KILLED ON INTERCOLONIAL.

Awful Tragedy a Few Miles North of Newcastle Saturday Morning!

FELL OFF EXPRESS.

Found by Section Men—Skull Broken by Fall—Funeral Monday.

Mr. Owen Doyle, the well known I. C. R. brakeman of Moncton met death under particularly sad and distressing circumstances while enroute to that city Saturday morning from Campbellton on the Maritime express.

Con. McPherson was in charge of the train and the other brakeman on the Maritime was Mr. M. Haley. When the train stopped at Moncton brakeman Haley noticed that brakeman Doyle was not in and it was supposed that he had been left at Harcourt. The matter was reported at the dispatcher's office, and while inquiries were being made over the wire, the dispatcher at Newcastle broke in with the sad intelligence that brakeman Doyle's body had been found lying beside the track by sectionmen Linden.

Baggage Master John Montgomery was probably the last person to have conversed with Mr. Doyle.

As the train was about two and a half miles from Newcastle, almost opposite the stone quarries, brakeman Doyle, who was sitting on a trunk in the baggage car, remarked to baggage master Montgomery that it was about time to go back and open the vestibules on the rear of the train, in readiness for the arrival at Newcastle. With these words he left the car, and was not afterwards seen alive. As the vestibules on Brakeman Doyle's portion of the train were open when Newcastle was reached, it is believed that he had opened them, and then losing his balance through an unexpected lurch of the train, was thrown out the car door to his death beside the rails.

When the body was found by the sectionmen about eleven o'clock Saturday morning, it was discovered that deceased had struck on his head, which was split open in several places. There was scarcely a bruise anywhere else on the body.

The corpse was brought here and Dr. Desmond was notified. Coroner Desmond took the statements of the trainmen Saturday afternoon and concluded that an inquest was unnecessary, as death was purely accidental.

Mr. James Doyle, brother of deceased, upon learning of the sad affair, went to Newcastle on the Ocean Limited, and the body was brought to Moncton on 76 Saturday evening.

The deceased was forty-nine years of age, and was born at Westchester, N. S., being a son of Mr. and Mrs. Garret Doyle. Four brothers and three sisters survive. He was twice married, and is survived by a daughter, Miss Bessie, aged about fourteen, who resides at Westchester.

Mr. Doyle was engaged to be married to Mrs. May Thorne of Moncton with whom he boarded. The funeral took place Monday afternoon. Members of the Railway Brotherhoods, B. of R. T. B. of L. E., O. R. C. and B. of L. F., of Comfort, Charlie Johnston.

TO ENJOY THEM—

SELVES A MONTH.

A party composed of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Robinson of New York, Mr. Herbert Holt and Andrew Holt of Montreal and Miss Hunt of Sherbrook came last week to Mr. Robinson's camp on the Little Southwest Miramichi, where they will arrange to spend a month fishing almon and trout and photographing live game. Their equipment is probably the most complete ever taken into the woods by a camping party and there is no reason why they should not have motor boat, motor canoes, sailing canoes, ordinary canoes, moving pictures machines, and many other useful and necessary articles. A milk cow has been sent into the camp for their conveniences, and also a flock of hens and ducks. Mr. Robinson brought with him a number of game trophies, with which to decorate his camps. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson have been regular visitors to the New Brunswick woods for several years and hink there is no place to equal the Miramichi. Mr. Henry Braithwaite will act as their guide.

Constipation

Baked sweet apples, with some people, bring prompt relief for Constipation. With others, coarse all wheat bread will have the same effect. Nature undoubtedly has a vegetable remedy to relieve every ailment known to man. If physicians can but find Nature's way to health. And this is strikingly true with regard to Constipation. The bark of a certain tree in California—Cascara Sagrada—offers a most excellent aid to this end. But, combined with Egyptian Senna, Slippery Elm Bark, Solid Extract of Prunes, etc., this same Cascara bark is given the greatest possible power to correct constipation. A soothing Candy Tablet, called Lax-ets, is now made at the Dr. Shoop Laboratories from this ingenious and most effective prescription. Its effect on Constipation, Bilelessness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath, Biliousness, etc., is indeed prompt and satisfying. No griping, no unpleasant after effects are experienced, and Lax-ets are put up in beautiful illustrated metal boxes at 5 cents and 25 cents per box. ### THE SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

The following extracts from the editorial utterances of leading Canadian newspapers clearly indicate the growing popular feeling in Canada in favor of public ownership of public utilities, which is most noticeable in Ontario and the West but is also becoming increasingly manifest in the eastern provinces:

The Toronto Globe, the widely-circulated and influential organ of the Liberal party, says in a recent issue:—"At the present time, when so much is being said about the failure of municipal operation of public services in Great Britain, the following notes from a Canadian in England may be of interest: 'In Sheffield I rode on a street car from the depot to the city for 1-2d. You can take a street car ride there of nearly five miles for 1d. Sheffield owns and operates its street-car system. The cars are big, commodious double-deckers, the upper part of some of them enclosed. Fifty thousand pounds surplus receipts (over operating expenses) from the street cars were used by the city in Sheffield last year to reduce the general municipal taxes. There are sufficient cars at all times. During rush hours the number of cars is increased, and seats seem to be provided for all; I saw no one standing at any time either in the Sheffield or Bury cars.'"

The Toronto world, one of the most powerful exponents of Conservative principles, has the following in a late issue:—"Public ownership as a live political issue is now so much in evidence that ranch-holding corporations are resorting in increasing measure to underhand methods of influencing popular opinion. Lately the World called attention to some of the organizations either established directly by these corporations or in their service, which make it a business to issue erroneous and misleading statements regarding the success of municipal and state-owned and operated public services. Not content with this form of tainted news, assistance has been sought from men of position, whose names carry some weight, and who can be induced to express opinions in favor of private corporation ownership. It has been openly stated that the United States railroads have secured the services of several eminent economists who ostensibly expressing their own opinions are really delivering what has been purchased from them. Whatever may be thus obtained is issued broadcast through the country by offices such as the national news Service at Washington, the Municipal Ownership Publishing Bureau of New York and other organizations actively engaged in the support of franchise-holding corporations. In spired items of this character are repeated, in some cases innocently enough, by Canadian newspapers that accept them as genuine news or as the expression of honest individual opinion. The whole system is, indeed, one of the most dangerous and subtle forms of opposition to public rights that could possibly have been devised. It is a method of misleading popular opinion, which can be successfully met only by exposure and the dissemination of accurate and reliable information regarding the true position of publicly owned and operated services and utility monopolies. Along this line the Public Ownership League can do excellent service. Once the people are thoroughly seized of the fact that these underhand methods are being employed, they will rapidly lose their influence for evil and ultimately aid in the destruction of the predatory interests they are intended to support."

The feeling of the prairie provinces is voiced by the following declaration of the Regina Leader:—"If eastern capitalists refuse to loan money for western municipal development in the hope of forcing us to give away valuable franchises to them rather than go without much needed services, they can no doubt embarrass us for a while but it would only be for a while. As one western paper very truly observes, the present eastern 'mutterings' are merely the last effort of the capitalist in a vain endeavor to kill the movement for popular control of public enterprises. When eastern capitalists say that western municipalities are extravagant, they mean that we are endeavoring to manage our own affairs and to save to the common people the profits which are now being earned in the east by the capitalists. If extravagance is confined to that there need be no great concern about extravagance."

VALUABLE MEDICAL PRESCRIPTION

Recommended by a Well-known Toronto Doctor, Whose Love for Humanity is Greater than His Prejudice Against Proprietary Medicines.

The following very valuable prescription, by an eminent and successful physician, will be appreciated by many who are suffering from cold, cough, pneumonia, or any throat, lung or stomach trouble, or run-down system, as it is a certain cure, and will save many a doctor's bill. It is almost a certain preventive as well.—"When you feel that you are taking cold or have chilly feeling or aching in any part of the body or head, or feel weak, tired, dizzy, unfit for work, pain in the head or back of the neck, do not neglect these dangerous symptoms, but send immediately to your Druggist and get a bottle of Psychine (pronounced Si-keen), and prepare as follows:—"Psychine, 2 teaspoonfuls. "Sherry, whisky or water, 2 teaspoonfuls.

"Choice of the latter can be made according to the judgment and preference of the patient."

"Mix thoroughly and take regularly before each meal and at bedtime."

This prescription has been used in thousands of cases and has been so universally successful that a number of leading physicians regularly prescribe Psychine in their practice for any of the above troubles, or any run-down, wasting or constitutional difficulty. It is the most reliable and valuable home remedy. It tones up the entire system, giving a feeling of youthfulness and vigor, adding many years to the life of those who use it.

"Years ago I was almost a physical wreck and was suffering with lung trouble. Friends and neighbors thought I would never get better. I began to despair myself. Losing faith in my physician, I recovered another case who recommended the use of PSYCHINE. It was surprising beyond description the effect it had. I seemed to gain with every dose. Inside of two weeks I was able to attend to my housework again. There were no symptoms of consumption about me now."

MRS. HENDERSON, St. John, N.B.

"I had been suffering from La Grippe. My lungs were weak and I had a cough, but Psychine cured me."

North Shore Clergymen and Elders Assemble at Bathurst—Officers and Committee Chosen.

The regular quarterly meeting of the presbytery of Miramichi was held at Bathurst last week. There were present: The Revs. Dr. Carr, of Campbellton; Kirk, Dalhousie; McLeod, New Mills; Wheeler, Bathurst; MacArthur, Newcastle; Simpson, Douglastown; Mitchell, Redbank; Colquhoun, Millerton; A. D. Fraser, Blackville; H. J. Fraser, Loggieville; Myers, Black River; Stavert, Harcourt; Archibald, Rexton; and Elders James Edgar, of Chatham, and Joseph Henderson, of Bathurst, and James Young.

Elders' commissions were received in favor of James Edgar, Chatham, and R. N. Weeks, Millerton. The following were elected: Moderator, Rev. Mr. Colquhoun, Millerton; clerk, Rev. J. M. MacLeod, New Mills; convener of Home Missions com., Rev. J. McLean, Chatham; of Augmentation Rev. J. M. McLeod, New Mills; of Church Life and Work, Rev. S. J. MacArthur, Newcastle; of Temperance, Moral and Social Reform, Rev. F. C. Simpson, Douglastown. The last mentioned committee is a new department in the Presbytery.

The commissioners to the general assembly, Rev. Messrs. Simpson and Colquhoun, presented their report, and were thanked by the Presbytery for their diligence. It was agreed that the amount of $170, required for the synod fund, should be allocated on the basis of seven cents per family. It was decided to raise $150 in the Presbytery to assist students for the ministry. Rev. Dr. Carr, and Revs. J. W. Wheeler, J. M. McLeod and G. S. Mitchell were appointed a committee to look after the matter.

Considerable routine business was transacted. It was decided to hold the next meeting in St. James' Hall, Newcastle, on the last Tuesday in September.

ST. JOHN VALLEY RAILWAY.
Hon. William Pugsley returned last week from Toronto and Montreal. Dr. Pugsley says that the reports of the flying survey for the St. John Valley railway which was recently made have been examined by McKenzie & Mann and have been found very favorable. From a traffic standpoint the report is very favorable, but some modifications will have to be made by the provincial government as a five-tenths grade is considered necessary. Dr. Pugsley says however, that there need be no delay and that engineers will be sent shortly to go over the proposed route. He looks upon the project as exceedingly hopeful and thinks it will not be long before the line is built as a part of the transcontinental system of McKenzie & Mann, with St. John as the eastern terminal for winter business.

The Union Advocate.

HENRY HARVEY STUART, Editor.

Newcastle, N. B., July 3rd, 1907.

OUR COUNTRY'S BIRTHDAY.

On the 1st instant, Canada entered upon her forty-first year as a confederacy. She has now seven times as much territory as she possessed in 1867, twice as many people and many times the volume of trade. But while her territorial expansion has pretty nearly reached its limit, only Newfoundland and, perhaps, the British West Indies and Guiana remaining to be absorbed, her population has only begun to grow. Henceforth, for many years, the hungry peoples who are crowded out of Northern Europe will flock in ever-increasing numbers to the vast vacant lands of our central, western and northern districts, filling our country with a mixed population which, when welded together by means of a common language and common political institutions, should make this Dominion the superior of every other state upon the earth with the possible exception of Russia, which lies in the same zone and has much more inhabitable territory. The only advantage we possess over Russia lies in the fact that we are drawing our people from a greater variety of nationalities than Russia. The dominant races of the Earth belong to the temperate zones, and nearly all of the temperate lands are in the north temperate zone. The further north we go in that zone, the harder we find the inhabitants; so to Canada, as soon as her population approaches anywhere near to that of her neighbor in bulk, will belong the leadership of the Western Hemisphere.

Should we survive assaults from without which may be made upon us while we are weak in numbers, nothing but discord within can mar our future or deprive us of our birthright.

To guard against disruption from without—and Japan and China are the countries from whom we have most to fear in this respect—let us hold on to our place within the empire, striving to bring ourselves into closer connection with the motherland and with our sister colonies in the southern hemisphere. To guard against civil strife, which would be suicidal to all parties, let us diligently cultivate the art of tolerance and brotherly love, respecting the rights and opinions of all our fellow-citizens and guarding their honor and welfare as jealously as our own. Only by mutual forbearance and timely concessions can such a polyglot nation as the Canadian exist. The task before our statesmen is herculean, but we trust they will be equal to the occasion and successfully guide our youthful state through the stormy waters of her transition period into the haven of permanent peace and security. God Save Canada!

CO-OPERATION IN BUSINESS.

In several of the countries of Europe—especially Belgium, Britain, France and Italy—there are hundreds of co-operative trading institutions which supply hundreds of thousands of people with most of the necessities, and not a few of the luxuries, of life at cost price. Starting not many years ago, on a very humble scale and with very few members, these partnerships have gained very rapidly in membership, business and influence, until now they form one of the most important departments of commercial and industrial life.

The Grange system, a kind of co-operative, has not as yet proved a success in this country, although its apparent failure was due more to the public lack of interest in, and ignorance of, the principles of co-partnership than to any defect in those principles. Wherever the Granges have been run properly, the farmers have experienced a great reduction in the cost of living.

"La Co-operative," a grocery enterprise conducted along the same lines as the European institutions of the same name, was founded, eight hours on Sunday. They may,

Montreal by Albert St. Martin over a year ago, and is flourishing. No one is accepted as a customer but those who work for wages, or salary as some prefer to call it. All provisions are purchased for cash in the wholesale stores and sold for cash to the customers. Most of the small profit made is applied towards the maintenance of the enterprise, while the balance is used to enlarge the business. During the first year of its existence, La Co-operative supplied no less than 411 families or about 2,000 people. By next fall the concern expect to be in a position to handle fuel and ultimately dry goods, hardware, etc. The customers, as they increase in numbers, will get their supplies more and more cheaply, and finally the cost of running the institution will be such a small proportion of the money handled by it that the members will be able to buy everything they need at prices very little above what the ordinary merchant now pays for his goods wholesale.

THE LORD'S DAY ACT.

Since coming into force a few months ago the new law regarding the observance of Sunday has proved a great blessing to workmen, thousands of whom, not not being in a position to risk the loss of their jobs, were formerly compelled to work every day of the week. Since the first of March when the Lord's Day Act, so called, went into effect, some 75,000 Canadian workmen have been relieved from Sunday labor and given at least one day in the week which they can spend with their families and on which they can rest and recuperate. The Act provides that except in certain cases, all labor for gain shall be suspended on Sunday. Where part of an industrial process must be continued on Sunday, that part only is allowed to run on that day, all other departments of the work being stopped. Provision is made, in some instances, for a holiday during the week for those who have to work on Sunday.

The law is a step in the right direction. Man's nature is such that he requires one day in seven or rest; and if he violates this law of his being he pays the penalty in injured health and shortened life.

It is destined that he must rest one-seventh of his time whether he wills it or not. They who do not keep their Sabbaths weekly will keep them in the grave whither they will go much earlier than if they had taken their rest at the proper time.

Our Sunday law has several defects which render it much inferior to the corresponding statute of France. In the latter country, we understand, every worker is guaranteed one day's rest in seven—if he works on Sunday he must be granted another full day free from oil. But the Canadian law does not sufficiently protect domestic hotel and restaurant employees and railway men. The former receive little or no consideration; and railway men are entitled to a day off only if they are employed of the same name, was founded, eight hours on Sunday. They may, vidently, be compelled, under the Act, to work six and three-quarter days a week, in which case they could have no legal redress. The great railway corporations are so powerful that they may for a long time yet continue to defy any laws against what they consider to be their own interests, but they will not always be able to dictate terms to their employees. The law imposes a real and unnecessary hardship upon those our Adventist and Jewish brethren who for Conscience' sake rest on Saturday. They are compelled to rest on Sunday as well, thus reducing the number of their working days to five per week. Some means should be found to remove his disability; as we have no more right to compel them to rest on Sunday than would the Mohammedans have to make Christians observe Friday. The French law provides for all such cases as enumerated above, and Canada could do well to bring her enactment up to the higher standard of France's code.

THE LAND PROBLEM.

The question of the ownership of land is now the leading problem confronting European Statesmen in all countries but France, where the lands of the nobility were confiscated during the great revolution and divided among the peasantry who still retain them, the people are demanding more land or at least a clear title to that which they now live upon and cultivate. In Ireland, the small farmers are asking the law into their own hands and deliberately driving cattle and sheep off the large grazing estates, determined by terrorism to keep these lands vacant until the owners are forced to sell at a nominal figure to those who will use the land for farming purposes.

The British government on the 5th ult. introduced into the House of Commons a bill for the compulsory purchase of 80,000 acres of untenanted land for the purpose of resettling tenants evicted during the land war. Two thousand tenants are to be given new holdings by the provisions of the bill, at a cost to the government estimated at $2,000,000. The same government have lately introduced bills to compel a breaking up of large domains in Britain and the distribution of parts thereof to peasant proprietors in Scotland and to government tenants in England and Wales.

A bloody civil war, caused by the andholders' oppression of the peasantry, has just been suppressed by the government of Roumania. Although the insurgents were ruthlessly butchered by the victorious soldiery, sweeping reforms have been made in Roumanian land laws in order to prevent another and more dangerous outbreak.

The majority of both Russian parliaments voted, in 1906 and 1907, for the wholesale expropriation of the lands owned by the nobility and the distribution of the same to one-fifth agriculturalists who should occupy them as government tenants. Instead of concurring with the representatives of the people, the government has dissolved the second Douma and arbitrarily changed the election laws so that henceforth the subject nationalities, and the great majority of the Russians themselves, will be practically disfranchised, and the majority of the next Douma will be composed of the landlord class.

he political parties which have been expelled from the legislature and deprived of all hope of returning by peaceful means are now calling upon the people to rise and forcibly take possession of the reins of power. It is doubtful how long the Czar's soldiers will continue to support him against the people. When the soldiers desert him, his career is ended.

The Spanish government, which has lately effected a triple alliance with Britain and France, is taking wiser and more politic course than the Russian authorities. It has elaborated and submitted to parliament a plan for distributing to the communes the cultivated lands belonging to the state, so as to allow each head of a family depending on so to take up a sufficient area to maintain his family. The land will be granted to the inhabitants of the communes on the payment of 25 per cent. of its actual value the whole amount of the purchase money to be repaid in fifty years. The plan also involves the organization of co-operative societies to aid the colonists in securing and exploiting the lands.

PLAYING WITH FIRE.

By an edict published last week, 11 Chinese officials are ordered to strictly carry out the anti-opium law and immediately begin an investigation into the quantity of land at present devoted to the cultivation of opium. Rewards are promised to those who faithfully and impartially execute the regulations, and dire punishment to those who disobey.

So far, so good. But in encouraging the introduction of wine into the northern provinces of China, the government of that country are opening the door to an industry nearly as detrimental to the nation as the one that is being so vigorously suppressed. If the culture of wine means that the nation is going into the business of wine-producing, a fair, though not a necessary, inference; the benefits arising from the disappearance of the opium curse will not be so apparent as China's best friends had good reason to expect.

THE UNITED STATES

OF EUROPE. It would be an inestimable gain to the nations of the world for the present alliance between Britain, France and Spain to develop into an organic union, thus forming, as advocated by the Secolo, an influential Italian paper, the nucleus of "The United States of Europe." Such a confederation, embracing at the outset such a vast territory and population, would soon be joined by Italy and the numerous small states of Europe and South America. The dissatisfaction among the inhabitants of Russia and Germany should make the acquisition of those empires easy, and the nations of Austria-Hungary would not be slow to see the advantage of joining the union. The Secolo's proposition is by no means a vague and impracticable dream, but a sensible plan capable of early realization.

Soldiers Loot a Store at Rethesay on Their Way to Sussex.

When Conductor Nickerson's special train stopped at Rethesay, about noon Tuesday last week, to permit a company of the 74th regiment to entrain, about a dozen soldiers, said to belong to the 71st (York) regiment, improved the waiting moments by plundering the store of Postmaster, J. R. Robertson which stands near the station. Only one clerk was in the store, and the militia men helped themselves to everything they could carry off and laughed at the clerk when he hinted of payment. Complaint has been made to the authorities at Camp Sussex.

This is the clerk's story. The soldiers say they were in a hurry, there was only one boy to serve them, and they took some things, but left money on the counter to pay for what they took. The affair has been settled.

CHAPTER I.
"MY dear madam, what you call heart does not come into the question at all," Sir John Meredith said, sitting slightly behind Lady Cantourne, leaning toward her with a somewhat stiffened replica of his former grace. But he was not looking at her, and she knew it.

They were both watching a group at the other side of the great ball-room. "Sir John Meredith on heart," said the old lady, with a depth of significance in her voice. "And why not?"

"Yes, indeed. Why not?" Sir John smiled with that well bred cynicism which a new school has not yet succeeded in imitating. They both belonged to the old school, these two, and their worldliness, their cynicism, their conversational attitude belonged to a bygone period. It was a cleaner period in some ways—a period devoid of slums. Ours, on the contrary, is an age of slums, wherein we all dabble to the detriment of our hands—mental, literary and theological.

Sir John moved slightly in his chair, leaning one hand on one knee. His back was very fat, his clothes were perfect, his hair was not his own, nor yet his teeth, but his manners were entirely his own. His face was eighty years old, and yet he smiled his keen society smile with the best of them. There was not a young man in the room of whom he was afraid conversationally.

"No, Lady Cantourne," she replied. "Your charming niece is heartless. She will get on."

Lady Cantourne smiled and drew the glove farther up her stout and motherly right arm. "She will get on," she admitted. "As to the other, it is early to give an opinion."

"She has had the best of trainings," he murmured. And Lady Cantourne turned on him with a twinkling smile. "For which?" she asked. "Cholera?" he answered, with a bow.

The object of his attention was the belle of that ball, Miss Millicent Chyne, who was hemmed in a corner by a group of eager dancers anxious to insert their names in some corner of her card. She was the fashion at that time, and she probably did not know that at least half of the men crowded round because the other half were there. Nothing succeeds like the success that knows how to draw a crowd.

She received the ovation self possessively enough, but without that haughty affectation of belles of balls—she looked. She seemed to have a fresh smile for each new applicant—a smile which conveyed to each in turn the fact that she had been attempting all along to get her programme safely into his hands. A halting masculine pen will not be expected to explain how she compassed this, beyond a gentle intimation that masculine vanity had a good deal to do with her success.

"She is having an excellent time," said Sir John, weighing on the modern phrase with a subtle sarcasm. He was addicted to the use of modern phraseology spiced with a cynicism of his own.

"Yes; I cannot help sympathizing with her—a little," answered the lady. "Nor I. It will not last."

"After all," she said, "she is my sister's child. The sympathy may only be a matter of blood. Perhaps I was like that myself once. Was I? You can tell me."

He fanned at his lips, having reasons of his own for disliking too close a scrutiny of his face.

"That is more than probable," he answered rather indistinctly. "Then," she said, tapping the back of his gloved hand with her fan, "we ought to be merciful to the faults of a succeeding generation. Tell me, who is that young man with the long stride who is getting himself introduced now?"

"That," answered Sir John, who prided himself upon knowing every one—knowing who they were and who they were not—"is young Oswald."

"Son of the eccentric Oswald?" "And where did he get that brown face?"

"Oh, it is not that," replied Oswald; "it is a feeling of unimportance and want of smartness among these men who look so clean and correct. Shall we dance?"

"Yes," she said, "let us dance by all means." Here she knew her own proficiency, and in a few seconds she found that her partner was worthy of her skill.

"Where have you been?" she asked presently. "I am sure you have been away somewhere, exploring or something."

"I have only been in Africa shooting."

"Oh, how interesting! You must tell me all about it!" She was watching the door all the while.

Presently the music ceased, and they made their way back to the spot whence he had taken her. She led the way thither by an almost imperceptible pressure of her fingers on his arm. There were several men waiting there, and one or two more entering the room and looking languidly round.

"There comes the favored one," Lady Cantourne murmured, with a veiled glance toward her companion. Sir John's gray eyes followed the direction of her glance.

"My bright boy!" he inquired, with a wealth of sarcasm on the adjective. "Your bright boy," she replied. "I hope not," he said curtly.

They were watching a tall fair man in the doorway who seemed to know everybody, so slow was his progress into the room. The most remarkable thing about the man was a certain grace of movement. He seemed to be specially constructed to live in narrow, cramped places. He was above six feet, but being of slight build he moved with a certain languidness which saved him from that unworldliness usually associated with large men in a drawing room.

Such was Jack Meredith, one of the best known figures in London society. He had hitherto succeeded in moving through the mazes of that coterie, as he now moved through this room, without jarring any one.

CHAPTER II.
MISS MILLICENT CHYNE was vaguely conscious of success and such a consciousness is apt to make the best of us a trifle elated. It was certainly one of the best balls of the season, and Miss Chyne's dress was without doubt one of the most successful articles of its sort there.

Jack Meredith saw that fact and noted it as soon as he came into the room. Moreover, it pleased him, and he was pleased to reflect that he was no mean critic in such matters. There could be no doubt about it, because he knew as well as any woman there. He knew that Millicent Chyne was dressed in the latest fashion; no furbished up gown from the hands of her maid, but a unique creation from Bond street.

"Well," she asked in a low voice as she handed him her programme, "are you pleased with it?"

"Eminently so," he answered. She glanced down at her own dress. It was not the nervous glance of the debutante, but the practiced flash of experienced eyes which saw without appearing to look.

"Is that what you did it for?" he inquired. "Of course," with a glance half coquettish, half humble.

She took the card and allowed it to drop pendulous from her fan without looking at it. He had written nothing on it. This was all a form. The dances that were his had been inscribed on the engagement card long before by smaller fingers than his.

She turned to take her attendant partner's arm with a little fawn, a little movement of the hips, to bring her dress and possibly her self more prominently beneath Jack Meredith's notice. His eyes followed her with that incomparably pleasant society smile which he had no doubt inherited from his father. Then he turned and mingled with the well dressed throng, bowing where he ought to bow, asking with fervor for dances in plain but influential quarters where dances were to be easily obtained.

And all the while his father and Lady Cantourne watched. Behind his keen old eyes Sir John watched Jack go up and claim his dance at the hands of Miss Millicent Chyne. He could almost guess what she said, for Jack was grave, and she smiled demurely. They began dancing at once, and as soon as the floor became crowded they disappeared.

Jack Meredith was an adept at such matters. He knew a seat at the end of a long passage where they could sit, the beheld of all beholders who happened to pass, but no one could possibly overhear their conversation, no one could surprise them; it was essentially a strategic position.

She gave a little nod. They seemed to be taking up some conversation at a point where it had been dropped on a previous occasion. "And?" she inquired suavely. The society polish was very thickly coated over the man, but his eyes had a hungry look.

By way of reply her gloved hand crept out toward his, which rested on the chair at his side. "Jack!" she whispered, and that was all.

It was very prettily done, and quite naturally. He was a judge of such matters and appreciated the girl's simplicity of the action fully.

He took the small gloved hand and pressed it lovingly. The thoroughness of his social training prevented any further display of affection. "Thank heaven!" he murmured.

The music of the next dance was beginning, and, remembering their social obligations, they both rose. She laid her hand on his arm and for a moment his fingers pressed hers. He smiled down into her upturned eyes with love, but without passion. He never for a second risked the "gentleman" and showed the "man." He was suggestive of a forest pool with a smiling, rippled surface. There might be depth, but nothing had yet reached beyond the surface.

"Well," inquired Jack, "have you thought about it?"

"Jack," said Sir John as they passed on, "when you have been deprived of Miss Chyne's society, come and console yourself with a glass of sherry."

The dutiful son nodded a semi-indifferent acquiescence and disappeared.

"Wonderful thing, sherry?" observed Sir John Meredith for his own edification. He waited there until Jack returned, and then they set off in search of refreshment. The son seemed to know his whereabouts better than the father.

"This way," he said—"through the conservatory."

Sir John Meredith and his son stood in silence looking around them. Finally their eyes met.

"Are you in earnest with that girl?" asked Sir John abruptly.

"I am," replied Jack. He was smiling pleasantly.

"And you think there is a chance of her marrying you—unless, of course, something better turns up?"

"With all due modesty, I do," Sir John said with a faint smile. He stood up his full six feet two and looked hard at his son, whose eyes were level with his own. They were ideal representatives of their school.

"And what do you propose marrying upon? She, I understand, has about eight hundred a year. I respect you too much to suspect any foolish notions of love in a cottage."

CHAPTER III.
JACK had an appointment with Millicent Chyne at half past 11 the next morning—an hour when Lady Cantourne might reasonably be expected to be absent at the weekly meeting of a society.

Jack went into the first jeweler's shop he saw and bought a plain diamond ring. Then he walked on to keep his appointment with his affianced wife.

Miss Millicent Chyne was waiting for him with that mixture of maidenly feelings of which the discreet novelist only details a selection. When Jack Meredith entered the room she was standing near the window, holding back the curtain with one hand and watching, half shyly, for his advent.

What struck her at once was his gravity, and he must have seen the droop in her eyes, for he immediately assumed the pleasant half reckless smile which the world of London society had learned to associate with his name. She saw the diamond ring and looked upon it with the beautiful emotions aroused by those small stones in the female breast, but she did not seem to recognize her own finger with-

McClary's Magnet Furnace

The man who has been provoked well-nigh to desperation when trying to squeeze fuel through the ridiculously small opening provided on common furnaces will appreciate to the greatest extent the advantages of the generous feed-door of the "Magnet."

It's the entire width of the fire-box, and very deep. Large enough to easily admit big, rough chunks of wood, that would otherwise either have to be chopped up or wasted.

And this feature is only one of the many possessed by the "MAGNET"—the furnace built on sound, sensible lines.

Built for wood, but will also burn coal.

Sold by enterprising dealers everywhere.

CROCKER-McKEE.

Fredericton, June 26.—A very pretty home wedding took place this afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton McKee, when their eldest daughter, Miss Mabel B. McKee, was united in marriage to Dr. J. Burton Crocker, dentist, and third son of Mr. Christopher Crocker, surveyor, of Millerton. The ceremony was performed at 4 o'clock by Rev. Willard MacDonald, in the presence of immediate relatives of both parties. When the ceremony was taking place the bridal party stood beneath a beautiful bower of evergreen with white snowballs here and there, the entire parlor being handsomely decorated. The bride was given away by her father and was becomingly attired in ivory satin lace over dress and wore a bridal veil of tulle and orange blossoms. She was attended by her sister, Miss Maude McKee. Miss Belle Sheffield, of Kentville, N. S., presided at the piano. At the conclusion of the ceremony a wedding supper was served in the dining room, which was beautifully decorated. This evening Dr. and Mrs. Crocker will leave by the C. P. R. express for their honeymoon to Boston, New York, Washington and other American cities. Among the presents was a beautiful carved oak rocker from the bride's graduating class at the U. N. B., the class of '99. The groom's present to the bride was a handsome pearl and diamond pendant, while to the maid of honor he gave a hoop of pearls.

SULLIVAN-FOX.

The marriage of Mr. Allan Sullivan of Douglstown and Miss Teresa Fox, a popular young lady of Bartibogue took place on Wednesday afternoon June 26th at St. Peter's church, Moody's Point, Bartibogue. Rev. William Morrissey performed the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in a dainty dress of white silk trimmed with Valenciennes lace and insertion, with patent hat to match. She was attended by her sister Miss Mamie Fox, who wore a gown of white silk organdie trimmed with lace, and hat to match. Mr. Martin Fox, brother of the bride supported the groom.

Many costly presents were received showing the esteem in which the bride and groom are held. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome gold brooch set with diamonds; to the bridesmaid a gold bracelet set with amethysts. To the groomsmen he gave a gold stick pin.

After the ceremony the party drove to the home of the bride's father where a supper was served to the immediate relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan will reside in Douglstown.

HEBERT-LEGERE.

Mr. Charles D. Hebert, School Inspector of Kent County, the Parish of Rogersville, and the eastern parts of Westmorland, was married at Cocagne, on the 24th ult., to Miss Alma Legere, daughter of ex-councillor D. Legere. Rev. Father Tessier of St. Joseph's College performed the nuptial ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Hebert will reside at Shediac.

TOZER-TOZER.

A very pretty wedding took place on the 26th June, 1907, when Mr. Wm. Burton Tozer of Little South West and Miss Annie J., daughter of Mr. Wm. Tozer of the same place, were united in marriage at the United Baptist assemblage in Whitneyville by Rev. N. Thorne.

Mr. Hazel Tozer was best man and Miss Ethel Tozer, bridesmaid.

THE BALMORAL

TRAGEDY.

Jury Unable to Agree as to Seely's Responsibility.

Dalhousie, N. B., June 26.—The coroner's court in the Fontaine yesterday. A large number of spectators were in attendance, including the widow of Peter Fontaine.

Dr. Martin gave evidence regarding the post mortem examination of the remains made by him on Saturday. His evidence corroborated that of Dr. Disbrow as to there being only two bullet wounds in the body, both caused by a 32-calibre bullet.

After five and a half hours deliberation the jury returned a verdict to the effect that the deceased was shot by Constable Seely, but they could not agree as to whether the shooting was criminal.

ANOTHER TRANS-

CONTINENTAL.

One of the most interesting and momentous railway schemes ever put forward is about to be taken in hand by the Government of Australia.

Arrangements have practically been made for the construction of a railway line across Australia from north to south, which, in turn, will be connected with Western Australia on the west, and Queensland, New South Wales, and Victoria on the east. This will mean the development of the "back blocks" of Australia, containing hundreds of millions of acres of some of the finest pastoral country in the world, and of a considerable area of mineralized country. The total cost of the construction of the Trans-Australia line will probably not be less than $30,000,000. The branch connecting with Kalgoolie will probably require not less than $25,000,000.

GUARANTEED CURE FOR PILES. Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Prolapsing. Dr. J. C. B. P. D. August refound money if it fails to cure. 14 days - 50c.

WORLD OFFICE.

LOOTED AGAIN.

The office of the Chatham World was again burglarized on Monday afternoon, while the staff was away to the circus. The safe was open, and the burglar broke open the drawer inside, getting about a dollar for his trouble. The burglar was seen leaving the premises, and is described as a youth of about 18, with wavy hair, wearing a black or blue coat with a stain on the back, and a cap. On Saturday night a thief entered A. C. McLean's store by removing a pane of glass. He only found a few cents in the cash drawer, and did not take them.

JAPANESE LOSSES

IN LATE WAR.

The exact loss of the Japanese in their late war with Russia has at least been discovered. On May 1st, 1907, there was celebrated at the Yasukuni shrine in Tokio the third and last great ceremony in honor of the souls of the dead patriots of the war. Because the emperor had decided that no man's soul shall be slighted because of political pining down the list of casualties the ceremony which took place on May 1st was all inclusive. It took in those to whom former honors were done, those that died of their wounds after the termination of the war and, by imperative order of the emperor, those non-combatants who lost their lives in the discharge of their duties in both branches of the service.

A total of the souls worshipped at the three ceremonies gives the complete toll of the war as far as the Japanese war and naval officers have been able to verify the records. It is as follows:

Souls	Worshipped.
first ceremonial.....	29,550
second ceremonial.....	30,877
third ceremonial.....	24,421
Total.....	84,848

One authority has it that the Russian dead and wounded during the war amounted to 388,500, but if this number he does not specify how many were killed.

UNCHANGING LOVE.

The love of God is a mighty even the depths of which, can never be fathomed, and it is only when aided by the Holy Spirit that we are enabled to conceive of it in even the faintest measure. It is inexhaustible, the more we learn with regard to it only serving to show how ignorant we were before.

And yet, so simply and fully has God laid this love before us that even a little child can comprehend it. The fullness of the love of God is seen in Christ Jesus, and just as we are able to take Him into our life, and learn of Him, just so far are we enabled to comprehend the wonderful love of God—wonderful from whatever point of view we gaze upon it.

It is unchanging—yesterday, today and forever the same—Past, Present and Future all alike to Him—a golden chain of love coming from our Father's hand, straight from His throne, encircling the whole earth, entwining around the hearts of the humblest believers, and thence stretching back to its source—blessed continuity!

How different with earthly affections? We were well thought of yesterday, to-day slighted, and to-morrow forgotten. No continuity here. Past, Present and Future having each their separate histories, hopes, aspirations and histories while upon each is written—Change and Decay.

And not only is the love of God unchanging with regard to its duration, but this is also true as to its character.

It is not hot one day and cold the next it is always alike. Men in some respects are creatures of circumstances, liable to be influenced by their surroundings, and as these constantly change, so men change with them. How much disappointment, sorrow and heart-anguish follow the wicked. These changes many know to their cost. Hence how sweet the God-given knowledge, that Jesus, the express of our Heavenly Father's love, abideth evermore the same. Remembering this, may the Divine light that He has kindled within us shine forth brighter and clearer until the day of his appearing.—Rev. F. T. Snell in Grangeville, (N. B.), "Son Light."

STORM AT TRACADIE.

The storm was much heavier at Tracadie than here, several buildings being struck, and was accompanied by hail stones. A violent wind was blowing. Mr. Albert Robichaud's house was struck but not much damaged. Mr. Robichaud was in bed and had just been called by his wife to see the wind destroy his fences and level the wood pile, when a bolt came down the chimney, breaking the bed to pieces. Mr. Adolf St. Peter had his house badly damaged. He suffered most severely from the storm. At Big River a man by the name of Bideau lost a large quantity of hay and oats. Some of the telegraph poles are down. The storm began about 1 o'clock p.m.—W. W. W.
