Yet nothing like this has happened to us. Crops are not as overflowing as they were last year, but then last year was a very wonderful, year, and a record-breaker. Business has increased just as we expected it to increase. Chimneys have been sending up black smoke, wheels have been turning, locomotives have been shifting and racing, commodities have been changing hands, men have been working and trading and thinking, floods of gold have kept moving back and forth. There isn't any doubt about it. The country is prosperous.

None of us had any other thought up to a few weeks ago, and then, one day, something went wrong, something alarmed us-and what

Yet the past few weeks haven't wiped out the year's enormous comnercial record. The business has been done. The factories are still there. People need just as much as they needed before. The panic of a week couldn't blast the cotton fields or the tall corn or the waving

But that is past now. It's to-day we are concerned about and not so much to-day, either, because we are lifted up by the holiday spirit and don't think so much of the unpleasant side-but it's to-morrow.

What then? Will the strained conditions continue? Will things be worse than they have been? They will be much worse if you let them—and yet there won't be any reason why they should be.

The times are going to reflect the minds of the people. It is your privilege to make any kind of times you please. If you are hysterical, you will be doing your share towards making them bad. If you are afraid, you will encourage your neighbor to be afraid. If you lock up your money, other people will lock up theirs. If you wear a fearful face, so will they. If you talk hard times, those who hear you will be pretty apt to go away and believe hard times.

Times are not hard Believe that. Join the Smile Club. Times are good. Believe that, and live your belief, and they will be.

Echoes PARLIAMENT HILL

Three constituencies voted on Monday to send supporters of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to Ottawa. These were Ottawa City, Centre. York and Labelle. The government is entitled to what comfort it can get from the returns and there will of course be a diversity of opinion as to just how much ground it has lost since the general election of 1904. The party organs cannot be expected to admit any advantage for the other side. It so happens that all of the three constituencies had been previously Liberal; and that the Conservatives did not succeed in overturning one is taken by The Globe to mean that "the people are The Globe to mean that "the people are not tired of the Laurier government."

But let us look at the results: Ottawa votes at large for two members. In 1904 Belcourt and Stewart, Liberals, carried the city by 1457 and 1058 over Birkett and Champagne, Conservatives. The city is always with the government and no one expects that it will be fair fighting ground for the Conservatives until there is a change of government, in which case the capital may be expected.

In a by-election the advantage to begin with is conceded to be with the party in power. It holds the election machinery in its own hands, Alongside of this there is a disposition on the part of independent voters if no other considerations sway them to support the "lns" against the "outs." So that if there has been a change in the blas of the election machinery in its own hands, Alongside of this there is a disposition on the part of independent voters if no other considerations sway them to support the "lns" against the "outs." So that if there has been a change in the blas of the election machinery in its own hands, Alongside of this there is a disposition on the part of independent voters if no other considerations sway them to support the "lns" against the "outs." the Washington of the north. And on top of this there is an army of civil servants that ought to stay with the party in power.

The by-election was necessary owing to the calling of Hon. N. A. Belcourt to the senate. The Conservatives as a party decided that it would be a hopeless struggle and allowed the Liberal candidate. The field to himself. An independent candidate, W. D. Morris, who has a coal business he believes in advertising opposed the Liberal candidate, but the returns show that he was not taken seriously. He lost his deposit. Certain it is that the Liberal government is not losing ground in Ottawa City, and the next to be considered is Labelle, the seat formerly held by Bourassa. Mr. Bourassa was elected by 1493 in 1904, as a straight follower of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, but in the succeeding sessions he came to be regarded as an independent; and in pursuit of his campaign against the Gouln ministry of Quebec, he resigned his federal seat to run against Hon. Adelard Turgeon in Bellechasse, with the result that the minister was re-elected by a big majority. Mr. Bourassa decided to stay with Quebec politics and a Liberal was returned for Labelle on Monday by acclamation. So that there is neither gain nor loss for either party and if there is any "indication" of a change of sentiment it must be found in Centry York.

Editor Sunday World: Having been a subscriber to your valuable paper for a considerable time and being pleased with the impartial manner, editorial and otherwise, in which it is conducted, I now ask you to kindly insert the following figures will show: Cost of gas power, anthracite coal, per b.h.p. per 3000 hours, $8; cost of gas power, bituminous coal, per b.h.p. per 3000 hours, $4. No secrets exist as to the cost of gas power. Every citizen should followed.

VENERABLE DIRECTORS

English Railway Board.

Many Men More Than Eighty on the men who have had a training in business or industry, says The London Chronicle. They are chosen because of the titles which they bear or the financial interests which they represent. The majority of them were young when trade unions hardly existed. Some boards could get a quorum by their septuagenarian or octogenarian members. The chief responsibility and the executive ability are found, of course, in the general managers, but the boards decide all matters of policy and questions of principle, such as the non-recognition of trade unions.

The average age of the directors of the Southeastern Rallway is 68. There is not a board in the country which can equalit in years; it leads—for once. The leading Methuselah of the board is Sir John Hollams, who, at 87, is considering the They are chosen because of the titles Mellor and Sir Myles Fenton are veterans of 77, Lord Burton is three-score years and ten, and Lord Hothfield is only a year behind. The chairman, Mr. Cosmo Bonsor, is a comparative youth of 59, and a few other such young men reduce the average age to the respectable figure of 68.

There are five septuagenarians on the Great Eastern board—J. Foster, 75; Lord Eustace Cecil and Sir William Birt, 73; J. T. Mills, 71, and Lord Knollys, 70. Sir Henry Tyler is 80. The chairman, Lord Claud Hamilton, is 64.

The chairman of the Brighton Company is the veteran, Lord Cottesloe, who is at the head of this extensive system at 77, and he is assisted, among others, by Sir Arthur Otway, who is 85.

By the death of Oscar II., which took place at Stockholm, Sweden loses a wise and circumspect ruler, literature a gifted and conscientious student, and European royalty a distinguished and honored member, says The London Standard. Prince Oscar's father died in 1859, his brother Carl then ascending the throne. The new ruler being childless, the duties of crown prince fell upon Oscar, whose new role left him upon Oscar, whose new role letr nimbut little time for his hobby of literature. By the sudden death on Sept 18, 1872, of King Carl, Oscar, until then known as the Duke of Oester-Gotland, became king of the united kingdoms of Sweden and Norway. He was then in his 44th year, and at first he found it no easy task to acquire the popularity attained by his prede-RT. HON CECIL JOHN RHODES.

tended the University of Upsala, where he specially distinguished himself in mathematics. But the love of the sea was strong upon him, and naval pursuits absorbed most of his time and attention, and he rose to the rank of admiral. In the service, his character, talents, and amiability endeared him alike to equals and subordinates. He was widely learned in military history and navigation, and lectured on, these subjects before the Swedish Military Society in Stockholm. In 1858 he wrote subjects before the Swedish Military Society in Stockholm. In 1858 he wrote "Ur Svenska Flottans Minnen" (Menoris of the Swedish Fleet), a poem which—sent anonymously—won the second prize offered by the Swedish standing, he retained to the last the court, was reinstated. On Christmas evening. In 1887, while the family were assembled in the invalid queen's room. Mile Munck sang a poem composed by King Oscar, in which he pleads for the rights of love. When the song was ended the king rose from his chair and, taking the hand of his son, laid it silently in that of the singer. They were married in March of the following year, at Bournemouth: and the union has proved ideally happy. The young prince, who renounced his (probable) succession to the throne, lives a happy and active life with his family in the castle of Karlscrona.

Political Dissensions.

When, in 1814. Norway was ceded to Sweden by the King of Denmark at the bidding of the Allies, and Finand, separated from Sweden, was transferred to Russia, the Norwegian people challenged the validity of the Treaty of Kiel, under which these changes were effected, and declared the Danish Prince Christian Frederik as King of Norway, and framed for themselves a separate constitution. But it was unlikely that a brilliant and successful soldler like Bernadotte, who was then acting Crown Prince of interest to Russia. the Norwegating of Seveni, and declared to the Company of the

with such concessions as their royal prerogatives allowed them to grant. King Oscar shared in the failure of their efforts. In the first year of his reign the Norwegians proposed such radical alterations in the constitution as his majesty was unable to accept. Thrice—in 1872, 1877 and 1880—the Storthing passed a bill empowering ministers to take part in its proceedings, which was contrary to the en-actments of the Norwegian constitution. On each occasion the king rejected the measure but signified his willingness to agree to certain modifications in the constitution on condition that the crown should have the power to dissolve the diet if ne-cessary. This offer was refused. So the struggle was kept alive by the proposals by the crown and the diet till a recourse to arms seemed almost inevitable. The Norwegian extremists association to arm volunteers for the purpose of opposing Sweden. In 1885 Sweden made an alteration in its con-stitution which, Dr. Nansen wrote in 1898, aggravated the strife, and was the actual cause of the recent conflict. This was the withdrawal of the con-duct of foreign affairs from the comduct of foreign affairs from the com-mon sovereign and the entrusting of it exclusively to two Swedish minis-ters and another councillor of state. responsible only to the Swedish par-liament. The point at issue thus be-came a question of foreign diplomatic relations, and the Norwegians fully utilized their opportunity. Since the union of 1814 Norway had had no separate foreign minister; but it now separate foreign minister; but it now, in 1885, claimed to be put on an equal footing with Sweden in the transac-tion of foreign diplomatic business—a not unreasonable request. The nego-tiations between the two governments press brought the question up again, Norway demanding that foreign affairs should be conducted by three Norwegian and three Swedish ministers, and that the forerign minister might be a native of either country. Public opinion in Sweden was divided more and more acrimonious in nature.

I have learned from a trustworthy quarter that he had hardly been invested with the dictatorship when he presented himself to the king, explained to him the financial position of the treasury, informed him of the sums due from the royal house, and told his majesty plainly that the treasury could make no further advances to the crown. The young prince, the heir, Dom Mandel was present at the scene and burst into tears at the plain language employed by Franco, who was addressing the king for the first time in his hearing. The king, instead of being annoyed, agreed with the minister, and from that moment the system of advances has at solutely stopped. The king has ceded to lutely stopped. REPLY TO DR. McCRIMMON.

Editor World: I have just read a re- dividual responsibility of the defendort of an address by Prof. A. B. Mc- ants. Crimmon, before the Canadian Club. In that address he claims there is a deeper problem than the fair distribu-tion of wealth, and that is the problem of education, the problem of "equalization of opportunities for education."
He referred to the "white plague of consumption," and also to the "black plague of social disease" among us. And he concluded: "A recognition of the democratic principle that it is the character of the man that dignifies the work, and not vice versa, will lead to an adjustment of the vocations of life, relieve the learned professions of misfits and allow every man the proportunity of doing his best for the life of our ccuntry."

ity of doing his best for the life of our country."

Now, Mr. Editor, I want to protest against Prof. McCrimmon's statements. They sound big, but they are not true. They are not supported by facts and conditions. I fear he prefers to deal in the language of flattery rather than in the language of stern truth. There can be no more important problem for "a fair distribution of wealth." And what is a fair distribution of wealth." And what is a fair distribution of wealth." Is that not a fair distribution of wealth which rewards each according to his industry? That gives to each what he earns and to no man what he does not earn. Is that not a fair distribution of wealth that gives wealth to him who saves it? Is that not the ethics of Christianity? "If a man work not, neither shall he eat." Is that not the idea underlying the fair distribution of wealth? Is wealth not the product of labor. Is labor not the result of my life effort, of the activity of my life effort, of the activity of my my life effort, of the activity of my hend or brain? Is my life my own Is not then my labor and what it produces, the product of my life? Is it not mine?

The mayor and his advisers have been considering the plant and its future, and hence arose conflicting rumors namely that the works were to be removed to Pittsburg, that they might be abandoned eventually, that immediate efforts would be made to extend the scope of the plant to old Pittsburg. It was learned yesterday, none of these reports were true. It is the intention to make the plant up-to-date, but whether to spend on it only the money now available or to increase the sum is the question confronting the administing the king of one of the tribes and eight of his followers were sent to prison. Boston Audience Treated to Spectacle of a Man in Brown Derby and Coat in "Il Trovatore,"

BOSTON, Dec 27.-Carlo Albani, a member of the San Carlo Opera Company, was arrested twice to-day at the instigation of Oscar Hammerstein of New York.

The second arrest was made to-night during the performance of "Il Trovatore" at the Majestic Theatre, and the audience enjoyed the spectacle of a big constable in a brown derby hat and a long overcoat following the tenor about the stage while he sang the part of Wanrico.

L. G. Grossman was the constable who thus made his debut in grand opera. He had a process, calling for the arrest of Albani in order to secure the tenor's salary, to which Hammerstein laid claim by virtue of his alleged contract.

Grossman wanted to haul Albani out Grossman wanted to haul Albani out of the theatre, but Director Russell induced him to allow the singer to continue thru the performance, the agreement being that the constable should remain on the stage within grabbing distance of his prisoner. Mr. Russell appeared behind the footlights and applogized to his audience for the ridiculous situation, saying:

"I will not attempt to deal with the motive which urged his arrest, but you can form your own conclusions as to

The constable was fearful lest Al-The constable was fearful lest Albani jump the footlights and escape, so he said, and he followed the tenor every minute during his performance.

Every time Grossman strolled across the stage at the heels of his man the audience hissed him vigorously, but this did not faze the officer of the law.

During the appell chemic the smalls this did not faze the officer of the law.

During the anvil chorus the sparks rather interfered with the constable's vision and when the gay gypsy mother revealed the identity of Manrico and Albani made a jump towards the opposite side of the stage Grossman gave chase to the apparently fleeing gypsy and nearly upset the tripod and kettle.

Albani's first arrest came this morning. It was the result of action taken by Hammerstein, who employed Albani when he first came to this country, and who was instrumental in certificial. TORONTO JUNCTION.

TORONTO JUNCTION, Dec. 28.—If the clergy of other towns and cities take as active a part in the compaign for local option as do those of the Junction, the liquor dealers will find in the members of the ministerial associations worthy and energetic opponents who are not easily prevented from making local option an important factor in the politics of this country. Rev. Dr. Hazzelwood of the Annette-street Methodist Church, Rev. Dr. Pidgeon of Victoria Presbyterian Church and Rev. Thomas Cowan of the Baptist Church, Annette-street, are all carrying on a relentless crusade against the sale of intoxicants in any shape or form.

—Presbyterian— TORONTO JUNCTION, Dec. 28.-1

Some brokers who have confidence in the directorate of the Mexican company are advising holders of Sao Paulo stock to sell this issue and invest in the former, the interchange giving about 21-2 shares of Mexican for one of Sao Paulo, which, providing the dividend is forthwhich, provide nearly 9 per recovered, the trading resulting in the dividend is forthwhich provide nearly 9 per recovered, the trading resulting in the dividend is forthwhich provide nearly 9 per recovered, the trading resulting in the dividend is forthwhich.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—We look for simists anticipate the market to back and fill in an erratic manner until the turn of the year. Bullish manipulation among such leaders as Reading and Union Pacific is to be expected, but when-ever there is any real liquidation it will be at the expense of values, for about the only buying that is going on is for the short account. The mar-ket, we believe, should be sold now on the bulges, especially the industrial list, which has not fully discounted the passed and deferred dividends which are being reported from time to time. Scrip and stock dividends are worse than none in most cases, and it is believed that other railroads will be compelled to resor railroads will be compelled to resort to such measures or cut their payments. We prefer the short side of the market, as there will be a great deal of liquidation following the turn be made by individuals and corporabear ammunition. Bank statement prospects will likely be used to-day to advance the market further, but if this is successful we would sell, especially the steel, copper and smelt-ing stocks, and such rails as New York Central, St. Paul and Pennsylspots, and buy wheat on breaks for quirements of the 25 per cent. reserve rule. This is an increase of $11,580,-650 in the proportionate cash reserve as compared with the last week. NEW YORK, Dec. 28.-A mining engineer with an international reputa-tion, who has just returned from an extensive investigation of the Cobalt district in the interest of an English syndicate, declares in his report to his clients that the camp is a permanent one, that great values will be opened up at depth and that the future prosperity of the district will rest to a great extent on the extensive operation of milling plants on what he terms medium and low-grade ores. He is of the opinion that the erection of these plants in Cobalt will result in placing the best properties on a steady dividend basis. Many of the progressive companies in the district have long foreseen this, and during the past summer several milling plants, to be operated on the lines suggested by the engineer, have been erected. The Coniagas, McKinley-Darragh and Cobalt Central mines have recently put in operation effective modern reduction works. Th Cobalt Central plant is the largest and most substantial structure of the character that has thus far been erected. Ricketts & Banks, the mining engineers, made numerous tests on Cobalt Central ores before the spewhich took place at Waverly, N.J. As a result of these preliminary tests, Ricketts & Banks gave it as their opinion that a saving of 90 per cent. in metal values could be made. The plant has now been in operation about full capacity.

Most of these are due to too wide an expansion in credit, and are, therefore, not regarded as indicating any really permanent change in the commercial outlook of the Dominion. Pending this rearrangement of business conditions the financial institutions will feel compelled to exercise considerable discretion in their credit accommodations, and this will have an influence on stock market sentiment, although the same as week ago. The in and out dealings which now provide the daily list of transactions emanate from those who are bound up in the market for a livelihood. The public is either committed or entirely apathetic, and the apathy will not be arous

With the opening of the new year there should be further slow improvement in prices but it is impossible for the market to run into what might be termed a buoyant period.

Over $18,000,000 gold is still to be received on former engagements. Since August 9, there has been shipped to interior institutions by local banks some 1541,915,000 against $71,500,000 in 1906 and $59,400,000 in 1906. Surely the return flow to this centre must be very heavy when once it has been initiated. Our experts of wheat, corn, copper and cottent on this week were of aggregate value of about $24,700,000. Cotton exports in January and February should be large. This is one of the indications pointing to smaller business volumes and freer supplies of finds. We anticipate a general breaking down of interest rates the world over and rapid restoration of incommodations. This should be reflected by higher prices, especially the shape of short sales. Forced liquidation having been pretty well completed, the amount of long stock on the market has been small and covering on short contracts has consequently become more difficult.

The market bent has followed closely the range of the rates for call money. Advances and reactions in call loan rates during the week have been concurrent with stock fluctuations. Wall-street is full of fakes. but none more so than the call money rates. With commission houses able

TIRING OF OUTSIDE VENTURES "Is it any wonder that Canadian development is delayed? If you tried to float a Canadian enterprise of the highest merit you would have the greatest difficulty to do so," were the remarks of a Toronto financier a few days ago. "This is because there is more money in bringing in outside propositions," he went on. "Propositions in which any amount of water can be injected with impunity. Canadians will tire of these outside ventures later on, much to their own profit and the benefit of the Dominion. I think I am safe in saying that they are already showing signs of weariness in losing money in building up toreign propositions,"

NEW INSURANCE ACT. If the new Insurance Act is put into force as at first submitted it will not have anything like such influence on the stock markets as was expected it would have. The restrictions which are provided for future investments will keep out a lot of securities such as are now on the market, and will enable those now in the hands of the insurance companies to be put out among small holders. The time limit of five years for getting present specu-lative holdings into other hands is more than likely entirely satisfactory to the companies who have their surto the companies who have their sur plus funds in the cause of promo

CHANGES IN INTEREST RETURNS. Local financiers of some prom and one in particular, made the ment ten years ago that interest rates, had permanently taken on a lower level. The fallacy of this reasoning needs no further proof than the current returns on the highest grade of securities. About as short-sighted a piece of forecasting would be for the same individuals to come out now and say that interest rates have taken on a permanently higher level. Returns on capital are closely allied to commercial movements and are consequently subject to similar fluctuations. The year 1907 has been an abnormal one and it would be contrary to the law of averages to expect returns on during the next three months to keep on their feet unless the banks extend their credits in a more liberal manner than at present in vogue.

SITUATION AT GOLDFIELDS.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 28.—
President Roosevelt to-day telegraphed Gov. Sparks of Nevada that if use governor, within five days, will issue a call for a special session of the legislature, he will continue the troops at Goldfield during a period of three weeks.

If within five days the call has not been issued the troops will be withdrawn.

displayed in this method of individual locomotion. Business in this line in old London is brisk and whether the people are saving money and time by a return to the bicycle, or whether it is a recurring cycle of faddism, makes little difference to the tradesman. In Gay Paris.

To see the exhibition of automobiles, motor buses, taxicabs, tram cars and drays at the centre of France's gay life, is a finale not to be missed by anyone who crosses the Atlantic to see automechanism.

This method of individual modern science.

In London and Paris there are more autos than horses, says Mr. Hyslpp. And soon the horse will well night disappear from city streets, as far as the heavy business goes. This year the Darracq company have sold 5000 taximeter cabs. This goes to show how popular is becoming the autocab in the cities of the old world. Over 1000 of these cabs are to go to New York this year, 300 having been delivered already. The exhibit of freight gasoline cars,

"The New York show could be placed in a corner of the Grand Palais," renarked Mr. Hyslop, "and never be een, so great is the magnitude of the looking forward to a great business in seen, so great is the magnitude of the looking forward to a great business in Paris show. Trade in France is correspondingly greater, and the volume of business done in automobiles, discusts all talk of hard times."

I looking forward to a great business in Teronto in the near future. The use of gasoline and electricity is coming in fast and big changes in the city's business must perforce take place.

The constant announcements in the newspapers of cabmen who are giving up business and are offering their cabs for sale at bargain-counter prices make one realize more than ever that the day of the hansom cab, so long a feature of London life, is past, says a London correspondent. Underground railroads and above ground motor 'buses have helped to bring about its downfall, but its worst enemy is the motor taxicab. Londoners wonder now why the old one horsepower hansom has reigned so long. Now that the Chicago show is over it becomes a more firmly established fact than ever that the Oldsmobile is one of the most popular cars of the year. The predictions made at the time of the New York show are fulfilled and the season for 1908 has started off with a rush so far as our cars are concerned. During the present season generous losts are inclined to be extravagant and use champagne at their entertainments; the sensible man, however, by providing himself with a supply of radnor water, can give his guests a beverage quite equal to champagne when he uses radnor water to mix with good Scotch or rye whisky.

As One of YOUR ALDERMEN

GREETINGS

I wish you, one and all, the compliments of the season. May your best day in the old year be your worst day in the New Year. Let the incoming New Year be the dawn of a new era in our public and private life. Let the birth of the New Year be the birth of new ideas. Let us go to the polls on New Year's Day with one definite purpose—to serve our God and His children, the people. Fellow-men and women, let us be sincere. Let us be more honest than ever, not because it is the best policy, but because it is right. What we want in our public life is manhood, backed up by that most potent factor in life, beautiful womanhood, for the hand that rocks the cradle rules the nation.

My Final Appeal to the Intelligence of An Intelligent Electorate:

What Toronto Needs Is A Napoleon

I want Ward Six to be the Napoleonic ward of the City of Toronto. I want the electorate of Ward Six to set such an example to the City of Toronto that its influence will be widespread and far reaching in the civic affairs of our great city. Electors, think of yourselves and vote for the candidate who voices your sentiments: viz EGAN.

To My Fellow Workingmen

There never was a time in the history of Toronto when it was so imperative for the workingman to have strong representation in the City Council of Toronto as now.

We are informed by the City Press that our factories are daily laying off their employes. If this continues what will happen? Untold hardship. To counteract this, the workingmen must be represented in the City Council by men of personality and action, men who can grapple with any question in the interests of the workingman in case of crisis. The workingman does not want charity, he wants work—and it is for our City Council to see that he gets what he wants in case of lack of employment. On the other hand, there was never a time in the history of the workingmen when they had such a favorable opportunity to prove to our Manufacturers and their employers that the workingman is their best friend.

I call upon the workingmen of Ward 6 to stand by their employers this winter. You may have many and just grievances, but tide them over till the Spring. Do not be misled by Agitators who may be only seeking cheap notoriety at your expense. Many of your employers at the present time, owing to the stringency of the Money Market, are hard set enough without any further trouble to divert their minds from solving the problem of how to keep their factories running and their full staff employed. Stand by your employers this winter and help them by making them feel that you are their best friend.

You will find that at the proper time you will accomplish and procure your just dues. Being a strong protectionist, I further call upon you to purchase this winter as much of your personal requirements as possible from your own Canadian Manufacturers. Do this and help to stimulate home trade, by creating a large demand for the products of our Country and thus, perhaps, create a position for one of your now idle workingmen. Be sure you get the right brand, "Made in Canada," with the stamp of the Union Label.

The Workingman Must Have Work. Why?

Because Labor is no beggar; it asks no charity. It founds its claims on justice and equity. It will be content with no less; and that it is entitled to receive.

Am I Right or Am I Wrong? It is For You to Say on January 1st.

I want the electorate of Work 6 to protect their own interests in the coming Civic Election by casting their vote for such candidates who believe in the policy of favoring Toronto's Manufacturers, Industries and Merchants, when purchasing Civic Supplies and awarding civic contracts. This is a matter of Vital importance to the future welfare of the city. It means our own work for our own people; and keeping the people's money in local circulation.

Have you ever noticed when people resort to abuse, lies and vilification in their efforts to down an adversary, it is an infallible sign that they are all out of arguments? It also shows a lack of manly sense of fair play, for it takes a man to own up that he is in the wrong. Have you ever noticed a fine St. Bernard dog taking a walk and all the little cur dogs in the neighborhood yelping and snapping at his heels? The curs know they would get licked in a fair fight, and so they take it out in yelping and snapping.

Beware of false rumors—satisfy yourself first on any question you are in doubt of. Don't jump at hastily formed conclusions or be mislead by Dame Rumor.

Finally: I would like to state that if the ideas I have advanced meet with your approval, I want you to express your approval by using your influence in the cause of the things I advocate. Get out amongst your friends and work in my behalf. I believe my election is assured; but this is not enough. I want to see that the ideas which you may believe in are represented at the head of the poll in Ward 6. I want volunteer electors to work for my election.

My Head downtown Committee Room is 192 West King Street, Telephone Main 4469. I want all my supporters to-rally there on New Year's Night. My residence, 65 Jameson Ave., Telephone Park 949, will be used for the convenience of all electors who wish to work in my behalf. So now, if you are in sympathy with me, rally to my standard and do not stop working until the last trench is captured.

A Fearless Electorate Casting a Fearless Vote for a Fearless Candidate Will Win Rally to the Support of EGAN, the Standard Bearer of the Ward 6 Electorate

I am the man who intends to consult with my Electorate Periodically.

CHAPTER XXI.

THE HAMMER-LOCK. Day was breaking as Glenister came down the mountain. With the first light he halted to scan the trail, and having no means of knowing that the fresh tracks he found were not those his lathered horse ahead till he be came suddenly conscious that he was very tired and had not slept for two days and nights. The recollection did no reassure the young man, for his body was a weapon which must not fall in the slightest measure now that there was work to do. Even the unwelcome speculation upon his physical handicap offered relief, however, from the agony which fed upon him whenever he thought of Helen in the gambler's hands. Meanwhile, the horse, groaning at his master's violplunged onward towards the roofs of Nome, now growing grey in the first dawn.

It seemed years since Roy had seen the sunlight, for this night, burdened with suspense, had been endlessly long. His body was faint beneath the strain, and yet he rode on and on, tired, dogged, stony, his eyes set to-wards the sea, his mind a storm of formless, whirling thoughts, beneath which was an undeviating, implacable

He knew now that he had sacrificed all hope of the Midas, and likewise the hope of Helen was gone; in fact, began to realize dimly that from the beginning he had never had the possibility of winning her, that had never been destined for him. and that his love for her had a light by which that his love for her had sent as a light by which was to find himself. He had become failed everywhere, he had become an outlaw, he had fought and gone down, certain only of his rectitude and the mastery of his unruly spirit. Now the hour had come when he would perform his last mission, deriving therefrom that satisfaction which the gods could not deny. He would have

Goldwin Smith Condemns Local Option

WRITING to the Toronto Globe, Professor Goldwin Smith thus expresses his views on Local Option "I do not think it possible to enforce total abstinence. The taste for fermented liquors is common to all races of mankind, and it antedates the beginning of history. This taste the extreme prohibitionist hopes to eradicate by a single stroke of prohibitive legislation. Unless he can eradicate the taste, experience shows he cannot put downthe habit. In the attempt radically and suddenly to change the habits of mankind by law, I have no faith whatever, and I appeal to multiplied and decisive experience as a warrant for my unbelief."

The scheme took form without conscious effort on his part and embraced two things—the death of the gamble.

The politician shrugged his shoulders. "You have the drop on me. am unarmed." At which the miner's face lighted fiercely and he chuckled.

His eyes roved rapidly up and down the other's form, noting the thighs and close-drawn belt which lent the appearance of spareness, belied only by the neck and shoulders. He had beaten better men, and he reasonel that if it came to a physical test in these cramped quarters his great weight would more than offset any superier agility the miner might possess. The longer he looked the more he yielded to his hatred of the man before him, and the more cruelly he longed to satisfy it.

"Take off your coat," said Glenis-"Now turn around. All right! I just wanted to see if you were lying about your gun."

"I'll kill you," cried McNamara. Glenister laid his six-shooter upon the safe and slipped off his own wet garment. The difference was more marked now and the advantage more strongly with the receiver. Tho they had avoided allusion to it, each knew that this fight had nothing to do with the Midas and each realized whence sprang their fierce enmity. And it was meet that they should come together thus. It had been the one cer-tain and logical event which they had felt inevitably approaching from long back. And it was fitting, moreover, that they should fight alone and unwitnessed, armed only with the weapwitnessed, armed only with the weap-ons of the wilderness, for they were both of the far, free lands, were both of the fighter's type, and had both warred for the first, great prize.

They met feroclously. McNamara aimed a fearful blow, but Glenister met him squarely, beating him off cleverly, stepping in and out, his arms swinging loosely from his shoulders ilke whalebone withes tipped with lead. He moved lightly, his footing lead. He moved lightly, his footing made doubly secure by reason of his soft-soled mukluks. Recognizing his opponent's greater weight, he undertook merely to stop the headlong rushes and remain out of reach as long as possible. He struck the politician fairly in the mouth so that the man's head snapped back and his fists went wild then before the arms could went wild, then, before the arms could grasp him, the miner had broken ground and whipped another blow across: but McNamara was a boxer himself, so covered and blocked it. The politician spat thru his mashed lips and rushed again, sweeping his opponent from his feet. Again Glen-ister's fist shot forward like a lump of granite, but the other came on head down and the blow finished too high, landing on the big man's brow A sudden, darting agony paralyzed Roy's hand, and he realized that he had broken the metacarpal bones and

The Epidemic of Gladness

There is a contagion in the world during this holiday season. Every body has it. But its penalty is not unto death, but life. It is the epidemic

The source is not to be traced to stagnant pools or ugly corners. Rather look for it upon the strong swell of the Christmas and New Year's tide. Still it is none the less supreme. For the human heart does not feel its ills more consciously than at this season its happiness.

It is not to be charged against weather, fortune or age. They "catch it" in snow and rain; debtor and creditor are alike liable; it comes with both Santa Claus and the postman. All are clear cases of the prevailing

We have been watching it run its course over the children. What a reformation of manners! Every little fellow has been paying the price of goodness Evil spirits have been cast out. He is as a new music box tuned to every sweet note.

The first stage came with the closing programs of the public schools It ran higher with the prizes and carols given at the church. Then came the climax, when, with all the stockings below the mantlepiece, they dreamed and awaited the "reindeer train" and New Year bells. . .

Thus the shouts of gladness echo thruout the world of children. It is the boon of Divine love to heal their pain and sorrow.

But was there anything ever so universal? The railways are witnesses. Nothing save death itself, brings friends so far across sea and land. Only marriage bells can ring as lively as those which announce that the family turkey and pudding are ready. And business may just as well take a rest-for it must. Glad hearts are out on parade. They have the city, the country and everybody with them. Mark the good effects upon every rank, office and estate. Joy has no pride or prejudice. Over the poor man's humble dwelling, as the family assort the beauty gifts and partake of their frugal feast, the angels are breathing gladness, such as is distilled in Heaven.

Stop a moment also at the mansion and palace. Too much have the fret and noise of the "strenuous life" prevailed upon them. Noble things have fallen into neglect, which is the heaviest loss of life. Love suffers, sacrifice becomes strange, mankind has no brotherhood. But the annual infection of gladness has been caught. Wife is sweetheart again. He has sought for gifts, ashamed that so few friends have been made in life. "Thank God." said he, "that I yet have a few." And in remembering them, his heart beats again like that of a man.

There may be one who never "takes" the festive fever. Avoid Advertisements are paid for. They are not debtors to a paper; therefore it is best to give the editorial and business management some discretion as to what to publish, so that both may co-operate in keeping a paper a distributor of news and useful information, as well as a practical business proposition.

The Happy New Year

Thruout the Christian world New Year's is celebrated on January 1. We might imagine for the moment that this has been a fixed date for many a century, but it is not the case. January 1 has, in fact, been celebrated by the whole Christian world only since 1752, and then England was the last country to fall in line with the rest. Altho nations differed as to the time for beginning the year, yet, it has evidently been a custom from time immemorial as far back in heathen ages as the rudest calendar dates, to celebrate the first day of the opening year with festive rejoicing.

The early Romans divided the year into ten months, and, says legend, Numa Pompilius added January and February, with an occasional extra month intercalated in order to average three hundred and sixty-five and a fraction days in the solar year January was dedicated to James, who had two faces, one looking toward the past and the other toward the future, indicating a regard for both.

Tradition dates the origin of New Year's gifts, the giving of which still prevails among Latin races, back as far as 747 B.C. Branches cut from the wood consecrated to Sternia, the goddess of strength, were presented to the King of the Sabines on the first day of the year as presents of good omens. In the course of time, however, gifts became varied and more elaborate and were extracted by the Roman Emperor till they became such a burden upon the people that Claudius put a limit to them.

Among the early Britons, also, the ancient Druids distributed as new Year's gifts branches of sacred mistletoe cut with solemn ceremony the night before from an oak tree in the forest dedicated to the gods. At a later period Henry III. set the fashion of extorting gifts which reached its height in the reign of Elizabeth and died utterly with the death of Charles I. and the rule of Oliver Cromwell.

The early Romans entered upon their new year with fresh hope and ambition. Each strove to make his words and conduct the keynote of the coming year. Visits were exchanged, feuds banished and friendships renewed. (But the wild orgies that were such a prominent feature in the revelries of the winter solstice threw a cloud over the whole season. After the anniversary of Christ's nativity was fixed on December 25. New Year's Day, which was exactly one week later, partook of a religious nature, altho it was never possible to banish the convivial element.)

So much confusion grew out of the old calendar that Julius Caesar undertook to rectify it, B.C. 46. He gave the months the number of days they still have and made every fourth year a leap year, thus having an average of three hundred and sixty-five days and a quarter in the year which was more than eleven minutes too much. This style of reckening lasted till these accumulated eleven minutes amounted to ten complete days, so in the year 1582 Pope Gregory ordained that ten days be deducted from the year, and to prevent the trouble from recurring, every hundredth year was not to be a leap year, except every fourth hundredth, beginning with the year 2000. Hence 1908 will be the first leap year since 1896.

Catholic countries at once adopted this change, but in protestant countries prejudice against everything connected with the Church of Rome ran so high that even this great improvement was refused. The protestants on the continent accepted it in 1700 and then eleven days had to be deducted instead of ten, and England acquiesced only in 1752, times the vernal equinox had become gradually accepted as the beginning of the legal year, but now again January 1 was the universally accepted

Among the different forms of New Year's greetings, perhaps that practised by the inhabitants of Frankfurt-on-the-Maine is the most unique and beautiful. Parties congregate on New Year's eve and spend the time in merry-making, but when the first stroke of twelve sounds from the cathedral bell, all windows are thrown open and all the people of the town lean out upon the sills and, with glass upraised, join in the cry "Prosit Neu Jahr," that bursts in one volume of sound upon the astonish air of night. Before the last clang of twelve has melted into silence the toast of the hour has been drunk, the windows have been closed and the hush of midnight has settled once more over the deserted streets of the city.

In France gift-giving has been reduced to an economical social conion. As, for instance, it often happens that when a person receives a New Year's present he immediately despatches it with his compliments as a gift to some friend who, in his turn, passes it on to one of his friends. And thus it goes, doing the service of a social duty, till possibly it circulates back to the first donor. Beggars have their privileges, too, on New Year's Day, and are allowed to beg in peace and freedom. Thus in Paris, the beautiful, they often congregate at the entrances of the great

A curious feature of the season in China, Korea and Japan is that it is a common birthday for the community. From the moment a child makes his appearance in the world he is spoken of as a year old, and so continues until the beginning of the next year, when he is credited with another year.

In Scotland New Year's Day takes precedence over Christmas as the time of gift-giving and feasting. In retired towns of Scotland it is the custom for children of the poorer class on the morning of the last day of the year to swaddle themselves in a large sheet doubled up in front in the form of a large pocket, and then go in little bands calling at the doors of the richer inhabitants for a dole of wheaten bread. Each child gets one quadrant section of oat cake and sometimes a bit of cheese. This is called their "hogmanay." A favorite hymn used on the occasion is:

"Rise up, gude wife, and shake your feathers, Dinna think that we are beggars. We are bairns come to play

And to seek our hogmanay. Fifty years or more ago in some districts of Canada the year was ushered in by the "New Year Shooters," a band of young men whose number was reinforced as they went along until it became sometimes a small army of perhaps a hundred persons. They went from house to house, halted outside the door and with one united voice exclaimed. "We wish you a happy New Year." Then the captain of the host delivered in a whole-souled style the New Year's speech, which was followed by a general shout of "Three cheers for the Queen," and the firing of a gun. This finished, the door was usually thrown open and all were invited in to partake of such refreshment as hot tody and cake. Cheered by the welcome they proceeded on their way until the midnight hour was passed and the old year had given place to the new. The custom degenerated, and like many another, has passed out of use and almost out of memory.

Perhaps the most widespread of all ways of welcoming the New Year is by the ringing of bells— "Ring out the old, ring in the new.

Ring happy bells across the snow: The year is going, let him go, Ring out the false, ring in the true." The early Dutch settlers brought the custom of New Year's visiting is given with sincerity and judgment, with love and power, with them to America, and in New York it became so popular and was little fear need be entertained of the lives of boys and so badly abused that it died out about the middle of the nineteenth century. No matter what customs prevail in different lands, the one universal and distinct feature of the day is the "Happy New Year" greeting.

Our work is hopeless if we do not find the good in the world. Simon Peter was not fully equipped for service until he understood the larger salvation that knew nothing of the boundary line botween Jew and Gentile. You remember God's rebuke to his Jewish narrowness, and how the vision of the sheep made the apostle shout: "Now of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons; but in every nation he that feareth Him and worketh righteousness is accepted of him."

one thing everybody is inclined to accept, and that is that "Jesus Christ came into this world" and has left His impress on society as no other teacher or law-The only way to help people is to hold up the good. To magnify badness is to make the bad possible. Tell a group of boys that they are chock-full of bad. and they'll take you at your word and accept it with supine resignation, and use it for an excuse for the next plece of badness that crops out. Tell them about the good in them and the good God expects of them, and their better nature will respond. The greatest rebuke to a bad man is the life of a good man. It may be very comforting to a Pharisee to note how small his little sect is, but it is very salutary to other folks to believe that the good is everywhere.

Into this world" and has left His impress on society as no other teacher or law-up to denies the fact that Christ lived on this earth. We differ as to the object of His coming, but we are all agreed that He came. The most eloquent tribute that I ever heard paid to Christ as a great teacher and reformer and regenerator of human society was paid by a cultured, eloquent rabbi of St. Louis, three years ago, when he preached in his own synagog on Christmas day to an audience of Jew and Gentile. He called Him the greatest moralist and most sublime teacher that ever lived, the influence of whose pure and unselfish life was beyond compare. As Christians we are glad to hear these noble tributes to Him whom we worship as our Lord, and we are pleased to have our Hebrew citizens join with Gentiles, Protestant and Catholic alike, in celebrating the Christmas festival.

There must have been a "Christ Jesus" who came into this world if the But only he who sees takes off his shoes;

The good is increasing! "Now-a-days" is the best time since the flood "Now-a-days" is a kind of plous swear word with some folks. It must be given with a slight nasal twang on the "nyow" "You can't trust anybody nyow-a-days!" "You can't expect anything nyow-a-days!" is that so? Say not thou why are the former days better than these? for thou dost not enquire wisely concerning this. I take it that the man of proverbs meant to infer that such pessimistic talk was plasphemous! And if it was wrong to say such things then, in the B. C. calendar, how much more so now when we are about to begin another year's diary and write, 1908, A. D. Jesus salvation is a success. The annual presentation of Handel's immortal oratorio "The Messiah" will be given in Toronto at Massey Hall to-morrow evening by the Toronto Festival Chorus and Orchestra under the direction of Dr. F. H. Torrington. From the list of subscribers and sale of seats it promises to be one of the musical events of the season. In order to add to the beauty of the work the principal solo parts will be interpreted by a notable quartet of soloists, as follows: Mrs. Shanna Cumming, New York, soprano; Mrs. Grace Carter Merry, contralto; E. C. Towne, Chicago, tenor; and H. Ruthyen McDonald, bentices Mrs. Cumming is the pos-MRS. A. K. CALLAN.

The Toronto Oratorio Society been very fortunate in securing the highest class of soloists for their prohighest class of soloists for their production of "Joan of Arc" on Jan. 30 next. The work calls for soprano, tenor and baritone, and the society have engaged Mrs. Mabel Manley-Pickard of Toronto, William Lavin of Detroit and Claude Cunningham of New York to sing the parts. Mrs. Pickard is well known in this city and province as a soprano of marked ability, with an exceptionally pleasing voice, of which she has absolute control. Her work in "Samson" and "Judas Maccabeus" will be remembered with pleasure, and she will doubtless sing the title role of "Joan of Arc" with marked success. In other words, if he or she were to work alone, it would require the latter sum to achieve the same result, and even then unsatisfactorily, that is attained with his earning half that sum combined with her interest and effort in its disbursement. The home woman who doubts the truth of this has but to step into the ranks of the workers on the outside to prove it to her own satisfaction. And this reminds me of the New Jersey woman who made out a bill for services, and presented it to her husband. He was a rude man, and after a disagreement he suggested that she go home to her father. She is said to have told him calmly that she would like to be reimbursed for the 1040 weeks of household service during their married life of twenty years. The Great First-Aid

The world has been looking for an ideal healing preparation ever since Nature gave to man the instinct to rub a place that hurts. There were mystic oils in the dim days of Egyptian supremacy, precious ointments in later Biblical times, the costly unguents of martial Rome, and the famous healing balms of athletic Greece.

athletic Greece.

These historic healers were nearly all composed of vegetable extracts. In our own day ointments, salves, and liniments are generally made of coarse animal fats and mineral poisons, and they are quite risky and undependable.

Only in Zam-Buk have we a reliable healing balm. Only in Zam-Buk have the excellent points of the ancient preparations, and the properties required by modern science, been successfully combined. The result is the great first-aid which is established in home favour throughout the world.

Zam-Buk is the true descendant of those wonderful balms used by the gladiators of ancient Greece and Rome, and yet it is perfect in every point of the healing art even according to advanced twentieth-century knowledge.

Made from the rich saps, juices, and aromatic oils got from medicinal herbs, Zam-Buk is absolutely pure. This point alone places it in a field of its own, separate from common concoctions of lard, coagulated oils, impure colouring matters, mercury, zinc, lead, and bismuth. To learn how superior Zam-Buk is to these dangerous things one has only to remember their real action on the skin, and compare the well-known qualities of this unique balm.

Being perfectly antiseptic, Zam-Buk makes and keeps a wound clean and sweet, preventing complications in the shape of festering (or "gathering"), poisoning, and disease. It soothes, too, and allays inflammation, and not the least of its unique powers is that of growing new skin. AFFAIRS OF THE MUSICAL WORLD

A BRILLANT CANADIAN SINGER

An Interesting Sketch of the Phenomenal Success of One of Canada's Foremost Vecalists and among this country's most cultured and most successful singers, possessing a voice of remarkable sweetness and strength and of wonderful compass, over which she has perfect control, combining with this an attractive personality and artistic stple, marks her as one of the most captivating singers in this country.

The success of Miss Shepherd can safely be attributed to the innate ability which she possesses and which were evident in the days of her girlhood; indeed, as a child of five or six, she gave evidence of having exceptional musical ability, and was even at that early age destined to fill the place which she now so ably occupies. Her father was a man of rare musical talent, possessnig the genius for music in a marked degree, and from whom his daughter may be said to have inherited her exceptional gifts. Her mother was also a gifted musician of singular talent, and whose practiced eye saw that in her child were gifts of an extraordinary nature and who knew that if thew were to prove perment and lasting that it was requisite they should be put under careful and experienced teachers. This is probably where the secret of her success lies, for too often do we see youths with powers of unusual brightness carelessly trained, when, if carefully trained, their powers would prove permanent, but which are too often made to display them at the very time when they should be carefully nurtured.

At the age of 15 Miss Shepherd found herself at the Toronto Coonservatory

At the age of 15 Miss Shepherd found herself at the Toronto Coonservatory of Music, under the able tuition of Dr. Edward Fisher and Signor D'Auria, where with all the enthusiasm of youth she applied herself with untiring zeal, and within a few years had not only taken a brilliant course in all her subjects, but on the night of her graduation was given the honor exceptional achievement Miss Shepherd had during her course held some of the most prominent church soloist positions in Toronto, as well as devoting herself to other exacting professional duties.

Immediately after graduating she began to look for new worlds to conqueror, and other hills to climb, and so when away off in Texas, came the call to be musical directress of one of the finest musical colleges in America she, while reluctant to leave home, decided to go where in all probability her qualifications would find a congenial sphere. During her sojurn in Texas Miss Shepherd occupied the foremost place in the City of Dallas as a vocalist and teacher of vocal, and when the time came to attempt still greater things, the authorities were warm in their praise for the one who had brought honor to the college and reputation to the state.

pupil, and the world-famous DeReske as his favored scholar. Thus we see that the girl who won honors in Toronto could demand recognition in the world's greatest musical centre. Thus, indeed, is a worthy accomplishment gained thru and by that indominable spirit which has always characterized her efforts and which has brought her to the distinct place which she now her home in Toronto and is meeting with the same brilliant success that she has always been able to demand, and it is a credit of the Toronto Conservatory of Music that it knows how to appreciate those who do honor to their alma mater. Besides being on the faculty of the Conservatory, Miss Shepherd is musical instructor at Westborne Lallies' College and also at Hamilton's leading ladies' college, Kingsthorpe.

After having inspired all by his production of the shorming "Sixth Soiree Vienne," he took his first well-earned rest, which indeed no one grudged him, before playing as encore the "Berceuse" of Chopin, the production of which was most characteristic of the artist Paderewski, the left hand playing the wonderful everrecurring, never wearying, cradel theme—calm itself—a divine, everlasting rocking; the right hand weaving a kind of musical roccoco work, the runs consisting of the most different values of notes blending with admirable accuracy to the beats of the left hand.

The next number was Chopin—a nocturne, and then two etudes, the order of which he changed—and it was funny to see the audience—not all of them of curse—as they tried in vain to recognize the motive of etude No 10. printed on the program, not noticing that Paderewski played starting with A flat the program, not noticing that the program, not noticing that the program is the first played starting with A flat the program, not noticing that the program is the first played starting with A flat the program is the correctant of the program. Those who pleasantly remember James O'Neill in his well-known role of Monte Cristo, will delight in seeing him in this part again. His reputation here has been placed on a firm foundation and his ability to impersonate this popular hero is undoubted. In such a play, so replete with thrilling incident, so strong of interest-compelling turns of narrative, there is abundant opportunity for forceful characterization, and for the demands of his nart Mr. O'Neill is ever ready. Monte acterization, and for the demands of his part Mr. O'Neill is ever ready. Monte Cristo is a man of love and hatred, and as portrayed by Mr. O'Neill is so thoroly a man of flesh and blood as to overceme these qualities of the plot and to win admiration and respect. His Passions strike true, his emotions ring sincere, and the character of Monte Cristo comes near to us thru sympathy. Mr. O'Neill will appear at the Grand for a week during January.

Barney Gilmore as "Dublin Dan." "Dublin Dan, the Irish Detective," is the title of the new play that Barney Gilmore brings to the Majestic next week.

From all accounts the play is one of the best vehicles of its kind that have been sent forth this season, abounding as it does in a variety of incidents of the most interesting character and embodying a tale of the most absorbing novelty. Mr. Gilmore is said to have this season one of the most suitable this season one of the most suitable roles that have ever fallen to his lot and this season one of the roles that have ever fallen to his lot and a play that will bear comparison with the best. Mr. Gilmore is surrounded by a company that could hardly be excelled in point of adaptability to the various roles to be portrayed, and he has mounted his play in a manner at once lavish and artistic. The piece is divided into four acts, the scenes of which are laid in and about New York City. The principal character, essayed by Mr. Gilmore, is that of a famous detective known as "Dublin Dan," who has been called in to assist the secret service operatives in running down a service operatives in running down a band of desperate forgers and coun-terfeiters, and who is also working in conjunction with the New York detective force. The role is one that is said to fit the star like a glove.

COMPOUND INTEREST

The earning power of compound interest is not as generally understood and appreciated as it should be. It may be illustrated by the following news item which recently appeared in the press:

A FIVE-DOLLAR BILL AT INTEREST.

(From the Philadelphia Star.)

Mr. L. C. St. John of this city has a curiosity in his possession in a five dellar bill which is 125 years old. He has just gained possesion of it, although it was left to him by his mother, who died some twelve years ago. The bill was given her when a child by a relative. It was issued under the Act of July 2, 1770, by the State of Rhode Island, drawing five per cent interest per annum, and signed by John Arnold. Figuring compound interest, it is now worth $2560.

Situated at the intersection of Parliament and Winchester-streets, it is rightly given the nomen "new," not because the location has not been used for hotel purposes previously, but on account of the fact that under the master hand of Mr. W. "Why don't you put a tax on foreign corn?" I was asked by a provincial prime minister. "Your corn comes in free," I answered. "Your corn comes in free," I answered. "how should we profit you by taxing the foreigner?" "It would be evidence that you recognized us as your own people." "Will you then," I asked, "put a tax on the foreign immigrant, to show that you wish Canada to be British, and not cosmopolitan?' I spoke about the value of British character. "We have got to develop the country," was the reply.

The foreigner who settles in Canada never becomes a loyal Briton. He never considers the proud course of English history, the noble growth of English law, the consecrated obligations of English law, the consecrated obligations of English Britain. He would be no more at home in Yorkshire or Sussex that he would be in Turkey or China. What he has of lovalty he gives to the Dominion, and he grows in that loyalty as completely as a stranger to the kinship of the British race as the German-Americal can or the French-Canadian. Home, Home

Messieurs and Mesdames, winter is coming.

The air grows cold, fogs thicken. Darkness creeps on us earlier, earlier, night by night. Rarely shines the sun now from the clear sky with lordly, dazzling smile, rather he blinks from the grey a bleared red eye at us, as of an overnight reveler.

We awake in half-lights and dress drunkenly-teeth chattering.

Now home grows desirable and street a thing to be rushed thru. Arm-chairs that stood the summer long, unloved—impertinent, before meaningless grinning skeleton, do now continually embrace us—creak nearer nightly to the spluttering red palpi-

Home! What did it mean to us in the summer months with open windows and doors, and outdoor games and river boating, or at least with evening rambles or stretched declensions and casual gossip on doorsteps and street-way paving.

Home? 'Twas a foreign house where we snored o' nights, impatient for the freedom of the morrow. Where some poor slave must linger to spread plain supper for us, and cook delicates to the feverish morning meal. Out! sluggard, out! the open called, for every indoor minute idly spent.

And now, O dulce domum, we cluster round the sacred hearth, birthplace of all communal life, reach hands—chilled hands, out to thy generous glow, place on thy ruddy bars thee, Lares and Penates! Know we not the draughty office, dull-lighted; whisked nipping journeys, and thy lamplit flame-shot windows glimmering for a goal?

Oh, for a mighty hearth with great round blazing logs abounding, sending clear, eager flame up the huge hidden chimney-way! The rate collector fly away with all stoves—coal, gas, oil; asbestos, kitchen ranges, what not, that do mimic, mask, deform the true first purpose of a fire! would see thee glow and flare right royally, oh most worshipful! Shall they cage thee in unmannerly plates, hide thy resplendent countenance from us, burn thy life-blood in conduits for mere base material needs? The heavens forbid!

Reader, somewhere in London (where I may not tell you for dread of too much visitation) is waiting for me a red blaze in fervent bars, a swept hearth speckled with dropped rain of vanishing fires, warmed slippers, lighted, shaded lamp, importunate kettle singing almost to overflow on the glowing hob.

For me the day is sheer blank hia-

"The fog" (I offer it for a victim to her hooded blow), "the fog delayed me." Ingrate that I am to utter biasphemies against this good fellow that makes my home so bright!

Now shall I, pipe i'the mouth, and armchair holding me read in the armchair holding me, read in the monthlies of fearsome shipwrecks and all strange disasters with most com-fortable alarm. Life drones behind thick curtains with pleasant, safe, far-off reverberation. The shifting world and the mysteries of it, and the clamors of the crowd, have stilled and stiffened to this calm, cheerful, understandable room—I and she and the red blaze of the hearth. I and she and the hearth—we, too, have our mysteries, no doubt—or so we guess, as our eyes meet in chance passage, and we smile; but what mysteries there may me we let slumber for a ime.

Outside the fog thickens to palpable yellow, blurred with red blood spots, big with veiled cry and rumor of un-seen folk and traffic. But here are peace and order, and the tinkle of china and the spreading fragrace of tea and the bubbling pour of it. For this hour we are well pleased with our close four walls, and seek no further expansion. Anguish outside our gates may cry, and poverty may rage, bu: we shall not heed them; rough winds rattle the window panes, babble and shrick in the chimney, and we shall only smile a little, and take our pipe and our knitting and draw closer to the blaze.

Can you blame us, reader? We two have long been wanderers on rough ways where the foot slipped, and big winds buffeted; where man was not yet quite lord, but the great blind forces carelessly tossed him. And now we have come to this little haven of light and calm, where, if we will, we leave, and if we will we leave, and if we will we leave, and we take, and, if we will, we leave, and we have set straight bounds to the wind's flerceness, and all rough, savage things are barred their way. Can you wender (it is winter, and the town is desolate) that we take hands and smile, and draw a little nearer to the blaze?-W. R. Titterton, in London Daily News.

THE HOEMAN'S THANKSGIVING.

(By Edwin Markham.) I count up in this song of cheer The blessings of a busy year:

A roof so low I lose no strain, No ripple of the friendly rain; A chimney where all winter long The logs give back the wild bird's song.

A field, a neighborly old ground, Which year by year, without a sound Lifts bread to me and roses sweet From out the dark below my feet.

The tree-toad that is first to cheer With crinkling flute the green o' the year; The cricket on the garden mound, Stitching the dark with threads of sound.

The wind that cools my hidden spring And sets my corn-field whispering; And shades across, to lightly blow Green ripples down the apple row.

The shy paths darting thru the wheat, Marked by the prints of little feet— Grey squirrels on their thrifty round, Crows condescending to the ground.

That leafy hollow that was stirred A hundred mornings by a bird That sang at daybreak on a brier, Setting the grey of dawn afire!

The lone star and the shadowed hush That comes at evening, when the Ravels the day, so worn and long, Into the silver of a song.

Dr. Hale spends a great deal of his time in his study and is a hard worker, even to-day at the age of 85.—Copyright 1907 by Underwood & Underwood.

A Day With Edward Everett Hale

By HORACE D. ASHTON.

and a fire. It was a place to dream in, to be alone with your thoughts, to be at peace.

From out of the depths of a doorway stepped a shadowy figure. It was that of a tall man, with a large head and long, shaggy silver hair. The face was the carved mahogany mantel. The ceilheavy drooping lids, were soft and kind and blue. It was a quaint, yet a voice, striking it its pleasing tone, rang

"How do you do? I am sorry to have kept you waiting. I shook off the spell of the old study and grasped the hand of Edward Ever-ett Hale, best loved of men because he loved all mankind.

I muttered a few commonplaces still with my day-dream heavy upon me. I looked at this man of eighty-five and tried to account for the qualities which endow him with the extraordinary fer-tility of mind, the vitality of his interests and occupations and their variety. I knew that from early manhood he had not only had all kinds of irons in the fire, but had kept them glowing. I knew he had practised several professions in an age in which specialization had become a fad and had succeeded on high lines in them. Then I uttered another commonplace.

"I thought my call might be too early doctor?"

"Bless you, no," he replied. "I am up and having my coffee at 6 a. m. in summer and seven in winter. I believe that every man should break the backbone of his work before noon and spend as much of the afternoon as possible in recreation. Sleep long—that is, retire early so that you can get plenty of sleep—and arise early."

"And this is the secret of your youthfulness?" I ventured.

fulness?" I ventured. He smiled quietly. "The secret of long life is of course health. No one can have health without living a clean life, plenty of sleep, and life out of doors. If I had to make the rules of life I should say: 'Ride, drive, or walk every day, rain or shine!'
"A young lady came to me the other day and asked me how to keep from being cross. I told her to help somebeing cross. I told her to help some-body and then she would have no time to be cross—spend her time doing good —have other objects in life than buy-ing peppermint lozenges. Elbow with the crowd—that is meet everyone—help whoever you can. There are plenty who need help."

"In that last sentence, doctor," I queried, "you lay open an interesting question to be answered by one who has lived as long as you; that is, are opportunities as great or greater for the young man to-day than they were in former generations?"

"Opportunities!" he repeated. "You make your opportunities. They do not come to the man or woman who sits and waits." Then he moved out of the circle of light towards the door. "Come," he said, "let us go into the yard. It is a beautiful day."

We walked down the board walk to the rear of the quaint old colonial frame house, with its great wooden pillars. There lay on old dory brought from Cape Cod, quite dilapidated, filled with earth and planted with petunias. "These petunias always remind me green house off there in the corner of the yard, but the boys kept breaking the glass by throwing stones, so I had to give it up."

We turned to go back up the little path and I noticed my host's eye wander to each side.

"I wonder where my white cat is?"
he remarked. "She is always following me around. No—I am not fond of cats, but she seems to like me so I am always kind to her." Then I told him of Mark Twain's kittens and his custom of renting them during the summer when the distinguished author is away from New York. He laughed heartily and said, as we walked around to the front of the ouse:

"We might rent him a dozen or so, think it would be a paying business," Near the step of the verandah he was joined by his daughter. He pointed out

We retired to the house and he show-
