Our bank therefore oursued the policy of holding out a possible 6 per cent. rate as a warning to those markets, all of them being siv n to understand that large gold withdrawals from here, or renewals of the political alarm, would mean that such action would be taken instantly. It should, however, be clearly understood that the rise was averted only by voluntary postponement of such gold withdrawals by foreign markets, and

Money Squeeze in Germany. As for the continent's own situation it must again be pointed out that the money squeeze in Germany is mainly due to absence of the usual loans by French institutions, with the aggravating influence of the bank "moratorium" in certain European quarters and of the the private hoarding of cash in Germany itself.

As a result of many conversations in the highest quarters, I am obliged to say that despite the recent recovery on your market, the faith in American securities on the part of our best financial people, who are usually friendly to them, has been undoubtedly shaken by recent events.

For one thing, your people probably do not realize the bad effect produced by the breach of political good faith in the Panama incident, and it is also being felt that the nature of the money trust enquiries is bound to delay, unfortunately, the consideration of matters like currency and banking reform. This seems to us extremely regrettable, in view of your country's natural advantages, enormous wealth and unequaled energy and financial genius. Money Trust Enquiry.

Mr. Morgan's testimony was imperfectly cabled to this side, but the general impression here is that, while intelligible to financial listeners, it will jar on the ears of the ordinary man in the street, which have now been habitually attuned to the extravagant ideas and conceptions of finance that have so long been spread broadcast by your sensational writers and politicians.

-one of the most beautiful pianos manufactured. It is made in size of Baby or Miniature Grand, and reflects in every way the prevailing art thought of the days of Louis XV. In some respects there is found in the artistic case of this piano the peculiar art finish that is so familiar to the rococo period. The lines and scrolls are all of the most artistic character, and there is something graceful in every turn, however viewed, emblematic of the period of Louis XV. This special design is made in fancy mahogany. It excels in tone -the great test of every piano.

The marriage took place at St, John's Church, Cavan, Ont, on Wed-nesday afternoon at 2 o'clock of Miss Eva Grace Louise Hutchinson, daugh-ter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hutchinson, Millbrook, Ont, to Capt. Archibald John Earchman, C.E., of Toronto, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Earch-man of Port Perry. The church was beautifully decorated with evergreens and white chrysanthemums, and the ceremony was performed under an arch of greenery and a large white bell. Rev. Canon Allen performed the ceremony. Mrs. Allen presided at the organ, and during the signing of the register Mrs. Dudley Bissell of Toronto sang "O Perfect Love." The ride, who was given away by her father, looked lovely in her wedding jown of white satin and Chantilly lace, with panniers of chilfon, slashed over a petiticoat of real lace. She carried an ivory prayer book and wore a tulle veil and orange blossoms. She was attended by Miss Edith Little of Winnipeg, wearing a pink satin gown and last year was a very prosperous one for the mercantile men. Mr. Hickey, of the firm of Hickey & Pascoe, haberdashers, made the fol-lowing statement: "Despite the back-ward weather for winter goods, the business done by our firm this year, and especially since Christmas shop-ping began, has far exceeded our ex-pectations, and this state of affairs applies not only to our firm, but also to mercantile men in general. The out-standing feature of this year's business is the tendency of the general public to purchase high-class merchandise. There is no demand for an inferior class of goods, and the progressive business man is gradually doing away with them. Even those people who are earning only moderate salaries have, this year, shown their appreciation of the fact that it pays in the end to buy one first-flass article in preference to several of an inferior grade. These conditions prevail not only in Torento, but thruout Ontario, and in fact, thru-out Canada." He also stated that the Christmay trade of the firm had been something phenomenal considering the consistent mildness of the weather. The prosperity of the city is further

THE TORONTO SUNDAY WORLP

DECEMBER 22 1912

1817 Yonge Street.

Ladies and Gentlemen-In response to many and repeated requests from individual electors. I beg to intimate my candidature for election as alderman. Having been resident for many years in Davisville, now included in Ward Two, and having had experience in the conduct of both municipal and educational affairs in North Toronto, I venture to hope that it is in my power to render public service in the wider field offered by the city.

A convinced progressive in civic politics, I favor tax reform and a more equitable adjustment of the cost of local improvements. Holding that all public services should be owned and operated by the community for the exclusive benefit of the people, I shall support all proposals and measures calculated to further that valuable principle. In particular, I recommend the extension of the Hydro-Electric undertaking and of the civic car lines in the way that will meet the requirements of Greater Toronto and prepare for the unification of the whole systems at the expiration of the current franchises held by private companies.

As a member of the North Toronto Council I was instrumental in securing an advance of two cents an hour in the rate of wages paid the town's laborers. It is my conviction that public bodies should more readily recognize that wages have not increased in equal proportion to the higher cost of living and that the hardship thus entailed ought to be remedied. The development of cheap transportation and the opening of the northeastern residential section that must follow the construction of the Bloor-Danforth viaduct will, in my opinion, tend to relieve congestion and improve social conditions.

Regarding a city, on its administrative si de, as strictly a business proposition, I approve of commission government and of the conference by the legislature of the wider powers necessary to protect the general interest. I hold also that tenants, or taxpayers, should be accorded the right to vote on money bylaws. The creation and maintenance of an active civic spirit can best be encouraged by requiring the electors to recognize their direct responsibility for every department of the city's affairs.

Should this platform meet with your approval, I trust to receive your support and vote on election day. If honored with your confidence it will become my conscientious endeavor to fulfil the duties devolving upon me to the utmost of my ability and judgment.

Yours respectfully,

Herbert It Pall

SPECIAL MUSIC XMAS MORNING

DAY IN THE LIFE OF A BOY

The Pantry! What dreams of goodies parade before the imagination of the healthy boy at that word-"Pantry." About 5 o'clock in the afternoon those dreams become punctuated with real pangs from the unpantryfied region of the appetite. The Pantry is a forbidden paradise, but the temptation of a natural hunger, reinforced by a hard game of "Come-Come-Pull-Away," or "Hide and Seek," is sure to affect the motor area of a boy's brain, so that his legs move him involuntarily toward the pantry and his hands go involuntarily to the bread crock. With the first sniff of the sweet smell of Lawrence's Home-made Bread the battle is over. Those who know the taste of Lawrence's Home-made Bread realize the helplessness of any boy before such temptation. 5 o'clock in the afternoon seems a critical time for the appetite. Bouncer says he needs his "5 o'clock Lawrence's Bread" as much as his mother needs her "5 o'clock tea." Give the boy all the Lawrence's Bread he wants, any time; it will do him good.

Lawrence's Home-Made Bread

From the very beginning Lawrence's Bread has been of better quality, texture and flavor than other bread. The man who made it then makes it now, and says, "I know what makes it good." But there's no use asking his secret. Lawrence is probably the ONLY baker who does NOT make a little twelve-ounce loaf. Every small loaf of Lawrence's weighs 24 ounces or over, and the price is only 5 cents.

24 Ounces-Five Cents The Lawrence Bread Bakery is the largest bread bakery in the Dominion. It was built up entirely by good quality, good service and a fair price.

OU can make it $1,000 if you like; but just now let me tell you of an unique, substantial, pleasing, appropriate gift, that will carry with it to the grown-up all the joy that the miniature train or the big blue-eved doll carries to the child; but goes further and fills an older heart with gratitude and an older brain with lasting thought. Do you remember the first piece of land you ever really owned? Could anything else have filled you so full of confidence in yourself? Could anything have raised you to that plane where you felt on an equal footing with other business. men? Could you actually have owned any other thing in this world that would have been a better foundation for your business career?. The sense of ownership dispels mediocrity, encourages industry and thrift and fans the flame of ambition. Surely this is in accordance with the Christmas spirit. We will join with you in creating this worthy sense of ownership in some one as far as is fair to our business interests. We can not give $100 to your son, your daughter, your mother, your father, your favorite nephew or niece, or your faithful employe, but we can make it possible for you to give a splendid gift to one of them. Another thing we cannot do is to sell you one of our Walmer Hill lots at any but the regular fixed price, but we can and will do this: we will sell you any lot we have up to the end of this year on terms of $100 down and the balance so easy that whomever you give it to will be able to complete the payments out of his regular income.

This is the First and Last and Only Time That This Opportunity Will be Presented

The terms are regularly 25 per cent. down and the balance payable in six, twelve, and eighteen months. You may make your Christmas box larger if you desire by paying some of the subsequent payments.

Before half their payments had been made several previous purchasers in Walmer Hill were offered from $5 to $15 per foot advance for their lots. These lots were those situated in the furthest-out part of the property where building will not commence until next summer. The lots that we offer you now are within a stone's throw of several beautiful homes. The land is rolling, giving perfect natural drainage. There is an abundance of pure, fresh air, and sun shine in profusion. The whole neighborhood is well restricted and not within sight, sound, or smoke of a factory or railroad. The completion of the St. Clair Avenue Cipic Car Line and opening of St. Clair Boulevard Park, which adjoins the property, will greatly enhance values. The present prices are based on old conditions. The New Year's prices will conform with the development of this unequalled residential section.

Motoring is good between downtown and Walmer Hill, which is only three and onehalf miles from the City Hall, and we extend to you now an earnest and sincere invitation to join us any day this year in a trip to this fine, property. Telephone Main 412 for a plan, a courteous representative, and a comfortable automobile for your use in seeing "the Hill."

Making a Profession of Speculation in Stocks Most Active Coterie of Followers of the Game of Wall Street Hold Forth at the Waldorf in New York-They Play With Blue Chips.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—The most active coterie of professional specu-lators in the country holds forth at the Waldorf-Astoria. Its principal members have speculated all their lives. Some of them are cotton men who occasionally make a play in stocks. Some are stock operators who now and then take a chance in cotton. All operate mostly thru a Waldorf firm of stock brokers the head of which is frequently a partici-pant in their market deals. This broker is young, popular, and a clever judge of speculation. These things are well known. With the ways of the Waldorf crowd, how ever, the public is less acquainted. For one thing it never "takes a position." That is, it never commits itself to either side of the market on the basis either of conditions or convictions. It does not play conditions it the source is motion of the basis either of conditions or convictions. It does not play conditions it the source is a position."

Other conspicuous members of coterie are Joseph Gatins and Ed Smathers. Both are speculators either of conditions or convictions. It does not play conditions, it has no victions. It ture. Gatins is at bers once, 'are all very well, but it takes a long time for them to work out." in his lexicon. To Smaller a big man a stranger. And like many a big man that the demand for gold will increase. If the people of India, instead of hoard-ing, as i nthe past, employ any con-siderable proportion of their savings for investment, they will add immense by to the productive power of the coun-try and, therefore, to its trade. In that case they will not only need more gold but also they will grow ambitious to be on a footing of equality in regard to their currency with the greatest na-tions of the world. "Moreover, it is never to be lost sight of that once China settles down she will need a great currency system. Ap-parently she is not advanced enough yet to endow herself with a gold cur-rency. NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—A combination of circumstances unfavor-able to the bond market has brought the average of 25 representative railroad boads down to approximately the lowest level since the panic. At the end of November the average stood at 89.025, or only slightly above the 89.025 low level touched in September, from which there was some recovery in October. The unsettled situation abroad and the high money rates in this country have resulted in the loss of practically all the October gain. #### Turkey Rolling Featured Past Week at T. B. C. Alleys-Poor Scores the Order.

Christmas turkey rolling has kep up incessantly at the Toronto Bowling Club during the past week. Commens-ing last Monday, the members of all leagues entered into the respective competitions with a zeal and determina-tion that meant to spell disaster for all opponents, but up to date not in years have so many small scores been record-ed in the same length of time, and if ever an opportunity presented itself for grabbing a real prize in one of these 20-pound deathered beauties, this is the year, and the time Monday morn-ing, commencing at 9 o'clock, when pin boys will be at their post to hely and accommodate all members in the only two days left before the final round is made Tuesday night, Christ-mas Eve, at M o'clock. Club during the past week. Comme

All league rolling closed at the Te-ronto Bowling Club Saturday night, to be resumed again Monday, Jan. 6, when the last games of the first series in the Business Men's and T. B. C. five leagues will be rolled, with the cham-pionships of each to be decided at the end of that week.

In league rolling during the past week. The News looked down from its lofty perch in the Business Men's League to gaze upon the runners up. Estontas and Kent's Limited, fighting it out for who would come the closest to them in the series soon to be de-cided, or, perchance, which of the two might make it a clean up and cause a few more anxious moments before the desired goal has been reached. But the ubove didn't occur, Estonias losing one of their three games, and still in second place have only the remotest possibility of ever making it a tie with the hard-to-beat News outfit.

The the nard-to-best News outlet In the Utilities Leagua, Toronto Typesetting again lengthened their lead by winning three games, but by scores in two that shouldn't win very many championships, and althe out-distancing the field at present, it won't be many weeks after rolling is re-sumed after the holidays that the present leaders will know they are up against the toughest proposition in any league when they stack up against the five teams following, who have prounded to, and all in a jam for the place would prove real live wires in any league.

In the T. B. C. Five-pin League, Olympics and Stanleys are still ited for the top, both having won all three games from their respective opponents, and with only one more contest for each it now looks like a tie at the finish, or a one-game margin for the winner of the first series.

In the Apple Five-pin League, Bald-wins again made a clean-up, and althe at the top without a loss, are only two games up on the next pair, Rus-setts and Greenings, while the last three, or second division holders, will win many a game from the top trie before the drat series is over.

same is Packey McFarland, the stock-yards lightweight, who has always been a credit to the sport. Packey says fighting is not brutal in any sense of the word, and, besides, sees no need of the knockout punch. It's worth while reading what Packey suggests: "There are many who seek to cast reflection on the sport because they think it is brutal, and that hoodlums are mixed up in it," he says. "I want to say, right here, that puglism is what those identified with it make it, just the same as any other business. The good and bad mix in any business, and I have found out that for the most part the puglistically inclined people are of the right sort. "There are many who believe that the average fighter has brutal in-stincts; but I do not. In all the time I have been fighting there never has been a time when I saw I had my opponent beaten or outpointed that I had any desire to punish him further or 'cut to ribbons,' as they say, the man in front of me. There have been many fights in which I have beaten my man and knew he did not have a chance for victory, and asked the ref-erce to stop the fight. I always felt that I was clever enough to protect myself; but I could also see that the other fellow could not protect himself, and that meant certain defeat for him. boat" packs a mighty right-hand wallop. "Bombardier" Wells, too, is still in the hunt, and contemplates a visit to this side in the near future, with the hope that he will be given a chance to wipe out the stigma of defeat at the hands of Al Palzer. Altho beat-en by the American, the "Bombar-dier" made a very favorable impres-sion on fight fans here, and the con-sensus of opinion is that he foolish-ly tossed off his chances for success thru anxiety to score a quick knock-out. Wells is the only really clever boxer among the "hopes," and made Al look like a dub in the early part of their contest. He tied Palzer in knots and ought to have romped home a winner. But Wells made the fatal mistake of throwing science to the winds and mixing it with a much heavier and stronger man, and suf-fered the consequences. winds and mixing it with a much heavier and stronger man, and suf-fered the consequences. Palzer, whose recuperative powers are simply wonderful, was thus given the only chance on earth he had to win. Al was a very lucky young man that night. He was not in the best of condition; he had supervised his own training, and made a bad job of it. Had Wells not lost his head over the prospects of knocking the big fellow out, there might have been a different story to tell of the result. At any rate, the "Bombardier" showed the spectators so much in the way of skill and hard hitting, that there ex-lists no doubt of his ability, and if the pair are rematched the English cham-pion will not lack for supporters. Don't Forget Carl Morris, Then there is our old friend. Carl Morris, the original "white hope," whose defeat by Luther McCarty "In the time that I have served in the ring I have heard many things about this fighter and the other one. I have heard them say that Packey McFarland never carried a knockout punch. I only want to answer that by saying: What's the difference? I have been clever enough to win my battles, and the record books will show that there have been a good many knockouts to my credit. "What is the difference whether a man wins on points, on whether he wins with a knockout? It is the aim whose defeat by Luther McCarty brought the latter young man into prominence as a contender for the championship. It was one of the hottest begging sermons I'd ever sat under twitn nothing less than a bill in my door opened and Mrs. Timmins came running out with a steaming bowl in her hand and cut across the snow to the Frasers. After her hobdied her lame boy, and she smiled back at him a couple of times as she ran. As she knocked at the door she turned and shouted at us a "Merry Christ-mas!" so cheery and pleasant. I looked at her bowl and back at the bod behind me; and I didn't feel a bit merry. And then when the Fras-er's door opened at last, Mrs. Tim-mins shouted in the gayest kind of voice, as if she had little tubbles of thankfulness inside her: "Merry Christmas!"-one for each of the Fras-ers. And her little lame boy ducked under her arm and shouted it all over again, throwing in one for good meas-ure. A weary woman's face appeared in the doorway and fill up with the hight of welcome, and four little kid-dies swarmed around the lame boy and drew him inside, shouting with glee-just as if they had emptied stockings full of things, and a big tur-key dinner was ahead of them. ### The Seasonable Charm of Christmas

a have a set of the state of

There is something in the very season of the year, that gives a charm to the festivity of Christmas. At other times, we derive a great portion of our pleasures from the mere beauties of Na-ture. Our feelings sally forth and dissipate themselves over the sunny landscape and we "live abroad and everywhere." The song of the bird, the murmur of the stream, the breathing fragrance of spring, the soft voluptuousness of summer, the golden pomp of autumn; earth with its mantle of refreshing green, and Heaven with all its deep, delicious blue and its cloudy magnificence,-all fill us with mute but exquisite delight, and we revel in the luxury of mere sensation.

But in the depth of winter, when Nature lies despoiled of her every charm, and wrapped in her shroud of sheeted snow, we turn for our gratifications to moral sources. The dreariness and desolation of our landscape, the short, gloomy days and darksome nights, while they circumscribe our wanderings, shut in our feelings also from rambling abroad and make us more keenly disposed for the pleasures of the social circle. Our thoughts are more concentrated; our friendly sympathies more aroused. We feel more sensibly the charm of each other's society, and are brought more closely together by the dependence on each other for enjoyment. Heart calleth unto heart, and we draw our pleasures from the deep wells of living kindness which lie in the great recesses of our bosoms; and which, when resorted to, furnish forth the pure element of domestic felicity. -Washington Irving in "The Sketch Book."

Misconceptions.

Was William Sharp an example of "dual personality," or was he a mere literary fakir? Considerable has been written in literary journals re-starting the mysterious "Fiona Mc-Leod." whose poetry and nature sketches were hailed by admirers as reviving the ancient Gaelto culture, and when it became known that the mys-terious delicate lady "Fiona" was none other than the hale, bearded William Sharp, an essayist and sort of all-round literary, worker, the lit-erary experts entered upon a minute case of psychological dissection in or-der to find the particular origin of the twin-soul that seemed to exist. to the occult or spiritualistic but comes back to earth and closes in the conventional way. — (McLeod and Allen). . . . . "The Sanctuary." by Maud Howard Peterson: A novel that attempts too much. The author tries to combine much. The author tries to combine a new religious mysticism, the prob-lem of the mill-laborer, a somewhat romantic love-story and a study in psychiatry. The hero, Hector Stone, is a millionaire, who because of his in-terest in the working classes and their troubles spends part of his time, with his identity carefully concealed, as a mill-foreman. In his role as millionaire he meets Blair Martin, daughter of the pros-perous old Scotch millowner. These two, Blair and Hector are the main characters of the book. Readers who are prepared to follow unquestioning the will o' the wisp lure of mysticism are first coated with a layer of black earth, or they may be encrusted with the refuse of the barnyard. Strangly enough, when, in after years the egg (the foreign ceating having first been removed) is opened, the egg proper, that has reposed all this time within the covering of black earth. Is found to be snow white: those eggs that were covered with the whiles grey protection are found to be of a glossy Black. But of course they are not in a bud condition, that is, bad in the a bid condition, that is, bad in the ordinary sense of the word, tho it would doubtless take some courage on the, part of a foreigner to eat one of these pieces of mummified food.

From the Haley Farm to Surveyor McIvor's camp by the Bow River at the foothills of the Rockles, is the next move of our hero. Lost in a blizzard, he is rescued by an erratic whiskey-runner and his fierce Indian follower, Little Thunder. In some respects this portion of the tale is highly melodra-matic, yet it furnishes a good pic-ture of the work of the Northwest Mounted Police. The close of the story sees Cameron a member of this fam-ous force, having just won his pro-motion from plain constable to Cor-poral by some daring work in the carrying out of his duties. Altho the story is one of well-sus-tained interest and much better than some of the recent work of Ralph Connor, it is not free from amateriah weaknesses. We have mentioned the highly dramatic passages between the hired man Perkins, and his supposed rival for the favor of Mandy Haley, the farmer's daughter. Now, the des-cription of Mandy and the general es-timate we form of her character in the earlier portion of the story does not make it appear natural that she should come in at the close as the trans-formed princess ready to wed the fairy prince. No, the author puts on his ground-color too thick; we cannot help seeing it show thru. The title of this story, "Corporal

The popular concert of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra on Saturday night was a complete success. The reception of both conductor and play-ers was hearty and enthusiastic. The orchestral selections were Mendel-ssohn's overture, "The Hebrides," Ros-sin's melodious and effective overture to "William Tell." Grieg's romantic suite, "Peer Gynt," Delibes' "Pizza-cato," Gillet's "Loiu du Bal," the thrilling introduction to the third act "Lohengrin" and Kistler's introduc-tion to "Kunehild," all of which were given a splendid and stirring perform-

IRISTMAS, now specially devoted to the celebration of the birth of Christ, was of earlier origin than that, the greatest event since man appeared upon the world's stage. Long years before, in all countries of which authentic records remain, as the time of the winter solstice drew near the pagan people of northern latitudes perceived that the sun appeared to be leaving them. Sun worship was universal and to hasten its return they prayed, and offered sacrifices to the life-giver. When it again began to move upwards in the Heavens they hailed the change with joyous feasts and dancing, and many quaint and curious customs, not a few of them serviving now. The ancient not a few of them surviving now. The ancient Yule, which in Welsh was Haul, in Breton, Heol. The Anglo-Saxon name for Christmas was geol or jule; Danish and Swedish jul; Icelandic, jol or jol; in English, Yule-the "wheel" or revolution of the sun. A year was often called a sun by the ancients and Yule was the time when the old sun died and the new one was born. Thus the birth of Christ coincides with the birth of the sun.

The custom of giving presents and holding entertainments appears to have been always associated with the festival, even in heathen days. In England it was attended with a continuous round of amusement ending in the Twelfth night celebrations joined in by old and young. The twelve days were made festive by law in the time of Alfred the Great and the last and most popular of them was specially in honor of the Magi, supposed to have been kings. During the middle ages, a drama, known as "The Feast of the Star." was performed on the twelfth day. At a still later period a cake with a bean and a pea in it, called the twelfth cake used to be made in England. The fortunate finders were elected king and queen and had to maintain their characters till midnight. One authority says that on the king's election he was raised with great cries to the ceiling, where he chalked crosses on the rafters to protect the house from evil spirits. On the twelfth day of 1563, Queen Mary of Scotland is described as having celebrated the festival but with a queen only. The lot fell to Mary Fleming, one of the queen's four Marys, whom her mistress arrayed in her own royal robes and jewels that, she might the better sustain the mimic dignity.

This too was the season when in the fifteenth century it was customary to appoint a "Lord of Misrule" and an "Abbot of Unreason" to lead the Christmas revels. The universities, city and town councils, noblemen and other classes each had these dignitaries, but the revelries were strongly denounced by the Puritans in the reign of James and were ultimately abolished. Under their influence the Scots gradually ceased to observe Christmas and with them New Year's Day became the outstanding festival and so remained until the last quarter of the nineteenth century, when a change in popular sentiment became apparent and has speedily extended from the cities to the country districts.

Carols have long been associated with Christmas, altho they were known in connection with other special seasons. The word itself is of old French origin. There a carole was originally a kind of dance accompanied by singing but the name was transferred to the song. Christmas carols probably originated in the middle ages and were sung between the scenes of the mystery and miracle plays. These formed the popular form of religious entertainment and it became customary to introduce songs dealing with the redemption of mankind. Songs are easily remembered and these early carols served as a kind of religious folk-song to those who learned them. It has been thought that the "waits," the players and singers who still go their rounds in many parts of Britain, were at first simple country folk who had learned these nativity songs and repeated them in their homes at Christmas tide. In King Henry VII's reign and subsequently, the choir of the Chapel Royal was required to sing Christmas carols for the sovereign and several composed by William Byrd are still extant. The French still have a form of Christmas carol, called the Noel, which resembles the carol of Byrd's time in its musical intricacy and elaboration.

The old carols present interesting pictures of life in distant times. That asociated with the ancient practice of serving a huge boar's head with a big apple in its mouth is among the oldest. It was sung by the server while bearing the boar's head and followed by the stately procession of nobles, knights and ladies into the banqueting hall. Henry the III. of England himself carried the boar's head, at the coronation of the young Prince of Wales, with trumpet blowers before and a host of armed men behind. This strange carol was partly in Latin and began:—

Caput apri defero, Reddens laudes Domino. The boar's head in hand bring I employers and customers dropped money. The boxes were opened on Christmas Day and the contents spent in festivity. An old book speaks of "an apprentice's box of earth" as apt to take all and give nothing until it is broken. Boxes of the same kind were also carried from house to house. Still later references describe the Christmas box as "the bounty of well-disposed people, who are willing to contribute something toward rewarding the industrious and supplying them with many necessaries." Of more recent date is the development that now forms so serious a drain on people of limited means. Years ago it was recommended not to suffer Christmas to degenerate too far into a swapping of merchandise among relatives and friends. "It is well to get some new life into it every year; to avoid too cut-and-dried an exchange of expected presents and to rejoice the hearts, or at least the self-esteem, of some persons who did not know, until your gifts came to them, that you had it in your heart to send them. Such unlooked-for Christmas presents are apt to be the ones that produce the liveliest emotions. They may be the merest trifles, but the news of a continuing affection which they bring is all the more gratifying and all the more proper for Christmas because it is news."

The pretty custom of decorating houses and churches with evergreens is very ancient and the

With garlands gay and Rosemary; I pray you all sing merrily, Qui estis in conviveo.

The custom of giving Christmas "boxes" is very old and is supposed to have originated from the collecting of money for the saying of masses at Christmas tide. Servants used to ask for "box money" that they might be enabled to pay for where there was "no penny fee there was no paternoster." But by the end of the sixteenth century apprentices had earthen boxes into which favorite materials have always been holly and mistletoe. Gray, the author of the famous "Elegy in a Country Churchyard," recited by Wolfe before his death on the field of Abraham, thus refers to this old custom :--

The rosemary and the bay, the poet's crown, Are bawled in frequent cries throut the town. Then judge the festival of Christmas near, Christmas the joyous period of the year. Now with bright holly your temples strew, With laurels green and sacred mistletoe.

Keep Up The Christmas Spirit

F the amounts expended, in charity, during this Christe mastide could be totalled we would many of us he staggered by their total.

People are giving freely now, who keep their hearts and pockets closed 'till next Christmas. Why?

There is need always as at Christmas time. It is simply that we are moved now by an unusual sentiment—an ima pulse to kindliness.

Is it the Christ split? Then surely it should continue thru all time. It should flame as brightly in the summer heat as in the winter chill. We are giving to celebrate the birth of the Man of Sorrows who first preached a charity that signified love. He is forced upon our memory by the impetus of the Christmas activity—we pause in the whirk of life to consider the need of the other fellow, or his child, And, if now,—if it brings us pleasure—if we feel it out duty now to give to Christ's little ones is it less our duty at another time?

Can we not give place, among our resolutions for the coming year, to a determination to be Good Fellows, in & larger sense, for all time.

Right at hand, in the experience of each one of us there is abundant opportunity to extend the helping hand perpetually. Many of us can not, perhaps, give much has a material way, but we can all of us give largely of out time, our love, our sympathy. And these, after all, are the things that count. If we could carry the spirit of Christe mas with us thru the coming year what a tremendout change would be wrought in the social structure!

Let us then make this celebration of the birth of Christ the beginning of a permanent Christ-like attitude toward our unfortunate fellows in our own lives. If we can do this—if we can realize that perfect happiness and full growth can come to us alone thru service to others then the season shall have become significant for us indeed. It is not enough that we should be Christ-like in spots—as Christians it behooves us to be consistent day in and day out and to give in proportion to the blessings we have received—always.

The Sunday World rejoices that there has been such a ready response to the invitation to those who have plenty to join with us in remembering the unfortunate. The Good Fellow Movement has been a success, even beyond our expectations, and many firesides have been warmed with the Christmas spirit which otherwise would have been cold and cheerless. To the thousand and more who sent in their names and did their share The Sunday World returns its grateful thanks. Their duty was well done.

P ARTICULARLY welcome at this Christmas season is the announcement that a number of public-spirited gentlemen have provided an endowment fund ited gentlemen have provided an endowment fund for medical research work in connection with Toronto University. The fund will yield $25,000 annually and students, especially well equipped for this work, will be chosen.

Let Us Make War on Diseas

The people of Toronto give liberally to alleviate the sufferings caused by poverty. It is well-established that poverty is caused by disease and ignorance and if we want to get rid of the condition of poverty we must strike at the root and destroy disease. Canada is doing less in the way of research work than probably any other civilized country. The great nations are expending millions of dollars every year to prepare for war among themselves and only a few are appropriating anything to destroy a greater evil than war.

No one complains that Canada is offering Great Britain $35,000,000 to build three Dreadnoughts to cope with the growing naval strength of Germany. Germany is only a prospective foe, while disease is ever with us, a very present and imminent danger.

Therefore, when we give ungrudgingly $35,000,000 to protect ourselves against a prospective danger we are certainly doing a very small thing when we provide $25,000 a year to cope with an enemy that destroys more lives in a single year than Canada has lost in all the wars of her history.

To the German Empire we owe much of the best work done in medical research and if only a small portion of the money expended on Dreadnoughts by England and Germany and other nations were expended in a world's war on disease the conquest of the great diseases now afflicting humanity would be an accomplished fact, almost, if not entirely, in our day and generation.

Let us preserve peace by being prepared for the emergency of war; but let us also save the lives of many thousands of our citizens by paying liberally for the battle against the greatest evil in the world today.

Preventive medicine is the greatest and most valuable discovery of modern times. Empirical treatment of contracted, disease had and has its uses, but far more effective is the scientific investigation that traces every form of it to its origin. Money spent in research is returned a thousand times over in good health and happy homes.

Conditions Revealed To World Good Fellows

Grimmest Poverty Lurks Even Behind Most Respectable Surroundings-Poor Who Pay at the Rate of $15 a Ton for Coal.

There are only a few dozen kiddies left, Good Fellows. And you will be glad to know that just about 2000 little ones are to spend a happier. Christmas, thru your spiendid Good Fellowship. Many have received much assistance all have received a little, but all have received more than they had expected.

Individuals; bible and girls' classes and other organizations have been and are engaged in the work. One of the prettiest little stories of all is that of a sewing class of five little ladies, who are making Christmas happier and brighter for two en-tire families. The World Good Fellow trusts their Christmas will be a very merry one indeed. There have been a number of cash contribution these will all be acknowledged together on Tuesday-altho the object has been to make the Good Fellows do the work that

The experiences of The World Good Fellows would fill a book replet with stories of intense human interest. Despite the great sorrow and suffering many of them have encountered, there are yet sprinkled thru it al occasional flashes of humor that have served to lighten the burden and give the Good Fellows the heart and comfort to go on. Picture the ulti mate amusement of the good lady who found the family to which she had been directed in dire distress. So extreme indeed was the need of those she visited that she immediately rushd away to the nearest grocery store for a supply of food. Upon her return the first of the parcels opened revealed a store of rice. Disappointment and disgust sprang into the face of one of the hungry little ones. "We have had nothing but rice to eat all summer," she exclaimed.

It is the experience of the Good Fellows that in a large number of the most deserving cases there is often little outward sign of poverty. Those who have been the most deserving have struggled the hardest to conceal their condition. There are very many things to be taken into consideration when looking into their need.

Many of the families most needing help at this time have never had enough to get a proper start in life in this new country. They are living from hand to mouth. The loss of a few days' pay or, sickness of the wage earner, often means great misery for a considerable period.

It has been found that the poor have to pay more even for the neessities of life than the rich. The investigations of a number of the Good Fellows reveal the fact that some of these are paying as high as fifteen dollars a ton for coal. Groceries, owing to the fact that they are bought report one twenty-third of December. in small quantities, are paid for on the same extortionate scale. It seems astounding does it not that the poor, on the verge of starvation, must pay twice as much for the fuel they use, as the people who can afford to fill ing, struggling, laughing and spendtheir cellar whenever they choose to do so?

The World Good Fellow could tell stories, many scores of them, that and goes freely in the west; those would reveal conditions unbelievable almost in a city like Toronto. After who have a competence feel sure that the season is over the other World Good Fellows will be invited to write of wealth is at hand, and those possessed some of their experiences. Feremost among the characters in Foremost among the characters in "Little Women" is the mother of these remarkable interesting girls; Sur-rounded by her family during the hours of the evening, she taught them the little lessons of every day life, of sacrifices, love, marriage, and the duties that go toward all that is best in the world. Her methods of teaching were somewhat different from the accepted ideas. Frequently she would slip a piece of paper under a plate at meal time and on it would be found a gentle reproach for some error, some naughtiness of one of the four girls. Her character was one of the most pronounced in the entire story and in the stage adaptation "Marmee" (for. that was what the girls called her) is a most delightful characterization, Miss de Forest, who wrote the play from the book, keeping Mrs. March in the prominent position she held in the original story.

Her aunt, who is a highly-respected citizen, telephoned for Prof. Mulveney's Remedy, which was sent to her, and which she used, with the most gratifying results, expelling the tape worm, head and all, without previous starving and without causing her to be sick. They arrived at Prof. Mulveney's office on the evening of Sept. 6th, their faces all aglow with joy and satisfaction. They had the monster which caused so much trouble, head and all, and the glad tidings of joy to convey to the Professor that the result was a grand success. They left for home half an hour later, wishing the Professor long life and continued success. Two happier people could not be found in Toronto. The tap worm is added to PROF. DECEMBER 22 1914 SUNDAY MORNING THE TORONTO SUNDAY WORLD cters of Louisa M. Alcotts Cha From Cover of Book on to the Stage PRODUCED BY Step WILLIAM A.BRADY. Van) TIT

Local theatregoers are to see realized the dream of many years, for "Little Women," Louisa M. Alcott's immortal story, has been made into a play, and put before 'the public in visible form, with the delightful characters of Meg, Jo, Beth and Amy, and the others who have been household characters for the last half century in thousands of American and Canadian homes.

A character comedy drama in four acts and two scenes has been evolved by Marian de Forest from the Alcott story this year and will be presented in Toronto at the Alexandra Theatre, Christmas week, with four matinees, on Christmas day, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

"But why has not 'Little Women' been dramatized before?"

A natural question, this, and quite usual wherever the play. "Little Women" is announced. For it does seem strange that any book which has enjoyed the tremendous popularity of Louisa M. Alcott's story could possibly be kept from the footlights for forty-three years. But with this, as with all interesting things, there is a story.

The difficulties which arose in securing the consent of living members of the Alcott family to the transfer of "Little Women" to the stage were quite as great as those encountered in inducing General Lew Wallace to permit to the dramatization of "Ben-Hur," or Robert Hichens to allow the "Garden of Allah" to be presented in the guise of a play.

Miss Jessie Bonstelle, herself an actress of wide fame, communicated with John Alcott, who had adopted the family name at the request of his aunt, there being no Alcott boy, and this gentleman, remembering Miss Alcott's love for the stage, her early wish to be an actress, and the little plays she wrote as a child, felt that if "Little Women" were properly dramatized, the fact would not be averse to her wishes, were she alive to decide. The contract was signed, and Miss de Forest, a magazine writer and dramatic editor of The Buffalo Express, made the play from suggestions by Mr. Alcott and Miss Bonstelle.

> The narrative, in its original form, was a children's story, but its vogue extended beyond the juvenile circle, and the author was induced to write a second part, taking the little women of the March family thru the delightful period she described as the "lovering stage." Meg's preliminary symptoms were discovered at once by Jo. How amusing and yet how characteristic of the girl just entering her 'teens, when she disgustedly announced to her mother: "I hate lovering." Even Jo succumbs to the arrows of Cupid, however, and the German professor's proposal to Jo in the orchard in the fourth act is one of the comedy hits of the play.

> Marry for Money? Never. None of the "Little Women" considered the matter of their prospective husband's bank account, when their proposal came. This disregard of finance may be explained by the fact that all their lives they had lived in a beautiful nome atmosphere, where pinching economies were observed, but where happiness reigned.

A MIRAGE CITY

SEEN IN ALASKA Several People Have Seen "City of Silence" Surrounded by Halo of Light.

One of the most interesting stories of a mirage is that told in Alaska concerning a city seen in the sky. The first account of this "City of Silence," says a writer in The New York Sun, was told by a man named Willoughby, He was a miner in California and went to Alaska, where he settled in the vicinity of Muir Glacier. When Willoughby first went to Alaska natives told him that at certain times of the year when the days were ongest and the atmospheric conditions right, they saw suspended in the heavens a town with streets, houses and many different kinds of buildings. So mpressed was he that he engaged the ndians to take him to the place where the city could be seen and in their ances traveled to the spot.

After several attempts Willoughby at length saw this "Silent City," as the While King street's big-priced property is fast being occupied by magnificent buildings Yonge street's $10, natives called it. The pictures show-two views of "Yonge Street's Brightest Store." The enterprising way in which the proprietors of this establishment have gone after the Christmas trade deserves attention from every shopper. The four large front windows (two of them are on the second floor) are attractively arranged and filled with home furnishing novelties nied with nome furnishing noverties and staples; also useful and delight-ful things for the children, with every article marked in plain figures at at-tractive prices. Particularly attrac-tive is the "Shower" of Wear-ever aluminum utensils—which consists of momente cutoffs of bitchen utensils aluminum utensils—which consists of complete outfits of kitchen utensils of the well-known "Wear-ever" make. These outfits run from $7.75 to $35.00. They are packed in large square cardboard boxes and designed to give the most useful collection at the price specified. Then there are electric table lamps, electric irons, electric toasters, etc, and innumer-able small articles of household util-ity and ornamentation in solid maity and ornamentation in solid mahogany and quarter-cut oak.

Inside the store, the ground floor is most attractively arranged with easy chairs and rockers of all kinds —cabinets of all kinds—and odd pieces and suites of dining-room and bed-room furniture-all marked in plain figures on large cards. The carpet department with its fresh importations of Oriental and European rugs, offers rare opportunities for appropriate gift-making-and the other floors are just full of happy suggestions.

This enterprising firm is prepared "charge" any purchase made, so to that you can pay at a more convenlike to show visitors thru and explain their model charge account system, and there is no feeling of obligation to purchase

This store is the leading light in the new Wilton Ave. shopping district, and will be open every evening until 10 o'clock from now until Christmas. This bright new store certainly deserves the attention of every Christ-

FOR THOSE WHO MUST COUNT THEIR EXPENDITURES

T HERE is no time in the year that Tisdall's common-sense, small profit, low priced method of selling jewellery direct from factory to buyer is so important as it is right now during the Christmas buying. If money is no object to you it makes little difference where you buy; but if you must take care of your money, then we are here to help you intelligently and satisfactorily.

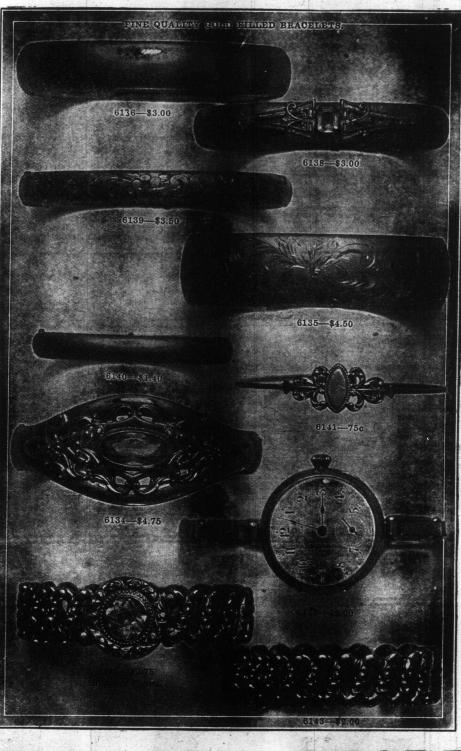

Of all Christmas gifts the well-chosen piece of jewellery enjoys pre-eminence and we are justly proud of our magnificent collection. You will find here, expressed in the greatest wealth of variety, the most enduring gifts in gold jewellery, mostly of our own manufacture. All are excellent in taste and our factory-topocket prices mean just one small profit between maker and wearer.

THIS STORE IS THE GIFT-SEEKERS ELDORADO.

It is wonderful the satisfactory way we serve the vast throngs that pour into our place daily. We have so intelligently planned our store arrangements and provided such an immense reserve stock that with our large staff of well-trained salespeople we can serve each day our many thousands of customers with much less crowding than many stores that do not serve a quarter the people. Make our store the headquarters for your jewellery purchases. We will give you better jewellery for the same money or the same jewellery for less money than elsewhere, depend upon it. Owing to our immense reserve stock you will find just as fine a variety to choose from as during the early days of our holiday rush.

Come early in the day or in the evening, thus avoiding the tremendous crowds that pack our store afternoons.

We Keep Open Every Evening
