Making Life Miserable.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

A woman apologized to me the other day for her husband's irritable manner to her. "He doesn't mean anything by it," she said. "He's always that way when he's anxious about things at the office."

"That way" meant that she found fault with all her fault; snapped out "What?" when she asked him a question; shut his lips tight with that air of repressed irritability which can surcharge a whole atmosphere with nervousness when she was calling to the telephone during a meal; and in general made the house a miserable place to be in.

I thought her very sweet to be so patient with him and to understand that it was the worries expressing themselves that way.

And I thought him less a man than I had believed to pass on his worries so freely.

When one's mind is an undercurrent of worries it is the most natural thing in the world to let off steam by an irritable manner.

But it is also the most natural thing in the world to run when one is afraid.

It is the coward who yields to both instincts; the brave man who controls them both.

Life's Not Worthwhile Because You Frowned.

If you pass on your worries in the form of an irritable, depressed manner, and the one to whom you pass them on passes them on to someone else in the same form, and so forth and so on, think how many people can be made unhappy by one person's worries.

There is no greater self conqueror than he who learns to consume his own smoke.

It is one of the hardest lessons in the world, an ideal to be worked patiently and painfully towards. You've got to teach the corners of your mouth to go up when they want to go down, and your voice to stant up when it wants to slant down. You've got to suppress that habit of letting off steam by irritability.

Sharing Sorrows Different From Passing On Worries.

I don't mean that a husband shouldn't confide some of his anxieties to his wife (and vice versa). Of course he should. What else is a true marriage but "sharing each other's sorrows, sharing each other's joys?" But confiding them to her, getting her advice and sympathy, and drawing closer in their determination to have courage and patience to quite another thing from infecting a whole household with the contagion of nervous irritability.

It is a hard lesson, what is the reward?

The happiness of those about you and the knowledge that you have conquered yourself.

"And what is more you'll be a man, my son."

For every 25c. purchase made at Stafford's Drug Store you receive a numbered ticket. See advertisement.—may 17

Railway Building Under Fire.

By F. A. MCKENZIE.

With the British Army in the Field. For real hustle come to France.

I have just returned from a day with a battalion of railway builders in khaki. They build a mile a day of broad-gauge railway. They have to keep tin helmets and gas bags handy, for they are running lines close up to the front. Much of this work can only be done at night; were they to continue in daylight Fritz would locate them and shell them out of existence.

Within a few hours after a fresh British advance the railway workers make their appearance. They find bridges blown away, tracks obliterated, and booty traps everywhere. Heavily armoured locomotives haul up material. The track is cleared, the craters made by German explosions filled, fresh bridges thrown across the gaps, and in an incredibly short time there is a new route ready to hand over to the Railway Operating Department.

The construction of extensive systems of railways behind the lines is comparatively a new thing. At first the Army relied mainly on motor-lorries. One train can haul as much as 200 motor-lorries. It employs four men in place of 400, saves heaps of money and, incidentally, avoids the continual tearing up of roads which a big motor-lorry service means.

The Royal Engineers built a number of railways, and did the work excellently. But more men were wanted, and for these the Army turned to the West. The pioneer railway builders of Canada have been brought over.

At their head is a brigadier-general, a famous British Columbian contractor. His motto is, "See everything, hear everything, and keep your mouth shut." But his hand is everywhere, and he certainly knows his job.

The first battalion came over from the C. P. R., organized by Lord

Shaughnessy. The battalion I was with described itself as a "Canadian Northern bunch." Among the railway corps are men who have planned, and pushed railways from Zambesia to Yucatan. It has a motto it ought to be, "We wear no frills and we do no fancy work. Get a move on."

Record Making.

A canvas but acted as headquarters. Typewriter, card index, and letter file gave it a familiar air. The whole outfit could be packed into a box near by. There could be no question about these railwaymen doing their work under fire. While we were at lunch, 94's came fairly steadily over our camp. Later on, when we reached rail-head, things were lively. But the railwaymen are lucky. This battalion, working since the beginning of the year, has only lost one man killed and six wounded from shell fire.

"Our best sustained record," said the colonel, "is 4 1/2 miles in five days. We have just finished one bit of work. We had first to build a bridge 140ft. long. That was started on Friday and finished on Tuesday. Then we had to clear the track beyond, which was littered with German ties, torn rails, and other material. We started at six on Tuesday and had finished laying the line, 12,000ft., by Wednesday midnight."

"We had 600 men clearing the road and 150 working on the steel actually laying the rails."

"Twenty-two miles of light railway were put in the new territory at the Ancre River fight. It was this light railway that enabled ample supplies of ammunition to come up. When the Boche moved back the light railway was pulled up and standard gauge put in. We finished it the day before yesterday. The light rails will be used again to throw a line ahead, and so on."

And then he took me to see the new line and his railway soldiers. We drove under a bridge. It consisted of strong timber flung across. "No waiting for cement parapets here," said the colonel. "We build the line as they build a pioneer line in the West."

The driver of the armoured engine was a Londoner from the G. E. R. But the construction battalion were practically all Canadians. They actually came to England not as a building but as a fighting battalion. But consisting of the Battalion did of railwaymen, with four out of every five men and 21 officers engineers, mechanics, or railway workers, the authorities turned them to more special use.

Who Profits by War?

People's Journal (Dundee): A discussion in the House of Commons this week on the taxation of shipowners will provoke laughter or rage among a long-suffering public according to the degree in which its sense of humor has withstood the assaults of war matters began by two shipowners lifting up their voices and wailing. According to Mr. Leif-Jones, the proposed requisitioning of all shipping at "Blue Book rates" is intolerable to the industry. It is oppressed, borne down, and broken at the prospect before it. So dismal is the outlook in Mr. Holt's vision of it that the best thing that could happen to a shipowner would be to have his ships torpedoed by the enemy. Moved by these lamentations, a member suggested a flag day for shipowners. Then came the Chancellor of the Exchequer with his view Mr. Bonar Law, has a few hundred pounds in shipping shares, and his return, he tells us, has been 47 per cent during the past year. The average returns on shipping capital during the past three years has been of Excess Profits Duty; and "Blue Book rates" will allow of an average of 15 per cent. Apparently we have here a case for the psychologist, who will note how, after an era of 33.3 per cent, 15 per cent becomes a cramped and miserable penury. Mr. Jones began, it will be noted, by censuring the government for not putting a larger proportion of the cost of the war on taxation. "But not on us, the oysters cried."

Had Him Both Ways.

Many charming stories, showing how the quick-witted Belgians succeeded in taking "a rise" out of their German oppressors; are told in a recently-published volume by Jean Massart.

One of the best of these concerns a peasant with a donkey-cart, who was ordered by a German guard at the entrance to a town to give the name of his donkey, so that it might be entered on the official pass in.

"My donkey's name!" exclaimed the peasant, scratching his head. "He hasn't got one."

"Then call him Albert."

"That would be a reflection on my King."

"Call him William then."

"That would be a reflection on my donkey."

Hon. H. J. B. Woods.
Moved by Rev. Dr. Bond and seconded by Rev. C. A. Whitmarsh, M.A., B.D.:
"This Conference desires to place on record its sense of the loss to the Connexion through the death of the Hon. H. J. B. Woods, for so many years a prominent and valued participant in its councils. The death of Mr. Woods has left a vacancy hard to fill, not only in his more private work as Sunday School Superintendent, Class Leader and Trustee of Cochrane Street Church, but in his more public relations and influence as a Methodist and Government official and a citizen."
Rev. Henry Godfrey.
A worthy tribute of fraternal affection was adopted, wishing God's speed to the Rev. H. and Mrs. Godfrey, on the eve of their departure from our Colony; endorsed by a rising vote.
The Educational Report was presented by the Rev. W. T. D. Dunn, showing income and expenditure, and the recommendation concerning probationers to be sent to our various Connexional Institutions.
The Orphanage Committee reported and showed the Institution to be in a healthy condition. One outstanding feature was the recognition of the long and faithful services of Mr. Levi Diamond, who has resigned from the Board of Managers, and the placing on record its hearty appreciation of his long interest in that Institution.
The Daily Papers.
RESOLVED, that the best thanks of the Conference be presented to the Editors of the daily papers for their courtesy in publishing the reports of the Conference and in advertising the daily agenda of the Conference while in session.
The Late Rev. Samuel Snowden.
To the question what minister has died during the year, the name of Samuel Snowden was given. The record of the District meeting was read, which spoke of his life on various circuits. "His life was gentle; and the elements so mixed in him that nature might stand up and say to all the world "This was a man!" He was an evangelist, a soul-winner, and made full work of his ministry. His happiest hours were in the midst of a revival. The ministerial and lay brethren spoke of his true worth. "The memory of the just is blessed."

Thanks to Our Hosts.
The thanks of the Conference are to be presented to the people of St. John's for their kindness to the visiting clergy and laity in their kind entertainment. To the Pastor, the organist and the choir of Cochrane St. Centennial Church; also to the Women's Association for the splendid tea provided at the Missionary Symposium. To be read in the City churches on Sunday.
Thanks to ex-President Moore and to the officers of the Conference for their efficient and faithful services during their year of office.
Thanks to the Anglo-American Tel. Co. for the use of the telephone installed in the church, and to the Royal Stores for the use of their typist.
The Agenda Committee for 1918 was formed, viz: Revs. Dr. Bond, Thos. B. Darby, and N. M. Guy; Messrs. H. N. Burt and John C. Puddister.
The minutes of the Ministerial session were read for the information of the Conference, giving the relation of minister and probationer and others, whether appointed to circuit or to a supernumerary relation, or if given leave of absence or engaged with His Majesty's forces.
That the Conference of 1918 be held at Gower Street on the 4th Wednesday in June. The reading and signing of the minutes brought the Conference of 1917 to a close.

HOW HE KNEW.
In the same interesting volume, which, by the way, deals with the secretly-printed patriotic newspapers circulated in the occupied portions of Belgium, occurs another good story of an inkeeper whose custom it was to weigh the Boches billeted on him.
Before each soldier mounted the scales the inkeeper guessed his weight to a pound.
"How is it," he was asked, "that you can make these extraordinarily accurate guesses?"
"From long experience," said the Belgian. "I'm a pig-dealer."

Fewer Eggs are required with ROYAL BAKING POWDER

In many recipes the number of eggs may be reduced with excellent results by using an additional quantity of Royal Baking Powder, about a teaspoon, for each egg omitted. The following recipe is a practical example:

Chocolate Sponge Roll

1/4 cups flour	2 tablespoons melted shortening
1/2 teaspoon salt	1 cup hot water
1 cup sugar	1 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg	2 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
2 squares melted chocolate

The old method called for 4 eggs and no baking powder

DIRECTIONS.—Sift flour, baking powder and salt together three times. Beat whole eggs. Add slowly sugar, then boiling water slowly; add next vanilla, melted chocolate and melted shortening, without beating. Sift in dry ingredients, and fold in as lightly as possible. Pour into large baking pan lined with oiled paper, and bake in slow oven twenty minutes. When done, turn out on a damp, hot cloth, spread with white icing and roll.

Booklet of recipes which economize in eggs and other expensive ingredients mailed free.

Pansy League.

Government House, July 2nd.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Will you please let me write a little letter to send my big thank you's for the lovely birthday so very much enjoyed. I had such lovely Pansies, tip top, and my lady your Pansies were indeed tip top. When I saw all those pansies coming in I wondered when they would get bunched but some willing hands gave me a nice help and they were soon in dear little bunches. Many thanks to the friends who so generously brought them. I thank the good friends who sent in flowers. They were Boles and Prince, Denny he was too busy keeping guard over his Mistress's garden to come to the British Hall. Ah, the naughty boys; Denny you just keep them the right side of the gate or else they might lose parts of their pants. Many thanks for those lovely flowers and cards, so glad your mistresses are better, many thanks dear little Rex for those lovely flowers, wild flowers are lovely and they do take a time to gather, but my little mistresses brought some to have on our nursery table and our great friend Robert has some on his master's table because he too loves wild flowers.

I am so glad you are having such fun in the country playing hide and seek with muskrats, eh, dear friend, they enjoy it, they can hide so well under water and pop up in so many places, and take many a sly peep at you, no wonder you could not find the time to come and do some tricks. Yes, dear, I am sure you will come the next time. But there perhaps you would not have enjoyed Pollywogg singing. Well he did sing and talk and even laughed and then many others laughed, and we all laughed still more when he was singing a duet with Mrs. Rossley. My little kittens enjoyed it all so much. How did you all like the other Pansy? She took such great care of my kitten ad me too. She can mow, but her coat is, shall I tell you? rather tight. It was good of Miss Ethel Johnson to wear a tight coat to help me sell Pansies and she has worked so hard for our league too for some months and still working. Her Daddy even brought some nice lunch, a nice lettuce for the goats, Bluebell and Mary. They much enjoyed it too. Many thanks to you both. Ah, by the way, the goats eat some bunches of forget-me-nots and some pink and blue paper. They have queer taste I think. I like Mr. O'Regan's beef and always enjoy it too.

I had some lovely letters and some pretty cards for my birthday. Dear Tabby, Trickle and Bob your flowers were lovely. Many thanks for the moss roses on the nice card you sent me. I love them. Now I must not forget my friends of the British Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Rossley and their merry troupe; we do thank you all and we hope you will have a real delightful and pleasant tour, and I am so glad they are all going to wear the Pansy brooch. The Pansy League hopes you will all have many happy and kind thoughts. Now I am just waiting for some ticket money then I hope to have a nice box for my friend the real Scotch one (Humfrey). I found that nice candy waiting for me at the British Hall. Many thanks for it dear. May I still remind some friends that I am still waiting for this year's subscriptions, only 5 cents you know, and it will keep the home fires burning in our new Orphanage. Please hurry up and send it along. Mow, mow, don't forget will you?

Beau, your mistresses and masters would be so pleased is they could read the many expressions of thanks from many of my friends about the lovely gift of a new Orphanage. And yes, dear Beau, they want it to be the nicest Orphanage in Newfoundland. I hope our outport friends will not forget to give us some little big helps this year. There are many ways to help even if one cannot send dollars to the Orphanage, potatoes and all kinds of vegetables, eggs, butter and fish help. So please just do a bit to help us along this year. Many thanks dear Beau for those lovely candies. No wear Chin Chin (that's the happy chapple his tall still wags) to you and your kind mistress many thanks. Did you both like your picture. I wish some more members could have seen you, too, so, ex-very round the stage. Just fancy if you all said Bow Bow all at once and that old Pollywogg would have even said more.

Well, here is good news. Our friends at Grand Falls are not to be shot but are all going to bark a real three cheers and live many happy years to help support the Pansy League. Dear Nigger you must be a real dear. Many people offered a home to you but stick to your master whose appeal saved all my friends at Grand Falls. A friend in need is a friend indeed. So let's all be friends. Billy, I am so pleased you are going to stay with my friends our little Miss Little, I am sure they must feel very safe with a real British Bulldog to take care of them. I hope the Boston bull terrier is quite well and happy now.

With many happy purrs and many thanks.

I am your very grateful friend,
PANSY.

P.S.—I nearly forgot to mention I have some of those lovely Pansy (blue enamel) brooches left which I should be pleased to send to anyone. I have to thank my big master and mistress for the gift of 200 of those lovely brooches now which would like one or more. Nice birthday present for some Daddys little girls. Some nice big boys were them on Saturday in their coats. And some had real pansies in their button holes. And some wanted a bunch but we were sold out. Many thanks to our dear little friends, who tell me they had a most happy day selling pansies.

GERMANS THROWN BACK.
French Front in France, July 4 (by Associated Press)—After their strongest effort since Verdun, the Germans found themselves thrown back everywhere to-day along the 11-mile front on Chemin des Dames, leaving the ground thickly strewn with dead and having failed to take even one French soldier a prisoner. The French lines remained intact, and a French Commanding General who watched operations throughout from the front trenches was able to declare to-night that not a single yard of territory had been lost. The Germans came forward everywhere in closest formation and in successive waves preceded by famous "shock troops" were mown down by French fire. At the first onslaught in the vicinity of Cerny and on California Plateau, the French were obliged to give way, but their yielding was only momentary, and a counter attack remedied the slight dent at once, and in addition gave them possession of the German trenches in the vicinity of Cerny, which they held. The German infantry appeared to have all the dash taken out of them by the French defence, and made no attempt to regain the ground, lost by the French reaction. Their artillery throughout the day, however, maintained a sweeping fire, but its effects were minimized by the enemy's lack of observation posts.

BRITISH CAPTURES SINCE THE WAR.

LONDON, July 5.
Since the beginning of the war the British captured 117,776 prisoners, exclusive of natives taken prisoners in African campaigns, many of whom have been released, said Major General Maurice, director of military operations, at the war office to-day. The British have lost to the enemy 51,088 men, including Indian and native troops. Those figures take in all theatres of war. The British have captured 720 guns, and lost 133 during the war. Of the guns lost 37 were recaptured, and 98 are remaining in enemy hands. Eighty-four were lost by the British on the west front early in the war. The British have not lost a single gun on the west front since April 1915, said the General.

ITALIAN SHIPPING LOSSES.

PARIS, July 5.
The Italian Government announces that only one Italian merchant ship eight small sailing ships and four fishing barques were sunk by submarines during the week ending July 1. According to a Havas despatch from Rome, during that period 340 merchant ships cleared from Italian ports and 610 arrived.

WOMEN SOLDIERS.

PETROGRAD, July 5.
The colors of the first detachment of the Petrograd women's regiment were blessed in the Square of St. Isaac's Cathedral to-day. More than 200 women with their hair closely cropped and in full uniform were present, and armed with rifles; Cosacks and sailors furnished a guard of honor. Subsequently, the women paraded through Nevsky, Prospect and other streets, carrying banners with the inscriptions, "Death is better than shame" and "Women do not live your hands to traitors."

SPAIN SITUATION.

WASHINGTON, July 5.
Spanish Ambassador Juan Riano to-day received despatches from Spain refuting the recent reports of internal disturbances published in France, on the basis of which he makes this statement: The situation in Spain is completely normal. Absolute tranquility prevails everywhere, and there is no reason for supposing that there are political or social disturbances. There is, however, manifest interest in creating an atmosphere of doubt and of alarm by means of false rumors circulating daily, which fortunately very soon find contradiction in facts.

THE WEST ORGANISING.

OTTAWA, July 5.
An official announcement for the calling of a Liberal convention for the four provinces west of the great lakes to convene in Winnipeg August 7th and 8th, was made to-night.

POSTS RE-CAPTURED.
