CHAPTER XLV.
"Thank you, old fellow," Sir Charles' voice was husky with emotion, and he looked questioningly at his friend.
"You need explain nothing," was the response. He did not relish the idea of Ada Craythorne being discussed. "She has told me a little."
Sir Charles pressed his hand gratefully, saying:
"I did not know that you were such friends."
"Yes, we were thrown a good deal together when I was here some days since, and I know her people, you see, Charlie. I am glad that your affections were otherwise engaged. I never saw any woman that I admire so much as Miss Craythorne, and if she can find me a little corner in her heart for me, I shall try to win her. There is only one drawback," he added, a little vaguely. "I am so confoundedly poor—such a wail of misery. Still, I have confidence in myself this will be an incentive to attempt and accomplish great things."
"I am sure I wish you luck, old man!"
Sir Charles was assisted downstairs to his snugger—a cosy little room that few enjoyed the privilege of entering. It was generally in a state of disorder, and there was the smell of tobacco smoke in the curtains. The furniture was quaint and more comfortable than elegant; the walls were decorated with prints, old and new, and all of a peculiar or humorous nature, while facing-foils, box-gloves, and other articles of a like nature, were piled in one corner.
"You seem ridiculously light-hearted," observed Gardner, when they were safe from intrusion. "I expected to find a half-dead man."
"I shall be perfectly well in a week," declared Sir Charles. "It is my greatest wish to be able to get out of doors again. You don't know how happy I am, and yet, three days ago, I did not care whether I lived or died. I have much to tell you, Bert. Much that will astonish you, and I know that I shall have your hearty congratulations."
For nearly an hour Sir Charles talked, and Gardner listened, only interrupting by an occasional ejaculation of amazement.
"I came here to surprise you," he said, at last, "and you have completely turned the tables upon me. I knew a portion of what you have told me. I heard it from Lady Gladys' own lips, but the history of this man Spiers and his wife, capped by the climax in connection with the Earl of Stanhope, knocks the wildest imaginings of the novelist into a cocked hat. Now, I will tell you, briefly, what took me to Swinford. I had a letter from Lord Cecil Stanhope; he was in some kind of a muddle, and wanted my advice. As you know, he never belonged to our set—he was too fast—and I replied coolly. He was not to be put off, and the arrangements of a good fee completed the business. I agreed to see him, and went down there. To show you how things are unfolding, I will say at once that part of the business he wanted me for was to consult upon Lord Howard's equivocal position."

"His confession, or the knowledge of his fatal fight with my uncle, need never go any further," declared Hastings. "We must hush it up for my darling's sake."
"That is just what we are powerless to do," went on Gardner. "Listen. The story is in the possession of his steward, and he will give it to the world on New Year's Day, unless the earl yields to demands which are impossible. The steward insists upon the marriage of Lady Gladys and Lord Cecil taking place forthwith. If he is not obeyed, my lord will be arrested. He will not be obeyed."
"Of course not. Cannot the fellow be bribed?"
"No, because Lord Cecil is his son—because Lord Cecil is not Lord Cecil at all, but a changeling, and I am engaged now in finding the Simon Pure."
Sir Charles looked at his friend in absolute bewilderment.
"I shall presently believe that I am ill again, or dreaming. By George, Bert, you are not romancing, are you?" he exclaimed, passing his hand over his face in a dazed sort of way. "Oh, yes, I see it now; the steward is ambitious to see his son well placed in the world, dreaming that his present position is unsafe. The soundest!"
"Now for the final bomb," laughed Gardner. "The steward claims to be my lord's eldest brother!"
"The deuce he does! What select tidbits the papers will have soon!"

—OR THE—
Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER IV.
"Yes, I know them—after a fashion, we exchanged solemn dinner-parties, and good Mr. Bardon grows very flushed and heated in his endeavors to entertain us. The daughter, Marie Bardon, is the nicest member of the family. She will one day have an enormous fortune."
Sir Fulke smiled sedately. How often had that phrase, "an enormous fortune," been uttered within his hearing!
Then Lady Clyffarde rose to take leave; and a little incident happened which opened her eyes more clearly as to the character of the young heiress. Lady Iris still held in her hand the white orchids she had gathered; and, as he bowed his adieu, Sir Fulke said to her—
"In memory of a very happy morning and a very pleasant conversation, may I—Will you give me one of yours?"
There was a faint shadow of surprise on her face.
"Give you a flower! Why should I, Sir Fulke?"
"Because it would be an act of grace that would make me very happy," he replied.
A slow smile came over her face. "You gentlemen of the nineteenth century who live at home at ease do not resemble the knights and courtiers of older times," she said. "You have seen me once, talked to me for an hour, and you ask me for a flower. A knight of old would have risked his life or fought a desperate combat for such a gift!"
She looked at him with sweet proud eyes, and smiling lips. Her clear serene glance stirred the blood in his veins.
"You are right, Lady Iris. I will be content if you will grant me the favor I ask when I have tried to win it."

"That is more reasonable," she said. "You have forgotten one thing, Lady Iris"—and he spoke with the air of a victor—"that when a knight served a lady so faithfully and so well it was because she was his lady-love."
"There," she said, laying the white orchids on the table—"we have talked nonsense enough for one day!"
"But you will own yourself defeated, Lady Iris?" he cried.
"No, not now—or ever! We Faynes never acknowledge defeat!"
Then the carriage was announced, and Lady Clyffarde, with Sir Fulke, went away. They drove for some minutes in silence, and then Lady Clyffarde said—
"I have seen many lovely girls, Fulke, but none like her."
"No, none like her," he echoed. "Mother what were those doggerel lines you repeated the other day. They haunted me all the time I was talking to her, but I could not recall them."
"All the Faynes are proud and cold—they their name with honor hold. Do you mean those lines, Fulke? Lady Iris does seem proud and cold. I will never believe that she is either; there are great depths of love in that girl's heart."
"If one could but discover them," said her son. "She is very proud. Did you notice she refused to give me one of those orchids? It was rather a change for me; I generally find young ladies willing to share their flowers with me. She almost—say, I may say quite—gave me to understand that I could have no flower until I had worked for it." "I wonder," continued Sir Fulke, with a new light in his eyes, "if I did something to please her, whether she would treat me differently? I must try her."
"Do you like her, Fulke?" asked his mother anxiously.
"Yes. The one great danger is that I may like her too well."
"The wish of my heart is that you should marry her," said his mother. "Between the wish and the accomplishment there is a wide gulf, mother!" he laughed—"not that I think she would refuse me. What lovely eyes she has! They are like wood-violets—the darkest, sweetest violet that was ever called blue."
"You are very enthusiastic, Fulke, about Lady Iris, considering that this is the first time you have seen her since she was a child."
"I tell you frankly, mother, she is the loveliest and the noblest girl I have ever seen. Did you note her face when she said those words, 'Hold with honor'? It was like a picture."
The young baronet resolutely closed his eyes during the remainder of the drive—closed them to the sunlight and the flowers, lest they should distract his attention from the memory of the loveliest face he had ever seen. His mother watched him with anxious eyes. Although she loved him with her whole heart, and thought him one of the most handsome and accomplished men, she was far too clearly sighted and sensible not to see his faults, the undercurrent of vanity, the taint of conceit, that marred what would otherwise have been a noble manhood.

Why Does A Cup of Tea In the Woods Taste Better?

Some of the "kill joys" will tell you it is imagination. But you mustn't mind them for that is what they lack.

The joys of troutling are not for them. The music of the salmon reel they will never know. The beauty of the berry patch, the red of the partridge berry, the blue of the whort berry and the satisfaction of the well filled basket are not for them.

Even the beauty of our Newfoundland scenery, the glory of the Topsail sunset will leave them cold. But let us forget them and let us make for the old Southside Hill, now carpeted with the green and red of the partridge berry, or out to Topsail, or up to Manuels River, or let us make for the old "Cow Path" leading to beautiful Holyrood (and along the said "Cow Path" the whorts never grew thicker than they do this year) and let us "boil the kettle", and I bet you it will be a good "cup of tea", unless your grocer has done you dirty altogether. For the secret of it is, you steep the tea as soon as the kettle boils, and any old tea will taste pretty good, I'll bet you.

But it is just as well to take the best tea with you, it doesn't cost much more. The last time we were out we had a splendid tea and it only cost us 65c. lb. It had a sort of artistic name—"Mount View". We bought it at Henry Blair's. They had another good tea there at 50c. per pound, but the clerk said "the best is the best", and we believe him.

Freshly boiled water is the secret of the cup of tea you drink out camping, fishing, berry picking or picnicking, but it is just as well to have the best tea. You can get it for 65c. per lb. at Blair's "Mount View", that is the slogan.

Greek Officials Are Evacuating Smyrna.

Turks Only Twenty-Five Miles From Capital of Asia Minor --- Many Countries Reducing Armaments.

NEARING SMYRNA.

LONDON, Sept. 8. Official despatches from Constantinople indicate that the Turks have advanced to within twenty-five miles of Smyrna and are progressing rapidly.

THE BOOTY.

ANGORA, Sept. 8. Statistics of the booty which has fallen into the hands of the Turks up to September 4, are given as 910 guns, 200 motor trucks, 200 automobiles, 400 machine guns, 400 carloads munitions, and 40,000 rifles. More than 10,000 Greeks have been made prisoners.

THOUSANDS OF PRISONERS.

ADANA, Sept. 8. Despatches received from Turkish nationalist sources confirm the complete defeat of the Greek army. The army which at the beginning of operations was estimated to aggregate 100,000 men has lost more than half its effectiveness. The troops which are fleeing in disorder before the Kemalists cavalry amount to fifty thousand. Thousands of prisoners are being taken daily.

GREEK OFFICIALS EVACUATING SMYRNA.

SMYRNA, Sept. 8. The political and military authorities of Smyrna to-day began evacuating the town. Embarkations are underway from Smyrna, Yurda and Chios. Remnants of the Greek army have arrived twelve and a half miles from Smyrna, but the Turks apparently are not closely following them. It is believed here that Mustafa Kemal Pasha can enter the town in three days. The situation here is extremely grave. Bands of Greek soldiers, Armenians and Turks are committing acts of insouderism, pillage, and plunder. The Allied fleets have arranged a plan for concerted action.

MRS. HARDING ILL.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8. Grave concern is expressed by physicians attending Mrs. Harding, wife of the President, who was taken ill on Thursday night and is suffering from serious complications that are slightly abated to-day.

STIFF ENGAGEMENTS.

BELFAST, Sept. 8. Stiff engagements between free state forces and rebels have occurred at Castledown, near Dundalk. Irregulars have been arrested and one is reported killed.

THE FISHERMAN'S RACE.

BOSTON, Sept. 8. The Boston Post editorially hints that the Canadian champion school-teacher may not race this year.

tion of relinquishing what was won in the World War.

FORD PLANT SAFEGUARDED.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 8. According to a telegram given out by Ernest R. Hearshey, President of American Export and Island Coal Company, an agreement has been entered into with representatives of Henry Ford of Detroit by which a sufficient amount of coal would be forwarded to the manufacturing plants of the Ford Companies to obviate the shut down scheduled for September 14th.

REDUCING ARMAMENTS.

GENEVA, Sept. 8. Reports presented by the Council of the League of Nations on the reduction of armaments at this afternoon's session of the third assembly of the League show that there are more than a score of countries which furnished figures restriction of military outlay had been begun. Great Britain reported a reduction of fifty per cent. in naval tonnage, France thirty-six per cent., Italy forty-nine per cent., Japan fifty-nine per cent. In land armaments France reported a reduction of two hundred thousand men under arms and the shortening of the time of military service by one half; Italy reduced the period of service and suppressed 38 battalions of infantry. Poland reduced her army of a million men to about two hundred and sixty thousand; Japan made a reduction but failed to give figures.

HOBBIES.

When one retires from active life, from all its turmoil, stress and strife, to spend his closing years in a home, some silly fad he must pursue, some hobby he must keep in view, or he'll be soaked in tears. For idle days drag slowly by to one who made the gravel fly in time of pep and strength; and he will find a hobby days, and will reduce their length. I am collecting stovepipe hats once worn by famous plutocrats, and seers and poets meek; I have the lid that Lincoln wore when he was clerking in a store at seven bucks per week. Collecting bonnets drives away the dust, the mildew and decay that years accumulate, and oh, it fills my heart with smiles, to view my stock of stored silks, the bellies of the great. Now, where I live old men are thick; they rest, the ancient, tired and sick, beside the ocean blue; and when the sea has lost its charm, the old boys view things with alarm, for they have naught to do. I tell them that collecting cats, or overhoos, or stovepipe hats, or tin tobacco tins, will make them all seem young again, these old and haggard, weary men, no time no longer drags. But they were used to large affairs, when in their old time city lairs, they don't know how to play; and so they yawn and murmur, "Rats!" while I go on collecting hats to drive the gloom away.

The Land of Promise.

There is a spot of land within the Empire which is probably the richest in mineral wealth on the earth's surface. That tract of land stretches across the neck of the Cape York Peninsula and is in North Queensland. The writer knows from experience that most minerals of value exist in that tableland, and if any metallic substances were suddenly to become in demand which he does not already know, he would go there to look for it with every confidence in his finding it.

A Happy Inspiration.

When the railroads were built in India everyone wondered how the caste problem would be solved. "A priest settled the matter by a happy inspiration. He announced that steam is one of the thousand and eight different incarnations of Vishnu, and therefore when one rode on the steam cars one was in the presence of a god where all caste is obliterated."

A World of Blue Skies.

We know that the surface of Mars is comparatively flat—that there are no mountains worthy of the name on our neighbouring world; nor are there any large bodies of water on the Martian surface; if ever there were permanent oceans they have long since disappeared. The planet's atmosphere, too, is very rare—thinner at least by half," according to Lowell, "than the air upon the summit of the Himalayas", and its surface-pressure, Pickering believes, is likely to lie between one-half and one-tenth of that at the Earth's surface. The Martian atmosphere is much clearer than ours. It is not, however, absolutely cloudless. "Clouds," Pickering wrote in 1914, "are nearly always visible on the disc, but they are not usually reported because they are difficult to observe. . . . In the polar regions the clouds are sometimes so white as to be with difficulty distinguished from the snow. After they have disappeared at the poles, the ground is often seen to be white with freshly-fallen snow. Sometimes cloud-masses partially conceal a whole hemisphere, and cloudy nights appear to be frequent." During the opposition of 1920, the observers at the Lowell Observatory were impressed by the unusual haziness and cloudiness of the Martian atmosphere. But we may say that Mars is usually a world of blue skies and bright sunshine.—Rev. Hector Macpherson in "Discovery."

NICKEL

JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD'S GREATEST STORY "Kazan."

The story of a great dog's part in a love tale of the wilds. Men called Kazan a killer—but a girl found the heart of the great black dog. In the east we have Jane Novak and Kazan the wonder-dog.

NOBODY WILL MISS THIS GREAT STORY.

Fairly Swamped by Cancer Cases.

"St. Anthony's Hospital is in possession of fifty milligrammes of radium, the only supply of that precious mineral in Newfoundland; as a result we have been fairly swamped by cancer cases, and, fortunately, we have been able to do some good for those suffering from external infection, such as those of the lip and mouth." The speaker was Dr. Wilfred Thos. Grenfell, C.M.G., Superintendent of the Labrador Medical Mission of the Royal National Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen. Dr. Grenfell, accompanied by Mrs. Grenfell, formerly Miss Anna MacClanahan, of Lake Forest, Illinois, a graduate of Bryn Mawr, arrived in Montreal recently and was a guest at Freeman's Hotel, having booked passage on the White Star Dominion Line steamer Regina, which steams from port to-day.—Morning Chronicle, Sept. 2.

For years I have never considered my stock of household remedies complete unless a bottle of Minard's Lintment was included. For burns, bruises, sprains, frostbites or chilblains it excels, and I know of no better remedy for a severe cold in the head, or that will give more immediate relief than to inhale from the bottle through the nasal organ. And as to my supply of veterinary remedies it is essential, as it has in very many instances proven its value. A recent experience in reclaiming what was supposed to be a lost section of a valuable cow's udder has again demonstrated its great worth, and prompts me to recommend it in the highest terms to all who have a herd of cows, large or small. I think I am safe in saying among all the patent medicines there is none that cures as large a field of usefulness as does Minard's Lintment. A real truesium—good for man or beast.

To Feed the Duck.

In a certain village cricket team there is one player who always makes extensive preparations when he goes in to bat. He makes the umpire give him "centre," slaps down a piece of uneven turf, looks carefully round to see where the fielders are—and then usually gets bowled by the first or second ball.

On the occasion of a recent match this batsman was fussing around as usual, and began making a very large hole for his block. "What's 'e doin' that for?" asked one spectator. "Promptly came the scornful answer: "'E's diggin' for a worm to feed 'is duck!'"

Road Building

The history of road building in Newfoundland does not make pleasant reading for the taxpayer. It is a sordid tale of unwarranted extravagance, of the peoples' money used for political purposes, always, of large outlays without commensurate returns. It is, therefore, a great relief to know that since last year a certain amount of road work has been done, partly at the public expense, partly by the help of taxes collected from a certain section of the community, which has brought results in proportion to the amount expended.

The credit for this almost unique occurrence, in this country, is due to the Newfoundland Road Commission which was appointed during the 1921 session of the Legislature for the purpose of controlling repairs to roads near the city.

The leading spirits in what might be called the better road movement are Mr. Richard Hibbs, M.H.A. for Fogo, and Mr. Thomas Soper, while they have been ably assisted by an expert road builder in the person of Mr. Joseph Dave.

Hampered by lack of funds, sufficient to carry out the improvements which are so necessary to our roads, the Road Commission has done splendid work, and deserves the support of Government and people, a support which has not been given with the freedom that might be expected.

If the Government had entrusted the various amounts which were expended last year on road work, and for which practically no returns were received, to the Road Commission, our suburban thoroughfares might now be such as any country might have pride in. It is to be hoped that when next relief work near the city is made necessary, that the money to be allocated will be given to the Road Commission to use in real road improvement.

That Election

For some months past, rumours of a general election during the coming fall, have been very prevalent, and the possibilities or otherwise of an appeal to the country by the Government is still a much discussed topic on the street.

Much as we dislike to entertain the idea of a fall election, it cannot be denied that so far as the present Government is concerned, there could not be a more opportune time. Despite the fact that an election may be called for at three weeks notice, no effort has been made to organize a party strong enough to oppose the Government at the polls. There are several men who are quite fitted to lead a party if they can overcome the petty jealousies with which so many of our possible leaders seem afflicted, but if the rivalry which is known to exist among them at present is not abandoned, nothing can prevent the present administration from being returned to power, despite their past record.

This is the time for organization, and may we remind those who have political aspirations, and who are also inspired with the desire to help their country, that delays are dangerous.

TROLLEY POLE GAVE OUT.—The supporting structure of the trolley pole on N. street car gave out this morning as the car was going round the belt line, with the consequence the service was interrupted for a short while. The damaged car was towed to the barn and another one taken out in its place.

Deer Lake Road.

H. J. GOODYEAR GETS CONTRACT.
The contract for the completion of the Deer Lake-Bonne Bay Road has been awarded to H. J. Goodyear, and work on the road has already been started. There are 10 miles of road to be completed and the contract calls for $7,500 a mile, if possible, but not exceeding $10,000 a mile. This means that the total cost of the section yet to be built will approximate $100,000.

About 600 men will be employed and these will have their passage paid to Deer Lake but will have to return at their own expense. They will receive $2.00 per day, and will have to find themselves. The Government will have a man to look after their own interests, and to certify accounts. It is expected that the road will be completed by the end of October, or at the latest, the first week of November. The Bonne Bay-Deer Lake Road is bound to be of great value to the people of the West Coast, who have to wait for the weekly steamer for transport to the railway, but it is unfortunate that the Government did not put the work out to contract when they built the first section.

The George Street Adult Bible Class reopens at 2:00 p.m., Sunday, September 10th. All members are asked to make special effort to attend. Visitors welcome.—sept.11

HIS DIARY.

Sept. 8th.—All the news of the Turkeys, they routing the Greek armies in Asia Minor and all their forces fleeing in confusion. My wife and I to-day to talk of economies which must be made, seeing how bad the times are. But Lord, how the woman is selfish, and will agree to my neither smoking nor drinking for a year, but will not forego her face powder even. This did put me in a great heat and I did berate the wretch so heartily that she falls in to a fit of weeping, and nothing would stop her, but I must let her do as she pleases. The evenings now grown chill, but the weather fine.

Preparations for Winter Flying.

AERIAL SURVEY CO. GET THREE MORE PLANES.

The Aerial Survey Company, are making preparations for extensive flying operations during the coming winter and to this end three new planes have arrived at Botwood by S.S. Cranley from England. Pilots and expert mechanics are expected to arrive from the other side shortly and in about a month's time the machines will be assembled. There are two Martinsyde already here and the other is a Bristol, a very speedy machine, developed for commercial work after the models used so successfully during the war. The notable flights made by Major Ootton and Capt. Sid Bennett have demonstrated fully the possibilities of commercial flying and the distribution of mails to parts of the country that are usually isolated during the winter months. Given the support of the public and the assistance from the Government which their enterprise deserves, the Aerial Survey Co. will be encouraged in their endeavours and Newfoundlanders may look forward to the day when the country will not be far behind other parts of the world as far as commercial aviation is concerned.

A Cap Comedy.

FUN IN THE MAGISTRATE'S COURT.
Does a person commit an assault when he takes his own property from the possession of another without violence? This was the interesting question which Judge Morris had to decide in the Police Court this morning. The case was a most diverting one and was a veritable "mountain out of a mole hill." A civil servant, unable to find his own cap when leaving an outing at Smithville, took the headgear of a well known printer, leaving the latter to go home bareheaded. Some time after, the printer, who had been told where his cap had gone, found the nose of a man wearing it on Water Street. He accosted him and asked for the cap, which the civil servant refused to give up and, with his refusal, roundly abused the printer, who then tore the cap off the head of his wearer. The result was an action for assault, taken by the wrongful owner of the headgear, Mr. T. P. Halley, for the plaintiff, contending that in seizing the cap, even though it was his own property, the defendant had been guilty of violence. The Judge took an opposite view. He said that the act of seizing the cap in itself was not violence. He therefore dismissed the case, and upon counsel proceeding, informed him that he could appeal if he liked to the Supreme Court or the Privy Council.

Great "Out of Doors" Story at The Nickel.

Wolf dog provides thrills as star of "Kanan."

Perhaps the greatest animal and human interest story ever screened is the picture version of James Oliver Curwood's "Kanan," which opened an engagement at the Nickel Theatre last night. The picture, which was directed by Bertram, Breaken, certainly begs description—the remarkable performance of a dog, acting more human than brute, and the realistic battle of two persons, one a girl, with an attacking pack of a gang of wolves constituting some of the high lights which one could never forget. Another outstanding feature of this production is the quite unusual photography, many of the scenes of the snow-clad Canadian Northwest constituting the zenith of pictorial perfection.

As was the case in "Back to God's Country" and "Nomads of the North," the locale of "Kanan" is in the Far North, and Kanan is a half savage dog who turns against all men after the murder of his master. But he is befriended by a girl, Joan Radisson, and never forgets her kindness.
Jane Novak and Ben Deely, in the two leading roles, share honors, and each gives a performance in which high art dominates. Edwin Walcott gives one of the best character studies of an unprincipled ruffian of the Canadian Northland, ever portrayed. William Ryno, as Pierre Radisson, the old trapper, and Ben Haggerty, as his easily misled son, also contribute generously to the artistic interpretation of this popular Curwood story.

"Kanan" is fascinating, wholesome, and refreshing. And it teaches a wonderful lesson from nature to mankind.

Accident on Fishing Grounds.

BURNED BY CAROLINE EXPLOSION.

A serious burning accident occurred this forenoon on the fishing grounds at the Cape and the victim Joseph Martin belonging to Hickman's Harbor now lies in hospital with the possibility of not regaining the sight of one of his eyes. Martin accompanied by his little boy went to the grounds this morning in his motor boat and lighting a fire to cook a meal used some gasoline to make a better blaze. The fire spread to the can of fuel which exploded and scattered over the man. Another fisherman named Martin who observed the happening, quickly came alongside and quenched the blaze, but not before the victim was badly burned about the arms and face. He was brought to port and examined by Dr. Campbell who ordered him to hospital at once.

Fire on Horse Cove Line.

LOST HOUSE AND BELONGINGS.
On Tuesday last, the house of Martin Lawlor, situated on the Horse Cove Line was raised to the ground by a fire which originated by sparks from a chimney. Lawlor, who has a family of ten children, was away at the time when the fire started and practically nothing was saved. The loss is a very severe one and Lawlor, who is an industrious man, finds himself both homeless and penniless. Any assistance that can be given him would be deserving charity and the many people who respond when deserving cases are brought to their notice, will it felt, render what assistance is possible.

In the Realms of Sport.

CHAMPIONSHIP UNDECIDED.

When Greek meets Greek was amply demonstrated last night, when in the play-off for the championship the game ended with a scoreless draw. It was estimated that over 4000 spectators saw the game, and though the receipts were $252 which establishes a record, yet so great was the crush at the outside wickets between six and six fifteen that many preferred to climb through the wire fences, while others rushed through the big gate, every time it was opened to admit more.

Long before the teams came on the field the grandstand overflowed with the result that the fans were inside the small fence and made themselves as comfortable as possible, squatting on their haunches inside the touch line. The same applied to the enclosure where the enthusiasts were lined up four and five rows deep. Shortly before the game started a deputation of Irish fans prevailed on Bill Burke to play, and though convalescent from his prostrated illness, yet in the excitement of the moment he was persuaded to don a uniform. His appearance on the field was the signal for a prolonged outburst of applause from the vast assemblage, who from that time realized it was going to be a battle royal.

Both Callahan boys were off-Billy being replaced by Madden, who substituted splendidly. It was a disappointing slow start with both sets of full exchanging compliments by a series of long kicks to each other. After a little while the Irish forwards got together and kept the fight in the Cadet territory. This lasted for ten minutes, after which it was apparent that the B.I.S. had shot their bolt for the Cadets assumed the offensive and produced a regular series of scores, and were it not for the very effective work of Burke, Power, and Higgins, could not help from scoring. So insistent was the Cadet attack that three corners were registered against the Harps in as many minutes, which, although cleverly placed, did not produce results. The half time whistle found both teams rather groggy and all players seemed to relish the brief breathing spell. It may be fairly said that on play being renewed the Irish contracted the play right from the start. In the first period they had been playing two centre halves (Burke and Constantine) so as to give the former a chance to try out his powers of endurance, and upon finding that he could probably stick it, Constantine went out to the forward line. At these times the game resolved itself into wild stops by the fulls—which broke the morale of both forward lines—so that when they could get into the game they were unprepared for combination work. However, the Irish pressure was fairly consistent as the Cadets paid only two visits to John Phelan, while Clare was called upon repeatedly and saved magnificently. He gave a "demonstration" of perfect goal clearing and was loudly applauded. The game was undoubtedly the hardest fought for the season, and while not wishing to be invidious, yet the efforts of Galway, Clare and Morris for the Cadets, and those of Burke, the Phelan Bros., Pawer and Higgins for the B.I.S. deserve special mention. After the game both teams were escorted to their dressing rooms and given a rousing ovation. The lineup was as follows:

B.I.S.—Goal, J. Phelan; backs, Doc. Power, J. G. Higgins; halves, P. Brien, W. Burke, Doc. Fox; forwards, F. Phelan, H. Phelan, E. Phelan, S. Constantine, R. Halley. G.C.C.—Goal, Clare; backs, E. Kavanagh, A. Galway; halves, Morris, M. Madden, T. Christopher; forwards, W. Caul, M. Flynn, R. Meagher, J. Canning, J. Madden.

BURKE TAKEN ILL.
After the game, and as he was leaving for home, Burke collapsed and the services of a doctor had to be requisitioned. Dr. Fox responded and after attending to him, ordered him home by car. This morning he was feeling fairly well, and apparently none the worse for his sudden, perhaps unwise resolve to help out the team, whose colors he has worn for so many seasons.

THE PLAY OFF.
Capt. Brien and Galway met this morning and obtained the League's sanction for the play off to take place on Wednesday afternoon at 3 p.m. Thus all danger of the game ending in darkness is avoided, and affords a better chance for both spectators and players to witness the final match without inconvenience. Mr. Brien, who is to be congratulated on his splendid work last evening, will again control the game.

ANSWERS.
To "Auditor"—While we agree with you that the receipts were disappointingly small last evening yet no good purpose would be served by publishing your letter which is entirely too personal. An explanation above it was possible to control the actions of over 2000 persons—all desiring immediate admission—and if many of them did take advantage of the entrance of cars, and others the risk of torn "victory brands" by scrambling through the barbed wires—then the officials can hardly be blamed. However, we understand that on Wednesday afternoon, the League will make special provisions for handling the large crowd so that no inconvenience will be caused to fans and neither shall the League suffer a shortage in the receipts by "mob rushes" as you term it in your letter.

A PITIFUL WAIL!
To the Editor,
The Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—I am a man with a sprained ankle and a grouch. I propose, if your kinder self will let me, to say a few words about Wednesday last, the A.A.A. Committee and The Broad Jump. If there was a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Athletes, I think the whole Committee would be indicted for neglecting to provide soft ground for the broad jump by digging a pit or even by doing any other more intricate thing. It was torture jumping on the baked surface which had a bound elasticity less than that of cast iron. The few competitors who didn't dislocate their ankles or fracture their heels experienced in all its rare fulminance the uppercutting feeling of being struck on the bottom of the chin with a twelve pound hammer. The judges maintained an official air of suppressed aloofness throughout, and lent a certain amount of intricacy to the proceedings by discarding the old-fashioned method of direct measuring after each jump. Instead, each mark as it was made, was transformed some yards away by a process of guesstimation with an accuracy that was occasionally commendable. But, as I say, I am a man with a grouch. If the Committee have any thoughts of pity hereafter, I feel certain, they will provide a decent one for the broad jump on the next A.A.A. day.

Prisoner Was Unlucky.

Amongst a host of good stories in G. E. Burgin's new book, "More Memories and some Travels," is one that was told to him by Mr. Newton Grass, the American barrister. It concerned a friend of his, also a barrister, who was defending a negro charged with burglary. Attached to his brief was a plan of the burgled premises. This the barrister handed to the jury for their inspection.

The jury promptly found the prisoner guilty, greatly to his counsel's surprise, for he thought he had made out a good case for an acquittal. He understood the reason, however, when the plan which he had handed up to the jury was returned to him. For his own guidance, he had marked on the plan "Here's where the nigger got in!" And he'd forgotten to rub it out!

By ONLOOKER.

11th LEAGUE MATCH — TERRA NOVAS VS. K.A.C.—RESULT: A DRAW; 1 GOAL EACH—PLAYED ON LEWELLYN GROUNDS JULY 18th, 1898.

Before a fair muster of spectators on the League grounds last evening teams from above clubs lined up as follows:—

TERRA NOVAS—Goal, Parsons; backs, N. Vincombe, McNelly; half-backs, A. Marshall, T. Gemmill, J. Kent; forwards, R. Dowden, Snow, Pike, Soper, Knight.

K.A.C.—Goal, Soper; backs, J. Mathieson, W. Stranger; half backs, G. Knowling, Jr., P. Knowling, Boones; forwards, J. Robinson, W. Comerford, W. Knowling, Jenkins, Moors.

The Terra Novas won the toss, and, of course, selected the western goal for their defensive point. Play opened slow, the ground being a trifle heavy after the rain and the ball greasy, no doubt helping to prevent anything like accurate kicking. After 5 minutes a corner fell to the T. N.'s which proved fruitless, the K's coming away nicely. The natives soon returned to the attack, and a nice shot by Gemmill drew out Soper who cleared in good style. Knowling's then carried the ball to the other end, and secured a corner. This was well placed and nicely cleared. Then at the eastern goal a corner fell to the Terras, which was kicked behind. Knowlings then made another rush for Parsons, and probably the easiest chance of the match was lost, W. Knowling stumbling on the ball when making the final effort. The game for the rest of this half was of a give and take nature, both sides having several tries for the net, but the teams crossed without any scoring. With the ground in their favor it was thought the K's would overpower their opponents, but the latter were combining better and from some nice passing in front of the K goal, Tom Soper headed past his namesake into the net. One for the Terra Novas. The T. N.'s continued to press—playing at this point a much better passing game than the K's—and two corners fell to them, the first being nearly successful. Then the K's had another run towards Parsons and a nice shot from W. Knowling nearly took effect. Terra Novas again assumed the aggressive, and had the best of the game for the next ten minutes, till the K's roused themselves a bit and came down the field and after a scrimmage, during which Parsons put in some fine saving (slipping and saving as he lay on the goal line) the ball was shot into the net and the score stood 1 goal each. For the last ten minutes play was fairly even, nothing of note occurring, and the game ended as given above in a draw, 1 goal each. Referee, F. Maynard. Linesmen, W. Soper (T.N.), F. Donnelly (K.C.C.).

NOTES ON THE GAME.

The game was fairly interesting to spectators. The K.A.C. were weak in the front rank from the absence of Williams and Peaver. Comerford and Jenkins did their best, but were out-classed by their opponents. Moore is not up to last year's form, and we hope to see him to better advantage in next match. In the half-back line the Bros. Knowling were good, and the backs were reliable, although Mathieson didn't seem in condition.

The Terra Nova forwards, although superior to their opponents, should practice more together and keep their positions better. Their centre (Pike) was the most prominent player on the ground. Dowden and Soper were fairly good, but Snow has not improved. Of the half-backs Marshall was the best. Kent played a good game, but Gemmill is not in form. Nix Vincombe and Nix McNelly are a splendid pair of backs, putting in some good work, and Parsons sustained his reputation as a good man in goal.

But there is more to it than that. In many directions we regard what used to be luxuries as absolute necessities, and this business of the summer vacation is a perfect example.

Old Clothes for Sport Clothes.

Twenty-five years ago if the average middle class family went away at all they went away to a very simple summer cottage costing less than $1,000 or renting for not over $100. Very likely they went only a month. As for sport clothes, why of course they wore but their old clothes. And, as they picked blueberries and dug clams and fished and fetched their own milk and cream and eggs from the nearest farmer, it probably cost them less to live than in the city.

To-day it is almost a sine qua non for the middle class family in the same relative financial position to go away for the whole summer. "The children need it, you know, after their hard school year." It is also almost a sine qua non that the cottage should have electric lights and a bathroom and a garage. And instead of wearing out old clothes on the vacation, a whole new wardrobe of sport clothes and beach clothes must be laid in—the sport suit, the white flannel skirt, the smart middie, the white shoes, the sport hats for the women and the golf for the men.

Do We Get More Fun?

As for the living expenses. Well, in our summer colony they are about one quarter higher than they are at home in a first class suburb. There is only one grocery store—with the inevitable result. The milk, which is delivered now, is several cents more a quart than a home farmer charges, at least, city prices for their products. Meat, which we all think we must have once or twice a day, soars to wild heights.

And with it all do we get more happiness than in the old simple days of blueberries and old clothes and primitive houses? I wonder. No, I don't.

Plus Three.

Anxious to make his fortune quickly, Jones had turned his attention to the chances of lottery. He tried for twenty years and never won anything. But at last he won the first prize, and straightway bought himself a motor-car and a top hat. A friend one day asked him how he had managed to be so successful.

"It really was not my fault," was the reply. "I went to bed one night and dreamt of number seven. The two following nights I had the same dream. Three times seven are twenty-four, so I took out that number in the lottery tickets."

"But," his friend said, puzzled, "haven't you any education? Three times seven are twenty-one."

"Well," was the reply, "you can keep the education. I got the money."

OLD VACATIONS AND NEW.

A few miles from the colony where I sometimes spend my summer there is a little island in the river on which are a few primitive summer camps. The people from these camps often come up the river for provisions. The men wear old flannel shirts and flannel trousers, or the dilapidated trousers of old city suits; the women wear old clothes of various sorts; the children usually have on bloomers and are barefooted. Against the back-ground of our summer colony many are the curious, and frequently amused and superior glances, they receive.

Twenty-five years ago those people would have been typical summer vacationists in this very place.

Twenty-five years ago, if middle class people went away for the summer at all, they did just what these people are doing, lived in primitive houses and wore out their old clothes.

Four Times the Rent.

In our colony is a cottage with bathroom, electric lights, garage and attractive furniture which rents for $600. Twenty-five years ago that same cottage minus the bathroom, the electric lights and, needless to say, the garage, rented $150.

Repeating the Order.

Young Tommy returned home from school in tears, and was nursing a black eye.

"I'll pay Billy Debbs off for this in the morning," he wailed to his mother. "No, no," she said. "You must return good for evil. I'll make you a nice jam roll, and you must take it to Billy and say: 'Mother says I must return good for evil, so here's a jam roll for you!'"

Tommy demurred, but finally consented. The next evening he returned in a worse plight, and sobbed:—"I gave Billy the jam roll and told him what you said, and then he blacked my other eye and says you're to send him another to-morrow."

WHEN THINGS GO WRONG.

And It's Difficult to Rectify Them

(By JEREMY BENTHAM, JR.)

ARTICLE II.

There are one or two things I should like to hint, if you don't often get the truth told you in print: the most of you (this is what strikes all beholders) are an awkward political stoop in the shoulders.

HUMBER PROPOSITION AND THE REMOVED ELECTION.
I write a report reaches me to the effect that the Humber Proposition—promises very shortly to be accomplished, and that a General Election will be held in November next. I am not quite prepared, just at present, to accept this rumor without reservation; but, these days, the people would do well to be ready for every emergency. Any way, if "happy news" should make it possible for us to obtain some new and improved material for our next House of Assembly, we ought to be in a position to avail ourselves of it.

Members of the newly-organized Reform Party, and all those who have yet ranged themselves under its banner, but who are in sympathy with the general principles of political reform, should make it possible for us to obtain some new and improved material for our next House of Assembly, we ought to be in a position to avail ourselves of it. Members of the newly-organized Reform Party, and all those who have yet ranged themselves under its banner, but who are in sympathy with the general principles of political reform, should make it possible for us to obtain some new and improved material for our next House of Assembly, we ought to be in a position to avail ourselves of it.

one particularly cares from a party point of view, a great deal might be done to give a better tone to the next House of Assembly. This duty lies especially at the door of those who are in a position of influence, whether in pulpit or in press or otherwise; and it may be well to emphasize here what might be done in this matter, especially by "men of light and leading."

WHAT IS AN ELECTION?

In answer to the question, "What is an election?" let me say that an election is the appeal which the country, whether in her totality or any of her sections, makes to the individual elector for his advice and counsel as to the conduct of her affairs. Before the ballot-box every elector is a sovereign, but unfortunately many electors are as indifferent to the obligations and responsibilities of the sovereignty as ever was a worthless despot who deserted the throne and council-room for the harem and the wine-cup. On the eve of an election, before the selection of the candidates, it is found advantageous that intelligent and patriotic voters within the electors area should meet to consider in what way they can best discharge the duties that devolve upon them as good citizens and use the opportunities afforded by the election to educate the electors as to the moral and financial issues involved in the election; and I contend that what is financially and politically wrong is morally, wrong, as well!

JUSTICE AND POLITICAL PURITY.

If the party seeking the country's support were organized as a unit for the furtherance of the cause of justice and political purity, it would find no difficulty in securing from every constituency, before any candidate was chosen, a clear enunciation of the following principles: (1) That in the coming elections the citizens should inflexibly refuse to select as their candidate for any position of trust a dishonest, corrupt or otherwise unsuitable man, it being contrary to sound policy and to the first principles of good Government to elect a law-breaker to be a law-maker. (2) That in the conduct of the election both parties should be constantly reminded that a party might itself need not abrogate the ninth commandment, nor be careless of a virtue during an election than at any other time. At present, to such a pass have charity, passion and reason come, that there are many prominent men in Church and State who, by their practice, show that they believe the commandment, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor," does not hold in times of election. (3) That in deciding now to vote, conscience should be the supreme arbiter, and all effort to induce citizens to vote on one side or the other—not in defence to argument addressed to the reason, but by intimidation, corruption, or other base motives which appeal to self-interest—should be scouted as unworthy of a civilized community and dangerous to a pure democracy.

HOW TO FURRY THE POLITICAL AIR.

It strikes me that if the foregoing three principles were insisted upon in all the pulpits and on all the platforms on the eve of the coming election, whether it be in November next or November of next year, it could hardly fail to purify the air, and raise the election to a higher plane than that to which it is at present too often degraded by the wire-pullers and candidates, who often make a Dutch action of principles, if by any means they can catch votes. The question as to what can best be done by right-minded members of the community towards promoting this cause, is one which need not be decided locally. It is to be feared that in most cases there is not sufficient consciousness of a common bond of union among citizens of all parties to render it possible to realize the ideal in this matter. Party spirit runs too high for what will become, I am convinced, in a few years, the rule, namely, the assembly of all the representatives of the moral, social and political organizations in every constituency, independent of party prejudices, before the nominations are made, in order that there may be drawn up and pressed upon all candidates a policy both for electioneering and for legislation which would command the support of the best people in the various districts, and would therefore inevitably secure the adhesion of the candidates of all parties. Unfortunately, the intensity of party strife here renders such a simple solution of the most pressing of our difficulties all but impossible. Therefore, we must all do the best we can, each in his own constituency, under the circumstances.

ABOUSING A HEALTHIER SENTIMENT.

At this moment I cannot say, positively, what effect the present agitation will have in the way of arousing a healthier sentiment in the popular breast. A great many intelligent people, in their despondency, seem to regard the situation as a hopeless one, while others urge the immediate adoption of such measures as the emergency may require, followed by a stirring appeal to the patriotism and independence of the people. I certainly fall in with the latter idea, gloomy and all as the outlook now appears to be.

AN APOLOGY FOR POLITICAL WRONG-DOING.

The fallacy of "Whatever is right" is too often invoked as an apology for political wrong-doing. Pernicious practices in public life are exalted above those principles by which such practices are condemned. Political bigots and all who are selfishly concerned in the existing system may close their minds and hearts to the message of truth in this connection! Thus it has been here for the past decade or more—at all events since 1908! Nay, more. There is often an irritation excited by the presence of truth in public life; and men who are ordinarily kind and charitable, forget their kindness and lose their charity towards the unaccustomed stranger—Truth! Harshness, neglect, intolerance and dishonesty ensue. Savages could hardly live in greater distrust of each other than do some of our party politicians of the present day.

WHERE PUBLIC OPINION IS POWERLESS.

In a community like ours, where, under the most favorable circumstances, responsible government only exists in name, where there is no vital public opinion, or where that public opinion is powerless to affect results, the play of conducting a constitutional government without an opposition is only a farce with no fun in it. Why? Because a government is exposed to the pressure of such debasing influences that a good, strong opposition is really its best friend. Recent experiences here have proved that a government cannot of itself interpose sufficient moral resistance to stem the tide of drifting circumstances and the clamor of unprincipled outsiders. Therefore an opposition is provided for in the theory of responsible government, the system being incomplete without it, and not only useless and unsafe as a system of government to the state, but absolutely intolerable and impossible to the very men who constitute the government themselves.

RESPONSIBILITIES THAT CANNOT BE EVADED.

Certain it is that we never find in any adequate system of government a factor provided for that is not wanted, nor any function implied that can safely be done without. Of course, there are men who, for purposes of their own, try to get rid of these restraints; but such do themselves the greatest injury thereby. And Why? Because such men do most manifestly declare that they are not honest at heart. Sometimes, perhaps, the result is brought about by some conjunction of circumstances that is sudden, unexpected and beyond human control.

But then, as I have already intimated, no time is lost by an honestly-inclined and conscientious government to terminate the abnormal position and fulfill the implied conditions of responsible government. If they should hesitate to do it from a public point of view, they would do it for their own sake, just as a man who was suddenly called upon to handle large sums of money in trust for others would insist upon it that some one else should be appointed to count the money after him.

THE REMEDY AND HOW TO APPLY IT.

That there must continue to be some clashing of interests between the different parties is obviously true. That each party, in maintaining its position and policy, must make some sacrifice of its peculiar interests is almost as obvious. But the question to be answered is, not whether such sacrifices are made, but whether they are not compensated by the advantages resulting from the retention by us of the power to administer our public affairs along the lines of the best form of constitutional government in the world. For many of the inexcusable abuses that exist in our public life, we have ourselves to blame. The remedy, however, is still in our own hands, its application may involve much sacrifice—it may mean political extinction in some cases; but posterity will be grateful, and the names of the new Reformers will be held in high esteem by their fellow-countrymen for all time.

The Last Great Pirate.

ROBERTS, THE DANDY.

It is two hundred years ago that Bartholomew Roberts, who was, according to literary tradition, the original of Scott's Cleveland in "The Pirate," perished in battle on the quarterdeck of his own Jolly Roger flagship, the Royal Fortune. He was one of the last, if not indeed the very last, of the great romantic pirates.

Roberts' career was a short one. He "began pirate" in 1718, and he died on February 28th, 1722. He was mate of a ship that was plundered by pirates on the Guinea Coast in 1718, and he joined his captors, succeeding to the command of the band when their leader, Howel Davies, died. He was as bold a man as Davies. He emulated the latter's feat of taking James Fort, the British Royal African Company's stronghold on the River Gambia, by capturing Bunce Island Fort in Sierra Leone within a few weeks of his election to the command. He followed that up by the capture of a hundred merchant ships in twelve months, and the Company raised so much clamour at home that Captain Ogle, with the Swallow and Weymouth, was specially detached to round him up.

Captain Ogle Arrives.

He was found at anchor in Cape Lopez Bay by the Swallow, the Weymouth being away searching another part of the coast. Roberts had with him the Royal Fortune and the Ranger, which was commanded by a Welshman named Skymne. Ogle, standing off to avoid a sandbank, gave Roberts the impression that he was afraid, and the pirate contemptuously sent his smaller ship to deal with the Swallow. Ogle drew off until he and the Ranger were out of sight and sound of the Royal Fortune. Then he turned and, after two hours' fighting, captured his pursuer. Roberts' content pirofom adrivamm swamm contempt for his adversary was so great that when the Swallow returned he refused to believe that she could be anything but the Ranger coming back victorious. When he was at last convinced of his mistake he slipped his cable and, with double-shot guns, made for her. He made, we are told by an eyewitness of the fight, a gallant figure, "being dressed in a rich crimson damask waistcoat and breeches, a red feather in his hat, a gold-chain round his neck with a diamond cross hanging to it, a sword in his hand, and two pairs of pistols hanging at the end of a silk sling hung over his shoulders (according to the fashion of the pirates)."

The Last Fight.
After the first exchange of broadsides the Royal Fortune bore away, Roberts' intention being, apparently, to run her ashore and let his men escape. But a shift of the wind, or had steering, foiled him. The Royal Fortune was taken aback and the Swallow was quickly alongside again. The second broadside ended the career of Roberts: "He was struck full in the throat by grape-shot, and fell dead on the tacksles of a gun."
His men threw the body overboard with his arms and ornaments on, but his flag (with the figure of a skeleton on it and a man with a flaming sword in his hand, intimating a defiance of death itself) was planted under the fallen mainmast, and was taken by the Swallow's men when they captured the ship.

HUMOUR OF SCOTTISH FOLK.
(Contributed.)

A prophet has no honour in his own country, and few of the passants personally acquainted with Burns were willing to allow that his merit exceeded their own. Mrs. McQuinn, the housekeeper at Dunlop House, where the poet was a frequent visitor, saw nothing in his writings calling for special admiration, and doubted the propriety of her mistress entertaining a mere ploughman who made rhymes, as regarded "The Cot-tar's Saturday Night," she declared to Mrs. Dunlop, with much shaking of the head, that "Nae doubt gentlemen and ladies think muckle o' that, but for me, it's naething but what I saw in my ain father's house every day, and I dinna see who he could have tauld it ony other way." It was a splendid compliment, yet the author once received perhaps a better—his own hearing, too—one, at least, which he appreciated more. A little boy was asked which of the poet's works he liked best. "I like 'The Cot-tar's Saturday Night' far the best," he exclaimed, "though it made me greet when my father made me read it to my mother."

At some future date we may publish Burns's Cot-tar's Saturday Night. The poet, with a sudden start look-ed into the boy's face intently, and patting him on the cheek, said, the tear glistening in his eye the while, "Well, my callant, it made me greet, too, more than once, when I was writing it at my father's fireside."

Scott, when about seventeen years of age, saw Burns in Edinburgh, and has afforded the most truthful and graphic account of his personal ap-pearance extant. It was at a literary dinner at Professor Ferguson's that they met. The wondrous boy enlight-ened the party as to the authorship of the line:

"The child of misery baptized in tears,"

by telling them it was Langhorne's. Whereupon Burns looked towards him and exclaimed, "You will be a man yet." No prophecy received fuller fulfilment, for if Sir Walter Scott did not rise to the full stature of true manhood, no mere man ever did. Scott brought pleasure with him into every party he chose to enter. The company had been admiring a print of Banbury's representing a soldier lying dead on the snow—the dog sit-ting in misery on the one side—on the other, his widow with a child in her arms. These lines were written un-derneath:

"Cold on Canadian hills, or Minden's plains,
Perhaps that parent wept her soldier slain;
Beat o'er her babe, her eye dissolved in dew,
The big drops mingling with the milk he drew,
Gave the sad presage of his future years—
The child of misery baptized in tears."

Burns was so much affected by the picture, or rather the ideas which it suggested to his mind, that he ac-tually shed tears. He asked whose the lines were, and the company in-cluded the celebrated Lugal Stewart, and other men of letters. Young Scott alone remembered that they occur in a half-forgotten poem of Longhorne's called by the unpronounceable title of "The Justice of the Peace." Sir Wal-ter Scott, when a lad at school, a boy in the same class was asked by the domineer what part of speech "With" was.

"A noun, sir," answered the boy.

"You young blockhead," cried the pedagogue. "What example can you give of such a thing?"

"I can tell you, sir," interrupted Scott. "You know there's a verse in the Bible which says, 'They bound Samson with Withs!'"

Mrs. Cockburn, authoress of the popular version of "The Flowers of the Forest," the one beginning "I've seen the smiling of fortune beguiling," has left a curious account of an interview which she had with Scott, when a boy not quite six years old. He was reading a poem to his mother when the lady entered, the subject of which was the description of a shipwreck. His passion rose with the storm, and he lifted up his eyes and hands. "There's a mast gone," says he; "Crash it goes; they will all perish." After his agitation, he turned to Mrs. Cockburn and said: "That is too melancholy, I had better read you something more amusing." Mrs. Cock-burn preferred a little chat, and asked his opinion of Milton and other books which he had been reading, which he gave wonderfully. One of his observations was: "How strange that Adam, just new come into the world, should know everything." "That must be the poet's fancy," said he. But when told he was created perfectly by God Himself, he instan-tly yielded. No writer of any time—Burns alone excepted—has handled the native tongue to better purpose for the expression of every feeling of the human heart than has Sir Walter Scott. Picture in your thoughtful im-agination of the great Sir Walter as a little boy of six years of age on his bended knees with his little head planted in his mother's lap saying his prayers aloud. The Lord's Prayer, "Our fader quhilk best T Hevin, hallowit weird thyne nam, cum thyne kinrik. Be done thyne will as is in Hevin, sox pras yerd. Our dailie breid gif us thilk day. And forleik us ony skathis, as we forgit thum quha skath us. And leed us na in thill tem-tation, butan fre us fra evil. Amen. When he was taken to bed the same evening, he told his aunt that he liked Mrs. Cockburn, "for I think," said he, "she is a Virtuoso like myself."

"Dear Walter, what is a Virtuoso?" inquired his aunt. "Don't you know?" said this little boy of six years of age. "Why, it's one that will know everithing." He was still a boy, when a lady friend remarked in company on the almost perpetual drizzle which prevails in the West of Scotland, and declared herself at a loss to account for it. Popping his head up from be-low the table, "It is," said he, "only Nature weepin for the barrenness of her soil." It was Sir Walter Scott who said that "his friends were great book-readers, but they were mistily a grand book-keepers"—a common accomplishment of the friends and acquaintances of all men—alas.

Beyond Expectation.

The head of a large business house bought a number of those "Do It Now" signs and hung them up around his office. They were effec-tive beyond expectation, and yet it can hardly be said that they worked well.

When, after the first few days, the business man counted up the results, he found that the cashier had bolted with £5,000, the head bookkeeper had eloped with the typist, three clerks had asked for a rise in salary, and the office-boy had set out to be-come a highwayman.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

LIFE'S JOYS.
These several joys must come to all:
The beauty of the morning sun,
The glory of a task well done,
The laughter of a friendly call.

It matters not who he may be,
Though rich or poor, or dull or wise,
Earth spreads her splendore for his eyes
And charges him no tithes or fees.

And there is glory in each task
Which by the humblest is possessed,
The pride of having done his best,
And God no more than this will ask.

No place, nor power, nor pomp nor skill,
Nor silver nor the yellow gold,
The beauty of the sun can hold,
The toiler's cottage it will fill.

Night brings a tap upon the door,
A friend has come with words of cheer,
The long day's worries disappear,
The rick man's friend can do no more.

Vainly we struggle while we live,
Seeking some fancied joys afar,
While at our hand earth's treasures are,
Which life to all of us would give.

Observe Eclipse.

STENTS TO PROVE EINSTEIN'S THEORY.

REAL Ques. Sept. 8. With Canadian astronomer from leading astronomers from all over the world, many of whom have assembled on the North coast of Australia to observe the eclipse of September 21. Professor A. Chant, Director of Astronomy at the University of Toronto and Dr. R.K. Young, Director in the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory at Victoria, B.C., Canadian scientists who will observe during the brief period of the eclipse. They arrived at their destination in the later part of the month. The chief instrument Professor Chant has is a camera with a six inch aperture and a seven foot mounted equatorially on a telescope and driven by an electrical clock. Great interest is taken in the eclipse this year because of the opportunity presented to obtain conclusive evidence either in support of what is known as the theory of relativity.

SPECIAL TELESCOPE. The aid of a specially constructed telescope it will also be possible to observe the corona, the remarkable appearance of pearly white color extending out some 200,000 or 300,000 miles which can be seen only when the sun is completely hidden by the moon. The Canadian Astronomers were joined at Perth by the British Government Astronomer and by a party under W. W. Bell, Director of the Lick Observatory in California, the latter an experienced eclipse observer. Professor Einstein it was thought a Dutch party from Java will observe on Christmas Island where the Greenwich party will occupy their positions. The path of the eclipse begins in Abyssinia, on the coast of Africa, passes eastward over the Maldives Islands, crosses the Indian Ocean and ends on the northwest coast of Australia, astronomically, the best point at which to observe the eclipse and take the photographs of the light from the stars beyond the sun, during the duration of totality there are five minutes eighteen seconds of the sun above the horizon, the altitude of the sun above the horizon is greatest, 58 degrees; and weather conditions are most favorable. The coast of the Great Sandy Desert is being virtually rainless and clear during September.

THE EINSTEIN THEORY. The subject that has been responsible for a large amount of scientific attention and some public interest in the past few years is what is known as the Einstein theory. Light is influenced by a large gravitational field and is deflected by the theory, by the way, did not originate with Einstein who is a German mathematician, but was collected by him from the observations of other scientists in past centuries. The law of gravitation is that a body left without support falls toward the earth at a fixed and established rate. However, Einstein's assertion is that a body like the sun will pull a star toward it and deflect its path out of its course, so that the star will appear to us to have shifted its position. The amount, which will be displaced depends upon the gravitational pull of the body which it is traveling, and can be calculated. Although it is known that the sun is traveling through space at the rate of thirteen miles a second, carrying the earth and all the other planets with him, yet, so far as our system is considered, he does not revolve in more or less circular orbits. Were it possible to observe the enormous amount of light from the sun, it would be seen projected on a background of stars just as we see Sirius (which is a larger star than ours) amongst the neighboring stars. The earth makes a complete revolution in a year so that the sun appears to follow a well-defined track (known as the ecliptic) through the same place, with reference to stars, each year.

THE ECLIPSE. The moon revolves around the earth in a path which is nearly the same track as the ecliptic, but it is really somewhat inclined to it, with the result that it crosses north, sometimes south, and sometimes east, of the ecliptic. It happens that at the point which it crosses the ecliptic it passes between the sun and the earth, the result being that an eclipse of the sun occurs. On such occasions when the sun is shut out by the moon, the surrounding stars appear in the ecliptic which has been projected on the sun. At the point where the sun is at the ecliptic, the position of Jupiter and Saturn, the position of Jupiter in the constellation of the zodiac may be recognized as the ecliptic may be recognized as the ecliptic. The ecliptic may be recognized as the ecliptic. The ecliptic may be recognized as the ecliptic.

It is a disease of the skin which is characterized by redness, itching, and the formation of small blisters. It is a disease which is very common in the air. plates made by night previously, then the theory of relativity will be considered to have received great impetus, and astronomers will have to revise their ideas of the structure of the universe and the placement of a very important celestial bodies therein.

THE CORONA. Perhaps a few details of what is known as the corona referred to at the commencement of this article, may be of interest. The corona is not arranged in concentric layers like an atmosphere, but is made up of complicated systems of streamers in general stretching out radially from the sun, but often curved and somewhat resembling aurora. Many of those who have seen it declare that onal streamers often have their bases in the regions of the active prominences. That they are in some way connected with activity on the sun is shown by the fact that the form of the corona changes in a cycle of about eleven years, the same as that of sunspot activity. When the number of spots is at a maximum, the coronal streamers radiate from all latitudes almost equally. As the number passes, the streamers gradually withdraw from the poles of the sun and extend out to greater distances in the sunspot zones. When the number of spots is at a minimum, the corona consists of short rays in the polar regions curved away from the solar axis and streamers extending out in the equatorial plane. At present is that of an atmosphere like the one surrounding the earth. Its increase in density towards the sun is inappreciable slow, though, doubtless, the pressure of the sun's light, and the effect of electric forces upon the small particles of which it is composed are opposed to the force of gravity. This radial structure and periodic variation in form are without satisfactory explanation. The opportunity of studying the corona is one of the reasons for the great scientific interest in eclipses.

BRITISH EXPEDITION. The British expedition which is making observations on Christmas Island is under the direction of H. Spencer Jones, chief assistant at Greenwich Observatory together with J. F. Meade who discovered the nights satellite of Jupiter. Most exact instruments, capable of registering the minutest detail of the eclipse of the sun, have been sent out from England and have been erected. The great telescope included among these instruments has been handled almost exclusively by a single person under the supervision of members of the expedition. The photographs taken on September 21 will be used in connection with a set taken in South America and West Africa in May 1919, which indicated that the Einstein theory was correct. However, the reliability of the instruments used on that occasion has been questioned, hence the proposed observations. The astrographic telescope that has been transported from Greenwich to Christmas Island is probably the most highly valued of the numerous treasures of the British Observatory. In previous similar experiments, it has been found necessary to point the instrument away from the sun, the photographs having been secured through the use of a mirror, which allowed for a slight miscalculation and fault in the results. In this instance the Christmas Island camera will point directly at the sun and through the use of a delicate mechanism will follow the sun through the eclipse. Another British expedition will make observations on the Leeward Islands. This expedition is under the direction of Professor J. Evershed, director of the Kodaikanal Observatory, a British institution in India. The expedition from the United States is under the direction of Dr. W. W. Campbell, director of the Lick Observatory of the University of California, on the Great Sandy Desert, on the North-Western shore of Australia landing in surf boats at a point about 200 miles north and east of Broome, the last landing-place on that place and only a small village settlement. The fruits of the elaborate and expensive preparations will mean much to the world's store of astronomical knowledge, and it is hoped that the occasion of the eclipse will not be hoodwinked by rainy weather, at least not for a few hours before and after the phenomena.

An Unsatisfactory Victory.

September 8, 1815, was a disastrous date in the annals of Scotland, being one which witnessed sorrow and dismay all through the country, and which for many years was looked upon with regret, for it was the day upon which was fought the famous battle of Fodden Field. At one time in the fight it looked as though the Scots had a very good chance of winning, for the right wing of the English army was utterly defeated, but the men under the Earl of Huntly and Home, instead of following up their victory, abandoned themselves to pillaging the baggage of both armies. The real battle was fought in the centre, where King James, surrounded by the flower of the land, fought bravely and stubbornly against the attacks of the Earl of Surrey. The result of this battle—an example of gigantic folly on the part of James IV.—was the death of the King, and ten thousand men, and of these the great proportion were of high rank, the remainder being composed of the gentry, the farmers, and the landed yeomen, who disdained to fly when their sovereign and his nobles lay stretched in heaps around them. Besides the King, there fell the Archbishop of St. Andrews, thirteen Earls, two Bishops, fifteen Lords, and Chiefs of Clans, and five Peer's sons. There were few families of note in Scotland which did not lose one relative, while many had to bewail the death of all their men folk. The English though led by the Earl of Surrey, were at the end of the day so crippled that they were unable to follow up their success, having lost at least between six and seven thousand men; so neither side gained any great advantage from this famous fight. The archers of Bitterick, known in Scotland as the "Flowers of the Forest," perished nearly to a man; and to the present day is known by that name is almost invariably the "Dean March" used by all Scottish regiments.

Rink Shareholders Meet.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the St. John's Skating Rink Company, Limited, was held at the Prince of Wales Rink yesterday afternoon. The annual report and financial statement being submitted the following officers were appointed: President—Mr. W. Angus Reid. Vice-President—Mr. W. S. Monroe. Sec'y.—Messrs. David Baird, C. McK. Harvey, L. E. Emerson, and E. A. Bowring.

Mr. E. A. Bowring takes the vacancy on the Board created through the death of the late Mr. J. J. Tobin. Among the matters decided were the following which may be of interest to the public: Bennett's Band, which gave such satisfaction last season will be re-engaged for the coming season. The orchestra is to be put up for public auction and a new gallery will be made in the space created by the removal of this instrument. An up-to-date system for the checking of overcoats, etc., will be installed in the Gents' Dressing Room thus doing away with the confusion caused through the piling of clothing last season. The School Games will be played in the morning as formerly and the experiment introduced last winter of playing them in the night will be abandoned. Correspondence will be entered into with Grand Falls and the Conception Bay teams as to the possibility of playing a series of games in St. John's. The usual carnivals and ice sports will also take place. Whether permitting the rink will be held open on Christmas Day as was done last season.

Dr. Grenfell Explains.

Dear Sir—With reference to the "log of Strathcona" published in second week of July, I wish to say that the statement made by me referring to the repairs of "Strathcona" was inadvertently incorrect, and that the extent and cost of repair of steamer and delay was not attributable to the Newfoundland Dockyards, Limited. I understand that it contains my reference insofar as it imputes responsibility to them was incorrect and injurious. I therefore desire to correct my statement and to disavow my intention of reflecting upon them or their business in any way.

Yours truly,
W. T. GRENFELL.

Cooper's Annual Meeting OFFICERS ELECTED.

The St. John's Journeymen's Coopers' Union held its 30th annual meeting last night when over 130 members were present. The reports for the past year showed the marked progress had been made although at present the demand for their labor was somewhat backward. The election of officers was conducted by M. Healey, and resulted as follows:— President—Wm. Linegar. Vice Pres.—M. Gallivan. 1st Ass. V.P.—John Boggan. 2nd Ass. V.P.—Jas. Cantwell. 1st Treas.—Ed. Comerford. 2nd Treas.—Jas. Perchard. Secretary—Jas. J. Power. Marshal—Wm. Fower. Mr. Linegar, the newly elected President, had occupied this office for some ten years until last year, when he refused nomination, and his re-election for the ensuing year is a tribute to his ability and a recognition of his efforts on behalf of the Union. The usual vote of thanks was accorded after the election of officers, after which the meeting adjourned.

A Scandal.

A day or two ago this paper stated that the Montreal police authorities were in possession of information which led them to believe that some Newfoundlanders were connected with a certain set who were carrying on an opium traffic, and according to developments which have taken place during the last few days in St. John's, it can readily be seen that many people are interested in the dear little flower, which has been so much sought after and appreciated by an increasing number each day, as since Wednesday last the number of people, seen going around the streets with such a contented look, have caused a great deal of suspicious necessitating investigation, with the result that it was learned that these people had purchased some flowers not opium poppies, but beautiful asters from the Valley Nurseries, Telephone 1513, thus clearly showing the cause of their delight.

C. L. B. Presentation.

POPULAR WARRANT OFFICER RE-TIRED.

A deputation from F. Company of the C.L.B. Cadets, consisting of Lieut. P. B. Rendell, C.S.M. Best and Corpl. Barrett, recently called upon C.S.M. Bart Colton and presented him with a beautiful silver teapot, in appreciation of his services to the company whose sergeant major he was for some years. The gift was accompanied by an address, which will be found below. Serjt. Major Colton has done valuable work on behalf of the Brigade, and particularly in connection with the Athletic Association, of which he was the hardworking and energetic Secretary. He will be greatly missed by all members of the Battalion, who hope that before long, he will find time to resume his work with the Brigade. The address is as follows:—

September 6th, 1922.
Company Sergeant Major Bart Colton.
Dear Serjt. Major—We, the undersigned on behalf of F. Co. C.L.B. Cadets take this opportunity of expressing to you our heartfelt congratulations on your recent marriage. At the same time we wish to convey our highest appreciation of your work while in the Company. You were ever zealous for the welfare of the N.C.O.'s and laid under you at Serjt. Major, and at the same time coped with your officers, and always carried out your various duties in a most efficient manner. Your transfer was a very great loss to F. Company, but a distinct gain to A. Company.

We wish you to accept the accompanying gift as a slight token of the esteem in which you were and are now held. We also wish you and your good lady years of bliss and happiness in your "united states."

Yours sincerely,
F. MILES, Capt. O.C. F. Co.

Wedding Bells.

DOOLEY-COOK.

The R.C. Cathedral at Hr. Grace was the scene of a very pretty wedding at 9 a.m. on Monday, Sept. 4th, when Miss Mary (May) Dooley, eldest daughter of Const. and Mrs. Wm. Dooley, of this town, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. John P. Cook of St. Augustine's, N. D.B., the Rev. T. D. O'Neill officiating. The bride looked charming in a costume of navy blue Panama serge and large picture hat, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. She was attended by her sister, Miss Rita Dooley, who also looked well in a costume of navy blue trimmed with iridescent beads and hat to match, while the groom was ably supported by Mr. John J. Tobin, the popular assistant agent at the railway station here. The groom's present to the bride was a gold pendant, to the bridesmaid a gold signet ring, and to the groomsmen a set of gold cuff links and collar pin. After the ceremony the happy couple repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where breakfast was partaken of, and where, at noon, a sumptuous repast was served to the bridal party and a number of friends, and the usual toast list gone through, among the guests being Rev. T. D. O'Neill. The bride and groom left by the afternoon train, amid showers of confetti, to spend a few days at Whitbourne before joining the Prosper at St. John's for Little Bay, where the honeymoon will be spent. The happy couple will return by the Clyde and take up residence at Bishop's Falls. Mr. and Mrs. Cook were the recipients of a number of useful and valuable presents. The writer joins with their many friends in wishing them a long and happy voyage over the matrimonial sea.

WELL WISHER,
Hr. Grace, Sept. 5, 1922.

Obituary.

PATRICK B. MCGRATH.
With deepest regret we record a death, which occurred at Patrick's Cove, P.E., on August 18th, in the person of Patrick B. McGrath. He had been ailing for some time and quietly and peacefully the end came. Deceased was fifty-five years of age, and was one of the hardy type of Newfoundlanders and one of the good old stock which is fast dying out. P. B., as he was usually called, was known by many in the city, especially by the sportsmen, with whom he hunted game in years gone by. He was always ready to help his fellow-men and his hospitable home was ever open to welcome strangers. He received the last rites of Holy Church, the Rev. Fr. Ryan being at his bedside during his dying hours. He leaves a wife, three sons, two sisters, two brothers, and a large circle of friends to mourn their sad loss. May his soul rest in peace.

Our Dumb Animals.

REPORT OF CHIEF AGENT S.P.A. WEEK ENDING SEPT. 8th.

Called by police on Sunday morning to destroy a dog in Bishop & Sons Cove. At the request of the Private Secretary destroyed a large dog and two cats at Government House. Attended to the landing of 49 head of cattle, some sheep and 3 horses from the "Linda Parry" at Neal's wharf. Cattle in very poor condition, one horse having a bruised jaw. Dr. McNair attended to it and gave the necessary treatment. Prevented Stevedores from landing cattle with a rope sling, and advised them to get one of snags. This I borrowed for them from the "White II" called to Prigoe of Water Street to destroy a dog owned by Mr. Antle. Had a case in court against William Bassett for cruelty to his horse. He was fined $5. Ordered 4 horses off the street for rest and treatment. Attended a sale of cattle at cattle at Neal's wharf. One was perishing. Had it removed on sloven. Received a complaint from Mr. Murphy, butcher at the West End of a motor car running over a hen and leaving it to perish. Could not get number of car. Received complaint from Mr. Burstein of some one scalding a valuable dog owned by him. Doing all possible to locate the guilty party. A lady on Barnes Road complained of a horse being over-driven. Should this happen again the expressman is likely to be charged. I may add that the late shopping which necessitates late hours for the expressmen is largely responsible for this, as some of them do not reach home until the early hours of the morning. Received a phone message concerning a horse which was stood near the Tobacco Factory with a lead of wood. The animal had been standing there for four hours. Could not find the owner, but was given permission by Mr. H. Lane of Mellick Street to put it in his stable for the night. Received report of ponies being tied to grass, but investigated and found ponies alright. Visited Mr. Power's farm on the Torbay Road. He is looking after a couple of horses laid aside for treatment. Horses doing fairly well. Have been obliged to stop several men for hard driving. Attended to quite a number of minor complaints.

Industrial Exhibition.

BEAUTIFUL HANDWORK FROM NEWFOUNDLAND.

An exhibition of handwork made at the Grenfell Industrial Station, Red Bay, was held yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary at the King George V. Institute, Water Street. Quite a number of visitors including tourists were present, and all expressed their admiration of the splendid display and many purchases were made. On Monday and Tuesday next the general public will be given an opportunity of seeing the exhibits and no doubt a large number will avail of the opportunity, as at a period when everything is machine made, the value of hand work is appreciated, and its possession one of the joys of the housewife. Amongst the articles on display, which attracts particular attention are Mercantile Floss silk table runners, The Corvex of Lustré linen, Serviettes, Table covers, Bath Mats, and Floorings. The designs are very neat, the colors harmonious and the workmanship of the finest. All the articles are moderately priced and should command a ready sale. Other exhibits are toys made by children; these include pretty crocheted basket work, carved bears, reindeer and sleds, snow shoes, etc. To Miss Minnie Pike who has charge of the Industrial School, great credit is due for the training she has given those of the Newfoundland who have come under her care. During the long winter months, she has whole families under training, and the showing now being held, speaks for the success she has attained. Miss Pike was born on the West Coast and received her knowledge of weaving and other industrial arts through the Grenfell Association at the Training Institute, Berca, Kentucky. The exhibition is free and well worth seeing.
