down by a bicyclist and considerably hurt yesterday afternoon. In connection with the foregoing hurt yesterday aftermoon.

In connection with the foregoing dispatch there is a coincidence in the fact that Mrs. Booth-Tucker, a sister of Mrs. Booth-Chibborn, suffered serious injury at East Orange, N. J., one evening last week by being run down by a bicycle ridden by a Salvation Army woman, who was taking her first lesson in wheeling. Mrs. Booth-Tucker's wrist was broken and she Tucker's wrist was broken and she sustained other painful injuries.

BALFOUR GETS A SETBACK. London, July 23.-The House of Commons yesterday proceed with consideration of the Irish Land Bill. Clause 24 of the measure provides that the advances under the purchase acts shall consist of money and not of guaran-teed land stock. When this clause was reached Sir Thomas Esmond, anti-Parnellite member for the West Division of Kerry, moved that advances should consist of guaranteed land stock and not of money. The rich landlords joined the Nationalists in support of Sir Thomas Esmond's motion, and it was carried by a vote of 99 to 86. This vote against the Povernment. was greeted with cheers and laughter, mingled with derisive cries

On motion of Mr. Balfour, the whole of clause 24 was then withdrawn.

ARBITRATION. London, July 23 .- The Standard says that if a day is not afforded the Opposition in the House of Commons to discuss general and Venezuelan arbitration, the second reading of the Appropriation Bill will enable the dis-cussion to be raised. It is the general opinion of the Opposition that Lord Salisbury is too timid and hesitating in response to the advances of Secretary of State Olney.

THE BUSY LEADER. Ottawa, July 23.-The Premier, who returned at noon from the east, spent esterday afternoon with his secretary trying to catch up to his correspondnce, which is very heavy, averaging hundred letters a day. Sir Richard Cartwright returned this morning from Caledonia Springs, where he had been spending a few days for the benefit of his health. Senator McInnes, of British Columbia, who is here on private business, is strong for British Columbian representation in the Cabinet in the near future. The distance from the capital and the diversity of interests of the Pacific Province are the strongest reasons for an adviser at the council board. A LUCKY YOUNG MEMBER. Mr. W. B. McInnes, the newly elected Liberal member for Nanaimo, B. C., who, with his wife, has been here for some weeks, has been made a happy father since his arrival. The source of his joy is a boy, who is, no doubt, a born politican. It is proposed to call him Donald Laurier McInnes. Mr. McInnes was said to be the youngest member of the new House of Commons, but he is said to be outdone in this capacity by Mr. Ethier, Liberal M. P. For Two Mountains, who is 23. Mr. McInnes is 25.

ANOTHER BIT OF EVIDENCE. The recent statement made relating negotiations between Sir John Macdonald and Hon. David Mills for securing a coalition Government, in which six Liberals were to have seats, calls for the mention of a fact not heretofore made public, regarding an attempt of Sir John to get Liberal aid in another direction. In 1890, acting upon the belief that the relations beween Mr. John Charlton and his Liberal colleagues were somewhat strained, in consequence of the position of the latter on the Jesuit estates question, Sir John had an overture made to that gentleman by a party in his confidence, asking Mr. Charlton to take a seat in his Ministry. Mr. Charlton replied that "if Sir John would abolish the franchise law of 1885 and the gerrymander act of 1882, and would go in for unrestricted reciprocity with the United States, he would take the proposal into consideration." A BLUE PROTEST OUTLOOK. The Ottawa correspondent of the Toronto World says: It is said that in every constituency in Ontario in which a Liberel was elected by less than 100 majority or so, a protest will be entered by the Conservatives where ground for it can be obtained. The two seats for Ottawa will certainly be protested. Journal, generally supporting the Conservatives, speaking of the contemplated policy of the Conserva-"'Cest magtive managers, says: nique, perhaps, but certainly ce n'est pas la guerre—and if the protests are made and tried and result in new elections, the Journal will gamble on the prophecy that the Liberal whips will have to quit trying to keep Liberal members in Parliament on the right side of the Speaker. for there will not be enough Conservatives left in the House of Commons to occupy more than the front row on the opposite side." THE SUPREME COURT Chief Justice Strong is the only member of the Supreme Court at present in the city. For the first time on record the work of the court is completed up to date, and everybody in readiness for the new October list.

Something About Gold Mining on the Pacific Slope.

To the Editor of the "Advertiser":

A newspaper correspondent now

visiting Coulterville, in Mariposa county, California, recently interview J. A. Patrick, an old-time resident of London, Canada. Mr. Patrick has had a varied experience of California life, and is now located in the center of the principal gold mining district in the southern end of what is known as the great Mother Lode of California. As consequence, he is often written to by old friends in this State, who think they could improve matters by going to California. The interviewer found Mr. Patrick in a communicative mood, and invited him to state his impressions of California, as compared with Canada. "Well," said Mr. Patrick, "I am always getting letters from old friends in Canada, where I spent some of the best years of my life. It takes me all my time to attend to my busiscratch out a answering long letters, and I am not fond of writing much, anyway. Of course, there is room at the top anywhere, but I don't hesitate to advise anyone who can make out in Canada. to stay where he is instead of coming to California, unless he can secure a position before he starts. Everything is overdone, and there are thousands of idle men about. A man finds it hard to make good friends here. The people are mostly a wandering lot, here today and away tomorrow, and a man is best to stay where he has friends. As regards work, most of it is in the employment of the big companies, and unless a man can get a pull on some of the bosses he stands a poor show. In the gold mines round about here nobody but a thoroughly skilled miner stands a chance of work, and the principal company in this district employs none but Cornish miners. ing it all round," said Pat, as Mr. Patrick is familiarly called by his many friends, "there is a great deal too much blowing and gassing done by the newspapers about this great and glorious California, as they name it, and while I am not making any particular kick against the place. I advise any man who has a comfortable home to stay where he is. People live pretty hard out here. The general style of living is about as rough as is usual in railroad camps. It is no sort of a place to rear a family in, unless for rich people in San Francisco and the big towns, who can afford to make it what they like. An ordinary man with a family has few of the comforts that he can get in Canada, even if he is making good wages. All gold mining is in the hands of capitalists. placer gold workings are played out, even for Chinamen and the few white men that are still prospecting for gold scarcely make grub at it. There is many a man out here now that rues the day when he left a good home in Canada, and would now be on the road back again if he could find any way to get there without walking. Many of the best native born Californians are now making their way east to look for chances in life that they fail to find here. Of course, if a man sends his friends a California newspaper it will only just mislead him. They will find it full of blow about sunshine, fruit and flowers, and festivals, but they will not read of the thousands of hungry men roaming around looking for a job of any kind, and unable to get work. Talk about fruit, you can get it as good and cheaper in Canada than you can in California, for all the says: Edward Lumley, of Toronto, was high-fallutin' talk there is about it. run over and killed by the Chilago that is about all I have to say on the subject, and if you will please publish this in the London "Advertiser" is may be the means of saving much hardship and many a heartache to Canadians if it stops them leaving there to come

BASEBALL.

ALDRIS VS. HAMS. The crowd that dispersed at the Tecumseh Park yesterday came away with glowing smiles. The victory was snatched from Hamilton in the ninth inning. It would have been sad, indeed, to see the match go to the Hams after the brilliant playing of the home oine up to the fifth inning. It was a enappy, quick game up to that time, and it looked like a blank score for the men from the Ambitious City. The disastrous sixth took the life entirely out of the audience, and many scathing remarks were heard against the home team. The Hamiltons played the game for all they were worth, but they spoiled the effect of their fine qualities by their incessant kicking. Their re-cent victories had probably swollen their occiputs. Morrison led the kickers, and as inning after inning rolled by, the harder he kicked, until in the ninth Umpire Dyson sent him to the Many thought the balls and strikes decisions were rendered with poor judgment, frequently the Alerts kicked too. The trouble increased, until Dyson in the minth said he would call the game if the Hamiltons did not take the field again. Watch in hand, he counted the seconds, and just before the limit expired, Dean took the ball and went to the box.

Morrison will never regain the favor with which the London people hitherto regarded him. His gentlemanly manner and quiet ways had made him a favorite here. His batting was applauded and appreciated, and his steady fielding at first base gained for him a reputation that no other player in the league enjoyed. He can now class himself as one of the disgruntled. With a couple of exceptions, the team backed up his kicking by joining in the several melees around Dyson. Marr Phillips, the old international player, occupied the short field for the visitors. Marr is nimble yet. His two singles to left field were beauties. Pfeiffer, who formerly took this position, is now in the right garden. McDonald, the raleased Galt player, is in center, and Malott, who played there formerly, was on first base in Morrison's place. Dean played a far better game than when here last. He covers more ground, and has a better way of going after ground hits, on which his errors

Probably the curiosity of the home people centered in the change made in their team since the last game here with Guelph. Snyder was behind the plate, and caught a magnificent game. His catch of a foul in the third, after hard run, was vociferously applauded. No chance was given him to throw to second, not a base being captured by Hamilton. Rathburn, the D. A. C. Unird baseman, made a reputation for the day. To him is due the credit of the runs in the second and fourth.
Hutchinson scored both runs on Rathburn's two two-baggers. Mertsch made several difficult catches. The one off Pfeiffer's bat in the eighth was away back of the track. Twice he turned to judge the ball, and then caught it with a backward jump.

The game was as follows: Steppi got to second on a hit by the meets Hamilton. The standing is: pitcher, and a wild pitch in the first inning. Hutchinson's and Mertsch's Galt. singles and Rathburn's double place an earned run to the score in the se ond. The latter two were on secon and third, but Fisher and Strowg were easy outs, when the side retired Again Hutch came home on his sing and Rathburn's double and a sarciff in the fourth. Up to this time, a though the home team all hit Morriso nothing could be placed safe. The fif and sixth were easy, but seven me going to bat. The seventh gave th despondent audience a chance to ope their lungs. The air was brimful applause as hit after hit was mad-after two men were out. Sippi's triple Hynd's double, Snyder's and D Wood's singles, and a stolen base Snyder and wild throw to second to Baker, contributed the three runs. The game was then 5 to 6 in favor of Han ilton. The eighth did not raise hope The ninth opened with the same scot against them. Strowger was the fir batsman. Morrison was full of dete mination; so much so, that he gar the active shortstop the initial bag four bad balls. This was the only of given by him in the game. Strong stole second, and on an over-throw Baker's to center, kept on to this Sippi placed one to the third basema who held Strowger to his bag, and then threw out Sippi. Hynd then hit to Phillips, scoring Strowger and tieing the score. It was Phillips' play to throw to the plate. He hesitated and then threw to Malott, who was playing in close, not expecting the ball to be thrown to first. Hynd reached the bag shead of him. This caused the heated discussion which placed Morrison on the bench. Dean took the box, and Snyder hit to Phillips, who was placed on second. The "old-timer" juggled it, Hynd making second safely. Dr. Wood scored Hynd on a pretty hit to left field, ending the game with one out for the inning.

It looked serious for the Hams as inning after inning was played and no sign of a run was in sight. But three hits were made in the first five innings. The sixth sent ten men to the plate The side should have been retired without a run, but five of them came in before it closed. Dean opened with a single. Baker followed him with another. Malott placed one at Dr. Wood and Dean was caught at the plate. Baker should have gone out in the same way, but Strowger made a wild throw to Snyder of McDonald's hit. Sippi also contributed an error jus Then followed doubles by ner and Pfeiffer, and a single by Phillips. Dean retired the side on his long fly to Mertsch. The run in the seventh was scored on a hit by Baker, passed ball, error by Hutchinson, and single by Pfenninger. The eighth and last mnings saw but seven players to bat, four going out on fly catches. Score: ALERTS. A.B. R. B.H. P.O. A B. Wood, 1b

The Alerts need team practice. The Hams, are great coachers. Bert Sheere was conspicuous by his "Hutch" is getting his eye on the ball again. Rathburn at third is good enough for London. Strowger adopted Malott's antics in the coaching box. Can't expect to win games with five errors in one inning. Hutchinson's injury in the ninth is likely to lay him up again. The Alerts seem to get the razzledazzles in one inning out of the nine. It was so with Guelph.

Why don't Strowger make errors on fielding chances instead of thrown Dr. Wood should have fielded the ball off Pfenninger's bat in the seventh, to cut off the run scored by Baker,

The painter who was painting a sign for W. Mann & Co., bicycles, on the new sign board, was not disturbed by the cheering.

THE CANADIAN LEAGUE. The race in the Canadian League is the prettiest in years, the teams being more evenly matched than ever ilton's head into third place. When the Alerts have their new pitcher, and if he proves to be a good one, there is no reason why they should not move up, as the other positions are now admirably filled, and the team is a hard-hitting one. Lieuts. Mitchell, King, Weller and Munro are likely prize winners, the highest score being 31. For the Daily Graphic prizes the team did well. Major MacDonald won three ten-guinea sketches and £5, and Lieut. Ross, who was 76th, £2.

In the Martin's list are seen Lieut. Mitchell, 23rd place, £3; Lieuts. King, Weller and Munro, £2 each. In the fourth series of the Scurry, Lieut. Ogg won £1. In the fifth series of the Scurry competition, five shots at 600 yards, Staff-Sergt. Harp, 48th Highlanders, and Sergt. Crowe, 1st B. F. A., each won £1.

The St. George Challenge Wase and Dragon Cup, competed for with the Martini-Henry rifle, in two stages, first stage, distances 500 and 600 yards, number of shots seven. The second stage is open to the highest 100 in the first stage. The distance is 800 yards; number of shots, ten. The first prize, the vase, Dragon's cup, gold cross and 130, was won in 1894 by Staff-Sergt. King, of the 45th Battalion, of Canada. £30, was won in £894 by Staff-Sergt. King, of the 45th Battalion, of Canada. The ranges then were 600 and 800 yards. His score was 77 out of a possible 85. The following are the scores in the first stage fired, seven shots:

JOHN FRIEND

The Bridal Outfit of Princess Maud.

A Lot of Nice Clothes Including a Bicycle Suit.

And They Were Mostly the Work of British Hands.

London, July 23.-Following the fashion set by her Majesty and adopted by her daughters and granddaughters, Princess Maud's wedding dress was made at Spittalfield's, and is "marvelously beautiful" in texture and appearance. It is of white saltin, ivory in tone, with a silvery sheen. The bodice is cut low, as is the custom at royal weddings, the square decoiletage being trimmed with folds of mousselaine de soie and trails of orange blossoms, jessamine, myrtle flowers, with here and there a darkgreen leaf peeping through. Below, the settin on the bodice is drawn downward, across the figure back and front, derminating on the left side in a deep ceinture delicately embroidered in silver and brilliants. The short sleeves are arranged in snowy frills of chiffon, with Mnes of the brida flowers drawn down between them bridal The skint is plain of the lustrous satin, with a ruche of chiffon, orange blossoms, myrtle and jessamine around the hem. The train is cut in one sor, has started a crusade against those who do not keep their closets with the skirt, about four yards and one-half long, and fastens at the left clean and those who sell milk without side with bows of chiffon and trails of the snowy flowers passing through Bothwell Times: Great activity is

The bodice has a deep folded belt of black satin falling in a little bow at the left side, and pointed revers of black saitin, edged with grass lawn guipure. The vest and collar are of blue and white chine silk, flowered with pink roses. With this will be worn a burnt straw toque, with puckered brim, into which are tucked clusters of shaded pink roses. At the back is a full pink and white os-

For stormy weather a traveling costume of pale brown Venetian cloth will be worn for the going-away gown. The skirt has the seams strapped, but it is otherwise quite plain. The coat is double-breasted, tight-fitting at the back, with the seams strapped, and the basque a little full and not very long. It is fastened in front with bone buttons, has a brown velvet collar, and cloth-faced lapels, one of which has a buttonhole worked in it. The sleeves are put in with flat pleats on the shoulders and are finished at the cuffs with five rows of stitching. Yet another tailor cos-tume is a pale blue and white mixture in a summer tweed, the coat open all the way down to show pretty

Black lace trims the shoulders, and at each side of the arms is a jetted piece of black veluet, shared to simulate the fronts of vet, shaped to simulate the fronts of an Eton jacket. A broad pleat down the front is studded with three small jet buttons. A visiting gown of petunia cloth has sleeves of the cloth with an upper puff. The jacket bodice, of a darker shade of velvet, opens over a full blouse front of amethyst and gold shot silk, covered with a tracery of gold sequins and mauve-tinted crystals encircling roses of the jeweled work. Similar designs in gold and gems are applique upon the sides of the velvet zouave. There is a band of embroid-ery round the waist, passing through a gold buckle and a collar of folded velvet, with a line of embroidery at the top. The skirt is plain, not full, and beautifully hung, which features are indeed characteristic of all the skirts in the trousseau. An afternoon dress is of black brocade in a small and graceful floral design. A yoke of tucked chiffon, black, is set in by a deep embroidery of jet beads and sequins taking the lines of a corselet. The body part is of black chiffon, worked in broken tapering lines of jet. The deep satin waistband is finished at the side by a rosette bow, with tall rabbit-ear anium-leaf pattern, has a blouse bodice of white satin under full black black paillettes in a very delicate tra-cery, touched at intervals with sparka brilliant effect. The bodice is simply fashioned with a soft fichu, so arranged that it looks as if/carelessly placed around the shoulders. It is of needle-run Alencon lace, studded over with brilliants and deep and pale amethysts. Similar jeweled lace ornaments the cuffs and neck. A handsome gown of shot black and green silk, with black pinspots upon it, has sleeves and chemisette of plain lighter green silk, veiled in black mousseline de soie, a waistcoat of rich cream-colored brocade and a tiny vest of soft black chiffon and a collar of the same. There are tabbed epaulets of the silk, with green sequin passementerie. A high belt of black satin completes the costume. SUMMER CLOTHES. For a summer dress there is a grass lawn with a design in forget-me-not blue woven into it, with white feathery silken lines connecting the flowers. This also has the Empire belt of black satin. A severely plain mavy blue surah and a black surah, relieved with Irish crochet, arranged in a series of Vandykes down the full front and sieeves, are more fitted for use than for ornament. The cotton blouses are more fully trimmed in proportion to their requirements than the others. They are made with boxpleated fromts, formed of embroidery, the pleats bordered on each side with a frill of narrow Valenciennes lace. Several of these models are of fine grass lawn, the center pleat, collars, and cuffs being of fancy embroidered

The tea gowns are soft and dainty. One, in Louis Quinze style, is of creamy hued crimpled mousseline de sole, printed with a design of pink flowers, and made over cream-colored glace silk. A shaped collar of creamy chiffon over glace silk is edged with deep frills of soft, creamy lace. The eeves are of shirred chiffon, and the back is arranged in a Watteau fold. Of matinees in silk and muslin, frilled and trimmed with lace and ribbons, there are numbers. The under linen is all of the finest description, trimmed with real lace and marked with an "M" and a crown in satin stitch. Apropos of the demand by certain Conservative journals that Sir Charles Tupper should be deposed from the feadership, and that Mr. Chapleau, of Quebec, should take his place, the Ottawa Free Press points out that "Mr. Chapleau declined to support the late Government in the recent contest. He showed his wisdom and had more foresight than some others."

It is a purely domestic concern, and outsiders like ourselves would be little interested in it if the Conservative newspapers had not forced a public discussion. But it is pertinent to inquire what has come of the courage of the Conservative party of Canada if they have no policy of their own entirely apart from anything that the new Liberal Government may say or do? Surely on all questions of the day, a party seeking the confidence of the electorate should be ever ready to put itself on record without regard to the views of others. ### Canada's Representative in

Sir Donald Smith, who has been acting as High Commissioner for Canada in England for the past few months, he did so under great pressure from the late Government, and then only as an interim officer, stipulating that he should be relieved before the fall. It is conceded in Conservative circles, indeed, that it would never have occurred to Sir Charles Tupper to ask Sir Donald to take the office of High Commissioner if there had not been the greatest possible tension in the ranks of the late Ministry over the distribution of the offices. The dis- sider's point of view: sensions arising from the struggle The world owes much to the patient, among the Conservative politicians for Canadian Premier, is a French-Canself-sacrificing investigator, Pasteur, offices of emolument resulted in the ticing his profession in Arthabaskaappointments prior to election day. But it would not surprise us if the new Administration should, in the altered condition of the relations of the Dominion to the outside world, require of the incumbent of the office harder condition. Whether the new arrange-Commissioner is more closely allied with the Government of the day than a leader whose name is still cherished by them." Sir Charles Tupper ever was, and is less of an ornamental luxury than he proved himself to be.

The ideal High Commissioner, to be chosen as successor to Sir Donald Smith, is a statesman in the prime of life, who could combine the duties of the Minister of Trade and Commerce with those of High Commissioner, and be in close touch with the Government of the day at Ottawa. He would be charged to devote less of his time to purely social functions, Canada as a land of boundless resources, but awaiting the judicious investment of British capital to make it one of the greatest and most prosperous countries owing allegiance to the British Crown. Another of his way possible commerce between the Motherland and Canada. Profiting by the experience of the late High Commissioner, he would not run amuck so interest the British people in this country that they would rather trade ers. He would seek by fair representation of our resources to interest old world farmers and others to com lands, and till them, recognizing that be got if the land is worked at a profit. He would not regard himself as the agent of the dominant party in Canada, as did Sir Charles Tupper, and, by misrepresenting political opponents, bring undeserved obliquy upon any section of the people. He would be intensely practical, avoiding all foolish graspings after the unattainable, but keeping constantly in view the fact that this Canada of ours can hold its own without misrepresentation or coddling, and that the British investor, the British merchant, the British farmer in search of better opportunities to make a home will be best influenced to favor us if they

With a High Commi thoroughly equipped for the service of country, and hearty co-operation at the hands of the new Administration at Ottawa, more especially from the new Minister of the Interior, the Canadian representative in Great Britain should be of the greatest service to his country.

Drawing on Scripture.

In the presidential contest in the United States some of the participants are drawing largely on Scripture for their illustrations. The peroration of the speech with which candidate W. J. Bryan captured the convention at Chicago was in the following terms: "It is the issue of 1776 over again. Our ancestors, when but 3,000,000, had the courage to declare their political independence of every other nation up-on earth. Shall we, their descendants, when we have grown to 70,000,000, declare that we are less independent than our forefathers? No, my friends, it will never be the judgment of this people. Therefore, we care not upon what lines the battle is fought. If they say bimetallism is good, but we cannot standard because England has, we shall restore bimetallism, and then let England have bimetallism because the United States has. (Applause.) If they dare to come out and in the open defend the gold standard as a good thing, we shall fight them to the uttermost, having behind us the producing masses of this nation and the world. Having behind us the commercial interests and the laboring interests and all the toiling masses, we shall answer their demands for a gold standard by saying to them, you shall not press down upon the brow of labor the crown of thorns -you shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold.'

A match for this was found in the conclusion of the address made in a New York church by Dr. M. W. Stryker, President of the Hamilton College, who made the following reference to the Chicago platform:

"Standing here on such a day as this I must say what I deem it a duty to say: I refuse to believe that this great land of ours will ever snore away its strength and be shorn for any bribe of silver pieces upon the lap of such a seductress. I refuse to believe that this country, which has learned the meaning of the sixth commandment in fire and blood, can at the behest of a kleptomaniac horde sink into national dishonor. In the name of our Union and of our nation's God, and of resolute Christian honor, let us pray and strive that we shall not go so far; that when the cry arises, 'The Philistines! the Philistines!' we shall have the strength, in the spirit of Christ, who was sold for thirty silver pieces, to beat the enemy back.' And it is yet three and a half months to the Presidential election day!

Prisoner-I didn't break anything. P. C. Hobbins was called and stated that the cells and furniture were in good shape when the prisoners went into the corridor yesterday afternoon. Prisoner was remanded until next Wednesday on this second charge.

"Sullivan, you are charged also with tearing down the fixtures. Stand up.' Sullivan stood up, exposing a scalp wound, which was excellent evidence that he had run his head against P. C. Weir's baton. Sullivan and Halliday were arrested together, and each were charged with the same offense.

Lawyer Dignan appeared for Sullivan and pleaded not guilty. He said he understood the prisoner was not drunk, that he had been in Halliday's company, but was in no way to blame. He had been used in a very brutal manner, and intended to offer this evidence. He said he had been told that the policeman struck the prisoner on the head when he was lying down on the sidewalk. Chief Williams-Did they tell you the policeman was underneath? This case will come up tomorrow.

Grand, Trunk Magnates Expected in London Today.

Toronto Employee May Be Moved to Strattord-Interesting Rumors.

Regarding the rumor telegraphed from Toronto to the effect that G. T. R. employes in Toronto may be moved to Stratford, the Globe today says: 'While the rumor cannot be confirmed, it is pretty generally believed among the Grand Trunk employes that something of the kind is in the wind, and great uneasiness exists among the men employed in the shops. The Grand Trunk workshops employ a large number of hands, and those men who would be continued in the service of the company would forced to remove to Stratford, while a considerable amount of money now spent annually in Toronto would be lost to the city. What lends color to the story is that Mr. F. H. Mc-Guigan, general superintendent; Mr. F. W. Morse superintendent of motive power; and Mr. E. H. Fitzhugh, the new master of transportation, have been for several days past inspecting the company's works at To-ronto and outside points. The party left this morning for London, where they will meet General Manager Hays, who is on his way back from Chicago. If there is any intention of removing the workshops from Toronto it will probably be announced after the meeting of these gentlemen

Messrs. McGuigan, Morse and Hob-son passed though London yesterday, and are now in Windsor with General Manager Hays. They are expected to return this afternoon to London. Mr. Fitzhugh is at present in the city. It is likely the party will inspect the site of the new car shops here. and they will leave later in the day for Stratford.

BASEBALL DUKES IN THE CANADIAN LEAGUE

The Canadian League have for some time been anxious to have a club to Toronto, but it was not thought it would prove profitable while the professionals were there, but since their transfer to Albany the Dukes have taken up the matter, and in future will be a member of the Canadian League, which, however, will rethe league, to take place in a few days. The Dukes will play the Maple Leafs, of Guelph, at the Toronto ball grounds on Monday, and will journey to Hamilton on Tuesday next. On Friday, July 31, the Hamilton club will return the visit. It is understood that in the event of the Dukes going into the league, that these games, which will be played before the league meeting, will count as if their entry had been ratified. There is, however, little doubt but that they will be welcomed with open arms, as overtures from all the different officers of the western clubs have been made. The game on Mon-day next with the Maple Leaf champions will give Toronto the first opportunity of seeing their representatives on the field.-Globe

When Adam Was a Boy.

This was years ago, for Adam has been dead quite a while, though to be sure he has left a progeny that keeps up pretty well the family characteristics. There are wise men today who delve into the misty past and tell us all sorts of things, but they are silent on those events that would make Adam interesting to the modern man. What did Adam do when he ran a sliver under his finger nail? Had he to take measles and whooping cough? If he had corns did he cut them with a razor or did he stretch forth a hand in the future and get a bottle of Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor? Putnam's is the Corn best, is sure, safe, painless, and acts

A Terrible Monster, but He Wouldn't Take a Mean Advantage of Him.

Philadelphia Inquirer. The sea serpent is coming up from the southern waters, traveling slowly along the Atlantic coast, occasionally raising his head to correct any deviation in his course or to make mental note of his advance toward a cooler clime. At least, such is the statement vouched for by Capt. Voss, the Belgian steamer Sagamore, which arrived yesterday from St.Jago, Cuba. "When we were off Cape Hatteras, Monday afternoon," said Capt. Voss, yesterday, "the look-out saw a float-ing object that looked like a long, black line, far to windward. Thinking it might be a black-painted spar or other wreckage, I leveled the glass on the object, and at first sight was so astonished that the glass nearly dropped from my hand. That it was no mast or floating spar, I became speedily convinced, because, instead of being rigidly straight, it was full of curves, which seemed to adapt themselves to the rolling motion of the waves. Never having seen the so-called sea serpent, and being skeptical of the existence of such things, I had my curiosity whetted to learn more of this strange specimen, and consequently had the course of the ship altered so as to bear down upon "We were going at a good eleventance we were apart I calculated that night would shut in before the Sagamore would overtake the monster, and this calculation was made on the assumption that his snakeship was then swimming at about the top of his speed. Word was passed down to the engineer not to spare the coal, and inside of fifteen minutes we were gain-

his eyes to see if he were gaining enough on the monster to enable us to get a close view before darkness

"All the old opera and spy glasses, that had been idle for months, were gotten out, and the supply, though limited, added to the excitement. For Tecumseh House-C. A. Jewell, a time, to the intense satisfaction of "The serpent seemed to have an almost human look, and its face closely way between Springbank and the city, jaws were bearded by a heavy growth and one is said to have dropped into of what might have been hair, but the river to get out of the wet. The scene at the boat house just after the rain started was an amusing one. Several parties went out and turned back, but were caught a short distance from the boat houses. Nearly everyone was drenched to the skin, water as the strange creature swam twice in a great circle about the place. No more porpoises could be seen, and, doubtless, well fed, if not tired, the serpent stretched himself out and lay floating on the water, apparently fast asleep. We were get-ting pretty close, and we were all worked up to the highest pitch of excitement. To run down such a monster without warning seemed cruel, and to give him a fair notice of our approach and a chance to test his speed, three sharp blasts were blown on the whistle, when, to our sore disappointment, after lifting its head a few feet only, it dived and was lost from view. Although for was lost from view. Although for an hour a sharp lookout was kept, nothing further was seen of the sea

Seeing that they stood, the grizzly rose again on his haunches and surveyed them with fleros eyes. They were about to fly on again. A huge rock on the canyon wall rose a short distance ahead, and at the same instant they realized that this could only be turned by going back. But it was too late to retrace their steps. ley stood, white-faced, and clasped in each other's arms, resigned to the worst, when they heard a ringing voice from the other side of the

As they lay down Clara looked across the abyss and saw Henry Kyle standing like a statue with his rifle to his shoulder. The grizzly came on—came so close that they imagined they could feel his hot, fetid breath in their faces. At a halloo from over the canbear rose again on its haunches, and just on the brink of the wall that dropped with a sheer perpendicular fall of a thousand feet below. The rifle cracked. The bear tottered as it attempted to bring down its ponderous fore feet. The blood spurted from its mouth. It tried to cling from the angular rock; but, falling, it sent up an awful roar, and plunged into the black abyss.

"Get back!" shouted Henry Kyle. "That danger is over." The sisters obeyed him, and with the impassable chasm between them and him, they looked at each other in silence. Alice was the first to speak.
"For myself and sister, let me

"Opportune it certainly was, but from my position I could hardly call it brave. I can assure you, however, that had I been on that side I would have acted in just the same way," replied Henry Kyle. Alice was beginning to feel that they

As usual, Al-ice had her way, but, curiously en-ought, this way hay in the course suggested by Henry Kyle. At heart she believed that the young man wanted to befriend them.

CHAPTER XVIII

Aware that his brother Louis was a prisoner in the hands of Bouton's Indiam allies, and anxious to rescue him. Henry Kyle was in search of Black Eagle's band when he so opportunely came to the rescue of Alice Blanchard and her sister. After leaving the girls he went to where his horse was grazing and rode over the hills. His object now was to reach the opposite side of the camyon, and, without forgetting his brother, to do all that he could for the girl that he loved and her sister. He headed his horse for the valley, whose every surrounding was so familiar to him, and stood on the rocky rim just as the sum was setting. The horse also recognized the place and seemed anxious to go down. Giving the animal loose rein, Henry Kyle was soon galloping across the Kyle was soon galloping across the meadows and along the shore of the lake in the center of the valley. With his quick observation, he saw that there were no cattle, horses or sheep where hitherto the green expanse swarmed with them. This struck him as strange. He urged on his horse, dashed into the grove in which the home that had ever welcomed him stood and reined in beside the sh-heap that marked the site of his fa-

The stillness of death hung over grove and mountain. Even the birds eemed to have flown from the trees, through which the evening breezes went sighing like a requiem. With a ory of agony Henry Kyle flung him-self from his saddle and gazed wildly about him. The old home was gone, but in the rush of feelings he could not think of the house. Where were

"Mother! Mother!" he cried, and the rocks behind the woods returned, like the ghost of his own voice, the echo: "Mother! Mother!"

He shouted for his father, he shouted for Nora, but only the echoes, like a mockery, replied: "Oh, God; Oh, God!" he wailed, "this is my doing!"

His first thought was that this had been done by Indians. He looked about him, and his trained eyes soon discovered in the soft, trampled ground the impress of white men's feet. There was not a moccasin track among them. He knelt down and read the impressions as a scholar would read a simple book, and leaping to his feet, he cried:

"Bouton has been here. Bouton came ere when he left me in charge of the camp. "Yes, Bouton has been here," shout-econd Husband Dies, and the First One, New Well-to-Do Finds His Wife Destitute.

New York, July 23 .- Esther Rosenburg was a slip of a girl when, twenty rears ago, in far-away Warsaw, Poland, she became the bride of Moritz Waalburg, a stalwart young tanner's assistant. The honeymoon had hardly waned when the young bridegroom met reverses which reduced him to poverty. The five years that followed Fully 2,000 were one long struggle for existence on the part of the young people. Two children were born to them, and shortly after the birth of the second the father emigrated to America. He left his de voted wife with the assurance that he would send for her and the children as soon as he was able. Two years passed and the anxious wife had heard nothing from her husband. Then she, too, came to America with friends, in hope of learning something of him.

No trace of Waalburg, however, was to be found, and, disheartened, the little woman, with her children, settled among the people of her own race in New York, and, with her needle, eked out a precarious existence for herself Eventually she went to Brownsville,

L. I. There she met Simon Rosenburg, a widower, who kept a small tailor shop at No. 471 Watkins street. Rosenburg fell in love with the sad-faced Waalburg, and the two were married-the woman believing her former husband dead. One child was born of this marriage.

About three years ago Rosenburg died, and his widow essayed to continue his business. She failed, however, and the little shop was sold out for a mere pittance. Discouraged, the little woman went back to her needle and moved to cramped apartments on the top floor of the building. Work came slowly to her, and for a long time sne has been dependent for the most part on the charity of her neighbors. She was sitting in her dull and cheeress home Sunday morning, when a knock came at the door. Opening the door, she was confronted by a tall, broad-shouldered man, with a full brown beard. Then there was a mutual recognition. "Esther, is it you?" said the man, striding across the threshold and catching the trembling woman in his Faalburg, when he came to this country, met indifferent success until he drifted to Pittsburg. There he secured employment on a freight boat, and by dint of frugality and economy managed to buy a third interest in river freight-carrying business. He continued to prosper, and is now comfortably off. He claims to have written repeatedly to Warsaw, but could never get any intelligence of his wife. He at length believed her dead, but did not marry again.

Friday he came to New York on business, and on Sunday ran out to Brownsville to visit an old townsman named Michel Lackowitz, who lives on Stone avenue. Lackowitz, who knew of Mrs. Rosenburg, told Waalburg her story and expressed the belief that she might be his wife. The two went together to the Watkins street house, and the happy reunion followed.

THE TOBACCO HABIT CURED.

In the interest of the masses, for whom these reports are compiled, the United States Health Reports have dramined and investigated many preparations having for their object the cure of the tobacco habit, but among them all we have no hesitancy in giving the editorial and official endorsement of these reports to the remedy known as "Uncle Sam's Tobacco Cure," manufactured by the Keystone Remedy Company, at 218 La Salle street, Cricago. They are distributing literature this week all through the city, and in the light of our examinations and tests of "Uncle Sam's Tobacco Cure," we are but performing a duty we owe the public when we indone the same, and stamp it as the growning achievement of the fineteenth century, in the way of destroying a habit as disgusting as it is common (For Only $1) hence we carnestly advise you to read full particulars, and if you have not seen circulars to call at W. THE NEW RIFLES. An Ottawa telegram says: Of the two thousand stand of the Lee-Enfield rifles which errived from England a few days ago enough will be issued immediately to arm the permanent infentry corps, about 400. The Lee-Metfonds, with which they have been armed, will be called in. This course is adopted that the permanent corps men may be fully up-to-date in instructing the militia with the newest rifle. Complaint is made that the Iron base of the English 1896 issue of Martini ammunition is not properly secured. Already there are recorded some cases where the base was pulled off by the shell extractor, leaving the brass in the chamber of the rifle, whence it is sometimes difficult to remove. In a few days one battery of the new 12-pounder field guns, six pieces, is expected to arrive from England, with ammunition enough to correspond with the consignment. St. John, N. B., July 20 .- The many cases of marvelous restoration to health from various forms of kidney trouble which have been constantly appearing in the daily press of the Dominion for some time have awakened the liveliest interest here, and the remedy by which the cures were effected, namely, Dodd's Kidney Pills, are obtaining great celebrity throughout the Province. The appearance of the testimonials of Drs. Rose and Mc-Cormick, stating the benefits which they had personally derived from their use, was considered a sufficient sign of the merits of the remedy, and the other interesting and wonderful cases which have since been chronicled have caused the specific to have an exceptional sale.
