BAPAUME DEFENCES PENETRATED IN DRIVE BY BRITISH TROOPS

U. S. PATROL BOAT SUNK IN MISTAKE FOR GERMAN SUB

LUDENDORFF'S "VICTORIOUS REPULSES" HAVE GOT THE TEUTON CRITICS GUESSING

Writer in Kreuz Zeitung Frankly Admits That the German Scheme Has Gone Wrong, While Others Continue to Howl That Kaiser's Army Is Unbeatable.

Amsterdam, Aug. 27.—German war experts are hopelessly at odds in trying to explain the present situation on the west front. Twice each day, Gen. Ludendorff's communiques announce "victorious repulses," but a glance at the map shows each successive locality mentioned as the scene of fighting lies a few miles further eastward.

This, says the Hamburg Nachrichten's military expert darkly, is "a bad sign for the enemy, because it shows that his attempts to pierce the German front have failed, and that he seeks to substitute width for depth." He further argues that "the earlier German thrust toward Amiens forestalled the enemy and now, even if the Germans are losing ground, it is no absolute gain for the enemy, but merely the recovery of earlier losses."

These sophistries are not wholly shared by the Kreuz Zeitung's critic, who frankly admits that it is the German scheme that has gone wrong inasmuch as "the enemy has successfully evaded battle on both sides of Rheims, and therefore the German plan to tie up and split the enemy reserves has failed." He says incidentally that American aid "has happened to flow somewhat freer than anticipated, and Marshal Foch is thereby able to deliver his blow."

Predicts Long Battle.

It is no longer a fight for lines, but a fight for deep zones, this critic says, and the task of the German army is to destroy the enemy's forces within these zones. He insists the strategic success will be denied Marshal Foch because the preliminary conditions for success "are lacking," but the battle, he thinks, will continue for a long time.

The German Tages Zeitung's writer follows another line of thought, and believes that "the next few days must show that Marshal Foch needs breathing space, as strategically he has already lost the battle and the enemy's losses are enormous.

Herr Schuermann, writing for the Nord Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, explains why the Franco-British gain of territory is really a loss, and shakes his head over "the poor deluded Americans, who in their pride came over to dictate peace in a few weeks, and, now, instead, of a brief adventure, find themselves involved in battles which will be hard and long." This, he imagines, must be a terrible disappointment to them.

The Rheinische Westphalian Gazette's correspondent, Baron von Der Oosten, fills a column with "justifiable hope," that the German army will be unbeatable, although he is not very comfortable about it, for he says "the battle is very hard and the enemy's superiority in men and material is very great."

RELEASED GERMAN PRISONERS FROM RUSSIA RESENT ARMY DISCIPLINE

Many Desert Before They Reach Battalions on the Western Front.

With the French Army in France, Sunday, Aug. 25.—German soldiers released from captivity in Russia have begun to arrive on the western front, it has been learned from prisoners captured in recent battles.

One hundred of these men who returned to Germany through the Ukraine were sent to a reserve division. Eighteen deserted before the detachment got out of Germany, while three were killed in jumping from a railroad train. The others reached their destination in a refractory mood. All the prisoners from this division agree that the men returned from Russia make the poorest kind of reinforcements. They are not only ill-humored, it is declared, but resent all discipline.

FISHING BOAT IS VICTIM OF SUB

Crew of the Schooner Rush Landed at Boston.

A Canadian Atlantic Port, Aug. 27.—The crew of the new fishing schooner Rush of Boston arrived here at noon today on board another fishing vessel, reporting that their ship was sunk by a submarine yesterday morning on the fishing grounds off this coast.

HENRY FORD OUT FOR ALL HONORS IN SENATORIAL RACE

Advertiser Illustrations.

Detroit, Aug. 27.—With the double race of Henry Ford for the Republican and Democratic senatorial nominations, the outstanding feature, Michigan polls opened today for the primary, at which are to be chosen candidates for the November state, congressional and senatorial elements. Indications of fair, cool weather promised a large vote on most sections of the lower and upper peninsulas.

Unique in the annals of Michigan political history because one of the most prominent men of the state is seeking a double candidacy, another touch of the unusual is added by the refusal of Ford, and Former Governor Chas. Osborne, Wm. C. Simpson and Truman H. Newberry, his Republican opponents, to conduct any appreciable active campaign for the nomination. Steadfastly, through the days that followed his brief announcement in Washington that he would be a candidate at the request of President Wilson, Ford has refused to conduct any personal campaign whatever. James W. Helme, Ford's sole Democratic rival, has conducted no active campaign.

Aside from the race for Senator Wm. Alden Smith's seat, interest in the primary lags. Governor Sleeper, Republican, has no opposition for re-nomination. Edward Frensdorf and John W. Bailey are gubernatorial candidates on the Democratic ticket.

ITALIANS HOLD BACK SUPERIOR FORCES ON THE ALBANIAN FRONT

Rome, Aug. 26.—The Italian troops in Albania, in the region of the Semeni and Osum Rivers, after checking superior enemy forces in several days of fighting, have retired undisturbed to prepared defences, says an official statement issued today. The Austrians suffered a sanguinary defeat on August 21 and have not renewed their attacks since.

MISTAKEN FOR SUB, IS SUNK BY FIRE FROM U. S. STEAMER

Guns of Allied Merchant Vessel Turned On U. S. Patrol Boat.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—American submarine-chaser No. 209, operating out of Philadelphia, was mistaken for a submarine by a merchant steamer off Fire Island, N. Y., early this morning and sent to the bottom. Seventeen members of her crew, including the commander and the executive officer, are missing.

The chaser was manned by naval reserves. Eight of the survivors, some of them wounded, have been landed at New York, and one had been landed at Lewis Del.

The merchant ship was the American steamer Felix Taussig. In the darkness her naval armed guard mistook the chaser for an enemy submarine and opened fire, destroying the little craft before the mistake was discovered.

New York, Aug. 27.—Mistaken for a submarine, a United States patrol boat was fired on and sunk by a merchant steamer fifteen miles off Fire Island at 2 a.m. today. Eighteen of the crew are reported lost. Eight were brought here suffering from injuries.

The patrol boat was a converted yacht of small tonnage. The injured survivors, picked up by a United States destroyer were transferred upon their arrival here to a hospital ship.

The steamer which fired on the patrolboat disappeared in the darkness, and her identity was not established.

THANKSGIVING MAY BE ON LATER DATE

Cabinet Is Now Considering Question of Deferring Day.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Aug. 27.—Thanksgiving may fall on a different date in Canada than usual this year. There has been a strong movement in favor of distributing the three holidays—Labor Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas Day—with more even periods between. Hitherto Labor and Thanksgiving have fallen very close together, with a long period till Christmas.

The cabinet has the matter under consideration, and it is probable that Thanksgiving date may be deferred toward the month of November on a party with the American day.

HUN BATTALIONS NEARLY WIPED OUT

Allied Offensive Plays Havoc With Man Power of Enemy.

At British Army Headquarters, Aug. 26.—This morning's attack eastward of Arras carried our battle flank towards the Scarpe at a moment when the eyes of the Germans were turned nervously elsewhere. Consequently the enemy was rudely surprised when dense waves of British swept forward after only the most brief artillery fire. The heavy wastage has caused the enemy in the last few days to transfer reserves from this region towards the Bapaume sector. This morning's attack has progressed in the most favorable way and at the moment of cabling it is going well.

Canadians and other British troops have carried Monchy-le-Preux. Southward of the Somme, movement in the past 24 hours has been more restricted, but has been intensely active.

Terrible Gruelling.

As regards the enemy casualties, official figures show the terrible gruelling to which the enemy was subjected. Some battalions have been reduced to a hundred men and even to fifty. The old animosity between infantrymen and artillerymen broke out in the prisoners' cages, where the infantry accused the artillery men who had been taken prisoner of ignoring the barrage signals and withdrawing their guns to a safe distance from the heat of battle. The most stirring story reaches me of the splendid courage of the King's Company of the Grenadier Guards. The latter were suffering heavily from the artillery fire when they were attacked by the Germans. The Guards fixed bayonets, charged and routed the Germans.

CASE ADJOURNED.—The case of Charles Cole, who is charged with not having an occupation, was adjourned this morning until Friday, when it will come up at the police station.

WHAT BIG ALLIED DRIVE MEANS

London, Aug. 27.—Interesting comparisons between the results achieved on the British and French fronts in the Somme area with those of the first battle of the Somme are made by a military expert here. He points out that in four months, from July 1 to October 31, 1916, the British won forty-four square miles of land. In four days, between August 21 and 25, the British won 116 square miles, with casualties amounting to only 23,000. In other words, he says, between two and three times as much ground has been taken at an infinitely smaller cost. In the four days under discussion, the British won much more territory than both the British and French armies recovered in the whole first battle of the Somme.

WILL MANOEUVRE GERMANS OUT OF BAPAUME TOWN

Plan Adopted by British Will Conserve Manpower.

Paris, Aug. 27.—Canadian Press dispatch from Reuter's, Limited.—French military critics all pay a tribute to the great value of the present British operations, especially in pinning down huge enemy forces. They point out that Bapaume could have been taken two days ago, but that the British prefer to manoeuvre the Germans out of it.

The well known writer, Col. Fabry, shows why it is essential for the enemy to desperately defend the way to Douai and Cambrai. If, he says, the Allies could seize the triangle formed by these towns and Valenciennes and the cross roads of Longwy, Longuyon and Montmedy, then practically the whole network of railways which feed the enemy's present front will be cut, which means the strangulation of his armies in France.

MAY REQUISITION ALL VESSELS FOR GOVERNMENT TRADE

Madrid, Aug. 27.—The Spanish Government is considering a plan to organize the maritime service in Spain under Government control. It is intended to requisition all vessels for the transport of articles for national consumption.

KERMIT ROOSEVELT IS AWARDED THE MILITARY CROSS

London, Aug. 27.—The award to Capt. Kermit Roosevelt, son of Col. Roosevelt, of the M. C. for services in Mesopotamia, is announced in the official gazette. Until he joined the American forces in France, Capt. Roosevelt was attached to the British army in Mesopotamia on special duty.

FRENCH YOUTH CAPTURED 700 BOCHES ALONE

Discovered Germans Ambushed in Cave and Bagged All.

With the French Army in France, Aug. 16.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The capture of 700 Germans is the exploit attributed to Pierre Cellier, aged 23, a corporal in the French tank corps. Among the prisoners were a colonel and fourteen other officers. Two field pieces also were taken.

Cellier has been awarded the Cross of the Legion of Honor, a reward rarely given to anyone but a commissioned officer.

Cellier was in command of a tank manned by fifteen Americans in the recent fighting in the Marne salient. A shell struck the tank and rendered it useless. The men then advanced on foot. Cellier discovered the Germans ambushed in a cave. He kept guard at the entrance for an hour, and then a German appeared with a white flag. Behind the first one came the rest of the 700, one by one. The Germans threw down their arms before Cellier and marched to the rear at his direction.

SCHWIEGER NOW SAID TO BE FRENCH CAPTIVE

Commander of Sub Who Sank Lusitania Captured on Mediterranean.

Paris, Aug. 27.—Lieut. Schwieger, the man who sank the Lusitania, has been captured by a French patrol boat in the Mediterranean, according to La Journal. A large submarine of which he was second in command, had just torpedoed a British steamer between Malta and Sicily. The German was waiting to see the vessel sink when two French patrol boats emerged from the fog and sank the U-boat. Of the crew of 75 only one officer and four men were rescued by the patrol boats.

While being taken to Toulon the officer appeared ill at ease. When he thought no one was looking he tried to throw some papers overboard, but a sailor seized his arm. He refused to answer questions, but an examination of the papers explained his uneasiness.

HAIG'S FIGHTERS PENETRATE THE HINDENBURG LINE

British Forces Are Advancing to the South of Bapaume.

GERMANS ARE RESISTING

Enemy Launches Counter-Attack in the Longueil Region.

With the British Army in France, Aug. 27.—Troops of Field Marshal Haig today are advancing astride the River Scarpe, and are pushing forward to the south of Bapaume. Elsewhere along the British front their progress also continues.

There has been heavy fighting at Longueil and on the adjacent ground, where the Germans launched a heavy counter-attack with fresh forces brought up especially for the purpose from Sedan.

In the face of this counter-attack the British fell back to the edge of Longueval.

In the course of the night the New Zealanders, according to reports, swept around Bapaume at the north, and reached the railway just north of the Bapaume-Cambrai road.

The Germans are offering stiff resistance in the neighborhood of Thilloy to the south of Bapaume.

Reports have been received from the advanced lines that British patrols have again entered the outskirts of Bapaume and that there has been street fighting between the British and Germans on the edge of the town.

Pierce Hindenburg Line.

The British have penetrated the Hindenburg line at one point to the east of Meninel, which is between Bapaume and the Scarpe River, and hard fighting is reported to be in progress here. The British advanced lines are now reported to be east of Monchy-le-Preux. German rearguards are fighting to retain their hold on Pelves, on the south bank of the Scarpe, the British having reached the edge of the town.

North of the Scarpe progress is being made by the British on both sides of the road to Douai. As Haig's forces arrived south of the river the Germans soon found that the ground north of the stream was extremely dangerous. Here they are being forced back, leaving their rear protected with a large number of machine guns, and are employing the same tactics as they generally are using along the rest of the battlefront.

OVER 2,000 TEUTONS TAKEN BY BRITISH AT MONCHY-LE-PREUX

Haig's Troops Advanced to a Depth of Two and a Half Miles.

Paris, Aug. 27.—In their advance in the region of Monchy-le-Preux Monday British troops captured more than two thousand prisoners, the newspapers here say.

On a front of six miles south of the Scarpe the British advanced to a maximum depth of two and a half miles. Important gains were made around Bapaume and Croiselles, the centres of enemy resistance between the Ancre and the Scarpe.

No Germans remain in Bapaume, says the correspondent of Le Matin on the British front. He adds that patrols have penetrated the ruins which mark the former enemy advanced concentration centre.

The newspapers do not believe that the Germans will be able to hold out in Roye much longer despite the enormous sacrifices they have made in attempts to hold that town.

TO COMMAND FINNISH ARMY.

Amsterdam, Aug. 27.—The supreme army command in Finland has been dissolved by Premier Svinhufvud, the Kreuz Zeitung of Berlin says it learns from Helsingfors, and General Wilkman has been appointed to command the Finnish army. It is added that the change does not affect Col. Thesleff, the commander-in-chief of the sea and land forces.

SHOT EVERY TENTH MAN WHO REFUSED TO GO TO FRONT

Amsterdam, Aug. 27.—There are persistent rumors from a German source, says the frontier correspondent of the Telegraaf, that a German battalion, on being ordered to the front, unanimously refused to go, whereupon every tenth man was shot. The others then gave up their resistance.

BAPAUME STILL IN HANDS OF TEUTONS WHO ARE FIGHTING SAVAGELY FOR IT

British Forces In Great Battle In Northern Picardy Reach Village of Beugnature — French Have Extended Lines Along the River Aisne and Captured 1,100 Huns.

HINDENBURG LINE PENETRATED.

With the British Army in France, Aug. 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Hindenburg line has been penetrated by British troops at a point east of Heninel.

BRITISH AT EDGE OF BAPAUME.

London, Aug. 27.—British forces are established in the northern outskirts of Bapaume, according to the official statement issued at the war office today.

HAIG'S FORCES HAVE PENETRATED THE OUTER DEFENCES OF BAPAUME

London, Aug. 26.—British forces in the great battle in northern Picardy are making progress toward the village of Beugnature, 2½ miles northeast of Bapaume, according to the official statement issued at the war office today. There is hard fighting around Croiselles.

Since last Wednesday the British have taken 21,000 prisoners.

"The British have pushed through the town of Montauban, three miles north of the Somme, and, capturing the wood near that place, have reached Longueval," the statement says.

"Australian forces have made substantial progress toward Dompierre, south of the Somme, and east of Suzanne, north of the river."

"North of the Scarpe River Scottish troops renewed their attack against the Germans last night and have advanced towards Plouvain."

"Severe fighting took place on the field of the old Somme battle between Maricourt and Bapaume, and also north of the latter town, yesterday afternoon and evening. The enemy counter-attacked repeatedly in strength, incurring great losses from the fire of our troops, but being unable to arrest our progress.

"English and Welsh troops pushed through Montauban and advanced along the crest of the ridge, capturing High Wood and reaching Longueval. In the village we were heavily counter-attacked and forced back toward Bazentin-le-Grand and High Wood. On this line we broke the enemy's attack, and, again advancing, established ourselves well to the east of High Wood.

"Early in the night, a second enemy counter-attack was driven off by rifle fire before the Germans reached our position.

"North of High Wood, the enemy twice counter-attacked in the neighborhood of Ligny and Thilloy, pressing back our advancing troops some 400 or 500 yards. There his infantry was stopped and driven back."

"At Bapaume the New Zealanders, after fierce fighting, established themselves in the northern outskirts of the town.

"Further north English troops progressed toward Beugnatre. We have had hard fighting about Croiselles.

"On the right of the battlefront the Australians continued their advance astride the Somme and made substantial progress towards Dompierre and to the east of Suzanne."

FIGHTING POILUS PUSH AHEAD ON FRONT SOUTHWEST OF ROYE

Paris, Aug. 27.—French troops this morning, in the region of St. Mard, southwest of Roye, after having repulsed a number of enemy counter-attacks in that sector, according to the official statement issued at the war office today. They have captured 1,100 prisoners, including two battalion commanders.

East of Bagneux, north of the Aisne, the French have advanced their line about three-quarters of a mile. German counter-attacks were repulsed in this region.

"South of the Avre French troops accentuated their progress this morning in the region of St. Mard, after having repulsed a number of enemy counter-attacks. We have taken more than 1,100 prisoners during these combats. Of these 36 are officers, 2 of whom are battalion commanders.

"Between the Oise and the Aisne, German counter-attacks, west of Chavigny, broke down last evening. Thirty prisoners remained in our hands. In the region east of Bagneux we have advanced our line about 1,200 metres.

"During the night there were lively artillery duels between the Ailette and the Aisne."

HONEY SCARCE, BUT PROMISE OF CLOVER SEED IS EXCELLENT

Farmers Are Advised Against Plowing Clover Under This Year.

Owing to a misunderstanding on the part of the reporter, D. Anguish, the well known bee farmer of Lambeth, was quoted in a recent interview as saying honey was going to be plentiful this year, because the bees were taking so well to the clover. This is quite contrary to the facts; honey is going to be scarce but the activity of the bees in the clover is certain to lead to a plentiful supply of clover seed.

Mr. Anguish was not discussing honey in his statement, but was endeavoring to impress on farmers the folly, as he believes, of plowing clover under this season. Some years they have been disappointed when holding it for seed, and this has led them to give up hope of profit from letting it go to seed. The dry weather this year, however, has stunted the heads of the clover, shortening them and thus making it possible for the bees to reach the nectar. This invariably leads to pollenizing and an increase in seed, so that Mr. Anguish feels sure this seed will be a bountiful and profitable crop.

Bee-keepers have been anxious as to their winter supply of sugar and have written the food control board asking that consideration be given them. They have received a reply promising this, but the weather may help them to save the sugar, and aid conservation, which they are eager to do. During the last week the bees have been gaining rapidly in their winter hoarding of honey, and if this gain is maintained for a week or two little sugar will be required.

OFFICERS OF NEW UNION INSTALLED

Officers of the newly-organized Federal Laborers' Union were elected and installed on Monday evening. The union has a membership of 100, and the officers are anticipating that this number will be increased to 300 shortly, and eventually 500.

While the majority of the present members are employees of the city, every laborer, no matter by whom he is employed, is eligible for membership. A large representation from this union is expected to take part in the labor church parade which has been arranged for next Sunday.

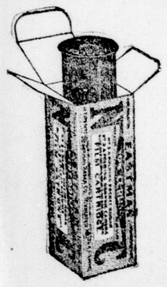

Following is a list of the officers who were installed by officials of the trades and labor council last night: President, William Walker; vice-president, James Fletcher; recording-secretary, F. Soilleux; secretary-treasurer, Harry Keeling.

Blood Pressure

It Should Cause You No Worry If You Use Hacking's.

Excess of Uric Acid in the blood seems to be one of the principal causes of high blood pressure, and this Uric Acid is often in excess when the vitality is low and when the Nerves are poorly nourished. The Heart Nerves sometimes become paralyzed and the Arteries get partially clogged and become brittle. HACKING'S HEART AND NERVE REMEDY has a beneficial influence on all the Nerves, Veins and Arteries from the finger tips to the toes; it Tones up the whole bodily organization and tends to eliminate the excess of Uric Acid from the Blood, then comes relief and freedom from worry about your sickness. Truly a wonderful remedy and you should try it at once. Price 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, from your dealer or by mail. C. B. Hacking, Phm.B., Listowel. 72a

FORECASTS DRIVE IN TWO MONTHS BY GERMANS TO GET SHAM PEACE

Dr. Frank Bohn Says They Would Grasp Russia as Allies Looked West.

BUILD A NEW MACHINE

American Returns From Europe To Expose Enemy Plans for Next War.

"Within sixty days will see the greatest stroke Germany has yet played, a concentrated effort to save the last remnant of her empire will lie in the peace terms she will offer, terms so liberal and so enticing that every fool and every weak-kneed pacifist from Lansdowne up will be satisfied," and with a dramatic telling force Dr. Frank Bohn at the Chautauqua meeting last night proved that the German menace the world has known for four years will be a mere historical detail compared with the Germany that will arise from the ashes of this war, should the Allies yield to any climax but a victory by force of arms.

In Germany During War.

This keen historian and no less eloquent orator has as recently as two months ago been in Switzerland, in close contact with Germans living there whose sympathies are with the Allied cause, and whose desire is to see Germany completely defeated, in order that a new nation may be erected on the principles of democracy, that the people may be saved. In 1915 he was sent to Germany by the French Chamber of Deputies to gain an insight into the character, the viewpoint and the sympathies of the common people. His lecture last evening on "The Mind of Germany" gave in a most comprehensive and concise manner an insight into the religious, the social, the political and the industrial atmosphere of the country.

The Three Divisions.

In broad outlines the address had three main points—the failure in Germany of the revolution of 1848, and the death-blow that was then given to the struggle for democracy that had characterized in succession the different European nations; secondly, the determination of Germany to expand eastward industrially and politically; and thirdly, his prediction that Germany would within the next two months offer a sham peace that would be for her the basis of a new and powerful empire, built from shattered remnants of Russia, seized by the Prussian boa-constrictor, while the Allies looked the other way, to the west.

Germany's proffer, said Dr. Bohn, will be peace on the western front, involving on her part restitution of Belgium, Poland, indemnity to Serbia, cession of Alsace-Lorraine to France, and billions of money to make good ravaged fields and ruined art. In return, Germany will ask: Nothing more than a free hand in Russia. Russia the defalcator, the delinquent, not a nation, merely an unruly mass of individuals, given over to anarchy, discontent and lawlessness. But should the scheme go through, Germany, within five years will have trained Russia into the greatest industrial country the world has yet known.

The Second Great Move.

"Economic occupation," said Dr. Bohn, "is far more important than political occupation, and when the vast water power of Switzerland is controlled by Germany, will begin the second great economic development in industrial progress."

The water power of Switzerland would turn the wheels of the machine that sets in action a new eastern empire, ruled by the kaiser from Constantinople, the seat of old Roman glory, and the scene of Roman ruin. There would the vast plains of the old Russia be tilled to German advantage, yielding food for Germany's sixty-eight millions, and building a trade supremacy with German ships for German merchants.

The Conquest of the Orient.

Thence would the road be opened to the as-yet-unknown possibilities of a wealthy Orient, whose fate even now hangs in the balance; India would be accessible, and the power of England at Suez threatened by an enormous force. China, with her four hundred millions, whose feet walk over more coal and iron than the mines of the world have yet produced, and her huge labor population turned loose upon the gigantic colonizing and commercial schemes of the mad Hun brain. The whole Pacific coast line would be at the mercy of Teutonic commerce, and the European nations, as if divided by a geographical line, would be as five atoms of democracy, so powerless would they be against this overwhelming commercial and industrial upheaval.

A Grim, Unyielding Negative.

To all such overtures for settlement there can be one answer, said Dr. Bohn, a grim unyielding negative, backed by an overriding determination to sacrifice the last man of each Allied country and exterminate those nations from the earth and let Germany live among the creatures of her own making and exist on the principles she has always adopted. There is but one climax to this war, he declared, to make it the last war the world is to know—a complete and absolute victory by force of arms, that will have stamped down the suggestion of a compromising peace. "This victory will mean the victory of mind over mind," he said, "as one civilization shall have trampled over their institutions of feudalism and enslaved wills, and of soul over soul, as standards of morality and religion shall break down the narrow German ideas of a German people praying to a German god on a German throne in a German heaven."

FOUR VOLUNTEERS FOR SIBERIAN EXPEDITION

One, a Native of Japan, Comes Here From Detroit.

Four volunteers were examined by the medical board at the local mobilization centre Monday and all were volunteers for the Siberian contingent, which is now being organized. The men who were all found in Class A2 were S. Naganon, a native of Japan, forwarded to this city from Detroit; G. S. Wilson of this city, a native of America; John Joseph Simeons, a native of the West Indies, was attached to the Engineers, and last, but not least, Capt. J. M. Watt who will be attached to the force with the rank of lieutenant.

Lieut. Watt has been connected with military affairs since 1915, and for some time past has been attached to the staff of the local mobilization centre on Carling street. Lieut. Watt in company with Lieut. J. H. C. Woodward, has been appointed as officers in charge of the volunteers for the Siberian contingent in this district. They have already started upon their new duties.

Two surrendered defaulters were examined and placed in Classes D3 and A2, and attached to the W. O. R. Two apprehended men were placed in the W. O. R., both with Category A2. One defaulter was placed in Class E, and attached to the W. O. R. Three surrendered absentees with Classes A2, and one apprhended defaulter with Category C1, were all placed in the W. O. R.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

A NEST OF NIGHTHAWKS.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

Rest is the one thing appreciated by the whole human race, yet there are a few who for lack of brains seem to delight in disturbing the rest of others, and are in plain words a public nuisance. There is one house on — street, near — avenue, that contains one of these nuisances. There are two giddy girls living there that have a different fellow every day of the week, and believe in staying up to the hour of about 1:95 a.m., and with various young men take great pleasure in hammering their second-hand piano and screaming at the top of their voices when their neighbors are doing their best to sleep.

Now, Mr. Editor, I may be a crank, but there are a lot who agree with me on this, that that cage contains a nest of nighthawks that are a public nuisance, and nothing else, and if the row continues we shall have to have the police interfere. Sunday night was the limit, I think—if they were full of the original 40 per cent they couldn't have done worse than they did. It sounded like a genuine lunatic asylum, and I don't live next door to it either, but I certainly pity those who do. I have been listening to this nuisance for the last few years, and it is getting worse all the time, and I think the people ought to be ashamed of themselves and stop their racket. Why, last spring a 3-year-old kid ran across this woman's lawn, and you could hear her a block away grumbling at the child, as they don't seem to think other people have any feelings. Trusting you will be able to find room for this in your valuable paper, and thanking you for the space,

A LOVER OF PEACEFUL SLEEP.

CONCERNING EXEMPTION CERTIFICATES.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

I sent my son on business to a railway station a few days ago. While at the station the boy was asked for his exemption certificate, which he had unfortunately forgotten to change from his everyday clothes. The military police took him into custody, refusing to telephone any authority, or even crossing the street where the young man could be identified by several reputable businessmen, taking him before the head of the ministry of police. This gentleman put some questions to the boy, with the object of bringing before him that as a fact there is no need for forgetfulness, asking him if he forgot his money. He, having been in the habit of carrying money for several years, failed to see the application of the comparison, and so expressed himself, not exhibiting humbleness of spirit nor fear of consequences, and believing he was in for punishment determined to suffer without complaint. Because of this independent spirit, the officer asked him how he would like to spend a night in the police station. He answered with a smile that it was all the same to him, and to the police station he was sent, and was confined in a cell with a couple of drunks.

At the police station he was permitted to use the telephone to make known his plight to his parents. We, upon calling up the said military officer, were informed by him that the boy was subjected to the humiliation of being sent to the cells because he answered impudently. I immediately went to this captain of police with the necessary exemption card, and was there informed that the impudence consisted of the smile and the answer in which he said that it was all the same to him—the officer called the smile a grin.

May I suggest that the Government issue an identification disk that could be worn as a wrist watch, or so amend the M. S. A. allowing one who has forgotten his papers to be identified to the satisfaction of the authorities?

Thanking you for the space in your valuable paper, I am, sir,

THE FATHER OF A SOLDIER WHO HAS MADE THE SUPREME SACRIFICE.

In reply to the complaint of "The Father of a Soldier Who has Made the Supreme Sacrifice," I wish to call attention to the actual facts as they occurred in this office.

On the day this young man was apprehended by one of our police officers he was asked for his military papers, and being unable to produce any proof why he should not be in the army, he was asked to accompany the officer to this office, where his status was determined by looking up his registration file at the deputy registar's department. It was found that he was exempted from military duty under the military service act, on account of being in low category. Statements which he made previous to looking up his status were found to be perfectly correct.

Desiring to impress upon the young man the seriousness of his "supposed forgetfulness," he was asked a few questions relating purely to his case. His manner was that total indifference, and his replies were, to say the least, very much worse, and certainly not conducive to leniency on our part, whereupon he was sent to Carling street station to be detained until proof could be produced or for the magistrate's decision. Proof was produced that day and he was released.

It is not our desire to cause any person any inconvenience, but we do insist upon carrying out the law in every particular. As regards the suggestion that the Government issue identification disks that could be worn as a wrist watch, I would advise "The Father of a Soldier Who as Made the Supreme Sacrifice," to place his suggestion before the authorities at Ottawa. Yours very truly,

W. A. ROSSITER,
Assistant Inspector, C.S.C.M.P.C.

A HINT FOR THE WESTERN FAIR.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

In a recent issue of your paper I noticed an announcement that all men in uniform will be admitted free to the Western Fair. What about the man who wore that uniform for three years or more to keep the men who wear it today in safe possession of their good jobs, who paid the price and are still paying it? Would it not be a graceful act on the part of the authorities to admit free the man who not only wore the uniform but did the work also?

Yours faithfully, NO. 3062.

FOR CONSCRIPTION OF MARRIED MEN.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

I have observed that several city bodies have been interesting themselves in having the M. S. A. overhauled with regard to the physically unfit. In a word they wish to offer advice both to our efficient military doctors, experts in their own line and our worthy M. P.'s.

The fathers of a western city are the patriots. They are discussing governmental business while their immediate neighborhood calls our men from the colors to harvest. These gentlemen are very likely married, exempt by the M. S. A., and hence very patriotic with regard to the sacrifice of others blood. I would suggest that each of these brave men be investigated. How much of their time, for which the city is not paying, has been devoted to win the war; also, how much of their own money—not other peoples—they have devoted to patriotic purposes.

As a poor mother, whose husband and a son have made the big sacrifice on the fields of France, I see no reason why a married men, with less than three children, should be exempt, provided he is physically fit. Do not you other wives, whose husbands felt it their duty to serve their country, agree with me? Let the Government provide for his "dove," or whatever name he calls the pet to whose apron string he is tied. Is he of any more value to his country than a skilled workman or even the humble farmers who isn't wise enough to know that pledges made to him are only scraps of paper and valueless other an election? Was it the German boys or the fathers who went first? It is a proud sight to see our children of the "teens" walking off to death between sidewalks thronged with a cheering mob of enthusiastic super-patriotic married slackers.

Would our city fathers, especially those of Saskatoon, have these questions investigated, or might it put them in a lonely trench next to "No Man's Land"? Yours sincerely,

MRS. FAIR-PLAY.

MORRISBURG PASTOR CALLED TO KITCHENER

KITCHENER, Aug. 26.—A call to the vacant pulpit of the First English Lutheran Church has been extended to Rev. J. Maurer of Morrisburg. At a congregational meeting it was decided to forward a request to him to assume the duties of the local pastorate. Rev. Mr. Maurer is a well-known pastor, and is president of the Synod of Central Canada.

GOVERNMENT CAN SAVE 504 TONS OF ANTHRACITE ON 3 BUILDINGS

Could Use Soft Coal Just as Well.

HAS BEEN SO ADVISED

Provincial Controller Leaves It to Local Controller To Take Action.

If the Federal Government can be induced to burn soft coal in the postoffice, customs house and armories during the coming winter, the hard coal situation in London will be materially relieved. These places burn the following amounts:

Postoffice, 300 tons anthracite.
Customs, 144 tons anthracite.
Armories, 60 tons anthracite.

All three places can use soft coal as successfully in their heating plants as they can hard.

The postoffice and custom house furnaces will heat the buildings as well with soft as with hard coal. The only objection raised to the soft coal is that it is a little more dirty.

Fuel Controller J. W. McCallum has written to Ontario Fuel Controller Harris, that if the Government can be prevailed upon to burn soft coal in these two buildings, it will mean a saving of 444 tons of hard coal. This would give 111 families of London four tons of hard coal each.

Some Wrapping Needed.

With the armories, the situation is slightly different. Its cellar now contains 100 tons of soft coal. Those in charge are now trying to secure 60 tons of hard coal. They need the hard coal to reach the offices far removed from the furnace in the severe cold weather. The reason for this is apparent. The return pipe to the furnace is unprotected by asbestos as is the leading pipe. Consequently the water cools on the return. To save sixty tons of hard coal for the city of London all that is necessary is that the return steam pipe should be wrapped.

Mr. Harris suggests urging this in a reply to Mr. McCallum. He offers little hope from his quarters in regard to action to get the Government to use soft coal in the customs and postoffice. He suggests that Mr. McCallum could do better by taking the matter up with the local officials than he (Mr. Harris) could by trying to achieve it through Ottawa. He did not even say he would try.

Asked To Investigate.

Mr. McCallum was previously asked by Mr. Harris' department to make a survey of the local situation and advise. Mr. McCallum's first survey led to an investigation of what coal is burned in the large buildings. Conservation on these three plants were his first suggestion to go forward. The results are not what might be expected.

Mr. McCallum finds that the Bell Telephone Company uses 130 tons of hard coal. However, its heating system is such that it does not allow of the use of soft coal. Mr. McCallum points out that the Y. M. C. A. and the Hayman apartments successfully burn soft coal. They are in as close proximity to the business section of the city as the two public buildings in question. No complaint is heard of the dirt coming from these places.

Mr. McCallum may take the matter up direct with Ottawa or with Hume Cronyn, M. P.

COAL JUMPS IN PRICE; NONE HERE

If Mr. Householder can buy coal in London today, which he can't, he will pay $11.50 a ton for it. Until the freight rates went up it was selling for $11. However, it is possible that September 1 may see a further increase. September 1 has in years gone by been the date upon which the dealers commenced to pay the high price for their shipments. However, as far as can be learned, the local dealers have not been advised of an advance so far.

C. P. R. FREIGHT WAS TWICE WRECKED WHILE EN ROUTE TO LONDON

The C. P. R. auxiliary this morning completed cleaning up a bad wreck which occurred at Tilbury on Thursday last.

A heavy beef train en route for the east with canned meats for the Allies broke a journal at Tilbury. Ten heavy cars were ditched and their contents strewn for some considerable distance. Traffic was completely tied up and all trains were routed over the M. C. R. The auxiliary was on the job early, and the next day got the line clear. The remainder of the freight proceeded east towards London, only to be again wrecked at Appin. It is reported that another journal broke, and a few cars were thrown off their trucks and about 500 feet of roadbed torn up. The latter wreck, however, was easily cleared by the auxiliary and the wreckers then returned to clean up the balance of the Tilbury wreck, which took them until this morning. The C. P. R. traffic was disorganized for some time.

Shell Shocked Nerves

The doctor can give something to relieve physical pain, but when the nervous system breaks down and you are sleepless, nervous and mentally worried, real cure only comes when the exhausted nerve cells are nourished back to health and vigor by such restorative, upbuilding treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

NEEDS TREATMENT.—A returned soldier appeared in police court this morning charged with vagrancy. When the charge was read to him, he claimed that he was not a "vag.," because he had money in his pocket and also had a boarding house. If medical treatment can be arranged for him ,he may be released from jail. He was remanded for one week.

GIVEN PROVINCIAL APPOINTMENT.—The Ontario department of education has appointed Miss Louise Gahan of the London public library staff to be supervisor of practice work in the provincial library training school, which will open in Toronto next month. Miss Gahan has been granted the necessary leave of absence by the London board. The coming session will be the third of the provincial training school, and students will be included from all parts of Canada. Miss Marjorie Ross of the Western Unversity library will be one of the students this year.

ENFORCING STAMPING LAW.—George Connor, district fruit inspector, was on the local market this morning informing the farmers of the new basket law which has recently been enforced ordering that all farmers bringing fruit to the local market in baskets must have them stamped with his name. This new rule has been promulgated so that if any fault should be found in the fruit by the purchaser they will, by the stamp, be able to find out who sold them the fruit and return it to them, thus avoiding considerable waste as well as much hard feeling which formerly existed.

SOLDIERS WHO PLEAD GUILTY TO SERIOUS CHARGES ARE SENT TO KINGSTON "PEN"

Toronto, Aug. 27.—Pleading guilty before Police Magistrate Denison in the morning police court to five charges of theft and forgery, Fred McChesney and Harvey Jackson, employed at military headquarters, were convicted and given three and two years, respectively, in Kingston Penitentiary. Evidence showed that letters to which McChesney had access, had been opened and checks valued at over $1,200 had been abstracted. Over $900 worth of checks were recovered. McChesney was one of those who were convicted for his share in the recent rioting here.

Asks That Russia Be Allowed To Work Out Her Own Salvation.

Archangel, Tuesday, Aug. 20.—Nicholas Tschakovsky, president of the Provisional Government here, made the following statement today concerning the recent announcement of America's policy toward Russia.

"America's policy exactly meets our wishes. We want to bring about a new Russian front and reorganize the country ourselves. We want the Allies to form a stream of troops behind which we can work out our own salvation."

He added that he would soon issue an order mobilizing a new national army and restoring compulsory military service.

SUPPLY CONTRACTS FOR HOSPITAL ARE AWARDED

Hospital Trust Opened Tenders at Meeting Yesterday.

Bread, Johnston Bros.; fish, F. S. Onn; milk, London Pure Milk; meats, James Smith; drugs, Cairncross & Lawrence; groceries, Willis & Co.

Supt. Heard reported that during July 319 patients were admitted to the hospital and 326 discharged. At the end of the month there were 180 patients in the hospital. Births at the hospital during the month totalled 23, and there were 13 deaths. The free dispensary cared for 142 patients. The month's cash receipts were $7,191.05.

CITY'S WATER SUPPLY STOOD UP WELL DURING THE RECENT HOT SPELL

Weather Eased Up and Consumption Has Dropped.

General-Manager Buchanan of the utilities commission proudly pointed to London's water record for the tremendous and unprecedented hot spell through which the city has just passed. He said that his attention has been called to the fact that practically every other city in Western Ontario has had water trouble this summer. St. Thomas is the latest. London has escaped entirely. There were times when the consumption of water more than equalled the city's pumping capacity. This meant that the water in the reservoir took a drop. However, it never got below 12.2 feet, and at the present time there is 14 feet in the reservoir. This is but two feet short of capacity.

Since the hot spell eased up there has also been a letup in the consumption. During the real hot days over 6,000,000 gallons were consumed daily. Today the consumption is a little over five and a half millions. On Sunday the Horton street pump house pumped 1,960,000 gallons and Springbank 3,560,000 gallons.

CHILDREN DELIGHTED WITH PLEASURES OF JUNIOR CHAUTAUQUA

Having Time of Young Lives at Park.

TRAINING OF DUAL KIND

Both Mind and Body Benefit From Morning With Miss Johnson.

"This land of ours is full of towns,
Towns both great and small,
And when it comes to praising them,
Why, London beats them all.
I'm proud of my home town;
Is my home town proud of me?
What she needs is boys and girls
Trained in loyalty.
When we work or when we play
With our fellow-men,
Good citizens we'll be,
Then I'll be proud of my home town,
And I'll make her proud of me."

Just a sample of the songs that are in the air of Junior Town, Chautauqua, every morning from 9 till 12 o'clock. Miss Margaret Johnson, the interesting and capable young lady who makes a lively time for boys and girls in Queen's Park this week, is a genius for organization. She tells them stories, teaches them all kinds of songs, starts them in games and contests—races, jumping, balance tests, basketball throwing, and all the other exercises that make for physical efficiency. The boys are ready to do what she wants almost before she has realized she wants it, and the girls worship her. The children from six to fourteen, who have attended these first two mornings, could not be persuaded to miss one session of Junior Chautauqua, and as many as possible return for the afternoon performances.

Officials Elected.

Yesterday morning a "Junior Town" was formed, by the election of a mayor, law and order commissioners, thrift and Red Cross officers, who have in charge the entire week's management of details. The badge test practice was inaugurated, to prepare for the big field meet on the second last day. This badge test is to develop all-round physical fitness; it involves, for boys, ability to 9 feet 5 inches standing broad jump, a 60-yard dash in eight and three-fifths seconds. Girls try out by walking a 24-foot balance board, an Indian club race in thirty seconds, and throwing the basket ball. If the contestants pass in all the tests they are awarded badges, which proclaim physical strength and mental control.

Pageant Practice.

Pageant practice, introducing marching to music, dancing, singing and acting parts, concludes each morning's session. This pageant, "Our Allies," will be presented on the last day. It illustrates the difference between ancient and modern methods of warfare. The first scene represents a Roman temple, with priests and priestesses in costume offering prizes to the goddess of war, that her wrath may be appeased and the boon of victory granted to her suppliants. The second scene shows Miss Canada receiving the homage of her subjects in various forms of national service. The picturesqueness of the pageant and the attention to detail in costuming and arrangement make it a brilliant moving tableau, a patriotic spectacle with a real thrill.

A Trained Leader.

Miss Johnson has taken a course in sociological and welfare work at Chicago University, after obtaining a degree in science and modern languages. When not with Chautauqua, which organization has only obtained her services for a few months this summer, she is in charge of the children's welfare department in connection with the American Rolling Mills, a huge steel factory in Middletown, Ohio. She has had several years' experience in kindergarten and playground work, involving the amusement of as many as 300 children at one time.

Her work would be simplified and enlivened by the assistance of some local young ladies for a while every morning to take part in the singing and games. It is delightful work and Miss Johnson's training and personality are well suited to the demands it makes upon intelligence and ingenuity.

OTTAWA POSTIES FAVOR A STRIKE

Delegate to Hamilton Convention Instructed To Vote For Walkout.

Ottawa, Aug. 27.—At an enthusiastic meeting of the Ottawa branch of the Federated Letter-Carriers of Canada the delegates who will attend the dominion convention in Hamilton next week were instructed to vote for a general strike if the consent is obtained of the other branches of the service, i. e., the railway mail clerks and the postal clerks.

The cause of this action is that the carriers believe that they should receive the same salary as the men employed in Western Ontario.

U. S. AMBASSADOR TO ENGLAND TO QUIT DUE TO HIS HEALTH

London, Aug. 27.—Walter Hines Page, the American ambassador to Great Britain, is about to resign on account of ill health, according to an announcement made here today.

PTE. JOHN WESLEY WALTERS of Thorndale, has been officially reported killed in action on August 8. He left his father's farm to take up the rifle in the 135th Battalion, and was in France two years before receiving his fatal wound.

Formal Ceremony Takes Place This Evening.

Everything is ready, spic, span and shining, at the new home of the Great War Veterans' Association, on Queen's avenue, in preparedness for the formal opening of the building, which will be performed this evening by Brig. Gen. Shannon, officer commanding Military District No. 1. The building has been closed for some time past to enable the decorators, etc., to go ahead with their work without interruption, and the result of this short closing was clearly visible at the home this morning when visited by an Advertiser reporter.

Everything is sparkling under the generous coats of varnish and paint, and the splendid new furniture which has been donated to the home by the various merchants throughout the city has been fully arranged by the hand of a woman which takes away the "stag" feeling of the place and adds greatly to its homelike appearance.

Upon the arrival of Gen. Shannon and his staff this evening, the G. W. V. band, which will be on the lawn in front of the building, will strike up the National Anthem, during which the Union Jack will be raised at the top of the large flagpole. After the ceremony, Gen. Shannon will unlock the door of the building and declare it open, following which speeches will be given by many prominent men. The building will be thrown open for a short time for public inspection.

At the present time, gay decorations adorn the front of the building awaiting the ceremonies of this evening.

MORE LONDONERS AMONG WOUNDED

Pte. Samuel Anderson has been wounded in the right eye and admitted to No. 8 General Hospital, according to the official word received by his mother, Mrs. A. C. Anderson of 242 Simcoe street. He enlisted with the 142nd Battalion, and has been in France for the last sixteen months. His brother Jack Anderson, now in England, has been wounded twice. Before enlisting Pte. Samuel Anderson was employed at the McClary Manufacturing Company.

In today's casualty list appears the name of W. C. England, 1288 King street, as having been wounded in the recent fighting.

Official word has been received that C. Musselman, 414 Ridout street, has been wounded in action.

S. J. Chapman, 104 King street, has been reported wounded. He was with the Engineers.

SEAMEN APPRECIATE LONDON'S ASSISTANCE

Mrs. H. A. Boomer Quotes Letter From Secretary and Indorses Navy League.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

Your columns are, I know, very crowded, but if you can, will you kindly grant me space for a mention which seems singularly appropriate just now in connection with the coming campaign by the newly-formed Canadian Navy League, on behalf of the gallant seamen of the Empire, a campaign in which I am sure the patriotic women of London, within or without the ranks of the affiliated societies of our local council, are sure very heartily to co-operate. In a letter lately received from the general secretary of the British society, London, England, acknowledging our final remittance, is inclosed a photograph of the fourth seamen's shelter, furnished by Ontario women, this last being at Greenock. The general secretary, in the course of his most interesting letter, says:

"May I say again how greatly we appreciate the interest and support which has come to us through our friends in Ontario, and I shall be obliged if you will express to them our renewed appreciation. I assure you our sailors are deeply grateful for all that has been done on their behalf, and we recognize, of course, that it would be impossible for the society's work to be carried on were it not for the continued generosity of friends of the sailor in all parts of the world."

It is just here I want to explain to those many readers of your paper who so generously sent, through me, contributions towards our Canadian cabins, why I used the term "OUR FINAL REMITTANCE." In one sense only, was that word "FINAL" appropriate. It was final only as concerned our own special side-line of work, begun when a few of us woke up to the fact that the splendid work of our sailors was being somewhat overshadowed by the more frequently heralded, but equally gallant and unselfish sacrifices of our brave soldiers overseas. The furnishing of those cabins as the money for them came in was "OUR BIT." Just a very small bit, "a drop in the ocean," as it were, and then rumors reached us that steps were already being taken to form a Canadian Navy League, which was just what we had waited and hoped for, and for the success of which, now it has actually come amongst us, with its definite requests for adequate support for the work it has outlined, we must all join hands in enabling it to accomplish, the word "FINAL" having no meaning for any of us until the amount expected of us is in the hands of its treasurer.

Thanking you in advance, Mr. Editor, for the hospitality of your columns, I remain, cordially yours,

HARRIET A. BOOMER,
President, Local Council of Women.
Aug. 26, 1918.

In response to an appeal which came from Lady Beatty, wife of Admiral Sir David Beatty, a couple of years ago, Mrs. H. A. Boomer, president of the Local Council of Women, opened a local council subscription list on behalf of the erection of seamen's shelters, enlisting the sympathy of personal friends and acquaintances and the public within reach of the organizations associated with the local council, and through the press. Generous contributions have been coming in ever since, not only from residents of London but all parts of Ontario.

OFFICIAL HELPING NON-UNION SHOPS, SAY CIGARMAKERS

Resent Civic Action to Assist Tuckett Firm.

UNION MEN UP IN ARMS

Committee Named to Ask Explanation of Commissioner Philip.

The officers of the Cigarmakers' Union and the trades and labor council are not a little annoyed at Commissioner Gordon Philip over the negotiations carried on in connection with the re-opening of the Tuckett cigar factory here. Their ire has been raised by an article published in the August number of the Canadian Cigar and Tobacco Journal. They claim that Mr. Philip's action constitutes holding out an encouraging hand to non-union workers and sweatshop principles.

"The Cigarmakers' Union takes strong exception to Mr. Philip's action," stated Secretary F. Wheatcroft of the Cigarmakers' Union.

"Philip is not paid to bring non-union labor into the city," said President Jos. Dean of the trades and labor council.

Some Accusations.

The cigarmakers state that when the Tuckett shop was closed down in May, Mr. Philip made no effort to retain it and keep it open, but as soon as the men went on strike he has put forth efforts to fill the factory with girls and non-union help. The union has named a committee to meet Mr. Philip tomorrow to discuss the matter with him.

Mr. Philip stated that when he went to Hamilton the president of the Tuckett company was about to leave for Quebec to locate a site for a factory to handle its Ontario trade. He claimed that his firm was unable to pay the scale demanded by the union. It was already paying as high, if not higher, than others. It had determined, he was told, to close the London and Hamilton shops. Owing to the representations made to Mr. Ambrose by Mr. Philip, the former cancelled the proposed Quebec trip and came to London instead, and after looking into the local situation, decided to continue to manufacture cigars here as an open shop. There are already two such shops in London, says Mr. Philip.

Magazine's Words.

The article in the Cigar and Tobacco Journal reads:

"Interest in the cigar business by the city of London, taken officially by Gordon Philip, secretary of the board of trade and industrial commission of the city, is one of the features of this month's developments in the London market centre. For the first time possibly in the city's history official efforts have been made to not only keep a cigar manufacturing industry, but to enlarge it. Following the announcement of Tuckett Company, that it was through with cigar manufacturing in Hamilton, Mr. Philip interested himself in the retention of the local factory of the company, and secured from the company the assurance that if sufficient cigarmakers could be secured, London would be made the official Ontario headquarters for the cigar end of the company's business.

Made Several Trips.

"Mr. Philip made several trips to the head office of the company at Hamilton and did considerable work in putting through the proposition.

"It might be pointed out that the attitude of the city, as typified by Mr. Philip, is an indication of the way the cigar industry has been raised in the estimation of the public."

COMMITTEE MEETINGS SET FOR THURSDAY AND FRIDAY NIGHTS

ST. THOMAS, Aug. 26.—In view of the fact that Labor Day falls on the regular meeting night of the finance committee this month, Mayor Horton decided today to have the committee meetings on Thursday and Friday nights of this week.

There is a considerable amount of business to be transacted at both sessions and on Friday night the much discussed Shaw-Gough report will be dealt with at the meeting of the finance committee.

This promises to be unusually interesting and some startling disclosures are expected to be forthcoming at the meeting.

BLENHEIM TOMATOES PLENTY.

BLENHEIM, Aug. 26.—The canning factory had its first full day's run Saturday. The quality of tomatoes coming in is good, and the outlook at present is for a good season's run, especially if rain should come soon. They are running a little better than a full force today. Next week it is expected that about fifty foreigners will be on hand to assist. The helpers at present are men, women and young people of town.

BRITISH MISSION IN CUBA.

Havana, Aug. 27.—The British mission, headed by Sir Maurice Bunsen, which has been visiting the reports of South America, arrived at a Cuban port this morning. Later they were received in Havana by the high Cuban officials with troops lining the streets. The members of the mission will be given an official reception this afternoon at the presidential palace.

APPLICATION FOR NEW TRIAL MADE FOR I. W. W. MEN

Attorney for Convicted Men Attacks Constitutionality of the Indictment.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 27.—Federal Judge Landis today heard argument of counsel on a motion for a new trial and arrest of judgment in the case of 100 leaders of the I. W. W. recently found guilty of conspiracy in violation of the espionage law.

The prisoners, who have been in jail for a week, were brought into the courtroom handcuffed in pairs under a heavy guard.

Chief Counsel George F. Vanderveer for the defendants, in presenting the opening argument on the motions, attacked the constitutionality of the indictment. He pointed to the fact that the jury was out forty minutes. This, he said, was insufficient time to properly deliberate on the mass of evidence presented. Numerous court decisions were cited by the attorney in support of his contention that the defendants were entitled to a new trial.

After hearing arguments on counsel, Judge Landis took the motions under advisement and said he would announce his decision Thursday. It is expected sentenced will be imposed immediately after his ruling. In the event of denial of the motions it is said counsel for the defence will appeal the case to the United States circuit court of appeal.

AUSTRIANS CLAIM RECAPTURE OF BERAT

Official Statement Says the Italians Suffered Heavy Losses

Vienna, Monday, Aug. 26.—In Albania Austrian troops have recaptured Berat and the town of Fieri, near the mouth of the Semeni, says the official statement from Austro-Hungarian headquarters today. The Italians lost heavily in men and material.

The statement reads:

"Fieri was recaptured yesterday (Sunday), after sanguinary street and house to house fighting. Later we captured Berat and shortly afterward the Italians were driven from the dominating heights of Speragi and Senja. The Italian losses in men and material were heavy. On the upper Devoli we further consolidated our successes."

PUBLICITY ON WAR IS GOVT.'S INTENTION

New Plan To Be Adopted in Near Future.

Ottawa, Aug. 27.—The Government, it is understood, has under consideration a scheme to make Canada's war effort better known both in the Dominion and the United States. It is realized that if the war spirit is to be stimulated, all information possible should be made available, and this course, it is proposed to follow. It is probable that, as part of the scheme, speakers will be sent through the Dominion to lay facts before the public.

A representative of the Government will attend the International Association of the Underwriters' Association of the United States and Canada, which opens in New York on September 4. He will speak on what Canada has done in the war.

THIRTY-ONE HORSES BURNED TO DEATH IN MONTREAL FIRE

Blaze Believed To Be of Incendiary Origin—Destroys Bakery Shop.

Montreal, Aug. 27.—Thirty-one horses were burned to death and damage estimated at $125,000 was caused in a fire believed to have been of incendiary origin, which destroyed the bakery of J. A. Brouscau, Boyer street, this morning.

The outbreak in the Brousseau bakery was the sixth fire of suspicious origin which has occurred here in the past twenty-four hours in establishments connected with the production of food.

ESCAPE MORE SERIOUS CHARGE, BUT GUILTY OF BEING DRUNK ON SUNDAY

Three Men Arrested Just Outside the City Limits.

Three men—John Donohue, Nelson Blackwell and Fred Lyons—appeared before Squire W. H. Chittick and Capt. Thomas Robson at the courthouse this morning charged with having liquor in their possession in a place other than a private dwelling. They pleaded not guilty to that charge, but were found guilty of being drunk.

The men were arrested Sunday just outside the city limits by the city police. Sergt. Thomas Lucas testified to having seen Fred Lyons take the bottle from the ground and put it to his lips. Patrolman Albert J. Oakley corroborated Sergt. Lucas' evidence regarding finding the men with the bottle. When the bottle was found the men claimed it contained water, but after it was analyzed it was discovered that the bottle contained 33 per cent proof spirits. All three men denied having any connection with the bottle.

Fred Lyons claimed that two soldiers gave them a drink of cider on Sunday out of a little brown jug. When asked who the soldiers were, he claimed he did not know their names, but that they went into the woods with the jug and did not return, and that it was the cider that made him drunk.

Lyons claimed that he found the bottle on the ground and that he did not bring it to the woods with him.

Squire Chittick: "Where did the bottle come from? Did it drop down from heaven?"

J. B. McKillop: "I have heard of manna dropping from heaven, but not bottles containing 33 per cent spirits."

Lyons was asked by Mr. McKillop if he would have gone for this bottle sooner if he had known it was there on the ground, and Lyons replied, saying "Yes."

Mr. McKillop told the court that it would be unfair to convict all the three men, and it would also be unfair to convict one of them.

Squire Chittick told the three men that they had had a very narrow escape.

The men will pay $20 and costs or go to jail for 30 days.

FOUND GUILTY OF MAIMING HIMSELF TO AVOID SERVICE

Pte. Roy Skillings' Sentence Comes Later.

COURT SITS AT NIGHT

High Military Tribunal Holds Late Session—Conflicting Stories Told.

Pte. Roy Skillings of Bright, Ontario, a member of the 1st Battalion, Western Ontario Regiment, appeared before a general court-martial at Carling Heights yesterday afternoon charged with "wilfully maiming himself with intent thereby to escape military service, and was found guilty by the court as charged. Lieut.-Col. W. T. McMullen of Woodstock acted as counsel for the defence, the prisoner entering a plea of not guilty.

The court was scheduled to assemble at 1:30 p.m., but, though the inability of members to attend, the trial was adjourned until 4:30 p.m., permission having been wired from Ottawa in the meantime for Major R. Emmerton of the local headquarters staff to act as a substitute member on the court.

Major McKitrick Prosecuted.

Major C. McKitrick of the 1st Battalion, Western Ontario Regiment, prosecuted on two counts, it being alleged that on June 5 last the accused shot himself with a 22-calibre rifle, on his farm near Bright, with intent to escape military service, and again on June 18 shot the same finger with a shotgun at the farm of his brother near St. George, Ontario, with the result that it was partially blown off his hand.

Heard Report of Gun.

Miss Abigail Skillings, sister of the prisoner was the first witness called, and she stated that while at the Skilling farm, on June 5, she heard a report of a gun, and immediately after this saw her brother enter the house with an injured finger which she dressed. He then left the house to go to Plattsville, where a doctor could be obtained.

Doctor Wilson of Plattsville, Ont., the next witness, stated that the accused came to him on the night of June 5, with an injured hand which he dressed. The bullet had passed through the index finger splintering the bone. The accused, he testified, asked him to amputate the finger, but he informed him that such an operation was unnecessary. He subsequently dressed the wound several times, and it finally healed completely, leaving a small scar.

Had Been No Shooting.

Lloyd Skillings, a brother of the prisoner swore before the court that there had been no shooting accident at his farm on June 18, and the only information he had regarding the same was that given him by neighbors. He had worked close to his house all that day, and heard no shots fired, although he informed the court that there was a shotgun on the premises, which he had borrowed to shoot rabbits. He stated that his two brothers, Roy and Lapeer, had visited at the farm that day, and had breakfast and dinner with him.

The court at this juncture adjourned until 7 p.m., and upon the case being resumed in the evening, Dr. H. Nash of St. George was called. He testified that Pte. Roy Skillings came to his office on June 18 with a bandaged finger, part of which was blown off. He administered an anaesthetic to the accused and dressed the wound, which, he said, was a fresh one.

Heard a Shot.

Lapeer Skillings, another brother of the accused, testified that he had heard a shot while at Lloyd Skillings' farm, near St. George, on June 18. He stated that he drove his brother, who was injured, to Dr. Nash's office in St. George, on being told to do so by his brother Lloyd. He did not notice that the accused was injured until they had traveled for some distance along the road.

Lloyd Skillings, on being recalled as a witness, denied the statements of his brother, the previous witness, stating that he gave no instructions regarding the visit to Dr. Nash, as he did not know at that time that there was a doctor of that name in the vicinity.

Complied With Law.

The prisoner, Roy Skillings, in a statement declared that he was 23 years of age, had complied with the law regarding the military service act in November, 1916, and had received permanent exemption as a farmer. Upon receiving this exemption he purchased a farm, which he was working until ordered to report on June 12, which order came as a surprise to him. He stated that he still owned the farm, and did not know what would become of his crop now.

He swore that on June 5 he was ramming a cartridge from his rifle when it exploded, injuring his index finger on the right hand. He claimed that it was an accident. Continuing his evidence, the accused testified that he went to see his brother Lloyd on the latter's farm on June 18, accompanied by his other brother, Lapeer. While there, he swore that his hand pained so much that he went to the office of Dr. Nash, but he claimed that he remembered no injury to the finger on that day previous to the severe pain experienced.

Finger No Different.

He also swore that the injured finger was no different when he saw Dr. Nash than when it was last dressed by Dr. Wilson, although the latter testified before the court that the finger was not amputated by him, and Dr. Nash Swore that the finger was either blown off or amputated in some manner when the accused called at his office, and also stated that it was a fresh wound. Pte. Skillings, in addition to the above, swore that he had never at any time asked Dr. Wilson to amputate his finger, nor had he dinner with his brother Lloyd, as stated by him in his evidence.

Lieut.-Col. W. T. McMullen on behalf of the prisoner then addressed the court. "The circumstantial evidence appears conclusive," he stated, "and there are discrepancies in the evidence, which cannot be harmonized. I have asked the accused to tell the court all he knows, and it may be possible that what he tells of happening at the St. George farm is true. If the accused is correct in his statement, then Dr. Wilson has made a mistake regarding the condition of the injured finger, and as his counsel I ask the court to believe the statement of the prisoner."

Too Contradictory.

Major C. McKitrick, prosecuting, summed up the case. He claimed that the evidence as given by the Skillings family was too contradictory and unreliable to be considered by the court. "They contradict themselves, and one another," said the prosecutor, in addressing the court. "They are trying to conceal something, and the accused had reasons for his actions, as he had been ordered to report for military service."

"We have the evidence of two disinterested professional men, against that of the Skillings family," he continued. "the latter being practically worthless. I belief that this is a case of guilt on the part of Roy Skillings."

The court was then closed to consider a finding, but at 10 p.m. adjourned to convene again at 10 a.m. today, when the verdict was announced. Pte. Skillings complained to the court last night that he was feeling ill, and he was paraded before a medical officer for examination.

Met at Night.

Quite an innovation in local military circles was introduced in this case, when the court convened at 7 p.m. yesterday, this being the first court-martial in No. 1 Military District to try a soldier at night. Lieut.-Col. H. L. Milligan, D.S.O., 1st Battalion, Canadian Garrison Regiment, acted as president of the court, assisted by four senior district officers as members. Major G. N. Weekes acted as judge advocate, and the court was assembled by special orders from Ottawa. This court has the power to inflict the death penalty on the prisoner if found guilty as charged, but the sentence must be confirmed at Ottawa before promulgation.

There were about fifteen witnesses summoned in this case by the military authorities, but many of these were not called. This case has aroused much comment in local military circles, and the finding of the court, which was announced today, was awaited with great interest by all concerned.

TWO DESERTERS GIVEN NEW CHANCE IN ARMY

One, Guilty on Two Occasions, Is Refused Opportunity.

Three deserters appeared in police court this morning, and all were found guilty. John E. Kellestine, who deserted from the 135th Battalion, was then pardoned and attached to the 64th Battery, and deserted for the second time, pleaded guilty, but expressed his willingness to go back in the army again. This was refused, because he was given a chance once and did not make good use of it. He was remanded for one week, when he will appear for sentence.

Frederick Purser, who deserted from the 99th Battalion, claimed he left his unit because several articles were missing from his kit, and he was unable to pay the $40 charged up to him. He was willing to go back in the army, so he was given this opportunity.

Richard Mason, who deserted from the 186th Battalion, and was missing from his unit for two years and three months, was given the same chance as Purser to go back to the army or serve six months in jail. He went back to the army.

FRIENDSHIP CYCLING CLUB HAS ARRANGED PARADE IN COSTUME

The Friendship Cycling Club of this city held its regular meeting Monday evening with a large attendance. Arrangements for the parade which will be held on Wednesday evening were completed and at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening it will be started at the store of A. Tanner, 665 Dundas street, and all the members, numbering about 50, will mount bicycles attired in costumes, representing the different nations and countries. Miss Canada and Uncle Sam will lead the procession, which will go west on Dundas street to Richmond, north on Richmond to Dufferin, east on Dufferin to Clarence, south on Clarence to York, west on York to Talbot, north on Talbot to Queen's avenue, and east to Adelaide, finishing up at Dundas street.

This parade will be something out of the ordinary in this city, and special preparations have been made by those in charge to make it a huge success and some very "snappy" costumes will be worn. It was also decided that on Saturday, September 7, weather permitting, the members of the club would hold a ride in which they would pedal to St. Johns, and after having refreshments, would return to this city in the evening.

MILITARY NOTES

SIBERIAN CONTINGENT.

Further instructions have been received at military headquarters here regarding recruiting for the Siberian contingent. Every facility for members of the Canadian permanent force to volunteer for this contingent has been offered, and they may do so in any branch of the service. Artillery recruits will be forwarded to Petawawa Camp, engineers and signalers to St. Johns, Que., and machine gunners who are qualified will be sent to Toronto. Army Medical and Army Service Corps recruits will mobilize at Ottawa.

Transfers from units to this force will be expedited, and the infantry platoons will be brought up to full strength by volunteers from the 1st Battalion, Western Ontario Regiment. Lieut. John M. Watt has been placed temporarily in charge of both platoons, and Lieut. J. H. C. Woodward of the local headquarters staff will also hold an appointment with this force. The former was employed at the local mobilization centre as assistant officer commanding, and Lieut. Woodward was adjutant and captain of the 135th Battalion, which unit he accompanied to England.

CONFESSES DESERTION.

The court-martial of Pte. Fred Jackson, a deserter from the 142nd Battalion, has been dispensed with by order of the officer commanding this military district, the offender being ordered to suffer the same forfeitures as if he had been tried by court-martial, as he signed a confession of desertion.

NEW ISOLATION CAMP.

Camp orders today state that a new isolation camp will be located and erected on the east side of the camp, east of the bayonet-fighting compound. The arrangement will be on the basis of a company with cookhouse, bucket latrines and shower bath.

The O. C. of each unit having men in this camp will send a nominal roll each morning for the information of the O. C. 1st Battalion, C. G. R.

At present it is considered that the men composing the camp can be utilized to guard same, but if this is found to be unsatisfactory, other arrangements will be made.

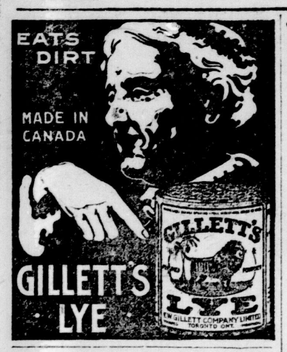

One officer will be detailed by the O. C. 1st Battalion, C. G. R., who will be responsible to him for the conduct of the camp.

GEN. LOGIE HERE.

Major-Gen. W. A. Logie, C. M. G., representing militia headquarters at Ottawa, is in London today for the purpose of inspecting No. 1 District Depot, which unit is stationed at the local Armories. Gen. Logie was formerly officer commanding Camp Borden and Military District No. 2, with headquarters at Toronto, but is now on the headquarters staff at Ottawa.

DIED IN DETROIT.

The death occurred at 545 Lennox avenue, Detroit, Mich., this morning of a former resident of this city in the persons of William C. Bass. Mr. Bass left the city about 20 years ago for Detroit, where he resided until the time of his death. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Emily Bass, and three sisters: Mrs. V. J. Dunlevy, Mrs. Emma Pearson, Mrs. Alex. Woonton, all of this city, and three brothers, Edward, George and Norman all of Detroit. The funeral will take place on Thursday from his late residence, and interment will be made at Detroit.

SAVE YOUR HAIR AND BEAUTIFY IT WITH "DANDERINE"

Spend a few cents! Dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness, and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter, for a few cents; apply a little as directed, and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp, and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

OLD FOLKS NEED "CASCARETS" FOR LIVER, BOWELS

Salts, Calomel, Pills Act on Bowels Like Pepper Acts in Nostrils.

Enjoy Life! Don't Stay Bilious, Sick, Headachy and Constipated

Get a 10-cent box now.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets, and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

THROUGH A DRIVING RAIN THE CANADIANS ATTACKED AND TOOK ENEMY POSITIONS

Gallant Fighters From the Dominion Were First to Penetrate German Lines in the Opening of Big Offensive Southeast of Arras.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—It was the Canadians who early Monday morning in the new offensive of the British southeast of Arras captured Wancourt and Monchy-le-Preux and pressed on beyond them, according to Field Marshal Haig's communication issued tonight.

The statement also records the capture by the British of Mont Auban and Basentin-le-Grand, respectively west and southwest of Longueval.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The Associated Press tonight issued the following summary of today's operations on the war fronts in France:

While the Germans were busily engaged in defending themselves against the attacks of the British and French armies from the Anere River to the region of Soissons, Field Marshal Haig early Monday morning struck another surprise blow over a new front north of the old battle zone. The new offensive was launched from the east of Arras on the Scarpe River and southward to the Cojeul. All along the front the British pressed forward, at some places to a depth of more than two miles, and captured a half dozen or more villages, among them Monchy-le-Preux, Guemappe and Wancourt.

On Old Battlefront.

Across the Cojeul the new British attacks on the old battlefront brought them the villages of Mory and St. Leger and farther south the small town Favreuil, one and a half miles northeast of Bapaume, from which the British pressed on eastward about a mile.

Farther south the British are reported, unofficially, to have reached the western outskirts of Thilloy in the "nipper" movement they are carrying out against Bapaume. With Haig's men now standing well within gun range of the town it seems likely that the Germans will be forced to evacuate Bapaume in short order.

Additional gains also have been made by the British east of Albert and on both sides of the Somme river. In fact, notwithstanding the efforts of the Germans through the use of large reinforcements to hold them in check, the British and French all along the line from Albert to Soissons have materially bettered their positions and carried further forward their plan of making Picardy battleground untenable for the enemy.

French To Pinch Off Roye.

The French again are hammering away at the environs of Roye, one of the strong points on the Somme-Oise front, the capture of which doubtless would cause the giving up by the enemy of the entire salient from the Somme in the north to Noyon. Frenoy-les-Roye, to the north, and St. Mard to the south of Roye, have been captured by the French, despite the desperate resistance of the enemy, and Roye, like Bapaume in the north, apparently is in danger of being pinched out of the line in an enveloping movement. More than 600 prisoners were taken by the French in the operation.

The Germans have thrown further heavy counter-attacks against the French in the region north of Soissons, where the Poilus continue their pressure northward in manoeuvres which seriously threaten to outflank the Chemin-des-Dames and Laon sectors, and to put the entire German line from Ypres to Rheims in jeopardy.

Mangin Plows Through.

All the attacks have been sustained by Gen. Mangin's forces and the French even have pushed back the Germans beyond the points from which they started. The famous Prussian Guards have been thrown into the battle to check the French, but, as in their efforts against the French and Americans in the Vesle sector, they meet with defeat.

The operations of the British on the northern part of the front from the east of Arras to the region of Bullecourt have brought them virtually upon, or very near, the old Hindenburg line.

There is still considerable activity in the eastern part of the battlefront in the Vosges mountain region, where forces of Americans recently have been fighting. The operations, however, continue of the nature of raids and small surprise attacks. Several of the latter manoeuvres have been put down by the French.

CANADIANS PUSH ON TO VICTORY IN RAIN.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The text of Sir Douglas Haig's communication tonight follows:

"At 3 o'clock this morning Canadian, Scottish and London troops attacked on both sides of the Scarpe River from Croisilles to the neighborhood of Gagrelle. On the south bank of the river Canadian divisions, attacking with gallantry, passed rapidly through the enemy's foremost defences and captured the high ground known as Orange Hill in the first rush of their assault.

"Despite heavy storms of rain, the Canadians pressed on, and at an early hour reached Wancourt and Monchy-le-Preux. During the morning the rain ceased, and these troops completed the capture of both villages and made progress beyond them.

"Meanwhile, north of the Scarpe Scottish troops, advancing again over the ground, where they fought in 1917, carried the German first defensive system south of Gavrelle, reaching the outskirts of Roeux. The chemical works, north of Roeux, again are in our possession.

"On the Canadians' right Scottish and London troops, who, during the preceding days, had fought their way toward Croisilles and Beninel continued their attacks.

"Farther north English troops rushed forward in the direction of Montauban and Welsh troops captured Bazentin-le-Grand.

"On the remainder of the battle front fighting occurred at a number of points. Our pressure everywhere was maintained and our line advanced in certain sectors."

CANADIAN FORCE FOR SIBERIA WILL HAVE BRITISH COMPANIONS

One Battalion From Hong Kong Garrison.

R.N.W.M.P. AS CAVALRY

4,000 Troops From This Country All Told—Self-Sustained Unit.

OTTAWA, Aug. 26.—The force which is to be dispatched under Brig.-Gen. J. H. Elmsley to Siberia will consist of what is termed a mixed brigade, a small force of all arms, according to a statement issued by the department of militia and defence.

The basis of it will be three battalions of infantry, one of which, furnished from the garrison of Hong Kong, is English, while the others will be raised in Canada. The English infantry—a battalion of the Middlesex regiment, already is at Vladivostok. There also will be a squadron of cavalry, a battery of field artillery, a machine gun company, a field company of engineers, a signal company, a field ambulance, a stationary hospital, an army service corps unit, an ammunition column, and various administrative services, these latter including general base depot, sanitary section, base guard, A.S.C. unit of supply, bakery and butchery sections, ordnance corps detachment (one-half company), remount depot, pay office and postal service.

It will be necessary to provide the necessary administrative services and replacement men. The cavalry squadron will be provided by the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. As regards equipment, the Siberian expeditionary force as a whole will profit by the experience of the mounted police on the prairies, whose climatic conditions closely resemble those of Siberia.

The Middlesex regiment, with which the Canadian troops will be associated, is an old and famous regiment of the British army. Its two regular battalions are the old 57th and 77th; the 57th won the name of "The Die-Hards" by its steadfastness at Albuera.

The force thus will be a self-contained unit, some 3,000 rifles, with half a dozen quick-firing 18-pounders; some fifty or sixty machine guns of light and heavy type, and a proportion of cavalry, while it will have a full proportion of engineers and other services. The total establishment of the troops raised in Canada will be about 4,000; with the English troops added the total British force under Gen. Elmsley will be about 5,000 of all ranks and services.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH BY ACID CONFRONTS POLICE OF TORONTO

Lady of House Overcome Before Roomer Is Found Dead.

TORONTO, Aug. 26.—A good deal of mystery surrounds the death of Henry J. Hunter, afted 47 years, who was found dead here today in his room on Leuty avenue. Hunter is believed to have died from inhaling a chemical fume, the nature of which is not definitely known to the police. Several bottles of the liquid were found on a table in the man's room.

Another peculiar side of the case is the alleged discovery of acid spots on the carpet of Mrs. Jessop's room in the same house and the sudden illness of Mrs. Jessop and her 3-year-old daughter. Hunter romed with the Jessop family, and, according to the police, Hunter is alleged to have entered Mrs. Jessop's room early Monday morning, after her husband had left for work and dropped chemical on the floor which formed an asphyxiating odor. Mrs. Jessop fainted and when a doctor was called in he found the child in a critical condition.

Hunter retired to his room and was not again seen until his body was found.

An envelope marked "Last Message" was found among Hunter's belongings. The police are of the opinion that one of the bottles found by them contained sulphuric acid.

Embargo Put Upon Shipment of New Wheat From West

No Mills May Receive Wheat Except by Special Order.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 26.—The Government has placed an embargo on the shipment of all wheat of the new crop from the three western prairie provinces. The Canada Grain Board estimates the total wheat yield at no more than 135,000,000 bushels in Western Canada. No mills may receive wheat except by special order.

ALL HINDENBURG LINE MAY BE IN ALLIES' HANDS BY OCTOBER 1

Ludendorff Has Greatly Blundered by Procrastination in Retreat.

BRITISH SUCCESS GREAT

Unmistakable Signs German Resistance Is Cracking at Critical Points.

BY FRANK H. SIMONDS.
(Copyright, 1918, by the Tribune Association, New York.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—There is no mistaking the fact that the whole German resistance at critical points shows signs of cracking, and I am informed from Paris that there is a very general belief in that city that the Hindenburg line will be in Allied hands by October 1. This is obviously extreme optimism, but it finds an interesting confirmation in the message Clemenceau has just addressed to the general councils of France. The German is still fighting bravely and with skill and determination, but the hopeful and significant thing is that despite his colossal efforts he is being defeated heavily and continuously.

British Success is Great.

The British offensive south of Arras, which developed last week and is still going forward unchecked, has now extended to the scene of the battle of Arras of April 9, 1917, and is the most considerable and important movement since August 8. The proof of this is the frank statement in the German official statement of Saturday that Ludendorff has accepted battle before Bapaume and in front of the old Hindenburg line. Having accepted battle, probably because he was unable to make a successful retreat, he has been beaten and driven straight across the old battlefield of the Somme in an engagement which will hereafter be of utmost interest to all students of the campaign of 1916.

Ludendorff in Great Peril.

Ludendorff's situation is not desperate, but it is becoming exceedingly perilous. He has been unable or unwilling to imitate Hindenburg's method and make a swift retreat to the line on which the old marshal stood from March, 1917, to the spring of this year. He has instead lingered and procrastinated as did Napoleon in Eastern Germany in the early summer of 1813, hoping for a victory, expecting a turn of the tide, and thus reluctantly moving toward Leipsic, which was the ruin of his empire, and the doom of his European supremacy.

Lingering, Ludendorff has suffered heavy local defeats and an ever-mounting wastage in men and material. He is not inflicting greater losses upon Foch than he is suffering.

Effect Must Be Disastrous.

On the contrary, his losses are far more considerable and the morale of his army is breaking down under steady retreats—not a single retirement like that after the second Marne, which was orderly and left his soldiers with the sense of a strategic movement, but retreats after local defeats, each of which increased the depression and pessimism of his army, and increased the sense of superiority felt by his foes.

We have still to keep our feet solidly on the ground, despite the amazing turn of events and the ever-growing magnitude of our successes. The decisive stage of our campaign, or our offensive of this year, has not yet come. It cannot come until the battle for the Hindenburg line begins. That battle may begin at any moment, but if it does it will be on new fields, north of Arras or east of Rheims, or in both regions, thus recalling the double thrust of Champagne and Loos in 1915.

Foe's Centre In Retreat.

In a word, Ludendorff's centre is now that beaten host retiring upon the Hindenburg line, which offers it a possible rallying ground. But in the nature of things an Allied attack upon the flanks, turning the Hindenburg line and abolishing the position to which the beaten centre is retiring in manifest disorder, is the stroke to be expected. If it comes, then it will be followed by a real disaster, for the beaten centre will then have no respite short of the Meuse, and this means a new retreat without any chance to reorganize and rest.

All now depends upon two things, the extent to which the centre can be harried and demoralized before it gets to the Hindenburg line, and the ability of Foch to strike on the flanks and thus abolish the German line in France from Lille to Verdun.

Interesting Time Ahead.

A more interesting and a more critical fortnight than that which is before us is impossible to imagine. More than this, recognizing how futile is forecast at such a time, we can yet see that events are at least tending rapidly toward producing another Leipsic, not a Sedan or even a Jena, but a Leipsic, a defeat which threw Napoleon back into France and settled the fate of his ten years' struggle for the supremacy on Europe.

Watch the flanks, keep track of the prisoners and guns taken; by contrast pay relatively little attention to ground gained in front of the Hindenburg line: this is the advice all military commentators are giving today. The present hour is the best since the war began for the Allied cause; it holds out great present possibilities, it insures ultimate military decision over the enemy, absolute and unqualified.

OVER A THOUSAND PRISONERS SNARED BY THE CANADIANS

WITH BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 26.—(10 p.m.).—(By the Associated Press.)—The German retirement is continuing along many parts of the battlefront tonight. The British are overwhelming the enemy's rear guards in heavy fighting.

Reports indicate that at least one counter-attack has been broken up by the British artillery concentrating its fire on massed enemy troops.

Suzanne and Cappy, towns north and south of the Somme, respectively, were captured by Field Marshal Haig's forces today, according to reports this evening from the British battle front.

The British also took Avesnes-les-Bapaume, a suburb of the town of Bapaume.

British troops also reached the western outskirts of Thilloy, south of Bapaume.

An unconfirmed report states that Montauban and the outskirts of Longueval also were reached by the British.

South of the Scarpe, the Canadians driving along the Arras-Albert-Cambrai road, have gained more ground and added more than a thousand Germans to the British total of prisoners during the day's fighting.

FAVREUIL'S STREETS RAN RED WITH THE BLOOD OF GERMANS

Huns Caught Under Withering Fire of British Died in Their Tracks.

BRITISH STORMED TOWN

All That Remained in Village Were Captured by Haig's Forces.

With the British Army in France, Monday, Aug. 26.—The extension of the British line north of Scarpe has brought the attackers to within striking distance of a good part of the Hindenburg line, back of which is open country with the terrain and roads in excellent condition for the movement of tanks and horses.

The British made steady progress again today, especially on the new section of the front, around Bapaume and astride the Somme. German resistance again was stubborn. However, it is beginning to look as though the enemy is fighting rearguard actions with the hope of holding up the British until he can move his material to the rear.

No fresh German divisions have been identified in the recent fighting. The strategy of the German high command now is to leave bettered divisions to fight rearguard actions and, incidentally, to have a large part of the remnants of these formations chewed to pieces by the British fire.

General Ludendorff perhaps has some plans to make a stand in the rear of the present line, and is saving what men he can for that purpose. It would not be surprising if the enemy intended to put up a stiff defence somewhere on a line running generally north and south through Peronne.

Heavy German Losses.

There was hard fighting today around Bapaume. Favreuil, just north of Bapaume, has been taken, and the streets run red with the blood of Germans killed there. The enemy was prepared to launch a counter-attack here, but as his troops moved toward the town from the east they were caught under the fire of the British artillery. The British then stormed into the town and captured what remained of the enemy's force—100 men and 5 officers.

From Favreuil the British passed east and south, further encircling Bapaume. There are unconfirmed rumors that British patrols have reconnoitred into Bapaume and have gone some distance without seeing any of the enemy. British shells have been raining down on Bapaume for many hours.

Many Prisoners Taken.

Large numbers of prisoners captured have not yet arrived at the cages because they are some distance to the rear. This accounts for the fact that many captured Germans, perhaps the number runs well into thousands, while well outside the zone of fire, in accordance with the rules of war, have not yet reached the base cages.

The new section of the battlefront just south of the Scarpe offers great possibilities. The attacking forces here are driving eastward astride the Arras-Cambrai road, and are now beyond Monchy-le-Preux and Wancourt. These points virtually are on the Hindenburg line. The rain during the night did not interfere with the British advance for the operations now are on hard ground. The rain put the Germans at a disadvantage, particularly those in crater holes, with machine guns, as many of the holes were turned to puddles.

As soon as the rain ceased scores of British planes took the air and continued their systematic attacks upon the enemy troops. Tanks again distinguished themselves by overwhelming points where the concentration of machine guns delayed the advancing infantry.

THREE DROWNED AT ALBERTA.

EDMONTON, Aug. 26.—Three lives are thought to have been lost in the Pembina River through the wrecking of a raft on that stream on some date following August 2. The supposed victims are Mr. and Mrs. Morrow and Samuel Stone of Power House, a point on the Saskatchewan River.

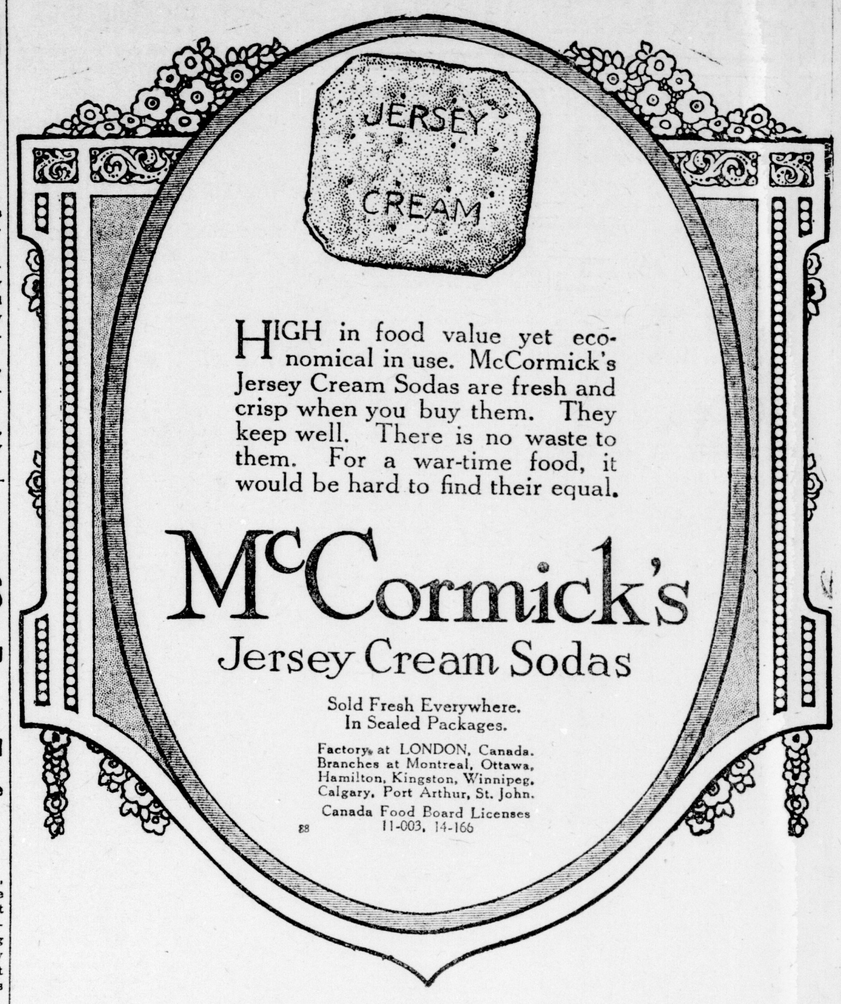

CHANGE OF WATER CAUSED DIARRHOEA

People moving from one place to another are very much subject to diarrhoea on account of the change of water, change of climate, change of diet, etc., and what at first appears to be but a slight looseness of the bowels should never be neglected or some serious bowel complaint will be sure to follow.

The safest and quickest cure for diarrhoea, dysentery, colic, cholera infantum, cholera morbus, pains in the stomach, seasickness and all looseness of the bowels is Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

Mr. T. T. Allard, Parry Sound, Ont., writes: "In the fall of 1914 I was working on the new 'Chiclet Gum' factory, on Carlew avenue, in Toronto, when I had a violent attack of diarrhoea, owing, I think, to the change of water. One of the foremen advised me to get a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, which I did, with the result that I hadn't taken it all before I was completely cured."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been a national remedy for the past 72 years, and is sold by medicine dealers everywhere at 35c a bottle. Don't let anyone palm off a substitute on you. When you pay your money for the genuine, you've a right to get it. Put up only by The T. Milburn Company, Limited, Toronto, Ont.

RAILWAY MEN WILL INTERVIEW M'ADOO ON AWARD QUESTION

Shopmen and Carmen of St. Thomas To Submit Grievances for Adjustment.

WILL GO TO WASHINGTON

Decisoin Made at Mass Meeting in St. Thomas City Hall Last Evening.

ST. THOMAS, Aug. 26.—"Brothers, you have power to make your own conditions, but when the Administration gives satisfaction it's your duty to see that Uncle Sam gets a square deal in the form of an honest day's work for an honest day's pay," declared James W. Size, representative of the federated trades, mid applause from a crowd of approximately seven hundred men who gathered in the council chamber at the city hall tonight for the purpose of discussing the McAdoo award.

Giant Crowd.

This giant crowd represented all branches of railway shop work, including skilled and unskilled shop men, machinists, carmen and every conceivable branch of railway work. The chief object of the meeting was to discuss the question of why piece-workers were not obtaining back time the same as day workers.

President John Lane, who opened the meeting and occupied the chair, said that certain members of the craft were carrying back to employers matters dealt with at craft meetings, and urged that they carry back correct reports, and not give a wrong impression. "We are merely exercising God-given power here," he declared. "Let us use it right."

Mr. Lane asked the question, "Who took advantage of organized labor before the war?" and immediately there arose from the audience a combined shout of "Capitalists!" If the working classes don't take advantage of the present opportunity, he declared, then after the war they will not get an opportunity.

Not Treated the Same.

Representative Size followed; and in a somewhat lengthy address exclaimed that piece-workers had not been treated the same as others.

"What assurance have we that day workers will get back time?" he asked. "What we have to do is to take it to McAdoo himself and not ask anyone else about the matter." He told of what Jackson, Mich., shops had done with the question. They had sent a delegation after giving the employers a few hours to make arrangements. A walk-out was averted by a mass meeting yesterday, and tomorrow a delegation goes to Washington.

Mr. Size stated that many men were not giving their employers a square deal, and urged that after matters had been settled and grievances adjusted that all go to work with a will. "Let us win the war and co-operate with every official in the service to gain that end."

Standing Vote.

A standing vote was then taken, and every man present voted to send Mr. Size to Washington. A collection taken afterwards to defray expenses resulted in $121 being collected. There are a number of minor grievances among carmen, shop men, helpers and unskilled laborers. All will be taken up at Washington. The trouble has been brewing for some time, and the meeting tonight will be only a beginning if matters are not satisfactorily settled.

SOME BRISK FIGHTING IN ALBANIA THEATRE

LONDON, Aug. 26.—There has been an increase in activity in the Albanian Theatre. Here the Austrians twice attacked the French-Italian troops, but were repulsed. Later the French slightly withdrew their line in order to maintain liaison with the Italians.

ACTIVITY IN ITALY.

ROME, Aug. 26.—The war office announcement today says:

"Along the whole front there was considerable activity by our reconnoitring patrols. On the Asiago plateau British and French patrols carried out raids on the enemy's trenches bringing back prisoners.

"Other prisoners and material were captured by our patrols in the Monte Grappa region and the Piave islets."

Steel, Wood and an Embargo

Business men know something of the troubles that beset the path of those who need steel; but not all of them know that the situation is not getting easier.

The United States Government, for instance, has embargoed the use of steel for pulleys except upon war orders.

But an interesting development has come out of this embargo.

Men who previously were quite honest in their convictions regarding the great efficiency of a metal pulley have discovered that a Dodge Wood-Split Pulley will not only do all that a metal pulley ever did, but it will do it better and for a less cost.

They have discovered that the surface of a Dodge Wood-Split Pulley provides greater adhesion, hence there is less belt slippage, and a corresponding saving of power. They have found the Dodge Wood-Split Pulley lighter and better balanced; consequently, there is less weight friction. They have proved that the Dodge Wood-Split Pulley may be run at higher speeds than metal pulleys without danger of bursting.

And, most interesting of all, they have learned that they can get Dodge Wood-Split Pulleys when they order them. We carry large stocks at our factory and branches, and ship all sizes from 4-inch diameters up to 6-feet diameters on the day orders are received.

HUN PRISONERS HOPE THAT GOVT. WILL BE CHANGED

With the British Army in France, Monday, Aug. 26.—The idea of a change of form in the Government in Germany seems to occupy a place in the thoughts of many German soldiers, judging from remarks made by prisoners. One of those who have expressed hope of a change was a soldier from Baden. He had had more war than he wanted, and said that when the war is over Baden will become an independent republic.

One said he had refused for three years to enter the German army. He finally was dragged in by force, and since then has been mostly in the front lines.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour, Gassy, Stomach and Acid Indigestion.

Doubtless if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, bismuth, soda, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little bisurated magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate, oxide or milk, but the pure bisurated magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that provided you take a little bisurated magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow and moreover, the continued use of the bisurated magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion. —Advt.

What Anthrax Is---How It's Treated and How It's Cured

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG.
A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins University.)

DR. HIRSHBERG

Anthrax is a malady associated always with a thick, square, fairly large bacillus easily visible even under microscopes which do not magnify over 600 times The anthrax bacterium forms spores, which dry up, but do not die. Their favorite abiding place is on sheep, upon hides, in wool tanneries, fur and leather goods made of certain skins.

About ten patients with one of the anthrax diseases—it shows itself as erysipelas, malignant carbuncle, cellulitis, or furuncle—are reported each year in New York City alone. Medical men, however, are so unfamiliar with this malady and sometimes fail to seek a microscopic diagnosis of boils and carbuncles, that there is little doubt but what scores of persons fall victims of this scourge without a correct report made about them.

The research laboratories of the health department and the hospitals are the ones who are able to determine doubtful instances. Anthrax begins like an ordinary boil or pimple and the association with hides, wool, bristles or leather may be the things that made you suspicious that it is anthrax. Sometimes, however, the centre of such a boil or carbuncle makes the one-tenth per cent of doctors, who have studied anthrax carbuncles, note that there is thin fluid instead of a thick matter in it. The anthrax bacilli are not found here, but in the hardened lower layers.

Anti-Serum Valuable.

In Southern France, Switzerland and Italy, anthrax is prevalent. Two to three thousand victims are there reported annually and one in every five succumbs to the trouble.

Of come 70 patients treated in this country and investigated by Nathan Schwartz of New York, nearly half were unsuccessfully treated.

The vaccine of Dr. Adolph Eichhorn and the anti-serum devised by him is now considered part of the preparedness equipments of tanneries, woolhouses and camps. Three doses of the serum six to ten hours apart are injected into the sufferer's veins.

Simultaneously with the discovery of the anthrax pimple or boil—though it is not anthrax but ordinary cocci bacteria—a surgeon is to cut the whole thing away, apply heavy carbolic acid, neutralize with alcohol and then paint with tincture of iodine, and then give the three serum injections.

Preventing Blood Poisoning.

Red hot irons or the electric cautery can be used in place of the knife, but there seems to be nothing better than pure carbolic acid.

The cautery is applied about two inches away from the pustule and a circles of the same distance is made all around it. It is burned down deeply under the carbuncle, which is to be lifted intact.

The destruction of the pustule is done from below upward instead of from above downward. This does away with the risk of forcing the anthrax bacilli into the blood stream and thus causing blood poisoning.

Ether or other general anesthetics are also to be avoided for the same reason. A little pain and local anesthesia shrinks the veins and prevents these germs producing blood poisoning.

Answers to Health Questions

E. B.: Q.—What can I do for dry eczema?

2—Will you also give me something for enlarged pores?

Salicylic acid	15 grains
Balsam peru	1 dram
Phenol	15 drops
Sulphur	1 dram
Petrolatum	½ ounce
Wool fat	½ ounce

2.—Massage, vibration and the use of a little harmless paste, such as lycopodium powder and glycerine or borated cocoa butter helps to fill out enlarged pores.

SHELBINA: Q.—I have a headache constantly. What shall I do for it?

A.—The causes of headaches are numerous, and the exact cause must be found by an examination before proper treatment can be given. You should also have your eyes examined, as they often are the cause of headaches.

J. P.: A.—If you will send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your query repeated I will be glad to answer your question.

J. M. G.: Q.—What would you advise as giving color to the face?

2.—What will make curly hair soft?

A.—You should eat green vegetables, fresh fruit and obtain exercise outdoors. You should not be constipated. Massage the cheeks with some good cold cream or cocoa butter, and rub ice on the face to stimulate circulation.

2—Leaving the hair exposed, not covering it, not using any soap on it and rubbing it occasionally with castor oil will help to make the hair soft.

A SUBSCRIBER: Q.—What can I do for a dog bite? Is it necessary that the dog be killed?

A.—The dog should be caught and caged. It is never necessary to kill a dog, because mad dogs die in three to five days, and well dogs can be set free in ten days. Their bites do no harm.

E. C. T. J.: Q.—What can I do to remove pimples?

A.—Apply a little of the following to the affected parts: Sulphur loti, 2½ drams; balsam peru, ½ dram; camphor, ½ dram; green soap, 1 dram; lanolin, ½ ounce; vaseline, ½ ounce.

Dr. Hirshberg will answer questions for readers of this paper on medical, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. He cannot always undertake to prescribe or offer advice for individual cases. Where the subject is not of general interest letters will be answered personally, if a stamped and addressed envelope is inclosed. Address all inquiries to Dr. L. K. Hirshberg, in care of this office.

A Pre-Autumn Afternoon Gown.

Black satin combined with light organdie is one of the most popular of the pre-autumn styles. The gown here illustrated is elaborate, suitable for even a formal afternoon occasion. It is of black satin charmeuse, and the skirt is full and heavily draped on one side to fall in a long, graceful fold from the hipline. A pale flesh-colored organdie is used for the round chemisette and pale flesh-colored organdie also is used for the cuffs which fasten with fine pearl buttons. At the shoulder and cuffs black brocade ribbon is fastened, ending with a tiny loop. A broader sash of the same kind of black velvet brocade gives a graceful line to the waist and skirt.

Solving Some Chili Sauce and Catsup Problems.

It takes very little time to put up good home-made chili sauce and catsup, and they are a most welcome addition to the pantry. For they are excellent not only for seasoning, but also as the basis for many pleasing sauces and gravies. If these seasonings are added to the food during cooking they will not be demanded at the table, and a little home-made catsup used as a seasoning will go a long way.

Quick Chili Sauce.

2 quarts of tomato pulp and juice
4 onions
2-3 cupful of brown sugar
2-3 cupful of vinegar
3 teaspoonfuls of salt
2 teaspoonfuls of paprika
1 teaspoonful of cinnamon
½ teaspoonful of cloves.
1-4 teaspoonful of cayenne

Chop the onions fine, add them to the tomatoes with the mixed seasonings and vinegar. Simmer until thick—about 30 to 40 minutes.

Chili Sauce With Peppers.

12 large tomatoes
4 large green peppers
2 onions
2 cupfuls of vinegar
1 tablespoonful of salt
1 tablespoonful of sugar

Peel the tomatoes and onions and chop them fine with the peppers. Add other ingredients and simmer for four hours. Then pour into hot, sterilized jars and seal.

Mushroom Catsup.

Use large mushrooms, and wipe, but do not wash them. Then place in an earthen jar in layers and sprinkle salt between each layer. Put in a warm place for 24 hours, then press through a fine cheese cloth. To this juice add peppercorns, allowing one tablespoonful to each cupful, then simmer for 40 minutes. Measure this juice, and then add seasonings, allowing for each cupful of juice one-half tablespoonful each of allspice, whole cloves, chopped ginger root and a half-blade of mace. Boil for 15 minutes, strain through a cloth, bottle and seal.

Apple Chutney.

½ pound of sour unripe apples
1-4 pound seeded raisins
2 cupfuls of vinegar
½ pound of brown sugar
2 tablespoonfuls of cayenne
4 tablespoonfuls each of garlic mustard seed, ginger, salt.

Peel, core and quarter the apples and boil them with the vinegar. Mix the spices with the sugar and raisins. When the apples have been cooked to a pulp set aside to cool. Then mix them with the spices and raisins in an earthen jar and let stand overnight in a warm place. Then pack into very small jars and seal.

Tomato Catsup.

1 peck ripe tomatoes
3 onions
½ cupful of salt
2 teaspoonfuls of cayenne
2 tablespoonfuls of paprika
½ cupful of whole mixed spices
1 clove of garlic
1-3 cupful of dry mustard
1 quart of vinegar
1 cupful of brown sugar.

Cut the tomatoes in half and cook with the onions in a preserving kettle for one hour over a slow fire. Force through a sieve, then add the salt, paprika and cayenne. Put other spices in a little bag, add to the tomatoes and cook rapidly until thick. Boil the sugar and vinegar together, strain the tomatoes and mix with the vinegar and sugar. Cook together until thick. Then remove the spice bag, pour into hot sterilized jars and let cool, then seal with paraffin.

While tobacco is recognized as a valuable insecticide which will kill most insects, there is at least one that lives in it and on it and thrives exceedingly—far too exceedingly to be pleasant. This tobacco beetle, as he is called, is very epicurean in his tastes and prefers the better brands of tobacco. He is a native of Cuba and the Philippines, but has spread all over the world. He only lives in manufactured and stored tobacco, never in the growing plant.

Good Night Stories

THE LAMPS OF THE SEA.

Linda looked out the window. The whole sea was covered with beautiful lights that rose and fell with the waves.

"Must be stars reflected in the water," mused Linda.

But when she looked overhead the sky was dark and not a star peeked from behind the clouds.

There was a merry laugh, and Happy Giggles, from Makebelieve Land, peeped from behind the curtain.

"What are those lights?" asked Linda, pointing to the red, blue, green and yellow balls of light dancing on the water.

Then, taking Linda's hand, he sailed out of the window toward the beautiful lights.

"What are they?" Linda asked as they neared the bell-shaped balls.

"Nothing more than the jellyfish you hear so much about," replied Happy Giggles. "See the dark dots all around the bell part? Well, those are the jellyfish's eyes, and you'll find little sacs along the bell part which take the place of ears."

"You mean that jellyfish can see and hear?" laughed Linda.

"Certainly we can!" answered a squeaky voice as a great big jellyfish swam toward them. "We can hear, see, feel and eat. These long arms which droop from the edge of my bell are my feelers, and they also help me in swimming."

"But I can't see any mouth to eat with," Linda declared.

"Right in the centre of the under side of my bell," replied Mr. Jellyfish, and he showed Linda the little fine frill which covered his mouth.

"These frills I use the same as you use your fingers," said Mr. Jellyfish. "I catch and put things into my mouth with them. Perhaps you'll be surprised to learn that we jellyfish eat fish, crabs and shellfish. We cast the hardest part of them out of our mouths and dissolve the rest. Don't suppose you'd care to see a baby jellyfish?"

"Oh, indeed I would!" Linda cried.

So Mr. Jellyfish led her down to the bottom of the sea.

"Some of us come from eggs and some come from what is called a bud," said Mr. Jellyfish, pointing to a plant with stems and branches. "See those buds on the branches? They are little jellyfish growing on the stem."

Just then one of the buds opened and a young Jellyfish broke from the slender stem and went swimming away, Mr. Jellyfish following at his side.

Then before Linda could blink her eyes she was sitting alone in her window, while out on the sea danced the balls of fire, casting their rays of red, blue, green and yellow lights over the waves.

"No wonder they're called Lamps of the Sea," mused Linda, as she pulled down the curtain and tumbled into bed.

To-morrow's Horoscope

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 28.

The planetary figures for this day are indicative of disappointments and reversals for most of those in the employment of others should they attempt to make any radical changes or to seek increase or promotion. The attitude of superiors may be unfriendly to these advances, and, also, the financial influences are adverse to such moves, and also are unfavorable for investment, speculation or any money risk. A Lunar square to Uranus warns against changes, removals or journeys, and the sidereal combination is against new ventures or enterprises. There are indications of activity in professional, artistic and social matters, and all of these should flourish. The mind will be cheerful, merry, fond of music, dancing and the inclinations will turn to poetry, literature and the fine arts and sciences.

Those whose birthday it is should safeguard their positions, neither traveling nor jeopardizing money. Withal they will be cheerful, lively and mentally alert. A child born on this day will be proud, domineering, changeable, and will turn to music and literature. It will succeed in the employment of others.

The milk problem on the hospital ships of the United States navy is solved in a different and highly ingenious fashion. On board the Mercury and Comfort there is now a machine which manufactures milk in any desired quantity, although the ship may have been at sea for weeks. This "mechanical cow" needs to be fed with a combination of unsalted butter and skimmed milk powder, and will give milk with any degree of butter fat which is required. It also produces cream that will whip, and the fluid which it yields tastes like the best quality of dairy milk and cream that can be procured ashore.

Fresh Air and Rest the Best and Simplest Beauty Treatment

BY LUCREZIA BORI
The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

How seldom we realize the value of fresh air and generous ventilation as the first aid to restoring some fading feature of beauty. Yet there is no other one treatment that will so generously repay those who carefully follow it. For many of the blemishes that distress the beauty seeker can be traced to a lack of the cheapest of all commodities—fresh air, ventilation, adequate breathing.

We think that we are getting sufficient ventilation for our bodies if we sit near an open window or take a few deep breaths outdoors. Too often we forget that the various members of the body have their demands for ventilation, too.

We keep our feet tightly laced in shoes during the day, change them at night for some kind of boudoir slippers, and keep the feet carefully covered during sleep so as to be protected against cold.

Air Your Hair. Rest Your Feet.

Similarly, with the hair. All day long it is tightly fastened with pins and combs, and perhaps crowded under a close-fitting hat. At night, after a brushing, we braid it tightly and thus it remains until morning, when the hair must again go into its tight imprisonment of pins, combs and perhaps net.

This restriction of the many features of the body has its more or less disastrous consequences when it is applied to the chest, waistline or hips, and medical men constantly deplore the fashions which influence women to these practices. Women cling to them because of their association with standards of beauty. But depriving the hair or the throat or the feet of the relaxing qualities of fresh air and ventilation do not make for beauty.

If you wish to beautify any feature of the body that seems to be sallow or lustreless, or misshapen, try a little of nature's beauty lotion—fresh air, more ventilation.

When you brush your hair at night or in the morning permit it to remain loose for a few minutes, fan it gently by spreading with the fingers. Especially on these warm days the sensation of air rushing through the hair and reaching the scalp is immediately refreshing and of great benefit to the scalp and hair.

Likewise do not keep encasing the feet in coverings without any pause between. The habit of keeping the feet in tight shoes constantly is responsible for the misshaping of the feet and often causing the painful bunions. The beautiful foot shows a straight line from the tip of the big toe to its base, but restriction to the feet in tight shoes has changed this into an unnatural curve.

Allow the feet to rest by leaving them uncovered between changing the shoes. At night and after the bath let the feet relax by remaining uncovered. The feel of the air on the bare feet is refreshing, wholesome, and should be as regular a part of the daily care of the body as bathing.

Another great help to getting fresh air to the various parts of the body that are usually covered with clothes is to take the daily exercise in front of the open window before completely dressing. Exercising near the open window in a loose garment has more value than simply permitting unrestricted use of the limbs and muscles. Its greater advantage is that it permits the entrance of fresh air to the otherwise tightly encased portions of the body.

Swedish physicians have perfected a cellulose dressing for wounds that is made in thin sheets like tissue paper from chemical wood pulp.

REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

What Madge Saw and Overheard When Lillian and Robert Thought They Were Alone.

Lillian made good her promise. It lacked 30 seconds of the 10 minutes she had named when we appeared at the breakfast table, Marion as pretty a little maiden as one would wish to see in a dainty blue frock, while Lillian and I brought with us her hat, coat, gloves and suitcase.

Betty had already served the cantaloupe, and was standing in the door of the breakfast room, her face registering strong disapproval. Lillian divined her trouble in a moment.

"We have plenty of time, people," she said cheerily, "so let us do full justice to Betty's breakfast. The taxi can get you to the pier from here in about eight minutes, so there's no need for rush. Did anybody order the taxi?"

"I did," Katherine returned quietly.

"I knew you would," Lillian answered approvingly, and Katherine flushed with pleasure.

When Betty brought in the cereal she was beaming.

"I jest thought you'd fix it; Mis' Lillian," she said. "Might jest's well dump a breakfast overboard as to eat it on the run."

"All right, Betty," Lillian returned carelessly. "But see that you get it in here on the run."

"I'll have it here on the fly," Betty promised, and hurried away.

"I really don't know what I'll ever do with Betty," Lillian said apologetically, and I saw with amazement that my friend was visibly embarrassed by the old colored woman's free and easy manner. It wasn't the first time I had seen her betray an anxiety for Robert Savarin's good opinion of her menage. Although she had not spoken directly to him, addressing his sister, instead, yet I knew it was his reply she awaited.

"Why do anything with her?" he asked lazily. "It strikes me that she's about perfect as she is—a rare specimen."

"She is all of that," Lillian retorted smiling, and I knew by the lilt in her voice that the artist's note of genuine approval had raised her spirits mightily. She beamed at Betty as the woman came into the diningroom bearing a heavily laden tray from which most appetizing odors came.

Madge "Manages."

"I knows these war times you don't go for to have meat for breakfast," Betty announced. "But you all are goin' on the boat an' you'll need it. I'll give you an' Mis' Madge an' Mis' Katherine no more meat today, Mis' Lillian, an' so dat will fix it all right."

She uncovered her tray, disclosing steak broiled as only Betty can broil it, flaky biscuits and baked potatoes.

"You may feed us on hardtack the rest of the day if you want to, Betty," Lillian declared.

If no one echoed her it was because we were too busy. With the exception of Marion, who had a child's healthy appetite, we had all been up hours, and had undergone much. We were ravenous.

I was clairvoyant enough to suspect that the same thought which was obsessing my mind was also occupying Mrs. Cosgrove and Katherine—the desire to give Lillian and Robert Savarin a few moments of uninterrupted conversation. It was Mrs. Cosgrove who adroitly paved the way for it by discoursing upon the tiny pigs, lambs, calves and kittens that flourished upon the Catskill farm. When the breakfast was ended Marion deserted Mr. Savarin, by whom she had been sitting, and came over to his sister.

"Do those two little twin kitties ever fight?" she demanded.

To Summon Lillian.

I interrupted hastily.

"Suppose, Marion, you take Mrs. Cosgrove into the big diningroom and show it to her, while she tells you about the kitties. Mrs. Underwood's refectory diningroom is considered rather wonderful," I added.

"Robert has told me about it. I shall be glad to see it," Mrs. Cosgrove returned. "Will you show it to me, Marion?"

"Of course," Marion answered, holding out her hand confidently, and then in the same breath: "Do they ever fight?"

"If you have anything else to attend to," I said in an off-hand manner to Lillian, "Katherine and I will do the honors."

Katherine had already followed Mrs. Cosgrove and Marion into the diningroom. Robert Savarin threw me a look of understanding.

"Thank you," he said softly, and into Lillian's face leaped a flush that transfigured her.

With a watchful eye upon the clock I kept our little party in the diningroom as long as I dared, then went swiftly out ahead of them to summon Lillian.

They were standing near one of the windows in the white and crimson living-room. Both Lillian's hands were in those of the artist.

"Can you guess what it means to me to have charge of your child?" I heard him ask, all his heart in his voice.

Lillian didn't reply save by a movement of her head, but her face was filled with that which must have been answer enough for Robert Savarin, for he suddenly carried her hands to his lips, kissing them with passionate reverance.

"This is not good-bye yet," he said tensely. "I must see you soon."

DIARY OF A FASHION MODEL
BY GRACE THORNCLIFFE.

She Learns How a Touch of Oriental Color Is Creeping Into Fall Gowns.

Although we have found in recent years that American designers can produce as beautiful and clever models as can be imported from abroad—indeed, Mme. Frances has made an enviable reputation for her creations—we can often achieve unusually beautiful effects by adapting Oriental color schemes. For example, a touch of lovely old Persian silk combined with some typically dashing western costume gives to it an added grace that's unusually lovely.

The costume here illustrated is suitable for the type of slender young girl we see so often—broad of shoulder and athletic in figure, yet slender and spare. Its long, loose lines, box-coat effect and general severity fit well with our present conception of plainness and lack of ostentation in costume.

This particular suit is of navy blue satin, and is suitable for afternoon wear. The skirt is draped loosely down the hips, and is fastened at the side. It forms a sort of tunic effect at one side and ends in a graceful point.

The coat is loose fitting, and is trimmed with military yoke and collar of moleskin. The bottom of the coat also has a deep edging of moleskin. To carry out the same color scheme the sleeves and a few inches of the coat above the fur have a trimming of mole color wool embroidery.

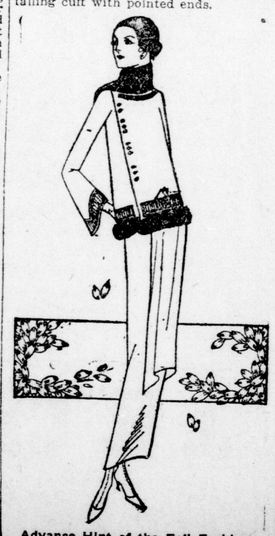

This combination of navy blue satin and mole color, while sober and unostentatious, would be a little too dull except for anyone who had so vivid a color of hair and complexion as to depend on the costume for toning it down. Most of our girls, not having a very high color, couldn't carry off so soberly-hued a costume.

Here, therefore, is where the deep Oriental colorfulness introduces a touch of wondrous beauty. It isn't necessary to make the vivid color conspicuous, but it may be modestly hidden so that only folds of it are shown occasionally, which serves the purpose of relieving the dull background.

The sleeves of this coat are lined with lovely old Persian crepe, as is also the entire coat. Only a little of this is visible, of course, such as when the arm is waved a little or the coat is blown back. It is, nevertheless, this tiny splash of vivid coloring that transforms an otherwise sombre costume into something smart and youthful.

Another attractive feature of this costume is its deep, double trimming of moleskin and wool embroidery. The coat depends for its smartness of line on its absolutely square, flat effect. This, however, would be entirely too flat without so softly draped a skirt were it not for the introduction of the soft, raised effect which the trimming of fur and heavy wool embroidery gives.

Another touch which relieves the coat from too stiff a line is the make-up of the sleeves. These are narrow from shoulder to elbow and form into a loose, falling cuff with pointed ends.

OPTIMISM IN JULY.

A CANADIAN officer with the Imperial forces was in close contact with members of the Allied conference held at Paris during July. In a letter recently received by relatives in this country, he remarked upon the feeling of optimism that prevailed among all the Allied leaders. The belief that something momentously favorable to the Allied side was about to occur made a marked impression on the observer, although at the moment the German super-offensive was in progress.

The conclusion to be drawn from this impression was that the victory which is now attending the Allied effort was contemplated and the strokes planned which would involve serious defeat for the enemy. It was a case of positive Allied strategy and preparation rather than one of haphazard failure on the part of the Germans. Even as the Germans advanced at a tremendous rate they were carrying through a part of the campaign necessary to the delivery of the Allied attack. Every hour of waiting, every loss of ground and supplies, so difficult for the public to bear at the moment, now proves to have been justified. Confidence never waned even when the entry of Paris was being freely predicted. The people waited and were rewarded. The plans of the combined commanders were prepared and the attack launched like a thunderbolt. The Allies finally got the Germans where they wanted them.

MESSAGES TO THE PEOPLE.

In Britain members of the Government are constantly upon the platform; hardly a day passes without the cables reporting the utterance of some member of the Lloyd George ministry interpreting Government policy to the people and exhorting them to persevere in sacrifice and endeavor. Canada is in need of something of the same kind. The people want to know what their Government is doing. They want a word of enlightenment and encouragement from time to time. Otherwise their morale and war determination are bound to become enfeebled.—Ottawa Journal Press.

THE PUBLIC MEN of Canada have been singularly silent ever since the outbreak of war. The ringing note sounding every day and every week to inspire and encourage the nation seldom has been heard. There have been plenty of parade and posing, a surfeit of election oratory, while parliamentary seats were in danger, but since 1914 save for an occasional few-line paragraph, the practice has been to let the public receive its inspiration in local doses from recruiting officers, good and bad, and to let the story of the war dribble through in ill-organized publicity, or, to consider another side, to permit the sordid side of war contracts to come to public attention by means of investigations.

Press and preachers have exhorted the people to sustain the war effort. But it has been and is even today a confusion of voices. There is no keynote for action sounding, such as might have aroused the nation to unity and kept the red blood of all Canadians warm for the cause.

It is late in the day to call for oratory of the flavor that catches public attention. The premier has never shown that he possessed the phrase-making ability that magnetizes an audience. His statements are formal and cold and filled with a stock of words sawed out with a bucksaw rather than with the tools of the woodcarver. Mr. Rowell's documents are legal and precise. So far as we are aware there are no other ministers who open their lips from one end of the year to the other unless to defend themselves in stilted passages. Sir Sam Hughes, whatever his faults, had the ability to make his statements stick to the public mind. His material may have been unworthy of consideration, but his metaphors and delivery gave some color to his speeches. In these times, to attract public notice a public man must possess the magnetic quality of oratory or the thing called "punch." Canada has never developed speakers who can convince, probably because there are so few who make the attempt.

KILLING OFF LIBERALISM.

The old Liberal party is a broken pitcher. Some still try to dip up the water with the shards, but it is unprofitable exercise.—Toronto News.

THEN WHY keep on playing the Dead March every few weeks? If the Liberal party is dead, it requires no further funeral orations from the News or anyone else. Once to every man and every party come the embalming fluid and the floral wreaths and the cutting of the sod. You cannot play an encore with Death. If the show is over he turns the crank that brings down the curtain. Canada has seen a few political parties go under the daisies for all time to come, but it has not yet heard the muffled drum roll and the cymbals clash in a symphony of woes for the Liberal party that held the reins of power for fifteen years up to 1911 and went into Opposition with colors flying.

The Liberal party cannot be kept alive by any strong applications of journalistic oxygen. Enthusiasm cannot be pumped into its lungs in the hope that it will stand. But on the other hand, it has learned the methods of gas protection and it cannot be killed with the noxious vapors its enemies have poured into its trenches. Otherwise it would have been dead long ago. Every kind of political assassin has been hired for the task of exterminating Liberalism, and in many cases it has received serious wounds that drained its blood. It has been known to receive eighteen wounds in one assault, and in other instances it has been slashed almost beyond recognition. But the knives never reached its heart. The throbbing consciousness of its ideals was never lost. The nation could feel the pulse beat, however feebly, and when a party can withstand what Liberalism has gone through, there is reason to believe that it may carry its honorable scars through many another battle. And no matter how little or much of public coddling it may receive, no matter how seldom it may sit at the tables of the rich, all through the land there are men and women who will receive it as the most honored guest. No matter how shabby the coat of the visitor may be, there will always be a welcome in thousands of homes and a reverence in thousands of minds. It is an old and tried and true friend to those who will give of their fare and their board. If it is weak or battered by thugs along the roadside, they will nurse it to strength, rally about its banner again and go on fighting in the belief that however wrong it may sometimes be, however it may be deserted by sycophants and self-seekers, however its cause may fall, it will never be killed until it has achieved its mission in this country, to establish brotherhood and to make truth supreme.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

We are on the outskirts of Bapaume. Pretty soon the waistband will be parting.

There is quite a resemblance between a German mark and a crown prince in charge of an army.

Those colored boys in France surely ought to get to the Rhine during this yeah watermellon season.

How many people read the statement of Sir Robert Borden handed out on Sunday? If few did so, why is this true?

As the end seems more certain than ever before, the prophets appear to be allowing the public to draw its own conclusions.

Women have been nagging away at their husbands for years to keep hands out of pockets. And then look at the women when they get 'em!

The Bolsheviki are said to have slaughtered the son of the czar because he cried over the death of his father. Any human emotion is crime to these monsters.

The United States Government has decided to take some of the wood pulp out of the Sunday newspapers. When one sees a whole page devoted to a picture of a bathing beauty, the action does not seem ill-advised.

An Indian has just completed a journey from the Arctic coast to Dawson, making the distance of 3,000 miles by canoe, trail and river steamer. He wanted to join the Canadian army. The Government owes him a return ticket when he has taken his whirl at the Hun.

A Minnesota man, who must have been driven to desperation while acting as treasurer of a church, is said to have invented a novel contribution box. If a person drops a quarter or more in the box there is silence; if he drops a dime in, a bell rings; a nickel sounds a whistle and a penny fires a blank cartridge. If one pretends to be asleep when the box is passed, it awakens him with a watchman's rattle, and a kodak takes his picture. Think of the temptation to a small boy with a collection of iron washers.

"ARKANSAS TRAVELER."

[St. Louis Republic.]

D. C. Allen, Liberty, Mo., has asked the Trouble Editor for the author, date of its being written, and circumstances of the conception of the dialogue-melody, "The Arkansas Traveler." The eighth volume of the publication of the Ohio Archaeological and Historical Society has an article on the subject from the pen of Thomas Wilson. There are several versions of the famed "fiddle" tune extant, and perhaps some reader of this column may further enlighten the inquirer or the editor as to the birth of the melody. The following is a digest of Mr. Wilson's writing:

"'The Arkansas Traveler' originated contrary to public opinion, not as a tune but as a simple drama. This simple drama was first given in Salem, Ohio, for the amusement of the guests at the Golden Fleece Tavern. The Golden Fleece was noted for its music, the chef d'oeuvre of which was considered to be the 'Arkansas Traveler.'

"There was no real 'argument' in the drama as first presented. It was given as a dialogue between an Arkansas squatter (a fiddler) and the 'Arkansas Traveler.' The play opened with the squatter trying to remember a tune he had heard at a theatre in New Orleans. He has tried for days to play it, but has only succeeded in playing the first line.

"He is about to give up in despair, when the 'Arkansas Traveler' appears upon the scene. While the fiddler is talking to the traveler he keeps trying to play the evasive, haunting tune. Finally, the traveler tells him that he can play it, and, much to the delight of the fiddler, he sits down and plays the piece over and over again. The scene closes with the squatter picking out the tune on his fiddle.

"The dialogue between the two characters, as Thomas remembers it, goes as follows:

Traveler—Stranger, do you live around here?

Squatter—I reckon I don't live anywhere else. (Plays first part of tune only.)

Traveler—Well, how long have you lived here?

Squatter—See that big tree over there? Well, that was here when I came.

Traveler—Well, you needn't be so cross about it. I wasn't asking no improper questions, at all.

Squatter—Reckon there's nobody here cross, except yourself. (Plays first part.)

Traveler—Well, how did your potatoes turn out this year?

Squatter—They didn't turn out at all; we dug 'em out. (Plays first part.)

Traveler—Can I stay here all night?

Squatter—Yes, you kin stay right where you air, out on the road. (Plays first part.)

Traveler—How far is it to the next tavern?

Squatter—I reckon it's upward of some distance. (Plays first part.)

Traveler—How long will it take me to get there?

Squatter—You'll not get there at all if you stay foolin' with me.

Traveler—Got any spirits in your house?

Squatter—Do you think my house is haunted? Plenty of 'em down at the graveyard. (Plays first part.)

Traveler—Where does the road go?

Squatter—Hit hain't gone anywhere since I been here. Just stayed right here. (Plays.)

Traveler—Why don't you put a new roof on your house?

Squatter—Because it's raining. (Plays.)

Traveler—Why don't you do it when it's not raining?

Squatter—Because then it don't leak. (Plays.)

Traveler—Why don't you play the rest of that tune? (The player stops quick as lightning.)

Squatter—Gee, stranger, do you know the rest of that tune? I've been down in New Orleans and I heard it at a theatre, and I've been at work at it ever since I got back, trying to get the last part of it. If you can play the rest of the tune you can stay in my cabin the rest of your natural life. Git down off that hoss. If you don't, you've excited the tiger in my bosom and I'll have nothing short of your life's blood. Git down. Git down.

Traveler—Yes, I can play it; there's no use of your getting mad. I'll play it as soon as I've had some supper.

Squatter—Fly 'round, old woman, and set the table.

"The result of it is that the stranger gets off, takes the seat of the squatter and the fiddle, and starts to play the last part of the tune.

"The tune that was used in this playlet came to be known as 'The Arkansas Traveler.'"

"BETTY AND THE BIRD MAN."

[By Dorothy Douglas.]

Betty's eyes were a wonderful blue and her hair a dusky brown; her lips were like poppy buds and her teeth were—but the lonely airman who flew daily over Betty's garden did not know all this. Neither did he know or even suspect that Betty was as lonely as he.

Betty's garden was walled in by a great brick wall. But there was much to do in the garden, and the lieutenant of the American Flying Corps who had come over to England to fly with his allies found and watched the pink-clad figure as he flew daily over the Essex homes.

Lieut. French had sailed on the big Cunarder with many troops some three months before, and each day of the three months had brought a more sickening sense of loneliness. His home in Long Island was just a modest country cottage, but there was a garden, a cat, his dog Binks and a family that the young lieutenant thought the finest in the world.

He had been flying very low, almost brushing the tree tops of Epping forest, when suddenly at the very edge of the forest he looked down into a garden that made his heart beat with homesickness. There was a pink-clad girl working among the flowers.

That was all he had seen the first day. After that one glimpse of the beautiful Essex garden Lieut. French flew daily over the spot and watched Betty garden or paint or do bits of carpentering that made him quite desperate to help her.

On days when the wind or rain prevented the great wings of his Bristol from taking him aloft and the big bird was a prisoner in the hangar, the flying man chafed inwardly. When the moon was bright and the Huns were making attempts to cross the coast he wanted only to fly above Betty's garden, and, in a sense, feel that he was protecting her and her dear home from harm.

The fruit blossoms were out and billowed out like foamy clouds in a sky below him when Lieut. French had about come to the conclusion that he would have to come a cropper or drop down into that walled garden by accident if he were to live on in Essex. He did not know English girls well, and wondered as to how this one in the pink frock would accept a note were he to drop it into her garden.

But while the fruit blossoms were swaying beneath him and the sun shining gloriously the American bird man found courage to drop his note, for the girl in the pink dress was evidently married and it would be perfectly conventional to make friends now that she was properly guarded.

She had come out that morning and very tenderly, cautiously she had pushed a great wheel chair out over the flagstones and down the garden path until it rested beneath the fruit trees. And in the chair was an officer, wounded hero of hers whom she was wonderfully busy about until she left him comfortably enjoying the sunlit garden and his pipe.

After that she went back to the cottage and returned with chairs and tables and was soon busily engaged in painting them all a brilliant red.

Lieut. French could stand it no longer. He had painted garden chairs at home; in fact, he had left paint on almost everything there in the Long Island home so that nothing would look shabby.

"I say, sis, that Bristol pilot is either trying to sniff our apple blossoms or lift a few bricks from our chimney. Isn't he a 'beaut' of a bird!" Dick Raymond exclaimed enthusiastically, and watched the huge wings drop still lower.

Betty and her brother could both see the birdman himself now, and while they waved their hands at him in admiration and greeting he dropped a small package, which landed almost at Betty's feet.

The aeroplane went up and up, buzzing loudly.

"American!" they exclaimed in unison.

Betty opened the letter and read aloud, "May I come in this afternoon and get acquainted? Am far from home and horribly lonesome. Hoist the Stars and Stripes if I may come, please."

"Poor duffer," said Dicky. "I hope you won't turn him down, sis."

But sis was very far from turning him down. She was, in fact, ready to shed a few tears for the lonely American. For answer she just climbed up on her stepladder and flaunted the small flag at the top of a young cedar tree.

Swooping down again Lieut. French waved joyously, then flew away toward the aerodrome.

In the afternoon he gave himself the most unusual pleasure of taking some exquisitely fresh jonquils to a lady. He quite reveled in the thrilly emotion that besieged him as he carried them toward the garden over which he had so often flown.

He was greeted as an old friend and taken directly into the small home circle.

"Yankees! What luck!" he exclaimed the moment they had shaken hands. "This is too good to be true," and he found himself more than ever at home.

"I have only been over about four months," said Betty after they had wheeled Dicky into a comfortable nook beneath the fruit blossoms and were talking as fast as only the Yankee tongue can move. "My brother was so badly wounded that he was allowed to enable me—said he couldn't pull through to fight some more if I wasn't here." She laughed softly toward her brother.

"What ship did you come on?" asked the birdman, realizing already that he was more than glad to know Betty and her brother. He was discovering the wonderful charms that had been hidden to his bird's eyes. He would be dissatisfied now to hover so far above Betty and her garden.

"The Adriatic," said Betty.

"Good Lord—so did I! We must have been on the same trip. How in the name of——did you arrive just after Christmas?"

"I certainly did," exclaimed Betty, "and we mere civilians were mighty tired waiting for all you military people to disembark. You must have been ill all the way over, or assuredly I would have seen you, even on so crowded a ship."

"I was in my bunk the entire trip," said French; "didn't even know there was a woman on board except the stewardess."

"Neither did I," laughed Betty; "there was so much khaki I had no time even to glance about for girls."

"She evidently had the time of her young life," commented Dick. "Here I was waiting in ghastly fear of her being torpedoed, and all the time she was flirting her head off with our best uniforms and some of the British as well. From the number of letters the post girl brings here from France I think my sister knew every officer on the ship."

"Don't mind me," put in French.

"Officers who are seasick don't count," Betty told him, but the encouraging glance she sent into his eyes suggested a complete contradiction to her words.

"I may be a poor sailor," the lieutenant laughed, "but as a bird man I'll take some beating. Didn't I find the only garden in the British Isles, and like a huge bee come straight to the finest honey——"

"I had better be getting the tea," Betty decided, with a delightfully heightened color speeding her progress.

"Tea in an English garden—isn't this great?" and the birdman ensconced himself as if for life, while Dick Raymond gave him a thorough inspection and came to the conclusion that French would be a fine pal for himself, and for Betty—well, he figured that his sister would like her latest victim better than the last, anyway. And if she brought out her big apple pie for tea, with apples at a shilling a pound, rationed sugar and mighty little butter to be had, that she would have decided to like Lieut. French much better than his predecessors. In the white kitchen Betty reached up for the pie.

How Most of Us Get By.

Bill Boffin was a salaried man,
Who lived on the installment plan.
For everything he had, poor geek,
He paid some down and some per week.
And once in every seven days
Installments poor Bill had to raise.
A dollar on the bedroom set,
A quarter on a coverlet,
A dollar on the carpet snug,
A quarter on the new hall rug.
The kitchen range a dollar more,
Two bits the oilcloth on the floor,
A dollar on the new buffet,
A quarter on the portieres gay,
A dollar on the phonograph,
The Morris chair each week a half,
A dollar here, a dollar there,
His wife saved each receipt with care,
And when they buried poor Bill Boffin
She paid installments on his coffin.

Luke McLuke Says

After Mother has hunted all over the kitchen for the box of Corn Starch she suddenly remembers that she left it on the dresser in her bedroom last time she dolled up to go out.

If you want to see disgust with a big "D" just get the expression on the face of a woman who has been married about 10 years when she is watching the actions of a couple who have been married about 10 hours.

If Father runs up to the corner for a minute after supper and stays four hours that is all right. But if Father elects to stay home after supper and Mother runs across the street to see a neighbor for a minute and stays a half hour, that's all wrong.

The average man is no fool. Every man in a crowded street car will get up and offer his seat to a woman who has a baby in her arms. But if the baby happens to be a poodle, the woman would have a long stand.

If the children are sick, Mother knows that she can make them better by worrying over them. And when they are well she knows that she can keep them from getting sick by worrying over them.

JIMMY COON STORIES

By Dr. Warren G. Partridge.
Copyright 1917 by George Matthew Adams.

TEDDY POSSUM IS RECKLESS.

Teddy Possum had invited Jimmy Coon to go hunting, that dark night at the Jones farm. So Teddy felt very important as the Leader in this Adventure. Teddy had advised waiting until everything around the Farmhouse was as quiet as a mouse.

Then Teddy and Jimmy Coon entered the hen-roost on their tip-toes; and both began to suck some nice fresh eggs, which Bobby Skunk had not been able to eat because his stomach was full almost to bursting.

But just in the middle of their supper of egg-omelet, one of the old roosters woke up and began to crow.

You see, Teddy Possum and Jimmy Coon had started very late. Then they visited with Bobby Skunk and then they waited a long time for the lights to go out in the farmhouse, and for the dog, Ranger, to stop running around the house and howling. And they were so long finishing their egg-omelet in the hen-house that the first rays of dawn were chasing away the dark shadows along the broad meadows.

When the old rooster crowed, it woke up the young roosters; and they all tried to crow as loud and as often as the old rooster did. And of course all the hens and chickens woke up, to talk about the music in the hen-roost.

And suddenly all the old hens and chickens saw Teddy Possum and Jimmy Coon sucking their nice fresh eggs; and they all began to cackle, "Thief, Thief, Thief!" And the big dog Ranger came on with a wild rush to catch the thieves!

Jimmy Coon was close to the little opening for the hens, when the hens began to cackle, and he wisely and swiftly crawled out, and ran behind the barn out of sight, and scuttled for home. But Teddy Possum was up in the top nest of the hen-house, eating up the last of twelve nice eggs which Farmer Jones had placed that very day under a setting hen. Now, Teddy Possum showed very poor judgment as the Leader of this night's Adventure. When those roosters and hens set up that Barn-dance music, it was a warning for Teddy to skeddadle for home. But Teddy was too sure of himself. I suppose you have seen such people. Teddy was too stuck up about his wonderful gift of Playing Possum. Teddy's head was swollen with conceit, and he thought he could fool anybody at any time by playing Possum. But he tried that trick once to often.

They All Began to Cackle, "Thief, Thief, Thief!"

Tomorrow—Farmer Jones Plays a Trick on Teddy Possum.

ONE GOLDEN TEXT SUGGESTION.
(By Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)
Christian Giving. — Luke, 6:30-38; 21:1-4.

QUESTIONS FOR TODAY.

4. Verse 34.—When Christians loan money, does Jesus mean that they should not require proper security, or does he simply mean that in taking security they are not entitled to any more merit than a sinner would under similar circumstances?

5. Verse 35.—Which is generally the better way, and why, to help those in need? to loan money without security, or to give it to them?

6. What is the reward or profit for loaning money without security to the needy with the sole object of helping them?

Golden Text—Remember the words of the Lord Jesus that he himself said: It is more blessed to give than receive. —Acts xx:35.

THE NEED FOR BENEVOLENCE IS GREAT.

From the beginning of time there always has been the need for good people to give. The needs of mankind have been so great, and the majority have always been in a position where they could not supply their own needs; it has therefore been the duty of those that had to give to those that had not. There never was, however, any period of time when giving, or benevolence, was so imperative as at the present time. We have the poor always with us, the missionary cause was never more urgent; but, besides, the horrible European war has created heart-rending needs which it seems almost impossible for the united benevolence of the Christian world to supply. Literally, millions of fathers, husbands and sons have been killed, and more millions have been maimed for life.

FASHIONS BY WOMEN, PLEADS FLORENCE KING

Men Are Responsible for Freak Clothes, Mrs. Howard Gould Reminds Us.

Will fashions be designed entirely by women in the near future? It begins to look that they will. Women since the beginning of the war have been learning the benefits there are to be found in comfortable clothing. French heels have come down, perhaps to stay, and the woman of fashion may walk now with her feet on the ground and enjoy the swing of a fine, clear stride.

Women have brought this about themselves, because they found it necessary to be comfortably dressed in their war work. So successful has been their experiment that we may look forward to fashion designing as another profession usurped by men that is being reclaimed by women.

According to Mrs. Howard Gould of Washington, D.C., and Miss Florence King, respectively secretary and president of the Women's Association of Commerce, fashions in women's clothing, as designed by men, are "grotesque and horrible," and should be abandoned.

"The American woman," Mrs. Gould said recently, "will no longer permit men to bedeck her with gaudy nothings, as heretofore. Her evolution from the baby doll stage is at hand.

"I am furious when I remember that practically all the foolish styles designed by men are being adopted by still more foolish women. They adopt the man-made styles without a question, and convert themselves into freaks by wearing them.

"Why should men design styles for women any more than women should write the 'Advice to Fathers' column or design clothes for men? Perhaps if they did, though, men would not be wearing the pinchback coat.

"The frailty of modern Eves is largely due to such absurdities as high-heeled shoes, vise-like corsets, low-necked gowns and other things that would appeal more to the women of the Fiji Islands rather than to the civilized woman."

The society of which Mrs. Gould is secretary is dedicated to war-time conservation reforms.

A PRETY MODEL IN TUNIC STYLE.

2501—In this instance white voile was employed, with Irish insertion and edging for trimming. The tunic portion is gathered to the waist in pointed outline. The fulness at the waistline is held in place by a belt. The two-piece skirt is finished separately.

The pattern is cut in three sizes: 12, 14 and 16 years. Size 14 requires 4 1-8 yards of 44-inch material.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

Please send above-mentioned pattern as per directions given below:

Caution: Be careful to inclose the above illustration, and send size of pattern wanted. When the pattern is bust measure, you need only mark 33, 34 or whatever it may be. When in waist measure. When misses' or child's patbe. If a skirt, give waist and length measurer. When misses' or child's pattern, write only the figure representing the age. It is not necessary to write "inches" or "years." Patterns cannot

Patriotic Western Ontario

Address All News for This Column to the Editor of the Women's Page.

BOTHWELL.—A patriotic lawn social was held on Wednesday night, and a large number were present. An excellent program was put on. Mrs. Gaskill and son Raymond of Chicago were among the talent. They sang several solos in a very artistic manner. The proceeds were $360.50. This will be used for patriotic purposes. The social was held under the auspices of the Women's Institute and the Edith Cavell Memorial Patriotic League.

AILSA CRAIG.—The Young Ladies' Club attended the annual Red Cross meeting held at London on Thursday, and were well pleased with the afternoon's entertainment. They brought with them magazines, socks, etc., also a large number of books by good authors for their library at Byron Sanatorium. The club was congratulated by the Red Cross workers for their excellent standing in assisting the boys.

EMBRO. — Twenty members of Walkers Red Cross Society met in their Red Cross rooms at the regular meeting on Thursday afternoon, August 22. The time was busily spent in knitting and making flannel shirts for the soldiers. A collection was taken up which amounted to $3.45, and $30 was received from the West Zorra council, their grant for the month of August. The next meeting is to be held at the same place on Thursday, September 5.

The special meeting of the Women's institute of Embro and West Zorra was held on Thursday afternoon in the council chamber of the town hall. This meeting was called to piece two quilts for the Byron Sanatorium, London. The weather being so warm, there was not a very large attendance, but those present made good use of the time. It is the wish of this society to have the bedding for the one cot finished this month, as they have the sheets and pillowslips completed. Another meeting will be called shortly to finish the quilts.

CYNTHIA GREY'S MAIL-BOX

Candy For Overseas.

Dear Miss Grey,—Is it "agin the law" to make candy at home to send to the soldiers in England and France? I want to send some, but hate to risk it. Why can't we get glucose to use in homemade candy, as they do in the manufactured article? Can you give me any candy recipes that do not require sugar? Thanking you, I remain,
M. J.

Ans.—I have consulted with Mr. Doherty, local representative (pro tem.) for the Canada Food Board, and he informs me that no such regulation has been made to his knowledge. I'm sorry to say I have no other candy recipes at hand, save those calling for sugar.

Ten Little Feet.

Dear Miss Grey,—I have no less than five pair of little feet to put stockings on and would like to get the stocking foot pattern if you have one to spare, and oblige.
ONE OF YOUR DAILY READERS.

Ans.—Five times two is ten, and ten times ten is one hundred—good gracious, fancy having one hundred restless, wriggling little toes to keep covered. If the pattern is the least bit helpful you surely deserve it, so a copy has been mailed you.

A Grey-Eyed Reader.

Dear Miss Grey,—I am going to peep into your circle to help out "Brown Eyes." I am inclosing a copy of the song, "I Could Not Call Her Mother," which I noticed she wanted. I am glad I can be of any service. What do you think of my handwriting?
An interested reader of your page,
GREY EYES.

Ans.—Very seldom do we have a "grey-eyed" visitor knock at the door, although there are "blue eyes" and "brown eyes" a-plenty. Your kind help is sincerely appreciated, and honestly, I think you a very good writer.

The Farm Women's Movement

U. W. F. Writer Urges Concentration of Rural Effort Upon One Vital Organization.

The need of organization is so great, and yet there are so many women who do not seem to realize the necessity for their personal co-operation. This is the fact over which I have been pondering these last few days. Why is it? How can we overcome it? These are the questions upon which I would like other women's views. Here are some of mine, gleaned from experience and observation:

To begin with, we farm women are busy. The farm woman who has extra help is the exception. She is baker, laundress, seamstress, dairymaid, gardener and, during the last few years, must help more or less in the heavy farm work. Then, too, a farm home is always hospitable. Personally, there have been few weeks when the extra plate for the unexpected guest has not been in requisition, and the homestead is always full during vacation times. We enjoy all this, and the welcome of these friends must be real, or the spirit of your home will be marred. But it all adds to our work. The farm woman pays for her pleasure; indeed, she creates the most of it. Think of the work a picnic or social or garden party entails. Every woman has her part in church work, Red Cross work, W. I. work—where are we to find time for another organization, no matter how necessary it may be? There are but twenty-four hours in a day, and at least eight of these must be spent in physical rest, or we shall collapse; and for the life of me I do not know how we get the work we do into the other sixteen hours. Even this "daylight-saving" system does not answer the query: "When? How?" We know why.

Personally, I think the only remedy is to find out what unnecessary work we are doing, and eliminate it. That will give us some time. Then let us drop the W. I. work; it is not a farm women's organization. We cannot discuss at its meetings the topics which at the present time we must study if we are to be intelligent-voting citizens; and we certainly do not wish to be ignorant voters, for it is these who have made the politicians of today mere buyers of votes.

The W. I. is primarily a government-owned and controlled institution. The district officers are mainly town or city women, who meet in convention with we women from the farm and patronizingly compliment us and tell us what to do next. And while the head of the institution is doubtless a very worthy gentleman, there are women in the province quite as capable of directing a women's organization as he is. The U. F. W. A. commends itself to us in this respect—the chief officers are farm women, every one of them.

Red Cross work can be done just as effectively under the U. F. W. A. as under a separate organization or in connection with the W. I. work. The meetings can be held in the same way; topics arranged for discussion, and plans laid for mutual helpfulness. The women of the West are far ahead of us in this regard. Here is a woman with a big family to sew for, so one month's meeting is devoted to helping her out. This is but an example of what we mean by an organization for real, practical help.

The trouble with farm women is that we are self-centred. Of necessity, we think (one of them is writing) my house takes all my strength and my time. But let us regard ourselves as a class of people. My house? Yes and no; for the nation is made up of homes like mine, and the community in which I live is a part of the nation, and I am a part of the community.

Do you know "Diana" of the Weekly Sun? She hinted at community laundries, bakeries, etc., the other week. Wouldn't they be fine? And would they not be practical?

Our organization is intended to make farm life more liveable, to give to each of us this idea: All possible co-operation in order that the best possible individual life may be attained.

Under present conditions we are the freest workers, yet the most closely confined; ours the narrowest, yet the widest sphere of influence; we are most unselfish, yet thoroughly self-centred.

We can better our condition in only one way: organization—co-operation between one and all, personal, individual, yet "one of a class."

JELLY-MAKING HINTS

The selection of the fruit in jelly making is very important; it should be just a little under-ripe, for such fruit contains more pectin than the mature or over-ripe fruits. The pectin is what makes the jelly harden, and if the juice of the fruit ferments, as it is apt to in the over-ripe fruits, the pectin changes its form and the juice will no longer jelly. Commercial pectin is sometimes used, but this is often hard to obtain. The sour fruits (such as currants, grapes and apples) contain more pectin. The strawberry cannot be made into good jelly because it is lacking in this very thing, and we also put currants and raspberries together when making jelly, for the raspberry lacks the pectin which the currant supplies.

No water is needed with juicy fruits. After they have been washed, simply crush them in the kettle. For a fruit like the apple, cover it with water or follow the rule, half as much water as fruit. Remove the stem and blow from the apple, but use the core and skin, as these will increase the flavor and greatly improve the color of the jelly.

Cook the fruit slowly, stirring once in a while to obtain an even cooking. When the fruit has a transparent appearance it is ready to strain. The jelly bag must be of closely woven material, the Vshape is best because of its large mouth. It may be suspended anywhere in the kitchen; many housewives use a bird cage hook for this purpose because it lets the bag hang out from the wall. Very convenient holders are now made for the jelly bags; some of them fasten on the kettle and some are standard, so that they may be used with any kettle. Do not squeeze the bag at first, as this is apt to make the jelly cloudy. After the juice has drained off what is called second-grade jelly may be made from the juice that can be squeezed out. This jelly will be just as good in flavor, but not as clear. From the pulp that is left from apples or like fruits, delicious fruit-butters may be made.

The general rule is equal parts of juice and sugar, but a little less sugar may be used if the fruit is very sweet. If you are making jelly in large quantities you will save time if you will heat the sugar in the oven. You must be very careful not to brown it. Shake the sugar into the boiling juice and do not stir after the sugar is dissolved. Boil gently and skim as often as necessary. Save this scum to use as sweetening in other things, such as puddings.

The jellying point is hard for the inexperienced to determine. One test is to take a little jelly out on a cold plate and draw a path through it with the point of a spoon; if the path stays and the juice does not run together the jellying point is reached. Another test is to pour the boiling juice from the side of a clean hot spoon, held horizontally, if two drops of jelly-like consistency form and cling to the side of the spoon at the same time, the jelly is ready.

When the jellying point has been reached, remove the kettle from the heat and allow the cooking to stop entirely before putting the jelly into the glasses. Then pour it slowly into the clean, hot glasses, which have been set on a cloth wrung out of hot water to prevent their breaking. Leave a little room at the top for the paraffin. Always allow the pelly to get perfectly cold before covering and then cover by pouring melted paraffin over the top. Be sure there are no bubbles in the paraffin. If bubbles are left in it they might break later and leave the jelly uncovered in that spot. This would mean certain loss of the jelly. Paraffin taken from last year's glasses may be washed and reused if kept free from dirt of all kinds.

BINGOES SPLIT WITH THE LEAFS

Toronto Still Leads International by Two and Half Games.

TORONTO, Aug. 26.—Toronto still leads the International League by two and a half games. The Leafs split a double-header with the Bingers here today, Toronto winning the first game 10 to 4 and losing the second 5 to 1. Eight thousand fans viewed the contests. Scores:

First game—				R.	H.	E.
Binghamton	0 0 0 0 0 1 3 0 0			4	10	6

Toronto	0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0			1	3	3

Verbout and Brannan; Heck and Fisher.

HAMS TAKE A PAIR

HAMILTON, Aug. 26.—The Hams won both games of a double-header from Jersey City today, the first by 4 to 3, and the second 9 to 4. Hehl undertook to pitch both games for the visitors, but received poor support in the pinches in the first game, and was hit freely in the second, which was a seven innings' affair by agreement.

Scores: First game— R. H. E.
Jersey City ..0 0 0 2 0 1 0 0 0—3 11 2
Hamilton ....0 0 0 0 1 3 0 0 x—4 9 2

Second game— R. H. E.
Jersey City .....1 1 2 0 0 0 0—4 10 4
Hamilton .....2 0 3 0 2 2 x—9 8 4

Hehl and Fleiger; Shea and Turner.

BUFFALO 3, BALTIMORE 2

BUFFALO, Aug. 26.—Buffalo won from Baltimore in the ninth inning today with one out. A pass to Schultz, followed by the singles of Buckley and McCarron, did the trick.

Rain early in the afternoon cut the scheduled double-header down to a single contest.

Score—				R.	H.	E.
Baltimore	...0 1 0 0 0 0 1 0 0			2	8	3
Buffalo	.....0 0 1 0 1 0 0 0 1			3	9	2

Throckmorton Defeats 17-Year-Old Opponent in Gruelling Contest.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 26.—In play in the annual national singles tennis championship tournament opened here today with a record-breaking match between two youthful racquet wielders, Harold A. Throckmorton of Elizabeth, N. J., and Harold T. Taylor, of New York.

Throckmorton, who has passed out of his teens by just a year, defeated his 17-year-old opponent in a gruelling five-set match which required more than three hours to decide by scores of 6-8, 6-2, 11-9, 10-9 and 13-11, making a total of 71 games played. This supplants the national singles championship tournament record of 80 games by Suffering Taylor and Palmer Presby who, in the tournament of 1888 at Newport, played 80 games.

The match here this afternoon threatened an upset several times, for Taylor more than once was within a stroke or two of winning, only to be outlasted by Throckmorton.

FULLER'S MERRY MEN GRAB FIRST PRIZES

Dunlop Tire Company Presents Handsome Mug for Labor Day Tourney.

First prize at the London Bowling and Rowing Club tourney, held last night, was captured by Dr. Fuller and his merry men by an overwhelming majority, the nearest quartet within competitive distance being J. M. Farrow's combination. Fulton's rink won three games and secured a plus score of seven. Farrow lost one of his contests on a tie end, and had a majority of fourteen. F. Spry, E. Yealland and T. Oke comprised the victorious four, while the runners-up were A. Branston, E. C. Frazer, Capt. McDonald and J. M. Farrow.

The L. R. C. Labor Day tourney, which is arousing considerable interest among local and Western Ontario bowlers, has been made more attractive by the presentation of a silver cup by the Dunlop Tire Company. The mug will be awarded to the winners of the tournament. Other handsome prizes are to be presented to the second and third rinks.

Fifteen L. R. C. rinks will compete in the tournament. This will insure keener competition, as the strong men of the club will be distributed impartially among the fifteen quartets.

Alphonse Teaches Poetry

DIRTY DEN,
Somewhere in Europe,
August 4, 1918.

The Sporting Editor of The Advertiser:

Beloved Ed.,—
They have seized the baseball fan;
They have put the guy to route,
And he won't come back again,
Till the kaiser's counted out.

There are fewer sportsmen now;
Most of them have gone to France
To be in the final row
Of the greatest game of chance.

They have killed all active sport,
Till the kaiser's beans are spilled;
Till the great mailed fist is broken,
And the German germ is killed.

As you will above notice I have written on the top story of this manuscripture the latest war poem I have written. It has made the best hit of any war poem I have written, so I am going to let the readers of The Advertiser take a squint at it and see if they can see anything of Kipling or Longfellow in it. As you know, I am the poet-laureate of this unit, and have started a revival of poetry among all the fellows. In fact I have started a class of how to write poetry and the guys are making a fine attempt at writing it, but they don't do very well as a rule. One guy wanted me to put this in the "The Gas Bag," which is a trench newspaper we have started up here:

There was a young lady named White,
She slept in pajamas one night,
And when she did pass
An odd looking glass,
She said, "Oh. There's a man in the light."

As a classical perpetration this gem has got 'em all skinned. The guy who wrote it thought it had everything beaten but Kipling's Recessional, but I had to feed it to the waste-paper basket. There's no sense learning guys poetry when they haven't the poetical instinct. But you can't tell the boys here that they aren't true poets. Every soldier in the world gets the poetry bug before he's through, and it's impossible to argue with him when he's got it. Many of them write stuff about the war and what they'll do "when they come back to you," etc., etc. There's only one thing to do when they get this habit, and that's to feed them prune juice and buttermilk. This mixture turns their solar plexus the wrong way and by the time their solar's come back to normal they have generally forgotten that they are poets. Another poem that I got went like this:

She lives in dear old Canada,
And her nose was Greecy red,
Her complexion was blue and pink,
And some curls were on her head.

She lives in dear old Canda,
Among the ice and snow,
I adore and love the angel,
More than anything I know.

True sentiment is right! The only regret I have is that the guy who wrote this masterpiece sent it to his ladylove. I know now that the engagement will be broken off.

My class is coming along pretty good and one of these days it will produce a guy with real poetry inside him. A pretty good poem was presented to me yesterday. It started off like this:

Half a case, half a case, half a case of whiskey;

The censors won't allow me to give you any more of this verse, but the intention of the poet was to be admired, because it brought back recollections of London's whiskey row and the times we used to have "before the fatal 16th."

What I really intended writing you about in this here letter was that I was blown up by a shell on the first day of this month. No, it wasn't a piece of Hun frightfulness. As a matter of fact it was my own frightfulness. A guy bet me a quarter that a shell was not lying around the dug-out was loaded, and I bet him it wasn't, so just to win the quarter I hit the article on the end of its nose. The result was that I went to the hospital for two days and lost a quarter.

The matron thinks that I blew myself up on purpose because I regretted going back on her. As you know Ed., my love for Dellie (short for Deliria) has all left me, and in its place is a feeling of disrespect. I never did respect a girl who is fat, and this one weighs over two hundred pounds stripped. Besides that, she drinks too much booze for a lady. I found this out because I saw her one day and her complexion had fallen off. It wasn't natural, and when I asked her why her color had changed from oyster red to sea-blue, she said that it was the effort of being a teetotaller for a week at a stretch. You can judge for yourself whether I blew myself up because I had thrown Dellie over, or not. The old love is best, after all, and so I think I will go back to Hazel. She isn't fat and drinks nothing but soup. She's been drinking soup ever since September 16, 1916.

Well, Ed., I guess I will stop writing and go back to poetry. I have a poem I'm going to call "The Bull Thrower," and it's been dedicated to a former Spanish toreador that we have in the company who's always throwing the bull about how I remind him of Alphonso of Spain when he and the toreadore used to throw the bull together.

BIKE CONTESTS MAY SUPPLANT BASEBALL

Other Sports To Be Revived To Replace the Big Leagues.

If professional baseball should be done away with in the near future, there will be plenty of other sports to go to, not the least of which will be amateur baseball, semi-professional baseball, horse racing, automobile racing, golf, tennis, billiards, bowling and all that sort of thing.

Then, too, some of the old sports which were sent to the ash heap a long while ago may be brought back. In Detroit bicycle clubs may be formed, and there is talk in some quarters of going back to bicycle racing, to big road races, such as flourished in the long ago and all that sort of thing.

Then, too, we may have bicycle racing on the short circular tracks such as we had a few years ago, for several of those tracks are still in existence. In the olden days to be a star bicyclist was to be somebody.

Barney Oldfield was a star in the days of bicycle racing, and few there were who could beat him at that game. Wouldn't it be funny if they were to revive bicycle racing and Barney should go back to the old game?

FAVORITES TAKE FIRST ROUND TENNIS MATCHES

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 26.—A fair-sized gallery gathered here today for the opening matches of the national singles tennis championship and was rewarded by the victories of several of the oustanding favorites. R. Lindley Murray, the Californian, playing from Niagara Falls, made short work of his opponent, Jack Dudley, of Washington, in the first of the grandstand court matches. Murray won, 6—0, 6—1.

CHASE SUES FOR SALARY

CINCINNATI, Aug. 26.—Hal Chase, suspended first baseman of the Cincinnati National League team, late today sued the Cincinnati Exhibition Company, owners of the Cincinnati baseball club, for $1,690, which he claims is salary due him and unpaid. He appends a copy of the contract which he says was entered into by him and the company January 31, 1917, and which stipulates a salary of $7,800 payable $650 each two weeks during the playing season. The contract, he sets forth, was for a period of two years.

FINE EVENTS SCHEDULED AT READVILLE TODAY

Readville, Mass., Aug. 27.—Five events were on the program today for the second day of Grand Circuit racing at the Readville track. The feature was the 2:06 pace, the Neponset, with a purse of $3,000. Other events were the 2:14 pace, the Edwards, open only to those that had never competed on the Grand Circuit, a 2-year-old pace, a 2:20 trot, and 3-year-old trot for colts valued at $1,500.

The weather was clear and cool, and the track in prime condition.

LU PRINCETON AND TOM DONOHUE TAKE READVILLE FEATURES

Close Finishes Enliven Opening Day at Famous Track.

Lu Princeton, after breaking twice in the opening heat of the 2:05 trot, won the second and third heats easily.

Tom Donohue, with Billy Fleming driving, won the first and second heats of the 2:16 class pacing, and was in a spill with Kathleen Gale, with Ben White up, in the third heat. Tom Donohue broke in the last quarter, and Kathleen Gale, who was trailing, rushed into the rear of his sulkey. The drivers were thrown, but not injured. The judge declared the spill was unavoidable, and Tom Donohue was awarded first money.

The Royal Knight, after trailing in the first heat of the 2:16 trot, romped home in first place in the second and third heats.

NO CHANGE LIKELY IN WORLD SERIES SCHEDULE, SAYS BAN

Unless Frazee Obtains Consent of War Department.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—There will be no change in the schedule for the world's series unless Harry Frazee, president of the Boston club, who protested against alleged unfairness, obtains the consent of the war department to arrange special trains, President Johnson of the American League said tonight.

President Johnson, himself a member of the national commission, which arranged the schedule, said it was drafted with the distinct object of conforming with the Government's transportation problems.

"However, I wired Mr. Frazee that the commission might consider rearranging it if he got the permission from the war department to run trains as he suggested.

"It was our aim to conserve transportation in every way possible. We decided to abolish the special trains for the clubs this year, and also opposed special trains for the annual crowd of rooters. We are even discouraging Chicagoans from making the trip to Boston."

The suggestion of the national commission that players donate 10 per cent of their share of the series receipts to war charities met with prompt action by members of the Chicago club, champions of the National League, who unanimously voted to comply with the suggestion.

CUBS TO PLAY CRACK SAILOR BALL TEAM

Chicago, Aug. 27.—The Chicago Cubs, who have just won the National League championship left today for the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, where they are scheduled for a game with the sailors' crack ball team. The receipts will go to the station athletic fund. Several of the sailor players are former big league stars.

SINGLE G BREAKS TWO WORLD MARKS IN FREE-FOR-ALL

Sets New Record for Half-Mile Track at Des Moines.

DES MOINES, Aug. 26.—Single G., in winning the free-for-all pace in the Great Western race meet at the Iowa State fair here today, broke two world's records. His time of 2:06, 2:03¾, and 2:01, was a world's record for three heats on a half-mile track, and his time in the third heat was a record in a race on a half-mile track, the former mark of 2:02¾ having been held by Directum I. Single G. was driven by Ed. Allen.

Clothes Psychology

THE FIRST THING that aviators and observers noted at the commencement of the last big German drive was that the great lines of enemy troops were clad in new uniforms. The German military officials knew that a large number of men would perish; they knew that half the new uniforms would not last the week out; they knew that it strained the resources of the nation, already heaped up with debt; they knew that the uniforms previously worn were still serviceable and that physically it made little difference in the soldier's efficiency whether his clothing was brand new or a year old. But they understood the feeling of alertness, courage and spirit which makes a man battle against odds when wearing new clothes and the impression it would make and did make on the Allies. That this impression was correct was proven by comments of high British officers, correspondents and press dispatches first sent out over the world. The German officers wanted their armies to appear prosperous and thereby feel successful.

If so much was expected from clothes by the German high command is it not worth while for the average citizen to provide himself with new clothes that he may have a greater earning power and thereby better serve his country?

If clothes give soldiers such courage and confidence men and women in civilian life should be careful that they wear clothing that will urge the men to give the best that is in them.

LIFE UNDERWRITERS' ASSOCIATION AND THE WINNING OF THE WAR.

The Life Underwriters of this continent have been very much in the limelight since the beginning of the war. In every campaign for the raising of funds they have taken a very active interest.

When the American Government required expert assistance to place its war insurance, it was to the national association that it looked for and received all the help required.

During the first week of September, an international convention will be held in New York City. The chief subjects to be discussed at the convention will be:

First: "The contributions life insurance has made and will make towards winning the war."

Second: "How to develop the business of life insurance in spite of the war."

The headquarters of the convention will be the Hotel Astor.

The Canadian part of the convention will begin at 10 a.m. Tuesday, and the international will commence promptly at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, September 4th. The opening addresses will be delievered by President Woodrow Wilson and the Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick, chief justice of the supreme court of Canada.

The speakers of the annual banquet, which will be held on the night of September 5th, in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor, are as follows:

Hon. N. W. Rowell, president of the privy council of Canada.

Lord Reading, British ambassador to the United States.

Hon. Charles E. Hughes.

Over three thousand rooms have been reserved for the delegates to this convention, and in point of attendance and inspiration, it will stand as the greatest gathering on this continent for the year 1918, and the results will help in the winning of this world war and bind together, in closer bonds of brotherhood, the peoples of the two great nations on this continent.

The life insurance interests have over ten thousand men in uniform, and this factor will put enthusiasm into this great gathering.

T. B. Parkinson, president of the London Association, and member of the Dominion executive, will be present at this convention as the representative of the local association.

SHEEP IN SOUTH AMERICA.

Argentine sheep raisers saw what was coming when the war began in 1914, and they have almost doubled their flocks in four years, the English estimate being 43,000,000 sheep in 1914, and 80,000,000 sheep this year. Argentine has also added to its herds of cattle and hogs, and Uruguay is fast becoming one of the greatest cattle countries of the world.

Many people are wont to regard Latin-Americans as lacking in enterprise, but these records of live stock operations prove that they have both energy and foresight. Europe is denuded of live stock and peace will increase its demand, and commercial requirements for both meats and live animals. These Argentine sheep raisers have invested in the surest thing that can be named. When they can get ships they can sell their wool at the highest prices ever known. They need not worry about peace because it will still further enhance the price of wool.

Europe and America are bare of free stocks of wool. As soon as the war ends the markets will be free and wool and cotton will command high prices. Central Europe will absorb enormous quantities of both if they are procurable. While the war lasts wool will command high prices wherever ships can go for it. These sheep raisers run no risk in either case, but they can sell their wool faster after peace is declared and Government price regulations come to an end.

Canada, Mexico and the United States have equally good chances to make money in live stock. In trade circles the prevailing opinion is that fortunes await those who prepare to replenish Europe's flocks and herds to supply her after-war requirements for wool. South America will have a new crop of millionaires as a result of the increase in live stock. A flock of sheep doubles itself every year, and either the wool or the ram lambs more than pay running expenses, so the increase in animals is clear profit. Money so invested grows fast when the rate of profit is a hundred per cent a year compound interest. The possibilities are limited only by the range of feeding ground.

THE COMING UNITED STATES LOAN

BY W. C. CORNWELL.

There is one operation which is of the utmost importance in facilitating the placing of the next great Liberty Loan, and yet which has received no effectual attention. This is the undertaking to bring the issues of the last two loans up to par. The first loan of 3½ per cent bonds by reason of complete tax exemption, has finally taken care of itself in this regard, the price after a period of decline having reached a level of fractionally above a hundred. But these 3½s are held by a comparatively few people. The 4s and the 4¼s are owned by from 17 to 20 million people, and it is to a large majority of these owners that the appeal for the new loan must be made. Their current holdings have been at a varying discount of from 4 to 5 or 7 points.

It is true that this decline is only temporary, and that these bonds after the war, will command a premium which in time will probably rise to high figures, and, aside from the reward of patriotic action, a substantial profit will ensue. But there can be no denying that the fact of these bonds ruling at a discount will be something of an obstacle in placing another and much larger amount of bonds bearing the same rate of 4¼ per cent with the same people.

It would seem that the effort were worth making, before the next loan is announced, to overcome the discount at which the present issues are selling. A sinking fund was provided in the last loan for purchasing bonds in the open market. As far as known this has not been used. An attempt to do so might not succeed in restoring the selling price to around par, but it would seem as though with skillful management such a result might be brought about. That such operations are often successful with issues of stock is well known. It is argued that the volume of the Government loans are so huge that success would be difficult. Still an overwhelmingly great majority of the owners of these bonds bought them to hold patriotically and permanently. The very fact that they are quoted at a discount has induced some selling, and holding them near par would undoubtedly tend to keep many bonds from being offered for sale. It would seem as though the effort, to be conducted by experts, were worth making.

There is another way in which an approximation of the result could be attained. That is by the method in vogue in Canada. Trading in the bonds is abolished on the exchanges, and a government committee has been in operation through whom only transactions may be arranged. Any one wishing to buy or sell may do so only through this committee. Brokers are paid a commission which induces them to find purchasers for the bonds. The price is controlled and the bonds are kept thus at the subscription price or above. They have recently sold above par, while the issue price was 98.66.

PATRIOTISM WILL PAY A LARGE PART IN THE LOAN.

It is well to avail of every legitimate expedient which will make the loan an overwhelming success. That it will be a notable success in the end there is absolutely no doubt because of the splendid spirit of patriotism which prevails in every part of the country and is growing daily.

The date of the offering is set for September 28, and the rate of interest has been decided upon at 4¼ per cent. Whether or not there will be any new features attached to the issue has not yet been announced nor has the amount definitely been given out, although $6,000,000,000 is the figure expected.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

L. F. S., Wallaceburg, Ont.: Answering your inquiry as to the advisability of the purchase of Peerless Truck and Motor Corporation 6 per cent convertible bonds due 1925, we submit the following as the opinion of a well-known authority on automobile industry bonds: "These bonds are a direct obligation of the corporation secured upon the property of the Peerless Motor Car Company and the General Vehicle Company. The corporation controls exclusive rights in the United States to the well-known Daimler motor, which has a favorable and long-established reputation abroad. Under the terms of the indenture, cash and quick assets must at all times be maintained to the extent of 60 per cent of the issue over and above all liabilities and indebtedness. We believe we are not unduly optimistic when we foresee for the after-war period a greater demand for pleasure cars than has ever existed before, to say nothing of the enormous increase in the use of motor trucks, which have now thoroughly demonstrated their efficiency in every field of endeavor. Selling around 85 to yield close to 9%, the Peerless Truck and Motor Corporation, convertible 6s of 1925, stand out prominently as a speculative investment of merit."

WALL STREET CONDITIONS.

In view of the next Liberty Loan campaign, which will begin September 28, it was but natural that those behind the guns would see to it that the market took on a more stimulating atmosphere, during the balance of the present month, than has characterized its appearance to the public for some weeks.

During the past week there has been just enough activity along advancing lines in some of the old reliables to let the public see there is no longer any doubt among the makers-of-sentiment in Wall Street as to the outcome of the war. Wilson said the military spirit of Germany must be crushed, and now when the country sees their president and his war cabinet preparing to send over 6,000,000 men and the necessaries to properly equip and maintain them, they know, the settled intent of the States and the chief magistrate. Further, they are seeing daily developments at the front which all but insure ultimate victory for the Allies, and with that confidence they have gone into the market themselves as large purchasers of such stocks as Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, United States Steel and others.

We have, in this column, so frequently drawn attention to the strong financial position of Canadian Pacific, its tremendous earning capacity and hidden assets, since this stock was selling around $130 that we hesitate to dwell further upon it, except to call attention to its advance to $172 per share during the past week.

HOW MUCH INSURANCE SHOULD ONE CARRY?

For the ordinary wage-earner, it is quite manifest that $2,000 or $3,000, or possibly $5,000 insurance is all that should be undertaken. But with the man of good salary or business income the conditions are different. His standard of living is perhaps higher, and $5,000, or even $10,000, however large the sum may seem when considered by itself, will not last long in the support of a family. If invested at 5 per cent, $10,000 will yield only $500, and this, of course, cannot begin to take the place of the fine salary which has been lost forever in the death of the bread-winner. Insufficient insurance is a serious mistake, and a large majority of men are making it. The man, therefore, whose means can possibly afford it, in measuring the size of his insurance, should approximate as near as possible such a sum as will yield a good support to his family without encroaching upon the principal. It is not always wise to count too largely on one's vested accumulations, for these may slip away even before one's own final departure. Besides the more a man has the easier it is to carry a large amount of insurance. In these days of great fortunes thousands of men are carrying from $100,000 to $200,000, while a few have $1,000,000 or more. The amount of insurance should be limited only by the ability to pay the premiums.

FRICTION REDUCING MOTOR OIL
"Makes a good car better"

For Piston Rings

A piston ring "seal" maintains the power of your engine for bucking steep grades, for racing at top speed and for loafing along on high. When the oil film between the piston rings and cylinder walls has the correct body and lubricating qualities it holds compression tight, keeps your engine running quietly, makes your motor responsive to the slightest shift of the throttle.

IS YOUR CAR A GOOD CLIMBER?

Almost any car makes a good showing along smooth pavements and up gentle grades. But to take stiff grades on high, to get a flying start when you open the throttle, to get most miles and most power out of every gallon of gas, requires piston rings made gas-tight with an oil of the right body and lubricating quality—an oil that forms a seal between piston rings and cylinder walls, that minimizes wear, that helps the gas to give full value in dependable power.

Polarine

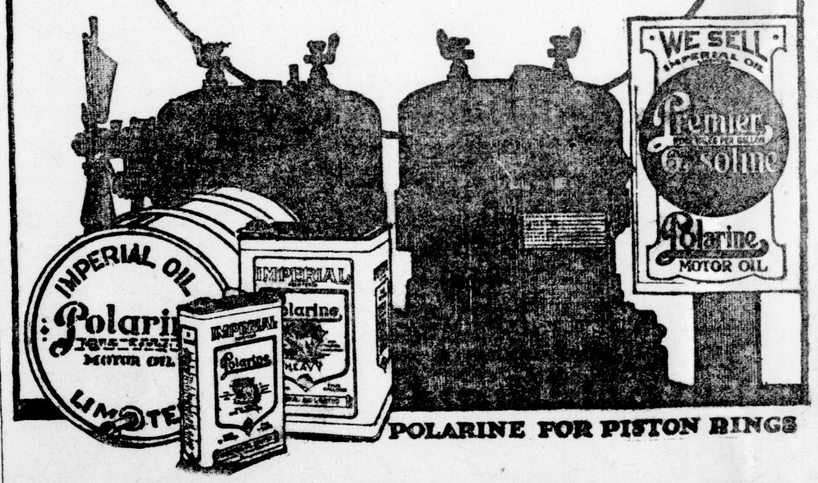

has just the right body to form this gas-tight seal between the piston rings and cylinder walls. It does not break down or lose its lubricating qualities under intense heat. It doesn't gum in summer nor congeal in winter. It overcomes friction and lessens carbon trouble—lengthens the motor's useful life and keeps it in prime condition the year round.

Polarine is made in two grades—Polarine and Polarine Heavy. It is supplied in one-half, one and four gallon sealed cans, also in 12½ gallon steel kegs, barrels and half-barrels. There are also Polarine oils and greases for effective transmission and differential lubrication.

Write us at Room 704 Imperial Oil Bldg., Toronto, for interesting booklet on Polarine for Automobile Lubrication

GARBAGE DEPARTMENT
CITY OF LONDON
NOTICE

For the information of the Householders within the Garbage Area of the City of London and for the purpose of increasing the efficiency and reducing the cost of Garbage Collection, the regulations governing the collection of garbage, ashes and refuse are herewith given and householders are requested to do their utmost to assist the Department by complying strictly with these regulations, as in future no garbage, ashes or refuse will be removed unless in accordance therewith:

1. The owner, tenant or occupant of every store, house and building requiring the removal of garbage within the "Garbage Area" must provide water-tight, metal, covered can of approximately two cubic feet capacity and place or cause to be placed therein, the garbage and household refuse accumulating on the premises.

2. All domestic and restaurant garbage must be wrapepd in paper before being placed in the can.

3. No liquid matter is to be placed in the can.

4. No stones, bricks or other building materials will be collected and cans containing such materials although also containing garbage will not be emptied.

5. Commercial and business refuse, cut grass and garden refuse and ashes if dry and not frozen will be removed if placed in boxes or cans of convenient size for handling and weighing not more than 50 pounds when full.

6. Tin cans, bottles, crockery and other non-combustible articles must be placed with the ashes and not with the garbage.

7. Cans and boxes to be emptied must be placed on the premises in a position most handy for the collector. Collectors are not permitted to enter houses or any part of any house for the removal of garbage, ashes or refuse.

8. No remuneration of any description must be offered, given to or received by the collectors for services given by them.

9. Ashes must at all times be kept separate from the garbage.

10. During the period between May 1 and October 15, garbage will be collected twice weekly and the ashes when necessary. During the period between October 15 and May 1 garbage will be collected once weekly and ashes once weekly.

11. Where there is a vicious dog on the premises necessary protection must be given the collector during the removal of garbage, ashes, etc.

12. All acts of inattention on the part of employees or neglect to remove garbage, etc., should be immediately reported to the Superintendent, phone 37, care being taken to give full details of the cause of the complaint.

13. Your hearty co-operation is required, so that the work may be placed and maintained upon an efficient basis.

14. Help the collectors and they will help you.

15. Remember to treat the collectors as you would have them treat you.

C. R. SOMERVILLE,
Mayor.
H. A. BRAZIER,
City Engineer.

GOVERNMENT WARNED TO FEEL OUT GROUND ON NATIONALIZATION

Lord Shaughnessy Issues a Timely Warning at Toronto Exhibition.

TORONTO, Aug. 26.—Lord Shaughnessy is not opposed to nationalization of railways. He said so, but in rather mild words when he opened the 41st Canadian National Exhibition this afternoon. His reference to the Canadian transportation problem was very brief. "I don't want it to be understood that I am opposed to the nationalization of railways. When the people want it—we are a democracy—we must have it.

"But when the time comes for us to formulate a policy on that important matter, we should be very sure, or we may come a cropper."

He said that the experiment of the United States in taking control of all its railway systems should be of interest and value to Canada.

Lord Shaughnessy also made a plea for the unity of Canada. Canadians were made up of many creeds and races and mutual good-will and co-operation were necessary to build up a happy and prosperous Canada.

Another Bon Entente.

He also pleaded for better understanding between capital and labor. The railway war board was setting a good example in this regard. He hoped other industries would follow the lead of all the railways in arriving at an agreement with their employees. Something lasting and satisfactory was needed.

In welcoming Lord Shaughnessy, President Russell said he hoped the C. P. R.'s head would visit Toronto oftener.

Lord Shaughnessy at the directors' luncheon referred to the 25 years of Canadian development, in which the great enterprise he represented, the Canadian Pacific Railway, had been so instrumental a factor. Foreshadowing post-bellum expansion, he said: "I am grateful to be able to say that our ocean tonnage is almost as great now as it was at the beginning of the war, although we have lost eleven or twelve ships. On the conclusion of the war, I expect a substantial increase in our tonnage, as we are looking towards Siberia and part of the new Russia as markets for Canadian industrial produce."

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

THE LOCAL MARKET

Business on the local market this morning was very brisk, despite the fact that the market itself was comparatively small compared with that of other days. Oats and hay took a slight drop in price, and although still remaining scarce oats sold from $2.10 to $2.25 per cwt., while hay brought from $15 to $16.50 per ton. All vegetables remained firm in price, but tomatoes took a slight drop and brought from 40 to 50 cents per basket. Sweet peppers sold at $1.50 for a 6-quart basket. Plums, wholesale from 75 to 85 cents per basket, and retailed at 90c and $1. Peaches, wholesaled at $1 and $1.25, and brought $1.10 to $1.35 retail. Local pears have not yet started to come into the market, and only California fruit was offered this morning. Blueberries remained firm in price, selling at $2. Pickling onions brought $1.50 for 11-quart baskets.

WALL STREET.

New York, Aug. 27—Wall Street, 10:30 a.m.—Nominal changes prevailed at the opening of today's stock market, leaders making only slight upward progress. Trading reflected further restraint as a result of credit restrictions. United States Steel eased a small fraction, but soon rallied. Coppers, shippings, oils and such equipments as Baldwin Locomotive and Bethlehem Steel were decidedly firm with Distillers and Industrial Alcohol, but rails displayed some irregularity. Liberty bonds were variable, but the French Government 5½'s were again active at a fraction above par.

AGED MAN KNOCKED DOWN BY AUTO AND SEVERELY INJURED

Richard Sparrowhawk, aged 81 years, of 97 Askin street, was struck by an automobile driven by C. Roulston, in front of the Majestic Theatre, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mr. Sparrowhawk was crossing the street, and evidently did not notice the car approaching. He received a bad cut on the head and his hip was also hurt. He was taken to Carlyle Trebilcock's store and was later taken to his home.

"A SOUL FOR SALE" A FILM SENSATION AT THE PATRICIA TODAY, WEDNESDAY

Dorothy Phillips, in "A Soul for Sale," the most sensational photo drama of the age, is the special screen attraction at the Patricia Theatre again today and Wednesday.

Nella Pentleton's mother had never been taught self-denial, and she had an inordinate passion for gems. When Dorothy Phillips, in "A Soul for Sale," a photodramatic sensation, showing at the Patricia Theatre again today and Wednesday. Also a Mutt and Jeff cartoon, "The Decoy"; a James Montgomery Flagg screen story, "The Starter," and Ainsley and O'Brien, vaudevillians, in a singing novelty.

here husband died he left her penniless, ruined through her extravagance. To satisfy her passion for jewelry, Mrs. Pendleton could think of but one method. That was a contrive a wealthy marriage for Nella.

So the pair hied themselves to a fashionable resort where gambling was the order of the night, as gossip was of the day. Nella was still in ignorance of their precarious financial condition. Her mother virtually threw her daughter at the head of an old millionaire who was the scandal of the place. By a trick the mother involved Nella's financial honor, and it looked very much as though Nella would have to sell her soul to old Faxon. Then came Steele Minturn, and Nella fell in love with him. But again the mother was tempted and fell.

This time it was just plain robbery of Minturn.

Nella found it out and was misunderstood when she tried to return the money.

Then for the first time Nella realized that her soul was her own, and that her mother could not sell it, no matter how much maternal duty she owed.

The business world swallowed her up and it was by the merest of accidents that she and Steele met on the roof of a burning building.

A James Montgomery Flagg screen story, "The Starter," is another of the excellent series produced under the direction of Mr. Flagg, whose comedies are characterized by their subtle humor throughout.

In vaudeville Ainsley and O'Brien present a singing novelty that is worthy of a headline position on any vaudeville bill.

The Patricia program as above outlined will be repeated again today and Wednesday and can be highly recommended.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, THE GREAT SCREEN STAR, AT MAJESTIC TODAY, WEDNESDAY

Frankie Callan "The Ziegfield Follies Boy," Engaged for Another Week.

Douglas Fairbanks, in "Bound in Morocco"; Frankie Callan, "The Ziegfeld Follies Boy," in popular and catchy songs; a Burton Holmes travelogue; a sunshine comedy, "A Waiter's Wasted Life," and special orchestra selections by the Majestic Concert Orchestra comprise an excellent program for the first half of this week at the Majestic Theatre.

All the unique methods which have made Mr. Fairbanks so popular were amply in evidence in this new production. His smile, good nature and optimism never were more genially displayed. In "Bound in Morocco," Mr. Fairbanks portrays the role of a young American soldier of fortune who is motoring on the edge of the Sahara Desert towards the "Country of the Setting Sun" as the Moors call their picturesque land. The fact that he is pursued by an Arabian motor cop does not worry him. Why stop and argue with an Arabian Motor Cop? Besides, he does not speak the language. So he drives blithely on, despite the efforts of a tribe of fierce bandits to stop him. After a strenuous battle, he escapes the bandits, leaving them swearing vengeance, for their dead and wounded.

Arriving in the city of El Harib, one adventure after another awaits him. A beautiful young girl is, by reason of her father's indebtedness, doomed to be sold into bondage—to be the mock bride of the cruel Basha, and to take a place in his harem.

The young American is plunged into a net of intrigue, mystery and danger. How he foils the villain, and rides away with the girl, and generally makes his presence known and keenly felt in the sleepy, languorous little far eastern town is the story, and to explain how he smiled his way through the dangers which taxed all his wit and ingenuity would be to spoil the story.

The story reaches a grand climax when, just as he is making his final escape from the city, pursued by the police and a mob of townspeople, he is confronted by the bandits and their fierce chief who have sworn to take his life. The clever ruse by which he manages to bring the two opposing forces together, matching them one against the other, is perhaps the most interesting and exciting point in the photoplay.

The above program in its entirety will be presented at the Majestic again today and Wednesday.

HUN DEVASTATION AND RUTHLESSNESS EXPOSED IN PLAY COMING TO CITY

"Hearts of the World" To Be Shown at the Majestic Fair Week.

During the siege of Belgium, United States Minister Brand Whitlock was approached by the Chinese ambassador to Belgium, who breathlessly inquired: "Where shall I go to escape the German shells?"

"Go to your embassy!" called Whitlock.

"But cannons have no eyes," answered the Chinese diplomat.

These words have often been repeated, but seldom if ever with an understanding of the actual meaning of the epigram. Today, with the modern methods of warfare better understood by the people, the expression assumes a new significance. In civil war days men fought directly at their target. There was no question about the landing place of the contents of the big guns. Today everything is different. Warfare is being carried on "over there" by methods which, in the earlier days, would have been considered impracticable—impossible.

David Wark Griffith has brought home many truths to the American people in his production, "Hearts of the World," coming to the Majestic Theatre Western Fair week.

One of these, made especially noticeable because of the prominence given to it in the more stirring scenes of this masterwork, is the fact that thousands upon thousands of rounds of ammunition are hurled at the enemy without the men who handle the guns actually knowing where the shells will hit. For more than half an hour in the unfolding of the story of "Hearts of the World," the audience is given a glimpse of the newer, more modern methods employed. Great guns are shown discharging their death-dealing contents in the air, both the distance of the supposed target and the ultimate result of the firing being unknown to those who handle the guns.

One of the most realistic scenes in "Hearts of the World" is that showing the discharge, in rapid succession, of a long line of tremendous guns. Mr. Griffith, with remarkable accuracy and a complete understanding of the interest in this particular feature of war, shows the exploding of these shells many miles distant from the place where the guns are firing. The ruthless, appalling devastation resulting from these bombardments is shown in the remarkable view of the French villages under shell fire. Not only is the setting and firing of the guns shown to the audience, but the bursting of the shells in the heart of the village, and the resultant havoc wrought.

SEES RADIANT VISION OF WORLD BASED ON LOVE AFTER THE WAR

Dr. Frank Bohn Paints Fine Word Picture.

GIVES OPTIMISTIC VIEW

A radiant vision of what the world may become as the fruitage of "the world's last great conflict," through the establishment of a world federation based on love and amity, was presented by Dr. Frank Bohn of New York before a deeply interested audience at the afternoon session of the Dominion Chautauqua in Queen's Park on Monday.

Taking the place of Father P. J. MacCorry, the noted Paulist lecturer and orator, who was unable to keep his engagement, owing to illness, Dr. Bohn brought a message of optimism and inspiration, based on an accurate knowledge of world conditions, recognition of the progress of civilization, and ability to read the signs of the times.

The world parliament must come, he declared, because the times are ripe for it. The world parliament and federation of the nations must come if the aim for which the Allies are fighting is to be realized, namely, to end war.

Heritage of War.

"I would rather see the world go out right now and cease to exist than see 500,000,000 of the yellow races move towards militarism and give to future generations a heritage of war and barbarism even greater than in the present war," he insisted.

In bringing about such a federation of the nations and parliament of the world, the English-speaking people must have a prominent part, he stated, the 160,000,000 English-speaking people of the British Empire and of United States, who through 100 years have had specific training in federal government and dual patriotism, dual patriotism which means not divided patriotism but a love as great for Great Britain while cherishing the more local patriotism for Canada. Such a training has made possible the appreciation of human ability for a still larger patriotism, a patriotism that is world embracing.

At the end of the war will come the golden opportunity for laying the foundation of such world federation, beginning with Britain, the United States, Italy, Russia, and a little later, possibly, Japan.

"It can only come about through the support of millions of subjects of Britain, the United States and France of the three great democratic leaders, Lloyd George, Clemenceau and Wilson," he declared, adding:

Three Great Forces.

"Three great forces are drawing the world together. First, economic forces, labor, business, transportation.

"In 25 years we will have world-wide free trade," said the speaker, thus evoking laughter. "I am not arguing for it," he continued. "I am just stating that it is going to come."

The second force drawing the world together to which the lecturer drew attention is Christianity, and with it the coming together of the churches. Much of the bitterness of nationalism he attributed to the divisions of the Christian Church and their antagonisms which have grown up in the past 400 years. The world is moving towards a reunion of all the antagonistic divisions of the Christian army, not only the various branches of the Protestant church now contemplating and consummating union, but even the Greek church and the church of Abyssinia, he prophesied.

In the third place: "Art, literature and science are never national, but international," he declared.

"In the history of world progress," he continued, "nationalism has had its specific work to perform in the forces of civilization. With the development of electricity, transportation, the cable, telephone, etc., after 6,000 years of animalism, it is possible now to go in and organize the heart of Africa along the lines of civilization. The world is ripe for international organization along the lines of faith and patriotism.

Parliament of Nations.

Concerning the function and personnel of the parliament of the nations and the place of meeting, "When I was in Geneva a few weeks ago," said Dr. Bonn, "leaders in Red Cross work and prominent men of the city took me around and showed me this monument and that, which had been erected in commemoration of some event which promoted freedom and democracy. Finally they spoke, indicating to what these preliminaries had led up. For one thousand years Geneva had never bowed the knee to a tyrant. Geneva, in a neutral country, they considered, was the city of all cities in which the peace treaty, looking to world democracy, should be signed.

"Shortly before, a great gathering had been called, in which 5,000 people avowed that while they were neutrals in politics, they could not be neutrals in morals. They were heart and soul with the Allies. Moreover, the men who related this expressed the hope that in Geneva they might be permitted, after the war, to erect a great temple of peace, where a gathering of representatives of the nations might take place every year to promote international peace." While not suggesting that any particular place should be chosen as the headquarters of an international parliament, Dr. Bonn recognized that the wish of the prominent men who had spoken to him in Geneva have claims to consideration.

Adjudicate, Not Legislate.

The function of the parliament at first would of necessity be to adjudicate rather than legislate. For some time to come, national parliaments would scarcely desire to give up their prerogatives of law-making, in case of an international dispute arising, say between the United States and Mexico, it would be the place of the international parliament to decide.

The importance of standing by the decision of the chosen representatives of the nations was urged, in order to maintain and develop the ideal form of world government.

One hundred or one hundred and fifty chosen men to represent the nations, Dr. Bonn considered a large enough number to constitute the parliament, eight, ten or twelve from the larger nations, fewer from the smaller. The Hague Conference had failed because the ambitions and selfishness of Germany with Austria had blocked progress movements in the past. With German militarism thoroughly crushed, possibly within the next twelve months, the opportunity awaits the laying of the foundation of the federation of the nations which will bring peace and love, joy that will cause the hills to sing together and the trees of the fields to clap their hands because there shall be no more war.

Returns to Switzerland.

Dr. Bonn returns in the immediate future to Switzerland to his mission of studying internal affairs in Germany. In 1916 he represented the New York Post in Germany and Austia, studying and reporting upon the economic and social conditions there. In Geneva valuable information has been accessible through intercourse with a group of prominent men who are exiles from Germany because of the strong views which they hold that the only hope for Germany in the future is through absolute defeat of her arms in this present war.

The afternoon's program was rendered doubly enjoyable by the musical numbers given by Hartwell de Mille, baritone; Miss Martha Alexander, violinist, and Miss Madge Williamson, pianist, all of whom were most generous with their numbers. Mr. de Mille possess a most pleasing baritone voice of good range, under excellent control. He has mastered the art of distinct enunciation and this, combined with his dramatic appreciation, renders his interpretations rarely enjoyable. Miss Alexander, violinist, has acquired a facile technique and even tone, revealing an abundant endowment of artistic temperament. Miss Williamson has acquired a brilliant technique, playing with style and individuality. She is not only a most interesting solo pianist, but a rarely sympathetic accompanist.

You Can Hardly Tell the Difference

Although we are using the required amount of substitutes in our breads, our scientific methods of baking eliminates practically all the darkness and different taste.

PARNELL'S BREADS

Are really good. If you have never tried them order a loaf today. You will be pleasantly surprised.

ACCIDENT VICTIM BURIED.

INGERSOLL, Aug. 26.—The funeral of Edwin Thornton, who was killed in an automobile accident near Woodstock Thursday last, was held this afternoon from the family residence, Concession street, to the Ingersoll Rural Cemetery.

The attendance was unusually large, many being present from distant points. The services were conducted by the Rev. E. Sheppard of the Methodist Church, assisted by the Rev. R. Burles of Toronto. The pallbearers were I. Skuse, S. Banbury, G. Cook, Wm. Barton, Wm. Batton and A. A. Shelby.

RAIN AN AID TO PLOWING.

LOBO, Aug. 26.—The farmers are busy threshing in this vicinity. They report fairly good crops. The oats are proving a better crop than was expected. The rain which fell recently has made the plowing much easier, and the farmers are very busy getting the land ready to sow the fall wheat as soon as possible.

LIVED AT AILSA CRAIG.

AILSA CRAIG, Aug. 26.—Official word has been received that Pte. Norman McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. McDonald of this place, was severely wounded August 15. Pte. McDonald has been in France for three years, and was only slightly wounded in this length of time until now. Pte. Hugh McDonald, who left London with the 70th, and was later killed, was a brother, and another brother, Pte. Lawrence McDonald, who left with the 135th, is also on active service.
