High Records and Their Values

By Chas. M. Flatt

In the development of Holstein-Friesian cattle in Canada, records of production of milk and butterfat have been made which, to say the least, are wonderful. As illustrations of the degree to which the power to produce has been developed in individual cows, there are three outstanding animals. The first I will mention is Jenny Bonerges Ormsby, a cow that shows how a high producer can continue to make records year after year consistently. As a two-year-old, she produced over 16,000 lbs. of milk, which is more than three times the average production of mature dairy cows in Ontario. She has also made records of over 30 lbs. of butter in five consecutive years.

The second outstanding cow is another Canadian cow, May Echo Sylvia. This cow holds all records from 1 to 100 days in milk production. In one day she produced 152 lbs. of milk, and in 100 days, 12,899 lbs.

The third outstanding cow is Tilly Alcatraz. For long distance production this cow has never been equalled. Recently under official test at the University of California, she produced in one year 33,424 lbs. of milk. Her records for five consecutive years totalled 123,351 lbs. of milk and 4,556 lbs. of butter.

These cows represent the highest development reached through the efforts of Canadian and American breeders. It is highly improbable that these records will be materially increased in the next few years. The average cows of the breed can, however, be improved. There are thousands of cows with official records ranging from 20 to 30 lbs. of butter in seven days. These are the better producing class of cows. Besides these there are great numbers of untested cows whose production is much lower. In improving this class both in type and production lies the greatest opportunity for the present day breeder. It is in this improving process that the value of high records can be utilized. A high record of production is an indication of high development of the producing ability of a cow. This ability to produce is transmitted to the offspring of the cow. So by using bulls from high producing cows the general average production of the breed can be increased. While the value of a high record as a guide in selecting a herd sire is very great, in no case should the record of production be alone considered and type and conformation sacrificed. However, it can be safely said of the Holstein-Friesian breed that in nearly all cases higher production goes hand in hand with strong individuals of good breed type.

Hewitt-Davies Wedding

The home of Mr. and Mrs. David Davies, Mill Street, was the scene of a very pretty but quiet wedding on Friday afternoon last, when their eldest daughter, Evelyn M., was united in marriage to Mr. Martin Hewitt, of Dundas, the Rev. L. J. Leake, rector of Grace Church, performing the ceremony, which took place in the drawing room, which was prettily decorated for the occasion with a profusion of cut flowers, ferns, etc. The couple were unattended, the ceremony being witnessed only by the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. At the conclusion of the ceremony and after the young couple had received the hearty congratulations of assembled guests, all sat down to a sumptuous repast, the married couple leaving shortly afterwards on an extended trip to Toronto and other Eastern points, and on returning will take up their residence in Dundas. We extend hearty congratulations to this young couple and wish them a long and happy married life.

The Banquet

The banquet and reception given to a number of Waterdown's returned soldiers and nursing sisters by the Patriotic League and citizen's Committee last Tuesday evening was the first public recognition this village has made to our returned heroes since their homecoming.

At 6.30 a banquet, under the direction of the ladies of the Patriotic League, was held in the Bell house and a civic reception and entertainment in the rink. Dr. J. O. McGregor acted as chairman and fittingly welcomed the boys home. Addresses of welcome were given by F. J. Shaidle, C. P. McGregor, Peter Ray and J. F. Vandel interspersed with solos by Mrs. A. W. Palmer and Miss Agnes Eager.

The entertainment by the White Diamond minstrels, composed of returned soldiers of Hamilton, was greatly enjoyed by everyone.

A large bouquet of flowers was presented to Mrs. W. A. Ryckman, president of the Patriotic League, by J. F. Vance, in appreciation of the league's work. Miss Edith Allen was the recipient of a purse of gold and the following address, read by Reeve Davies.

Dear Miss Allen:

We, the citizens of Waterdown and surrounding district feel that we would like to give you some tangible expression of the sentiment we have towards you. It is not necessary to emphasize the regrets that you know we feel at the separation from one who has taken such an active interest, not only in work of the school, but in everything pertaining to the welfare of the community. The up-lift of your influence is not confined to this vicinity alone, but is exemplified by your pupils in this and distant lands. We take this opportunity, and request you to accept this little remembrance as a slight token of the esteem in which we regard you.

Signed in behalf

VOX POPULI.

At the conclusion of the reception the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

MOTHER SHIPTON'S PROPHECY

(London, England, Year 1448)

A house of glass shall come to pass,
In England, but alas!
War will follow with the work
In the land of the Pagan and Turk;
And State and State in here strife
Will seek each other's life.
But when the North shall divide the South
An Eagle shall build in the Lion's Mouth.

Carriages without horses shall go,
And accidents fill the world with woe.
Primrose Hill in London shall be,
And in its centre a Bishop's See;
Around the world thoughts shall fly
In the twinkling of an eye.
Water shall yet wonders do,
Now, strange, shall yet be true;
The world upside down shall be,
And gold found at the root of a tree;
Through hills man shall ride,
And no horse or ass be by his side;
Under water men shall walk,
Shall ride, shall sleep, shall talk;
In the air men shall be seen,
In white, in black, in green;
Iron in the water shall float,
As easy as a wooden boat.
Gold shall be found, and found
In a land that's not now known.
Fire and water shall more wonders do,
England shall at last admit a Jew;
The Jew that was held in scorn
Shall be of a Christian born.
Three times three will lovely France
Be led to dance a bloody dance
Before her people shall be free,
Three tyrant rulers shall she see,
Three times the people rule alone,
Three times the people's hope is gone,
Three rulers in succession see,
Each springing from a different dynasty.
Then shall the worse fight be done,
England and France shall be as one.

Major McGregor, M. C.

Flight-Lieut. Douglas McGregor, M. C., of Waterdown, has received word that he has been granted his majority in the Royal Air Force, to date from September last. The young flyer went overseas early in the war and served in many thrilling aerial engagements. He is an intimate friend of Lieut.-Col. Bishop, the Canadian Ace, and was a member of the squadron which performed the feat that won for Col. Bishop the V.C. He was awarded the Military Cross in recognition of his having brought down fourteen enemy planes. Major McGregor, M.C., is a son of our townsman, Dr. J. O. McGregor, and a brother of Dr. J. K. McGregor, of Hamilton. We congratulate our brave son on having won this well merited mark of distinction.

Victory Loan Medals

During the Victory Loan campaign last November, prizes were offered for the best essays in each High School and Collegiate Institute on the subject, "Victory Bonds, Why Canadians Should Buy Them."

The following are the names of the pupils of Waterdown High School who last week received the medals awarded to them for their essays:

Lower School—Bessie Facey, 1st; Annie Crusoe, 2nd. Middle School—Fay Barran, 1st; Marjorie Spence, 2nd. Upper School—Mavis Cooper.

The judges for the Lower School essays were Misses Kerr, Bristow and Craig, of the Public School staff, and for the Upper and Middle School essays, the three resident ministers, Messrs. Leake, Facey and Wedderburn. The essays were known to the judges by numbers only.

The regular monthly meeting of Women's Institute was held on Mar. 5th in the Bell house. The Vice-President, Mrs. Blagden, occupied the chair and the meeting was opened by singing the Maple Leaf.

After the usual business was dispensed with, Miss M. Forbes gave a splendid paper on "Our Loyalty to Great Britain and the Flag."

The ladies of the Patriotic League served refreshments, and a very social hour was spent.

The next meeting, which will be held on April 2nd, promises to be very interesting. There will be a debate by four members of the Institute, and also a competition in baking by the girls. We hope that the young ladies of the village will co-operate with us to make this meeting a great success.

JUNGLE TRAGEDY.

English Lady Killed by Fatally Shot Tiger.

A distressing tragedy of the jungle has occurred in the Balaghat district of the central provinces, where Miss Sneyde, sister of Mr. Sneyde, the officer in charge of the Balaghat irrigation works, was killed by a wounded tiger.

The tiger, going hard, broke cover between two trees, and fell to a shot from Mr. Sneyde, but managed to get away apparently badly injured.

The two brothers, after directing Miss Sneyde to remain in her tree, went a short distance to decide from the blood trail whether the animal was worth following up at once or the next day.

The tiger, having gone a little distance, turned at right angles from its original direction, which brought it behind and in line with the tree in which Miss Sneyde was seated. Here it was fired at again. It fell, but once more made off, being too far gone to charge.

The two men, after walking a little to allow time for the second shot to take full effect, again followed up the track of the beast.

What happened next can only be deduced from the appearance of the ground.

Miss Sneyde, on the report of the second shot coming to her ears, apparently decided that the bullet had found its billet, and, alighting from the tree, proceeded in the direction from which she judged the shot had been fired, only to meet the infuriated and mortally wounded animal almost face to face.

The brothers, following the blood trail of the tiger, found at the end of it the lifeless body of their sister, while a few paces away lay the tiger, also dead.

CRAFTY BEGGARS.

Two Dodges That They Work On Pedestrians.

"I resent, and I have always resented," said Mr. Stoggleton, "the beggar who strikes me when I am looking in at a window."

"When I am walking along the street I am on the alert. If I see a beggar coming I can sheer out if I want to, and I can avoid him or I can keep on and meet him face to face. I have a chance to decide as to whether I should give or not."

"But when he comes upon me quite without warning as he does when I am looking in at a window, I resent it deeply, and in such circumstances I never give at all."

"At the same time, unsportsmanlike as I must regard such approach to be, there is another surprise attack the beggar makes that for its extrasuperlative nerve I cannot but view with a certain measure of admiration, this being his surprise of two men at once, two men on the sidewalk talking together, standing face to face and wholly engrossed in their conversation.

"Suddenly beside them appears the beggar, a totally unlooked for, unpleasant, and it may be embarrassing interruption. What happens then depends upon which of the two surprised men recovers first."

"If this man shakes his head and bids the beggar be on his way the other man does likewise, for even though the second man might have been disposed to give something, he cannot now give without seeming to disparage the first man's judgment. But if the first man gives, the second man does, too, whether he wants to or not, for he would fear that by not giving he might appear in the first man's eyes as stingy."

"So here the beggar gets double or nothing. But this tackling of two men at once is a far bigger game than just holding up one lone man looking in at a window, and I think it must be to the beggar correspondingly more interesting. I know it is more interesting to watch."

When the skin is much irritated by contact with dust and grime use oatmeal bath bags instead of soap. Buy cheesecloth in quantities and cut the bags about four inches square, fill them loosely with the following mixture and never use a bag but once, throwing it away after once used: Oatmeal, five pounds; powdered florentina oris root, one pound; almond meal, one pound; old castile soap, scraped to a powder, half a pound. Mix together and fill the bags.

THE CHILD.

Let It Work Out Own Entertainment.

Let a child entertain itself, or children entertain each other most of the play hours. Of course little suggestions and helps from grown-ups are welcome that will "start the ball rolling," as it were.

But let it be only a start, if you wish your child's imagination developed, if you wish to strengthen the initiative powers, which lie dormant, in every child, and which, if developed, prove such an asset in after life. Resourcefulness is another talent nipped in the bud, when a child is continually entertained, so that play means no effort at all. What is known as "the spoiled child" is usually the result of childhood's days where no effort is ever made for itself, in work or play. No wonder such a child is restless, unmanageable, mischievous, with no outlet whatever for stored-up energies and mentality.

Even the story hour will be made a more telling factor, if the usual rule is sometimes reversed, and the child tells mother a story, instead of always being told one. And it is, indeed, remarkable, when this is done, what exquisite little fancies are found to emerge fresh and dewy from fertile little brains.

Thrift.

She was comely, and a widow, and, moreover she was Scotch. She mourned MacIntosh, her late husband, for eighteen months, and then from a crowd of suitors chose honest, homely MacIntyre for the second.

"I'm no guid enough for you, dear!" he whispered. "What for did ye choose me out o' a'ae mony?"

"Ah, weel, ye see, your name's MacIntyre."

"Yes, but—" began the bewildered suitor.

"An' ye ken," finished the widow, "all my linen's marked 'Mac'—that's why, Donald."

A SPLENDID MEDICINE FOR THE CHILDREN

Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine a mother can give her little ones. They are a mild laxative, which quickly regulate the bowels and stomach, and are guaranteed to be entirely free from any injurious drugs. Concerning them Mrs. A. D. West, Loreburn, Sask., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets have given me more satisfaction than anything else I have ever given my children. They are easily taken; always work well and, though I have given quite a few to my baby, they seem to work as well now as at first, which is something other laxatives seldom do." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Napoleon's Coin Trick.

It is said that thousands of five franc pieces are split into halves by their French owners every year in the hope of discovering an immense hidden treasure. This treasure, according to the legend, firmly believed, is an order to pay the holder one hundred thousand francs in silver five franc coins.

When Napoleon first set the five franc piece in circulation it was very difficult to induce a Frenchman to receive the new coin. Hence, according to the story, Napoleon gave it to be understood that he had ordered a cheque for one hundred thousand francs, written upon asbestos paper, to be concealed in one of the new silver pieces.

From that day to this no one has objected to the five franc piece.

DOUBLE FLIM-FLAM

Pekin Jeweler Got Back His Money.

This is a story picked up in New York that has all the elements—save the love of touch—of a modern mystery story. M. Parrish Watson is a wealthy collector of China art. He sends emissaries all over China digging up treasures. One of his agents has just returned.

In Peking he was in the shop of a pawnbroker. A silk-hatted American, a polish man of the world, came in, to secure of a loan on a pearl which he took out of a velvet bag. The broker applied the tests and was satisfied the pearl was genuine. He advanced $10,000. Later in the day one of his experts rushed to him breathlessly with the startling statement that the pearl was the most clever counterfeit he had ever seen. The broker made another examination and found he had been the victim of a film flim flim.

Several days afterwards he called every jeweler in Peking into a conference. He told them of his experience and he said he was simply going to take his loss, but he thought it was his duty to warn his fellow merchants. He held up the pearl before them.

"Here it is," he said. "To show you what I think of it and that the incident is closed, I am going to destroy it." He placed the pearl on an iron and with a hammer smashed it to tiny fragments with one blow.

The next day all the Peking newspapers carried a story about the way the merchant had been tricked and how he had destroyed the bogus gem. Several weeks went by and the incident was almost forgotten.

One morning the American who had pawned the pearl entered the shop. A clerk recognized him and went toward him. "I have come for my pearl," he said.

The clerk was in a panic. He begged the customer to wait a few minutes and he rushed off to his employer with the news. The broker came out of his private office and met the customer.

"I have come for my pearl," repeated the American.

"You have the money to redeem it," he was asked.

For answer the American counted out the exact amount and placed it on the counter. The broker went to the safe and brought back the pearl that was pawned. He had cleverly tricked the trickster. He knew there was only one chance of getting his money back and that was to make the customer believe the pearl had been destroyed. He resorted to this ruse and did not destroy the pawned pearl but a substitute. A surprised American walked out of the place with his counterfeit jewel—gnashing his teeth just like the smooth villain in the melodrama of old.

British Women Voters.

The women voters of Great Britain are a great host.

Their country recognized their ability and its need for their services.

About three million British men are on the continent in military activities.

A great legion of women are there, too, equally as devoted to winning the war.

The women at home, millions of them, are the mainstay of those who are at the front.

There has been no service which British women have not willingly rendered to defeat the Hun.

The parliamentary franchise has been conferred upon British women without regard to property qualifications.

The age limit has been fixed for the present at 30 years, and the privilege of the franchise thus becomes an honorarium (or a consolation) for those who have reached the ripe maturity of three decades.

Thirty Deaths From Razor.

A physician in Chicago states thirty deaths have resulted from paring corners with a razor. Avoid blood poisoning by applying Putnam's Corn and Wart Extractor. Purely vegetable. Painless and sure is Putnam's Extractor, 25c at all dealers.

CAUGHT.

He was the keenest student in the class, and when an unpopular professor said: "Gentlemen, your next subject for composition will be 'Manners,'" he at once rose and asked, "Can we write on bad manners, sir?"

The professor looked over his spectacles at the all-conquering youth, and quietly answered: "Certainly; you can write about whatever you are best acquainted with."

FRESH REVOLTS AT MANNHEIM; PLOT AGAINST SAXON RULERS

Peasant Risings in Many Districts in Baden Also Reported.

A Copenhagen cable says: A fresh revolt broke out at Mannheim to-day. Spartan forces occupied the Post Office, the telegraph office, and the railway station, and communication with the city is interrupted.

A Berlin cable says: (By the Associated Press).—Spartan and Radical Socialists have launched a movement to overthrow the existing government in Saxony where the newly-elected Diet was to assemble to-day. A general strike has been proclaimed and railway communication with Halle, one of the principal junction points in Saxony, has been broken. The Spartans are reported to have taken possession of Plauen and other industrial centres.

Independent Socialists in Leipzig have issued a manifesto demanding the retirement of the Weimar Government, declaring that it is "an impediment to Socialism and the liberation of the proletariat." The Independent Socialists are reported working feverishly for a proclamation of a Soviet republic in Saxony.

BADEN PEASANT REVOLTS.
A Berlin cable says: (By the Associated Press).—Special despatches from Mannheim to-day report that peasant revolts are breaking out in various districts in Baden as the result of friction between the Workmen's Council and the peasants. The peasants, it is said, are resentful at the dictatorship of the Soviets.

RUSS. MONEY AT BUDAPEST.
A Basle cable: Sixty-six Communists have been arrested on charges of rebellion against the Hungarian republic at Budapest, according to advices from that city. It is reported that during their examination they have admitted that the money necessary to set up an anti-republican government came from Russia and that during the past month the expenses amounted to 300,000 crowns. They refused to reveal where the funds are being kept, it is said.

When a mother detects from the writhings and fretting of a child that worms are troubling it, she can procure no better remedy than Miller's Worm Powders, which are guaranteed to totally expel worms from the system. They may cause vomiting, but this need cause no anxiety, because it is but a manifestation of their thorough work. No worms can long exist where these powders are used.

PROBE ATTACK ON CLEMENCEAU

Premier and Eye-Witnesses Tell Their Stories.

Cottin Declares He Acted Alone.

A Paris cable: Captain Bouchardon, of the Paris military court, who is conducting the case against Emile Cottin, for attempt upon the life of Premier Clemenceau, went to the Premier's house at 8:30 o'clock this morning to take M. Clemenceau's evidence. Captain Bouchardon left at 8:55 o'clock, remarking that the Premier's testimony was very clear. The Premier believed it was the second bullet fired by the assassin which hit him. He said, he felt a violent and painful shock in the back, and had caught sight of the man who was attacking him.

Captain Bouchardon yesterday afternoon heard the evidence of persons who were eye-witnesses of the attempted assassination of Premier Clemenceau. He has asked Doctor Roubanowitch, a widely-known alienist, to examine Emile Cottin, M. Clemenceau's assailant, to determine his degree of mental responsibility.

Emile Cottin, the assailant of Premier Clemenceau, was examined yesterday by Captain Bouchardon. He declared that he had not acted under the influence of anybody. He accused Premier Clemenceau of showing tact opposition to anarchists.

When Captain Bouchardon said that Cottin's father wanted him examined to establish his mental condition, Cottin became indignant, and claimed that he was entirely responsible for his actions.

Replying to a question, Cottin declared that he would have renewed his attempt in case of failure.

Asthma Victims—The man or woman subject to asthma is indeed a victim. What can be more terrifying than to suddenly be seized with a paroxysm of choking which seem to fairly threaten the existence of life itself. From such a condition Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has brought many to completely restored health and happiness. It is known and prized in every section of this broad land.

CONFIDENT AS TO THE STATES

London Press Sure They Will Back Wilson

And Support League of Nations.

A London cable: (By the Associated Press).—Comment on President Wilson's Boston speech takes first place on the editorial pages of this morning's London newspapers. They unite in expressing the hope that the President's appeal for support of the League of Nations will meet with a favorable response in the United States.

"We can be as confident as President Wilson is," says the Daily Mail, "that their generous impulse, disinterested aid and guidance will not fail his people now, but rather gain strength and permanence as the need for it was never greater. The alternative is that the United States should return to her traditional isolation, and regard the wester of Europe from afar. Such a decision is unthinkable. The United States is in the war; she must be in the peace."

The Daily Telegraph says: "The deliberations of the Peace Conference constitute a signal to the world that it is at the cross-roads in its destiny. The President is not wrong in assuming that Europe looks toward the people of the United States with new confidence. Of America's sympathy with the essential ideals for which President Wilson is laboring so devotedly none need have any doubt, and we are confident she will continue to take her full share in the great task of regeneration which confronts the world."

The Daily Chronicle says of the President's speech: "He appeals to America for the first time to play her part in policing the unsettled territories of the old world and protecting the young nations. If he succeeds in carrying his people with him in this new crusade he will have succeeded in rendering a second service to mankind as great as that in bringing in the United States to finish the war."

ON MOROCCO AND POLAND

Council of Great Powers Conferred Tuesday.

Present Plan Unsatisfactory to France.

A Paris cable: The Council of the great powers continued the discussion to-day of Poland, and authorized Marshal Foch to send a series of inquiries to the Inter-Allied Commission now in Warsaw. Until a reply is received, the question of getting the Polish divisions into Poland by way of Danzig will be deferred.

The Council also began a hearing on Morocco, in which France seeks to terminate the present unsatisfactory international supervision. Henry White, for the United States, and Arthur J. Balfour, for Great Britain, spoke in favor of the observance of the "open door" in any readjustment, so that all countries would enjoy equal trade facilities.

The British Prime Minister, David Lloyd George, will return to Paris Saturday and remain for three days. Russia will be among the subjects considered during his stay.

ON REPARATION.

A Paris cable: The Council of the great powers to-day further discussed plans for a preliminary peace treaty, but left unchanged the decision reached Saturday to include territorial and financial reparation and economic subjects, as well as military and naval disarmament in the document soon to be prepared.

This work will begin as soon as the territorial and reparations commissions submit reports as are required within the next two weeks. The chief difficulty was over reparations, on which the commission was widely divided. This matter was greatly improved as a result of the meetings to-day, and the prospects now are for an early agreement.

Marshal Foch was present when the Council further considered means for getting two Polish divisions now in France into Poland by way of Danzig. A final decision on this question was not reached.

Muscular Rheumatism Subdued.
When one is a sufferer from muscular rheumatism he cannot do better than to have the region rubbed with Dr. Thomas' Eclectic Oil. There is no oil that so speedily shows its effect in subduing pain. Let the rubbing be brisk and continue until ease is secured. There is more virtue in a bottle of it than can be fully estimated.

DEPENDS UPON UNITED STATES

Whether Daylight Saving Stays in Canada.

If It is Continued There, Here Also.

An Ottawa despatch: Continuation of daylight saving in Canada will depend on the stand taken by the United States Congress. If Congress decides to repeal its daylight saving measure it is felt here that merely confusion would be created by putting Canadian clocks forward for an hour during the summer months.

The legislative situation in the two countries differ. The Act passed by the Dominion Parliament last session empowered the Governor-in-Council to bring daylight-saving into effect for last year only. A new Act will be necessary for continuation of daylight saving this year. In the United States daylight saving again comes into effect on the last Sunday of March unless repealed by Act of Congress. But, as a result of protests from farmers, considerable opposition has already developed at Washington. A motion favoring repeal of the Act was unanimously carried by the Senate Committee on Agriculture, and some doubt is felt whether the Act will be permitted to stand.

In the circumstances, action by the Dominion Government will be deferred pending a more definite attitude by Congress. If daylight saving is continued across the line it will be continued here.

HIS SACRIFICE.

ONLY TWELVE MEMBERS SURVIVE OF HEROIC BRITISH BATTALION

FINISH PEACE MEET BY JUNE

That is the Strong Probability Now.

Some Committees Have Done Little.

A Paris report: (Cable from John W. Daffoe).—The probable duration of the conference is the subject of lively speculation here in press and conference circles. Estimates of the date of signing of peace run all the way from April to midsummer, with the strong probability that the actual conclusion of the conference will come about the end of May.

The conference council is further expediting work by having a survey made of all the questions which must be settled before peace can be signed, for the purpose of remitting each of these to a special committee.

The Committee on Penalties and War Crimes has thus far considered only the responsibility arising from the outbreak of war. The Committee on Reparation has not yet been able to decide whether reparation shall be defined to include war damages or the actual cost of the war to the Allies.

Should a wider definition be accepted, Germany will be in the position of a bankrupt compounding with his creditors at a rate on the dollar, since there is no possibility of collecting from her the full cost of the war. The Committee on Labor and on the Neutralization of International Highways and Commerce are well advanced. One of the most essential committees—that to deal with economic matters, of which the peace treaty must take cognizance—has not yet been appointed. The British committee to consider these questions, of which Sir George Foster is a member, has done much spadework, and will have a well-considered draft to submit to the conference committee, which is to be appointed this week. An announcement by the conference foreshadows direct representation by the British Dominions upon this economic commission.

Nearly all children are subject to worms, and many are born with them. Spare them suffering by using Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator, the best remedy of the kind that can be had.

LENINE LIMITS PEOPLE'S BATHS

Two a Month for Those in First Category.

One for Second, None for Third.

A Paris cable: The Soviet Government in Moscow is now regulating the number of baths each person is permitted to take in the various public and private bathing places and for this purpose has divided the population into three categories, according to French refugees arrived here from Russia. Those in the first category are allowed to bathe twice a month, it is said, and those in the second category once a month, while those in the third category, never.

The cost of food in Russia is declared to be prohibitive when food can be obtained. Premier Lenine, the refugees say, is not affected by the food problem. Lenine has plenty to eat and his bill for fruit and vegetables in a recent month amounted to 50,000 rubles (about $30,000).

2nd Brit. Gren. Guards, Gets Great Welcome Home From Germany.

A London cable: The Second Battalion of the Grenadier Guards received an enthusiastic welcome on its return to London from Germany yesterday. Although no ceremonies had been arranged, and the hour of arrival was uncertain, immense crowds assembled at St. Pancras station, which was thronged, large crowds being congregated outside.

The only indication that something unusual was happening was the presence of massed bands, which played "See, the Conquering Heroes Come," as the men left their train. General Fielding, commandant of the London district, welcomed the battalion in behalf of the King, and then the Guards began a triumphal march across London to Chelsea barracks.

Unprecedented scenes were witnessed as the troops proceeded through the crowded streets, thousands of people joining in the march, which eventually assumed such proportions that it resembled a general exodus.

Queen Mother Alexandra, outside of Marlborough House; the Duke of Connaught and the Crown Prince and Princess of Sweden, before Clarence House, and King George and Queen Mary, with their children, at the open windows of Buckingham Palace, greeted the warriors as they passed.

Of the original unit that left England in 1914, only twelve men survived to take part in this great homecoming.

Pills That Have Benefited Thousands.—Known far and near as a sure remedy in the treatment of indigestion and all derangements of the stomach, liver and kidneys. The W. M. S. of the Methodist church will meet at the home of Mrs. Reginald Langton on Wednesday, Mar. 12th at 2.30. Conveyances will be provided.

The Young People's Society of St. Thomas' Roman Catholic Church held their last progressive euchre party in the school room of the Church on Monday evening last. It was a decided success. All present thoroughly enjoyed the evening's amusement.

Mr. O. B. Griffin was very agreeably surprised last Monday evening by a large number of friends. The occasion being a birthday celebration. During the evening Mr. Griffin was presented with a lengthy, illuminated address on parchment which he prizes very highly. The document is now on display in Mr. Griffin's store.

Mr. A. DeLong, one of the oldest members of the Waterdown Methodist church, received a pleasant surprise last Tuesday when the Ladies' Aid presented him with a bouquet of 85 flowers in token of his 85th birthday. He is still enjoying the best of health, and his many friends wish him continued health and happiness.

Mr. Henry Slater has commenced the building of a new house on Mill street which, when completed, will be for sale or rent. If a few more of our enterprising citizens would do likewise, Waterdown would soon have the necessary money from taxes to equip the town with a waterworks and sewerage system or other needed improvements.

A Plea for the Children

By one of the speakers at the meeting in the Rink on Tuesday evening, the statement was made that "everywhere they are putting up Memorial Halls." If he reads the papers he might have noticed that some places where schools are needed they are planning to erect "Memorial Schools." Can any one point out a place in Ontario where schools could be more fittingly erected as memorials of our dead heroes than in Waterdown? If those men could speak I feel satisfied they would tell us they would rather have their names perpetuated in a school where the children spend six hours a day five days a week learning the lessons needed to fit them for the years to come, than in a Hall to be used occasionally for recreation or amusement. First things should be put first, but, if the building of new schools is to be deferred by the building of a Hall, the first thing would not be put first. If some of the people who are so anxious to have the Memorial hall erected had several children striving to get an education under the adverse conditions prevailing at present, I think their eyes would be opened so wide that they could see that a Memorial school would be quite as suitable as a Memorial hall for Waterdown.

War Widows Remarrying.

War widows are making the best of misfortunes and many are taking unto themselves other husbands. Information forthcoming from the Board of Pension Commissioners shows that a great many women who have lost their husbands at the front are remarrying. War widows who remarry are given a gratuity of $480, which amount is paid to them in a lump sum. This is the equal of one year's pension, ordinarily paid in monthly instalments to widows. Then the Government ceases to have further responsibility for the widow, though the pension allowed to each of her children continues, in the case of a girl, until she attains the age of seventeen years, and in the case of a boy, until he reaches sixteen years of age.

Yorkshire Hogs of Real Bacon Type.

Yorkshire hogs are distinctly of the bacon type. They have small hams and shoulders and a large quantity of side meat and do not get excessively fat. This makes it possible to produce an excellent quality of bacon from them and they ordinarily command a premium on the market if shipped in carload lots. The Yorkshires are very prolific and are excellent mothers. They are inclined to be more active than the lard breeds and need better fences. The Yorkshires are to be recommended for regions where corn is grown in a small quantity. Where corn is the principal crop of the farm, the lard breeds prove more profitable.

Hun Dignity (?)

Back from the line during the Argonne battle a lieutenant came, looking groggily for a first-aid station. A piece of shrapnel had torn its way through his helmet and, once inside, had spun around and around without so much as scratching his skin or cutting his hair. But it had given him a bit of a start and he wanted a rest. Yet all along the route, emerging from scores of little hidden dugouts, scared Germans had come and surrendered to him, gathering behind him in a dejected caravan like the children of Hamelin behind Pled Piper. By the time he was back on the crest of Hill 272 they numbered 67, and there a German rushed forward, impressive with the important tidings that deep in the deepest dug-out of them all, the lieutenant-colonel commanding the regiment that had defended the hill was waiting for some one to come down and be surrendered to. "Any one who wants to be my prisoner this day has got to come to me." Thus said the weary lieutenant as he limped on his way, and so the lieutenant-colonel stayed hungry in his dugout and was obliged to surrender next morning to two privates passing by on their way for water.

OUR INDIAN BROTHERS

SPLENDID RECORD OF REDMEN IN GREAT WAR.

Recent Reports Indicate That the Population of Aborigines in the Dominion Has Been Steadily Though Slowly Increasing—They Are Responding More Readily to Opportunities and Gaining More Wealth.

THOSE Canadians who still linger under the impression that Indians have no place in modern life except as interesting and rapidly disappearing remnants of a race with a picturesque past will learn to the contrary from the annual report just issued for the year ending March 31 last by the Department of Indian Affairs. In Canada there are now living 109,294 Indians, including 3,296 Eskimos, and that population is slowly but steadily increasing. Consumption, smallpox, measles and other diseases are still bad enemies, but experience for generations with these diseases is bringing about a certain immunity not equal to that enjoyed by whites, but enough, together with the better sanitary measures and methods of precaution taught under the aegis of the department, to prevent the wholesale decimation once reported.

The fact that the Indian must be reckoned with as a permanent Canadian asset lends further interest to this blue book, with its analyses of results attained by the Indian in many fields of endeavor. That he responds to opportunity and intelligent treatment is shown by the results chronicled of the "Greater Production" campaign started by the department among the Indians and the efforts put forth under the advice and assistance with seed, etc., of the department. There was great improvement at the Sarnia and Huron Reserves, for example, and many Deseronto Indians had crops equal to any in Ontario.

James Fenimore Cooper introduced to us the Indian as a warrior. The annals of Canadian Indians in the present war show that they have not fallen away from the traditions of their ancestors. There has been much misconception as to the attitude of the Indians to the war. They secured the right to exemption from the operation of the Military Service Act because the Indian is very insistent on his treaty rights and will fight to the last gasp in modern ways to retain them. "We have treaty rights, and only independent and unconquered nations have treaties," say many of them. But turn from this controversy to read the war record of the Indians under enlistment. More than 3,500 Indians have enlisted, according to the records of the department, approximately 35 per cent. of the Indian male population of military age resident in the nine provinces. There were many others of whom the department had no information. Take the Indians of the Okanagan Agency as an example. In the Head-of-the-Lake band every unmarried, able-bodied male member between the ages of twenty and thirty-three went on active service, and other Okanagan bands gave almost equally splendid service. In the case of the Mississaugas of Seagow every male member of the band went overseas except one old man of sixty-five.

One Okanagan Indian, Pte. Geo. McLean, won the D.C.M. by killing single-handed nineteen Germans and capturing fourteen others with the aid of a dozen bombs. Lt.-Col. Johnson, Paudash, M.M., 21st Battalion, a Mississauga of Rice Lake, was in every battle from Loos to Passchendaele, and distinguished himself many times. As a sniper alone he is reported to have killed 88 Germans. Many other Indian soldiers gave exceedingly good service as snipers. Capt. A. G. E. Smith, a Six Nations Indian of Brantford, was awarded the Military Cross.

Pte. Semia walked more than 500 miles from Lake St. Joseph, in the Patricia District, to enlist, and many others walked similar distances. John Campbell, a full-blooded Indian from the Far North, traveled three thousand miles by trail, canoe and river steamer to enlist at Vancouver. He started from the Arctic coast near Herschel Island, walking to the head of the Porcupine river, and thence to Fort Yukon, where he worked several months to secure the means of transportation to Vancouver.

In the nine Canadian provinces the Indians have a total income of $8,418,307, made up as follows: Value of farm products, including hay, $2,824,149; value of beef sold and that used for food, $388,885; wages earned, $2,043,137; receipts from land rentals and from timber, $137,088; earned by fishing, $323,298; earned by hunting and trapping, $945,527; earned by other industries and occupations, $690,595; annuities paid and interest on Indian trust funds, $555,628.10. The capital of the Indian Trust Fund during the year increased to $8,665,187.35 from $7,870,230.36. The land sold for the Indians during the year amounted to 34,545 acres, realizing $136,230.98.

The quantity of surrendered lands in the hands of the Department was approximately 240,600 acres. The principal outstanding on account of Indian lands sold amounted to $2,305,519.84, a great deal of which is not yet due. The total value of real and personal property of Indians in the nine provinces is placed at $65,285,112. The total area of all reserves is 4,928,736 acres, of which 2,527,683 are under wood, 2,221,279 cleared but not cultivated, 179,274 under actual cultivation, and 753,909 fenced. Of this the Ontario reserves total 1,023,761 acres, the area under wood being 900,568 acres, cleared but not cultivated 70,876 acres, under actual cultivation 67,317 acres, and fenced 116,297 acres.

SOLDIER ENTERS COMMONS.

Another Canadian in Public Life of Great Britain.

The interesting information comes from England that among the successful candidates in the British election is a brilliant young Canadian soldier, Col. Weldon McLean, who has been returned by three thousand majority for one of the Lincolnshire ridings. Col. McLean is a son of Gen. Hugh McLean, member for the new New Brunswick riding of Royal. This is without doubt the first time in Imperial history that a father and a son have sat in an overseas and Imperial Parliament at the same time.

When Canada was raising its first contingent for South Africa among the recruits collected at St. John was a boyish cadet from the Royal Military College, Lieut. McLean. He served through the war with credit, and after finishing his military course launched out on a military career by obtaining a commission in the Imperial army. He served for some time with the artillery in India, and was on hand with the Contemptibles when the war began. He is now a colonel, a D.S.O., an M.C., and bars in addition.

He comes by his military career naturally, as his father all his life has been an enthusiastic military man. He has been actively associated with the militia for fifty years. He served in the Northwest Rebellion and ofered his services for South Africa. When the great war broke out he was past the age when he could persuade the authorities to allow him to see overseas service. He gave himself up to the work of recruiting and organization. He was first commander of the 7th Infantry Brigade at Valcartier Camp, and later was appointed commander of the New Brunswick Military District. In 1917 he was promoted to be major-general.

As far as Ottawa is aware there are in all six Canadian-born members of the new Imperial Parliament. Besides Col. McLean there are Rt. Hon. Bonar Law, Dr. MacNamara, Sir Hamar Greenwood, Mr. Donald MacMaster and Col. Grant Morden.

"Cold Feet" Saved Canada.

Investigation being made by the United States Senate Committee disclosed the efforts made in 1916 by Bernstorff and Albert on behalf of Germany to gain control of the marine war risk insurance business of the United States, the evidence of these activities being supplied by the Department of Justice and read into the records of Bruce Bielaski, the chief of the Department's Bureau of Investigation. Mr. Bielaski also made a reference to the activities in America of the German organization known as the Kriegesbund, from the ranks of which he said the German authorities had hoped to mobilize an armed force to invade Canada. The invasion scheme failed because of what may be termed "cold feet" on the part of the members of the War Brotherhood, who were expected to invade Canada.

Nearly all Japanese pearl divers are women.

The Meat Trade.

The war stimulated the export trade in Canadian live stock products to a degree deemed well nigh impossible five years ago. Exports of beef increased 6.795 per cent. and of bacon and pork products 571 per cent. Total exports of live stock products in the fiscal year ending March 31st, 1918, were valued at $172,743,081, as compared with $53,349,118 in 1914.

Canada has the opportunity of holding this trade and increasing it, for our meat products won a splendid reputation in Europe during the war, and Canada is in the position of the favored nation.

The price of feed has been high, and the cost of producing live stock has been correspondingly high. But the market price of finished animals has also been high. The price may decline gradually, but the price of feed will decline also, and the percentage of profit to the farmer should thus remain about the same. Indeed if the cost of feed declines first, the profit to the farmer will be increased.

J. E. Brethour, of Burford, Ont., who won the first prize for export bacon hogs at the Winter Fair at Guelph, says that with the relative prices of feed and bacon then pertaining there was a good profit.

"With standard feed at $57 a ton and hogs at $16 live weight, I make a profit of over 20 per cent.," said Mr. Brethour. "It is the profit that counts, not the selling price, and profit depends upon the relation of the price of feed to the market price of the finished animal."

Lesson X., March 9, 1919.
Joshua, Patriot and Leader. Joshua, I. 1-9.

Commentary.—I. Joshua's commission (vs. 1, 2). 1. After the death of Moses—This had recently occurred. God had shown Moses the promised land from Mount Nebo and Moses had died. The servant of the Lord—An honorable title is here applied to Moses, and with the service which he rendered he was blessed and was made a blessing to the hosts of Israel and to succeeding generations. Joshua—The original form of the word is Hoshea. It means salvation or savior. The name Jesus is a different form of the name Joshua. He was of the tribe of Ephraim (Num. 13, 8, 16), and was about eighty years old when appointed Israel's leader. He is prominently mentioned three times before this. 1. He was chosen by Moses to lead Israel against Amalek (Exod. 17, 9). 2. He accompanied Moses when he ascended Mount Sinai (Exod. 24, 13). 3. He was one of the twelve chiefs of Israel sent to explore the land of Canaan, and was one of the two to bring back a favorable report. He and Caleb declared that the Israelites were well able to take possession of the land. Moses' minister—Joshua was Moses' trusted attendant. He was doubtless his counselor, and was his chief officer in war. 2. Moses my servant—God was the ruler of Israel, for the nation was a theocracy, and Moses was his representative. Now therefore arise, go over this Jordan—The death of Moses made necessary the appointment of a new leader. It also prepared the way for the entry of Israel into Canaan, for Moses had been forbidden to enter the promised land. The unbelievers were also dead (Num. 14, 25-39), and the time had come for the nation to possess their inheritance. The Jordan is the principal river of scripture history. The name Jordan means "descender." The average fall of the river during its entire course is twelve feet a mile. In one part of its course it falls six hundred feet in nine miles. At the time this command was given, the river had overflowed its banks and was impassable, humbly speaking, for the hosts of Israel. All this people—According to the census mentioned in Num. 26, 2, 51, there were 601,730 men from twenty years old and upward. Land which I do give—The promise which had been given centuries before and often repeated, was about to be fulfilled. The boundaries of this land are given in the fourth verse.

II. God's Promise Renewed (vs. 3-5). 3. Every place that the sole of your foot, etc.—The Lord did not confine his people to a small region, but gave them large liberty. The extent of their territory would be commensurate with their activity in possessing the land. 4. From the wilderness—The southern boundary of the promised possession was the wilderness of Arabia, where the Israelites had wandered forty years. This Lebanon—It is called "this" Lebanon because it could be seen from where the Israelites were. Lebanon means "white," and the mountain range is so called from its snow-capped peaks. The summits reach a height of ten thousand feet. This range formed the northern boundary of the promised land. Euphrates—The eastern boundary. The great sea.—The Mediterranean was to be the western boundary. Coast—Boundaries. Israel possessed all this territory for a short time during the reigns of David and Solomon. The distance from the desert to Lebanon was one hundred forty miles, and from the Mediterranean to the Euphrates about four hundred miles, having an area a little less than the State of Illinois. Canaan proper was only one hundred forty miles long and forty wide, having less area than the State of New Jersey. 5. not... able to stand before thee—After promising large things to Israel, the Lord gave Joshua the assurance that the people then in possession of the country could not withstand the onward movement of the armies of Israel. Special comfort was here given to Joshua, upon whom was placed the responsibility of leading Israel into Canaan and placing them in their respective inheritances. The giants and the walled cities must give way before the man whose faith had declared nearly forty years before this that Israel was able to possess Canaan. I will not fail thee—Joshua knew the divine guidance and help that Moses had received, and he was now placed on the same footing as Moses. The promise is one that could be applied by Joshua in every emergency that could possibly arise in the discharge of his duty, whether in the peculiar directions given regarding the taking of Jericho, or in the defeat of Ai, occasioned by the covetousness of an Israelite, nor forsake thee—Joshua was encouraged by the knowledge that Jehovah cared for him and would not leave him to himself.

III. A stirring exhortation (vs. 6-9). 6. Be strong and of a good courage—This expression occurs four times in this chapter. Joshua must do his part and God would do his. Courage is essential to strength. Moral courage arms one for the moral and spiritual conflicts of life. The tasks which lay before Joshua demanded that he be full of courage and undaunted in the presence of great opposition. This people—The Israelites. Divide for an inheritance—Each tribe was to receive an allotment, and Joshua was to have charge under divine direction of the division. 7. Very courageous—Joshua was thus made accountable for the amount of strength and courage he would have. He must place himself in the right relation to God by submission, obedience and faith. That thou mayest observe, etc.—It would require strength and courage to put in practice the law of God in all its particulars, and insist upon its observance by all Israel, amid the new surroundings in Canaan. Turn not from it—Their existence and prosperity as a nation depended upon their keeping close to the law of God. That thou mayest prosper—This is a comprehensive promise, but it was conditional upon obedience to God's law. Joshua could not expect to prosper in any course except that marked out by Jehovah, either by the law already given, or by direct relation to him. There would be no failure as long as he believed and obeyed the Lord, even though he was going among hostile tribes. 8. This book of the law—Moses had written down the law that God had given at Sinai for the Government of Israel. Shall not depart out of thy mouth—Not only was Joshua to observe it himself, but he was to teach it constantly to his people, and to insist upon parents teaching it to their children. Meditate therein day and night—The word of God received into the mind and heart, and there carefully retained by meditation and obedience to its requirements, becomes a part of one's spiritual equipment for God's service. Good success—Israel's temporal and spiritual prosperity was dependent upon keeping God's law. 9. Have I not commanded thee—This question emphasizes the exhortations already given. Be not afraid—There were giants and strongholds in the land which they were to possess, but there was no reason to fear, since God had given his promise and pledged his support. The Almighty was sending Joshua forth and would sustain him. Neither be thou dismayed—Fear brings weakness and trembling, but courage brings boldness and strength. Thy God is with thee—He who was sending Joshua forth to his work, and whose was the cause which he was to champion, would be on every battlefield and on every journey, and would give all needed strength.

Questions.—Who was appointed Israel's leader in Moses' place? Give a sketch of the new leader's life. Where were the Israelites at this time? What command did God give to Joshua? What extent of territory was promised to the children of Israel? What assurances did the Lord give Joshua of success? What is said regarding God's law? On what conditions was Joshua to prosper? What reason had Joshua for not being afraid or discouraged? Describe the benefits of God's presence.

PRACTICAL SURVEY.

Topic—How to serve one's generation.

I. A new leader.
II. A great commission.
The superb and eventful life of one hundred and twenty years had closed. The final scenes were in perfect accord with his character. The great task of Moses goes with him to the end. Before all the elders and officers of Israel he rehearses their eventful history, renews commands and warnings, reiterates assurance and goes up from the plains of Moab to Nebo's summit to view the inheritance from which he was debarred, and passes into the unseen attended by the divine presence and is buried with celestial honors. "There arose not a prophet since in Israel alike unto Moses, whom the Lord knew face to face."

I. A new leader. One man completes the work commenced by another that both "may rejoice together." God had Joshua ready, "full of the spirit of wisdom, for Moses had laid his hands upon him. He was well fitted to assume the great task laid down. Forty years of close association with his illustrious predecessor had made him familiar with God's way and will. He had no part in the sin and folly of Sinai and had honored God when the multitudes were disobedient. He was a prince of the tribe of Ephraim, had led the host of Israel in repelling the attacks of Amalek and was one of the two spies who withstood public sentiment at the risk of his own life. He drops into obscurity during the years of wandering in the Arabian deserts and comes again into deserved and permanent prominence as the second great leader of Israel.

II. A great commission. "Moses my servant is dead; now therefore arise." A larger sphere opens and he must become a larger and greater man. During all the silent years his manhood had been cementing, and the material is at hand. God's purposes and processes have no blank pages and are often advanced by the removal of great causes and bringing from obscurity a new instrument which he has been silently preparing for the foreseen occasion. Assurance is renewed as the great task is assumed. "Have not I commanded thee?" "As I was with Moses, so I will be with thee." "I will not fail thee." Strength, courage and obedience are essentials of success in every spiritual undertaking. "Be thou strong and very courageous, that thou mayest observe to do." At the close of the war of conquest Joshua performed successfully the delicate task of apportioning the promised land among the various tribes. He stood as leader approximately for thirty-three years and maintained his patience and his piety uninterrupted by the confusions of the camp or the contentions of civil adjustment. The towering summits may overshadow the foothills, but does not obliterate them. Both are essential, and rest upon the same foundations. Faithfulness, not fame, is the standard of service and the measure of reward. "To every man his work." All can not be leaders, but it is as noble to obey as to direct. The world selects its heroes, but God rewards the unrecorded service. The smallest task may be as great a test and expression of fidelity as the greatest achievement. Every man is a vital part of his living age.

THE MUSICAL CATBIRD.

This Canadian Has Ugly Name
But Beautiful Song.

The apple-blossoms in the solitary apple trees in the backyard, the only survivor of the ravage of the San Jose scale, have been scattered by the winds. In their place is an assemblage of little green buttons, which it is hoped will one day develop into pippins. From the uppermost twig of this tree, the family in the house and all the neighbors have been furnished, morning after morning, with a musical melody, the delight of all who hear it.

Poets on this side of the Atlantic have indulged in raptures over the song of the nightingale, which they have never heard but have taken second-hand from European rhymers. Deaf are they to the wonderful vocalists singing in the apple tree to whom, native Canadian that he is, has been accorded no sounding title. He is called—one may blush to write it—the catbird.

This name has been given, it is said, because of one of its cries, which resembles the mew of a cat, and this mew of the cat is the least of this bird's accomplishments. His musical matinee from the top of the apple tree lasts a full half hour each morning, and what a variety, with no number repeated!

A handsomely-shaped chap he is, about eight and one-half inches long from the tip of his bill to the longest of his tail feathers. His suit is of a dark slate color with crown and tall black, and under tall covert chestnut.

Other birds arrive in this neighborhood somewhat earlier in the spring, but do not deserve and should not receive a warmer welcome, not even the red-chested robin, who has impudence and style but small song power. The catbird is related to the mockingbird, and that warbler may well be proud of his relative, who is better known in the north than he is. Science has come to give this bird a name quite as objectionable as "catbird." No one need be expected to pronounce as the name of this species the syllabic monstrosity "galeoscoptes carolinensis." Certainly not, especially as the translation of these words given to us that in English the syllable "gale" is Greek for "weasel," and from "scoptes" comes the word "mocker."

And there he swings on the topping twig of the apple tree and sings and sings, wholly careless of any of the names given to him in either Greek or English. The bird breeds in the north and winters from Florida southward. The nightingale is a smaller bird than our catbird. It sings for the most part after dusk. Our independent Canadian bird sings at any time he chooses. He is an early riser and under the summer schedule now opens his repertory at 4.30 a.m.

Not in the Geography.
Bobby heard his mother tell his father that her mother, who was ill was in a comatose state and she must go to her at once. Bobby immediately ran for his geography and looked diligently for some time through it. Finally he brought it to his father and said: "Father, I can't find the state of comatose in here. Will you?"—Judge.

Horse's Musical Sense.
The musical acuteness of horses is shown by the rapidity with which cavalry horses learn the significance of trumpet calls.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Medicine fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials, you will be satisfied.

Hoe Your Own Row.
If you are indifferent, if you think hard work beneath you, then you are a hopeless proposition. Influential friends may indeed answer your call and do their utmost to keep you retained in the position you longed to secure, but if you have not developed or tried to develop the "talent" you were so sure you possessed, your time is short in the "big" place, and the quicker you awaken to this fact the better it will be for you and all concerned.

How Man is Blessed.
Land is nature's gift to man. If you own some you are among the favored children of nature. One gift calls for another in exchange. Grain and brava is man's gift to nature.

Strong Enough to do Homestead Duty

SIDNEY BENT GIVES THE CREDIT TO DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Six Years Ago He Had Kidney Disease So Bad His Friends Said He Would Not Live Long.

Lydiard, Sask., March 22.—Strong and healthy, and able to do the heavy work of homestead duty, Mr. Sidney Bent, a well-known settler here, is telling his friends of the great benefits he received from using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Six years ago I suffered a lot from my back and kidneys," Mr. Bent says. "I tried a lot of medicine and drugs, but kept getting worse, till some of my friends said I would not live long. Four years ago I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. After taking the first box I felt so much better I decided to continue the treatment. The result is I have been able to do homestead duty for the last three winters."

"I would advise anyone suffering from kidney trouble to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's Kidney Pills have made their reputation by curing kidney diseases and ills that spring from diseased kidneys. They are no cure-all. But if you are suffering from rheumatism, lumbago, sore back, diabetes or some other form of kidney trouble, ask your neighbors what Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for them."

PARTED BY GOLD

"I've begged off," said Jack, quietly. "I mean to go, and I'm going to ask you fellows to go with me."
 "I'm much obliged," said Pop. "The rest laugh satirically."
 "You'll come. Will fill the box, it will cheer the pirate up; come, Beau, don't be disagreeable."
 "Well, we'll go," said Beaumont, "if Pop and Walton will, for it's my opinion it will need four to keep each other going on the mutual encouragement system."
 The other two were talked over, and poor Jack, highly satisfied with his success, lost a few pounds with great enjoyment and walked home to his own chambers.
 He walked, though his private cab and high-stepping cab were waiting for him.
 "I'll stretch my legs," said he to his man, "get off to bed."

CHAPTER II.
 Jack Hamilton's was one of those few instances of a man getting his deserts. He came of a good but a poor family. His mother, a widow, had just sufficient to start Jack on the legal road of life and lived long enough to see him in the robe of the barrister.
 Jack was always a gentle-hearted and hard-working fellow, and he persevered far more than one-half of his associates to attain that necessity of a barrister's existence, a brief.
 A brief came, and Jack astonished his friends by carrying it out well. He was not eloquent as the term goes, but was possessed of a certain honest, straightforward persuasiveness that carried the jury and won him his cause.
 He was to be a great lawyer, but fortune stepped in. His uncle, Sir William Pacewell, died unexpectedly, and the Pacewell property, representing twenty thousand a year, fell to "dear old Jack," while the title went begging to the next cousin, a confirmed bachelor with a snug fortune that in time might also roll into Jack Hamilton's coffers.
 Riches spell a great many men, but they didn't spoil Jack. He had been a soft-hearted, lovable fellow on three hundred, he remained so on twenty thousand. What our readers have already seen of him will show them the man better than all we can say in description. He was handsome, young, and an ardent believer in the virtue and inborn goodness of women. Apple women or countess it was all one to him, both were worthy of respect in his eyes and received it at his hand. He was generous to a fault, and necessarily the victim of all sorts of impostures—impostures that, however frequently they might occur, never lessened his belief in the honesty of human nature and the fine excellence of women.

The night of the card party was cold, but the next was colder, and the three men of the world—Pop, Walton and Beaumont—were not in the best of humor as they drove to the Royal Signet, for which performance they seemed to entertain the highest contempt.
 "Have you insured your life, Jack?" asked Beaumont, as the carriage rolled into the darker region of the East End.
 "We'd better telegraph when we get to this confounded place," suggested

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

Miss Kelly Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

NEWARK, N. J.—"For about three years I suffered from nervous breakdown and got so weak I could hardly stand, and had headaches every day. I tried everything I could think of and was under a physician's care for two years. A girl friend had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she told me about it. From the first day I took it I began to feel better and now I am well and able to do most any kind of work. I have been recommending the Compound ever since and give you my permission to publish this letter."—Miss FLO KELLY, 476 So. 14th St., Newark, N. J.

The reason this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, was so successful in Miss Kelly's case was because it went to the root of her trouble, restored her to a normal healthy condition and as a result her nervousness disappeared.

Popton. "My people would like to know how we get on. What a fearful smell! Fried fish! Hello, here we are. Now, you fellows, look to your pockets. This is the Royal Signet," and the aristocrat groaned.
 Jack laughed as he sprang out of the brougham.
 "No backing out," he said; "come along and I'll bet it's no worse than the West End places."
 The three friends shook their heads, and very dolefully entered the vestibule.
 An attendant came forward, and, recognizing the gentlemen as "nobs," was particularly polite.
 "This way, gentlemen, the farce is over, and the orchestre is a-playin' the overture."

The gentlemen were ushered into the box and looked around.
 "It's a large house," muttered Beaumont.
 "And crammed!" said Popton, with surprise.
 "They are very quiet," remarked Walton, in a tone that denoted his expectation of a riot and a general free fight.
 "Of course," said Jack. "They are enjoying the music, and I'll tell you what," he added, after listening a few moments, "it's a jolly good band."
 "Pull the curtain, for Heaven's sake!" exclaimed Popton. "Don't attract their attention; you don't know what these people are."
 "Nor you either," said Jack, with a goodnatured laugh. "Come, you fellows, make yourselves comfortable. This is quite as good a box as you could get at the Coronet. I'll wager my life the performance isn't far short."
 "The Pirate's Gorge!" groaned Walton.
 "Hush!" said Jack. "There's the curtain up."
 The reader need not fear a detailed description of the plot, acting and scenery. Enough that the first and last were as good as could be found at a West End theatre, and the acting—well, more marked and exaggerated, but very little more unnatural-looking.

 The three friends did not yawn after the first act, and "dear old Jack" got positively interested.
 "I'll tell you what!" he exclaimed, beaming with good nature. "That Montague fellow is a deuced fine actor, notwithstanding the rant and gunpowder. You can't go to sleep over him, and I've done that over a great many of the crack ones."

Popton nodded.
 "Not so bad," he said. "At least no worse than usual. I tell you what! It would be good fun to go behind!"
 Walton shook his head.
 "Don't think you can manage it."
 Popton nodded confidently.
 "Can't we? You'll see!" and opening the box door, he called to the box-keeper.

There was a short parley, and Popton came to the front of the box looking a little less confident.
 "Fellow says it ain't allowed. Manager is awfully strict. The whole affair seems to be a happy family, ladies of the ballet very carefully looked after, and no one allowed behind the scenes. But I've tipped him—one of the sovereigns I won of you last night, Jack—and he's gone to get over the manager. Hello, here he is. What, want our cards? Well, no objection, eh, Jack?"
 "None at all," said Jack, taking out his cardcase. "Tell the manager, with our compliments, that we are curious to penetrate behind the scenes and will take care not to get in the way of the actors."

The man trotted off with the cards, and soon returned to announce that the manager would be happy to show them over.
 "This way, gentlemen," said he, and the four explorers followed by a circuitous route to the strange land behind the curtain—Jack with goodnatured amiability, and the three friends with sundry plaints and growls.
 "Here goes a new coat!" said Walton, as he brushed two feet of cab-webs off one of the dark passages.
 "And a new hat," muttered Beaumont, crushing his head against the low ceiling under the stage.
 "Thank heaven, I've got some old clothes on!" devoutly exclaimed Popton.

"Never mind," said Jack, laughing. "You don't pay for your hats, you know, Beau, and Popton will have a new suit to-morrow; come along," and he surmounted some steep, dirty steps and reached the mystic presence of the "wings."

 He stared, and as it was his first visit behind the curtain he had reason.
 The scenery that looked so beautifully finished, so carefully painted, from the front, was here revealed in all its monstrous coarseness, great layers of paint with the hairs from the brushes sticking to them at every inch, dabs of tinsel, splashes of whitewash and streaks of blue for the delicate sky that seemed as pretty as the real thing.
 Jack drew his head back aghast.
 "I say, you know," he exclaimed, "what a sell. Is it possible that this can be the great scene of the pirate's cave we saw only a few moments since? Why—"
 Beaumont nudged Popton's arm.
 "Look at him," he muttered, "the picture of deluded innocence. Isn't it good? Poor old Jack!"
 "Well, I never would have believed it," continued Jack, "and it's—eh?—rather dirty, too, so you say."
 "Yes, although there's wind and draught enough to carry off a mountain of the light stuff," growled Walton.
 "Hush, here comes the manager."

A short, thickset, pleasant-looking man came forward and touched his hat—tilted it, in fact, off his forehead—by way of salutation.
 "Your servant, gentlemen," he said. "Come to take a look behind, eh? Rather different from the front, isn't it?"
 "Yes," said Jack, in his open, engaging way, that always won its way at the first onset. "Yes, very different, but we are very much obliged to you for permission; I understand it is an exceptional one?"
 "Well," said the manager, with another tilt of his hat, "you see I didn't know that you were 'nobs'—excuse the word—or I shouldn't have been so particular. No fear of gents like you, it's the whipper-snapper young clerks and that sort of thing that I object to. I keep my company select. Never mind what goes on at the West, say I, we'll have it all square at the Signet. I look after my young women, gentlemen, as if they were my own, which they are while their engagement lasts and they are in this house."

Jack nodded with candid approval.
 "You are quite right," he said, "and I honor you for it. We have been very much entertained by the play."
 Before he could get any further a whistle blew, half a dozen men rushed past them, utterly regardless of their presence, the wings, among which they were standing, began to shake and move, the tread of a number of feet pattered around and above them, and the manager suddenly started into life.
 "This way, gentlemen; mind the dust, it's pretty thick; this way," he said, hurrying off; "they're clearing for the first scene of the extravaganza."

The four gentlemen followed the manager quickly, fighting their way through a stream of carpenters, ballet girls and gasmen, and entered the greenroom. It was a large lofty place, with a number of chairs, a round table, upon which was scattered a heap of dresses and stage properties, and the walls were covered with old playbills and portraits of dead-and-gone theatrical celebrities.
 "Take a chair, gentlemen," said the manager, his hat all sides of his head at once. "I'll be back directly the scenes are set, by your leave," and, with a tilt of adieu, he ran off.
 The four friends looked at each other with comical bewilderment.
 "Well, exclaimed Beaumont, "this is a sweet game! What will become of us?"

"A full reception of the whole company and stand treat all around; champagne and oysters," mournfully ejaculated Popton. "I've done this sort of thing before."
 "Thank Heaven, Jack will have to pay for it!" said Walton, laughing. "It only wants the presence of the pirate to demand our heads, and with an onion to soak in our blood to finish it."
 "By Jove! here he is, then," said Jack, and he arose as the hero of the melodrama, still attired in his dancing costume, pushed open the door and entered.
 He stood still for a moment as if embarrassed by their unexpected presence, but after that moment doffed his plumed cap, and, with a stage bow, said, in strangely low accents, considering the deep tone with which he had been declaiming his part so short a time previously:

"Your servant, gentlemen. I thought the room was empty."
 "And so it ought to be," said Jack, smiling, "for we are intruders."
 "Not at all," said the pirate, mildly, "not at all. By the way, sir, looking hard at Jack. I think I have seen your face before. Did I not see you in Mr. Puff's?"
 "Yes," said Jack. "It was of him I purchased the basket for your benefit, which I hope has been a bumper."
 A faint flush of pride suffused the parts of the pirate's face where the rouse was not, and he inclined his head slightly.

 "I thank you, sir; yes, it is a good house; the public does not desert its old favorites, sir."
 "Old," said Jack, raising his brows; "come, not old, surely?"
 The pirate nodded decisively.
 "Yes, sir, getting old and used up," he said, with a hollow laugh, "but I manage to keep away off the stage, I hope; how—how did you think?"
 "Splendidly," said Jack, quietly. "You carried me with you; eh, Walton, was it not capital?"

"Yes," said Walton, and the others chimed in, more to please Jack than the worn-out actor.
 "Yes, you played capitally, and with great spirit."
 Again the pirate inclined his head and with the same heightened color.
 "I have played up to Keen, gentlemen," he said.
 "They've all played up to O'Keen," muttered Walton.
 "But times have changed now, the drama is not what it—"
 Ring, ring! ding, dong! and the callboy's voice drowned his low one.
 "Ladies of the ballet, and the Spirit of the Deep."
 A rush of feet and a buzz of voices followed the summons, and Jack, walking to the door, saw a group of ballet girls pattering past in their gauze dresses, followed by a crowd of men and boys, made up in twill and green calico—which would look like satin from the front—as demons.
 A minute after the Spirit of the Deep, likewise in green, but further adorned with a dazzling tunic of tin, glistering with spangles, burst into the room.

"I'm going on," he said, addressing the pirate, hurriedly. "Mind, Anna-bella, she's got the one all right and will pull through if she can get over the nerves. Look after her, I can't have the scene spoiled, mind!"
 "Very well," replied the pirate, anxiously. "She will do her best. Would you like to see the scene, gentlemen?" he continued, turning to the four friends. "You can see it from the wings; it's nicely set, I believe."

The gentlemen followed him to a vacant spot at the wings from which they could see the scene of one of the few extravaganzas.
 The pirate, after fidgeting nervously for a few moments, murmured something and turned away.
 Jack looked at him curiously.
 "Wonder who Annabella is?" she Popton, looking, too. "Seems rather nervous about her, doesn't he?"
 "Hush!" said Walton, "they can hear you in front, Pop. How quiet they are, and what a mass of heads they look. This is the first night of the extravaganza, evidently."
 "Look out!"

The warning came just in time, for a moment after a boy with a lighted torch dashed past them, leaving a strong smell of burning spirit and a streak of smoke behind him.
 "Whew!" said Beaumont, through his handkerchief. "That's pleasant—what's he saying?"

"Oh, announcing the queen; and I say, look there," replied Walter, smiling his arm.
 At the next wing stood the pirate, beside him a young girl just trembling between girlhood and womanhood.
 She was nestled as close to him as possible, her face turned up to his with a sweet, encouraging smile that contrasted strongly with the anxious look on his rouge-smearsd one.
 She was calm and composed enough, but his hand, twined lovingly around her waist, trembled with suppressed nervousness.

"You—you—are sure, Mary, you have got it all right?" he asked, in a hollow voice. "For heaven's sake, do not forget the cue—I fear for nothing else—do not forget the cue."
 "Don't be frightened, father, dear," replied the girl, and her voice sounded rarely pure and sweet. "Don't, oh, don't look so distressed! I am sure I shall go through it all right. There, there," and she stretched on tiptoe to his quivering lips. "You will make me nervous if you tremble so. Come, dear, dear father, be brave!"
 He groaned and turned his head aside.

"Mary," he muttered, "I never thought to live to see this. I always prayed against this, I—"
 She raised her finger, pale and white enough without the powder with which it was covered, and pressed it upon his lip.
 "Not a word more, dear, not a word. It is for the best, trust that; and see, I don't mind. I'm only too glad to help you and my own darling. There, the boy has called my name. Omenor kiss."

She drew his head down again, and tripped past the four at the wing onto the stage, picking up a silver wand as she ran.
 Her robe brushed Jack as he made room for her, and her dark eyes rested for a moment on his face as she paused for a second on the edge of the stage.
 Jack looked after her with a heightened color, and a bright, admiring light in his honest eyes, and he leaned forward to catch her first words with an eagerness that necessitated his being dragged back by Beaumont.

WOMEN'S RIGHT TO GOOD HEALTH

MOST TROUBLES AFFLICTING WOMEN ARE DUE TO WEAK, WATERY BLOOD.

To every woman belongs the right to enjoy a healthy, active, happy life. Yet nine out of every ten suffer years of agony, usually from some form of bloodlessness. That is why one sees on every side pale, thin chicks, dulled eyes and drooping figures—sure signs of headaches, weak back, aching limbs and uncertain health. All weak suffering women should win the right to be well by refreshing their weary bodies with the new, rich, red blood that promptly transforms them into healthy attractive women. This new, rich, red blood is supplied in abundance by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which reaches every organ and every nerve in the body. Through the use of these pills thousands of women have found a prompt cure when suffering from anaemia, indigestion, heart palpitation, rheumatism, general weakness, and those ailments from which women alone suffer. There is no part of this broad Dominion in which you will not find some former sufferer who has regained health and strength through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Among the thousands of women who bear testimony to the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Mrs. W. Ferguson, Plattsville, Ont., who says: "After the birth of my second baby I was left very weak, and was steadily growing thinner and more bloodless. As time went on I became so run-down that my friends thought I was in a decline. I tried different medicines, but none helped me until I was advised to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I began taking them and was not long in finding that they were helping me, and by the time I had taken a half a dozen boxes I felt like a new person. I had increased in weight, my color returned and I was again enjoying my old-time health. You may be sure when opportunely offers I will gladly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."
 You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box; or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Ontario's War Effort.

The record of Ontario in giving almost half of Canada's total in men and money to the war was reviewed with pride by Sir William Hearst in an address to the Engineers' Club a few weeks ago. The Premier said that Ontario with thirty-one per cent. of the country's population, had produced forty-three per cent. of the recruits, or 231,191 of the 538,283 total. The total voluntary contributions by Ontario for patriotic purposes, he said, amounted to $51,691,000, while for all Canada the amount was $90,000,000. To the Patriotic Fund Canada had given forty-two millions and Ontario twenty-one millions of that amount. Ontario had contributed five millions to the British Red Cross, and to the Canadian Red Cross three millions in cash and four millions in kind. To the Navy League Ontario gave $1,000,000, and to the Belgians $1,100,000.

The war tax of one mill on assessable property had realized the sum of six millions, but up to the end of the last financial year the Provincial Government expended nine million dollars for war purposes. Ontario had given 250,000 bags of flour to Britain, valued at $780,000; food and other supplies to the Belgians, apples to the men in the Royal Navy and the Canadian forces, and 500 Lewis machine guns to the Canadian infantry. To the Patriotic Fund the province gave $1,000,000 in 1917 and $1,200,000 in 1918, plus grants to various municipalities; recruiting grants had been made to many regiments, and there had been votes to the Navy League and the Maple Leaf Clubs. Christmas boxes costing $170,000 had been sent to Ontario soldiers, and thousands of dollars' worth of athletic goods; there had been grants to tuberculosis sanitarium, grants to stimulate aviation, to the increased production movement and the sufferers in the Halifax disaster. The Orpington Hospital had cost $1,250,000, salaries to civil servants with the forces amounted to $250,000; the production campaigns cost $400,000; the work of the Soldiers' Aid Commission cost $100,000, and miscellaneous items not mentioned above had absorbed $1,000,000.

THE WAR PICTURES.

Canada's Effort Now Being Shown at Royal Academy.

Dealing with the exhibition of Canadian war pictures which opened at the Royal Academy of Arts in London on January 4th, a contributor to the Pall Mall Gazette says it is a unique spectacle of a nation's supreme endeavor portrayed, not in retrospect, but during its accomplishment by her artists. The seventy leading painters of Canada, including some famous British ones, have risen gloriously to the task set by their Government when it took them out to the trenches in France and Flanders. From the landing of the first 33,000 men at Plymouth to the capture of Mons on the last day of the war, no phase of Canada's war activity has been neglected.

There are nearly 400 paintings illustrating the career of the Canadian corps in France, including the magnificent paintings of the landing of the Third Canadian Brigade at St. Nazaire, by Edgar Bundy, A.R.A., and the giant canvas by Major Richard Jack, A.R.A., "The Second Battle of Ypres." Major Jack has also a fine painting of "The Battle of Vimy Ridge." In the same way the historic Canadian battles are dealt with each in their turn. Regina Trench, the taking of Courcellette and so on, and then the Arras-Cambrai road is shown, along which the Canadians are seen streaming after three months of incessant battle to the bitter fight for Cambrai, whence they passed to their last engagement which culminated in the triumphal entry into Mons.

Apart from the actual fighting, however, the paintings give a comprehensive view of every other phase of Canadian war activity overseas, the Forestry Corps, which has provided timber for the armies of four nations; the famous railway troops, which often working desperately under a devastating fire, have contributed so much to victory; the Veterinary Corps, which has charge of three million sterling worth of animals; the hospitals and even the patrol boats in the English Channel, some of which were manned exclusively by Canadian crews. There is a splendid collection of portraits, interesting personalities such as Sir Robert Borden, Sir George Perley, Princess Patricia of Connaught and Lady Drummond, who labored so unceasingly for the Canadian Red Cross. There are also portraits of many members of the Canadian high command and a whole gallery of Canadians who have won the Victoria Cross.
