."

Another time she wrote of their special happiness, "for my husband's son is about to follow his father's sensible example and get married."

So it proved that this woman of civilization could adapt herself to the ways and needs of her half-civilized husband, and the only tragedy that overshadowed their lives took shape in the terrible disaster of the St. Lawrence bridge—New York Sun.

WITH WOMEN, IT'S LOOKS FIRST.

The average woman considers her looks first—her health afterwards. That's why we hear of so many cases of broken health and nervous prostration.

She wears furs and heavy garments on a cold afternoon; in the evening with the thinnest kind of gown she attends the theatre or party.

These foolish irregularities in dress reap their own reward in suffering. It is only when colds that lead to pneumonia result, that she gets frightened and seeks a remedy that restores health. Let her take Ferrozone.

A soon gets vigor to the body, quickly brings color to the cheeks, rests the nerves and strengthens.

Ferrozone sharpens appetite, invigorates digestion, adds weight, it gives the muscles tone and elasticity that makes the ailing one feel strong and vigorous.

If you want strength, good color, high energy—where in 50c boxes.

SOME RECENT INVENTIONS.

A pinless clothes line is composed of a number of long wire links designed to stretch from post to post, the ends of each link being interlocked in such a manner as to hold the ends of fabric which may be thrust into them.

A metal flange, consisting of a number of tapered tubular sections, one fitting into the other, with means for securing the ends.

A new fine stopper has a central aperture with moveable crescent-shaped members on either side of the said aperture. As these sections are drawn together the amount of air passing through the flange is regulated at any desired point.

The roller towel in the office or workshop soon becomes very much soiled, and in a place where there is any attention given to the proprieties the towel must be changed several times a day. This care is rarely given to the matter, and the result is that a dirty towel is exposed most of the time. An invention has been recently brought out on which a clean surface is presented to each cover. It is an automatic roller containing many yards of towelling, which hangs in much the same manner as the towel on the ordinary roller, but as the clean portion is drawn down within the reach of the user a similar portion of the soiled part is drawn upon the second roller.

The office telephone directory is constantly becoming lost or mislaid, and must be hunted up just at the moment when one is in a hurry. A new invention provides for a clip which holds the book at some point near the telephone where it can be readily consulted and always be found. It is also supplied with a device for holding the book open at any desired point.

Japanese Forestry.

The first Japanese school of forestry was started twenty years ago; now Japan has an organization embracing sixty-two schools for the training of students and the directing of popular attention to the science and practice of forestry.

The climate of the Hokkaido country, the present principal forest area, like that of California and British Columbia, is favorable to forest growth. In older Japan reforestation finds scope mainly on the rugged slopes of the mountain ranges. Japan has been using timber since a time long antedating the cedars of Lebanon. Many grand old monarchs of the forest are maintained with care in public parks and line great avenues.

Unfortunately, the Japanese are wasteful of young forest growth. The framework of buildings is largely of rough hewn poles, and far too much young timber goes for charcoal, which is so generally used in Japan.

It is expected that the plum crop of 1907 in Britain will be the largest known for twenty years.

THREE MONTHS' CONTRIBUTION IN EUROPE BY AMERICAN VISITORS.

London Season Has Been Busy, But Intermittent—Continental Rushing There—Passage Home at Big Premium—Mr. Hepburn on the English Railways.

A London cable says: Although the tourist season is nearing its end, American visitors are still arriving at the hotels, mostly from the Continent on their way home. The demand for steamship passage is such that while it is possible to secure a new first class berth for the end of September no second class accommodations are obtainable until mid-October. The officers of the steamship companies continue to be besieged by applicants. In several cases some of the wealthiest people have traveled in the steerage because they were unable or unwilling to wait several weeks for better accommodations. The oceanic, Atlantic, Pacific, and other lines without derelict service sailed during the week with full complements.

Paris rush has benefited one class of officials in a manner not generally known. It has given the commanders of securities an opportunity of turning their pockets out to profit in other words of seeing their sales to passengers who are prepared to pay for the accommodation. An official of the London-American Line in speaking on this subject said the practice had become so general that the income received from it might be regarded as a fixed part of a captain's salary. There is no doubt that the present season has put large amounts in the pockets of the captains, one of those sales being worth something like $1,150, of which the unassisted officer receives one-fourth.

There have been many estimates of the number of American visitors to Europe this year, but all have been exceeded by that of the London manager of the American Express Company. According to his estimate seventy vessels a month bring Americans to Europe during the season. The vessels average 400 passengers each, but at least three months the year they arrived to their utmost capacity, giving a total of 95,000, so he thinks that 100,000 would be well within the mark for the season. Regarding the sums expended by these tourists, he considers an estimate of $400,000,000 moderate, giving a total of the money taken out of America and spent in Europe in three months of $3,000,000,000.

While the hotels, restaurants and tradesmen have benefited this year by the influx of Americans to a great extent, it is held pessimistically that the benefit has not increased proportionately with the increase of Americans coming abroad. A West End hotel manager contends that a strict analysis would show that London this year gained less from Americans than the Continent. Said he:

The London season has been peculiar. One day the hotels were jammed and the next day they were empty. In ten or twelve years we could count on being full from early in May till the latter part of September. This year the American rush was intermittent, but we did not suffer as the increase of Continentals who visited London has been tremendous. The entente with France and Spain is unquestionably largely responsible for this influx.

American, save those who are visiting Europe for the first time, do not seem to care to remain in London for any lengthy period, and the more prominent Americans pay their visits here when the crowd of visitors has departed.

"One thing that has hurt London perceptibly has been the transfer of the White Star boats to Southampton, touching at Cherbourg. When Liverpool was their home port passengers were obliged to come to London on their way to the Continent, and return through London to the steamer. Now after visiting London once, they do not return, being able to catch the steamers at Cherbourg. Thus we lose a double visit. Next year this ill effect may be somewhat neutralized by the new fast Cunarders bringing their passengers to Liverpool, so, aside from national pride in seeing England regain the blue ribbon, we have a somewhat selfish interest in the performance of the Lusitania and Mauritania."

As most distinguished passenger on the American liner St. Paul, which sailed today, was Congressman Hepburn, who has just completed his first trip to Europe, and while over for a vacation found an opportunity to investigate railroad management conditions in England. Speaking to the Sun correspondent he said:

Railroad problems in the United States arise principally from the dual nature of our Government, and nothing I have seen here could be introduced in America. Mr. Willis, who has charge of the railroad department of the Board of Trade, gave me every facility for investigation and the tremendous power which this organization has over transportation impressed me.

For instance, a new railroad is projected. The route and the amount of capitalization must meet with the approval of the Board of Trade before the project is sanctioned. When the road is completed inspectors thoroughly examine every detail of the equipment. If the rails are too light they must be replaced; if the bridges are unsafe they must be strengthened, and the road cannot be utilized until every detail satisfies the inspectors. This inspection is no cursory thing, but is done by responsible and highly paid officials.

This initial investigation would have been a good thing for America when the railroads in this country were in their infancy, but I think it is too late to try to introduce it now."

A close friend of his says that when Mr. Hepburn returns to Washington he will make a determined effort to do away with the large corps of army and navy officers now stationed there, and will make them return to active duty. Mr. Hepburn characterizes this as nothing but a governmentally paid lobby, which answers no more useful purpose than wire-pulling.

SURE CURE FOR HAY FEVER.

Peew Rights in England.

The legality of a claim to a family pew was raised at Carlisle Consistory Court yesterday.

Permission was granted for alterations to Herbert Church, Cumberland, which will necessitate the removal from the chancel of a family pew, the occupants of which applied for a fresh pew in its place.

The applicant, Captain James, of Barrock Lodge, claimed that his family had used the pew for nearly a hundred years, and that they had ancestors buried lengthily in it.

Chancellor Prescott ruled that the family had no legal right to the pew. The privilege had been granted to a former owner of Barrock Lodge, and could not be transferred to subsequent owners of the estate.—London Daily Mail.

PROPER BREATHING.

No woman can have bright eyes, a beautiful skin, or an elastic step if she does not breathe in a proper manner. The shallow girl, with the dark circles under her eyes, discovers that with correct breathing the congested veins will yield to the stimulated circulation, the dark rings disappear, and the luster reappear in her eyes.

Deep breathing will help to make curves where there are angles, and it is a potent factor in the cure of emaciation, because it supplies oxygen to the wasted tissues, sets the machinery of the vital organs going, strengthening weak places and supplying red corpuscles to impoverished blood.

It will promote digestion by quickening the functions of the stomach and intestines, and promoting the assimilation of food.

HOW TO KEEP TIGHT LINES.

To make the teeth glister, besides making them white brush them every morning with warm water, a fairly stiff brush, and a good dentifrice. A good dentifrice is an absolute necessity to keep the teeth pure. After they have been thoroughly cleaned, go over them with a solution of water and peroxide, and the teeth will glister beautifully, unless they are in an unhealthy condition.

Cleanliness cannot be accomplished with an old water tooth brush, nor one which is used constantly. Have two brushes and when one has been used for a couple of days wash it in carbolic water and lay in the sun and sun for two days. Carbolic water is made by putting two drops of carbolic acid in a pint of boiling water, and lay in the sun and sun for two days. BLEND HAIR RESTORER.

Beat up the yolks of two eggs and rub through the hair. Rub with a bowl of warm water to which has been added about one teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda. Rub with soap jelly. Put borax in each rinse water. When partially dry sit in the sunshine.

ROUGH SKIN MADE SMOOTH.

Wash the skin at night with a bland soap and a hair brush. Rub with a cold cream towel and apply a white hazel cream, rubbing it well into the skin. Remove in the morning with warm water and soap if necessary.

CARE OF THE HAIR.

Although comparatively simple for those who are fortunate enough to have a healthy and luxuriant growth, the care of the hair becomes complex when one stops to consider the many causes which may work havoc with even the finest hair and the conditions of the scalp. The common habit of women trying on each other's hats and frequently using the same brush when rooming together, should be tabooed by those who have beautiful hair and wish to keep it. All scalp diseases can be transmitted by either one of these habits and as the delicate skin on the head is injured, the hair should be taken care to scratch it with the pins.

Physicians each year are giving more and more attention to the various causes of excessive falling of the hair and through the facts of a scientific nature have made it easier to understand these causes, but it still is difficult to cure a case of alopecia. It has once become chronic. If neglected for too long a time the hair follicles die and as there is no known method of reviving it. The hair is affected by unfavorable physical conditions of the scalp and even climatic influences, but the most fatal ailment to the well being is a tendency to anemia, for the health of the hair depends almost entirely upon good circulation. If the hair is dry, fall, and split at the ends, care should be taken to bring into proper condition again and also, if the hair is excessively oily and the scalp collects an unhealthy crust, derivation from the normal healthy condition, a good tonic for the hair will not restore it.

One of the new lines is composed of beneficial vegetable ingredients and really is an essence of various flowers and plants known to be efficient restoratives of dull, unhealthy hair. It cleanses the scalp of dandruff, or any parasitic disease affecting the roots, removes obstruction from the hair bulbs and cells and also promotes the circulation of blood in the scalp. By means of the daily use of this tonic the hair can be kept in a glossy, good condition with the slightest suggestion of some. Strong perfumes are not considered in good taste by most women, but this is so delicate and refined that there could be no objection to it. The tonic comes in bottles for 45 cents and 85 cents.

TOM LONGBOAT AT OAKVILLE.

Indian Runner a Feature at the Trafalgar Fair.

Large Number of Entries and a Fine Attendance.

A Bench Show Also—Some Very Fine Cattle.

The Trafalgar Agricultural Society held its annual fall fair yesterday at Oakville, and the whole countryside seemed to be out at this well-known fair.

The exhibits in all the departments were very large, and the quality away above the average.

There was a splendid exhibit of dogs, some thirty-five being shown.

In the cattle exhibit, some very fine Holsteins, Jerseys and grades were shown.

The main attraction at the fair was the appearance of Tom Longboat, who gave an exhibition five-mile run.

There were four starters in the race: Green, the Indian runner, and Pearce and Howard, of Toronto.

When Tom started in he went at it like a streak. He was not long in pulling down Pearce's lead.

At the seventh lap he simply walked by him. With Howard and Green, the Indian had a different proposition, and he had to keep at it all the time.

He made a great spurt, however, and was a winner by nearly a hundred yards.

He did the five miles in 26.04. Green finished in 26.16, and Howard in 26.20.

The other sporting events were: Running high jump—F. Osborne, 5 feet 6 inches; C. Pearce, 4 feet 8 inches.

One mile, open—Oakville schoolboys—H. Raymond, V. Ayerst, W. Robertson, Time—5.30.

One-mile, open to Trafalgar schoolboys—M. Johnson, J. Cowie, J. Saunders.

Two mile, open—E. Dowdle, H. Raymond.

On Friday morning there were more sports.

There was a 100 yard dash, held on the main street. F. Osborne was first, Kramer second and McKay third.

In the 240-yard run Osborne finished first, McKay second and Kramer third.

During the afternoon at the fair the Oakville Citizens' Band supplied the music.

The directors of the fair are: A. S. Foster, President.

W. C. McKay, Second Vice-President. Alf. Hillmer, First Vice-President.

J. H. Hewson, Secretary-Treasurer. Directors—W. J. Carter, Jun., W. H. Speers (Bronte), A. T. Walsh, T. H. Kemp, E. A. Morden, Ellsworth Morden.

Honorary Directors—Dr. A. Buck (Reeve of Trafalgar), John A. McKay, W. H. Speers (Oakville), John Kelly (Mayor of Oakville), A. S. Chisholm, D. C. Cameron.

George J. Sumner and W. S. Savage, Auditors.

The T. H. Pratt Co. Offer Men's Clothing To-night at Half.

When the T. H. Pratt Co. bought the John Knox Co. travellers' samples, they were forced to take a number of samples of men's clothing.

As they do not carry clothing, they have decided to clear out this lot at half the ordinary selling price.

Men's rain coats, men's overcoats, men's hunting coats, men's cardigan jackets, men's knitted and cord vests, men's tweed pants, men's overalls, youths' overalls, boys' tweed and cord knickers.

This little lot of samples goes on sale at 8 o'clock sharp to-night. The T. H. Pratt Co. expect a big day Monday. All the John Knox Co. samples will be on sale.

Everything in samples held back for want of space will be offered Monday at just about half ordinary prices.

ON THE MARCH.

DOUKHOBOURS BOUND TO REACH MONTREAL.

C. P. R. Officials Complain to Premiers Laurier and Roblin—Danger of Accident or Starvation—Company Offered to Transport Them to Their Homes.

Winnipeg, Sept. 27.—Superintendent Bury, of the C. P. R., sent the following telegram to-day to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Ottawa, and to Hon. R. P. Roblin, Winnipeg: "A party of forty Doukhobors from Kenora and a party of forty-four from Whitemouth, attempted to walk along the railway track to Montreal. With the heavy traffic on the railway there is every probability of their meeting with an accident from being run over.

In the interest of humanity our officers used every endeavor to dissuade them from the undertaking. As a last resort they were arrested for trespass, found guilty, but liberated by the authorities. They are now proceeding on their march. With a sparse population around Lake Superior, cold winter coming on, and the danger resulting from walking on the track, some action should be taken at once. We offered to take them back to Yorkton, but they persisted in their march along the track."

Premier Roblin, Attorney-General Campbell, Ministerial delegates and railway officials had a conference to-day, the desire of the delegation was to have the Doukhobors now in jail sent back home to Saskatchewan, and have the Government of that Province look after them. The bands are nearly starving, but are determined to reach Montreal or die.

BOERS' PLAN. THEY AIM TO GET RID OF ENGLISH POLICEMEN.

It is Expected That Nine Hundred Men Will Be Discharged From the South African Constabulary.

London, Sept. 27.—The plan of the Boer Government of the Transvaal to get rid of all the Englishmen in the South African Constabulary and replace them by Boers is causing great indignation among the men at home.

Who have been warned by Sir Richard Solomon, the Transvaal Agent-General, that if they return they do so at the risk of dismissal.

One of the officers, who was just about to return after completing six months' leave in England, said that he had been informed in a letter from a friend in South Africa that 900 men would be discharged from the Constabulary before long owing to the work of the Het Volk.

"I wrote for my discharge on receiving Sir Richard Solomon's letter," he said, "and I shall stay in England. I was in Johannesburg once or twice not very long ago, and I saw hundreds of men there out of work."

"If you ask me who is to blame for all this, I say the British people, who permit themselves to be blown about here and there by every puff of wind."

Trooper F. Hooper, who came home on April 1st last, having obtained his discharge, after six and a half years' service, said he had been stationed lately twenty miles from Krugersdorp, on the veldt.

"Everybody from this country in the service of the Transvaal Government," he said, "has suffered more or less from the pin-prick policy of the Boers. I had enough of it, and that is why I took my discharge, although I had taken the trouble to become proficient in the Dutch language."

"They have all got rifles—service rifles. A man had to get a recommendation from the police before he could secure a gun; but I have never known a case in which the recommendation was withheld."

HEIRS MUST HAVE HEIRS, OR THEY LOSE THEIR CLAIM TO LARGE ESTATE.

New York, Sept. 27.—The Herald has received the following despatch from Pittsburgh: The will of Paul H. Hache, a wealthy art connoisseur, who died several weeks ago, was filed to-day for probate.

After having lived his entire life a bachelor, Mr. Hache offers as his heir a bachelor, Mr. Hache offers as his inducement to his two male relatives his entire fortune of more than $1,000,000 provided they have children.

When Hache died the name ceased to exist, except for a maiden sister, Miss Sarah Hache, with whom he lived. This sister receives an annuity of $3,000. To his cousin, Mrs. Joseph George, and her two sons, Paul and William, he gives an annuity of $1,000 a year each.

It is to Paul and William George that Hache looked to perpetuate the family. To their children the entire residue of the estate is to be equally divided, share for share.

Paul George is now twenty-one years of age, while his brother is eighteen. In case they fail to have heirs the entire estate is to be divided equally between the Westmoreland Hospital of Greensburg, St. Paul's Orphan Asylum of Butler, and the Grace Reformed Church of this city.

TRACTION ENGINE FATALITY.

Mr. Charles Doan, Farmer, of Crowland, Dies of Injuries.

Welland, Sept. 27.—About 9 o'clock last night, Charles Doan, a well-known farmer and threshing machine operator of Crowland, was run over by his traction engine east of Welland and was so seriously injured that he died at 7 o'clock this morning. He was 41 years of age and left a widow and three children.

Bullet Just Missed Conductor.

Montreal, Sept. 27.—Conductor E. Lowe, of the Montreal and Portland express, had a narrow escape from serious injury or death when his train was passing Farmington, Maine, yesterday.

Some one hidden in the bushes on the side of the track fired a shot at the train. The bullet just missed the conductor's head by a small margin.

Mr. Joseph Hatton, the English author, left an estate valued at £2,000.

NATIONAL MCKINLEY MEMORIAL AT CANTON, OHIO, AND SCULPTOR NIEHAN'S STATUE OF THE LATE PRESIDENT MCKINLEY.

Laurier's Speech.

BRITISH PRESS THINKS HE WILL HAVE REASON TO REGRET IT.

Canada Must Face Issue—Motherland Could Not Accept Responsibility in Affairs Where She Had No Voice.

London, Sept. 27.—Commenting upon his speech in Toronto, the Leader says: Sir Wilfrid had hard things to say about Imperial diplomacy, but if Canada is prepared to undertake her own diplomacy she must be prepared to take her own course in any eventuality to which that diplomacy may lead.

The Mother Country, with the best will in the world, could never consent to accept responsibility for an issue wherein she has no voice.

The Graphic says Laurier's Toronto speech was thoughtful, and feels sure that on reflection he will see abundant reason to regret it. It admits, however, that Imperial diplomacy has not been very successful in shielding Canadian interests, especially in the case of the United States, though it thinks Sir Wilfrid exaggerated. The Premier's conclusion that Canada should attend to her own diplomacy is still deplorable.

Canada suffered less than any other colony from the Imperial monopoly of treaty-making power. As a good Imperialist, his remedy for what admittedly is defective in the present system should be larger and more constant participation of the colonies in the business of the Foreign Office.

The Morning Post draws the inference from the speeches of Mr. Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier that national sentiment in Canada on the Asiatic question has now aligned itself with Australia and New Zealand, and concludes that the desire to maintain a white Australia stirred Australians to think of their naval position, and a desire to maintain a white Canada can hardly fail to produce similar results.

He contrasts Laurier's declaration on the effects of Imperial diplomacy with the French union, and the debate of February, when he said Canada had no grievance whatever in so far as her relations with the Mother Country were concerned. The Post admits that Imperial diplomacy has too often treated Canadian interests with scant respect.

Answer Unsatisfactory. Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 26.—The local Asiatic Exclusion League interprets the government's decision to send a special commissioner to Japan as an attempt to delay the settlement question, and has sent this protest to Sir Wilfrid Laurier: "The League endorses the exclusion of Japanese unless specifically passported to Canada. The existing limitations having been already exceeded, we demand the exclusion of any further immigrants this year. We also feel that the matter has already been sufficiently investigated, and that the government only needs to act. We demand exclusion by legislation, not limitation."

Greeks Hunting Trainmen. Blame Them for Accident Which Killed Eight of Their Comrades.

Bakersfield, Cal., Sept. 27.—In the wreck of a Southern Pacific freight train which collided with a freight train here last night eight Greeks were killed and twenty others injured. The crews of the trains are now fugitives, hiding in the hills to save themselves from the enraged comrades of the victims, who attacked the trainmen after the accident and threatened the destruction of much railroad property. A special with twenty armed men on board has been despatched to the rescue of the beleaguered trainmen.

United States buyers are in the Province purchasing apples for export across the line.

BRIDGE LOADING WAS INCREASED.

EVIDENCE OF GOVERNMENT BRIDGE ENGINEER DOUGLAS.

Changes in the Plans—Mr. Douglas Initiated Mr. Cooper's Final Plans—Commission Will Next Go to New York.

Ottawa, Sept. 27.—Mr. R. C. Douglas, bridge engineer of the Railway Department, was examined this morning by the Quebec Bridge Commission relative to his examination of plans and specifications for the bridge, submitted to the Government for approval.

Mr. Douglas stated that he did not make any very thorough and detailed examination of the original plans presented for approval in 1898, as he believed they were merely for purposes of getting tenders. In 1903 he had been asked by Mr. Scriber to make a report on some changes in the specifications for the bridge, asked for by Mr. Cooper, consulting engineer of the Quebec Bridge Company. "These changes," said Mr. Douglas, "were not all approved by me."

On further questioning it was brought out that the final plans submitted by Mr. Cooper had been initiated by Mr. Douglas without change. He had made inquiries from leading bridge engineers as to relative loadings and unit stresses on the large bridges of the continent, and had sought to have advice taken by the Government from other consulting engineers.

On August 13th an order in Council had been passed approving of a further loading of the bridge by extending the length of the centre span from 1,600 to 1,800 feet. "Whether or not this increase of loading was wise," said the witness, "was a matter of opinion for experts." Under the department system of examination of the bridge plans there was no detailed examination as to stresses for each member. There was merely a general inspection to find out the unit strain and ascertain that it was in accordance with the usual requirements. Mr. Douglas stated that the result of his examination of all the specifications did not lead him to doubt that the structure would be a perfectly safe one.

From the commencement of construction of the superstructure until its collapse he had never visited the bridge. His duty in connection with the bridge ceased, he declared, when he had reported on the plans and specifications, and he declined to express any definite opinion as to whether or not Mr. Cooper's dictum as to inspection of the bridge and the details of specifications was practically accepted in all cases by the Government. So far as Mr. Douglas was concerned the Government's procedure followed the usual course in dealing with subsidy bridges.

The Royal Commissioners investigating the collapse of the Quebec bridge will spend some weeks going over the evidence already adduced and examining various exhibits of plans, specifications etc., before going to New York and Phoenixville, to take further evidence from consulting engineers and others. Dr. Galbraith left for Toronto to-night.

BLACKMAIL IN KNIGHT'S NAME. Sir George Lewis Causes Arrest of Two Americans—$25,000 Involved.

London, Sept. 27.—Two Americans, Montague Newton and Joseph Fisher, were remanded under bail in the Marlborough Street Police Court to-day charged with conspiracy under singular circumstances.

Sir George Lewis, the solicitor who is conducting the prosecution, alleged that the prisoners had forged the note paper of his firm and his signature, apparently for the purpose of blackmail, the sum involved in one case being $25,000.

YOUNG BURGLARS.

VALNEFF AND DELTACE TURN KING'S EVIDENCE.

Trial of Tuca Lectace at Belleville—Judge Deroche Reserves Decision Till Monday—Stealings Were Valuable.

Belleville, Sept. 27.—Tuca Lectace, alias Joseph Plouffe, a young French-Canadian, charged with burglary and other offences, was yesterday placed on trial before Judge Deroche. The case occupied the entire day, and at its conclusion the Judge announced that he would give his decision on Monday.

Arthur Valneff and Arthur Deltace, two young men who were associated with Lectace, turned King's evidence, and testified against Lectace, who, as asserted, was the leader of the trio, and incited them to steal. The charge on which they were tried was that the prisoners entered the premises of Thomas Gardner and Miss Bogart and stole many articles, including jewelry, from Miss Bogart and Miss Ross. Mr. MacMahon defended the prisoner, and Mr. Anderson represented the Crown.

Lectace has some valuable property in storage at Montreal under a false name. Lectace's people are well-to-do, but the other boys are poor, and the fathers of both are dead. The prisoners were well prepared for burglary, as they had loaded revolvers, a large quantity of ammunition, an electric flashlight, and, in fact, everything that burglars usually carry.

OLD AGE PENSIONS. Result of the Commission's Inquiries in Nova Scotia.

Halifax, Sept. 27.—The commission appointed by the local Legislature to inquire into and report upon the possibility of adopting a system providing old-age pensions for workmen in the mines of Nova Scotia concluded its present session in this vicinity to-day with a short meeting held in Sydney Mines. So far, generally speaking, the evidence there is general satisfaction expressed at the present system of relief in case of accident or sickness, there is room for improvement.

Anything, however, that would tend to merge into common control the existing miners' relief with the proposed old-age pensions would, it is thought, meet with strong opposition. The commission adjourned this afternoon, to meet here again in about three weeks' time, after visiting Springhill, Inverness and Stellarton.

DECLARED LEGALLY DEAD. James Brennan, Missing Since 1906, Probably Killed at Bridgeburg.

Buffalo, Sept. 27.—Surrogate Hart of Buffalo has formally adjudged James J. Brennan, who mysteriously disappeared here in 1906, to be in law a dead man. Brennan's wife, who now lives in St. Thomas, Ont., was appointed by the surrogate administratrix of the missing man's estate. Shortly after Brennan disappeared the mutilated body of a man was found in Bridgeburg, Ont. He had been struck by an engine. It was believed at the time that the remains were those of Brennan.

WIRELESS TROLLEYS NEXT. Remarkable Discoveries in Transmission of Electrical Energy.

Lyons, France, Sept. 27.—Experiments in transmitting electrical energy long distances without the use of wires are proceeding here with the greatest secrecy, but it has been ascertained that a miniature railroad has been successfully operated under the new invention in the park on the Chateau Ampleux.

HIS CAREER ENDS.

SWINDLER T. D. EDWARDS COMES TO GRIEF IN WINNIPEG.

The Magistrate Sentences Him to Ten Years in Prison After Hearing the Story of Some of His Frauds—He Perpetrated Extensive Frauds.

Winnipeg, Sept. 27.—T. D. Edwards, fraudulent stock broker, was given ten years by Magistrate Daly at the Police Court this morning. The charge against the prisoner was of stealing shares to the value of $20,000, to which he pleaded guilty. The Magistrate had examined the books of the Investors' Protective Association, and it was undoubtedly conceived to defraud. There had been no allotment of shares, and Edwards was the whole company. The Chief of Police, it was stated, had received a letter from the Chief Constable of Toronto, stating that the prisoner had stolen some hundreds of dollars from a man in that city, but had escaped before he could be apprehended. The defrauded man had since died, but there were other charges at Toronto.

Edwards had been sentenced to a term of imprisonment for extensive and elaborated frauds in connection with the Ashnola Coal Company, but had been released. He had induced a number of reputable men to lend their names to this enterprise. A trust company with a capital of $100,000 was another of Edwards' ingenious schemes. The Magistrate had also received a letter from a former named Norman Morrison, who at different times since the prisoner's arrival in Winnipeg had been persuaded to part with amounts aggregating over $400.

A HUNDRED DEAD.

LOST THEIR LIVES IN GREAT FIRE AT WUCHOW.

Damage Will Be Quarter of a Million—Large Number of Houses, Boats and Pontoons Destroyed—City Being Looted, But Foreigners Safe.

Hong Kong, Sept. 27.—A hundred lives or more were lost in a great fire which broke out to-day at Wuchow, on the Seakiang River, about 180 miles from Canton. Hundreds of houses and large numbers of boats and pontoons on the river were destroyed, the total damage being at least a quarter of a million dollars. They were finally extinguished, but not until the explosion of the hero-sene depot had added considerably to their fury. Looting is going on in Wuchow, but all the foreigners there are safe.

The conflagration is said to have been due to incendiaries incited by the recent establishment of a new interior customs station at Wuchow, the inhabitants of the city being bitterly opposed to the extra taxation which the new station entailed.

CUSTOMS OFFICERS.

A MINIMUM SALARY OF NINE HUNDRED DOLLARS.

Three Increases of Fifty Dollars a Year Till the Maximum is Attained—Their Case Put Before the Civil Service Commission.

Toronto, Sept. 28.—The duties of the Dominion Civil Service Commission were concluded yesterday, when the representatives of the Customs Department presented their views. With regard to salary they asked for a minimum of $900, an eight-hour day for outside men, and seven hours for inside men. The deputation consisted of Dr. J. A. Smith, Windsor, spokesman; W. C. Bushell, Windsor, President of the Canadian Customs Mutual Benefit Association; B. C. McCann, London; R. Colvin, Hamilton; J. R. McCaffry, A. Patterson, Toronto, and F. T. Pattison, Secretary, Bridgeburg.

It was pointed out in the first place that the cost of living had increased approximately 50 per cent. of recent years, so that the civil servants were relatively at a great disadvantage with regard to other walks of life. In fact there were many men who had not received any salary increase in twenty years until the extra $100 was given this year. The deputation wanted a minimum salary of $900, with increases each year of $50 until the grade maximum was attained. The present minimum is $700.

The deputation urged that the retiring fund, inaugurated in 1898, was not just, since five per cent. of the salaries were withheld, and the interest half-yearly at four per cent. was less than money was really worth.

A PUZZLE PICTURE. "Big Game Hunting," the latest in railway advertising, is an illustrated publication, descriptive of the wonderful deer hunting country opened up by the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway.

particularly north of Parry Sound and along the Magnetawan River. It is printed in autumn tints with a most striking cover, portraying a guide carrying a moose head by a pack strap; the picture has aroused a lot of amusing speculation, the head is perfectly drawn, yet it is a puzzle. All interested in hunting should get free copy at the city office, corner of King and Toronto streets, or write Passenger Department, Canadian Northern Building, Toronto.

DRUNK WHILE ON DUTY. Charge Against Police Constable Groff, of St. Catharines.

St. Catharines, Sept. 27.—Police Constable Groff, recently appointed to the force by Mayor Riddell and Police Magistrate Comfort, against the wishes of Judge Carman, has been suspended, pending a meeting of the Police Commission, which is expected to be held to-morrow. The charge against Groff is that he was drunk while on duty.

Killed at North Bruce Fair. Southampton, Sept. 27.—John Donald, an old resident of this town, was killed at the North Bruce Fair held at Port Elgin, this afternoon by a horse bolting on the race track.

The Montreal police have been notified from Ottawa to arrest Charles Gagne, who eloped with Miss Irene Schanz, of Hintonburg, last Saturday. He married her in Montreal, although he left behind a wife and three children in Montreal.

GOOD FAIR AT STONEY CREEK.

Saltfleck Exhibition Was Held on Thursday and Friday.

Good Racing Enjoyed by a Large Crowd Yesterday.

Exhibits Large in Number and Good in Quality.

Stoney Creek fair, was as usual a decided success and a crowd of almost 3,000 people turned out to "blow in" their good money on pink leg and chance games of which a goodly few were in operation. The racing was very good and the baby show provided much amusement for the non-contestants.

The exhibits this year were very fair in quality and the judges had a hard time to choose the best, but it was done to the satisfaction of all.

The races were as follows: Class A, pace, 1-2 mile heats, 3 in 5, prizes $25, $15 and $10.

"Lulu Hal", W. Smith 1 1 1
Addie B. F. Chapman 2 2 2
Coronation Maid, P. Phelan 3 3 3

Class B, trot, 1-2 mile heats, 3 in 5, prizes $15, $12 and $8:
Wilkesbar, L. Dewey 1 1 1
Ruby, C. E. Barr 2 2 2
Maude Hal, H. Dore 3 2 3

The baby show was keenly contested and the first prize was awarded to Mrs. Dougherty, second to Mrs. Jas. Harper, and the third to Mrs. H. Pyett. The judges of this interesting event were W. H. Nichols, Jas. Livingstone, J. Murray Neil and Mr. Schwindeman.

The officials were: Robt. H. Dewar, President; John Truesdale, First Vice-President; J. J. Foran, Second Vice-President; J. H. McNeilly, Stoney Creek, Secretary-Treasurer. Directors, Geo. Gorman, Frederick Stewart, Geo. W. Millen, John Bridgman, Chas. Hildreth, Lorne Spera, Wm. Hildreth, Ham Sturch, Hamilton Lee, Lady Directors, Mrs. Chas. Hildreth, Mrs. H. Sturch, Mrs. Geo. W. Millen, Miss Bridgman, Miss J. R. Carpenter, Mrs. J. Brown, Mrs. A. E. Walker, Mrs. H. Lee, Mrs. Geo. Stewart, Miss Clara Walker, Mrs. J. Truesdale.

The prize list will appear later.

A BIG PARADE.

Thirteenth Men Had a Lively Brush Up Last Evening.

Notwithstanding the unpleasant weather last evening the Thirteenth Regiment had a large parade and indulged in two hours' brisk work, chiefly battalion movement. It was a good brush up for the fall inspection and Thanksgiving Day manoeuvres. Colonel Moore expressed himself pleased with the good attendance and reminded the men of the parade on Sunday to Christ Church Cathedral. The Catholic members of the regiment will go in a body to St. Mary's Cathedral. While desiring a big turnout he said he did not want any men with religious scruples who would sit on the grass in preference to entering the church to attend. The Thirteenth will meet the Ninety-First returning from St. Mary's. The Highlanders go to Erin.

The parade state: Lt-Colonel Moore; Majors Mewburn and Ross; Captain Domville, adjutant; Major Herring, paymaster; Captain Lester, quartermaster; Canon Forner, chaplain; Staff Sergeants H. J. Band 32; Buglers 35, 36; Messm Gun 7 and recruits 37 and signallers 9, A, 32; B, 52; C, 40; D, 30; E, 35; F, 29; G, 31; H, 39, a total of 435.

BUILDING IN EXETER. The W. A. Gibbs Co., of Hamilton, are building an evaporator in Exeter that will employ 25 men, at least three months in the year. They ask for money to supply a free site and a by-law will probably be submitted to the ratepayers in January ratifying the agreement. In the meantime the company have procured land north of the station, a portion of the late I. Carling's estate, for $500.

The new bell for the North End fire hall arrived in town Monday of last week, and was placed in position the following day.

DEMAND FOR APPLES. By Shipments to Britain, Europe and United States.

Toronto, Sept. 28.—In spite of the duty of seventy-five cents a barrel, there will be a considerable export of Ontario apples to the United States this year, according to Mr. P. W. Hodgatt, Secretary of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association. They are already a large number of American buyers in the Province, taking what they can get now and making contracts for further supplies during the season, at an average price of $3 a barrel f.o.b. on this side of the line. Severe spring frosts and the subsequent bad weather in the southern and western States were disastrous to the apple crops and apple cause of the demand for Ontario apples. Similar conditions in Britain and Europe have caused a shortage there, and the export to those countries will be heavier than usual. In addition, Manitoba is making big demands for apples, so that the outlook for apple orchard owners in this Province is bright. The crop in the best apple sections of Ontario is a good average one. Prices of apples for home consumption range from $2.50 to $3.50 per barrel at the point of shipment.

The "SLUM BISHOP" of London

A REMARKABLE PRELATE NOW ON A VISIT TO AMERICA - HE IS ON TERMS EQUALLY FAMILIAR WITH POVERTY AND RICHES

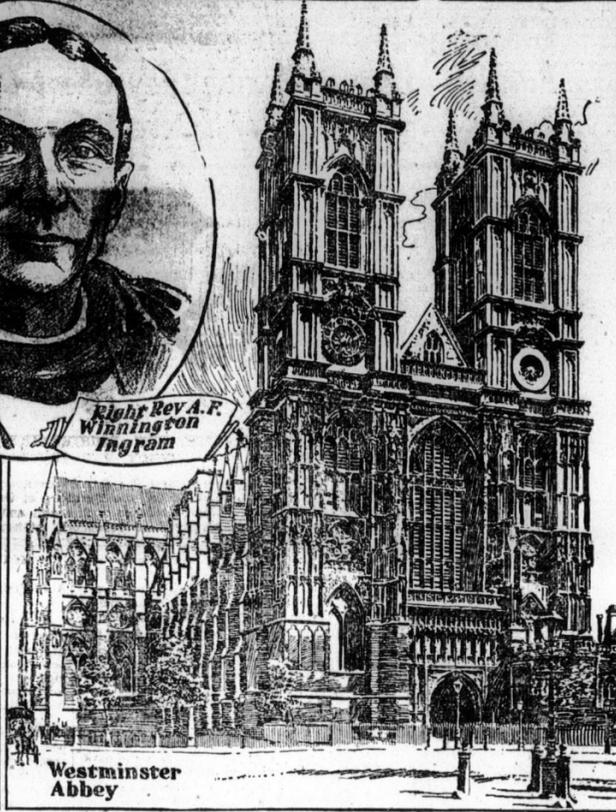

St. Paul's Cathedral London

Right Rev. A. F. Winnington Ingram

In the Slums

Westminster Abbey

There is now in America one of the most remarkable Englishmen of the present generation. Although he is one of the most popular men of the day in his own country, the Right Rev. Arthur F. Winnington Ingram, Bishop of London, is a comparative stranger on this side of the Atlantic. His chief object in coming at this time is to be present at the celebration of the tercentenary of the Protestant Episcopal church in America. At the solemn memorial services in old Bruton church at Williamsburg, Va., to be held in October, Dr. Ingram will present the Bible which King Edward has sent to this historic parish. On Sept. 29 the bishop expects to be present at the laying of the cornerstone of the new Washington cathedral.

He is a remarkable man, this bishop of London, and his career reads like a romance. He it is who was transferred at the stroke of a pen in the hand of the royal head of the English church from a modest apartment in an unfashionable quarter of London to the palace of a prince, with an income of $50,000 a year to run it. He was not pleased at the transfer. Incredible as it may appear, this man who had labored for years in the Whitechapel district would have preferred to remain there. But the call was imperative, and he had to yield. The man who had made himself a pariah in the slums of London had thereby made himself worthy of the favor of princes, and with bitter regret that he was not suffered to complete his mission to those whom he had found hopeless and in whom he had inspired a longing for self betterment he exchanged Whitechapel for Westminster.

After eight years of unceasing labor in the slums Dr. Ingram received the summons to "come up higher." In September, 1897, he was appointed by Lord Salisbury, then prime minister, canon residentiary of St. Paul's cathedral. Soon afterward he was consecrated Bishop of Stepney, which gave him the episcopal oversight of the thickly populated and impoverished population of the east end. Thus was the cable laid between Bethnal Green and exclusive Belgravia. The new "bishop of the slums," still in his thirties, became a lion in fashionable society. The most notable men in the country made haste to know him, and every pulpit in the city was open to him.

His wonderful strength. Bishop Creighton died a week before Queen Victoria, and it so happened that the vacancy in the see of London was the first the new king was called upon to fill. There are many reasons why his choice might not have fallen on the "bishop of the slums." Dr. Ingram was only forty-three years of age—there was many another prelate in the establishment who seemed to be more eligible to preferment. It was markedly contrary to tradition, that potent force in the English ecclesiastical economy. Besides being younger than any man who had ever been called to the dignity, he was not known as a scholar and author, and the English had from time immemorial demanded that their chief prelates possess those accomplishments. It was also pointed out to the new sovereign by one of his most trusted advisers that no bachelor bishop had been the tenant of Fulham palace for many generations.

Although Dr. Ingram was an avowed high church man, practically all of the low church clergy in his district were his enthusiastic supporters. Dissident ministers of every shade of religious opinion were also clamorous for his elevation. Even the veteran General Booth of the Salvation Army joined in the great chorus of petitioners. After the appointment was announced he wrote on behalf of the Army: "We cannot but regard it as a blessed promise for the reign of his majesty the king and for the country that so young and yet so experienced a servant of the poorest should be chosen for this appointment." So in the end the man who by the right of succession had just become the temporal head of his nation's established church made the slum missionary bishop of London, with the use of a spacious mansion, London House, in St. James' square, and Fulham palace, a stately residence with exquisite grounds and an entertaining capacity that includes forty-four bedrooms—quite enough for a bachelor, even though he be the bishop of London.

world. When he goes to a parish he chats with the vicar and his family, meets the parish workers and preaches informally. Many of these visits are made at night, and on his way he lights a little electric lamp in his carriage, sets it on his knee and proceeds to write his sermon. Not infrequently he is absent from home twelve hours on a stretch on this apparently congenial business.

"How do you manage to get through at all?" the bishop was asked recently. "By taking each little duty—trivial enough in itself perhaps—as the great and insistent concern of the day," he replied. "If I go to a workhouse service and the dear old inmates honor me with a sevenfold Amen I am content to regard that service as one of the central duties of the day."

Therein, his friends say, lies another element of his power. He not only works in the thick of the conflict and delights in it, but believes that every thing is "worth while"—whether he marries a duke, chats with a dowager over her charities or distributes blanket funds or the fuel of a coal club. Back of this, his friends say, is the simple but absolute faith that is the mainspring of it all. His religion strikes home because it is real to him, and his conviction makes his hearers appreciate its reality.

Dr. Ingram still manifests an abundance of the spirit of democracy that made him such a power in the slums. One day he went to the east end to preach to some of his old friends who had written to him that he must not forget them now that he had risen to such a grand position. Before he entered upon his sermon proper he explained to his appreciative listeners how it was that he had come to them in a motor car instead of by omnibus. He told his old friends that he found it necessary in order to save time, and then he charged them that if ever they should happen to see him driving in lonely state to call out to him and he would give them a lift, if they were going his way. Some time afterward the bishop was hailed by a workman in overalls just as his car was leaving Fulham palace.

"Which way?" called the bishop, slowing up.

"To Poplar, where I live," replied the man.

"Then jump right in. I'm going that way myself," said the "slum bishop." "Here! Give me your basket and mind the step."

FOR THE LADIES

Gleanings From Here and There in the Field of Fashion—How a Woman May Cheat Old Father Time—Many Notes of Interest for the Ladies.

Cheating old Father Time has been one of woman's schemes ever since Mother Eve tried to impart a jaunty hang to her fig-leaf apron. Before that the mythological goddesses had been up to all sorts of beautifying methods, the magic girdle of Venus being the best known beauty help. And modern woman not only adopts all the secrets of old, but invents new ones. She goes in for the best the beauty experts have to offer, and she is thoroughly well groomed.

There never was a day when so many women pursued beauty so thoroughly as the present. There have been times when they spent as much on perfumes and put in more hours with as much of their skin as was shown in evening dress. But never has woman sought so honestly for beauty, breathing deeply, eating and drinking regularly and rationally, spending hours out in the sunshine and either exercising naturally or performing calisthenics indoors.

Massage can undoubtedly increase or take away flesh, as may be desired. But there is one very great disadvantage of too regular reliance upon this aid to looking young. It does not give strength. Probably most of my readers can call to mind instances of both mistresses and their maids who possess good figures. The mistress who is massaged by the maid has an excellent figure, but is comparatively weak with it. The maid has a good figure through the exercise of massaging her mistress, and is strong with it. The one who does the massaging almost always reaps the greater benefit, for at the same time as improving the figure she is improving her quality of flesh, her complexion and every internal organ of the body.

Of all the signs of youth, probably the most effective is a graceful, limoness, alert carriage.

Exercise is the only method open to a woman to obtain this limoness, and this delightful grace that is one of her truest charms. Even the act of walking across the room, or closing a door, or picking up a book, reveals a new beauty of outline, of posture, in a woman whose muscles have been developed and rounded by exercise.

Nor need a woman fear that much exercise will make her unbecomingly and of a "knobby-like" appearance, as an Indian writer once described an athletic man. The more she exercises, the more in a different way from that of a man. It does not increase in bulkiness, it increases longitudinally; exercise improves it in quality (by drawing out the fatty substance from among its fibres) rather than in quantity, and thus gives that part of the body which the particular muscle lives a peculiarly firm and moulded appearance.

"Exercise that gives firmness to every part—the cheeks, the neck, the bust, the limbs—is a boon to beauty and a handmaid to youthfulness," says Sandow.

This exercise must however be scientific exercise, and not the rough and tumble pastimes indulged in by the other sex.

Far more serious than too hard exercising is the effect produced by motorizing. Now motorizing is a pleasant and sensible recreation. I say no word against it, but I do say to women who participate in it and enjoy it, do not neglect to take the proper precautions in the matter of home exercise to counteract the tendency that motorizing produces, the result of which may be called the "motor face."

All people who face in the course of their daily occupations swift currents of wind and air assume a weather-beaten appearance as to the face. A sailor, an engine driver, a mountaineer—all have this typical complexion, and neither veil nor goggles are sufficient to prevent the woman who motors assuming a similar masculine skin condition. There is a tendency to screw up the eyes and to pinch up the face.

Put exercise generally is the keynote to health and therefore to beauty. The blood circulates freely and imparts a glow to the skin and a brightness to the eye. Following are descriptions of the three exercises pictured:

To Flatten Back.

Ready Position.—Bend forward from hips, and hold the heels down in front of the body.

Movement.—Raise the heels slowly upward and outward, arms straight, until they are above the level of the back of the head. Pause, then screw up the heels down to ready position. This exercise can be performed with or without dumb-bells.

Ready Position.—Breathing exercise. Arms by sides, hands in front of thighs, stand erect.

Movement.—(1) Raise the arms slowly outward and upward till they meet above the head, expand the chest, inhaling through the nostrils all the time the arms are in motion. The face should look up, following the motion of the hands. Maintain this position for a moment, and then (2) bring the arms slowly down sideways and in front of the thighs, exhaling through the mouth to the utmost.

This is a powerful movement for the lungs, and should be done slowly, inhaling from the start to finish of movement of the hand upward. This exercise can be performed with or without dumb-bells.

Ready Position.—Stand erect, arms stretched well above head.

Movement.—(1) Bend forward, making the hip joint the hinge of movement. Try to touch floor 12 inches in front of toes. (2) Stretch upward, and to the rear, the hands leading. Inhale through the nostrils going up, exhaling going down.

Note.—At first it may be found impossible to touch the floor keeping legs straight. Before commencing localize the hip joint with the fingers, making sure that the movement is not made from the lumbar vertebrae. When bending forward press well back on the heels as if trying to sit down without bending the legs. Having touched the floor once, strive at each session to increase distance from the toes forward. This movement done correctly affects the whole muscular system, is good for increasing the height where possible and especially strengthens the muscles in the lumbar region.

All three of these exercising beauties wear contrasting silk ties with their black serge gym suits, which consist of jaunty blouses and graceful circular blouses.

Effectiveness of Leather.

Dark green leather is being largely used for collars and walking and country costumes in leather mixtures. It is effective and sensible and gives a touch of color without being out of keeping. Deep maroon-colored leather is another good hue. With a leather mixture, whatever color is emphasized, ever so slightly, gives the note to the whole dress.

Leather mixtures are usually compounded of every hue outside the Orient, and most of those in it, and it remains for the collar and revers to decide which shall be considered the chief. A charming suit is in a leather mixture, which was determined to be brown in effect by a collar and revers of very coarse tan serge, stitched down with brown leather strips. The bodice was arranged in box palls, rather narrow; the skirt was seven-gored and edged with the stitching of leather. A high corselet belt of stitched tweed kept all tidy and was very becoming to the figure. It was unboned, in order to give suppleness to the movements of the body.

Daytime Town Wear.

As for daytime town wear, there are just two styles—the trim, short-skirted costume for walking and the graceful, trailing costume for occasions. Of each there is endless variety. On the whole neutral tints are to prevail. Olive greens will rival the smoke, grape, wine and dead-leaf shades. In both broadcloth and velvet there are shadow stripes, which are charmingly effective, yet with nothing showy about them. In fact, the new materials are all lovely, both texture and color being extremely soft.

It is said velvet and buckles will figure most extensively as trimmings. While the drooping, flowing lines will be observed for elaborations, the tail-tailory schemes will hold for most sorts of day wear.

New Rest Cure.

Looks at things in motion. Look at them very steadfastly. And don't think of anything else. Ocean wavelets are approved things to gaze on.

A breeze-swept, ivy-green wall is among the restful. A waxy woodland, or even a single tree, are on the list. Animals, as viewed from a vine-clad porch, are recommended.

LIFE NOT ALL SKIRTS AND HAIR-PINS.

Men occasionally sneer at women for hating to be out in the rain. Let them try it in feminine finery! How long would their serenity last if they had a wet, muddy skirt or petticoat flapping at their heels, and quantities of ethereal material waving in every breeze and being ruined by the rain and hampering every movement? How long would they hold up their heads and enjoy a gas if they had long hair fastened up with two-pronged forks, and every gust raised the forks on end till, in the ensuing calm, the hat settled heavily down upon them? When one reflects on the conditions in which women live, I think it is a perfect wonder that, as a sex, we have a reputation for good temper. One clever woman says that "the passage of time has hypnotized us into endurance of these evils. However, in the latest walking rig, which discards every superfluous garment, and therefore, economizes inconveniences, a woman can in some measure approach the freedom of man and feel that life is, after all, not all skirts and hairpins.

The Tall Glide.

That's our talk. It was named in England. Over there it is the American walk. They study it as they do dancing. They call it swift, as well as a tall glide. They liken this swaying walk to a yacht in a breeze.

They say the tall walk is a matter of leg muscles and necked muscles. At any rate, they welcome it as a pleasing compromise between French mining and English striding.

Two Hats.

Hats in velvet will be much seen this autumn, the great drawback to them being their weight, unless very skillfully arranged. (Hats are likely to weigh heavily on the mind of the fashionable in two senses of the word this autumn.) A Canadian sable collar has been draped about the brim of a golden brown velvet shape, finished with swathings of three shades of brown silk net, and a splendid cluster of leafless Glorif de Dijon roses in all their soft hues of ivory cream and beige. Such a hat cannot be a light weight. Another in drawn ivory taffetas is veiled with spotted purple net and trimmed with ivory, purple and heliotrope stocks.

BEAUTY HITS OF THE SEASON.

Many girls wash their hair too often, especially if it is inclined to be oily. Too frequent shampooing only aggravates the condition.

A dry cleaning will do all that is required at times, especially if formal is used. It is perfumed with orris root, powdered. Let this stand in a jar for several days (it is well to keep the mixture prepared) and then rub it well through the hair up over the scalp. Then brush out. This will absorb the oils and bring the dust, too. Washing once a month or once in four weeks is often enough especially. The dry shampoo is a good weekly substitute, and while it is nice to have equal parts a good bit less of the orris will suffice.

If the hands are not good and the nails badly shaped try to improve the latter by training the article. Every night soak the fingers in hot water for five minutes. Then with an orange wood stick press back the cuticle to flatten the nails. Afterward rub in cold cream.

Do not omit this or the soaking will make the cuticle very dry.

A cup of hot water drunk as soon as getting up in the morning will hurt none and is positively beneficial to many persons. It is one of the simplest aids to digestion. An abundance of fresh air is essential to good complexion, and there should be plenty of ventilation in the sleeping room.

If the contour of the face is not good, the way of dressing the hair will do much to correct it. If too long, the coiffure should be flat and the hair parted in the middle. Occasionally there is a type of face that looks well with the hair parted at the side, but beware of getting the effect of a cigarette for the face is too short it is simple to do the hair on top of the head and get length by wearing a pompadour.

SKIRT LENGTHS.

Authorities Agree on What Was Foretold.

As long since foretold in the Record, skirt lengths will be ankle depth for walking suits and dancing frocks, the round sweep for afternoon costumes and every long skirt is either plain or have a peculiar curved hip line is employed to preserve a certain long, almost straight line from waist to ankles, with an abrupt bend or break just at that point all around the skirt, says Dress. These very long skirts are either plain or have the trimming massed around the bottom and topped with a waist correspondingly elaborate.

This same idea was carried out in the midsummer dancing frocks. The exquisite mousselines and other filmy summer costumes are made to clear the floor by three inches, and they were loaded down around the foot with trimmings of lace or embroidery, with crossings of insertion, and with frills and ruchings, which, in turn, are reproduced in the waist design. It is such a sensible, comfortable fashion that permits one to trip the light fantastic without at the same time tripping one's self and one's partner.

Burn Your Letters.

Think of your letters. Above all your love letters! The best scheme is to burn them. Otherwise anything may happen to them.

Fancy your granddaughter stuffing a cushion with them! Worse yet, if you become famous she'll no doubt sell them!

Fancy those pages of palpitation held up to the gaping crowd!

Fancy the industrious auctioneer haranguing the bidder, the dealer and the rest, trying to wring another dollar out of them for a particularly torrid effusion.

For Evening.

A charming little evening frock has an overdress of white Chinese crepe, embroided with scattered flowers in shades of palest pink, mauve, and water-blue, with long fringes to border the panels into which it is divided, and an underdress of soft satin veiled with pink chiffon. A tea gown for a girl is of ivory velvet, ringed with tiny silver cords, has a collar of chinilla, and is decorated with a narrow border of velvet with a picot edge of the cording, and a silver belt of interwoven silver braid clasped with silver.

FRENCH HATS.

Felt, Velvet and Short-cut Beaver—New Shapes.

The Paris hats that are to be donned with the new furs and the fur and cloth cloaks of the future are to be of felt, of velvet-covered frames, and of short-cut beaver. This much is established. Also that the crowns of the new hats will be taller and squarer than in past seasons. The brims are to be soft, the crowns stiff, and some of the most picturesque forms are not unlike the hats worn by the Beefeaters of the Tower of London. They are of beaver, with a rule, and, while somewhat Amazonian at first sight, have a really attractive air when trimmed with a big winding plume, or a big cockade of cock's feathers, which soften the outlines.

A great many evening hats for restaurant wear are of light pastels of felt, while those for regular street wear run to medium tones of gray, brown, mauve, blue, and black.

These are often of velvet, says Harper's Bazaar. There is a bell-shaped turban with a brim widened at the sides and narrowed at back and front slightly.

BUTTERFLY BROOCHES.

Done Realistically in Enamel, They Are Charming.

Since the advent of the millionaire age, wherein everybody who is anybody can wear diamonds and pearls galore, it seems to be the aim of women of cultivated taste to choose their ornaments among things slightly out of the ordinary. With some of the collecting of antique jewelry is pursued to an extreme, and these women are loaded down with barbaric chains and bracelets. Many women now wear only the jewelry of a certain period, notably that of Marie Antoinette.

An English woman of distinction has shown considerable quality in wearing exclusively as ornaments butterfly brooches done in enamel. For many years she has been a collector of rare and beautiful specimens of butterflies that are native in various countries, their brilliant colors and often fantastic markings being a source of constant pleasure to her. One day the idea came to her to send one of her specimens, a wonder in the world of science, to an enameler in London, reputed to be the best artist of his kind in Europe, says the New York Herald. He then made in enamel a fac-simile of the butterfly, with marvelous fidelity to its shape and coloring. Even the transparent quality of the insect's wings was effectively simulated. It was mounted on gold and in a way that by pinching the wings underneath to fasten themselves upon. As the wings rebounded the butterfly was held in place.

MONTHS OF AGONY.

A Severe Case of Rheumatism Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"For many weary months I suffered untold agony. I could not walk. I could scarcely raise myself to a sitting posture. I was under medical care, but in vain. Finally I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they have restored me to my former healthy condition."

This strong statement was made to a reporter recently by Mr. Charles S. Koddy, formerly of Kingston, N.S., but now living at Port Maitland. Mr. Koddy is a carpenter by trade, and is now able to work every day. He adds: "I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they cured me after other medicines failed. While I was living at Kingston, N.S., I was seized with rheumatism in its most violent form. I was compelled to take to my bed and for months was an invalid. I was so weak that it was difficult for me to raise myself to a sitting posture. It is impossible to tell how much I suffered day and night, week in and week out. The pains were like piercing swords. I had medical attendance, but it failed. Then I tried medicines advertised to cure rheumatism, but with the same result—money wasted. One day when hope had almost given up, I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I told him my experience with other medicines, but he assured me that these pills would cure my rheumatism, so I sent for a supply. After using a few boxes I was able to leave my bed, and from that on my restoration to health was rapid. I am now as well as ever I was, and have not had the slightest touch of rheumatism since. The change they have wrought in my case is simply miraculous, and I can strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to anyone suffering from any form of rheumatism."

Rheumatism is rooted in the blood. Rubbing the aching limbs with liniments and outward remedies cannot possibly cure it. You must get the rheumatic acid out of the blood and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the one sure medicine to do this, because they actually make new blood. That is why these pills cure anemia, headaches and backaches, neuralgia, indigestion and the secret elements that make miserable the lives of so many women and growing girls. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The kimono sleeve has been such a general favorite during the past summer that there is much doubt as to its future career. New gowns from the best makers have it, but much modified from its original shape. In fact, the modifications depart so far from the original type that Another name will doubtless appear if the vogue for wide armholes with Japanese sleeves remains for the late fall. The second gown in the picture is one of the radical departures. The gown is made of pongee and has an embroidered waist front and sleeves. The first gown, of ring dotted taffeta, has velvet tabs ending in fringe which fall from the girdle. The girle is of velvet latticed with gilt and steel spangles and beads.

PONGEE FOR FALL.

Clever Rig Seen at a Charming Suburban Fete.

A Nile green coarse pongee worn at an out-of-town fete last week had some interesting points.

The skirt was long and very full, and had a tunic effect that followed its lines to deep hem depth. The tunic was open in the front and was bordered with stitched bias band of the same material. The bodice was of green chiffon, with shoulder strap arrangements of the green pongee which formed strapped sleeve tops and bretelles and crossed the front of the waist.

Over the whole fell a bertha shape of handsome lace which extended in long deep points each side of the front and ended in tassels. Buttons finished the strappings of the silk on the skirt and waist. The chemisettes and under sleeves were white.

THE EVILS OF THE STRIKE.

CARDINAL GIBBONS ON INDUSTRIAL PROBLEMS.

Urges That Arbitration Be Generally Adopted—He Scores the Sordid, Grasping Trust—He Disapproves of the Use of the Boycott in Any Form.

Cardinal Gibbons, in an article entitled "Organized Labor," which will appear within a few days in the October number of Putnam's Monthly, declares himself as strongly opposed to strikes and boycotts as means of settling differences between the employers and the employed, and makes an urgent appeal for the pacific adjustment of industrial difficulties. With unusual candor, but in a kindly spirit, he makes several outspoken admissions to organized labor. He expresses clearly in detail his views regarding capital and labor, and finally urges workmen to strive constantly and zealously toward an uplifting of the moral and social standard of their organizations. Although his theme is "Organized Labor" and much of the article is addressed to the labor organizations, Cardinal Gibbons does not spare the trusts and corporations. He is unsparing in his denunciation of those monopolists who he says "exhibit a grasping avarice which has dried up every sentiment of sympathy and a sordid selfishness that is deaf to the cries of distress." While he approves the banding together of workmen for their own protection, Cardinal Gibbons denounces those elements of organized labor which seek to stir up unnecessary discord.

Regarding the evils of strikes, which subject he discusses at length, he says, in part:

Experience has shown that strikes are a drastic and at best a very questionable remedy for the redress of the laborer's grievances. They paralyze industry, they often foment fierce passions and lead to the destruction of property; and, above all, they result in inflicting grievous injury on the laborer himself by keeping him in enforced idleness, during which time his mind is clouded by discontent while brooding over the situation, and his family not infrequently suffers from want of the necessities of life. The loss inflicted by strikes on the employees is not much more than half as great as that which is sustained by the employer, who can much less afford to bear it.

It would be a vast stride in the interests of peace and of the laboring classes if the policy of arbitration, which is now gaining favor, the settlement of international quarrels and the availed of for the adjustment of disputes between capital and labor. Many blessings would result from the adoption of this method, for which strikes, as the name implies, are aggressive and destructive, arbitration is conciliatory and constructive. The result in the former case is determined by the weight of the purse, in the latter by the weight of the argument.

Cardinal Gibbons believes that the American workman is better paid and lives better than his brethren across the Atlantic. After praising briefly the employers who have at heart the welfare of those they employ, his Eminence turns to the criminal corporations in their relations with the workmen. He says, in part:

No friend of his race can contemplate without painful emotions these heartless monopolists. Their sole aim is to realize large dividends without regard to the paramount claims of justice and Christian charity. These trusts and monopolies like the car of Juggernaut, crush every obstacle that stands in their way. They endeavor—not always, it is alleged, without success—to corrupt our national and State Legislatures and municipal councils. They are so intolerant of honest rivalry as to use unlawful means in driving from the market all competing industries. They compel their operatives to work for starvation wages, especially in mining districts and factories, where protests have but a feeble echo, and are easily stifled by intimidation. In many places the corporations are said to have the monopoly of stores of supply, where exorbitant prices are charged for the necessities of life, while the contractors which the workmen are unable to pay from their scanty wages, and their forced insolvency places them at the mercy of their taskmasters. The supreme law of the land should be vindicated and enforced, and ample protection should be afforded to legitimate competing corporations, as well as the laboring classes, against unscrupulous monopolies.

Continuing, Cardinal Gibbons discusses the subject of boycotting, of which he says, in part:

I am persuaded that the system of boycotting, by which members of labor unions are instructed to patronize certain obnoxious business houses, is not only disapproved by an impartial public sentiment, but that it does not commend itself to the more thoughtful and conservative portion of the guilds themselves. Every man is free indeed to select the establishments with which he wishes to deal, and in purchasing from one in preference to another he is not violating justice. But the case is altered when, by a mandate of the society, he is debarred from buying from a particular firm. Such a proposition assails the liberty of the purchaser and is an unwarrantable invasion of the commercial privileges guaranteed by the Government to business concerns. If such a social ostracism was generally in vogue, a process of retaliation would naturally follow, the course of mercantile intercourse would be checked, every centre of population would be divided into hostile camps, and the good feelings which ought to prevail in every community would be seriously impaired. "Live and let live" is a wise maxim, dictated alike by the law of trade and by Christian charity.

Cardinal Gibbons warns labor unions against tolerating elements dangerous to their own well being. He points out that the unions "have need of leaders possessed of great firmness, tact and superior executive ability, who will honestly aim at consulting the welfare of the society they represent, without infringing on the rights of their employers. They should exercise unceasing vigilance in securing their body from the control of designing demagogues, who would make it subservient to their own selfish ends or convert it into a political engine. They should be careful to exclude from their ranks that turbulent element who boldly preach the gospel of anarchy, socialism and nihilism; those land pirates who are preying on the industry, commerce and trade of the country whose mission is to pull down and not to build up; who, instead of upholding the hands of the Government that protects them, are bent on its destruction, and instead of blessing the mother that opens her arms to welcome them, insult and defy her. If such revolutionists had their way despotism would supplant legitimate authority, license would reign without liberty, and gaunt poverty would stalk throughout the land." Continuing, he says:

The expulsion from membership in the unions of any men who have been guilty of outrages of one kind or another against the peace of the community or the rights of their fellow-citizens would secure for the unions the respect and sympathy of the community and would greatly further the best interests of organized labor.

GLASS BEADS.

Industry of Much Importance at the Queen of the Adriatic.

Formerly Venice was the only place where glass beads were made. It was asserted that there was no possibility of making them elsewhere owing to some climatic influence, and the chemical composition of the local sand and salt sands. Manufactories, however, now exist in France, Bohemia and Antwerp. Some years ago a factory was also established in India.

The process of making glass beads is as follows: (1) The vitreous paste is composed and is then fused in the furnace. (2) The "canna" or long, thin, perforated tube, is made by the "Margaritari," for producing the round small globes of glass of different colors, or imitation of pearls, coral and precious stones. (3) The rounding and working of glass pearls is done at the flame of the lamp. The first operation is considered the most important, as it provides the material necessary for making all kinds of beads and requires some technical knowledge and great practice, as the preparation and composition of the various pastes are still jealously kept secret.

It may, perhaps, be of interest to see the general character of a bead factory. The furnace contains five or six large earthen vases, divided one from the other so that they may be differently heated, according to the various compositions which are poured into them. The beads to be made, but in such a way that the hole in the middle of the tube is always maintained. The work is executed by the foreman, who has under his orders two assistants and four workmen, called "tiradori." One of the assistants dips the end of an iron rod about 4 feet long into one of the vases containing the molten paste of the required color. He then rolls it on an iron table to reduce it in a cylindrical form, and makes a round hole on the upper part of the paste. After this the foreman takes the rod in his hand and heats in the furnace the portion of paste attached to its end by giving it a few turns, and sees that the hole made is exactly in the centre. He then promptly attaches another rod to the upper part of the paste. The two rods are at once delivered to two "tiradori," who running specially in opposite directions, reduce the molten material into a very long, thin tube, which preserves the hole in its centre for all its length.

The glass tubes are then divided according to their thickness, and cut in small pieces. Such pieces are then sifted and put in iron tubes with sand and coal powder and by turning them in the furnace the pieces are made round. The pearls are then polished by placing them in a bag containing some sand and shaking them for some time. They are then separated from the sand by a sieve and put in another bag containing a portion of white bran, and again shaken, when they become extremely brilliant, and after being sifted are ready for sale.

Are Cards Undermining the Church.
A sensational attack on card-playing was made at Winona Lake, Indiana, the other night by Mrs. A. B. Sims, of Des Moines, Ia., in the presence of four thousand people. Mrs. Sims is the woman's whist champion of the United States, but she has seen a new light, and has abandoned her once favored pastime completely. She stated that she had burned her forty packs of cards, because they had absorbed so much of her time and energy. Frequently she had played from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m. She also thought that excessive card-playing on the part of women was undermining the church.—From Leslie's Weekly.

Famous Landmark to Disappear.
On an early date the noted East Lothian landmark known as Knock-in-Hair is to be pulled down. It was a signal station at the time of Napoleon's threatened invasion. The tower derived its name, says the London Globe, from the strange circumstances that women used to congregate around it, when watch-fires were kindled within its dome and as they witnessed the wreck of fishing boats containing their breadwinners they dashed their heads against its walls.

People who lay their sins on the old Adam are not anxious to have their accessories attributed to him.

MADE OF NORMAL-CALF

Improvement Number Two

The way "Normal-Calf" is made.

The foot is one of the tenderest members of the body. Of course the ball and heel are tough, but no human part, excepting the eye, is more delicate than the top and pit of the foot.

If you subject that tender top to the rough ravages of hard, stiff, lifeless calfskin, you're sending a helpless, tender weakling to ignominious defeat at the hands of a rubbing, pinching, blistering foe whose battle scars can be seen on nine feet out of every ten.

"Normal-Calf" is a new leather invention, devised, patented and exclusively controlled by the Foot-rite makers. No matter what retailers may tell you, "Normal-Calf" can be found only in Foot-rite Shoes. This leather is tanned and curried by a new process which preserves nearly all of the soft, clothyness of the live calf's skin.

Tanning is merely rendering animal skin undecayable. This is accomplished by soaking the skin in tannic acid. The tannic acid chemically combines with the skin's chief component part—gelatine—forming tanno-gelatin, or leather which is insoluble and unputrefiable.

The tannic acid is secured from various tree barks. Hemlock is used principally because it's cheapest, but it fills up the pores, destroys the fibre and deadens the skin, forming leather as stiff and hard as tin. This is the foot-rubbing, foot-pinching, foot-blistering calfskin used in nearly all shoes. It's not worthy the name "leather." It's merely pickled calf hide, more suitable for sandpaper than for shoes.

"Normal-Calf" is rendered undecayable with scarce and expensive tannic acid extracted from oaktree bark, so accurately and scientifically administered that the pores and fibre remain natural; stiffening of the skin is avoided; and almost the original, soft, clothyness of the live calf's hide is retained.

Then it's put through a new and special Foot-rite process of shaving, scraping, drying, oiling and annealing, which further enhances its suppleness.

The same price in Canada, Great Britain and the United States $4, $5 and $6.

Every pair made by the wonderful Goodyear process—making them strong, pliable, flexible.

THE BROTHERHOOD.

A. G. Alexander Elected Vice President at Washington.

Washington, Sept. 28.—The international convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew is in progress here. The feature of the opening day's meeting was the report of the international committee, urging every member of the organization to more earnest efforts toward bringing all the men and boys of the Holy Church universal to stand shoulder to shoulder in a vigorous endeavor to establish Christ's kingdom.

Officers chosen to serve during the convention in this city included: Vice-Presidents A. G. Alexander, of Hamilton, Canada; C. A. King, of England, and A. Childs, of Scotland, and Convention Secretary A. H. Young, of Canada. The report expressed satisfaction with what has been accomplished in the United States. It was pointed out since the last international convention in Buffalo in 1897 the Brotherhood had greatly increased its junior departments. The report showed for Canada a total of 150 chapters, with a membership of 3,100 men and boys, while in England the progress has not been so marked as that of other national brotherhoods. In Japan the report indicates great progress has been made.

IS VERY POPULAR.

Rev. G. W. Kirby Honored By His People.

Rev. George W. Kirby, of Calgary, President of the Alberta Conference of the Methodist Church, a former pastor of Charlton Avenue Methodist Church, was tendered a remarkably enthusiastic reception last week by his congregation and the citizens generally on his return from a tour of Great Britain and Europe with the Guthbert house party. Mr. Kirby's people gave him three months' vacation, increased his stipend $500, and maintained an assistant pastor, as well as a secretary and a deaconess. There are more than one thousand members in the church.

"Swastika"—A Good Luck Charm.

The "Swastika" cross or emblem is one of the oldest things in history, and was used as a symbol of good luck hundreds of years before the Christian era. It was connected with the Sun god by the Indians and was worshipped at their autumn festivals.

In looking around for a distinguishing mark for their great fall managers' sale, Stanley Mills & Co. were struck with the "Swastika" as a fitting emblem, and have adopted it, and will use it profusely to illustrate their advertising during the big sale next week. Elsewhere in to-night's paper they advertise a short story contest, offering as prizes gold and enamel "Swastika" pins. Read about it.

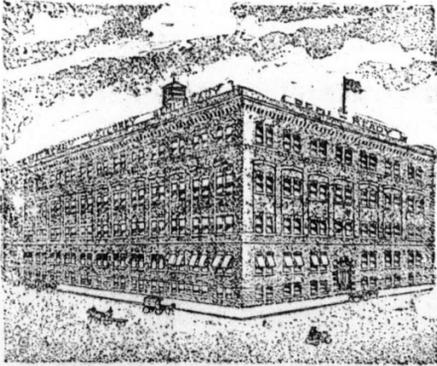

JIM HOLDS TWO HARD JOBS.

(Toronto Saturday Night.)

James Weir is secretary of the Strathcona Board of Trade; he also happens to be editor of the Daily Chronicle. For his secretaryship he gets $1,000 a year. A strong kick was recently made against his holding both positions. At a meeting of the board it was shown that Mr. Weir was doing his duty; no kick came from that quarter. But he was a Conservative, explains the Red Deer News "a big, fat full-fledged, jolly, wholesome Conservative. Strathcona, is strongly Liberal, and after a full discussion of the secretary's evil doing, he said to be everlasting credit of the Strathcona Board of Trade, they voted that he was giving satisfaction by a vote of twenty-one to seven. A man that can run a daily paper and give satisfaction as secretary of a Board of Trade in a Liberal city like Strathcona must be a jewel, and we congratulate the jovial editor of the Chronicle on having his abilities recognized.

THE LARGEST EXCLUSIVE TAILORING HOUSE IN CANADA.

"Semi-Ready" Headquarters in Montreal.

The whole of the five-story factory on Guy street, in the city of Montreal, is occupied by the "Semi-Ready" Company and its staff of 400 expert tailors, each man an efficient master of certain secrets and details in Semi-ready tailoring system, but only one man a pastmaster of them all.

Designed and finished for their occupancy four years ago the premises are now too small for the needs of the Semi-ready Company.

The first floor of the big building contains the bonded warehouses, the employees' dining rooms, and the master-mechanics' shops. There is also a kitchen for the staff, adjoining the power rooms, where the company manufacture their own electric light and power.

The main entrance on Guy street and behind these are the worsted warehouse, the shipping department and the stock rooms.

On the floor above is the designing room of the president and his staff. Under his close supervision the cutting of all the expensive cloths and fabrics is conducted. The chief examining office is on the fourth floor, as are also the tailor shops where all the vests and trousers are made.

On the top floor all the coats and overcoats are tailored. Here is another examining department, where each coat is carefully scanned by critical eyes at 21 different stages of its making. Not a single bad stitch would pass if these eyes were as infallible as the company wish they would be.

Ten years ago one small factory in Montreal made all the Semi-ready garments with a small set of tailors. New and less experienced in their work the system overcame the well-nigh discouraging task of training the ordinary tailor to the better system. The indomitable energy and perseverance of the founders won. The way out was found when the Semi-ready company built and equipped their own tailor shops. This was done in a small way as compared with the present huge establishment. The result was a quick expansion and a strong demand from many of the progressive towns and cities in Canada.

There are 101 Semi-ready tailoring stores to-day in the best towns and cities in Canada.

The reorganization of the company about two years ago resulted in a large increase in the business, and the company has been further strengthened by the coming of the new general manager, C. P. Cramer, of New York, who is largely interested in the company

CIRCUS QUEEN DEAD

Josephine Simmeth, at one time the undisputed queen of bare back riders in this country, died in Philadelphia recently. She was 57 years of age and was the widow of William Forepaugh. Twenty years ago Josephine Simmeth was a star in the circus arena, and a beautiful and graceful woman. Her reckless daring on horse back won her renown, both in this country and in Europe, and also secured, finally, for her the love of the great showman, Forepaugh. Being of a generous disposition, she gave money away so freely, that when William Forepaugh died, the widow had nothing to speak of in the way of worldly goods. She married a circus performer and continued on the road until she was too old to work in the ring. She then returned to her home in Philadelphia, where she lived for many years on the charity of relatives. Her daughter, Fanny Forepaugh, who became famous as a trapeze performer, was away from home most of the time, and the former queen of the sawdust was compelled to struggle on alone to the end.

Times came, in later years, when the once beautiful circus rider was frequently picked up in the street by a friendly policeman, and taken to the station house to sleep for the night.

The NAPOLEON of SHOES

WHAT you have heard of the Napoleon of Shoes can be proven. Many of Hamilton's young men have been going to the Foot-rite Boot Shop in Toronto when they wanted something really fine. They need do so no longer.

And the beauty of it is that you need not pay an extra dollar more for these Shoes as you must do when you buy an American Shoe in the Oldtime Medley Shoe Store.

We sell only the Foot-rite at $4.00, $5.00 and $6.00. Exactly the same prices at which the same shoe can be bought in the United States and Great Britain.

It was a bright shoe man who coupled the 20 improvements in the Foot-rite Shoe into the strong and terse trade mark, "The Napoleon of Shoes," thus emphasizing the sturdy, strenuous character of a shoe which is conquering competition on both continents.

We want you to see these shoes—to try just one pair if you please. We will abide by your verdict.

We awarded our exclusive agency to Messrs. Trudell & Tobey, because we have known their business career, and we know that they are worthy representatives for the highest class shoe on the market to-day.

Sandwich records regarding the trial of Edward Higgins on a charge of murder half a century ago.

According to the recollections of old residents, Mrs. Mary Higgins, wife of a freight handler on the old Great Western Railway, met death in February, 1858, under circumstances that pointed to foul play. Her body was found in the home of the family, a log cabin on Sandwich street west, opposite where Riverside Park is now located, with the head crushed in, apparently with a blow from a cordwood stick. Suspicion fastened on the husband, who on his trial John O'Connor, who was counsel for the defence, succeeded in clearing him.

Recently descendants now living in New York have become heirs to an estate by the death of a relative in Ireland, but the property is tied up in such a way that before dividing it they must establish the failure of the murder charge against Higgins, and the search is being made in their behalf.

LONG MEETING OF COUNCIL.

Dundas Civic Rulers Discussing Bridge Construction.

The Town Having Trouble Over Electric Light Contract.

Company and Council Disagree as to Who Shall Pay.

Dundas, Sept. 28.—A lengthy special meeting of the town Council was held last evening, Mayor Moss presiding, and all the members present. The greater part of the time was taken up discussing the McMurray street bridge. Tenders had been asked for the work to be done according to specifications finished by Engineer Latham. Only one tender was received offering to do the work according to the plans—that of Rowan & Elliott, of St. Catharines. According to this tender, the Councilors figured the cost would amount to nearly $6,000. Another firm, Kunchy & Murray, declined to tender on the specifications, but put in an offer for the same top bridge, with 4 beams, for $4,500. In a tense discussion were about debate what the Council was prepared to spend on the structure, and after a discussion that lasted till very near midnight, a motion was passed causing upon the board of Works to ask for tenders for rebuilding the south abutment together with the sheet piling necessary to protect the bridge, the work to be done under the supervision of Engineer Latham, and to report to the Council; the creek bed to be cleaned out as the same time. This expedient was opposed by Reeve Lawson and Councilor Leaman, the former contending that the tenders should first be submitted to the engineer, as the figures for much of the work were in some cases double or more than estimated by the engineer, and it might be possible to do the work by night if possible to do the work by rain laid out for a good permanent structure at whatever cost.

The use of the town park was granted the schools for the annual games, to take place on Oct. 4th.

Applications for water services from the Merr Milling Co., George Lees and F. Roberts, were referred to the Fire and Water Committee.

The Maple Leaf Lumber Co. wrote that it would be on hand soon to lay the sidewalk it had contracted for.

The Methodist Church offered, through W. E. Lyons, to present the town with a number of seats, which the Council accepted.

Willis Shipman asked for a copy of the resolution of the Council passed at a former meeting, defining his duties as waterworks engineer, and the clerk was instructed to send him a copy of the resolution.

Councillor Mount again reported that the Cataract Power Co. still declined to furnish a number of street lights ordered by the town as the town paid for their installation. The Council decided that by the terms of the by-law the company was bound to do the work at its own expense, and a demand will be made accordingly.

Jones Bros. Co. wrote that they were desirous of bringing 20 or 30 more families to town and asked if a special assessment could not be made in the case of new houses in order to encourage their erection. They also wanted something done to the creek in order that they might have a switch from the T. H. & B. Railway, into their works. Referred to a special committee composed of the Mayor and Councilors Ker and Lawson.

F. C. G. Minty was appointed High School trustee in place of Dr. Ross, deceased, and W. H. Knowles was appointed tax collector for the ensuing year at the same salary as formerly, $150.

The Mayor reported that a number of bridges and the race at the axe factory urgently needed repairs and the Board of Works was instructed to look after the requirements.

It was also reported that a large waste existed in the water supply owing to leaks, some of which had been discovered and repaired.

Warning to Mr. Gurney.
(Toronto Star.)

Old Haman built a gallows once full fifty cubits high, On which he planned to hang a chap whose name was Mordecai! But something busted up the scheme; the King played fast and loose, And when the hanging up was done 'twas Haman in the noose.

These facts we merely mention here for Mr. Gurney's aid, He wants a tariff just as high as Haman's gallows made, If history repeats itself, say, wouldn't it be sad Should Mr. Gurney get what put poor Haman to the bad?

IS THE FORTH BRIDGE SAFE?

Comparison With Quebec Bridge—Interview With Superintendent Turnbull.

(Edinburgh News.) Is the Forth Bridge safe? The question is one which has been frequently asked since last week's lamentable disaster in Quebec, which resulted in the loss of so many lives, and the total destruction of what was hoped would be an engineering triumph.

It is not unnatural, therefore, owing to the fate of its rival, that public attention should be directed to the stability of the Forth Bridge, which has been viewed by thousands of people from the far corners of the earth. "Is it safe?" asked our Edinburgh representative of Mr. Turnbull, the superintendent of the Bridge.

"Safe?" he ejaculated, in a tone of surprise, and he pointed to the great steel girders and mammoth tubes a faint smile crept over his face. "That Bridge," said he, in a voice that would have convinced even the most nervous, "is incomparably the strongest, therefore the safest, in the world, and with a continuation of that care which is at present bestowed upon it, it will live as long as the Pyramids of Egypt. The running load—and I am taking the average aggregate weight of a train at 200 tons, although there are many of them very considerably less—has as much effect upon this structure as a mouse would have upon an oak table by crawling across it."

"As far as I can see, there is no comparison between the Quebec and the Forth Bridge, for, whereas it was proposed to embody in the structure which has collapsed only something like 38,000 tons of steel, between 53,000 and 54,000 tons were required in the completion of the Forth Bridge. You will see, therefore, that there is—

A Wide Margin of Difference although it was proposed that the widest span of the Quebec bridge should be 1,800 feet compared with the 1,710 feet span of the Forth. The height from the surface of the water to the top of the bridge is just about the same; in fact, the crown or dome of the Quebec bridge was all that added to its immensity compared with the Forth bridge.

"Doubtless there will be a searching investigation into the cause of the disaster, but my own opinion is that the margin of strength was not sufficient, and as soon as the train had gone on to the bridge it had caused the anchorage or struts to snap, with the result that it toppled right down. "What were the weak points of the Forth Bridge?" queried our representative.

"It has no weak points," replied Mr. Turnbull, promptly. "Its strength is such that it will long outlive the present generation; in fact, if it were well after, which I have no reason to doubt, that it will be as positively unlimited. It has no allotted span. The oftener I examine it the greater grows my wonderment at its extraordinary strength, and the more I marvel at the ingenuity of the mind that conceived the plan for its construction. In very truth it is a national achievement of engineering."

"What's that?" I inquired. "Mr. Turnbull laughed. "But another proof," he explained, "of the extraordinary scientific skill with which the bridge has been constructed. That click is indicative of a sudden change of atmosphere, and in this connection I might just remark that provision is made for the expansion of the bridge three times greater than will ever be required in our climate. No jar or strain can possibly affect it. Look at the rails. You will observe that provision is also made for their movement backwards and forwards according as the bridge contracts or expands by the influence of the cold and the heat. They might be designed to split rails, and the wave motion of the bridge is also reflected by their movement, which, although infinitesimal, is still apparent. And then as to vibration. Well, here's another train coming, and you can judge for yourself. I think you will admit that the bridge is fitted with much vibration as the result of a cart of coals passing your house."

"On came the iron horse and its heavy load. It was one of the 'fliers' which traverse the journey from Edinburgh to Aberdeen in three hours. Its excited screeching, even afar off, was all too indicative of the weight of its burden, as well as the speed at which it was travelling. A quarter of a mile distant, and still there was not a tremor. On, on it rumbled, and still no effect of its coming could be felt. It passed with a swish, and the current of air caused by its excursion invited one into the vortex, but the movement sensation of its passing was practically nil."

"The average individual," continued Mr. Turnbull, "is not aware of the fact that the interior of the struts or mammoth tubes of the bridge are fitted with ladders, which enable the men to examine them thoroughly and facilitate the detection of any flaw. or indication of corrosion, which, of course, is the greatest enemy we have to fight against. I am very pleased to say, however, that, as far as the interior of the bridge, so to speak, is concerned, the work can be overtaken in a very few weeks in the winter time, for there is practically no corrosion whatever. You see, therefore, that every nook and cranny of the gigantic structure is submitted to the closest scrutiny in the course of painting operations, which go on perpetually. We have 28 men constantly engaged, and their united efforts are directed to accomplish the painting of the bridge in three years, at an annual cost of its upkeep being about £25,000. "Every plate, rail and rivet is examined at least once a year, and the keen eyes of scrutiny are directed very especially into the little crevices at all junctions where the workmen might not exercise the same care as they would in places where the surface is greater, and therefore much more easily covered."

"Altogether there is a regular staff of sixty men engaged on the bridge, but at present that number is augmented considerably to account for the relaying of the metals, an undertaking which will take three years to accomplish, at a cost of something like £33,000. No fewer than 1,200 logs of American oak, each 23 feet long, will be required before the work is finished. These logs act as a sort of bed to the rails, of which something like 600 lengths will be required, each of which weigh 120 pounds to the yard."

"You will require a ton or two of paint annually?" "About seventy tons, and it is because of the care which is exercised in the painting of the bridge that we are able to discover the slightest flaw. It is not possible for every a slack rivet to escape our eye. At all junctions where expansions take place, expert workmen are employed four times a year to make a searching examination; in fact, no toil, however unnecessary it may be, is considered superfluous in the preservation of the structure."

"There are six wind gauges," continued Mr. Turnbull, "distributed all over the bridge from the highest to the lowest level, which enable us to obtain a fair estimate of The Velocity of the Wind.

"But," queried our representative, "does that information serve any practical purpose?"

"Well, it gives us an idea of the strain that is brought to bear upon the bridge. About two years ago, it will be remembered, the Kent, one of the biggest cruisers in the British navy, was blown ashore at North Queensferry. On that particular occasion the wind was blowing at about eighty-five miles an hour, and it had absolutely no effect upon the bridge, which, taking into consideration the fact that it has a surface of something like 300 acres, will give you some idea of its stability. I had a conversation with an eminent engineer recently, and he imparted the information to me that no scientific instrument had as yet been invented which could detect the oscillation of the Forth Bridge. I have heard people say that lightning would affect the bridge to such an extent some day that its collapse would be inevitable. What same engineer to whom I have referred was of the opinion that the bridge is the finest lightning conductor in the world, inasmuch as it is a continuous chain of steel, and if at any time lightning did strike it, it would simply exhaust itself and do absolutely no damage."

Mr. Turnbull held out the invitation to a higher altitude, and entering a narrow, dunce-like aperture in the wall, we commenced our ascent. When the summit of the arch was reached the wind was blowing in hurricane force, and one could from personal experience form a slight estimate of the exposure to which the men employed on the bridge are subjected, especially if a gale, accompanied by drenching showers of rain, should be blowing up the Firth.

The Need of a Steady Head

and an iron nerve on the part of all engaged in the preservation of the bridge, which is still without its compeer in the world. The following details of the size of the different parts of the bridge should be interesting: Total length, upwards of 1 1/4 miles. Length of south approach viaduct, about 1,200 feet. Depth at ends, 41 feet. Diameter of largest tubes, 12 feet. Struts, largest diameter, 8 feet. Central girder, span 350 feet. Total amount of steel in bridge, over 53,000 tons. Length of south approach viaduct, about 1,200 feet. Wind pressure allowed for, 56 lbs. per square foot. Greatest depth of water in channels to be spanned, 218 feet. Total height of cantilever pier (massive) above high water, 200 feet. Dead weight on a single circular pier, 16,000 tons. Average time taken in building vehicles to full height, about seven months. Thickest steel plates in permanent structure, 1 1/2 inches. Upwards of forty miles of steel plates used in the construction of the tubes alone.

Foundations were commenced January, 1883. Greatest depth to which same were carried, 88 feet below high water. The largest number of men employed in its construction at any one time was between 4,000 and 5,000. The bridge was opened on the 4th of March, 1890, by King Edward, then Prince of Wales. Mr. Turnbull, who is directly responsible for the care of the gigantic structure, is a native of Edinburgh. He had charge of the Forth Bridge for seventeen years after it was opened, and about three years ago was promoted to the charge of the mighty "Forth."

NOTES OF A TRIP AROUND THE WORLD.

Visit to San Francisco Theological Seminary—Corea and Its People.

(By ROBERT J. BUCHANAN)

San Francisco, Sept. 20.—Out here, on the Pacific coast, near San Francisco, only about sixteen miles distant, across the bay, upon its north shore, lies the beautiful Marin county. In one of its most secluded and peaceful valleys, in the rear of the graceful Mount Tamalpais, and not far from its base, are situated the ivy-clad, massive, modern stone buildings of the San Francisco Theological Seminary. The situation is superb in the grandeur of its environment, and being separated by a tunneled hill from the hurly-burly of the outer world, its seclusion is most restful. The Seminary is located at the little village of San Anselmo, which is not far from the better known, fashionable suburb of San Francisco—San Rafael.

Accepting the invitation of the Rev. Edward A. Wicher, Professor of New Testament interpretation, formerly of Toronto, Ontario, the writer found great pleasure to visit San Anselmo today.

Under the guidance of Professor Wicher, he visited the Seminary, and was informed of the aims of this institution, which, while controlled by the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, welcomes students from all denominations.

It is an obvious fact that men are urgently required for Christian work upon the Pacific coast. The supply must, for years, come from the Christian homes of the East. Men are needed who will endure hardships and rejoice in strenuous campaigns. To such heroic spirits are promised the grime of toil, the victor's exultation, and the crown of rejoicing. The West offers such men every inducement to work, but for the weakling it has no use. If Eastern young men accept these conditions of service, they will, in this land of promise and of this Seminary, receive full confidence and affection.

While being directed steadfastly to the north star of our heavenly calling—Jesus of Nazareth, the day star from on high—they may in this community learn sociology by actual contact with humanity. To the faithful and true workers is assured a life-work wherein they may spend and be spent in a sacrificial service in behalf of society's outcasts. This Theological Seminary seeks for men who can fight evil and never know what it is to yield, and coming in contact with actual students learn to sympathize with their fellow mortals, and receive a revivifying foretaste of the vitalizing power of personal Redeemer. They learn, from actual experience, the fulfillment of mere ethical culture in the great crises of life that try the souls of men—the consecrated life in city work, which the persecuted Saviour brought calm to troubled souls.

Shams no longer pass current in the world, and it does not pay to pretend that we possess what we cannot produce. Speak then the truth with full assurance, as man to man, and your message will be heard, if delivered in love and with humility. This alone will the great multitude be reached, whether intellectual or ignorant.

In San Francisco the greater proportion of the wealth of the community is held by irreligious men; and while God is manifestly in evidence in this city, there must necessarily be constant opposition to all sorts of insidious and open greed, lust, and all forms of intemperance and immorality. In the East, Christians wage a strenuous warfare against the powers of darkness, but their brethren in the West, with fewer numbers, and inferior resources, must make a more resolute struggle against the same adversary, more strongly entrenched.

In the entire Western country from Colorado, where there is a Presbyterian College, at Longmont, out to the Pacific coast, there is no other Presbyterian Theological Seminary. The graduates of the San Francisco Theological Seminary minister to all sorts and conditions of men, some are serving in foreign lands, in every mission field where the Church is active. There are many Chinese and Japanese graduates, who are loyally declaring the unsearchable riches of the Kingdom of Christ to their countrymen, so far from home, in many important communities upon the coast. Press forward! Work! Fear not!

Modern Corea. In a general and necessarily brief article, the writer must confine himself to the most salient features, and omit many interesting particulars which might tend to obscure the clear outline of his picture. Corea lies in the eastern part of Asia, quite near Japan, in fact, it is just across the Sea of Japan, and sticks out from the coast line of China as a peninsula, which reminds us of Florida upon the Atlantic seaboard; upon the other side of this tongue of land we find the Yellow Sea.

Corea has an area of about eight-two thousand miles, with an estimated population of a little over eight million inhabitants. The present world-wide publicity has, with some degree of reason, been called "the halcyon nation." A nation that deliberately shuts itself up for centuries in magnificent, or in sordid isolation from outside influences, must lose the power to accommodate its political policy to meet the ever changing and rapidly developing trend of modern international relations.

Corea finds itself with a government too incompetent to cope with existing conditions or to withstand the virility of the Japanese, and is slowly but apparently surely, passing over into the hands of the Japanese. The Government has become so corrupt and inefficient that to the world at large, it seemed almost imperative that some stronger power should step in and indicate its policy if not supplant it entirely. Japan has taken the first step towards complete control of its present occupancy of Corea.

To outsiders it seems the logical sequence of history and an advance upon that invertebrate national government, which had existed so long; but there are other phases of the question unknown or ignored by the superficial observer from across the seas, which are very important factors in the solution of the problem.

The people, as a rule, are manifestly superior to their rulers and are striving to rise above their past sordid history, and there are bright hopes of future improvement.

The government is admittedly the weakest and most decadent part of the national life, and upon this basis alone foreigners can judge a nation. Japan has upset this flimsy government, but it is surmised that Japan is playing a deeply laid game of national politics for the benefit of the "galleries" of the world, in which she is trying to demonstrate the utter incompetence of the Coreans to evolve a government of themselves.

Those who know the people say that there are competent men among the Coreans who are quite capable of coping with the local exigencies, but whose services have not been sought by Japan. There must be a reason, and it is not hard to surmise. Corea is sparsely settled, while Japan is over populated, and of necessity must find new territory for its natural expansion. Corea is so very convenient, just over the small Sea of Japan.

Corean Peculiarities. The natives as a rule have almost no conception of personal cleanliness; even the babies are never washed, and children are introduced to water only when in summer they play about in the rain and puddles of the street. Towels are very seldom found in the homes of the natives, whose household arrangements are the most primitive. The clothing of the people is never washed, and often the filth of it is most apparent, in the stench that it exhales.

Handkerchiefs are a luxury, of necessity very limited use, and their lack is most disgustingly in evidence everywhere. Women in Oriental countries are taught to consider it to be their natural duty to marry and raise families, and they are wedded by their parents while very young. Non-Christians usually marry between the ages of 14 and 14. There is no marriage ceremony, as with us, but a great feast must be given in order that the marriage may be officially recognized; to this celebration the friends of the young people are invited.

In Corea the architecture is very simple. It is solid, but not so enduring as that of the Chinese, but it is not so flimsy as the architecture found in Japan. Speaking generally, the architecture is composed of massive pillars, which support a solid framework of timbers, and these are surmounted by a heavy roofing of tile.

The climate of any country largely determines its production. Corea is no exception to this rule, and having hot summers, followed by winters of extreme cold, only such plants may be grown as will mature and bear their product in one season. Among the many food products may be mentioned most of our garden truck. They produce rice, wheat, millet and a small quantity of wheat. Cotton and tobacco are also raised profitably.

What is more discouraging and disheartening than trying to cure nervous exhaustion and prostration by means of ordinary treatments? Because you do not look sick and are not suffering great pain, and because they cannot realize your feelings of weakness, helplessness and discouragement, your friends fail to show much sympathy for you, and most doctors are simply helpless in the face of exhausted nerves.

Of course you need not expect Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to work a miracle and cure you in a day or a week, but you can be absolutely sure that you will be benefited to at least some extent, by every dose of this great restorative that is taken into the system.

The dreadful weakness and helplessness which makes life miserable to you and leads to all sorts of dark forebodings, will gradually and certainly give way to strength and vigor under this treatment, headaches will disappear, your appetite will improve, you will sleep and rest better and you will find that day by day your nervous system is being built up to health and strength.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS.

Is The Fastest Growing Company In Canada Over $2,700,000.00 MORE insurance was written by this company last year, than in any previous year.

The expenses were $10,224 LESS than in 1905, while the volume of business on its books was much larger.

Is it any wonder then that the whole Canadian people have confidence in the wise, conservative business management? And they show their confidence by taking out enough insurance in The Mutual Life to make it the fastest growing company in the Dominion.

ORGANIZING BAND.

Field Ambulance Corps Will Begin Work Next Week.

No. 12 Field Ambulance, A. M. C., will begin its regular fall drills next Tuesday evening, and will parade every Tuesday thereafter, until further orders. The corps expects the most successful season it has ever had. The organization of a life and drum band will be begun at once. All interested in this feature of the company are requested to be present at the drill hall on Tuesday evening.

Lieut. Col. Rennie would like to see every member of the corps, and any who wish to join, also present.

WHEN FURNISHING THE HOME.

Get the Best—At the Right House.

Thomas C. Watkins' big advertisement of home furnishings in this paper tells a saving story of interest to everyone with a need in these lines.

The Right House carpets, rugs, curtains and draperies are widely known not only for their superior quality and exclusiveness, but because of the extremely good values as well.

Their fall importations are now complete, and everyone with curtains, draperies or floor coverings to buy should visit The Right House next week and share the splendid savings. For details read their big advertisement carefully; it forms an interesting story of high-class goods.

WARDEN IS WISE.

A Strong Advocate of the H. & G. Railway.

Warden Vansickle, of the County Council, in conversation with a Times representative this morning, expressed himself strongly in favor of the building of the Hamilton, Waterloo & Guelph Railway. "I firmly believe that the building of this road will eventually open to Hamilton trade another Garden of Canada, in the northern part of Ontario. The country is undoubtedly rich in products, and with a good electric line tapping that district, Hamilton is bound to increase. Wentworth county will also share in the increase of business."

"There should be no obstacles placed in the way of the builders," said the Warden. "In fact, they should be given every encouragement."

Adam—It is true you offered me the apple, my dear, but don't feel so badly about it. It might have been much worse. Eve—Oh, Adam! how could it have been worse? Adam—You might have been dumped, and you know I am far from indignant.

The King of Greece, an economical ruler, marks every item of expenditure, however small, in his notebook, and if he can save a half-penny he is delighted to do so. In his speculations he has been particularly lucky, even more lucky than the millionaire monarch, Leopold of Belgium. No one knows exactly how much the King of Greece does possess, but it is certain that did fate decree that he should suddenly become an exile he could take possession of the handsomest palace in Paris.

Kindergarten Music

Gives the child a fundamental systematic education in music in a way that is natural and pleasurable without forcing the natural love of music from his heart and mind. The child is a real child in music—no longer artificial but a spontaneous creature—as a result of freedom in and love of it.

The method is applicable for pupils of any age over four years. It is a lamentable fact that parents otherwise most ambitious for their children have never investigated the possibilities of this 19th century method for the education of the child. Further information can be procured at:
