1,000 YEARS

in Venice is a Heap of Ruins.

July 14.—The Campanile, close to the cathedral, has here it stood, and is now a mass of ruins. The cathedral and palaces are quite safe, but the royal palace was damaged by the Campanile today. It is a very serious loss of life. The Campanile was surrounded by a cordon of soldiers.

Continuation of danger was the appearance yesterday of a crack in the corner of the clock tower and the two windows. A cordon was arranged to take place yesterday evening, with a view of preventing a concourse of people from the cathedral. The Campanile stood in 1823, and was 115 feet high. The Campanile, on the east side, was once a residence of the Venetian nobility and afterwards a home for the guards during the great council. The Campanile stands opposite the cathedral.

July 14.—A little before the noise of falling from the bell tower warned the workers, and four men were hurled to their deaths. The Campanile is falling. The Campanile was comprehensively seen in the streets of Venice. The Campanile was destroyed in 1823. The Campanile was a beautiful work of art. The Campanile was a masterpiece of Venetian architecture. The Campanile was a masterpiece of Venetian architecture.

PRES. MITCHELL

Opposed Sympathetic Strike of Soft Coal Men To Help Out the Anthracite Miners in Their Present Trouble.

But Suggested the Appropriation of $50,000 Spot Cash and Further Contributions to the Hard Coal Strikers.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 17.—At the meeting of the United Mine Workers today, President John J. Mitchell strongly opposed the ordering of a sympathetic strike and advocated in its place the following policy:

1. That the treasurer of the order be directed to appropriate $50,000 for the relief of the anthracite miners. 2. That the unions appropriate for the same purpose as large a sum as they can afford. 3. That an assessment of $1 per week be levied on all members of unions. 4. That all officers of the national districts drawing a salary of $30 a month or over contribute 25 per cent. of their salaries. 5. That an appeal be made to all trade unions and citizens generally to aid the cause of the miners.

After a long discussion the American people be issued a compelling appeal to bear as will compel the operators to submit to arbitration.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 17.—The vice and influence of President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers shall prevail with the members of his organization, there will be no sympathetic strike of the organization. The chances of such a step being taken now are very remote.

LONDON, July 17.—Since his removal to Cowes, the progress of the King has been so rapid that his physicians have ordered a more liberal diet for His Majesty.

BRITISH WAR OFFICE

Endorsed By Both Commons and Lords. General Buller's Liberal Advocate Was Not Supported By the M. P.'s—A Promise of Reform Made in the Upper House.

LONDON, July 17.—The Buller controversy was again raised by Sir Edward Grey (liberal), in the house of commons today on the war office vote. Sir Edward charged the war office officials with having acted unfairly towards General Buller and demanded the publication of further papers. Sir Edward's proposed vote of censure of the government for its treatment of General Buller was defeated by 136 yeas to 93 nays, after much speech making.

Simultaneously the war office was attacked in the house of lords, where Lord Aswell (liberal), brought up their relations contained in the report of the committee of military education, and urged the immediate appointment of an inspector general of education.

Lord Lansdowne, the foreign secretary, defended the war office, stating that a new scheme for education containing sweeping changes, was in process of being drawn up, which statement satisfied Lord Monckton and his supporters, and the notice of inquiry was withdrawn.

H.; The saved are Alice Haggerty, Lillian Brennahan, Skipper Fred Miles.

The bodies of Farrington, Alward, Bessie Chase, Eva Marshall and Elizabeth Kaouska have not yet been recovered.

All the others were taken from the water by fishermen and taken to the island, where they were buried. The bodies of the drowned were recovered for a long time by Doctors Weston of Boston and Richter of Portsmouth, but to no purpose.

Farrington and Alward were both students at Harvard University, rooming at Forsyth Hall. Both were good swimmers and lost their lives trying to rescue the others.

The party put off from the hotel some time after the lunch hour, intent on having a few hours sail and relaxation from their hotel duties.

The boat was a long open one, such as is used by fishermen and seiners, and was usually considered quite safe.

DORCHESTER.

Death of Edmund Bishop, Inspector of Public Works.

B., July 17.—Edmund Bishop, government inspector of the public works now in court of construction at Cole's Point, and one of Dorchester's best known citizens, died this evening at his residence. He was 63 years old. He leaves a widow and a large family of children. He was prominent Orangeman and was a tenant always at the Baptist.

WEALTHY WIDOW.

J. Phipps, Jr., Young Harvard Man, Said to Be Her Choice—Fifteen Years Her Junior.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Society heard today that after six years of widowhood, Mrs. Adolph Ladenburg, widow of the millionaire head of the Wall street firm of Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., is again to wed. Her choice, so report says, is J. Phipps, Jr., son of the partner of Andrew Carnegie.

Mr. Phipps is one year out of Harvard, and is 15 years Mrs. Ladenburg's junior. The gossip has been connecting the names of the two for several weeks now. Mr. Phipps has taken up his residence at Westbury, near Mrs. Ladenburg's beautiful villa, "The Oaks," and, although he formal announcement of the engagement has not been made, everybody expects it daily.

The young man's courtship has been most persistent. Like Mrs. Ladenburg, he is fond of horses and of hunting. When he established himself at the Meadowbrook Hunt Club, he soon won the beautiful widow's admiration for his horsemanship.

In 1884 Mr. Ladenburg was lost overboard from the liner Niagara in mid-ocean while returning from a trip to Nassau. He had been in ill health. The theory of suicide was advanced, because Mr. Ladenburg left his cabin at night, stilled only in his clothes. Others insisted that he had accidentally fallen overboard while on deck to get a breath of fresh air. He left several million. All of it went to his wife and daughter.

After two years of mourning, Mrs. Ladenburg once more appeared in society. She entertained brilliantly at her town house, 13 East 43rd street, and gave large house parties at her Westbury estate and at her Newport villa.

The Phipps family has only recently come to New York from Pittsburgh. Henry Phipps' share of the steel trust stock was $17,236,000. He is conservatively estimated to be worth $25,000,000.

UPPER ST. JOHN.

Summer Drive Through Garden of New Brunswick.

A Visit to the Quaint Settlement of New Denmark, Where Farming is a High Art.

Two Other Successful Colonies, Jacksonville and Johnville, the Latest and the Latest Bishop Politics and Ancient

July 15.—A drive to the country at this season shows the country at a scarcely understood tourist traffic has been in this section of the country. It is a fact that the upper St. John valley is very little known.

In time, seldom too soon, you leave McAdam bound for the upper St. John country and Aroostook, Maine. You travel many miles with absolutely nothing in the way of fertile cultivation to attract the eye, passing here and there a village. Quite suddenly you emerge into a beautiful country.

The proverbial American was heard to say: "Well, people do live here after all." As the train hurries along you get a glimpse of the St. John River. You are drawing near Woodstock and entering what is known as the upper St. John valley country.

In the spring time, after the ice goes out, it is a mile wide. In the hot weather the water gets very low. Woodstock is much like any other busy bustling town of 3,000 souls. Particular interest attaches to it, in that it was founded by the loyalists, who came there after the war.

When the traveller leaves Woodstock for the north he has no such experience as when he left McAdam. The way up to Edmunston he passes through a really beautiful country, most of the time running along the banks of the St. John. Anyone who knows anything of Canadian politics will remember that when the Intercolonial was in contemplation of building two routes were suggested, one of which the railway now follows.

There were some very angry people along the St. John valley when it was decided that the North Shore should be the route, and a good many remain angry and anti-confederate until called, in due season, to that country where there is neither confederate nor anti-confederate, grit nor tory, nor anything else that defile. Now there is a through route from Woodstock to Riverview, the Temiscouata railway forming the connecting link between the C. P. R. and I. C. R. systems.

You may go up Tobik, not Tobek, as you might imagine. There is a railway along that wild stream, where millions of lumber is cut every winter. Great stretches of forest exist, in places unbroken. The moose is ood of the most until the close season is over, when he suffers severely at the hands of the hunters. Lately the hunters have become almost as numerous as the moose, though a license is demanded, and only one moose, and that of the male persuasion, can be taken by one hunter during the season. Also, the hunters have taken a good deal to shooting each other, which causes much grief to their families and amusement to the moose. Seriously, last season the number of men who were mistaken for moose, caribou, doe, partridge, quail, and other game, and shot, generally fatally, set the legislators to thinking if it would not be about as well to enact a law protecting the game hunters as well as the game itself. Rough and rugged is the Tobique country, and mining prospectors come out every once in a while with tall stories and bits of news with little yellow speck, but while it is urged that in time there will be a Tobique boom equal to the Klondike boom, the time is not yet. In the meanwhile there is good gold in the lumber, if not in the rocks, on Tobique.

Everyone knows of Grand Falls. Even those surfeited with Niagara and something unique in this narrow gorge through which rushes the St. John river, and Grand Falls, be it known, is in the Upper St. John Valley country.

Grand Falls experienced the mixed blessing of a boom in days not long past. American senators and Canadian magnates were in league to buy up the falls and the surrounding area and conduct pulp mills and many other vast undertakings. When they saw itself a city of tens of thousands. But the usual blitch has occurred, if ever the proposals were serious, and the falls remain at it was in the beginning.

Not many miles from this town is an interesting settlement known as New Denmark. About twenty years ago a colony of Danes came from their fatherland and settled in the country. They have worked admirable farms, now splendid farms, and form a respectable and respected community. They stick to their language in their homes as any rate. While instead of continuing the Lutheran religion, they willingly merged into the Anglican communion. They have a church, and a priest to look after them in their own language. A most thriving colony of New Denmark, at this phase of the Upper St. John valley question, and has been admitted to dwell briefly and called successful colonization project twenty-five miles from Woodstock, a settlement called Glassville, was a reverend doctor came out from the old land, so it was Glass, and he brought him McIntosh and Tones, Donalds and Frasers, and other names, they purchased the land, and roundabout is as Scotch Denmark is Danish. There is a settlement called Johnville. The late Dr. Swenson of St. John, who was with his accustomed wisdom, that a lot of good Irish people were wasting their time, money and labor around St. John, and that they would be happier if they took to farming, so an arrangement with the government was reached. A number of families were packed together, others followed. They formed a settlement, and that settlement, Johnville, after the good prelate who had inaugurated the idea. Johnville is a prosperous, well-to-do farming district. It extends some seven or eight miles, and in its midst is a parish church, larger than most in the diocese. The settlement is essentially Irish Catholic, and most emphatically liberal in its sympathies. The heart of every liberal rejoices and the heart of every conservative sinks when the "returns" come in from Johnville.

A road has been built between Johnville and Glassville, and the village harmony prevails. Three very successful immigration movements are there to the credit of the Upper St. John valley, the Scotch at Glassville, the Irish at Johnville, and the Danish in New Denmark. Then, by way of further variety, we have the French Canadians of Madawaska.

From Woodstock to Grand Falls is all English, Scotch, Irish and Breton, mostly the latter. At Grand Falls you come across the "Frenchman," and he stays right by you till he is trapped and shot. The French of old, will say, the half was not me.

Breathing Disease.

Infectious diseases are breathed into the system from those affected with disease or from bad smells; yet how many women breathe daily the offensive steam from commodities made from rancid fats, and keep their hands for hours in such solutions, and the clothing from such soap suds is worn next the tender skin. No wonder disease and decay are prevalent! Users of Sunlight Soap—Octagon Bar—know the difference between the pure, healthful, vegetable oils and pure edible fats in Sunlight Soap.

came in sleds from Fredericton to Woodstock. Characteristic, that even the sleds were made in England. For several weeks the troops peacefully possessed Woodstock, and then they started on their long journey to Quebec. Edmunds at that time was "Little Falls," the imperial government commenced the building of a highway, which extends to River du Loup. Well and thoroughly was the work done, and the military road is a joy to the regiments of the present time. Edmunds at that time was "Little Falls," the imperial government commenced the building of a highway, which extends to River du Loup. Well and thoroughly was the work done, and the military road is a joy to the regiments of the present time.

Farming and lumbering are the main industries. A great farm, near Montserrat, a mill has been built, where a hundred or so men are employed. There are mills all along. Of late farming has advanced with really rapid strides. The best of the country is an object of scorn. Improved stock, improved dairying, improved farming of all kinds is noticeable. Unfortunately here as elsewhere the young man is apt to get the roving habit, of the race and to look towards the city as the fitting place for youthful enterprise and energy. But there are signs of a "back to the farm" movement, not without its merits. It is really profitable to farm, and necessary imports, make the young believe that to be a farmer does not mean to be a slave, and agriculture in the Upper St. John valley, at everywhere else, will flourish.

THE FARM. The English Poultry Market, Needs and How to Supply Them.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, Ottawa, July 12.—Poultry farming in Canada is a business that can be substantially developed in several market branches—(1) the selling of specially plump, well dressed chickens to Canadian city merchants, or to commission merchants in Great Britain; (2) the selling of live chickens to firms who export them to Great Britain; and (3) the selling of fresh winter eggs. These are the most profitable branches of poultry farming.

There are in Montreal produce merchants who will pay for ten to eleven cents a pound for fattened chickens. The quality of chicken they desire is a plump, full-breasted young chicken weighing about four pounds. A thin chicken can be transformed into one of these plump juicy chickens by three weeks' feeding in a confined crate. The chicken must be carried thirty-six hours before killing, and be killed either by dislocation of the neck, or by bleeding in the roof of the mouth. It must be plucked with care, and the feathers on the upper part of the neck and head, around the neck joints, and on the small joint of the wing must not be drawn.

One of these merchants stated that he would buy five hundred thousand pounds of these specially fattened chickens in Montreal every year. Last year the price received in Great Britain for the chickens exported from this yearling stations was from six and a half pence to eight pence per pound. The price in Liverpool, equal to fifteen cents per pound in Montreal.

Canadian chickens are favorably received in Great Britain. The British produce merchants are desirous of a large increase in the Canadian chicken trade. A prominent Manchester merchant (England) wrote concerning a shipment of live chickens packed in crates (Ontario) stating: "The birds were nice young stuff, and I should be glad if Professor Robertson could sell me a few thousand more. They are due to arrive next December, January, February and March." The last British trade returns to show that Canada exports to Great Britain only two per cent. of the value of the chickens imported. The Canadian chicken trade with Great Britain is a substantially developed. It is a profitable business.

The greatest demand in both Great Britain and Canada is for chickens weighing from three to four pounds, dressed weight. The demand for heavy chickens in Great Britain or Canada is limited. Two chickens for a large dinner, but for eight persons a chicken is not satisfactory for two ordinary dinners. However, it is advisable to fatten large framed chickens, and to fatten small framed chickens. A large plump dressed chicken is more saleable than a large thin chicken.

The white Wyandottes and medium sized Barred Plymouths are the two best American breeds for market and for eggs. Barchly Barchly Rock Wyandotte or Barred Plymouth Rocks are good winter layers. The cockerels should be placed in the fattening crates when they are three months old, and they will be ready for market when they are about four months old.

The crates in which the fattening is carried on at the illustration stations are six feet long, sixteen inches wide, and twenty inches high. The bottom of the box is divided into three compartments, and each compartment holds four chickens. Ordinary packing boxes of about the same size as the fattening crates can have the bottom and one side removed, and the box is divided into three compartments. The boxes should be placed on stands sixteen inches from the ground.

Further information regarding the fattening, killing and shipping of the chickens will be found in the evidence of 1901 of the commissioner of agriculture and dairying on "The Fattening of Chickens." This will be mailed to all who write for it. The department of agriculture is issuing a bulletin on "Profitable Poultry Farming," which will, also, be mailed free on request. Farmers who are not in a position to properly kill and pack their chickens for market can dispose of them alive to firms who export them to Great Britain. Several Montreal firms have notified the farmers in that neighborhood to increase the capacity of their poultry yards, guaranteeing to buy all the young chickens reared at the highest possible market price, provided they are well fattened. Several firms in Western Ontario will buy all the live chickens they can secure, so that farmers who desire to dispose of their chickens with the attendant labor of killing and packing can do so at a profitable price.

There is generally a scarcity of fresh eggs during the winter months. The reason of this can usually be attributed to a want of early hatched pullets for laying, and to their not being properly housed and fed. A warm roosting pen at night is a great factor in stimulating hens to lay during the winter. The food should contain a large quantity of refuse meat or green bones. The meat can be boiled, and the water that has been boiled in can be used for mixing with the r. s. h.

HON. MR. BALFOUR.

His Address to His Supporters on Monday.

No Change in Policy—J. Austen Chamberlain Delivers His Father's Message.

LONDON, July 14.—King Edward received Mr. Balfour today and delivered to him the seals of office. The new premier made his first appearance in the house of commons today, and was greeted with great applause. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the liberal leader, made such a feeling personal reference to Mr. Balfour, and the applause of the commons was so genuine, that when the premier rose to reply his voice faltered and he was only able to declare that he was too overcome to find words for thanks.

Mr. Balfour, in addressing the first meeting of his followers at the foreign office Monday afternoon, said in part: "I have accepted a great task and a heavy responsibility, certainly from no overwhelming belief in my own capacity, but because I am sure, or at least have every reason to believe that in attempting to carry on this work I will have the most important qualification of a person in that position, namely, the regard for and confidence in those with whom he works. I have not had the opportunity before of consulting you, but I have, of course, consulted those with whom I have been working in the cabinet these many years and if the kindness you are prepared to extend to me is at all equal to the kindness which you have extended to me, then indeed the task is not too heavy for me to undertake."

"I cannot now promise myself that I shall have the continued assistance of all my colleagues. One of the most important of them, with whom I have been associated all my political life and who has occupied and deserves to occupy the highest post in the house of commons and state has told me that I cannot count on his further assistance. I mean the chancellor of the exchequer. But though I grieve to say I cannot count with any assurance on his further assistance I can count with absolute confidence on his good wishes in the labors that are before us."

"For myself," continued Mr. Balfour, "I have nothing to say. To all the members or at all events to the members of the house of commons who are listening to me, I have no secrets and no surprises. You have known me so well and so long that even when I disposed to dwell on this thing there is nothing I could say which could or would alter the judgment already long ago formed. But if I have nothing to say with any assurance on his further assistance I can count with absolute confidence on his good wishes in the labors that are before us."

"As for the question of policy I need hardly tell you that the policy of the Unionist party remains now what it has always been. We have lost the services of a brilliant advocate to our cause. We have lost a man around whom the sentiments and emotions of the party have for many years crystallized. Nevertheless I feel we would do wrong to despair, do wrong to have even the faintest misgiving in regard to the future of the cause he has so long and so well upheld. If we preserve the unity in the future which has never been wanting in our ranks in the past, the inherent vitality of our cause will make up for any weakness in the arms which have to sustain it."

L. Austen Chamberlain, first secretary to the treasury, said his father wished him to say how greatly disappointed he was at the fact that he could not be present to welcome Mr. Balfour to the leadership and say with what pride and pleasure he would give all the assistance in his power. Turning toward Mr. Balfour the speaker continued: "My father bids me to say to you that you will find in him a colleague equally attached to you by private friendship and public regard and that in offering you his support he feels he may speak also the name of the whole liberal unionist party of the house of commons."

After Mr. Chamberlain delivered his message the conference dispersed.

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL

Recognized Efficient Efforts of the Hospital Staff

During the Prevalence of the Recent Smallpox Epidemic - The Jail Improvements - Still Harping on the Dead House - Refused to Accept Dr. Bayard's Resignation

The quarterly meeting of the municipal council of St. John was held at the Court House yesterday afternoon. Warden McMullin was in the chair, and there were in attendance: City of St. John - Couns. Musquash - Couns. Dean and Thompson. St. Martins - Couns. Cochran, Mosher and Riddick.

After the adoption of the minutes of last meeting the reports of committees were called for.

The committee on finance and accounts recommended the payment of the following accounts, such payment to be made out of the contingent fund, except as otherwise directed:

Table with financial entries: To J. S. Gibson & Co., One load wood, house, $ 2 75; To Manchester, Robertson & Allison, Repairing table, etc., Judges' room, court house, 7 29; To A. G. Gilmour, M. D., coroner, Holding view on body of Anthony Babineau, 6 20; To the committee, Guaranteeing bonds for the several collectors of rates and taxes, and that same be paid for by the respective parishes, providing satisfactory arrangements can be made with a guarantee company and that the committee have full power to act in this matter.

The committee had before them a bill of Title & Clark, amounting to $2,000 for extra work in jail, and as the architect had not furnished a final certificate of the completion of the jail, they recommended that this bill be referred to them with power to act.

The report was adopted. The special committee appointed to confer with the treasury board of the city of St. John reported against the adoption of the sixth section.

This was seconded by Coun. Lewis. Coun. White advised that the building committee was acting vigorously in the collection of these back taxes. The report was adopted. The county buildings committee submitted the following report:

1. Your committee recommend that they be authorized to have the rock removed from the north side of the court house building which it projects on the sidewalk, and the wall properly fenced down to the grade line.

2. Your committee would ask authority to have a portion of the rock removed from in front of the registry office and a new wall built up and finished with a base rail to protect against accidents, also a part of rock be removed from the vacant lot to the sidewalk line, and a wood fence built to abut against the stone wall at the registry office. Estimated cost of this improvement about $400.

3. The gutters and conductors on jail building are completely worn out and should be replaced with copper or galvanized iron. We ask authority to have this done as soon as possible.

4. Your committee have carefully examined the fences enclosing the jail yard and find that considerable repairs should be made, and some new fencing set up at once and would ask power to proceed with this work at once. In connection with this it will be necessary to place iron or steel gratings on three windows in the rear of the registry office to prevent the escape of prisoners from the jail yard.

5. Your committee ask for power to place two iron grills or gates, one on first and one on second floors of the jail building between the old building and the new annex, to facilitate the care of prisoners. Also to build a closet for the storage and care of bedding, etc., in the corridor of the new annex.

6. That the office of the jail be placed in the rooms formerly occupied by the coroners for holding inquests and that the flat used as a dead house be made into wash-rooms for prisoners' clothing, bedding, etc., this improvement will give the turnkeys much better control of the inmates of the buildings.

7. That the jail yard be graded and an asphalt grading, about four feet wide, be put around the outside walls to carry water away from the building. The grading can be done by the prisoners by employing a constable or extra turnkey for a month or so to take charge of the men while at work.

8. Your committee recommend the placing of a new birch floor in the main hall of the old jail building, and also electric lights in the corridors and halls controlled by switches at office, also a brick ash-pit in the yard for ashes and refuse.

9. The annex to the jail building being about complete and will be ready to hand over by the contractor within a week from this date, your committee ask for authority to take them and building when satisfactory to them and to settle with the contractors in accordance with the certificate of the architect for the amount of the agreement and such necessary extras as may have been ordered, also that they have power to furnish the twenty-four cells in the addition with iron beds, hooks, etc., at an estimated cost of about $9 per cell.

10. Your committee believe it will be necessary to place two beds in some of the cells, so as to provide for reserving one cell for juveniles and one for the prisoners on remand, and ask for authority to arrange with the sheriff that this object may be attained.

11. Your committee would like authority to arrange with the sheriff for the providing and maintaining of suitable prison suits or clothing to be worn by the prisoners sentenced for any length of time to jail.

The report was considered section by section. While the first one was under consideration, Coun. Baxter asked if the proposed changes would interfere with the erection of a band stand there for the coroner.

Coun. Maxwell replied that it would not and the section was adopted. The second section was explained by Coun. Maxwell, who said the rocks at the dead house was an eye sore. He voted its adoption, stating that the stone which was in the old wall could be used in the proposed new work. The iron rail would be well to leave of the place. Tenders would be asked for the performance of this work.

This section was adopted. The sections providing for the needed improvements in connection with the jail were explained fully by Coun. Maxwell and Nos. 3, 4 and 5 were adopted.

No. 6, which dealt with the conversion of the dead house into an office for the turnkeys of the jail, brought out an inquiry from Coun. Baxter as to what the county would do for a mortuary.

Coun. Maxwell said the room at present used as an office by the turnkeys could at a very slight expense be converted into a dead house. The arrangement suggested would place the turnkeys in a better position to control the prisoners.

Coun. Hillyard objected to this, claiming that the body of a person who died of an infectious disease should not be taken into the jail building.

Coun. Christie did not see any reason why the dead house should not remain as it was. Dead bodies should never be taken into the jail. He moved that this section be stricken out. The proposition in the report, if adopted, would bring down severe censure on the council.

This was seconded by Coun. Hillyard. Coun. Maxwell said if this change was made the present dead house would be the means of entering the jail. The present office would be separated from the jail provided the section of the report were adopted.

After some further discussion, Coun. Christie changed his amendment so that this section be laid on the table for three months so that the members of the council might look carefully into this matter.

This was supported by Coun. Lee. Coun. Macrae suggested that the council adjourn for a few moments to visit the jail to ascertain what was the best course to pursue.

Several of the county members concurred in this view and an adjournment was taken.

When the councilors reassembled, after carefully looking through the bill, Coun. Maxwell again moved the adoption of the sixth section.

This was seconded by Coun. Lewis. Coun. White advised that the building committee was acting vigorously in the collection of these back taxes.

The report was adopted. Coun. McGoldrick advocated making this change as soon as possible.

Coun. Christie moved that the matter lay over for three months. The amendment was voted down and the original resolution for the adoption of the section passed, the vote standing 12 to 8 for this motion.

The seventh section was adopted. The eighth was divided into three sub-sections. That with regard to the new floor was adopted. The portion providing for the fitting of the jail with electric lights was next considered.

Coun. Maxwell moved its adoption and Coun. Lowell moved an amendment that the jail be lighted with gas. The amendment was lost, the vote standing 10 to 10. The warden did not vote, so he did not have the right to give the casting vote. The original motion was put and the result was the same.

Then Coun. Maxwell moved that the buildings committee have power to fit the building with gas fixtures. This passed, the members voting for it. The remainder of the section passed and the ninth, tenth and eleventh were adopted.

A letter was read from Dr. William Bayard resigning his position as commissioner of the General Public Hospital.

Coun. Christie said Dr. Bayard was the founder of the hospital and had been at its head ever since its institution.

Coun. McGoldrick spoke in high terms of the services given by Dr. Bayard.

On motion of Coun. Macrae, the letter was laid on the table for three months, and Dr. Bayard was asked to continue in the position he has held so long and acceptably.

The St. John Agricultural Society sent a letter asking for a reduction in the taxes assessed on Moosepath park. This was referred to the finance and accounts committee for inquiry.

The bill of H. E. Mott, the architect, in connection with the annex for $65 was referred to the chairman of the finance and accounts and building committee to act.

Coun. McGoldrick called attention to a resolution passed by the council in January last appointing a committee to consider the best way to show recognition of the efforts of Drs. Ellis and Morris and the nurses at the hospital during the late smallpox epidemic. The committee was composed of Couns. Armstrong, Baxter, Dean, Millidge and Long, but they had done nothing in the matter. It was unnecessary for him to speak of the good work performed by these young ladies and gentlemen. It was generally known what sacrifices they had made. He suggested that the two physicians be present-

My doctor advised the use of Baby's Own Tablets, and in twenty-four hours baby was better; the vomiting and purging ceased and he regained strength. I can sincerely recommend them to mothers as a medicine that should always be kept in the house."

BOERS BOUND HOME.

First Batch in New York Fresh From Bermuda Prison Camp.

Barag "Praise the Lord" When They Heard of Peace, but Wouldn't Believe It Till De Wet Gave.

(N. Y. Sun, 15th.) Showing still the scars of hard-fought battles on the veldt and with faces bronzed by long exposure to the sun in South Africa and in the British prison camps, eighty-two Boer soldiers arrived here yesterday from Bermuda on the Quebec liner Pretoria.

They are the first batch of "Boer prisoners" to be released since peace was proclaimed, and with a few exceptions, all are on their way back to the veldt, where their battles were fought, to restore their farms and start life again under the new conditions that the war has brought about.

In the party were twenty-one officers, many of whom were conspicuous in the Transvaal G. A. Forces of these Gen. A. P. Cronje, a brother of the famous leader captured at Paardeberg, and Gen. J. R. Wessels, were the highest rank in the Boer army. Others in the party were J. Steyn, a brother of ex-President Steyn of the Orange Free State; Joubert Steyn, son of the former secretary of state of the Transvaal; G. A. Fraser, Mr. Steyn's private secretary; J. de Villiers, state attorney of the Free State; Field Cornet N. Ferreira, Gen. Wessels' adjutant; and Gen. J. de Wet, who was captured near Botha's staff and Commandant Klerks.

All of them, including the private who came in the second cabin, elected to pay their way home to South Africa instead of waiting for a British steamer to take them there, and so were allowed to take passage on the Pretoria. Besides the Boers the party included a few foreigners, who can't go back to the veldt because the British government has decreed so, and two Americans, J. J. Malloy of Boston and Michael Halley of Nevada, who don't want to go back anyway.

It was an interesting and picturesque party of men that lined the Pretoria's rail as she came to her pier. They looked like the fighters' pictures that have come from South Africa, their clothes of every cut and color, and their hats of every shape. Nearly all of them carried cut canes, some of them with handles made of cartridges, and all had familiar drop pipes.

They walked on their canes and puffing on their pipes and one by one asked all of them from old Gen. Cronje down if they were glad to be on their way home, to find out if they were. They weren't, but they didn't show it. That is the way with the Boers.

When the time for disembarking came they carried down the gangplank with them a collection of baggage that was as varied as their clothes. There were queer little chests that had been carried through the campaign of the veldt. Some had names of places now famous as battle grounds out in them. These who hadn't chests had dilapidated valises. One man carried a dog that had been with him through his captivity.

All of the men save Gen. Cronje and Wessels' boys, the baggage down the gangway. On the pier the privates mixed with the generals and talked in Dutch, though every one can talk English now, many having learned it in the camp in Bermuda.

The Boers had a hard time once they got on the pier, for the immigration officers did not know what to do with those who had come in the second cabin, which on the Pretoria corresponds to the steerage. First they were told to get on a boat for Ellis Island. Then they were ordered back on the ship to stay all night on the ground that they would have to show that they would not become public charges. But finally immigration Commissioner Williams was informed over the telephone by an indignant citizen how matters stood and he at once ordered their release.

All of the Boers were willing to talk and be photographed. Commandant Ferreira said that there were 4,600 prisoners in Bermuda, including some Cape rebels. The prisoners, he said, were divided after the declaration of peace into three classes, those who had taken the oath of allegiance to

FROM "THE WATCH BELOW."

The braces snap; the storm-sails rip; the fettered sails have straggled free; the straining gyre is in the ship. The foaming waves, the sea. Their glistering fangs are wide to strike; their famished eyes are flukes of fire; hunger and surfeit who still. Their immemorial ire. But fleetier than the fleeing hound, and surer than the ruthless foe, on rushes to its fate the flying star. The midnight watch below.

The watch is called; he never heeds; let the sweet feast his longing cry; on rushes to its fate the flying star. The sleeping-sailor boy.

The watch is called; the deck, the spars, the famished eyes are flukes of fire; the straining gyre is in the ship. The morning sweats their. With these he lines the surching deck, and mass the yards that strain the mast; he fears nor wind, nor wave, nor wreck, nor destiny's decrees.

In all his wrath the storm is on; deep calls to deep in travail-man; down to the waste the boy has gone—the setting watch—alone. The horror of the downward sweep; the struggle of the smothering fire! My guardian angel, wouldst weep if such a fate were mine!

Stay, my lament! He feared not ill. My life-dream too will soon go by. It is his watch below; the flying star. Let the wet sea boy lie! —Edward N. Pomeroy in the July Atlantic.

ST. ANDREWS, N. B., July 14.—The remains of the late Mrs. Ann Black were interred in the Rural cemetery on Saturday afternoon. They were first carried into All Saints' church, where the first part of the church's ritual for the dead was read by the rector, Rev. R. J. Langford, who also read the commitment at the open grave. Mrs. Ann Black was rector of the late Charles Black of St. David's parish, Charlotte Co. She had lived for the past twenty-five years with her son, Thos. Black, in St. Andrews. She had reached the great age of ninety-seven years and was in the enjoyment of all her faculties until the day of her death, which resulted from no specific disease, but simply from decay of nature. She was a native of the county of Sligo, Ireland, from which with her husband and family, she emigrated over seventy years ago. She landed in St. Andrews and has ever since resided in Charlotte county, never in all those years having been out of it. Her remains were interred Saturday afternoon in the Rural cemetery, the body being committed to the grave by Rev. Mr. Debell. Trimmed With Genuine Gold Bullion. Created in Paris for Coronation and Cost a Life.

BOSTON, July 15.—A $40,000 gown is on exhibition in this city at the mercantile establishment of the Pitts-Kimball Company, 507 to 617 Washington street. Yesterday the wonderful garment, one of the costliest ever created by human handiwork, was seen by hundreds of delighted women, and today and later vast numbers of them will be welcomed to view it. Husbands and fathers could not pass without a glance that was chock full of interest.

This gown is specially attractive at present because it was made for a coronation, and now everybody has in mind the recent ceremonies attending the crowning of the king of Spain and the reading of the plans for the coming celebration of the character in England. As the story runs, when the late czar of Russia died and there was about to be an enthronement of a new monarch of the empire, the Pitts-Kimball Company, a clever Parisian modiste, who resided in the French capital, conceived a daring scheme to further her ambitious. She announced that she had been commissioned to make a coronation robe for the new czarina. She proceeded to carry out the commission, which in reality was only a garment of the imagination. After months of work the dress was completed and the fashionable women of Paris flocked to her salon to see it. A sensation was created and the modiste's credit was marvellously strengthened. She thought fortune was hers. She began to live in style, at great expense. She rushed into debt to the amount of $1,200,000. Finally the creditors pressed for payment. She realized she had played a foolhardy game and that there was but one way out of the scrape.

One morning, according to the tale, she was found dead in death with her fingers clutching the hem of the magnificent garment in the very apartment where she had first displayed it to the public. Her effects, including the dress, were sold in a firm in New York. The coronation gown, which cost a life, over and above the $40,000 in cash, was made of red tulle of deep crimson velvet, the color of the fine old wines of France. It is decorated with genuine gold, with a border design a foot wide, on which $10,000 in gold threads was used. The mantle is entirely lined with the best royal ermine skins, 1500 of which were required. There are 17 satin ribbons attached to the sides, by which it was intended that as many pages were to carry it.

The gown proper is of heavy white satin of double thickness. The train is five inches long. Around the bottom is gold fringe two inches deep and above that an arabesque border in relief corresponding to the one on the mantle, five inches deep. The bodice is decorated with ermine sleeves and is laced up the back. There is a pointed effect with revers running toward the shoulders at the bust and these are richly finished with narrow embroidery in gold bullion. The gown was one of the features of the Pan-American exposition. The Pitts-Kimball company cordially invites the women of New Brunswick to view this creation of the dressmaker's art at the store this week.

It is entitled 'Bringing His Shoes With Him.' Following is the first verse: Strong as his silence, patient as his time, Dead to hot censures as to hasty praise; Who, when the crowd denounces as a crime The wronging stroke, nor hurries nor delays. The fourth verse reads: And such is he, who, with the salt of life, Still on his lips, comes homeward from afar, Bringing the sheaves of peace from ended strife, Less proud to conquer than to be done with war.

KITCHENER NOT COLD MACHINE

is Erecting and Sets a High Standard for Others—Able Men Surround Him—A New View of the Great General. LONDON, July 14.—On Saturday Lord Kitchener was conducted to the King's sick chamber, and His Majesty, from his couch, extended a warm welcome to him, and personally expressed his thanks for the termination of hostilities. The King then presented Lord Kitchener with the decoration of the new Order of Merit. The general next saw the Queen, after which he drove to Lord Roberts' residence in Portland place.

His greatest asset, perhaps, is the power of judging the character of those around him. He possesses the peculiar faculty of surrounding himself with able men. May it not be from the mouths of those who have pondered with him that his character has been misrepresented? "Doubtless he has faults. Perhaps the greatest of these is his desire to saddle himself with the responsibility for everything under his omnifarious and to be intimately connected with more detail than a human mind can conveniently embrace. The personalization of energy himself, he is prone to expect in others a standard equal to his own. That he is feared by his subordinates is true. But should it be otherwise? He certainly is loved by those who have worked successfully for him. His standard for judging success may be a high one, but in the long run the army and the nation profit by it."

Mr. Neilson, who prosecuted, stated present occasion, the locus had been transferred to Glasgow and again the rescue had been found to be not the plain matter of fact that it appeared from the schedule filled up by the accused, but simply the work of his imagination. Mabel Harle, in 'The Outlook.' 'I have been told to choose I should have prayed. "Let me go forth, my Lord, and meet of strife against Thy foemen, fierce arrayed. Fighting or falling at the battle's front. Comfort me not with ease." I should have said: "Or peaceful days, lest sword and spear grow blunt; The wounds, they want, their triumph, their despair." HARVESTING GRASSHOPPERS.

Dollar a Bushel for Prime Bugs in New Hampshire. FRANKLIN, N. H., July 10.—The crop of grasshoppers at the Webster place, about two miles from here, is expected to be even greater than in 1899, when $25 bushels were harvested and a bounty of $1 a bushel was paid by the state. A summer visitor placed his coat on the grass one day last week, while he assisted in raking up a small lot of hay. On returning an hour later he found that the grasshoppers had eaten it to shreds. A device to catch the grasshoppers by horsepower is used here, and the work of harvesting them will soon begin.

ADDRESS

By Rev. J. D. Freeman, at the Convention of the Baptist Young People's Union of America, at Providence, R. I., July 17th, 1902.

He who would build a worthy life must early turn from the search for enjoyment to the struggle for achievement.

For this end we were made, to this goal we are summoned by all high and noble voices.

We are allied. To that which doth provide. And not partake, effect and not receive.

THE LOVE OF ACHIEVEMENT is a universal human passion. It has been a spur in the side of man good and bad.

When Ulysses Grant was returning to this country from his tour of the world he was for a time the GUEST OF ENGLAND.

thou almost at thy country's, thy God's and truth's. But I must hasten now to say that such achievements can only be reached by the road of

A COMPLETE SELF-CONQUEST. Each man has two worlds to conquer, a world without and a world within.

SUSTAINED ACHIEVEMENT. No bad man can paint a good picture. No false soul can utter a true song.

And he knows it. While others praise him he is sick with the shame of conscious failure.

POETIC GENIUS. climbed the altar stairs from which he looked at the post-prayer of truth and beauty, by rising upon the winged steps of his own vanquished doubt and sorrow.

William McKinley, whose grave is still wet with world's tears, but whose memory blossoms from the dust and fills the land with fragrance.

I SAVE MYSELF. and casting himself therein he lost himself to self-indulgence, but saved himself for everlasting fellowship with Christ and knightly service in the Spiritual world.

therefore, "and oftentimes the means to do this make ill deeds done. Moreover, the very stress and strain of our intense modern life, with its consequent drain upon the nervous organization, creates a new condition of life, with its demands of intense activities, creep the tigers of abnormal appetites waiting their opportunity to leap upon us and bear us to the earth.
