JOTTINGS FROM NEAR-BY PLACES

ILBERTON.

Ilberton, Feb. 7.—Mr. J. H. McCrae is making preparations for spring. He has just received a fresh supply of high-class drygoods from Toronto, also some very beautifully designed wall papers.

The family butcher of this place, Mr. Thomas Nicholson, intends springing for British Columbia. Mr. Harry Munce is visiting here with his brother, Mr. Sam Munce. Mrs. Edwards and her daughter are in the city at present.

Owing to the severe storm and bad roads, only a few of the children were able to attend school. Mr. I. Hord is visiting here with his brother, Mr. James Hord. Mr. Bert Macgregor is visiting here with Mr. G. A. Scott. Messrs. Adam and William Caverhill have returned home from Cowal, where they were visiting their brother-in-law, Rev. S. Lawrence.

BYRON.

Byron, Feb. 7.—Andrew Mair is on the sick list. The ice harvest has begun on the river. The ice is in prime condition. Miss Hattie and Mr. Oswald Elson have returned from Ingersoll, where they have been visiting their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Tunks. Mr. Joseph Montagu, who has been sick, is recovering. Edgar Griffin, of this place, has gone to Toronto, where he has secured employment from his old employer. The temperance people are just getting

GLEN OAK.

In the published description of a social held recently at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Mackenzie, Glen Oak, the following occurred: "The occasion was the departure for Chicago of the daughter of Mr. J. W. Mackenzie and Mr. Byron." It should have been "the following occurred: 'The occasion was the departure for Chicago of Miss Mackenzie and Miss Bryant.'"

WESTMINSTER.

Westminster, Feb. 8.—The death of Mrs. Kinnear, of con. 3, is regretted by the whole community. She was esteemed by all who knew her. Mr. Alex. Kinnear, of Glendale, has again been in poor health, but is recovering somewhat.

The storm has made the roads impassable in many places. Dr. McCrae has been holding some meetings in the south congregation this week, but has found difficulty in getting his horse through, especially during the night. Last Sunday evening, in the midst of the storm, he and Mrs. McCrae started for London Junction, where he was to preach for Mr. Gilmore. After going some distance, they stuck in a big drift and had to return home.

Mr. Andrew Kirk and Mrs. Kirk are both very poorly, and their friends are hoping for their recovery. Rev. J. S. Henderson, Hensall, will conduct missionary services in both Presbyterian churches on Sunday. Mr. Henderson is known as an eloquent speaker, and if the weather is better will have a large congregation.

We heard a man say the other morning that the abbreviation for February—Feb.—means Freeze every body, and that man looked frozen in his utterance. It was apparent that he needed the kind of warmth that stays the warmth that reaches from head to foot, all over the body. We could have told him from personal knowledge that Wood's Sarsaparilla gives permanent warmth. It invigorates the blood and speeds it along through artery and vein, and really stays the cold weather and resist the attacks of disease. It gives the right kind of warmth, stimulates and strengthens at the same time, and all its benefits are lasting. There may be a suggestion in this for you.

"DOCUMENTS IN THE CASE"

How The Advertiser Secured Important Information.

In 24 Hours Discovered Whereabouts of Man for Whom Lord Strathcona Is Searching.

On Thursday last, Feb. 6, The Advertiser published the following:

Col. F. B. Leys, M. P. P., of this city, has received the following communication, which is self-explanatory. Any of our readers who can furnish information that will lead to the recovery of the person named will kindly communicate with Col. Leys, or The Advertiser—Editor.

Toronto, Feb. 3, 1902. Dear Col. Leys,—Lord Strathcona has applied to this department for information with respect to Mr. Jesse Singleton, who was last heard of at London, in this province, and who is understood by Lord Strathcona's correspondence to have been a member for some Ontario constituency in the House of Assembly or in the House of Commons. Can you conveniently give the department any information which would enable the high commissioner's correspondent to make further inquiries in the matter? Yours very truly,

G. E. LUMSDEN.

This morning the following communication was received at this office:

Wanstead, Feb. 7, 1902. To the Editor of The Advertiser:—There is a Mr. Jesse Singleton living in Petrolia, who formerly lived in London. He is from the old country, and I know he has not written home for fifteen years, and is likely to be the man you want. Yours truly,

J. W. ROBSON. Here is a record. It is doubtful whether reliable information was ever before obtained more quickly through the medium of a newspaper's news columns. Thursday's Advertiser carried to every corner of the western peninsula Lord Strathcona's appeal, and within 24 hours an answer had reached this office. There is a sermon in this for advertisers and readers alike.

Housekeeper's Backache.

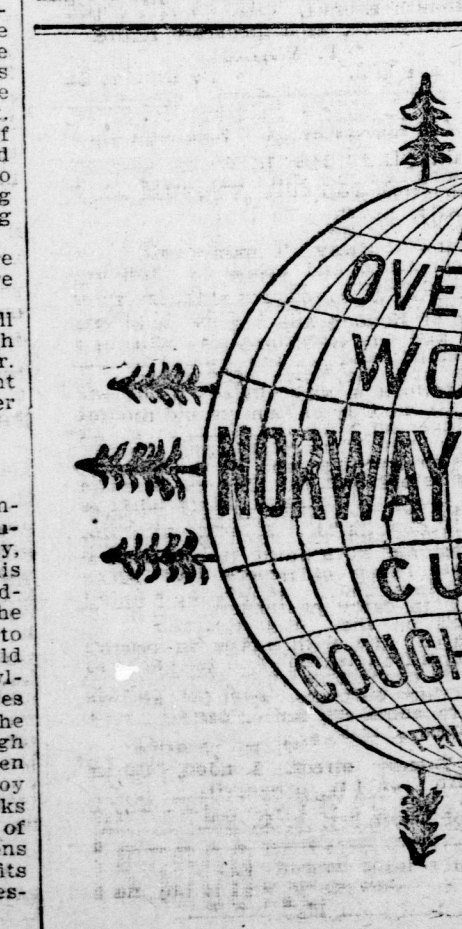

Many women lift and strain, over-work and over-tax their strength. Their back gives out. Their kidneys become affected. They have a painful or sore feeling in the small of the back that takes all the life and ambition out of them. They feel dull, depressed, lifeless.

Listen! The hard work you've been doing has thrown extra work on the kidneys. They cry out in protest through the aching back. You feel wretched all over because the kidneys are not working right and poison is circulating in your system. The kidneys must have help—better give them the benefit of the best Kidney Medicine made—Dr. Fitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets—the prescription of a kidney specialist—the result of years of study of kidney diseases.

PAIN PREVENTED SLEEP.

Mrs. N. Laviolette, Annapolis, Ont., writes as follows: "I have used Dr. Fitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets beyond question the best kidney remedy I have ever used. I had lameness and an acute pain between the shoulders. I could not sleep nights. I had more or less headache. Often I suffered from indigestion caused by uric acid in my system. These troubles departed after I had used Dr. Fitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, my kidneys were strengthened and I rested better nights. I think these Tablets the most effective kidney remedy I have ever seen. I know that they surpass every other that I have tried heretofore, and I do not hesitate in recommending them."

OPPOSITION INCONSISTENCY

In Regard to Developing New Ontario.

The Government's Course Championed by Mr. Conmee, Member for Algoma.

Mr. Conmee (West Algoma) in the legislature on Thursday replied to the remarks of Mr. Carnegie, who criticised the colonization policy of the government. Mr. Conmee said: Any business concern in the country could be shown to be bankrupt on the basis of the criticism of his honorable friend (Col. Matheson). The member for Center Grey (Mr. Lucas) had made insinuations in regard to the administration, which might be construed as meaning that there had been dishonesty in regard to the funds placed at the disposal of the government to carry on the affairs of the province. No one would place any reliance on these remarks unless his honorable friend had the courage to make a straightforward charge and demand an investigation by the house. (Ministerial applause.) But his honorable friend would not do that, because he could not produce a title of evidence to support any such charge. (Renewed ministerial applause.) He commended the claim that the opposition was to produce a title of evidence, and said that in 1890 conditions requiring the manufacture of the logs in this country had been inserted in contracts respecting certain timber sales. Honorable gentlemen opposite had in 1893 moved an amendment favoring the manufacture of sawlogs in Ontario, but as that interfered with the trade between the provinces he held that that was illegal.

He wondered at the inconsistency of honorable gentlemen opposite in urging the government to undertake increased capital expenditure, such as developing electric power, while at the same time they were promising if elected to cut down expenditure and taxation. Honorable gentlemen had failed to show in what manner they would cut down taxation and expenditures, and at the same time enter upon the many costly proposals they advanced. The public interest was drawn their attention to the fact that the government had, in regard to Niagara and other water powers, carelessly sacrificed the public interests to prevent monopoly. He denied that the Liberals had ever opposed the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and the only objection to the building of it (hear, hear) the Conservatives had not been the friends of New Ontario, for had they had their way there would have been no new Ontario; there would have been Manitoba or some other province. Honorable gentlemen opposite were, he said, now declaring themselves to be the champions of new Ontario, but in the past had voted against grants for colonization roads and other necessary works there.

SURVEYS NEEDED. Proceeding, Mr. Conmee said there was great necessity for surveys in Northern Ontario, if it is to be developed, yet Mr. Carnegie had moved, seconded by Mr. Macdonald, to strike out the item of $50,000 for the surveys of townships in the new districts. He himself favored larger grants for surveys. If the opposition were in favor of the development of New Ontario, why did they vote to reduce by $100,000 a mile the subsidy to the Ontario and Rainy River Railway, which, if carried, would have prevented the building of that important line? Referring to Mr. Whitney's opposition to the land grants to the Algoma Central Railway, and his support of the Manitoulin and North Shore line, he ventured the opinion that the change of position on the part of the opposition leader was due to his realization that the people resented his action in the first instance.

Mr. Conmee went on to speak of the vast riches of Northern Ontario between the great lakes and James Bay, where there were great quantities of iron and copper ore and petroleum, while there were also large deposits of coal. The possession of a seaport would be of great strategic and commercial advantage, while the fisheries of Hudson Bay would furnish untold wealth. The construction of railways in that region, then, was the greatest importance. Mr. Conmee commended the government's efforts to develop New Ontario, and said that more than $15,000,000 had been expended there by capitalists in the last two years.

He concluded with a strong protest against the efforts of the Conservative party to stir up race prejudice, and said that even now Liberals in his riding were being told they had better go to Quebec, where all the French-Canadians were, and where the people were all Liberals.

AGAINST ANARCHISTS

Provisions of the Measure Introduced in the U. S. House of Representatives.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Chairman Day, of the house committee on judiciary, yesterday presented the report on the bill for the protection of the president and the suppression of crime against the government to the United States House of Representatives. The committee has carefully considered the many anti-anarchist measures, and has sought to present a wise, conservative, canny, and effective measure. The purposes of the bill are summed up as follows: First—Prevent resistance to and protect the president and vice-president of the United States and those by law in the line of succession to that high office. Second—Protect the ministers and ambassadors of foreign governments accredited to and within the United States. Third—Prevent the open and deliberate approval of certain crimes, and also certain unlawful teachings, which, if permitted, are calculated and intended to breed lawlessness and crime against, and culminate in the destruction of the government. Fourth—Prevent the coming to or naturalization in this country of those who teach or entertain such pernicious doctrines. Fifth—Prevent conspiracies in the United States to murder the rulers of other civilized nations. Sixth—Provide adequate and uniform punishments for these offenses wherever committed—all the offenses against government and intended to impair or overthrow the government of the United States.

You Can Get Well

Without Risking a Penny.

Wont You Merely Ask for My Book?

I have written these books after a lifetime's experience, to tell you my way of curing chronic diseases. I have tested my method by thousands of bedside in hospitals and homes. It accomplishes what no other treatment can do. It is so sure that in any case, no matter how difficult, I take the entire risk. No money is wanted. Merely write me a postal for the book. I will send with it an order on your druggist for six bottles of Dr. Shoup's Restorative. He will let you take it for a month, and if it does what I claim the cost is $5.00. If it fails, I will pay him myself.

No other physician ever made such an offer, and none ever will. There is no other treatment that could stand such a test. But I have learned by experience that 29 out of each 40 who get these six bottles pay for them, because they are cured.

One time in forty I fail. Sometimes the disease is too deep to be reached in a month. Sometimes an organic trouble, like cancer, makes a cure impossible. But 29 in each 40 recover by my method. Get well. The other one pays nothing; the treatment is free.

Wont you write a postal to learn about a remedy like that? My success comes from strengthening the inside nerves. I bring back the nerve power, which alone operates each vital organ. I make each organ do its duty by giving it nerve power. Positively there is no other way. It is a pity for a sick person to neglect an offer like this.

Simply state which book you want and I will send it to you. Address Dr. Shoup, Box 11, Racine, Wis.

INFLUENTIAL DEPUTATION

Waits Upon Members of the Ontario Government

In Opposition to Prohibition—Prof. Goldwin Smith, J. W. Langmuir, Dr. Wikie and Others Among the Speakers.

Toronto, Feb. 7.—Bankers, brokers, managers of loan and trust companies and capitalists, including most of the men prominent in financial circles in Toronto, waited on the government this afternoon to point out the great harm which, in their opinion, would follow the passage of a prohibition law, and to urge that at all events, if a bill is passed, the interests adversely affected be compensated.

J. W. Langmuir, of the General Trusts Company, introduced the deputation, and assured the government that its members had no direct financial interest in the liquor traffic. They deplored the evils of intemperance, but they had seen marvelous improvement in the drinking usages of the people in the last 40 years, and hoped the prohibitionists would be content with the advance along that line. It might be that the government would introduce a prohibitory bill, and in that case unless 80 or 90 per cent of the local vote was polled, the government should demand a large majority. His own view was that a 75 per cent majority should be had if not more than half the electors went to the polls.

Prof. Goldwin Smith, after urging that the people of Ontario are conspicuously temperate, and are becoming more so, said there was no crisis calling for such a measure as a prohibition bill. "There is," he added, "one point upon which I cannot help feeling very strongly. If we are going to do a great moral act, undertake a great moral reform, we must do it in a moral way. A number of people are very happy to have met you. This deputation is a very large and influential one, and represents interests of the utmost importance. Whatever

A STARVING WOMAN

In the midst of plenty Madam Thibault Finds It Hard to Get Nourishment Enough to Keep Her Alive.

To starve in the midst of plenty seems a very contradictory state of affairs, and yet that is just what Madam Thibault, of Cacouna, Que., was doing. She had dyspepsia so bad she could not eat anything without the most unpleasant and painful after-effects, and what she did eat did not seem to strengthen her at all.

She says: "I suffered for a long time, and tried many medicines, but got no relief. I was very much run down and completely discouraged, when I heard of the Dyspepsia Tablets. I used them, and they cured me."

There are many who fail to recognize a very simple fact that they have dyspepsia until it is too late. They have some of the symptoms—the headache, the heartburn, the bloating, the sour stomach, the constipation, the pains in the chest and around the heart, or the most sure sign of all, that feeling of melancholy and lack of energy, that "blue" and discouraged feeling which makes one feel that everything is going against him. But with all these hands pointing to stomach trouble, they do not see back of these symptoms the real cause, and often make fatal blunders in applying a treatment entirely unsuited to the case and which increases rather than decreases the sum of their unhappiness.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are a scientific treatment of all diseases of the digestive organs. They will do for anyone what they have done for Madam Thibault and thousands of others.

It is your stomach that is at the bottom of all your trouble. Treat it with Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets and you will very soon see a change for the better.

Animals are found to be subject to hypnotic influence. Lobsters, it is said, can be hypnotized by standing them on their heads for five or ten minutes.

Fagged out, ideas come as slowly as molasses. You think of things just a minute or two too late. Snap's gone! The buoyancy that made work a pleasure is that gone too. Your blood requires phosphorus and iron that it may be formed readily. Now Perrozone is a wonderful nerve bracer and blood maker. It's food for the blood and nerves; it will make you healthy, quickly and permanently. Sold by W. T. Strong & Co.

COLONIALS IN ENGLAND

Proposal That They Form a Body Guard

At the Approaching Coronation of King Edward.

Regret in Europe at Britain's Refusal of the Dutch Proposals—British Have Not Abandoned Wei-Hai-Wei.

London, Feb. 8.—A newspaper interview, with Mr. James A. Smart, Canadian deputy minister of the interior, who is here in the interests of emigration to the Dominion, has been productive of several letters from former residents of Canada, reciting the hard times they and others experienced in Manitoba.

Recruiting for the King's Colonials is rather slow. Every applicant, it appears, is desirous of being an officer. It has been suggested that the bodyguard of the King on coronation day be composed of colonial troops.

The Government of the Commonwealth of Australia will not ask any commission on moneys expended in behalf of the imperial government. Canada, it is understood, will take the same position, but will ask that an equal amount be devoted by the imperial government to aid emigration to Canada.

On Tuesday Lord Strathcona addressed an informal meeting of those interested in raising the corps of King's Colonials. The other colonies were most represented at the meeting, which was quite private.

TALKED TO THE KING.
Charles M. Schwab, president of the United States Steel Corporation, had half an hour's audience of King Edward, at Marlborough House yesterday afternoon. Mr. Schwab was accompanied by Sir Thomas D'Almeida, who introduced him to the king. The king greeted his American visitor in the most cordial manner, and chatted freely with him, mainly on the friendship between the United States and Great Britain. His majesty especially referred to the close connection between the industries of the Dutch proposals regarding the South African war. Though there is a general disappointment, public feeling is not disheartened. Moderate opinion in Belgium, the Times correspondent says, condemns the attitude of the Boer delegates, especially as the British reply to the Dutch note does not preclude the acceptance of proposals if made in proper form.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Times says the Novoye Vremya comments on the Dutch proposals in a spirit which seems to indicate that the official desire to cultivate friendly relations with Great Britain is not without effect. The Novoye Vremya recognizes that the tone of the British note is extremely friendly towards the Boers, but makes the mistake of thinking that this shows weakness on the part of the British Government's attitude.

AGAINST CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.
Emperor William has intervened to stem the spread of the faith-healing cult in Germany. His majesty has had conferences with the chiefs of police for the purpose of devising measures to counteract the campaign of the Christian Scientists, who, here of the British Empire, have followers in the higher circles of Berlin society. It is claimed that Christian Science should be made illegal in Germany.

COALING AT SEA.
The British admiralty reports that successful experiments have been conducted in coaling battleships at sea by the new appliances, and that the problem is considered to be solved.

HOLLAND ACTED ALONE.
The answering of questions in the House of Commons today by government officials disclosed the fact that the government had no reason to believe that the note of the Government of the Netherlands on the subject of peace in South Africa was formulated in consultation with another European power.

The war secretary, Mr. Brodrick, said that the number of horses purchased during the last 46,008, came from the United States and 11,264 from Canada. In addition, about 89,705 horses and been captured in South Africa.

THE MANCHURIAN QUESTION.
Confirmation is to be had of the fact that the United States Government is acting with Japan and Great Britain in resisting any action by Russia and China in the shape of a Manchurian treaty that would threaten the interests of the United States in that important section of the world.

east. The United States department has made perfectly clear to Russia its purpose to retain whatever trade advantage it has in Manchuria, and its determined attitude in the matter probably has prevented the summary closing of the Manchurian ports to any but Russian trade. The questions now involved, namely, those relating to mining concessions and the right to construct railroads in Manchuria, are regarded as only secondary in importance to the "open door," and the United States representatives consequently are acting under conservative, but firm instructions on these points.

KILLED IN A DUEL.

It is reported in London from Paris that Prince Galatzin was recently wounded in a pistol duel with his brother-in-law, Count Tschernschorff, at Basle. The Cologne correspondent of the Times reports that the body of Prince Galatzin has passed through Cologne on the way to St. Petersburg. The correspondent says that this is the first intimation that the prince had been killed.

The Small of the Back

That is where some people feel weak all the time. They are likely to be despondent and it is not unusual to find them borrowing trouble as if they hadn't enough already.

The fact is their kidneys are weak, either naturally or because of sickness, exposure, worry or other influences.

"I was taken ill with a kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Thomas Innes, of Wallaceburg, Ont., "and became so weak I could scarcely get around. I had no sleep, and my stomach and my food did not digest. I took medicine without benefit, and finally decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. After the first bottle I felt so much better I continued its use and six bottles made me a new woman."

THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE

Holds a Somewhat Lifeless Session.

Hon. Mr. Harcourt Gives Figures Re London's Normal School—Several Questions Answered.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Toronto, Feb. 7.—The Legislature engaged itself with routine business this afternoon. There was not a single bright feature to relieve the monotony of a dreary, lifeless session.

The premier, in reply to a question of Mr. G. M. Boyd (North Grey), stated that the Manitoulin and North Shore Railway had been applied to the government for a charter extension.

Col. Matheson inquired of the minister of education when the evidence taken before the committee which held the investigation on the prices of school books would be brought down.

Mr. Harcourt replied on Monday. Mr. Whitney asked why it could not be brought down at once. It was only a matter of sending a page out for the document.

Mr. Harcourt, however, said not before Monday, and so it was arranged. Mr. Carleton (East Hamilton) asked what action, if any, had been taken by the government upon a certain petition relating to an amendment to the game laws and the close season for hunting hares, presented to the commissioner of public works in the month of October, 1900. If no action was taken, why? Was there any objection to granting the prayer of the petitioners?

In reply, Hon. Mr. Latchford said no action had been taken and none was advisable, because the hares in the close season were unfit for food.

Mr. Whitney inquired what was the cost of the Normal School at London. What number of teachers were employed, and what was the aggregate of their salaries. What was the number of other employees and the aggregate of their salaries. What had been the average attendance of students.

Hon. Richard Harcourt supplied the following information: Cost of building, $38,400; number of teachers employed, 6; aggregate of their salaries, $4,802; aggregate of other employees' salaries, $400; average attendance during five seasons, 107.

The bill of Mr. T. H. Preston (South Bruce) to amend the act respecting the council of education and arbitration, received a second reading. Hon. Mr. Latchford and Premier Ross favored it, but Mr. J. P. Whitney refused to do so.

Three unimportant bills were accorded a second reading. In committee the house reported seven minor private bills.

THE CHANGES IN THE CABINET.

Hon. David Mills Goes to the Supreme Court.

Mr. H. G. Carroll Will Succeed Solicitor-General Fitzpatrick—Mr. James McMullen and Mr. William Gibson Are Appointed to the Senate.

Ottawa, Feb. 8.—Following are the changes decided upon at yesterday's cabinet meeting:
Hon. David Mills—Supreme Court.
Hon. Chas. Fitzpatrick—Minister of Justice.

Mr. H. G. Carroll—Solicitor-General.
Mr. James McMullen—Senator.
Mr. Wm. Gibson—Senator.

THE NEW SENATORS.
Ottawa, Feb. 8.—Mr. James McMullen is the second son of Archibald McMullen, who emigrated from the county of Monaghan, Ireland, in 1846, and, coming to Canada with his father, was educated at the Fergus common school. Mr. McMullen is a merchant, and has been a councillor and reeve of Mount Allison, N.S., and was re-elected in 1887, 1891 and 1896, but was defeated in 1900. He is a Liberal and one of the most ardent opponents of the late Conservative Government. He believes in the autonomy of each province, reducing the number of senators to seven, and giving the House of Commons, and making the former elective, and is opposed to a discriminating tariff. Mount Forest is his home.

Mr. William Gibson is a Scotchman from Peterhead, where he was born in August, 1849. As a contractor, Mr. Gibson has built most of the principal structures of the G. N. E. west of Toronto, including the masonry of the St. Clair tunnel. He first entered parliament as member for Lincoln in 1891, was re-elected in 1896, and again in 1896, but was defeated in 1900. Mr. Gibson is grand principal of Royal Arch Masonry. His home is at Bechville.

The filling of the two Ontario vacancies in the senate brings the number of straight Liberals up to 28. Of the remaining 43 senators, 12 give the government an independent support and others may not be able from advanced age to attend. The government must therefore rely on the support of the 28 Liberals.

The Ontario people, Canada, should in this respect be regarded as a large business concern, sending its agents abroad, on the same principle as large dealers in the city send their travellers throughout the province.

With such a superabundance of material capable of being made into seasons of manufactured goods, there should be a concerted effort to increase our manufactures and find employment for our own people and for those who might seek a home amongst us. If the home market was to be preserved from the consequences of national overproduction, the only way to find relief is by the export of our surplus production, that the industrial population may not be less active or less intelligent.

Hamilton, Feb. 8.—Word has been received here of the death at the home of his son, Nantasket, Mass., of Rev. Ephraim B. Harper, D.D., one of the pioneer Methodist ministers of Canada. Dr. Harper had reached the age of 85 years. He was one of the best known and best beloved of Methodist ministers in Canada. For some years he lived in retirement as a supernumerary minister at Barrie, but for the last three or four years he had lived with his son, Rev. Cecil Harper, at Nantasket, Mass.

CANADA'S TRADE WITH EUROPE.

Premier Ross Throws Out Valuable Hints.

Suggests More Complete Transportation Facilities—Trade Agencies—"Sample Room" in London.

Toronto, Feb. 8.—Premier Ross, in making the announcement at Mr. A. E. Ames' dinner of the government's offer to give $5,000 a year for five years for the opening of a "sample room" in London or some other place that might be agreed upon, referred to some length to general trade topics.

He spoke of the importance of our system of transportation, and said that Canadians should not content themselves with simply improving internal transportation, but should endeavor so to project their system that at its extremity it would convey Canadian goods direct to the markets where they were to be consumed.

A railway commission would correct the discriminations that existed here, and was very desirable in the interests of the exporter and the shipper.

Mr. Ross also expressed himself as interested in a preference for Canadian goods in the British market. This was, however, to be brought about through the press and the education of public opinion in England. But anything that could be done in Canada, and in other colonies should be done steadily and perseveringly. He believed that before many years passed away the opinion of the British people would undergo a pretty radical change in regard to matters of trade. There was a very fine field there for men who had time to work at it. He also advocated the opening of trade agencies in Great Britain in order to instruct the people of Canada as to what classes of goods are most in demand, and also to direct, as far as that was possible, with regard to the goods produced there which would be most acceptable to the Canadian people. Canada, should in this respect be regarded as a large business concern, sending its agents abroad, on the same principle as large dealers in the city send their travellers throughout the province.

With such a superabundance of material capable of being made into seasons of manufactured goods, there should be a concerted effort to increase our manufactures and find employment for our own people and for those who might seek a home amongst us. If the home market was to be preserved from the consequences of national overproduction, the only way to find relief is by the export of our surplus production, that the industrial population may not be less active or less intelligent.

PRESCRIBED BY PHYSICIANS FOR THROAT AND LUNGS

Were evidence needed of the welcome accorded both by the public and the Medical Profession to Angier's Emulsion, the testimonials here published, though but a few out of many hundreds received, would be sufficiently conclusive. There is no doubt whatever as to its value in the different diseases for which it is recommended. It has been thoroughly tested by the Medical Profession, both in private practice and the hospitals. For troublesome coughs, throat irritation, and all bronchial and pulmonary affections,

Angier's Petroleum Emulsion

is certainly without an equal. It not only soothes and heals the affected parts, but it strengthens and invigorates the entire system. By purifying and fortifying the digestive tract it increases appetite and facilitates digestion and nutrition. Moreover, its antiseptic, soothing, and healing properties make it invaluable in the treatment of stomach and bowel disorders of a catarrhal, fermentative, ulcerative, or tubercular nature, such as Chronic Dyspepsia, Gastric and Intestinal Catarrh or Ulcers, Chronic Diarrhoea and Dysentery, and after fevers, measles, etc. A great point in its favor is that it is pleasant to take and agrees with the most delicate stomach. Angier's Petroleum Emulsion is the most helpful remedy known to the Medical Profession for the treatment of Chronic Bronchitis and Consumption. It never fails to relieve the most distressing symptoms, and often effects a quick, permanent cure when all other remedies have failed.

BRONCHITIS.—Have given your Petroleum Emulsion a thorough test, and can pronounce it excellent. I shall recommend it in Bronchitis and Consumption especially. E. J. GOODING, M.D., Boston, Mass.

STRENGTH GIVER AND APPETIZER.—It affords me great pleasure to write this letter to thank you for the benefit I have received from Angier's Petroleum Emulsion and Tablets. I have always refused to experiment with any of the much advertised medicines, but after reading your advertisement, I was convinced that your Emulsion was different from others, and a treatment of your Emulsion and Tablets for Asthenia and nervousness has proven it to be a marvellous remedy. Before taking Angier's Emulsion I was unable to eat a morsel of food. The sight of food itself disgusted me. After taking your Emulsion for the past two weeks I am able to eat and enjoy three hearty meals a day, and the nervousness has entirely left me. Am now using your Tablets as a supplement to the Emulsion. I consider them without an equal for throat irritations and coughs. E. M. NESBITT, Toronto, Ontario.

AN EXCELLENT REMEDY.—I am using Angier's Petroleum Emulsion whenever and wherever I can, and with universal success, and thank you for making such an excellent preparation. Petroleum is an agent that must be used to the front as almost a specific in throat and lung troubles. ALBERT S. ATKINSON, M.D., Baltimore, Md.

EARL'S DENE

"And you are acquainted with the character it bears?"
"That it is of the highest. Yes, madame."
"Character, Mr. Lefort, is everything."
"Assuredly, madame."
"And do you feel justified, Mr. Lefort, in coming here day after day and week after week, to teach in a school whose character is such as such as you admit it to be?"
"Madame?"
"I say do you feel justified, Mr. Lefort?"
"That is the question."
"I do not understand, madame."
"If I thought, Mr. Lefort, that you were a respectable man. In you I did not think myself deceived. But it is not that. I know what men are too well to be deceived at anything. But you must be aware that as long as your family go on as they do, you are not a fit and proper person to be the instructor of young ladies of respectability."
"Mr. Lefort became stiff in his turn. 'I must beg you to explain yourself, madame. What have you heard of my family?'
"Oh, you ask, do you?"
"Certainly, I know it."
"All the world knows it."
"And what does all the world know?"
"I blush for you, Mr. Lefort! I blush for your gray hair."
"I am not conscious, madame, that I have any reason to blush for them."
"So much the worse—so much the worse, Mr. Lefort."
"But this must be some slander. I will ask you—
"Ask your daughter, sir—ask Miss Lefort, who is the talk of the whole town."
"Mon Dieu! Marie—the best girl in the whole world. For shame, indeed. Ask her, as you pretend you do not know? And you will please to consider our engagement at an end. I will pay you, of course, instead of the usual notice, and I owe you something besides a belated salary."
"A gentleman does not pretend, madame. Yes, I will ask Marie—not you any more, who accuse her, and will not say why; and I will not take your money, no not a penny—not even when you apologize to her, as you will. He had some idea of his dried-up veins, after all; and he dashed out of the room as if he had been younger by thirty years. Mr. Lefort, Price lifted and rather doubtful.
"No doubt he did well to be angry, though not from a practical point of view, seeing that he had already anticipated the money that he had so scornfully refused. But he changed his mind about mentioning the matter to Marie; he could not bring himself to tell her, as he did not want to insult her, by asking her what it all meant, and he had too much confidence in her to really suspect anything wrong. He would almost as soon have suspected Angelique herself. The cunning, what was her existence. He did not even speak of his dismissal when he got home, but only said that he should not be back the following morning. Meanwhile he considered to whom he should apply for advice.
"One effect of his not going out the next day was that he spoiled the chance of anything like a tete-a-tete between his niece and him, who came according to his promise. She just whispered to her lover that no one knew anything about their engagement as yet, a communication at which, in truth, he was more surprised than disappointed.
"But he was fated to be still more surprised. He was about to leave, after a very short and unsatisfactory stay, when Monsieur Lefort said to him:
"Mr. Lester, should you think me very presuming if I ask you advice about something that concerns myself?"
"If I thought myself able to advise you in anything."
"Then would you let me walk with you a few steps in your own direction?"
"I shall be delighted to have your company. I am in no hurry."
"As soon as they were in the street Monsieur Lefort told him of his interview with Mrs. Price.
"I could not speak to her any more," he said, when he finished his story, "and I could not distress Marie. What had I better do to find out what it means?"
Lester frowned angrily. "I am glad you did not mention it to Miss Lefort, and to her father, who have heard something of this. I am ashamed that the Denethorpe people should be such fools—for myself, I should not care a straw, but if you are to suffer it must be stopped at once. It is to injure me that these absurd stories are put about."
"You, Mr. Lester?"
"Yes, in my election."
"But how?"
"I scarcely like to tell you, it seems so absurd. People pretend to have noticed that I am too much of your house."
"Eh, bien, and what then?"
"They join my name with that of Miss Lefort, your daughter. It seems, and they have the pleasant and charitable idea about me that I can be after no good."
"Then, Mr. Lester, you should have done one of two things. You should have told me, or discontinued your visits. You should have remembered the value of a girl's good name, when she has nothing else."
"Indeed, you wrong me. How could I have done either, when it was only the day before yesterday that the report came to my own ears? And I have not been since."
"But you came today."
"Monsieur Lefort, let us understand each other. I did come today, but it was to see your daughter."
"Was it, then, to tell me what you had heard?"
"What was it for, then?"
"It was to see your niece."
"What? Angelique?"
"Yes, I love her."
"Grand Dieu!"
"And I would make her my wife." Monsieur Lefort was so utterly taken aback that he could not speak for many minutes. At last he said:
"And does she know it?"
"I have told her so, and she has given me hope."
"And when was this? How long has she known it?"
"She must have known it for long."

"But if she has decided already?"
"Mr. Lester, this argument will prove endless. As a general rule, I trust you will not come to us while, as you see, your visits are likely to do us a fatal injury. If you do, I shall be obliged to think of you badly, which I am far from doing now. And I should, in my own self-defense, feel my duty to communicate with Miss Clare. Just think—it is a question now neither of you nor of Angelique, but of her health."
Lester did think, and then said, frankly:
"I will not give up Angelique. But I will give you my word not to call in Market street until after the election is over, except on that very condition that you write once to Angelique to explain why. I might do so without your permission, I know; but I wish you to feel that you can trust me."
"And I do trust you. And you shall have her answer."
And so, upon this understanding, they parted, mutually dissatisfied.

THE WORLD OF SPORTS.

HOCKEY.

LOST ON HOME ICE.

London lost their first game on home ice last night to the Stratford Juniors, 3 to 1. During the first half the team were playing against a fast team, and their work seemed to be somewhat loose, but after the first half they were only able to put one shot between the goal posts. One minute after play was started the rubber was carried down to London's territory, and was shot through the net by Leach. London made several brilliant rushes, but they were unable to get the puck past the visitors' defense. After ten minutes of hard work, Waterloo tallied again. Young making the telling shot, Forrester sustained his reputation by shooting Waterloo's last goal from the center of the ice fifteen minutes after the face-off. In the second half the Waterloo goal-keeper, Raymo, did some of the finest work ever witnessed on the ice, stopping shot after shot, and only allowed the puck to pass him once. La Pierre, of Guelph, made a very poor showing as referee. His decisions on offside were very rocky, and several times men were ruled off who did not deserve it, and allowed to keep on playing well-deserved merit punishment. The line-up:
London—Goal, Bishop; point, West; cover, Kerrigan; forwards, McAlhain, Lawlor, Cribb, Doane.
Waterloo—Goal, Raymo; point, Wilkins; cover, Forrester; forwards, Seyler, Young, Leach and Hendry.
Referee, Mr. La Pierre; Guelph, time-keeper, W. Smith and W. Morley; Waterloo, goal judges, W. McLennan and Andy Reid, Waterloo.

likewise are winners in the group in which they played this season. The visitors are certainly a fast aggregation of players and a team that Stratford may well be proud of. The game from the first was fast and good hockey. At half time the score stood 3 to 3 in favor of Stratford, while at the conclusion the score stood 11 to 4 in Stratford's favor. TAPPED THE WIRES.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 8.—When the Covington and Newport pool rooms were hit on Thursday evening for more than $20,000, there were many surmises as to how it was done, but it was claimed yesterday that the wires were tapped at some point north of Dayton, Ohio, as other pool rooms were hit south of here, and none north of Dayton. Most of the money from the pool rooms here was secured by visitors from Dayton, and it was on Lady Kent in the last race at New Orleans. The pool room men claim that their report was delayed fifteen minutes, whereby each of the four rooms was hit for more than $4,000 on that race. The telegraph company and the pool room men have instituted investigation, which they say, will result in sensational developments soon.

APPOINTED A COMMITTEE

To Endeavor to Secure Branch of Deering Concern.

Vigorous Endeavor To Be Made to Secure New Industries—The Best Sugar Factory Again.

The manufacturers' committee had several matters to consider last night, the most important being the possibility of securing for this city a branch of the great Deering harvest works of Chicago. This matter was quietly gone into last year by ex-Mayor Rumball, Mr. George Reid and Mr. Thos. Orr, the last-named gentleman having been in business touch with the company for some time. They appeared before the committee, and gave the members an idea of what the Deering people wanted, and impressed upon them the necessity for prompt and vigorous action. It was considered advisable to have more business men on the committee, and Messrs. J. W. Little, T. H. Smallman, John R. Minihnick, F. E. Leonard and the mayor, were named to meet Deering's representative when he comes here. A match factory, a sugar beet factory, and communications from two other concerns were discussed. The two latter were filed, and the sugar beet project, for which a bonus of $50,000 and exemption was asked, was left in the hands of a sub-committee. Mr. Walsh, who represents the match-making capitalists, said that his people would employ 75 to 100 hands, and pay in wages $20,000 a year. The company would put up a quarter of the capital, which is $150,000, with $100,000 subscribed. The committee will go further into this matter.

Our purpose in publishing facts about Powley's Liquefied Ozone is to let you know the absolute truth about it. An honest statement like the above from a responsible Canadian of Mr. Church's standing will help us—just as Powley's Liquefied Ozone has helped him. Now when you write Mr. Church to find out all about the good he has received you'll hear the truth from a disinterested, respected source—just as you would from any man or woman whose case we have given publicity. Statements from Canadian people, easily get-at-able, are as good for you as for us, we suppose.

Elderly folk should take Powley's Liquefied Ozone regularly—especially this time of the year. When one gets beyond "the middle arch of life" degeneration sets in—the blood does not receive the amount of oxygen it requires, the vitality gradually becomes lower and the body is left unprotected to the assault of disease germs. Powley's Liquefied Ozone is blood food. It adds nourishment and strength to all the tissues, muscles and nerve fibres of the body. It eliminates the poisons through the natural process and restores health to every organ of the system. Just try a bottle, the result will surprise you.

JACOB CHURCH, Esq., Samach and Queen Streets, Toronto. ("Not too old to be well.")

"For 34 years I have had a sore throat, which reached down to my lungs. I also had an abscess on my neck. I have been in the hospital often and on four occasions being treated by good physicians. I have also taken many different kinds of medicine, but from all these I never received any help. I at last, lost all courage and felt that I would have to carry disease to the end of my days. I have taken so much medicine that all of my teeth, except two, are gone. I had to earn my living, and you can understand my feeling when I felt my health and strength deserting me. I was advised to try Ozone and I had also read of Mr. Stevens, who was 71 years old, being cured. I felt greatly encouraged that I might get cured by Ozone, although I am 66 years of age myself. I commenced the use of Ozone and am glad to tell you that I am getting along splendidly. My throat and lungs are cured and the abscess is nearly gone. I am convinced I will get completely cured by the further use of Ozone. I can do my work now with comfort. I have great faith in Ozone, as it is the only remedy that has given me help, and I am sure I will be cured of my malady in a short time. God bless the men who invented such a good remedy for people's ills." (Signed) JACOB CHURCH, Samach & Queen Sts., Toronto. (Just south of Cork Factory.)

PERRIN-IRWIN.

The Clinton New Era says: "A happy event took place in town on Wednesday, Jan. 27, when Miss Miranda, daughter of Mr. Joseph Irwin, was united in matrimony to the Rev. S. J. Allen, the ceremony being performed at 7 p.m. by Rev. Dr. Gifford, of the Ontario Street Methodist Church. There were about 50 guests present. Bridesmaids and bridesmaids were dispensed with. After the ceremony and congratulations, a wedding supper was partaken of, and the evening spent in a most enjoyable manner. Many beautiful presents were received from numerous friends, who extend their wishes for a long life of happiness. Mr. and Mrs. Perrin will reside in London."

A DISTRACTING CONDITION

All fagged out, ideas came slow as molasses. You think of things just a minute, or so too late. Snap's gone. The buoyancy that made life a pleasure that's gone, too.

The doctor would say you are run down and that you don't eat or digest enough.

Your stomach needs some aid, and your digestion needs a bracer also.

Your blood requires phosphorus, and iron to purify and strengthen it.

Now Ferrozone is a wonderful blood maker, and nerve stimulant, it is really a food for the blood, nerves and vital energies, and will improve your run-down condition in a very short time.

Ferrozone will make you strong and capable of doing your day's work without fatigue. It is a marvelous remedy and does marvelous things, as a faithful test will demonstrate.

You can't spend 50 cents to better advantage than on a box of Ferrozone Tablets, and the sooner you get them the sooner you will get well. Don't accept a substitute, but go to Strong & Co.'s drug store, where they can supply you with fresh stock at all times. Remember the name Ferrozone. Price 50 cents for three week's treatment.

In London there are, according to the latest direct, 1,500 families by the name of Smith, 850 by name of Jones, 700 Brown families and 350 Robinson families.

MAKE A NOTE OF IT. When you are leaving home to buy "The D. E. F." Menstrual Plaster. It is guaranteed to cure the worst case of backache, headache, and everything said to be just as good. Get the genuine made by Davis & Lawrence Co., Ltd.

There are in the leper home in Louisiana 36 inmates—18 males and 18 females. Five Sisters of Charity nurse these unfortunate. The leper colony is a state institution.

TOOK STRYCHNINE!

Harry Nigh, of Springfield, Elgin County, Found Dead in a Hayloft.

Springfield, Ont., Feb. 8.—Harry Nigh (aged 19) was found dead in a small loft above the cow-stable, at the home of his grandfather, Stafford Irish, about five miles north of Springfield, yesterday.

It was first thought that Nigh was frozen to death, but upon inquiry it was found he had purchased 10 cents' worth of strychnine the night before, and the paper which had contained the poison was found in his pocket. No cause is assigned for the rash act.

COFFEE EYES.

It Attacks Many Persons There.

To illustrate how coffee can effect the eyes the words of a lady in Woodland, Iowa, are quoted:

"I was brought up to believe that tea was invigorating, but was allowed to drink coffee from childhood. Ever since I can remember I have been subject to severe attacks of headache, and my health was pretty good until a short time ago my eyes became affected; they ached and pained me continually, and were often badly itched. I also had queer, dizzy feelings in my head almost continually."

"One time we were obliged to do without milk, or cream for a few days, and I felt better. I was surprised to find my eyes greatly improved, and I felt better in every way, until I could quit coffee absolutely, and take up Postum. This I did, and my eyes quickly recovered."

"My experience showed that while coffee caused headache and eye trouble Postum Food Coffee does not produce any bad effects whatever and is greatly strengthening and nourishing."

"Name it Postum Food Coffee, Battle Creek, Mich."

ORGANIZATION MEETING HELD

East Middlesex Prohibitionists Unite in a League.

Pass Resolutions Regarding Referendum and Protest Against Proposal—Election of Officers.

At Somerset Hall, yesterday, a fairly representative meeting was held and the East Middlesex Prohibition League organized. Mr. Thomas Baty, of South London, was chosen president, Rev. Mr. Moyer, of Belmont, secretary, and eight vice-presidents—one from each of the eastern townships—will act with the other officers as an executive committee.

A few short addresses were made, and a discussion arose as to whether the members should assist the license inspector in securing evidence against violators of the liquor law. A resolution was proposed pledging their assistance to the inspector, but Mr. Moyer objected to such action, and said that the inspector was a paid official, it was his duty to collect this evidence. They could refer him to places where infractions occurred.

Upon the suggestion of the resolution committee the following resolutions were adopted:

"Whereas, the people of this province have by substantial minorities on two occasions, declared themselves in favor of the total prohibition of the manufacture, importation and sale of intoxicants; and whereas the government has declared on three occasions, and by three separate leaders, their intention of giving prohibition to the full force of the law; and whereas the present government was elected with this distinct understanding, and whereas the Manitoba decision has cleared away all doubt as to the validity of the law prohibiting the sale of liquor by wholesale or retail, within provincial boundaries; resolved, that we rejoice to hear that the government purposes introducing at this session a prohibitory bill along the lines of the Manitoba act, and trust that every temperance man in the legislature, of whatever political stripe, may give this measure his hearty support; further resolved, that as the referendum has never before been tried upon any provincial issue, we object to the adoption by the government of the suggestion of the liquor dealers' deputation that prohibition (the one question upon which provincial opinion has been ascertained) shall be submitted to this test; still further resolved, should the government decide to submit this question to a popular vote, we hereby record our protest against the proposal that a minority, through their ballots, should rule a majority, and more especially when that majority is in accord with the government's proclaimed policy, and is also composed of those who have the moral condition of the people most at heart."

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

Paris' at the London Opera House.

"Not an objectionable feature" is not a term that should go hand-in-hand with the performance presented at the London Opera House last night. It is difficult to understand why a manager should mar an otherwise bright performance by allowing vulgar and suggestive interpolations in the dialogue. The company is capable enough to stand on its own merits as a good vaudeville band, without needing to pandering to the depraved and vicious tastes of a certain class of theater-goers. The company is a clever one, the female members perhaps being more capable than their male associates. Abini is one of the best card manipulators seen here in late years. The Reyford sisters, dainty dancers, were warmly received, and the Sanford sisters did a good musical sketch. With the salaciousness cut out, the show would be well worth seeing.

"SAN TOY" TONIGHT.

That brilliant musical comedy, "San Toy," which is undoubtedly the big success of the present season, will be the attraction at the New Grand Opera House this evening. It will be presented here in precisely the same manner as when it was first run at Daly's Theater, New York, with the same beautiful costumes and scenic environment, and with an exceptionally strong company, which includes the clever comedian, Samuel Collins. The music of "San Toy" has been pronounced the most tuneful since that of the "Milk and Honey" is highly interesting and entertaining.

"STRANGE ADVENTURES OF MISS BROWN."

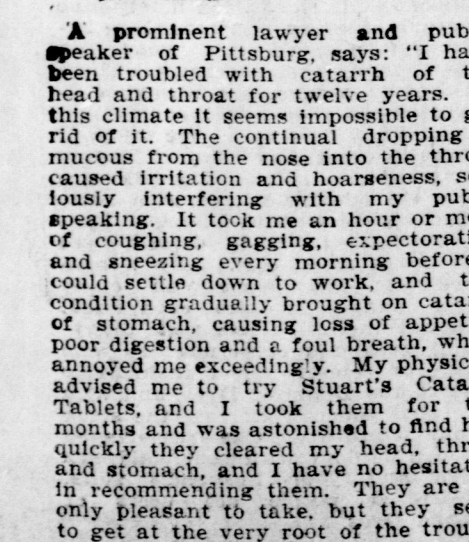

Next Thursday's attraction at the New Grand is the amusing comedy, "The Strange Adventures of Miss Brown," the merry play which created such a furore in London, where it had a run of nearly three years. It also amused New Yorkers for nearly 100 nights at the Manhattan Theater. The popular singing comedian, Will S. Rising, well known from his connection with "The Little Tycoon," "Ernie," "The and the outlook is bright. Wholesale trade is good for the season at Quebec and collections come in fairly. Business and few failures are reported at Toronto, while drygoods sales exceed any former year and payments are better than usual. January trade at Hamilton was better than in 1901, and jobbers are busy, but orders not large. Conditions are favorable at Victoria.

HUMAN BONES PAVE THE SEA

The Gruesome Story of Shipwrecks on Sable Island.

Graphic Picture of the Breathless
Terrors of a North Atlantic Hurricane.

The Changing Aspects of Sable Island is the title of an interesting article by M. O. Scott in the current number of the Canadian Magazine. This queer little sandbar out in the Atlantic is inhabited by forty-five persons, who apart from the occasional and necessarily uncertain visits of the government ship, are completely isolated from the rest of the world. The island, which for obvious reasons has been named "the graveyard of the Atlantic," was visited last May by a government expedition in charge of Prof. William Saunders, of Ottawa, who was accompanied by his son, Mr. J. B. Saunders, the well-known ornithologist of this city. Since then much has been written about the island, and the terrible hurricanes which sweep with but little warning over it, but nothing of greater interest than Mr. Scott's account has yet appeared.

"The ocean in the vicinity of Sable Island is not a lovely one, and ordinary lightships could be moored with safety," writes Mr. Scott. "The shoals lie on the northern edge of the Gulf Stream, the scene of the most destructive tempests ever witnessed on the Atlantic. The storm-riven skeletons of more than two hundred galleons, the sea, and the bones of probably between two and three thousand dead men, strew the submerged ridges, a sufficient proof of the danger. The island was even a menace to mariners and ships even when its sandy cliffs loomed away above the briny depths.

"A feature of these storms, frequently witnessed, is the blaze of phosphorescent lights from the wind-lashed waters. On a pitch-dark night, with the gale shrieking and the waves in indescribable fierceness before it, the phosphorescent flames are seen leaping and writhing in mad career, assuming with lightning rapidity a thousand horrible shapes, until the entire view is a confusion of breathless terrors. The inky blackness of the boiling waters breaking into masses of white foam, the flashing colors that wreath the crests of the roaring billows, the gleaming sheets and shivers of dazzling brimstone and deep blue and burning red and shining green, with snake-like twistings, in kaleidoscopic play, make up an infernal picture from which the unaccustomed shrinks in awe."

Mr. Scott quotes Mr. D. S. McDonald, another witness, as follows: "The sun often rises clear, giving indications of continued good weather, and with the exception of the sea breaking high, and the wind blowing fretful moan of the surf as it breaks along the shore, there is no premonition of the coming storm. Suddenly, a dull, cadaverous, and sickening clouds gather from all directions. The sky assumes a wild, unusual appearance. The wind begins to rise in fretful gusts, carrying swirls of sand before it. The darkness increases, as the low driving cloud shuts in all distant objects. Now the whipping off the summits of the hummocks, carrying the core of the storm to the horror of the scene, while rain descends in a perfect deluge. No human voice can be heard above the tempest. The crinkled lightning for an instant lights up the mad waves as they rear and leap along the beach. Then a sudden calm, strange, strange calm, a few short gusts at first break this period of tranquillity, and in a few minutes the hurricane bursts from the opposite quarter. The darkness is still intense, relieved only by the red glare of the lightning, which is quickly followed by the crashing of the thunder as it strives to break above the howling of the blast. Gradually the storm ceases, the clouds break and pack away in dense masses to leeward, and the sea alone retains its wild tumult."

It is a gruesome story Mr. Scott tells of the wrecks and pirates. "Pirates and wreckers resorted to the islands from the earliest years of settlement on the coasts of Nova Scotia and New England. In the huts of these men, along the pick of the mainland, were stored the pick of the rich cargoes of ships bound to the west and carried out of their course by contrary winds and currents, and wrecked on the shoals. Shipwrecked mariners and passengers who escaped death by drowning were sometimes murdered on reaching the islands."

THE GASTLY RECORD OF LOST LIVES.

and destroyed vessels begin with the first authentic accounts of the island. The Cabots are supposed to have made the island first in 1497 or 1498, although in the summer of the year 1000, Lief, the son of Eric the Red, sailed from Greenland in search of the south country, and may have landed on Sable Island, which in those days was probably fair to look upon, with trees and sheltered valleys covered with verdure and a secure harbor. In 1551 the King of Portugal made a grant of a large territory, including Nova Scotia and adjacent islands, Santa Cruz among them, to Juan Alvarez Fagundes. Santa Cruz is shown by a map of 1555 to be identical with the Sable of Joannes Freire's map of 1455, and the Sable Island of subsequent French maps, and of today. Expeditions to the island were frequent, and Europeans were found settled there simultaneously with the appearance of the maps. The Baron de la Roche is reported by Lescaurbot, the historian of Port Royal, as having sailed from France to plant a colony on the mainland. He failed, and returned to France, and on the return voyage stopped at the island and landed cattle. The Marquis de la Roche in 1575 received a commission from the King of France as lieutenant-governor of Canada, Hochelaga, Newfoundland, Labrador and adjacent countries, and sailed with 50 or 60 convicts in 1575 and stopped at the island and to remain there while he sailed for Acadia on the mainland to select a suitable place for the colony. Returning for his men he was driven out of his course by a tempest and had to go to France. In 1603 the captain of the expedition, 1588, Chef d'Hotel, was sent out to rescue the convicts, and on arriving found they had built shelters from the storms out of the timber of wrecked ships. Only eleven survived, and they were the shaggy skins of seals. Settlements of fishermen and adventurers were beginning to dot the coasts of the mainland; shipping was increasing and wrecks were numerous. The Duc d'Anville, in his expedition against the British colonies in 1749, lost his transport and a fresh here. In 1761 a British ship returning with a part of the 43rd Regiment from the capture of Quebec, was wrecked on the shoals. The spot where the shipwrecked men encamped is now five fathoms deep under the sea. The Francis, carrying the equipment of the Duke of Kent, was lost on the shoals in 1799, and all on board not one escaped alive. Soon afterwards, jewels and rare articles were seen in the cabins of fishermen on the mainland, some of which were believed to be part of his royal highness's equipment. Grim stories got into circulation of men escaping from their death struggle with the waves to fall victims to murderers on the beach. Many versions of the weird story of the Princess Amelia, in 1802, have been published. The furniture of the Queen's father, Prince Edward, was on board, together with the officers and their wives, women servants and recruits to the number of some 200 souls. All perished. An account given by Halifax states that the island was at that time the resort of piratical vagabonds, and it was generally supposed some of the unfortunate shipwrecked people reached the shore, but were

MURDERED FOR THEIR PROPERTY.

The prince sent Capt. Torrens, of the 23rd Regiment, to investigate. He, too, was wrecked, but saved his life. One day, after a stormy night, he went to the lower end of the island, he returned to a hut that had been put up for shipwrecked people. He made up a fire and went outside to take a look around before turning in. On re-entering the hut, he saw a lady, having no clothes on but a long, loose, sea-soaked white dress, wet from the sea, and with sand sticking to it, her hair hanging loose and dripping over her shoulders. She held up her hand, and he saw one of the fingers had been cut off, and the hand was still bleeding. He rose quickly to bandage the stump, a sufficient proof, he thought, that the island was even a menace to mariners and ships even when its sandy cliffs loomed away above the briny depths.

THE DIVER DIES WITHOUT AIR TO BREATHE.

The consumptive dies without lungs to breathe the air, or of lungs rendered incapable of breathing by disease. The blood flows in and out of the lungs, and the blood is the life of the body. The effect of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery upon weak lungs is to strengthen them, to expel the full oxygenation of the blood, arrest the progress of disease, and heal the inflamed tissues. Lung diseases have been and are being cured by "Golden Medical Discovery," in cases where deep-seated cough, frequent hemorrhage, emaciation, weakness, and night-sweats have all pointed to a fatal termination by consumption.

Some years ago I was almost a helplessly consumptive," writes P. M. of Sika, White Co., N. B. "I was confined to my room for several months; my friends and neighbors had given up all hope of my recovery, and I was almost dead. I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and after I had taken the contents of the bottle I felt better. I was able to take six bottles. I am now strong and healthy."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the clogged system from accumulated impurities.

It was with a jeweler at Halifax for sale. The rest was easy. Twenty shillings had been advanced, and the jeweler had secured the ring, which was at once recognized by the prince as a curious old family heirloom, and forwarding it to the lady's family.

The Traveler.

[Reply to Kipling's "He travels the fastest who travels alone."]

Who travels alone with his eyes on the heights,
Though he laughs in the daytime oft weeps in the nights.

For courage goes down at the set of the sun,
When the toll of the journey is all borne by one.

He speeds but to grief though full gayly he ride,
Who travels alone without love by his side.

Who travels alone without lover or friend,
But hurries from nothing to naught at the end.

Though great be his winnings and high be his goal,
He is bankrupt in wisdom and beggared in soul.

Life's one gift of value to him is denied,
Who travels alone without love at his side.

It is easy enough in this world to make haste,
If one live for that purpose—but think of the waste!

For life is a poem to leisurely read,
And the joy of the journey lies not in its speed.

Oh, vain his achievement and petty his pride,
Who travels alone without love at his side.

Notwithstanding the Introduction of Imitations and Counterfeits the Sales of

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

The Great Medical Prescription of Professor Phelps, M.D., is the Only Medicine That Truly Banishes
Disease and Sickness.

Shortly after the greatest of modern physicians, Professor Phelps, M.D., gave to the science of medicine the most wonderful remedy of the present day—Paine's Celery Compound—a host of imitations sprung up. As the great demand for Paine's Celery Compound increases in every section of Canada, imitations become bolder, and as a consequence the public in many sections are suffering from these vile deceptions. Today, no other medicine is so largely imitated as Paine's Celery Compound. This is due to its immense popularity.

Notwithstanding the introduction of imitations of Paine's Celery Compound in Canada, the sales of the great discovery have increased, and have been put to the test, shown himself unable to cope with the demands of a political career, and he has been led to a patriotic party may seem past dispute; but when this admission is made, his claim to become the leader of the nation may well be open to grave question. He has not, it will be said, given proof of any extraordinary capacity; his career as a politician has been a failure. He has admitted difficulties of his position, though it was one to a certain extent of his own choosing, may indeed be an excuse for want of success, but the man who is a statesman has on the one occasion when his powers were put to the test, shown himself unable to cope with the demands of a political career, and he has been led to a patriotic party may seem past dispute; but when this admission is made, his claim to become the leader of the nation may well be open to grave question. Three Detroit theater audiences went on strike a week ago. In two of the theaters the larger proportion of those present rose and left the houses during the performance. In the third, the performance was so disappointing that a crowd waited for the company at the stage door and handled the actors roughly. The services of the police were called in to disperse the gathering and protect the actors. Similar action on the part of other audiences might be productive of good results in certain cases.

The surname Robson seems a lucky one for those stage folk who bear it, either by right of birth or adoption. Andrew Robson, seen here in "The Royal Box" and "Richard Carvel," is making a distinctly favorable impression in his chosen line. Eleanor Robson, whose first appearance here was in "Arizoma," and who is this season Kyrie Bellew's leading lady in "A Gentleman of France," is a young actress who has advanced rapidly in her profession in the past half dozen years. Stuart Robson, now touring in a revival of his delightful comedy "The Henrietta," is one of America's favorite old-time actors. May Robson, whose specialty is grotesque roles, is playing a leading part in "The Messenger Boy," which was seen in Toronto this week. There are probably other Robsons on the stage, but none of them are known to fame as yet.

Miss Lilian Burkhart, a vaudeville performer, while playing in a New York State theater last week, objected to the nature of another performer's turn, consisting of a suggestive monologue, which spoiled the reception accorded to her own dainty sketch. Miss Burkhart objected, and invoked a rule of the house, which read: "The use of smut or double entendre must be dispensed with, under pain of instant dismissal, whether you are with a combination or not." The result was that the objectionable monologue was greatly modified and placed after Miss Burkhart's sketch. The adoption of such rules, and their indorsement by self-respecting members of the profession, would tend greatly to the elimination of certain objectionable features of the stage.

"The Tyranny of Tears," which will receive a presentation at the New Grand on Saturday next, is a clean, clever comedy of an unusually high class. In the hands of Mr. Reeves-Smith as leading man it is certain of a delicate interpretation, and it is worthy of that clever Englishman's abilities. The plot relates the domestic story of a successful author and his wife, the latter of whom has gained an unusual and exaggerated ascendancy by her habit of bursting into tears to decide disputes—of course in her favor—which becomes the "tyranny of tears." A rupture follows the discovery by the wife of her husband's lady secretary kissing his photograph "in a moment of abstraction." An "Richard Carvel" of Mr. Farbury, who visits the home, solves the puzzle by winning the hand of the secretary, and as the estranged husband and wife explain and decide to commence life on more sensible lines all ends well. The play abounds with a delicate humor and abundant epigrams, and the most exciting moments are carried through without loss of dignity of language or decorum. Mr. Reeves-Smith, Miss Margaret Robinson and an excellent company, most of them seen here in "A Brace of Partridges," will present the comedy.

"San Toy," with its pretty music and fantastic Chinese backgrounds, has been one of the greatest musical hits in London and New York, and is now in its third year of its run at Daly's theater, London. It contains a multitude of lyrics and is in two animated acts. A street in Pynka-Pong is the opening, with its narrow windings and grotesque old houses, huge decorated lanterns and writhing monsters and nightmare hieroglyphics. The crowds come and go—the Chinese men and pretty maidens, and the English officers and their women folk. The second act shows the interior of the Emperor's palace, in the Forbidden City, a really magnificent scene, it is said. The book is by Edward Morton, the music by Sydney Jones, and the lyrics by Harry Greenback and Adrian Ross, with additional musical numbers by Lionel Monckton. One of the musical gems is "Rhoda, Who Ran a Pagoda." "The Maid in the Moon" in the shadowy moonlit Chinese street, the singing all bearing lanterns, is another delightful number, and a third, full of grace, humor and animation, is "The Umbrella Dance." Londoners are fortunate in having the opportunity of seeing it at the Grand tonight.

THEATRICAL TITTLE-TATTLE.
"Wang" is still a big drawing card with the Australians.

Walter Jones, of "The Chaperons," has been critically ill with pneumonia, but is recovering.

An opera founded upon "In the Palace of the King" will probably be presented in London shortly.

Russ Whytal is writing a new American comedy for Stuart Robson, which will probably be presented next season.

A play called "A Gibson Widow" will be presented next season, the incidents being based on the Gibson drawings in Life.

William Gillette's first successful part, that of the foreman of the jury in "Colonel Sellers," contained four spoken words.

The latest report is to the effect that Charles Klein is writing a musical comedy or burlesque of "Pickwick" for De Wolf Hopper.

Lieber & Co. have made a contract with Mary Johnston, the author of "Audrey," for the production of a dramatization of her story. The use of the name of the author is already in the hands of the publisher.

The next venture of James K. Hackett will be "The Crisis," a dramatization of Winston Churchill's novel. It will be first produced in Pittsburgh on March 8.

Alice Nielsen will make her first appearance on the English concert platform in London, Feb. 11, when she will be assisted by the Queen's Hall Orchestra.

If present negotiations go through, Mrs. Sarah Cowell LeMoine, Mme. Modjeska and Odette Tyler will become triple stars next season, under the management of Wakenhals & Kemper.

Twenty-three thousand dollars is stated not to be an excessive sum to pay for the transportation of the scenery and belongings of a big theatrical production for a season.

Edward Harrigan will revive all his old New York successes in a Philadelphia theater during a two weeks' engagement, beginning Feb. 4. A strong company will support the veteran.

Charles Hawtree's New York success in "The Messenger from Mars" has become so great that extra matinees will be given last weeks of the company will support the veteran.

Jean Richepin, who declares he is the sole author of the play in which, under the title of "Du Barre," Mrs. Leslie Carter is now starring under the management of David Belasco, started his long-threatened suit against the manager last Saturday in New York, for what he claims to be his rights, both those of authorship and those financial. Mr. Belasco claims the play is his and Mr. Richepin does the same, and the courts will decide.

"Lady Margaret," another version of "Frocks and Frills," was presented in New York last Monday night for the first time by the Amelita English Company. Both company and play scored a success.

Charley Evans played the principal comedy role of "My Antoinette" about a week and then dropped out. Billy Van has since taken up the running and Nellie O'Neill will also try to make the piece a go.

Pauline Hall thought she was assured of the principal role in one of the "Floradora" companies, soon to be organized, when she discovered that he vaudeville contracts were binding for the remainder of the season.

Harry B. Smith has lately come into the field with the announcement that he is writing a comic opera around the "Pickwick Papers" of Dickens, and that Jerome Sykes will have the principal character therein.

"The Chaperons" is booked for an extensive western tour, and opened a big business in St. Paul last Monday night. This piece would have remained coast for the rest of the season, but good dates could not be secured.

"The Road to Ruin," with Terry McGovern, will open Sept. 1 at Pittsburgh. Terry builds on being a great star next season, as he believes his victory over young Corbett next summer is an assured thing.

Anthony Hope's "Pilkington's Peerage" had its first presentation in London last week. Mrs. Campbell enjoys the piece deals with a wealthy tradesman who wants to be a peer. It was well received, and with a few variations the piece will prove a success.

The estate of the late Charles H. Hoyt has been settled, and it runs up to something like $108,000. This would indicate that if Hoyt made the world smile it gave him in return reason for doing a little laughing himself.

Walker Whiteside has shelved "Robert of Sicily" along with the Shipman brothers and has gone under the management of Ed Snyder. He is now appearing in his old repertoire of Shakespearean plays, featuring "The Merchant of Venice."

Mrs. Pat Campbell, who is at present playing an engagement in New York, is reported to have won $2,000 at bridge whist one evening during the past week. Mrs. Campbell enjoys the reputation of being one of the cleverest bridge players in London.

Johnstone Bennett, the original "Female Drummer," will make her first venture into matrimony in the spring. Tony Williams, her partner in the vaudeville sketch she is interpreting, is to be the happy man. Mr. Williams has been married four times already.

When William Faversham concludes his engagement at the Harlem Theater, New York, Julie Opp and he will have parted company and will be appearing in separate engagements.

Miss Opp returns to London to assume the principal female role in "If I Were King."

The Bentleys, George W. Lederer and Harry B. Smith have been in close consultation of late and it is reported that they are planning to establish an original comic opera for the former to star in and that Lederer will look after the business end of the venture.

The new company playing "Floradora" in New York is reported to be better liked than the original organization. With Dorothy Morton, Virginia Earle, Thomas Q. Seabrooke, Albert Hart and Sydney Barracough having prominent parts, the musical piece should be unusually entertaining.

Edna Wallace Hopper will probably stage a spectacular comedy for the next several years under the management of Charles Frohman. Mr. Frohman has done so well with Edna that he has decided to present Miss Hopper in the same elaborate manner next season. The play is being written, but has not yet been criticized.

Maurice Bernhardt, son of the divine Sarah, has written and produced a melodramatic comedy, in which the heroine kills her lover, and the villain who she comes in contact, and is practically the only survivor of the action. Young Bernhardt has been accused of fouling upon the public a mild bit of satire against the adherents of the swashbuckler drama.

"At the Telephone" is the name of a new play that has been put on in Paris. It is in two acts, the first depicting the wife at home alone. She calls up her husband on the telephone as the shadow of a man is discovered in the ground. The second act discloses the husband in the apartments of a friend. He has called up his wife on the telephone and hears her cries of agony and calls for assistance mingled with the oaths of a man who is assassinating her. The piece will be played in America by Madeline Boulton, Baroness von Nimptsch, and one time leading lady of the A. M. Palmer stock company. The baroness has requested her manager, J. E. O'Leary, to try and secure Wilton Lackaye for her leading man.

Senator Ahern, who is working to pass a play censorship bill in the New York Legislature, has written a letter giving some of his reasons for believing such a measure advisable. Among other things, he says that "the managers who now possess my measure look to France and Italy for their greatest successes, and both these countries exercise state supervision over the dramatic arts. The dramatic arts are the dramatic refuse of the nations named, plays catering to indecency, combinations of scenic splendor and suggestive sensuality, and the most shameful of shameful sensuality. The harvest has been 'Zaza,' 'Sapho,' 'The Turtle,' 'Madame Du Barry' and kindred productions. Art gave way to commerce, and art suffered."

PERFECTLY WILLING TO WEEP.
Generally a photographer finds it easier to arrange a "scene effect" than to make a human being at home in it, but there are exceptions to the rule. "A man came in the other day," says an artist, "who relates the experience in 'Stray Stories,' and busied himself in looking over samples until I asked, 'Did you wish a sitting?' 'I don't want anything like what I want,' he replied.

"I told him that if he would indicate what he wanted I might arrange it. 'I don't know,' he said, 'but I don't see anything at all like what I want. You see, it's like this,' he explained. 'I had a girl that I loved, and she was going to get married. She had her things made up, and we were all but ready, when she was taken ill and died. And what I wanted was a picture of me, sitting on her grave, weeping.'"

"I was touched at the homely story of grief, and told him I could send a man with him to the grave, and have the picture taken as he desired. 'It's some distance,' he said. 'It's over in Ireland. I expect it 'ul cost a lot to send over your traps for what I want.'"

"I said it would. 'I thought,' he answered, 'that maybe you could rig up a grave in your shop, and I would weep on it, and it would do just as well. It's no trouble for me to weep anywhere.'"

Electricity poured into your body while you sleep — Dr. McLaughlin's method. Fills your nerves with electricity every night while you sleep, and in a few days all your nerves will be charged with new energy and your heart will beat stronger with gladness of youthful vigor. To men who are nervous, failing in vitality, sleepless, despondent, losing memory, wasting the vigor of manhood, dyspeptic, weak in stomach and kidneys, who notice a general collapse of all the vital parts—to such men ELECTRICITY as I apply it will bring happiness and health.

PAY WHEN CURED.

I know of no better way to prove my confidence in the wonderful curative power of my Belt than to cure you before I ask my pay for it. I do know that it will restore strength in every instance when given a fair trial.

No proof like that of the cured.

Constipation in its Worst Form.

Dr. M. A. McLAUGHLIN: Dear Sir,—I feel great pleasure in being able to inform you of the great, I may say wonderful, cure your Belt has worked in me. For twenty years I have suffered from constipation. Only those who have suffered from this dreadful ailment can know the terrible effect it can have on mind and body. To be relieved from the depressed state of mind and bodily torture is literally to become a new man. For twenty years I have had to use drugs, which only gave temporary relief, besides greatly weakening the stomach. I had one of the blistering Belts, but I had to leave it off, and exchanged it for one of yours, and I am happy to say that your cushioned-electrodes make your Belt the very best on the market. The soothing effect has upon the debilitated body is something wonderful, and I would not only feel it a pleasure to answer any question from inquirers, but believe it my duty to make known the great benefit I have received from the use of your Belt. Believe me to be gratefully yours,
JOHN MCCARTHY, Uffington, Ont., October 10, 1901.

CAUTION—If you value your health, do not accept an imitation of my Belt. There are many on the market. Old-style, blistering scorches, whose only merit is their ability to burn and scar the flesh, are being offered with a cheap imitation of my Cushion Electrode. But it is a sham. Don't accept it. The best is none too good when you want your health, your vigor, so avoid imitations. The cushion electrode is my special invention. Without it all electric belts blister and burn holes in the flesh and can do no good. I take the other Belts in trade.

FREE BOOK—Every man who admires the perfection of physical strength should read my beautifully illustrated book. It tells how strength is lost and how I restore it with my Electric Belt. I will send this book, closely sealed, free upon request if you will send this card. If you are not the man you should be, write to-day.

FOR ART'S SAKE.

Mr. Boughton, the English artist, while sketching in the Alps, was one day in search of a suitable background of dark pines for a picture he had planned. He found at last the precise situation he was seeking, and best of all, says Tit-Bits, there happened to be a pretty detail in the figure of an old woman in the foreground.

"I asked the old lady," said Mr. Boughton, "to remain seated until I had made a sketch of her. She assented, but a few minutes asked me how long I should be. 'Only about a quarter of an hour,' I answered reassuringly.

"Three minutes or so later she again asked me—this time with manifest anxiety—if I should be much longer. 'Oh, not long,' she said. 'But why do you ask so anxiously?'"

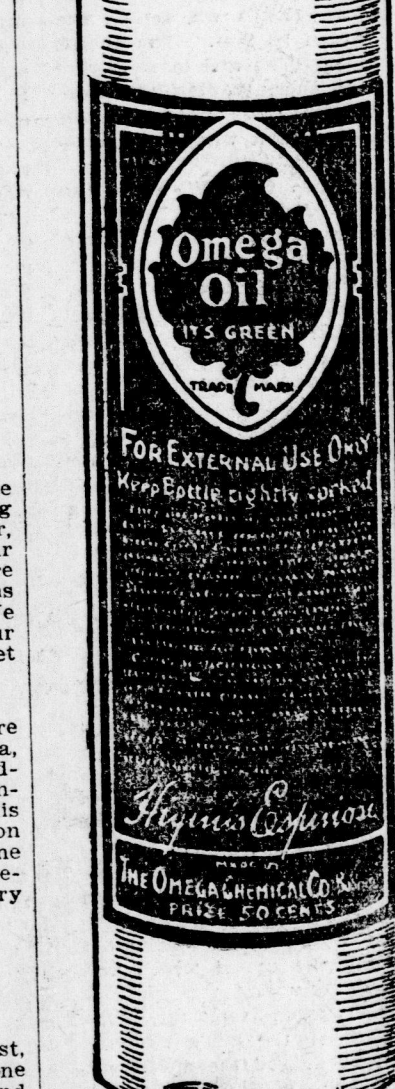

"Oh, it's nothing," she sadly answered, "only I'm sitting on an ant-hill."

Omega Oil

What It Looks Like

Here is a picture that shows how Omega Oil looks in the drug store. The wrapper on the outside of the bottle is always printed in green ink. The trade mark is a leaf, as the picture shows, with these words upon it: "Omega Oil. It's Green." Down near the bottom is the written signature of Higinio Espinosa, which is a guarantee that the contents of the bottle are genuine. Never under any circumstances buy a liniment unless this trade mark and name are on the wrapper. Never patronize a druggist who tries to sell you something else when you ask for Omega Oil. Beware of any other oil gotten up to deceive you. Always trade at stores where they give you what you ask for. Omega Oil stops all pains in the back, shoulders, arms, elbows, wrists, legs, knees, ankles and feet. It is good for everything a liniment ought to be good for. Rub it in good and hard, and the pains will go away quickly.

All druggists sell Omega Oil, or can get it for you if any jobber if they want to. If your druggist refuses to sell you this liniment that stops pain, the Omega Chemical Co., 257 Broadway, New York, will mail you a bottle, prepaid, for 50c. in cash, money order or stamps.

Two Phases of Man.

FIRST PHASE.

The man was seated. A lady entered. The man instantly arose and with a profound bow offered her his chair. There was no other chairs, but the man left his to her and sought a place for himself against the wall.

The lady sat down. This occurred in a drawing-room.

SECOND PHASE.

The man was seated. A lady entered. The man instantly ducked behind the newspaper he was reading and did not see the lady. He clung convulsively to his seat as if it were about to be forcibly taken from him. He affected not to know there was a lady within ten miles of him.

The lady did not sit down. This occurred in a street car.—William J. Lampton.

Whooping Cough.

Don't you dread it? There's not a sensible, well-read person in the world who isn't afraid of whooping-cough. It's a most distressing disease and a very dangerous one, too. The child is so liable to have convulsions, pneumonia or bronchitis as a complication.

The cause of the disease is a germ which rests in the back part of the throat and upper air-passages. How can these germs be destroyed? Certainly not by taking medicine into the stomach. Then why not breathe something into the throat that will destroy them?

That is just what Vapo-Cresolene does. You breathe-in the vapor; it passes right over the germs, destroying every one of them. All inflammation quickly subsides, healing rapidly takes place and recovery is prompt and perfect.

P. C. BARKER, M.D., Physician in Chief, Morristown Memorial Hospital, Morristown, N.J.,—"I have depended upon Vapo-Cresolene for years past in treating whooping-cough and bronchitis, especially in infants and young children. The beneficial effects of the vapor have been so evident, that some of my patients are in the habit of starting the lamp at night in their children's room for the relief of common colds."
