

LOOKING FOR INJUNCTION.

City Hall Expects Move From the Cataract Company.

Solicitor Lobb Gives Some Estimates of Power Cost.

Meeting This Afternoon to Deal With the Matter.

That the Cataract Power Company will serve the city with an injunction this afternoon or on Monday to prevent it applying to the Hydro-Electric Commission for a supply of power is the belief of those in close touch with the situation.

Mayor McLaren this morning received from Solicitor Lobb the assurance promised by him that Hamilton would not be bound to take power exclusively from the commission.

I am instructed by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission to advise you that if an application is made on behalf of the city of Hamilton, pursuant to the Act of 1909, under paragraph eleven of the agreement of 4th May, 1908, for a supply of electric power, the power will be supplied at the following estimated prices per horse power, including sinking fund:

1000 H. P. $17.92; sinking fund . . $1.52
1500 H. P. $17.50; sinking fund . . $1.39
2000 H. P. $16.65; sinking fund . . $1.26
2500 H. P. $16.13; sinking fund . . $1.19
3000 H. P. $15.79; sinking fund . . $1.11
4000 H. P. $15.55; sinking fund . . $1.13

Paragraphs 2 (b) and 13 (a) of the agreement of 4th May, 1908, above referred to, provide that municipalities should take power exclusively from the Commission, were conceived by the commission and the municipalities, parties to the agreement, as a means best calculated to increase the quantity of power used as quickly as possible, and thereby reduce the price per horse power, more and more. All other municipalities interested have concurred in this plan, but if the city of Hamilton does not desire to co-operate in this respect the commission will not insist upon the provisions of these paragraphs of the agreement, so far as they relate to taking power exclusively from the commission. Yours faithfully,

A. F. Lobb, Solicitor for the Commission.

The matter will be dealt with by the power committee this afternoon.

What will be the outcome of the meeting? The Mayor was asked.

We will recommend the Council to take a stoppage of horse-power, unless some one thumps us.

A rather significant admission made by Solicitor Lobb the other evening is that if Hamilton's use of power drops as low as 500 horse-power, as it may during winter months, the price will run up as high as $26 a horse-power.

LOCAL OPTION.

Dundas People Growing Confident of the Result.

Dundas, June 26.—A meeting of the executive of the local option committee was held on Thursday evening. There was a fair attendance and a very optimistic feeling prevailed. Two questions principally were discussed, providing the necessary "sinews of war" and securing and distributing literature bearing on the question. As to the former, a subscription paper was opened and a good large part of the "wisecrutch" was in a few minutes subscribed by those present.

As to the literature, it was left to a committee to report upon. The feeling that Dundas will pass local option in January next seems to be gaining ground, and it strengthened not a little by the persistent and defiant determination of some license holders to violate the act. The license inspector is being severely criticized.

The Speaker's chair, made by the Valley City Seating Company, for the Speaker at the House of Commons at Ottawa, is on view at Collinson's jewelry store, near the post office. It is an article, both in design and mechanical execution, of the highest and best in the art of woodwork and upholstery.

Miss Jennie Grant, teacher, of Chicago, is home spending the school holidays with her mother.

Mrs. W. H. C. Fisher and the Misses Fisher have left for their summer home at Lake Joseph, Muskoka.

Reports that will place all in this locality are to the effect that Rev. S. H. Gray is gaining materially in health and strength.

TO U. OF W.

Hamilton Young Man Appointed to Professorship.

Herbert C. Bell, son of Mr. William Bell, K. C., of this city, has been appointed professor of modern history in the University of Wisconsin.

Mr. Bell graduated from Toronto University a few years ago and during his graduation year a fellowship was conferred upon him by the University of Pennsylvania for a thesis on modern history, which he presented to that college. During the past four years he has been the occupant of that fellowship. His work there has been a certain amount of lecturing and research in other universities. During the summer months he spent his time in the universities of France and Germany in research for the University of Pennsylvania.

A Number of Changes-- Father Holden to Paris.

His Lordship the Bishop of Hamilton, has made the following clerical changes and appointments, to take effect on Saturday, the 3rd of July next:

Rev. J. P. Holden, administrator of St. Joseph's, to be pastor of Paris.

Rev. A. J. Lyles, transferred from the cathedral to be administrator of St. Joseph's.

Rev. E. R. Walsh, from St. Patrick's, to be administrator of Acton.

Rev. J. Arnold, from Acton, to the cathedral.

Rev. Geo. Cassidy, from Dundas, to St. Patrick's.

Rev. J. J. Feeny, from Oakville, to be administrator at Dundas.

Rev. T. L. Ferguson, from Freelon to Markdale.

Rev. Wm. Becker, from Paris to Freelon.

Rev. A. C. Montgomerie, from Walkerville, to Decemerton.

Rev. J. S. O'Leary, from Brantford to Cayuga.

The three deacons preparing for ordination to priesthood are to be appointed assistants at the following places: Rev. F. Hinchey at the cathedral; Rev. P. Padden at Walkerton; and Rev. A. Capps, at St. Basil's church, Brantford.

The diocesan retreat for the clergy will take place at St. Jerome's College, Berlin, opening on Monday, July 5th, and closing on the following Saturday.

NINE RODS,

But a Great Neighboring Tree Got the Lightning.

In these days of scientific advancement theories held by our forefathers are daily being disproven. The lightning rod whose protection the unsuspecting farmer fully relied upon to ward off the much dreaded electric current familiarly known nowadays, when harnessed, as "juice," is now relegated to the scrapheap of useless paraphernalia. While it is still doing business on the old stand, the electric currents earthwards seem to choose more favorable methods than the lightning rod vendor ever surmised.

The numerous trees on the roadside seem to invite and attract the lightning. Numerous instances occur where the tree has been killed outright. An experience of how close one can monkey with the bus is fraught with considerable danger.

On Thursday night lightning struck a tree in front of Edward Oakes' home, Hickory Lodge, on the Mountain Top, along the Ancaster Road. The house is situated about thirty-five feet from the tree that received the full current of electricity.

The family were in the house at the time, and were greatly alarmed by the sudden shock.

Now, the strange feature about this happening is the fact that the house is amply protected by conductor rods and nine points on the house are enough to make Hickory Lodge storm proof.

It Is True

You can buy glasses from almost any druggist, jeweler, hardware store or 5 and 10 cent store, and there is practically no difference in the glasses they all sell. But! It isn't just a pair of that kind of glasses you want, you need a specialist to examine your eyes to know the glass you require. A $20 pair of glasses are worthless unless they are made to suit your eyes.

A CITIZEN—IS YOUR SUBSCRIPTION CARD IN THE $50,000 AUTO YET? DON'T DELAY AND DON'T BE AFRAID TO BE LIBERAL.

Y. M. C. A. BUILDING FUND IS OVER HALF SUBSCRIBED.

Because Saturday is a busy day, and to get the reports in for the early papers, the captains of the Y.M.C.A. building fund teams closed their reports at 11.30 to-day. The result, under these conditions, was satisfactory. The amount obtained was just under $5,000. The special committee had $1,200 to add, but the teams had their best day yet, reporting $3,748.

F. R. Smith's bunch had a great day, turning in $1,897, which gives it almost double any other team.

The large subscriptions reported to-day included one for $1,000 from Col. J. J. Grafton, one for $500 from William Vallance, and one for $500 from Eli Van Allen.

Official total Friday . . . $29,488
Special committee . . . 1,200
Business men's committee . . . 3,748
Grand total . . . $32,436
The total for the day . . . $4,948
Reported by teams of the business men's committee, through their captains:

Table listing names and amounts: No. 1, B. O. Hooper $300; No. 2, N. E. Adams $284; No. 3, R. T. Kelley $182; No. 4, D. M. Barton $309; No. 5, F. R. Shepard $53; No. 6, F. Melroy $28; No. 7, J. H. Horning $390; No. 8, G. H. Lees $400; No. 9, W. H. Seymour $4; No. 10, F. R. Smith $1,897. Total $3,748. Subscriptions for $500 and over: Robert Mills $5,000; Geo. Rutherford $3,000; Thos. W. Watkins $2,000; Alfred Powis $1,000; J. J. Greene $1,000.

REV. C. SINCLAIR APPLGATH, Who Will Enter Upon the Pastorate of Ryerson Methodist Church To-morrow.

Table listing names and amounts: Eagle Knitting Co. $1,000; Col. J. J. Grafton $1,000; F. F. Dalley $500; John E. Brown $500; Friend $500; J. Orr Callaghan $500; Geo. Vallance $500; Chas. Mills $500; William Vallance $500; Eli Van Allen $500.

Every team of the Business Men's Committee reported at the daily meeting held at Y. M. C. A. headquarters yesterday, and the ten teams showed up with an aggregate of $3,826, this being $456 more than the same committee reported on the previous day. The standing at the luncheon, the second day was: No. 10—F. R. Smith capt. . . . $1,529; No. 1—B. O. Hooper capt. . . . 1,461; No. 3—R. T. Kelley capt. . . . 1,190; No. 4—D. M. Barton capt. . . . 1,019; No. 7—J. H. Horning capt. . . . 585; No. 2—N. E. Adams capt. . . . 435; No. 8—G. N. Lees capt. . . . 297; No. 9—W. H. Seymour capt. . . . 267; No. 5—F. E. Shepard capt. . . . 234; No. 6—F. Melroy capt. . . . 171.

It was pointed out at the meeting that subscribers have two years in which to pay their contributions. The terms of the pledge card state that the payments are to be made quarterly, at intervals of six months. The first quarter is to be made September next, and the second six months later. Y. M. C. A. short term campaigns are successful largely because of the easy method of payment.

The alternative is allowed of paying the entire amount at any time suitable to the subscriber, provided it is before the date set for the last quarterly payment.

The first contribution to be received from a lady was a voluntary one from a stenographer, employed by a large business concern. Capt. D. M. Barton and W. J. Robinson had called at the office to see the manager, but he was out. When they explained to the lady in question the object of their visit she said that she could give something and would like to have a share in the undertaking to help the boys. She signed a card for $4.

"Every contribution is welcome," said General Secretary T. F. Best. The dol. (Continued on Page 8.)

FIRST STANLEY MILLS & CO. "HAMILTON AT A GLANCE" TRIP. On Thursday last this company gave the Anglican Young People's Association, of Toronto, and points adjacent to Hamilton, a trip of one hour and a half around Hamilton and to the Mountain Park.

TO ENGLAND.

Mr. and Mrs. Aldous Leave—Dr. Coward's Choir.

J. E. P. Aldous, B. A., and Mrs. Aldous left for England yesterday. Mr. Aldous takes a trip to the old land every third year to keep in touch with his relatives. While there he will also spend some time on the continent. He will make his headquarters with his brother in Sheffield, where his father, Rev. John Aldous, was vicar of Trinity Church, in the Sunday school of which Dr. Coward served as flautist.

About a month ago Mr. Bruce Carey had a letter from Dr. Coward, saying

WRECKED BY TORNADO.

Beaver City, Neb., June 26.—Big Springs, Kansas, is reported partly wrecked by a tornado yesterday. There were no fatalities or serious injuries. Half a dozen houses and barns in the path of the storm were demolished, but the inmates escaped by taking refuge in cellars.

At Simcoe Street Methodist Church, the pastor, Rev. H. B. Christie, will preach both morning and evening. Miss Ethel Wilson will sing Piccolomini's "Pardoned" in the morning, and in the evening Mr. A. H. Jucksh will sing Costi's "Jacob's Prayer."

THEFTS.

Three of Them Reported to the Police To-day.

Alfred Mathews reported that his tools were stolen yesterday from a house at the corner of King and Dundurn streets.

Open that door.

Hydro-Electric power may come high, but we've got to have it, it seems.

Is there any danger of John Patterson's road being built in the next twenty years?—Anxious Inquirer.

Horrible thought! The Patriotic Fund Trustees may be blind, deaf and dumb, and not know what the people are saying.

There is no thought, I notice, of giving Chief Smith a bubble wagon. Doesn't he need to answer hurry calls as well as Chief Ten Eyck?

The Galt Reporter has not yet called Mr. Lobb a lobbyist for promising Hamilton power concessions, but it may make rough house any day now.

You've taken them off, have you? Well, I guess you won't catch cold, if you're careful.

All things come to him who waits, if he waits in a place that is moist, but never wait for an uptown car. On the downtown side of the street.

But suppose the cathedral should again get into debt, what would happen?

Who would have thought that the Wentworth street frog pond would ever become a municipal issue?

Wait until the newspaper men get back from England. They will tell us whether we are to build Dreadnoughts for Britain or for Canada.

Now, girls, if you want to get into the June Bride class of 1909 you will have to hurry up.

The gentlemen who are doing the canvassing for the Y. M. C. A. $50,000 deserve the encouragement of the citizens. It is a good work.

It is doubtful if you could get an international council of men together who could transact their business in a more business way than the women are doing who are now assembled in Toronto.

No doubt Mr. Stewart will be only too anxious to cover the Mayor's money. Didn't he prove over a year ago that the Hydro-Electric power was to be almost as free as the air?

You might take your dog out for a constitutional to-morrow.

If we are to have the playgrounds in operation this season that money will have to be subscribed pretty soon. Why not take it out of the patriotic fund?

No wonder Toronto is laughing at Hamilton over the power deal. Even Guelph is chucking about it.

We are told that Hamilton needs more hotels. Does that also mean more bars?

To-morrow will be the crap-shooters' busy day.

Keep cool.

The way the Times baseball sluggers played rines around the Secretary team last night should bring forth something like the following from the sporting columns of the Spg. to-day: "Wanted—Pitcher for the Spg. soft ball team, also playing manager who can instruct new players how to hit and catch. RELEASED ON $2,000 BAIL.

Charge Against Deleby Smith Stands Until Monday Next.

Race Follower Studied Dope in Prisoner's Pen.

Let Off on Condition That He Leaves the City.

Only two cases were up at the police court this morning, and they were soon disposed of.

Deleby J. Smith, who was arrested yesterday on a charge of false pretence, was let out last night at 7.30 on $2,000 bail. The bail was fixed by Ald. T. H. Crerar on the recommendation of Crown Attorney Washington. Smith, it is alleged, secured goods by misrepresentation from the Star Manufacturing Co., Toronto, and they had him arrested. The case was remanded until Monday.

The other case was one for the justices of the peace, C. G. Booker and William G. Moore, as it was a county case, and Mr. Crerar had no jurisdiction.

Morris Moore, a race track follower, who was charged with trespassing on the Jockey Club premises, contented himself with perusing a small package of sporting "dope" until the J. P.'s arrived. The prisoner, who had jumped the Jockey Club fence, said he had been in Montreal and before that in Toronto in answer to a question as to where he lived.

Chief Smith said he had just told him that he was from New York, whereupon the prisoner started to tell of his wanderings since leaving his home in Gotham, where he said his brother now resides.

The chief said as the prisoner's home seemed to be in any place where he could hang up his hat he thought it would be a good thing to send him down for about six months.

"I have got a home and will go back to New York, where my brother lives," he said, in as pitiful a tone as he could command.

The court decided that unless he got out of the city quickly he would be sent down for thirty days unless he could pay a fine of $50.

The prisoner did not seem to understand what it meant to get out of the city until he was asked if he knew the way to Toronto, and upon his replying in the affirmative, the handful of benchers began to smile.

Hamilton Wins Prize.

Y.M.C.A. First in the Number of Bible Certificates

Hamilton has won another international honor. The Central Y.M.C.A. of this city, last night received notice that it had won the Dan MacDonald memorial cup, awarded annually to the association having the largest number of its members pass the Bible examinations and win certificates. Mr. W. J. Robinson, boys' secretary, has not yet received the particulars.

The winning of the cup proves one thing conclusively—that the spirit side of the boys is being developed. That should have an important influence with the people who are figuring how much they are going to give to the boys' building $50,000 fund.

HIGHFIELD CAME FIRST.

Won the Rifle Match Open to All Canada.

Honors are coming thick to Highfield School. Yesterday after being able to announce a most creditable list of University successes at the speech day exercises, the principal, Mr. J. H. Collinson, received a telegram from the commandant of the Royal Military College at Kingston informing him that the Highfield team had won the Inter-school rifle competition, open to all Canada. The school was second last year. The team that won this year was composed of J. A. Turner, N. Y. Bartlett, F. M. Gibson and M. W. Walker, Yarmouth County Academy came second.

FINE LAUNCH.

Montreal Party Left Yesterday in Hamilton Built Boat.

James W. Duncan, of Montreal, with a party of relatives and friends left for there this morning in his fine new fifty-five foot gasoline cruising launch. The party included Mrs. Duncan, Dr. R. W. Duncan and Mrs. White, of Montreal. The cruiser, which was turned out at the Jutten works, is the largest and the most elaborately equipped boat of that type ever built in Hamilton. It was inspected yesterday afternoon by Mayor McLaren and a party of aldermen.

WEST MOUNT SURVEY

THE LAST CHANCE FOR THE PEOPLE OF HAMILTON TO BUY CHOICE SOUTHWEST RESIDENTIAL LOTS AT A LOW PRICE. WHY?

Because WEST MOUNT is the last available large block of land to be subdivided into Desirable, Properly Restricted Building Lots in the Residential Southwest.

Because WEST MOUNT is in a class by itself on account of its magnificent natural location, picturesqueness and close proximity to Radial Railways.

Because WEST MOUNT has no undesirable lots, and those who have investigated the merits of this survey have purchased one or more Lots without any hesitancy, demonstrating that these lots are being offered at a very moderate price.

Because WEST MOUNT has appealed to the wise investor and builder as a safe and profitable investment as well as to the home-seeker.

Because REAL ESTATE has been and always will be the safest and surest investment for the careful and prudent man.

Because WEST MOUNT present prices are only $200, $225, $250, $275, $300 and $320 per lot, according to location, and lots run in size from 40x110 to 40x144 feet to a 12-foot alleyway.

Because WEST MOUNT terms are easy—$25 cash secures any lot, balance can be paid on easy payments, if desired.

OUR CITY OFFICE will be open from 9 to 1 o'clock, and OUR BRANCH OFFICE, corner of Aberdeen and Platt avenues, every afternoon from 2.30 to 5.30, also evenings, 6.30 to 8 o'clock. TAKE H. & D. CAR TO OFFICE DOOR.

Parcel Post to Bahamas. Ottawa, June 25.—The parcel post convention arranged between Canada and the Bahamas comes into operation on July 1. The postage rates on parcels for the Bahamas will be 12 cents for each pound or fraction of a pound. The maximum weight for a single parcel will be seven pounds. A customs declaration, forms for which can be obtained at any postoffice, must be affixed to each parcel.

New York Man Suffering From Curious Malady. New York, June 25.—Though his examination of more than one hundred thousand patients since he assumed the post of admitting physician at Bellevue Hospital has resulted in observations of many rare maladies, Dr. Leroy Smith yesterday confessed himself puzzled by the strange disease which had afflicted James McFall, a car driver, living at No. 315 West 144th street. The case, it is held, may prove to be one of the most unusual ever met by physicians.

McFall, who is 37 years old, explained when he applied for treatment that during the last year his body gradually had been turning black. His entire body, with the exception of one side of his face, now is as black as the skin of a negro. The right side of the face alone has not been affected.

Dr. Smith admitted he was unable to specifically diagnose the cause of the peculiar transformation. He said the patient must be suffering from the unusual disease known as melanosis, which discolors the skin through an abnormal deposit of pigmentary matter in various parts of the body. Specifically this is an organic affection, due to the softening of the tissue by such deposits, especially tubercles.

Railroad Mileage. At the close of the fiscal year 1908 the railroad mileage of the United States was 239,000, as compared with 126,883 in 1880 and 184,648 in 1898. The net capitalization is $13,900,007,012, an increase of 39.8 per cent. over the figures of 1898.

ALIMONY GRANTED MRS. HOWARD GOULD BY COURT. A Separation Allowance—Justice Dowling Decided That Plaintiff Had Disapproved Charges of Intoxication—Husband Guilty of Desertion.

New York, June 25.—After a trial which lasted nearly three weeks, Katharine Clemmens Gould obtained a legal separation from her husband, Howard Gould, third son of the late Jay Gould, by a decision of Justice Dowling in the Supreme Court to-day. With the exception of alimony her victory was complete, but in this phase of the case the court decided that $36,000 a year was sufficient, though in her suit Mrs. Gould asked for $250,000. She has been receiving $25,000 a year from Mr. Gould.

It was in the vindication of charges of intoxication and her alleged relations with Dustin Farnum, the actor, that Mrs. Gould scored most strongly, for notwithstanding the long array of witnesses for Mr. Gould, who gave such testimony as to make Mrs. Gould appear at times as a defendant rather than plaintiff, the court held that the alleged "intoxication" may have been due to excitement. As to Dustin Farnum, it was held that the association with him came after Mr. and Mrs. Gould separated, and that the husband apparently made no objection. Upon request of Mr. Gould's counsel for stay of judgment, Justice Dowling granted a stay of thirty days.

In giving judgment, Justice Dowling said he had found great difficulty in fixing the amount of alimony. The court could make no provision by way of substitution for the luxuries which the plaintiff enjoyed while living with the defendant. It could not provide her with a yacht, or provide her with means for keeping a yacht. But the court could, and should insure the plaintiff against suffering from any reasonable need, when she had so far as the evidence disclosed, been without fault, and the defendant had himself been guilty of desertion. For to apply to the plaintiff in a case of this kind, no more relief than simple provision for keeping life and soul together would be obviously unfair and would be putting a premium upon desertion of wives by their husbands, and would be making it easier for them to reduce their expenses by simply leaving their wives and paying no more than was required for the actual necessities of life.

He had concluded to award the plaintiff a sum, which in his opinion, would enable her to live in comfort and ease, and with dignity, being her share of the fortune of the defendant. He had fixed that at the sum of $3,000 a month, $36,000 a year, which is about $100 a day.

APPOINTED TO SENATE. Hon. Arthur Boyer, of Montreal, Succeeded Late Senator Thibaudeau. Ottawa, June 25.—Hon. Arthur Boyer, of Montreal, formerly member of the Quebec Government without portfolio, has been appointed to the vacancy in the Senate caused by the death of Senator Thibaudeau. The appointment was made at to-day's meeting of the Cabinet, and the honor was entirely unsolicited. In fact no applications for the vacant senatorship were received from anyone by the Government.

Of course no member of the Hat Makers' Union got to the head by being banded together.

MILLIONAIRE DROWNED.

Lost His Life in White Lake, Michigan. Detroit, June 25.—A special from Muskegon, Mich., to-night says: Alex. Bromberg, a millionaire of Chicago, was drowned in White Lake, near here, this afternoon, under circumstances which for the present are shrouded in mystery.

A companion, who was in the boat with Bromberg, claims the unfortunate man missed an oar stroke, and losing his balance, fell overboard. It is known, however, that Bromberg was a good swimmer, and the police scout the idea of an accident explained in this way. The boat was less than fifty yards from shore when Bromberg went overboard, disappearing in twenty feet of water.

The body has not yet been found, although a flotilla of launches is dragging for it. Bromberg was fifty years of age, and owner of the Chicago Heights Baseball Club grounds. He was a millionaire many times over.

AN UNWELCOME GIFT.

Pope Didn't Want Motor Car Forced on Him. Chicago, June 25.—A special cable to the Daily News from Rome, Italy, says: The Pope was greatly annoyed by the gift of an automobile forced upon him by a wealthy American. The Pontiff repeatedly refused the offer of the machine, assuring the would-be giver that he much preferred walking to riding. When the automobile was first offered, a year ago, the Pope, after politely declining it, suggested that another gift would be more acceptable. The American seemed persuaded to accept this decision, but he secretly had a special car built and immediate delivery to the Pope. The Vatican thus was forced to accept the car, which is now stored in a stable, and is not likely ever to be used by the Pope. The giver's name is withheld, as it is suspected that the object of the gift is merely personal advertisement.

THE HAMILTON TIMES

SATURDAY, JUNE 26, 1909.

VERY POOR ECONOMY.

The Hamilton Herald is at its wits' end for excuses for advocating the purchase of power from the Hydro-Electric Commission at a much higher price than the local electric industry, and it resorts to some peculiar efforts. It is constrained to admit that the 1,000 horse-power which it proposes the city shall take from the Commission will cost $17,92 (Mr. Lobb's figure was $20.70, and there was the likelihood that it might reach $25!), and it tries to find some comfort from treating $1.52 of the amount as payments into sinking fund to cover cost of the transmission line, and pleads that in thirty years hence the line will be paid for. Very ingenious, isn't it? In thirty years, too, the makeshift easements will have expired, and the deterioration of the line will have suffered will lessen its value very much. Besides, which the progress of electrical science may long ere that compel the scrapping of the entire investment. Buying an electrical "pig-in-a-poke" now, to be delivered thirty years hence, is a mighty poor business. In no science or art is investment so uncertain.

It is much to find the Herald admitting that Hydro power will be dearer than Cataract power under the contract with the city. If they are inclined to deal fairly with its readers, it would admit that Mayor McLaren's figures, based on Mr. Lobb's statements, are well within the probable cost mark. Besides, there are expenses which the city must bear, which would not have to be met under the Cataract contract. It would probably be safe to calculate the difference as between $16 and $21 as the price we pay for that transmission line. But let us call it only $4. On 1,000 h.p. that would be $4,000 a year.

Now $4,000 a year is not much for a rich community like Hamilton taxpayers to give away annually in this manner; but in the course of thirty years, at 4 per cent, compounded semi-annually, it amounts to the tidy sum of $233,312.

It is worth considering whether there is not a better way. We have guaranteed power at that much, or more, saving to the city. Why not take it, and if we out of the generosity of our hearts wish to make a contribution to the rival municipalities of part of the cost of the transmission line, so as to put them in a better position to compete with Hamilton as an industrial center, put into a sinking fund the $1,500 or so a year which the advocates of the scheme say will entitle us in thirty years to a share of the line or what may then remain of it? We might—or our children might—marvel at our besotted folly, but at least we should have got the cheaper power, and salvaged something as compared with the present proposition.

"GREATER HAMILTON."

This movement we heartily support. All of us should co-operate and do our level best to boom the city. But the gleeful humor being displayed by the Herald and some of its Hydro-Electric extremists over the city being compelled to join with other municipalities in getting power supply to these other municipalities facilitated and cheapened and paying $8 to $10 extra per horse power just to spite the home company is not the best exhibition that can be imagined of pulling together.

What was the "feverish haste" displayed last year over the Cataract contract as alleged by the Hydro organ? That contract was before the Council for weeks, if not months. The city engaged an electrical expert, Mr. Abbott, of Cleveland, who gave the city careful and valuable assistance, and Mr. Hugh Rose, K. C., of Toronto, was here day after day assisting the solicitor in securing the best possible contract for the city.

"Feverish haste" is, however, just now very evident on the part of the organ, and to those who would like to damage the Hamilton company. Every day's delay seems to cause much anxiety. Does it ever strike these people that the Cataract company has done more for Hamilton than any other agency ever did? Did it not occur to them that other municipalities are wondering what sort of people live in Hamilton, who, not content with having a best possible supply of electric power themselves, want to join outsiders in cutting their own throats? We may be called a "Cataract organ" or anything else, but we have no interest, direct or indirect, in the company or any of its belongings. We are not subsidized, and the Hydro organ gets the same patronage as we do. But we dislike seeing the city make a fool of itself with no other apparent motive than to hurt a Hamilton company. Interruption of dividends on money invested in the home enterprise has already resulted from the direct hostility of the Government commission and the threatened hostility of the city itself, and doubtless the anti-Cataract people are still more or less fearful lest people who originally invested in the Cataract enterprise, at what was considered a foolish risk, should make some money out of it. It is, we fear, this sort of jealous and spiteful spirit on the part of not a few newspapers who should know better that hurts Hamilton.

We understand that Cataract power rates to manufacturers were originally placed at a low figure to induce manufacturers to come to Hamilton, and that these rates have remained practically unchanged. If Hydro-Electric power is to cost the city $5 or $10 per horse power more than Cataract power, will any sane man say that its introduction in Hamilton will be more apt to pull down than to raise the Cataract rates?

If the "Greater Hamilton" promoters want to do something for this city they had better free it from the influence of men like ex-Mayor Stewart and some of those who are so prominent on behalf of the Hydro-Electric and the American Power Company in the recent by-law election.

WE'RE NOT TOUCHY.

The Buffalo Times marvels at the Empire State, New York, people's invitation to the Kingston militia to join them in celebrating the Fourth of July, and it asks: "Wouldn't we think it pretty nifty of the Canadians to ask it?" Wouldn't we think it considerably staggered if our regiments should accept? Our contemporary doesn't think the American Eagle's feelings would be hurt if he were allowed to scream all by himself on that occasion. But, really, is there not a danger that both our neighbors and ourselves take this matter far too seriously—that they treasure too carefully the memories of the misunderstandings and follies and fights of former and less intelligent generations? Suppose John Smith's great grandfathers had a row with Tom Brown's grand-uncle and "lambasted" him, or got "lambasted" by him, or that the Smiths and Browns of two or three generations later or better or worse? Does it repeal the Golden Rule, or does it make twice two, five? Are we to turn our steps toward the past, or toward the future? Let our neighbors effervesce on the Fourth of July and be as noisy as they will. We shall celebrate the First, and we shall welcome them to join, and we shall accept, in a neighborly spirit, an invitation to share in their festivities. Canadians do not live in the 18th or 19th century; theirs is a nation of the 20th century, and 20th century ideas, and principles and methods animate their statesmen and people. Let the "Eagle scream on the Fourth, old man! 'Eggs-undheit!' Uncle Sam.

THE PRIMARY DUTY.

Rabbi Jacobs, in addressing the Council of Women, declared that "the safest and surest remedy for the moral evils of the day would be found if mothers discharged their sacred duties within the home." Rabbi Jacobs is probably right, but still he will hardly attain popularity among a certain class of mothers. There are a great many of them who will freely spend their efforts on franchise and other movements while they cannot find time to devote the attention necessary to bring up their offspring as good citizens and useful, moral living men and women. The Rabbi says "the crying need of the world-to-day is mothers. Not mothers that are anxious to shine as the queens of society and to cut a fine dash in the realms of fashion; not mothers whose only object in life is to hurry from one pleasure to another; not mothers who neglect their own duties in the attempt to improve others after the manner of Mrs. Jellyby, not mothers who had their whist parties and matinees in the afternoon and bridge in the evening; but good mothers, good, religious, sensible and exemplary mothers, who will teach their children to excel in every quality and strive for the betterment of the world." These words may not sound pleasant to some of the butterfly mothers and to those who think that they have a higher mission than that of giving to the world well trained, highly moral and healthy children who are to be the men and women of the future. But they are not too strong. They point to a great truth which cannot be too strongly impressed upon the women of the world. It will bode evil for the race when business, politics, or amusement takes precedence over this prime duty which the law of nature places upon them.

There will probably be some people who will not be satisfied with the Railway Board's order for drinking water on electric cars. They will still hanker for something with a stick in it, or at least a dash of lemon.

An illicit whiskey dealer, who has been plying his business along the N. T. R., has been drowned near Superior Junction by the capsizing of his canoe. So far as he is concerned, the law will no longer be evaded.

During April, 1909, 4,602 homestead entries were made by settlers in the Northwest as compared with 2,987 in April, 1908. The total migration to Canada for the month was 29,753. The number of acres patented during April was 441,667.

The people of Nebraska are enjoying the prospect of soon seeing the State free from debt, there being only about $100,000 of a burden left. The policy which brought about ex-Governor Sheldon's defeat is bringing him justification.

The election petition against Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Ottawa, has been dismissed for want of prosecution. Nobody imagines that there ever was any serious intention to bring it to trial. It was entered merely as a bit of stage bluff.

If the teachers of the Province are wise, they will have nothing to do with pension schemes. Pay the teachers as they deserve, and let them insure their own old age. With the Government annuities system in force such schemes are quite uncalled for if not absolutely vicious.

Magistrate Kingsford, of Toronto, is still wrestling with the Sunday ice-cream question. In four cases before him, the contention is urged that ice-cream is a food, under the decision of the courts, and its sale on Sunday is, therefore, legal. His judgment will be given on Friday.

Mrs. Gould wins, her husband being held guilty of desertion and condemned to pay her $36,000 a year alimony. She will, of course, have to economize severely to get along on a sum which hardly provided her dresses. She sued for $250,000 a year, but failed to convince the court that she should have it.

Yes, the Hydro-Electric Commission is the "whole tip" in the scheme. It cannot be sued. It can say to the municipalities in "Pay," and they must pay without demur. If it decides to give Hamilton special favors, who shall say it nay? If that sort of thing is not rebuffed, the time for Hamilton to protect itself is now.

Mr. W. T. R. Preston has returned from Japan in which country he looks for a large market for Canadian goods in the near future. One of the Japanese papers which, taking its cue from Canadian Tory organs, made a bitter personal attack on Mr. Preston, has been forced to pay $5,000 damages for libel, and other suits are pending.

United States Consul Seyfert says that about $200,000,000 of United States capital has been invested in manufacturing in Canada. And this stream of capital is still flowing our way. While that condition continues we can afford to smile at Aldrich's attempts at manipulating the United States protective tariff to our disadvantage.

Mayor McLaren is willing to back up his statement that Hydro power will cost $20 to $24 per h.p., according to the amount used, by depositing $500 in each case, to be forfeited to charity if he is wrong. He only asks disputants to venture similar deposits. Where are the Herald power Solon, ex-Mayor Stewart and the other touters?

The St. Thomas Times appeals to the police of that city to disperse the rows of idlers who obstruct its principal streets. It complains, too, of the numbers of women and girls who haunt the pavements in the evening, "hoping to catch a fellow," and alleges that "it is this class that breeds men street idlers." As the old story of "Chereche la femme." As the recent Mr. Adam did, we still charge the adverse balance to the woman.

The Canadian Trade Commissioner to Australia points out that Canadian trade with stores in that country has not been able to meet competition with the Scotch manufacturers of similar goods. In New Zealand, too, he says the effort made to establish a trade in stores during the time of the exhibition revealed the fact that prices were 25 per cent, too high. It would appear from this that the increased duty asked for by a few Canadian manufacturers would not help them in their export trade. What is needed is capacity to provide the goods more cheaply.

PLEASED AT THE DROP. (Toronto Star.)

It is to be hoped that the fruit growers will kindly excuse the householders of Toronto if they indulge in broad smiles at the sudden drop in the price of strawberries.

MOST SOUGHT AFTER. (London Free Press.) Because Leon Ling is the most-sought for man in America it does not follow that he is the most popular.

WAS NEEDED. (Toronto News.) The Y. M. C. A. of Montreal has raised $300,000 for a new building. The people felt that some place for training future aldermen was needed.

LEAVE IT ALONE. (Grimby Independent.) My advice to every one who has a notion to taste whiskey is to leave it alone, but if they have already tasted it or got the habit, cut it out, do as it do, call for ginger ale and lager or apply what is becoming very popular now, the "Bean Soup Cure."

INDIVIDUAL INSTRUCTION. (Brandon Expositor.) The Elsie Sigel tragedy should not have the result of creating undue prejudice against Chinese, nor yet of discouraging all forms of missionary work among these people. The system of individual instruction of Chinese by young girls is bad, but so is such instruction of men of any race.

DENISON, THE ROMANCER. (Kingston Standard, Conservative.) Colonel G. T. has a very vivid imagination. Certainly it will be news to Canadians that England has insulted them, and certainly, also, it will be news to them that the Empire will fall to pieces unless held together by traditions. It seems to us that the Empire is being done pretty well with the more natural ties of sentiment and love, and that artificial ties of trade or otherwise are, as a matter of fact, not particularly binding, but rather lead to misunderstandings and jealousies.

FRESH AIR. (Dundas Banner.) On an early morning drive through the country, the fact that very few people take advantage of God's greatest gift, pure fresh air, was brought forcibly to our attention recently. The windows of the sleeping apartments in the majority of cases were seen to be closed, or else open very slightly from the bottom. Truly this is a lamentable state of affairs. Surely it is not through ignorance that people disregard this primary law of health, but rather, we think from carelessness and custom.

BETTER ABANDON THE TAG DAY. (Philadelphia Bulletin.) The second "Tag Day" as a means of raising money to aid in the support of playgrounds for school children in the midsummer months, has proven such a failure that it is understood that this method of securing funds will never be tried again. How complete the failure was, is shown by the difference in the receipts last year and this. In 1908 the profits from the sale of the tags were $20,168, while this year $3,168 represents the contributions of those persons who consented to be "tagged."

Importance of Good Teeth. In an address delivered before the Manchester and Salford Sanitary Association H. W. Norman stated that during the war in South Africa it was found necessary to send back 3,000 soldiers who were unable to bear the rigors of the campaign solely on account of the condition of their teeth. They were not able to chew "bully" beef and hardtack. Teeth seem to have deteriorated, judging by a comparison of the dental apparatus of the modern young person with that of his ancestor's skull in anthropological museums.

LONDON IS THREATENING.

Will Make Trouble If Hamilton Gets Any Concessions.

New Sewage Disposal Plant Needs Some Attractions.

Mayor McLaren Hopes Stewart Will Cover His Deposit.

Alterations will have to be made to Hamilton's new $150,000 annex sewage disposal plant before it is put in operation. Yesterday afternoon the Sewers Committee inspected it, and City Engineer Macallum pointed out a number of changes which he considers necessary.

One thing that Ald. Allan, Jutten and other members of the Council will insist on if Hamilton takes Hydro power is that the city shall have the right to install its own meters at the Beach, to the annex sewage disposal plant and any other place where it is using power.

Here is another howl from London to-day over the proposed concession to be made by the commission to Hamilton: The city of London will not, if it can help it, allow Hamilton to come into the Niagara power scheme unless that city assumes its share of the responsibility and expense.

The street railway reconstruction work on Barton street has progressed so rapidly that there is no longer any doubt about its being completed by July 1. The city, however, will be kept busy most of the summer with its part of the work.

So far no one has come forward to cover the deposit Mayor McLaren will make $500, that the Hydro power will cost Hamilton $20, and another $500 that it costs $24.

It was the intention that the City Council should meet only once a month after Monday night during July and August. The arrangement, however, will not go into effect until two weeks from Monday, as the Council must meet then to pass accounts.

The Street Railway Company will complete the laying of the south track on Barton street to-day. It will take another week to finish the concrete work.

C. Solvishburg has secured a permit for a frame house on Prospect avenue, mountain top, for Joseph Morris, to cost $1,500.

The Board of Health on Tuesday evening will deal with the proposal to establish a central station during summer months to supply babies with pure milk.

The Finance Committee will meet on Monday afternoon at 4.30. The business includes consideration of the Board of Health's recommendation that funds be provided for garbage collection on the mountain top and in the annex.

Infectious and contagious diseases reported during the week include nine cases of measles, three of scarlet fever and two each of diphtheria, whooping cough and chickenpox.

The Well-Dressed Woman

FASHIONS IN PARIS

By Rose Marie

Paris
FIRST of all, I am going to talk about the new skirts, for the change in skirts is the most noticeable at the present time. Very narrow skirts, which scarcely permitted the wearer to walk, and never to sit down comfortably, are decidedly passe. Like all extreme fads they were quickly adopted by everyone and as quickly dropped by the woman of fashion, who demands exclusive styles.

Skirts are made to fit closely about the hips, but there is a gradual widening half way down between the hip line and the knees, so gradual, in fact, that very little more fullness is suggested, and while the skirt shows a graceful fullness it does not, however, give the slightest suggestion of godets.

At the lower edge the width has increased from the scant two and a half above and below the waistline, fits with an easy grace permitting a slight movement of the body.

This gown again shows the familiar front or back panel or both, and in many instances the bodice is plain fitted to below the hip line to give the effect of a tunic, with a circular skirt. This line is covered with a beautiful arrangement of braid in a combination of wide and narrow widths.

Another charming arrangement is with the plain front and back panel, lengthened slightly above the knees with the material set in deep kilt. At the back a shallow yoke of the ubiquitous white tucked net or batiste forms a becoming contrast.

The rage for yokes and stocks of silver and gold thread laces is over and these trimmings are only used on dressy afternoon and evening gowns.

Another type of dress—or probably I should say coat, to be more correct—seems to be a combination of the tunic overskirt and long sleeve yoke bodice.

At first glance it appears to be a tunic dress. It is really a separate coat, although not a coat that can be worn open, for the Parisienne seldom wears a coat entirely unbuttoned. It is only slightly fitted, in three-quarter knee length, with long close-fitting sleeves, or it is often sleeveless, worn with gumpes or underwaist of net or chiffon to match in color.

It is made with a round yoke, for there is not the semblance of mannish lapels in this adorably feminine garment, which fastens at the shoulders and down one side or up the center back. Instead the tiny found yoke is finished with small triangular shaped revers of satin or braided, or with a narrow knife plaiting of white batiste or black satin.

The skirt is plain carrying out the lines of the coat or kilted, in which case, the plaits are extremely shallow so as not to give too much width at the lower edge and they are all turned in the same direction.

Another new point about the coats, which are still in medium knee length or long three-quarter style, is the tendency to "lap over" the points in slight cutaway style. This effect is given likewise by applied revers of satin or cloth held in place with covered buttons at this point.

Buttons, I must tell you, are covered with the material or braided in preference to coverings of silk or satin.

The collars are noticeably wider, with yard type to probably three and a quarter or three and a half yards. The greater portion of the fullness is drawn to the back or sides; the front is perfectly plain, although easy fitting.

Linen or silk stock.

The plain, broad front and back panel is still a fancied style, with the sides of the skirt cut in scant circular outline.

I crossed on the boat with Redfern, the famous fashion maker, who designs the magnificent gowns for the court of St. Petersburg as well as for so many women of fashion in our own country and, who, also made all of the beautiful gowns worn by Mary Garden at Hammerstein's this past season. I asked him if we were to see the passing of the close-fitting Directoire type of dress. He replied, very emphatically, "No, no! Skirts will undoubtedly have a little more width, but the graceful, clinging character will still be found in the new clothes. And why should I change them? There is nothing so beautiful as a woman's form and why hide it?"

Then I heard a whisper that one of the fashion leaders, who had been early to advance the close-fitting skirt last year, had made all of the new models with much fullness, but was forced to quickly change all of the new models for no one would buy! Another fashion maker in the Place Vendome, is advancing the full skirt in a more modified form, which has met with great enthusiasm on the part of the customers.

Clothes of chiffon lightness and texture, as well as silks and cottons are gathered or laid in fine plaits or tucks at the side and back, but the clinging lines are retained as the fullness is invariably held in with draped bands or over tunics.

When the bands are used they suggest the classical Grecian period, as they are arranged at a point below the lines of the hip or the knees, giving a quaint, stinky appearance and requiring unusual skill in the art of walking on the part of the wearer. They are really quite charming in effect.

This dressmaker, by the way, is still hanging the skirts slightly above the normal waistline. Redfern favors the long waistline and is not making any new shortwaisted models.

To return to the subject of full skirts, I noticed many charming striped cottons—voiles, percales and linens—made with the sides of the skirt scantily gathered with plain front and back panel in the familiar style with crosswise stripes, extending to the high yoke.

The gown of the moment in Paris is the plain semi-fitted Princess, of dark blue serge, trimmed in black soutache. By semi-fitted I do not mean in the loose effect, for instance, like the coats, but a slightly fitted garment, which, while it closely follows the lines of the figure only a tiny notch at the lapels or in shawl effect. They should be soft and unlined except for an interlining of drilling.

The most delightful color combinations are used on the new coats with the smartest results. A soft diagonal serge bronze suit in simple tailor outline had wide color and deep cuffs of prune faille silk. This same shade was used with charming effect on a trottier suit of navy blue. A soft gray blue had a touch of apricot satin under silk touches in dark blue.

The two-piece suit has lost not a vestige of its favoritism. For Summer it has changed the style from the one-piece dress with sleeves of the material, to a sleeveless, low yoked gown. The gumpes may be of all-over lace, chiffon, net or embroidered batiste as one prefers. This makes the wearing of the long coat more comfortable, which, of course, must match in material.

Economies in Dress

By Ella Stan

THAT saving a penny, or even a dollar, is not always economy, is one of the first lessons to be learned if one wishes to be well and becomingly gowned. Particularly is this true of the girl who has only a limited amount to spend on her clothes. There are many ways of getting appropriate and inexpensive clothes if one only takes the time to think the matter over and buys with a definite purpose instead of picking up anything that is offered as a bargain.

The new bolero effect and the slightly-lowered waistline, with the skirt cut plain, but by no means "colante," distinguish this pretty street dress for Summer wear. The corsage is trimmed with narrow bands over the shoulders and the bolero adaptation is fastened in front, or is made in the semblance of fastening, with three straps in a darker shade than the gown.

The under-bodice is closely tucked, while the yoke and half sleeves are of embroidery. The few buttons on the skirt add a touch that is distinctive without being extreme.

The model may be attractively carried out in natural color pongee or in colored shantung. Linen in any of the new dull shades will also be pretty, while if desired any lightweight serge or woolen material can be worked out with equal charm.

At this season of the year, foulards are offered in many shops at real bargains. When one has already planned for such a dress because it is needed, the opportunity offered to get it at a reduced price should be embraced. If the silks are of a good quality and of staple color and design, several dollars may be saved by buying them at the shop offering the attraction.

Those of the bordered variety should be dealt in sparingly, remembering first that it takes expert workmanship to turn out a satisfactory gown of such good, and that the following Spring and Summer they will not be to the fore. On the whole it will be better to choose a staple color either perfectly plain or dotted over with some small design.

A fact that does not seem to be well known, is that a conventional design is always in better taste than a spreading bunch or cluster of flowers thrown loosely over a surface.

Further, it should be remembered that the smaller the design the more generally satisfactory will be the effect when the garment is completed.

As to bargains in finished gowns and wraps, the same general rules will hold good. The best time to find real bargains in ready-to-wear articles of clothing is at the end of a season. At that time shops are selling their stock off so that they will not have it on hand for another season, and also that they may have room to show their new goods.

A WIDE VARIETY IN SHIRTTWAISTS—By Marian Morris

EACH Spring hears a great hue and cry of "No more shirtwaists!" Each Summer sees the American women blossoming like a cotton field.

Which only goes to show the fallibility of fashion prophets in general and points to the triumph of the American woman in particular. For the fact remains that if she wants to wear a thing she's going to wear it—fashion or no fashion.

So each year finds hundreds of designers scheming new ideas in shirtwaists and thousands of manufacturers busily making them—all secure in the knowledge that they are the Summer livery of the great American feminine public and as such, must necessarily be worn.

This year finds a wide variety in materials as well as models. All the usual range of batistes are here, plain and embroidered, French percales for tailored shirtwaists, deliciously sheer lawns for more elaborate waist, and, of course, linens in plenty. But, besides these friends of other days there are fine French washing voiles, snowy and crisp, a queer woven elastic mesh, which also comes from France—and crepons. It is really the latter materials that have taken the waist-wearing women by storm and every quality from the diaphanous imported stuff at $1.75 a yard, to the domestic crepon, so inferior that you would hardly know it was of the same family, and which sells for 15 cents a yard, is being eagerly bought and made up into waists—and still more waists!

Fine plaiting used for this set. Can be attractively made of net, chiffon, French lawn or batiste.

The French crepon is a charming fabric, nearly all linen, crisp, sheer and fine. The crepon of American manufacture is all cotton and thick and heavy. But, they both have the recommendation of laundering without ironing—wash, rinse, a shake and out they go on the line. When they are dry they are ready to put on.

Last season the output of crepon of fine quality was controlled by a large London house, and it only appeared in imported waists, which sold at quite fabulous prices on the strength of being a novelty. This year it is here and sold by the yard, but the shops can hardly keep up with the demand for it.

Not only in plain crepon does it come, but in embroidered effects, and in colors—lovely soft pinks, lavenders, blues and yellows—for it is a material which dyes beautifully.

Laces which will appear well washed but not ironed are, of course, the proper thing with which to trim crepon waists. Cluny, Irish crochet, hand-made linen torchon and all the Italian laces, which are made by hand and wear like iron, are used as insertion and edging. Crepon waists, lace inserted and embroidered, and then dyed to any desired shade are considered much smarter than waists of color with white lace.

Embroidery tells on these waists, as it has never done on anything else and, even a few stitches of embroidery—some scattered coin dots or a boldly designed spray of blossoms and leaves—immediately lifts a waist out of the commonplace and gives it distinction. Combinations of lace and embroidery are very good and Irish crochet beading outlining the seams is a clever touch.

All kinds of ornaments of Irish lace are to be had in the shops, all ready to apply. Buttons of Irish crochet there are by the hundreds, from the tiny button, which almost requires a magnifying glass to be seen, to the huge round button, from which one might very nearly eat one's luncheon.

Some of these buttons are intended for real use, but the majority of them are solely for ornament. The round, little buttons are seen applied promiscuously on some waists—whereas there happens a space which seems as though it ought to be filled up.

French voiles are treated in much the same way as crepons, coarse laces being the first choice for their trimming, also, although there is no veto on using Valenciennes and Mechlin and such laces in their elaboration, as they require ironing.

The waists of less diaphanous materials are apt this year to be buttoned in front. Very thin and elaborately embroidered waists still button up the back.

There is quite a distinction made this season between the waists intended for afternoon and morning wear. Because with all that is said against them, they will be worn with suits of light weight and color, at less formal afternoon affairs.

For the tailored morning girl there are straight up and down waists of linen cut on excellent lines, with the box plait in front, embroidered in white and a touch of color. The mannish cuffs also are embroidered and fasten with cuff links. With this she wears a stock of satin, with a narrow line of linen turned over at the top.

Another model intended for the morning hours is of crepon, opening down the front, with military effect of braid applied, and a straight standing collar fastening under the chin in front, braid loops and round crochet buttons holding it together. The sleeves of this waist will be long and scant and plain, opening up the back of the arm to the elbow and fastening with braid loops and buttons. Braid is applied at the wrist, simulating a deep cuff.

Lace trimming for waist and collar.

On these more severely simple waists tucks are used as a means to an end—to accomplish the necessary fullness—rather than as ornamental stitchery.

But in the thinner waists—of more transparent material—fine, hand-rim tucks enter largely with the scheme of decoration.

For the woman who insists on the Dutch neck or turned-down collar—and let me once more impress upon you that there is an appropriate time and place for everything, and the city streets, even on Summer days, are not the places to bare your neck to the public gaze—there are waists especially designed. These have the trimming placed low, if the waist has a turned-down collar, or if it is collarless, lines of trimming—lace or embroidery or both—finish the cut-out neck.

While shirtwaists of white will be, as always, most in demand, colored waists will be worn to some extent during the Summer months. Nearly every novelty material seen in white is duplicated in colors and some of them are too lovely for mere woman to resist.

IF ONLY HE'S A CHINESE.

That is Getting to be the Universal Police Test For Arrest.

Three Unoffending Celestials Are Wrongfully Nabbed.

Police Now Believe Leung Did Not Premeditate the Murder.

New York, June 25.—Leung Lim, murderer of Elsie Sigel, was arrested in only three places to-day. The police of Rochester arrested him to-night, a few hours after he had been arrested in Philadelphia. Earlier in the day he had been arrested on Long Island.

It was also reported that he had sailed as a member of the crew of the steamer Arizonan, bound from Norfolk to San Francisco, but it was proved by the ship's clearance papers that she left Norfolk with the crew originally shipped in New York.

In the meantime, the police know no more about where Leung may be than they did on the day the girl's body was found. The police notion that the murder was premeditated, that the jealous Leung had his trap set as early as two weeks before his young Bible teacher stepped into it, was spoiled to-day. The person who spoiled it was Chung Sin, satellite of Leung, now sweating in the house of detention and being sweated by the police as often as his condition will stand.

Chung now swears that the conversation between Elsie and Leung just before the girl was killed, overheard by him as he listened in his room on the other side of the flimsy door, made him sure that Leung had no thought of murder until that moment. The police are not repeating much of this alleged conversation, but they believe Chung, so much so that an inquirer at headquarters is told:

"This murder was not premeditated. We are sure of that now. All that has been said about the jealousy of Leung and his anger because of Elsie Sigel's growing fondness for the Port Arthur restaurant man, Chu Gain, is true, but he had not planned the murder and probably had nothing of the sort in his mind until circumstances that arose in the course of that meeting of Leung and Elsie in Leung's room on June 9th, made the death of Elsie the Chinese's only escape from a situation he had created.

This addition to the narrative of Leung is his third confession. He has not said a word so far that implicates him in the actual strangling of the girl and the police are still inclined to believe that he was not implicated.

Chu Gain, Leung's rival, applied to the district attorney's office this morning for permission to leave town, but although he has offered to increase his bail from the present $1,000 to $5,000, his request was refused. His lawyer is confident that he can in no way be implicated and the police said unofficially to-night that they had no further desire to hold him and did not care whether the district attorney's office released him or not.

TWO MORE DAYS

Murderer Roughmond to Hang on Monday Morning.

Stearford, June 25.—All preparations are now about complete for the execution of Frank Roughmond, the negro sentenced to hang on Monday next for the murder last winter of Mrs. Peake, the wife of a farmer residing near here.

As his death approaches, the condemned man seems to feel more keenly the fate which is to be his. While all his life he has been of a comparatively peaceful character, this one action of his has cut short his days, and he appears to be sincerely sorry for what he has done.

The murder was a most brutal one, and aroused the feeling of the entire district. The negro had just been released from the Stearford jail, where he had served a term for vagrancy. Going westward from the city he entered the house of a farmer near the city, and, no one being at home, he strangled the farmer's wife, Mrs. Peake. His fiendish crime committed, he calmly lay down and went to sleep, in which condition he was found by the owner of the farm and his sons.

Roughmond was given a speedy trial, and sentenced to hang.

Heat-Crazed Woman Leaps From Roof With Her Little Girl.

New York, June 26.—Driven temporarily insane by the heat, Mrs. Emma Monthly last night threw herself and her eight-year-old daughter from the roof of a five-story tenement house on Quincey street, in an exclusive section of Brooklyn. Both were killed instantly.

Ms. Monthly's husband is employed as superintendent of the apartment and the family occupied rooms in the basement. Mother and daughter went to the roof early in the evening in search of relief from the oppressive heat. They had been there only a few moments when the mother went to the edge of the roof and, picking up the child, leaped over the low cornice to the asphalt below.

Hundreds of passersby and residents in the vicinity witnessed the tragedy. Mrs. Monthly was 30 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Nesbitt have returned from a short visit to the Caledon Club.

Mrs. A. H. Hope, Charlton avenue west, entertained informally at the tea hour on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Parker and her daughter, Mrs. R. S. Morris, MacNab street south, left this week for Martha's Vineyard.

The Ladies' Golf Club team went to Toronto yesterday to play a match with the Rosedale Golf Club.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Hewitt and Miss Genevieve Hewitt, who have been staying with Colonel and Mrs. Grant, left early in the week for England.

Mrs. Giles, New York, is the guest of Mrs. Findlay, Bold street.

Mrs. Sanford is spending the week in Toronto.

Mrs. Doolittle is visiting in Painesville, Ohio.

Mrs. W. W. Osborne is in Toronto, staying with Mrs. Albert Dymant.

Dr. and Mrs. Baugh left yesterday for a two-months' tour of Great Britain and the Continent.

Ex-Ald. Thomas Allen and Mrs. Allen left last Monday to spend the summer at their Muskoka home.

Miss Nesbet has been the guest of Dr. Augusta Stowe Gillen, in Toronto, most of this week, for the meetings of the Quinquennial Congress of Women, and for many social functions in honor of Lady Aberdeen and the delegates.

Miss Edith Hendrie, of this city, will be one of the bridesmaids at the marriage of Miss Dorothy Vivien Kirkpatrick to Mr. Charles Coghill Egbert, of Morristown, N. J., which will be solemnized at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Niagara Falls, on Wednesday afternoon, June 30, at 4 o'clock. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Dr. Hughes, of Morristown, assisted by the Rev. Philip Wheeler Moshier, rector of the church. Mrs. Vincent Matthews Preter, the bride's sister, will be matron of honor, and Miss Louise Egbert, of Morristown, sister of the bridegroom, will be maid of honor. The other bridesmaids will be Miss Jean Alexander and Miss Jessie McMurrieb, of Toronto.

IN THE GRAVE.

Funeral of the Late Bessie Goddard Yesterday.

A large number of the friends of the late Miss Bessie Goddard attended her funeral, which took place from the residence of her father, 307 Wilson street, to Hamilton cemetery. Rev. Dr. Williamson, pastor of Emerald Street Methodist Church, conducted the services, assisted by Rev. F. W. Hollinrake, and the pall-bearers were Messrs. Partridge, Davis, Evans, J. Peate, A. Partridge and Macdonald, all of whom are members of the Emerald Street Methodist choir, in which deceased was a soprano soloist. The floral tributes were very numerous, and included pieces from the Official Board, choir, Sunday school, Church Ladies' Aid, and Mission Circle of the church.

An old and highly respected resident of Fruitland passed away at an early hour this morning, in the person of Mrs. Sarah M. Stewart, wife of Alex. Stewart. Deceased was born in Saltfleet 85 years ago, and had been a lifelong resident. She had been in her usual health up to about two weeks ago. The deceased was a kind wife and a beloved mother, and a member of the Fruitland Methodist Church. She leaves, besides her husband, one daughter and three sons: Mrs. J. G. Kerr, of Stone Creek; Thomas and George, of Fruitland, and Albert, of Chicago. The funeral will take place on Monday at 2 o'clock, from her late residence, to the Fruitland Methodist Church, for service and burial.

It may be that justice is represented as being blindfolded because she is ashamed to look herself in the face.

Man Strikes His Brother in Abdomen With a Knife.

Young Farmer Is In Jail, Charged With Murder.

Norwich, June 26.—Crazed by drinking hard cider, George White, a young farmer living in the Town of Pharsalia, fourteen miles north of this village, slashed his brother, Walter White, across the abdomen with a large jack-knife about 10 o'clock last night, inflicting a wound that proved fatal early to-day.

George White had been cultivating potatoes yesterday and indulged freely in hard cider. In the evening there was a family gathering at his house to celebrate Mr. White's birthday, and more hard cider was partaken of. The guests included Walter, a younger brother of George. During the evening George White quarreled with his mother and struck her. Walter interferred and after quiet was restored, lay down on a couch.

George was sitting in the door, whittling a stick, when he suddenly wheeled around and struck his brother in the abdomen with the knife. After committing the crime he disappeared, but walked into the house of a neighbor to-day and was arrested. He is in jail, charged with murder.

The glories of the Royal Ascot meeting are pen pictured by cable by "American Race-goer" in the New York Herald, in this fashion: "Once again the King triumphed. At Ascot to-day his Derby winner, Minoru, won another race, and when in consequence the hand played 'God Save the King' everybody was glad.

Two years ago there were 200 automobiles in attendance at the Ascot meeting on Gold Cup day. To-day there were more than 5,000 automobiles out there. Going back to London they made a continuous parade 25 miles long. There was no confusion, no trouble, and but very little delay.

The King was probably the most pleased man present. He looked so, at least, and well he might, considering that his horses won two days in succession. He and the Queen, with his party, arrived in state from Windsor Castle before the first race and left just before the last one.

Toronto Whitewashed Montreal Yesterday.

The fourth day of the Hamilton Jockey Club's meet saw good fields, a fast track, fine weather and a big crowd. The members' stand and lawn were thronged yesterday, that section having more visitors than on the two previous days.

Only two favorites won and both of these were odds-on—Steve Lane, 1-2, in the Walker Cup steeplechase, and Juggler, at 3-5, in the race over the turf. No long shots were put over, the rest of the card going to second choices.

The prize won by Mox Schmidt, the "Flying Dutchman," at the Scarborough Beach tournament last Saturday, has been held up by the Toronto I. C. A. C. on the ground that Schmidt is a professional. Schmidt says he received a C. A. A. U. card two days previous to the sports from M. M. Robinson, the acting local commissioner of the Union, and he did not wrestle after that.

Jack Johnson is the original shell artist. Now you see the little pea and now you don't, but whenever he turns the shells over he has the money-ball carefully concealed in his palm, says the New York World.

Lately Johnson has been juggling Kaufman, Jeffries, Ross, Ketchel and Langford, and hasn't been caught yet. There never was anything under the langford shell, because after signing a contract to fight Langford, Johnson won the championship from Tommy Burns and decided to draw the color line.

As for Jeffries, he's showing the little ball under the edge of the shell when he juggles, but I'm willing to wager my hat that there won't be anything in sight when it comes to a show down. Jeff will be there, but nothing doing on the other end.

Jack's latest juggling has been done with the Ross shell. He made a match with Ross for Pittsburgh, for 15,000—six rounds. Yesterday Johnson thought over the wallop he saw Ross land on Kaufman, and decided that it was too hot to fight the Italian.

Toronto World: Hamilton may have its turf course. Blue Bonnets a grand club house and Fort Erie a bar license second to none, but wait till the Ontario Jockey Club move out to the Halfway course, which will be of various shapes and numbers, all situated on 240 acres of ground, the last hundred of which was purchased no later than yesterday.

The Dufferin Park horses didn't stay long out of work. According to a bulletin from the Barracks they are carrying the soldiers in their drill stunts, all of which is fair sailing if the Canadian Racing Association don't object.

Now the Rochester Hustlers gave evidence yesterday of a start down grade. The leaders' pitchers failed to hold Buffalo to less than fifteen binges, including a three-bagger and two-base hit by Jack White.

The team selected to represent England in the second test match with Australia, which the Australians won in decided fashion, were: A. C. Maclaren, Lancashire; captain; A. O. Jones, Nottingham; C. B. Fry, Hampshire; Lilley, Warwickshire; J. Hayes, Leicestershire; Haigh, Yorkshire; Rhodes, Yorkshire; J. T. Tyldesley, Lancashire; G. H.irst, Yorkshire; A. E. Relf, Sussex; J. H. King, Leicestershire; Hobbs, Surrey; George Gunn, Nottingham; Hayward was also asked to be present, providing his leg was sound.

New York Evening World: A new play that is being used by the Pirates on slow runners is what beat the Giants on Saturday's long and hard fought game. Raymond was on second base with none out, and Tenney knew that is he advanced him to third that is he advanced him to score him. The Pirates immediately got ready for their new play. They gambled on Tenney's bunting. Barbeau rushed almost to the plate to get the bunt, and Wagner, instead of playing his regular position covered third. Tenney's ball went straight into Barbeau's hands, who was not fifteen feet away, and he turned and whipped the ball to Wagner on third before Raymond got within ten feet of the bag. That play alone would have won. One run at that time would have won. Doyle came up immediately afterward and hit safe. Two days before they tried the same trick on O'Hara, but he was a fast man and beat them to it. The only way to beat that play is for the batter, the minute he sees the shortstop start for third, to hit the ball out instead of bunting.

The Quiet Hour

FOR THOUGHTFUL PEOPLE

HEART BALM.
Selected.
Tell me about the Master:
I am weary and worn to-night,
The day lies behind me in shadow,
And only the evening is light!
Light with his radiant glory,
That lingers about the West,
My poor heart is a weary, a-weary,
And longs like a child for rest.

Tell me about the Master,
Of the hills he loneliness trod,
When the tears and blood of His anguish
Gushed down on Judea's sod.
For to me life's seventy milestones
But a sorrowful journey mark;
Rough lies the hill country before me,
The mountains behind me are dark.

Yet I know that, whatever of sorrow
Or pain, or temptation befall,
The infinite Master has suffered,
And knoweth and pitieth all.
So tell me the sweet, old story,
That falls on each wound like a balm,
And my heart that was bruised and broken
Shall grow patient, and strong, and calm.

PRAYER.

O God, to whom alone the hearts of men are open, look into our hearts to-day, and cleanse our spirits of all grossness on this Thy Sabbath day. In all the ages has this sublime season of meditation been given to man for converse with Thee, and we now pray Thee to teach us as Thou didst teach those of old to walk with Thee, and to state of the sweets of close communion with Thee. Amen.

FOREIGN MISSIONS.

(Rev. S. Lyle, D. D.)
Besides, how can we help foreign missions better than by developing strong liberal and Spirit-filled churches at home? From such churches we get our missionaries and their support. If the extremists are to be healthy, full of life-blood, and play the parts assigned them in the organism, the heart must be sound, its beat true, and its blood pure. A weak, diseased heart means an enfeebled and dying body. A church whose heart is not right in God's sight, and whose every pulse-beat is low, slow and fitful, will not, and cannot, go forth conquering and to conquer. The world's hope, humanly speaking, centres on the church's health and heart. In the interests of the foreign field let the home be cultivated with all care and all diligence, and all cost, whether of men or means. Canada is the key to India, to China, to Japan, to Africa, and to the islands of the sea. In the great work of harvesting the world—the urgent, transcendently important work of Christ—the congregations, called into existence as mission stations, nursed into the stage of self-support by augmentation, take a first place in foreign mission work. They give not less, often much more, than $70,000 a year to schemes of our church, a large part of which goes to foreign missions.—Harvests in Many Lands.

A DEGENERATE RACE.

(By A Banker.)
That ancient and once powerful Semitic race, the Moors, when in their prime were in many respects far in advance of any Western nation then existing, excelling them not only in architecture and in literature, but also in science. The florid and richly ornate style of their architecture has perhaps never been surpassed, the enrichments and many hued embellishments of the wonderful Alhambra at Granada, as an example, being probably more brilliant and gorgeous than those of any other building ever erected upon the earth, while many other of the sumptuous palaces erected by them—the splendid regal castle for instance at Cintra near Lisbon, now a summer palace of royalty—compare with almost any even modern structure.

But the Moors are now a degenerate, a retrograde, and a declining race. The population of the City of Morocco has declined from 700,000 to about 60,000; while Tangiers, one of their most important towns, is, with the exception of the European quarter, filthy, undrained, and insanitary to the last degree. The streets, after rain, are ankle deep in a quagmire of offensive, pestiferous mud, and the place reeks with foul and noisome maldours. The little shops are raised during the day and lowered at night, the contents of many of them being but offensive garbage, while almost the whole place has an aspect of squalor, neglect, and noxious impurity.

And yet these same people were once a powerful nation, their Empire extending from Bagdad to the Atlantic, and their army equal, and perhaps superior in bravery and equipment, to the troops of any of the Western nations, who, in vain, for centuries, strained every nerve to oust them from the territories in Europe, which they had usurped. But eventually they were, happily for civilization and religion, driven out, and the decadence which had already commenced became intensified and accelerated.

But their fall has been an untold boon to mankind. For what a terrible contemplation if their career of conquest had advanced unchecked, and Europe had been laid under Moslem rule. But happily for the human race the Christian nations are now paramount almost everywhere through the world, and the Saviour of the world, He who, through Son of God, deigned for a time to dwell on earth to suffer obloquy and scorn, and to give his life as a ransom for those who come to Him for life eternal, is worshipped and adored. But, alas, with some, Christianity is but a form, devoid altogether of life-giving reality!

THE WIFE.

The doctrine of the freedom of the human will has been threshed out to flitters, and has long disturbed the harmony of the thinging world. Now philoposopers rise up and say, we have been misled, that the will is only the servant of that which is behind. They say that man is ever ready to move, that he does not act, but is ever ready to react. That we live by sensations, that mutual pictures are presented; we are pricked, there is pain, we are touched, we respond, we hear a voice, we say, "here am I." That behind the will there is the motor, one who, is that which imparts mo-

WEAK, TIRED GIRLS

Will Find Health and Strength Through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

There is a time in the life of every girl when the strain upon her blood becomes too great; when she grows weak; has headaches and backaches; when dizziness seizes her and she becomes extremely miserable. That is the time of life she needs a tonic—a medicine that will not fail to enrich her blood and give her strength to withstand the changes through which she is passing. Such a tonic is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They have raised thousands of growing girls out of the depths of misery and despair to a full enjoyment of good health and strength. Among those who have found good health through these Pills is Miss Suddard, of Haldimand, P.E.I., concerning whose case her mother writes as follows:

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been a great benefit to my daughter, who was weak and miserable. She was pale, easily tired and was bothered with indigestion. The use of the Pills has brought back her health, and made her strong and active. I am very grateful for what this wonderful medicine has done for her."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the greatest blood builder known to medical science. That is why they cure anaemia, rheumatism, heart palpitation, indigestion, neuralgia, etc. That is why they are of such value to women and girls during the changes through which they pass from girlhood to maturity. The Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or direct by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Sunday School Lesson

1909. (JUN. 26)

Temperance Lesson.—Rom. 13: 8-14. (Optional)—The law of love (vs. 8-10).

Owe no man—It cannot be supposed that the apostle meant to prohibit the contracting of debts on any account. Christians are indeed under the highest obligations to pay all legal demands without reluctance or needless delay and with great punctuality, and they should avoid all unprofitable expending and carefully guard against contracting any debts which they have not a reasonable prospect of discharging. They ought also to stand aloof from all adventurous speculations or rash engagements, beyond their circumstances, and whatever may expose them to the danger and discredit of not rendering to all their dues." Love one another—"In the preceding verses, the apostle has been showing the duty, reverence, and obedience which all Christians, from the highest to the lowest, the civil magistrate, whether he be emperor, king, proconsul, or other state officer; here he shows them their duty to one another. This is widely different from that which they owe to the civil government; to the first they owe submission, reverence, obedience and tribute; to the latter they owe nothing but mutual love, and those offices which necessarily spring from it." 8. Shall not commit, etc.—In this verse the apostle quotes from the law as though the apostle say that the perfect love which he declares they owe to one another will enable them to fulfill all the obligations of this law. And whatever he has omitted, which the law contains, is all covered in keeping the law of love. "When this is done in reality there is completeness and we keep the whole law. He that loves another will not deprive him of his wife, of his life, of his property, of his good name; and will not even permit a desire to enter into his heart, which would lead him to wish to possess anything that is the property of another." The law of love forbids the use of intoxicating liquor for its sale to others, and will not permit us to assist those persons who sell liquor to others, either by lending them money, by renting our buildings to them, or in any way giving them our support and showing them favor.

10. Worketh no ill—The law of love forbids the doing of anything that would injure another. "Whoever loves his neighbor the golden rule is practised and he who loves, acts toward his neighbor as he would that his neighbor should act toward him: therefore this law of love can never work ill toward another, and thus the law is fulfilled by love." Intemperance is the exact opposite of this. It causes men to break every commandment, and to work ill of every kind to his neighbor.

11. Christian practice (vs. 11-14). 11. knowing the time—The nature and character of the period in which we live. High time to be awake. How many so-called Christians are fast asleep! The accursed liquor traffic is becoming powerful, bold, defiant; is destroying our best brains and blood; is ruining our morals; is undermining the Christian Sabbath, one of the pillars upon which the nation rests; is filling the land with paupers, disease and crime, and yet we sleep on peacefully as though we had no responsibility in this matter! Salvation nearer, etc.—The period of completed and glorious redemption is nearer than when we first believed. We have only a little time remaining in which to work, therefore awake from their slumberings and come forth to immediate action. 12. the night—Of heathen darkness, ignorance, immorality and wretchedness, far spent; of eternal blessedness "is at hand." let us cast off—the works of darkness described in the next verse. The Christian is obliged to renounce and "cast off" many things. He is required to be separate from the world (1 John 2:15, 16), and to "touch not the unclean thing" (2 Cor. 6:17). Let us put on—There are some things for the Christian to receive and accept. The power of a living Christ living in the soul will be revealed by light. In Eph. 6:11-17 we are exhorted to put on the armor which God has provided for the Christian. Protection is provided for every part but the back, which shows that the Christian is never expected to be free from the enemy of light. Light itself is an armor. That person whose actions are open to view, who does nothing in the dark and under cover, is in a safe position. He can prove his whereabouts. The armor of "light" is his protection.

13. walk honestly—"Be decent, orderly and sincere in all deportment, an example for all eyes to look upon. Men choose night for their revels of sin and superstitious dogms, but children of light (Eph. 6:11-18) must behave becomingly and live above such censures," as in the day—in an open way which every one may see and know, not in rioting and drunkenness—They are not to frequent places where intemperance is common and indecent conversation is carried on and all sorts of licentious practices are indulged in, strife and envy.—The very opposite of love, but the result of such practices as were mentioned above.

14. Put ye on, Christ—To put on the gospel. This fully done and held to, would stop all thought of following any sinful inclination of their nature. To be clothed with a person, means to enter into his views to imitate him, and to be wholly on his side. "Christ put on in nature and condition; man should put on Christ in disposition and character. He became partaker of our physical nature; we should become partaker of His moral nature. Christ put on man, that man might put on Christ."

the flesh—By flesh here we are to understand the nature, the gratification of which led to the abominations just mentioned. Direct none of your attention to the cravings of a corrupt nature, in planning to provide for its gratification. Intemperance puts off Christ and leads to the lusts of the flesh. Christ is able to so completely cleanse the heart from sin and fill it with love, that no principle of sin or desire for sin will remain.

Temperance instruction.—The effects of alcohol are disastrous enough at best, but the injuries to the consumer are immensely increased by the widespread adulteration of liquors. The extent to which rank poisons are mixed and sold for pure liquors, is startling. Any poison which is irritating or stimulating in its action, and narcotic in its tendency, which numbs sensation and makes one dizzy, will produce effects similar to those induced by alcohol. There are a number of such poisons which have been widely used. Three cents' worth of strychnine and a gallon of water, when mixed with three gallons of whiskey, often have been sold by distillers as "pure" whiskey. A retailer buys a gallon of this and proceeds to adulterate it further, making two gallons out of one, by adding stramonium and water. Stramonium, which is a powerful narcotic, is likely to cramp the stomach of the drinker, so a little opium is added to prevent this. Belladonna and opium are similar poisons often used in adulterations, which a large chunk of tobacco is sometimes put in a keg of liquor to produce its narcotic effect.

It has been said that beer is not brewed now, but manufactured. Chemicals are largely substituted for hops. During a recent epidemic of poisoning in England, ten thousand beer drinkers were stricken with various forms of arsenical poison, and hundreds died. A searching investigation by government experts followed, showing that what was advertised as "pure, harmless beer" contained Portuguese pyrites, sulphuric acid, white arsenic and stramonium in large quantities. The brewers had overdone the matter a little, that was all. One very extensive adulterant is wood alcohol. This is a deadly poison, which sometimes causes blindness, even when handled. Being untasted, it is much cheaper than grain alcohol; and as methods have been found to deodorize it and remove the disagreeable taste, it can be mixed with ordinary (ethyl) alcohol without easy detection. Out of 1,000 samples of whiskey recently examined by the pure food commission of Pennsylvania, 650 were found to contain the rank poison.

A committee appointed by "one of the leading associations of whiskey manufacturers" to ascertain the cause of the recent prohibition wave, according to newspaper accounts, laid the trouble to "bad whiskey." It reported that "enormous quantities of the stuff contains cocaine, wood alcohol, creosote or sulphuric acid." It is well to note that sulphuric acid is one of the two strongest acids known, and its effect on the lining of the stomach may well be imagined after watching it eat iron with great rapidity. This same committee reported that this "bad" whiskey was by no means confined to the low groceries. It instances one of New York's "biggest and most prosperous hotels," which sells a poisonous concoction for which it pays $2.40 a gallon and retails at $4.5 a gallon. When it is considered that even the best liquors undermine one's health and lead to mental and moral degeneracy, the restatements of widespread adulteration furnish overwhelming motives for constant total abstinence.—B. L. O.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS.
The New Law.
I. Love one another (v. 8). Love "fervently" (1 Pet. 1, 22). Love "without dissimulation" (Rom. 12, 9). "Love in deed and in truth" (1 John 3, 18). Love as Jesus loved (John 15, 12). His love was not an inward sentiment, but an attribute of being; not a state of feeling, but an outgoing of Himself. Love is a testimony to the world of our discipleship. "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another" (John 13, 35).
II. Owe no man anything, but to love (v. 8). Debt leads to extravagance, luxury, defaulting, embezzling, dishonest failure, bankruptcy, and through these, to untold suffering. The command of God, the example of Jesus Christ, the dictate of philosophy, political economy and common sense are all against the contraction of debt. In the great Old Testament chapter showing the duties of covenant relationship, when the words, "I am Jehovah," are repeated fifteen times, "all the congregation of the children of Israel" were taught, "The wages of him that is hired shall not abide all night with thee until the morning. . . thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself" (Lev. 19, 2, 13, 18). To oppress the poor by indebtedness to thee is a sin that cries to God for vengeance (Jas. 5, 4).
III. Love thy neighbor as thyself (v. 9). Do nothing you would not be content to have done to you (Matt. 7: 12). Some beautiful examples of God's provision for the recognition of the rights of the neighbor are found in Deut. 22: 1-8; 23: 19, 24, 25; 24: 10-13; 25: 3-5. Love to our neighbor proves our love to God. "Whoever loveth him that begat, loveth him also that is begotten of him."
V. Love worketh no ill (v. 10). There are many employments that work ill to others. The manufacture and sale of intoxicants; the traffic in tobacco; gambling; the pawn shop; pernicious literature; impure pictures; horse racing; dancing schools; theatres; billiard and pool rooms. Love to our neighbor would impel one to get out and keep out of all these kinds of business. They who rent their buildings for such purposes or license any curse are partakers of the sin of working ill. A reseller lying in agony. The evil deeds and bitter words of his past life rushed over his soul. Suddenly he whispered hoarsely, "Wife, go to the doctor and bring me those papers." With death grasp he seized them and was gone. When they unclashed his cold hands and examined the papers they found his license. They were his last hope.
V. Love is the fulfilling of the law (v. 10). Love recognizes every sacred duty of love respects life, property, reputation; love does more; love suffers long; love seeketh not her own; love beareth all things; love never faileth (1 Cor. 13: 4-8). Love is ever "awake" (v. 11) to life up the fallen even through sacrifice. A boy of thirteen sat at the table with his father. There was wine on the table. "What will you take?" asked the waiter of the boy. "I'll take what father takes." The father had the decenter in his hand, about to pour out the wine, and he dropped it as if it were fire. Laying his hand lovingly on the head of the boy he said, "Waiter, I'll take water." That father loved his boy. A gentleman about fifty-three years of age asked for a lease of life until he could lay up $500 for foreign missions. This accomplished he asked for another lease of life until he could accumulate $500 for home missions. Then he asked for a third lease of life that he might lay aside $500 to endow a poor church of which he was a member. Three leases of life that he might be a blessing.—A. C. M.

A LUCKY FIND.

Once upon a time many years ago there lived, with their father and mother, two little children, whose names were John and Mary. They lived on the edge of a large forest, in a small tumble-down house. They were very poor and could afford no better.

One bright afternoon in the fall the children were sent out to pick up some sticks for firewood. They were low-spirited as they started out, thinking of how very unfortunate they were that they could not have the advantages of other children.

As they trudged along through the forest, picking up the gray-colored leaves and bright red berries on the bushes, they forgot their troubles, and before they knew it, they were deep in the woods. Then, remembering their errand, they at once began gathering the wood that they had been sent for.

Just then they both happened to look up, and they saw an old log cabin, with broken windows and a half-grown chimney.

The children quickly made their way to the cabin to inspect it. They entered and saw a large, old-fashioned fire place on one side of the room. Thinking that it would be fun to make a fire, John built one in the fire place. They sat down on the hearth and were about to begin telling fairy tales, when Mary noticed a loose brick just below the mantle.

It was too high for them to reach, so John brought a box from the corner and stood on it. He piled out the brick very carefully, and then put his hand in the opening, pulled out a bundle, and what do you think it was? It was a big bag of glittering gold.

They could hardly believe their eyes when they saw what it was, and ran all the way home with their treasure, to show it to their parents, who rejoiced with the children.

This was the last time that John and Mary ever had to gather fire wood.

BUFFALO BILL PAYS A VISIT

After an Absence of Ten Years From Hamilton.

Col. W. F. Cody, Buffalo Bill, after almost a generation's absence visits Hamilton next Tuesday, en route to the far west. Since he was here last he has revisited England, France, Italy, Croatia, Slavonia, Austria, Germany, Prussia, all the German States, as far as Belgrade and Craeov; and has had the Indians photographed at Land's End and John o' Groats, the most northeastern point of the British Isles, and has the proud record of giving everywhere satisfaction. On his visit to Canada on this occasion he comes in the full strength of his own organization, reinforced with a companion staff of mankind in Pawnee Bill's Far East. This latter organization presents so many novel features in the programme of Oriental sports, rites and customs as to make this combination an important one in amusement annals.

There is no question regarding the originality and importance of this combined exhibition of the rough riders of the world and strange peoples of both the far west and far east. There is both amusement and instruction to be found in this wonderful exhibit of the human races from all quarters of the globe, while an insight to the customs of many nations will be gained. Races, sports, battles, dances, combats, religious observances, national festivals, tribal ceremonies, in fact, everything that can throw a light on the diversity and complexity of the national characteristics of the many strange peoples of the world will be presented.

Whiskey Trader Drowned and His Money Went With Him.

Port Arthur, June 25.—Death by drowning overtook Mat Neilson, a whiskey trader, who has been operating in the N. T. camps near Superior Junction. He had been associated in the illicit trade with a former railroad named J. Spence. It was Spence who purchased the liquor with which they started business. He secured a five-gallon keg, and two cases of whiskey at Kenora, and brought them all the way to Superior Junction by canoe, surmounting great difficulties in doing so.

WAGES OF SIN.

At the Junction Neilson joined him, and they opened up a blind pig on the outskirts of the town. Business was brisk indeed, for a time, and they readily disposed of half of their supply, before a Dominion constable interrupted their operations by a visit to the disjunct. They heard of his coming, and decided to leave for a new field. The remainder of the whiskey was placed in the canoe, and they started down the river, but shortly afterwards the canoe capsized, and Neilson went down to rise no more in 135 feet of water.

TO PETITION GOVERNMENT

To Assist In Establishing West End Sewage Plant.

Heavy Damage Done by the Recent Heavy Rains.

Ten Dollars a Year the Price to County Residents.

Another attempt will be made by the city to get the Ontario Government interested in the construction of a West End sewage disposal plant—a scheme that has been on foot for some years, but which has remained dormant on account of the lack of encouragement given by the Provincial authorities. The breaking of the asylum sewer in the gully north of Main street, during the heavy rainstorm the other day, spurred the Sewers Committee to action at a meeting held yesterday, at the annex disposal works where the aldermen were making an inspection. The great pressure on the sewer during the storm ripped out a section which it will cost $1,500 to repair. The committee does not think the city should be stuck for this and will recommend the Council to send a deputation to Toronto to impress on the Government the necessity of a new disposal works in the west end.

Ten dollars annually will be the price exacted from the township people who desire to connect their property with city sewers. If this does not suit them, they may have recourse to the county judge to get the amount reduced. The committee decided to enforce this regulation when dealing with the application of Thomas Barnes and W. Bousfield. It was over Mr. Barnes' property being connected with the King street sewer that the city had a legal battle with Barton Township.

Claims for damage by flooding on John street south, and Pearl street during the big rainstorm the other day, were referred to the city solicitor.

The City Engineer and solicitor were instructed to see that the Hamilton Bay Improvement Company signs the contract for the extension of the Ferguson avenue sewer.

A. E. Peover's application for permission to construct a private sewer on the east side of Walnut street, to connect with the King William street sewer will be reported on by the Board of Health.

British Labor Objects to Czar's Visit to King.

London, June 25.—The members of the Labor party in the House of Commons have issued a manifesto protesting against the approaching visit of the Czar to King Edward. They say among other things: "We believe the visit is offensive to a great majority of the people of this country. We have no desire to interfere with the internal government of a foreign State, but when that Government is maintained by a system of murder or defends itself by putting to death or sending into exile its best and most reliable citizens, and when it suppresses the free press, and the liberty by hangmen, spies and blackguards of every kind, it is an insult to our national good fame and our self-respect that our Sovereign should receive in our name the head of such a State, especially when his personal approval of criminal agents has been placed beyond question."

The manifesto disavows the least enmity to the people of Russia, who are no more represented by the Czar than victims can be represented by their oppressors, and refers to the reception of the members of the Douma who are now in England as proof of the wish to live in friendship with the Russian nation. It declares that the Russian Administration has become blacker and bloodier in the last two or three years, and citing figures of imprisonments and executions, exclaims: "Did Abdul Hamid ever do worse?"

LORETTO.

Closing Entertainment by Junior Pupils Yesterday.

A large crowd of parents and friends gathered at Loretto Academy yesterday afternoon to witness the closing exercises of the small children. The event was a most successful one and the performance of the girls was worthy of much praise. The programme was short but interesting and the manner in which the pupils displayed their voices redounded greatly to the honor of that institution. The programme:

Chorus—by the children.

Piano solo—Phyllis McIntyre.

Piano solo—Hazel Carson.

Recitation—"The Dead Kitten," Phyllis McIntyre.

Piano solo—Marie McCarthy.

Capatina—by the children.

Miss Isabel Prensant acted as queen in the capatina and sang very sweetly. She promises to be a grand soloist someday.

After the singing of "God Save the King," Bishop Dowling spoke a few words to the children. He thanked them for the excellent entertainment they had afforded. The children, he said, were beloved by the Bishop because they were specially pleasing to God, who had created them to know, serve and obey Him, and to make Him in heaven. It is the academy the central aim was to meet God's angels, one of which had been created for each child. This was made manifest by Christ's own words, "Suffer the little children to come unto Me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Duty was to love God and children first, other things come next. The prime aim of each child should be how to live honorably in the light of God and the world.

Father Feeney, of Oakville was also present.

ABDUL'S PILE.

Constantinople, June 25.—It is understood that the Government has ascertained that the cash deposits of Abdul Hamid, the deposed Sultan of Turkey, in the Imperial Bank of Germany, amounted to 5,000,000 Turkish pounds, approximately $21,500,000.

Several members of the Toronto Board of Education will visit the United States to get information regarding technical schools.

THE METROPOLITAN

Policy-Holders Benefit by Prosperity of This Life Company.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, a summary of whose report appears in this issue of the Times, carries on its business in such a way that its policy-holders get the benefit of the prosperity that attends it. Increased business brings increased benefits and lower rates to them. In this way voluntary concessions are made to thousands of policy-holders—concessions which their contracts do not call for.

The business of the Metropolitan Life has increased tremendously year by year, while its operating expenses, proportioned to the vast amount of insurance carried, grow steadily less. Ordinarily the resulting gains would be considered a legitimate reward of enterprise under capable management, in which the policy-holders have no interest; but this particular insurance company chooses to share its prosperity with them by paying bonuses and increasing benefits.

The report just issued makes a remarkable showing: The company in ten years has reduced the rate of expense to premium income on its business in all departments 15 per cent. In the Industrial Department alone the reduction accomplished in the past five years amounts to 8 per cent.—this last item representing a total of three and half a million dollars.

These great gains are being used to increase the benefits 10 per cent. on all policies in force since January 1st, 1907. As to policies dated previous to January 1st, 1907, a bonus of 8 per cent. of the premiums is given for a year on all policies over five years old, and increased benefits are allowed on policies of long standing which become death claims.

To sum up these benefits—not promised to policy-holders nor expected by them—it is shown that during the past sixteen years the concessions and bonuses of the Industrial Department alone are equivalent to a gift outright of eighteen millions of dollars.

The company is perhaps the most successful life insurance company on the continent and in no other are the interests of policy-holders better guarded than in the Metropolitan.

THE PROTESTS.

Petition Against Sir Wilfrid Laurier Dismissed.

Toronto, June 26.—The election petition against Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Ottawa has been dismissed for want of prosecution, the time having elapsed within which the protest must go to trial. The petition by M. McNeil was filed on December 5, so that the time expired on June 5. It was to come before the chancellor and Mr. Justice Teetzel.

The South Ontario petition by Peter Christie against F. L. Fowke, and the cross-petition by Fowke against Christie, have also been dismissed. Justices Britton and Latchford had been assigned to hear them.

Dismissals have been signed also in the following: Nipissing, against George Gordon, and cross-petition; Centre York, against T. G. Stratton, and cross-petition; Welland, against Wm. M. German, and cross-petition; Norfolk, against Alex. McCall, and cross-petition. The petition in North Perth against J. P. Rankin having been dismissed because filed too late, there remain only the petitions by Fowke against Christie, Stratton and Stratton, and by Stratton against Fowke, and in North Lanark by James Roberts against Wm. Thornburn, and by Thornburn against T. B. Caldwell.

ROAD DISAPPEARS.

Great Stretches of It Have Already Caved In.

Halifax, N. S., June 25.—Great stretches of road are disappearing from the highway, six miles from the Town of Antigonish, and the people are greatly alarmed. The first cave-in occurred two weeks ago, when a section fifty feet long by twenty wide, disappeared, carrying a telephone pole, now far out of sight. No sooner had this opening been filled with brick and stone than another cave-in took place, when a strip of the road 100 feet long disappeared. The hole made on this occasion was forty feet deep in thirty feet wide. The cavity is now filled with water, and is a small lake. The road commissioner went to the scene from Halifax, and while he was investigating another portion of the road, fifteen feet long by ten in width, disappeared, and next day still another, 200 feet from the first cave-in, sank from view.

The Intercolonial Railway track is also affected, the rails having settled over a foot in two places. The road commissioner says subterranean waters are dissolving the plaster far beneath the road, and that the district will eventually become a large lake. It has been decided to build 2,200 feet of new highway to the rear of what the people consider a death-trap, and which is very dangerous.

WELLAND FIRE.

Welland, Ont., June 25.—The Ontario Iron & Steel Company's storehouse, a big frame structure, was destroyed by fire here today. It contained a large quantity of oil.

TIMES PATTERNS.

SMART GOWN OF GREY VOILE.

8490-8491.—A gown such as the one shown, made up either in voile or pongee, will be exceedingly serviceable for wear all through the season. It is in surplus effect, disclosing a vest of silk over a chemisette of filet lace. The pattern is cut in five sizes—from 32 to 40 inches bust measure, and will require 2 1/2 yards of 24-inch material, for the 36 inch size. The skirt is one of the newest and is suitable for broadcloth, cashmere, silk and linen. It may open either at the front or back. The pattern is cut in five sizes—22 to 30 inch waist measure. Size 26 requires 5 1/2 yards of 24-inch material.

This illustration calls for two separate patterns, a waist and a shirt, which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents for each in silver or stamps.

Address "Pattern Department," Times Office, Hamilton.

For third rate of efficiency pay: 50c. per diem to those who have made a score of not less than 28 points at each of the ranges as above.

The above scores to be made at the regimental annual class firing.

No. 28.—The Commanding Officer regrets to announce that having failed to get the militia authorities' permission to visit Buffalo on July 1, the proposed trip is hereby cancelled.

No. 29.—Drills will be discontinued from this date till further orders. J. W. Bell, Capt., Adjutant.

BLEW UP HOUSE.

Men Charged with Dynamite Outrage Sent For Trial.

Ottawa, June 25.—In the county Police Court this afternoon George Deltour and Victor Lacasse were committed for trial on the charge of dynamiting, with intent to murder, the dwelling of Moise Laporte, on the Montreal road, just outside the city limits, two weeks ago, in which at the time eleven people were asleep. The house was practically destroyed by an explosion of dynamite, but the inmates all escaped. At the trial to-day Victor Deltour turned King's evidence. He declared that Victor Lacasse, who lives near the scene of the outrage, had admitted to him that he had wrecked the house, and had warned him to say nothing about it.

KING'S BIRTHDAY.

Trooping of Colors, Parade of Guards and Review Cancelled.

London, June 25.—The official celebration of the birthday of King Edward that takes place to-day, was robbed of most of its spectacular features by the inclement weather. This morning His Majesty ordered the cancellation of the principal ceremonies, namely, the trooping of the colors, the parade of the Horse Guards, and the review of the troops at Aldershot. These decisions were made necessary by the heavy rains.

CABLES AT FIVE CENTS A WORD.

Goal Before the Canadian Press Delegates.

Marconi's Promise of 15,000 Words Daily by August.

Pacific Cable Board Has Promised to Reduce the Rate.

London, June 25.—The Imperial Press Conference met to-day to consider the report of the committee on cable rates, Hon. H. L. W. Lawson presiding. The chairman submitted the committee's recommendations, which urged the Governments of the Empire to increase the means and reduce the cost of Imperial electric communications, and asked Premier Asquith to receive a deputation, also emphasizing the necessity of linking up the different parts of the Empire with wireless services.

One positive result, said Mr. Lawson, had been reached. Mr. Baxendale, on behalf of the Pacific Cable Board, had stated that the board would unconditionally reduce their rates on press messages by half. The New Zealand Government would do the same regarding terminal charges, and it is believed the Australian Government will do the same. Mr. Lawson added that it is the general opinion nothing would meet the necessities of the case except a general reduction in press rates.

Mr. P. D. Ross, of Ottawa, reintroduced his resolution favoring State-owned electric connection between Canada and Great Britain, remarking that in view of wireless telegraphy, he would be making a great mistake if he used the words State-owned "cable." (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Marconi had informed the committee that morning that in August next he would be able to give a service of 15,000 words daily at half cable rates. (Hear, hear.) It was State-owned communication, however, which would ensure a reduction in rates. The rates were kept high by combines.

Mr. Marconi thought it would be injudicious for Governments to enter into a scheme of State-owned cables without first investigating the merits of wireless communication. The cost of equipping two stations for communicating over the distance already tested, of 2,000 miles would be £100,000. The speed of transmission at present was twenty-five words a minute. By duplexing he hoped to make it fifty. (Applause.) If the service increased in economy he would be prepared to reduce the cost of press messages to two pence a word. (Applause.)

Mr. J. A. Macdonald, of Toronto, remarked that he had no fear of socialism and no sensitiveness for the companies either here or in Canada. The paper in Canada paid for all they got and sometimes for things they didn't get. (Laughter.) He was prepared to vote for the resolution, knowing that the system of Marconi would be probably in the fullest working order long before the Governments did anything. It certainly would be longer than August before they got on the work. (Laughter.)

BRITISH IMMIGRANTS WANTED

Sir Hugh Graham moved a resolution concerning emigration. He said there was not a question of greater importance than the maintenance of British sentiment in Canada, which was the keystone of the Imperial arch. The majority of the population in Canada was now overwhelmingly British. The French-Canadian element contentedly British, but foreign emigration was seriously threatening that majority. Canada wanted good people from all lands, but the Dominion wanted more from Britain. He announced that a serious effort would be made in Canada to commemorate the conference by organizing an association of leading journalists and public-spirited citizens to strengthen and stimulate existing organizations in order that desirable emigrants may receive the utmost encouragement. He moved a resolution to the effect that the press should co-operate in the wise direction of emigration. (Hear, hear.)

The Chairman and Mr. Macdonald, of Toronto, gave the proposition the heartiest sympathy. Mr. Nicholls, of Winnipeg, declared that the foreign immigrants in western Canada as citizens were absolutely all right. (Hear, hear.) The resolution carried unanimously.

OVERRUN BY RATS.

Canadian Woman Complains of Ill-treatment in Buffalo Almshouse.

Buffalo, June 25.—Under a two-column head to-night the Buffalo News says in part: "Refused admission to various hospitals because she is a non-protestant and had not sufficient funds to pay for her maintenance, Mrs. Marion Potter, an educated and cultured young Canadian woman suffering with rheumatism, found herself compelled recently to be taken to the hospital at the Erie county almshouse here, where she was accorded disgraceful treatment, according to her story." She said among other things that the institution is overrun with rats and vermin. The Buffalo News did not give the name of Mrs. Potter's home town in Canada.

MAN DROWNED.

Bathing at Strathroy Goes Down in Sight of Mates.

Strathroy, June 25.—John Kerr, a G. T. R. section hand, about twenty seven years of age, was drowned here to-day. Kerr, with another employee named Richardson, had just finished lunch, and went in near the railway bridge where they were working. The two had not been in the water long when Richardson thought something was wrong, and waved to the rest of the gang on the bridge. In the meantime Kerr had gone down. An alarm was at once given, and in short time a great crowd had gathered and several volunteered to dive for the body. Fully an hour elapsed before the body was recovered.

WOULD YOU CONVICT?

ON CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE?

A CHANCE SHOT

A TRUE STORY

Copyright, 1909, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.
EUGENE A. PHILBIN, formerly District Attorney of New York county, says—

"It is difficult to lay down hard and fast statements concerning circumstantial evidence as opposed to evidence direct, since each case takes its own peculiar form and must be approached in a different way. I believe, however, that circumstantial evidence is perfectly safe and that it has the advantage in that it does not so freely admit of perjury.

"When two or three witnesses swear to having seen the actual transaction in question it is quite conceivable that they have invented the story deliberately. You may say that the same is conceivable concerning a witness who presents a circumstance, but here is the distinction:—In a case of circumstantial evidence the links in the chain usually are supplied by many unrelated individuals, each testifying to a separate, simple fact. The safety is in the number of them.

"It is practically impossible that there should be understanding among so many persons for purposes of perjury. A circumstance is picked up here, another there, many miles away, and in order to convict there must be no single flaw, no contradiction in the whole collection of statements. When a case of circumstantial evidence is complete—and it must be so to stand—when it points to only one possible end, that of guilt, there is no reason to distrust it."

HATE as primitive as in the age of crawling things brought the two young men, with tense, ready muscles and out thrust jaws, face to face and eager for battle. A motive old as life itself impelled them each toward the other's throat—the disputed favor of a woman. And here intruded the note of a higher development and civilization, for instead of standing aside in savage content the woman threw herself between the two.

Each hands outstretched she mutely motioned them apart. For a second they hesitated, then each took his leave formally and left her, white and alert, among the shadows on the porch. Tyler was the first to go, and he awaited Bell at the garden gate. Their figures stood clear in the moonlight and the girl watched anxiously, but the red face of instant rage had left them fiercely cold and unobscured.

"Come Bell," said Tyler, "this is no place for a showdown, but I'll make it my business to see that you answer to me some time."

The other, without pause, moved past through the gate, but turned at the other side.

"I reckon you know where to find me when you're ready, John Tyler. We'll arrange our little differences where we won't be interrupted and whenever you're lookin' for some trouble."

"That's me," remarked Tyler briefly. They parted, one walking toward the town, the other toward his tethered horse at the post, without a backward glance. The girl, who had listened intently, remained until the footsteps of Tyler had died away down the path and Bell's mount had vanished over a swelling rise. Then, filled with a dread she felt powerless to remove, she hurried into her home, closing the door.

It was a Sunday night when the cartel of defiance, in accepted Kentucky manner, was exchanged between the rival admirers of Elisa McDonald. The quarrel had been a matter of slow growth, the outcome of the Blue Grass beauty's coquetry and frequent meetings on contested ground. She had given neither particular encouragement, but each grew to believe himself obstructed and slandered by the other, after their common persistence had driven other candidates from the field. The cause of their enmity had played the familiar game, and at first with safety. But these were men of the soil, virile, masterful, impatient, and the inevitable spark had been struck.

Tyler lived in the town, on the outskirts of which stood the McDonald place. Bell, recently fallen heir to a considerable estate and breeding farm, occupied his family mansion about six miles distant along the county road.

Early on the following Thursday morning the employes on the Bell farm, swarming to work from breakfast, found the favorite horse of their employer, the one he most frequently rode, standing outside the gate to the stable yard, lathered and exhausted. The animal was spattered with mud, part of the bridle had been torn away, the girth had loosened and the saddle hung awry against one flank with dragging stirrups. The stableman, stepping by force of habit to adjust the displacement even before he had exclaimed upon the singularity of it, cried out as he placed a hand upon the pommel. The saddle leather on the right side was streaked and splashed with blood.

The Man Hunt.

The alarm spread with scarce a word spoken, and men about the place were being collected by the overseer of the farm, Mason, before the stableman had removed the broken bridle. It was a matter calling for instant action, and action was something that Mason understood. A few sharp questions brought out that young Bell had started out the preceding evening about seven o'clock, heading at a brisk gallop toward the town.

"There's only one place he'd be like to go on that road, 'less he passed it," was the stableman's comment.

"And that's to the McDonalds," added the overseer. "He hasn't missed a week time out of mind sprin' that girl."

Four of the farm hands, under the lead of Mason, quickly saddled and mounted, and the group made off down the highway at top speed. They drew rein before the McDonald house while the family was still at breakfast, and the overseer, hat in hand, walked into the room without ceremony.

"Beg pardon, Miss McDonald," he asked abruptly, "but did Mr. Bell come to see you last night?"

The young woman, startled and coloring under the sudden question, answered that she had not seen Bell since Sunday night. The man turned to her father with his word of explanation.

"He started, I suppose, for your place last night. His horse came home this morning with blood on the saddle. There's been some deviltry between there and here."

McDonald instantly volunteered his services, and the men left the house. The girl, alone with her mother, sat with compressed lips and flushed cheeks. For her the affair had a greater significance than she cared to acknowledge. There was an element of fear and self-reproach in her reflections, but she was not given to subtleties and she set herself to await the outcome of the search.

While one of the farmhands pressed forward into the town to notify the authorities of the facts the rest of the party was split up under the direction of Mason, and the laborious work of investigation along five miles or more of road was begun. It was evident that Bell's thoroughbred had travelled far and through rough country, but the natural supposition was that its wanderings had been those of a riderless steed. The thought of foul play was uppermost, and the likeliest spot for violence was along the highway. Within a few hours nearly a hundred of the townsmen, mounted and afoot, came to aid the searchers. The day closed barren of results.

The task was resumed the next day, and the next. Public excitement, which had ranged high with the first word of murder, began to subside. It was advanced as possible that the wealthy young landowner had left the country for a lark, or perhaps was being held for ransom. No one could suggest a feud in which he might have become involved. The residents of the village returned to their accustomed round, only Mason and his handful of assistants clinging to a wearying and seemingly hopeless search. The overseer, having examined every foot of the roadway and its fringes, widened the strip of ground to be covered on both sides and caused his men to ride up and down the length as if following successive furrows. This led them ultimately into the woods on either side.

The first few fruitless days wore out Mason's impatience and it became after that a matter of dogged loyalty. He let it be known that he would pursue his tactics for a month if there were need, or until some word or a clew to the whereabouts of Bell came to light. One other member of the community, Elisa McDonald, followed the progress of Mason's work with an interest equal to his own.

Finding the Body.

It was a full week after the Thursday on which the horse had returned without his owner when the discovery was made. Mason himself came upon it. The body of George Bell was found in a heavily wooded section about a hundred rods off the road and midway between his own home and that of the McDonalds. It had been divested of coat, shirt and boots. There was a wound almost as large as the palm of a hand under the left shoulder blade. Subsequent medical investigation showed that the contents of both barrels of a shotgun had practically torn away the left side.

Rigid examination of the spot failed to reveal any clew. The revolver which Bell had been known to carry was missing, as was the belt from which the holster had hung at the back of the right hip. No trace could be found of the missing garments. A small sum of money and a pocket knife, completing the inventory of what the young man was known to have had with him, were gone. The autopsy established that death must have been instantaneous. The course taken by the shot had been on an upward angle toward the opposite shoulder. From this it appeared beyond all question that the victim had been murdered while riding his horse and oblivious to danger.

Mason made a close inspection of the features of the surrounding ground. He found that almost in a straight cast to the highway a thick clump of bushes grew on both sides of the ditch, affording a close covert, against which wagon wheels brushed in transit. There could have been designed no better place for the ambushing of an unsuspecting traveller. He sought for marks that might have been left by a concealed assassin, but could discover none. He was more successful in finding proof that the body had been dragged directly from the road to its bidding place. In the dust of the wagon track stains were easily obliterated, but through the thick, close woven underbrush he discovered frequent marks of blood. He noted as worthy of remembrance that the Wednesday night in question had been misty and overcast. When he left the spot the overseer had a clear picture of the method by which the murderer had accomplished the crime.

While the coroner's jury was hearing the case the next day a buggy drove up to the town hall. From it alighted Elisa McDonald, and the crowd made room for her as she moved into the building and sought entrance to the room in which the inquest was being held. She was agitated and under stress of deep emotion, but there was no hesitation in her manner. During the time since the disappearance of Bell she had taken herself severely to task. She had formed the resolution to tell everything she knew if there should prove to be a fatal outcome to the mystery, and she was now present to keep that resolve. The coroner had been notified of her desire to appear as a witness and she was called to the stand.

Without pose or sentimentalism she related the source of differences between Bell and Tyler and the scene on her porch. She repeated the phrases with which the men had parted, holding threat of a speedy settlement of scores. Her recital was brief and dramatic, and the crowd sat breathless while she described her postmortem of a furious quarrel by stepping between the enemies. When she came to an end with Tyler's phrase, "You'll have to answer to me some time," there was a stir in the room, and several men started quietly and unobtrusively for the doors.

His Inward Rage.

The movement did not escape the quick eye of the Sheriff. He whispered a moment with three of his deputies and despatched them hurriedly. After further testimony by Mason and members of his party the coroner called for Tyler. There was no response. One of the Sheriff's men returned and the coroner was informed that deputies had visited the Tyler home, but could not find the young man. It further had been learned that Tyler had not been at his home for about a week.

THE YOUNG MAN STOOD STARING AT THE WARLIKE APPARITION.

Mason was a man whose most marked characteristic was a need of rendering absolute fidelity to some one. His relations with Bell had been closer than those of master and man and he had accorded to his employer unreserved devotion. The tragic death of the young landowner filled him with slow burning rage and the unreserved determination to devote himself to applying what assistance lay in his power toward the ends of justice. His mind was rather narrow but intensive and he possessed an admirable power of application. Meanwhile he was just and clear headed and was not the one to allow one set of appearances to outbalance another in favor of vengeance. He did not merely demand of himself that some one must suffer for this thing, but that the guilty man must suffer.

It was this quiet, strong, forceful personality that now became dominant in the case. He followed the obvious track indicated by the testimony of Elisa McDonald and applied himself to tracing Tyler's relations with Bell. He learned, in the first place, that there had been no opportunity for a meeting between the rivals after the throwing down of the gauntlet up to the time when Bell left his farm on Wednesday evening for the purpose, so far as could be judged, of visiting the girl. Neither of them had been seen at the McDonald house after Sunday night. His inquiry was then directed toward discovery of any communication that might have passed between them, for it ran in his mind that a place of meeting had been appointed at which they were to submit their quarrel to the arbitration of personal combat. The precision with which Bell had been waylaid argued, to Mason's mind, that Tyler knew where and at what time to expect his enemy.

The intelligent, clear eyed quality of the man instinctively found its complement in Elisa McDonald before he had taken many steps into the affair. Her attitude toward the case was much the same as his own, and although she had not loved Bell she felt a loyalty to his memory not unmixed with a desire to remove the shadow of reproach cast by her unthinking aggravation of a quarrel. If Tyler were innocent it was in her interest to prove him so. In any event she wanted the truth as keenly as did Mason.

The overseer visited her immediately after the inquest and obtained from her all details that might have a bearing on the crime. She supplied one fact of first importance. She said that on Tuesday she had received a note from Bell announcing that he would call to see her on Wednesday in the hope of finding her at home. Might it not be that some one had obtained word of the young man's movements from this note? She added that she suspected one of her servants, a negro, of aiding Tyler in his courtship through information concerning the McDonald family and its affairs.

Pursuing the investigation, Mason questioned the negro and elicited the fact that he had been employed in some such capacity by Tyler. Under pressure he admitted that the kitchen of the McDonald place was a busy clearing house for gossip; that rumors of an impending quarrel between the suitors had been discussed and that one of the maids had learned of Bell's intended visit to her mistress. This bit of news, he said, being of the kind which he had communicated to Tyler on several occasions, he had sought that young man on Tuesday night and informed him concerning the note.

Here was an important advance into the surrounding circumstances. Tyler, already stamped as Bell's enemy, was now clearly indicated as one of the very few persons who could have known beforehand of the plans of the land owner and the time at which he would be likely to pass along the road.

While engaged in these preliminaries the overseer had not neglected to keep an eye upon the pursuit of Tyler which was being pushed by the Sheriff and his aids. There had been no result. No one had seen him leave the town, nor could any member of his family give information as to the exact time of his departure or his present whereabouts.

Fifty Dollars for the Hint.

Gaining no further result from inquiries into the complications that had preceded the murder, Mason now threw his own work parallel with that upon which the Sheriff was engaged. He saw some possibility of aid in the negro who had acted as Tyler's spy. The man had been discharged following the revelation of his secret transactions, and the overseer sought him out.

"Have you any idea what has become of Tyler?" was his direct question.

"No more'n you," came the sullen answer.

"Look here, you're out of work, aren't you?"

"Yes, I am, 'cause I couldn't hold my blamed tongue. I ain't goin' to make no more plays like that."

"Well," said Mason, "it's pretty clear you haven't got much to expect from Tyler now. Here's fifty dollars. You get it the minute Tyler is landed in jail. I don't know and don't care, just now, whether he's innocent or guilty. What I want is to get him."

The negro glanced at the money but made no reply. The next day he sought the overseer.

"Have you looked 'er him at his uncle's house, 'bout ten miles down river?"

Ten minutes later Mason was galloping, rifle in hand, down the river road in the direction indicated by the negro. He had known in a vague way that Tyler's uncle lived in the county, but no one among the authorities had thought to look for him at such a place. They inclined to the belief that he had taken to the mountains or had headed for Louisville.

Mason rode up to the home of Benjamin Tyler, a tobacco planter, in the early afternoon. He did not dismount, but thrust his horse close in to the steps, thus bringing himself on a level with the porch and directly before the door. He waited until the clatter of his arrival should bring him a response, alert for danger and with his weapon ready in the crook of his elbow. There came leisurely footsteps along the hall inside, and a figure appeared in the doorway. Mason's rifle came to his shoulder in a flash, and it was along the steady sights that he opened the conversation.

"Just keep your hands where they are, John Tyler."

The young man stood leaning with a hand on either side of the doorway, and staring at the warlike apparition thus suddenly projected from the sunshine of a summer day. Finally, having adjusted himself in some part to the situation, he spoke with a hard smile.

"What's wrong, Mason; taken to stickin' up folks for a livin'?"

"Don't try to work that game with me," said the overseer, sharply. "You know well enough what I'm here for. I'm a deputy sheriff, and I arrest you for the murder of George Bell."

Tyler started slightly and then sneered.

"I don't know what you're talkin' about. Nuther do you, I reckon. If you'd given me half a chance you wouldn't be sittin' there so sassy with your gun. Well, what next? Want my roll? 'Taint very big."

Mason did not restrain a grim smile of admiration.

"You're smart, Johnny," he said. "I'd never be the one to deny it. Just march over and turn your back to me, and keep your arms lifted. That's it. Likely little pop shooter you got there."

It was growing dusk when the townspeople flocked to the street to watch the passing of a strange little cavalcade. Tyler sat on Mason's horse with his arms bound behind him. The overseer walked ahead, holding the bridle over his arm, and with his rifle at a trail.

Weaving the Web.

With the prisoner safely in jail Mason and the Sheriff made the trip to Benjamin Tyler's again the next day to gather facts as to his nephew's arrival there. The planter said that on the Wednesday night of Bell's disappearance John Tyler had spurred up to his door about eleven o'clock. The young man, he said, carried no baggage, but announced that he had come to stay for several days, declaring that he was tired of town life. The two had talked for some time. The elder man admitted that his nephew looked worried and tired and ill at ease.

"What has he been doin' since he came?" asked Mason.

The visitor had been fishing and shooting, the planter said. He had been out of the house much of the time.

"What arms did he bring with him?"

"A shotgun and a revolver."

The shotgun, a double barreled weapon, was discovered in the house, as were a number of cartridges. When these were examined on return to town it was found that the shot exactly corresponded in size with that taken from the body of Bell.

There remained but two more links in the case against Tyler. One of these was supplied by a knife found in his possession when a search of the jail. Mason and others at the Bell mansion could swear that it was identical with the one belonging to their employer which he had carried with him, customarily, every day.

The trial of John Tyler, which took place at Louisville, was carried to a speedy and satisfactory conclusion. The general good character of the accused afforded practically the only basis for the defence. An attempt at an alibi was demolished by the final circumstance in Mason's structure of evidence. Three men were put upon the stand and swore to having seen Tyler, on horseback, at different points along the road between the Bell and McDonald residences early on the evening of the murder.

The jury was out only thirty minutes, returning with a verdict of "guilty." The date for execution was set eight weeks off.

During his interval of imprisonment Tyler was visited one day by Elisa McDonald, who had urged her father to accompany her to the city once more after the trial for this purpose. The convict was sullen and answered her questions shortly or not at all. The ordeal through which he had passed had wrought a strange change in him. He seemed to have retained no affection for the woman to whom he had been utterly devoted but a short time before. He had shrunk from his former strength and it was feared by the prison authorities that he had developed consumption.

The girl had undertaken the mission for but one purpose—to hear from the lips of the condemned man a confession that would set at rest all fear of a possible wrong. She found that she could make no impression upon Tyler. After repeated questioning he avowed his innocence, but without fire and in a mechanical manner. To her instinct, however, there crept the beginning of a doubt as to the man's guilt. With eyes fixed intently upon him she demanded a fight among the negroes on horseback, at different points along the road between the Bell and McDonald residences early on the evening of the murder.

She was able to induce her father to obtain the services of a Louisville detective, Kittredge, an middle aged man of ripe experience and a long record of successes. Kittredge returned to the town with them and was placed in possession of all the facts. His instructions from Elisa McDonald were to go over the crime in all its details in a final attempt to discover some flaw in the case or some mitigating circumstance that might have been overlooked. The detective was not hopeful of uncovering fresh material after such a lapse of time, but applied himself to the task.

The Vital Discovery.

For two weeks there was no result from the supplementary investigation. McDonald, who had yielded to his daughter's whim in recognition of the importance of the question to her, began to grumble at the useless trouble and expense. Even Kittredge wished to give over an undertaking that seemed to include no promise of satisfaction for his employer.

Three days before the date appointed for Tyler's execution the detective announced a discovery. In making random inquiry along the Ohio River about half a mile from the scene of the crime he had caught a party of negroes which had been seen moored to the bank in the vicinity during the week of the murder. The occupants of the boat, as he learned, were a worthless and savage lot, who had lived upon the proceeds of raids through farms and plantations during their progress down stream.

The clew did not offer much, but Kittredge, at Elisa's urging, proceeded down the river in an attempt to discover the houseboat. He obtained word of it at a town twenty miles below. There had been a fight among the negroes on board. One of them had been shot in the knee and thrown overboard. He had been rescued and taken to a hospital, where it had been necessary to amputate his leg. He was now convalescent. Following the fight the houseboat had been run down by a steamer and all the remaining occupants had been drowned. Knowledge of this, however, had been kept from the patient.

Kittredge, with but two days left for his purpose, determined upon a desperate, random thrust, knowing that this was his last hope. He caused a physician and a nurse to be present and approached the negro who lay on his cot.

"Johnson," he said, "I've got the whole outfit, and what do you suppose they're tryin' to do? They've cooked up a story that you did the killing all alone."

The sufferer rolled his eyes upon the detective.

"They is, huh? Well, I guess I kin fix 'em. They done kill him these'f when they was lookin' fo' a pig to steal. I was soun' asleep on bo'd, I was. Every one of 'em was in it but me. They tried to kill me 'cause they was afraid I'd tell on 'em."

There was quick work getting the facts before the Governor together with a petition for a reprieve, but Elisa McDonald had the satisfaction of knowing that delay had been granted when the morning set for the execution dawned. Later Johnson was carefully examined and was able to prove to the satisfaction of the authorities that his companions had murdered Bell.

Tyler had had no thought of weaying his rival. His threat had been intended to mean that at some time suitable to both they should fight for the girl, with fists for weapons. His inability to win Elisa had made him distraught and nervous and he had been seized with a sudden impulse to leave her behind and to attempt to forge his infatuation. Yielding to this he had stopped at his home only long enough to take his shotgun, with an eye to possible hunting trips, and had galloped to his uncle's place. The pocketknife he carried was not Bell's but his own, a duplicate of the other. It was true that he had been informed of Bell's intention to visit the McDonald place, but he formed no plan to molest him.

The negro criminals, it appeared, had gone ashore on a raid. One of them carried a shotgun. When near the road they had heard an approaching horse. Murder and robbery had been planned and carried out. When these facts were made clear Tyler was pardoned. It was too late. He had developed a fatal disease in prison and he wasted rapidly to his end. Elisa McDonald did what she could to make him comfortable during his last few months and to repay, in some part, for her share in the disaster that had come upon him.

I seem to have no comfort left! The world is black and blue; I feel so hopelessly bereft I know not what to do.

Indeed, were I a coward fool, With nothing in my scound, I'd take a halter and a stool, And end the thing at once!

It isn't that the bank is broke, And all I had lot in it; I have more cash than many folk, And able still to win it.

Nor is it that the looks are cold, That were so warm and tender; She's true as steel; she's good as gold; And may all good attend her!

O no! I haven't lost a friend, A sister or a brother; Or seen a good position end Before I got another.

I haven't traded off my horse, And got a spavined cripple; Nor am I eaten with remorse After a heavy tipple.

It isn't gripe; it isn't gout; Nor any pain or ache; My sight is good, my limbs are stout; My hearing wide awake.

And yet, I never felt so bad, So downcast and forlorn; So helpless, miserable, sad— No, not since I was born!

Toothache or headache; gripe or gout; Is nought, compared with this! The miseries men talk about— Well—I should call them bliss!

Not one is mine of all the batch; And yet my woe is ripe; I find I haven't got a match, And cannot light my pipe!

Good Short Stories

SUBSTITUTION. "Good morning, madam!" voiced the cheery salesman.

"Good morning!" echoed the quiet-looking matron, "have you something very choice in Irish lace?"

"Well—er—no; but here's something just as good as seventy-five cents a yard."

"Just as good?" doubtingly. "Yes, yes; in fact, confidentially, superior to the real article. How much do you wish, please?"

"Just a yard," sweetly. "Here's your money."

"But, madam!—in confusion, 'you've made a mistake—this isn't money.' 'No!' agreeably.

"Why, no; it's a matinee ticket." "So, is it?" sweetly. "But it represents seventy-five cents, and while it isn't actual money, it's just as good. Adios."

The clerk faints.—From the July Bohemian.

SEED HAD FALLEN ON ARABLE GROUND.

A well-known prelate of the Cleveland diocese recently preached a series of sermons, his general theme being "Humility."

In the course of his sermons he necessarily dwelt upon the nothingness of man without the help of grace. His auditors were the gentle nuns of the Villa Convent, and the convent school pupils made up of many young ladies, girls and small boys.

At the conclusion of the sermons, says the Leader, the prelate, while divesting himself of the garments of the altar, turned to the sanctuary boys, boys of 10 or 11 years.

"What are you?" inquired the venerable priest of one of the two boys. Quick as a flash came back the answer, "I'm an Irishman, and I'm proud of it."

"And what are you?" he asked the other lad. Crossing his little hands upon his breast, he quietly rejoined, "Father, I have been listening. I am nothing."

The aged administrator of the Cleveland diocese chuckles as he unfolds the tale. The seed had evidently fallen on arable ground.

Tributes to His Work For the Unity of Canada.

Montreal, June 25.—To-day's celebrations in connection with the St. Jean Baptiste Society centered around the laying of the corner-stone of the new Lafontaine monument in Lafontaine Park.

Lafontaine's achievements and the lessons his life teaches constituted the subject of a series of eulogistic speeches delivered to admiring and applauding thousands.

Lieut. Governor Sir A. Pelletier graced the occasion and performed the ceremony of declaring the stone satisfactorily laid. He also delivered an appreciation of Lafontaine.

Senator Dandurand followed. He gave a vivid and most interesting summary of Lafontaine's career, indicating the great difficulties with which he had to contend.

"His greatest victory and his greatest achievement," he said, "was the establishment of the bond between the English and the French races, but without Baldwin he could never have won his victory. I claim therefore for Baldwin also a statue in the park of our city."

Mr. Bourassa also delivered a patriotic speech, dwelling upon Lafontaine's life for the purpose of showing his countrymen the wisdom of following the example of the statesman who devoted his life to the triumph of the principles of national pride and Canadian autonomy.

EVERY CONSUMPTIVE FIRST SUFFERED FROM CATARRH.

Just a slight matter at first, and because slight, neglected; but the seed soon brings forth a dangerous harvest. Consumption, which is the harvest of death.

"Maka da music wid de fina street piano—oh, very fine music!" Tony said, with a bright smile.

"How much do you make in a week?" "There was a flash of white teeth. "Maka da music money—firreener, maybe twenty dol!"

"What! Get twenty dollars for playing a street piano?" the astonished judge demanded.

"No, not for play," the music master admitted; "maybe gets two dol' for play—gets rest for shut up noise an' get off block!"

TO QUIT CRETE.

Powers to Withdraw International Troops From Island.

Whether War or Peace King George Will be in Trouble.

Paris, June 25.—According to the Temps, the four protecting powers of Crete, France, Great Britain, Russia and Italy, have reached complete accord with regard to the future of this island.

They have decided to withdraw the international troops from Crete on July 27. At the same time they urge the Cretons, Turkey and Greece to remain calm.

A proclamation to this effect will be issued to the Cretons, while Turkey and Greece will be advised through the regular diplomatic channels.

New York, June 25.—A cable despatch to the Herald from Athens says: The Minister of Foreign Affairs denies categorically the report from a Turkish source that the Hellenic Government is giving financial assistance to the Cretons to enable them to purchase arms and ammunition.

According to exact information these purchases are made by the provisory Government of Crete with the aid of Greek patriots mainly living abroad.

In spite of reiterated representations by the Ottoman Government it is certain at present that the evacuation of the island by the international troops takes place on July 27, the contingents of the four powers leaving Crete simultaneously.

Contrary to malevolent suppositions that the security of the Mussulman population in Crete will be threatened after the international troops leave the island, the Creton provisory Government will guarantee the lives of Turks in Crete.

Their sole danger lies in the appearance of a Turkish fleet in the harbors of the island, for this would be considered a challenge by the Cretons.

King George has refused to accept the annexation of Crete there will be a popular rising in Greece which will drive him and his family from the kingdom.

It was solely in consequence of an alternative of the same kind that he gave a reluctant consent to the former war with Turkey about Crete, which resulted so disastrously to Greece.

If, on the other hand, he does yield to the imperative demands of his people, and approves of the annexation of Crete to his kingdom, then the war with Turkey will ensue, of the issue of which there can be not the smallest vestige of a doubt in the mind of any body save of the Greeks themselves; and when, as is inevitable, they are defeated, they will, as on the previous occasion, saddle all the blame on King George and on his sons, the Crown Prince, Prince George, Prince Nicholas and Prince Andrew, for the national disaster, and will decline any longer to submit to his rule.

THOSE WITH FEEBLE MINDS.

What is Being Done by Some European Countries.

Canada Lags in an Important Social Work.

Playgrounds for Children—White Slave Traffic.

Toronto, June 26.—Canada must be up and doing in regard to the problem of the care of the feeble minded. It was a British delegate, Mrs. Edwin Gray, of York, who urged Canadians to learn by the mistakes of the older countries.

It was an acknowledged world expert that pointed out that the ratio of feeble-minded to the population was the same the world over, and who at the same time contended that Canada could be made the sanest country in the world.

It was the same British delegate, let it be pointed out, who congratulated Canada upon the policy of its Government to exclude all but the best immigrants.

At the same time it remained for two Ontario delegates to admit that the problem had already reached terrible proportions, and a third, from Quebec, to support their opinions with a similar statement as to her own Province.

"I will show you in fifty minutes fifty feeble-minded children," said Dr. Helen MacMurchy. "There are in the Province of Ontario 700 feeble-minded women and children, and it is a conservative estimate that 100 such unfortunate are born every year," was the remark of Mrs. Evans, of Hamilton, while Miss Derrick, of Montreal, said that in Quebec 150 feeble-minded women had been reported, without taking into consideration the French-Canadian population at all.

THE OLD WORLD'S WORK. The discussion arose in connection with the joint session of the sections of Education, Philanthropy and Social and Moral Reform, and followed papers showing something of the work which is being done in the old world.

In the first place Miss Van Ewijck told how in little Holland municipal and national schools for the feeble-minded had been established, and where it is hoped that in the next few months a law will be passed compelling the attendance of all such children at the schools provided for them.

Epileptics are not admitted to the schools, however, neither are those whose condition is such that they cannot be said to be morally responsible. Particular attention is given to the singing and kindergarten work, and each child is sent home in the care of a guide, paid by the municipality.

"There are three feeble-minded men to every two girls in the world," said Miss Dendy in reply to Mrs. Edwin Gray, who urged that more attention should be paid to the male sex, but Dr. Helen MacMurchy contended that the children should have the first claim, because then they would begin at the root of the matter, for it was hard to realize how quickly those same children came to maturity.

REVIVED OLD CRAFTS. The morning session of the art section dealt with the interesting subject of handicrafts and home industries in different countries.

Lady Aberdeen was able from her great knowledge of the movement to revive the old Irish lace trade to give a most interesting account from the distressed island. Lady Aberdeen founded the Irish Industries Association, and she told how efforts were being made to protect the hand-worker in linen from fraudulent misrepresentation by the producer of the machine-made article, who traded on the reputation of the hand-made goods.

Through the stimulus given by the association, the forming of depots for the disposal of the goods in Dublin, London and Paris, the Irish handicrafts had been saved, and with their survival had come a revival of the study of the old folk-songs, accompanied by the preservation of the characteristic music and legends, and in a sense the preservation to the people of the pleasures of imagination.

THE TRAFFIC IN WOMEN. At the private session of the International Women's Congress last night, following the public evening meeting, a report prepared by Lady Bunting, of London, dealing with the progress of the movement for the suppression of the traffic in women in all countries, was read.

The resolution urges all the National Councils of Women to study the respective measures now in force in their respective countries, and to work for such additional measures as will bring about the entire suppression of the traffic.

CHILDREN SADLY NEGLECTED. A scathing arraignment of the methods of dealing with the problems of child life in large cities, with some special touches on local conditions, was given at the joint session of the education, philanthropy and social reform sections of the National Council of Women yesterday morning, by Miss Sadie American, of New York.

In this connection Miss American pictured the scurried rows of homes in the new sections of Toronto without any provision for play room between them. Character was built in leisure even more than in work and there should be open spaces within reach of every child which he would feel was his own.

They should also be within a quarter of a mile of the homes of the children. There should be sympathy between the TALE OF A PEARL.

It Reads Like a Chapter From Arabian Nights.

New York, June 25.—A tale of a pearl said to be worth $140,000 and weighing nearly thirteen grains varied the drab monotony of the west side police court for Magistrate Corrigan yesterday.

The magistrate rubbed his eyes and wondered whether he was an Oriental cadi hearing the disposition of Sinbad the Sailor. Then he rubbed them again and scrutinized the visitor from whose lips the wonder tale came as freely as ever such a one flowed from the pen of a Wilkie Collins or a Robert Louis Stevenson.

The petitioner said he was Captain S. R. White. Centuries ago an ancestor of the Maharajah had presented to his favorite monastery two large oval pearls of sky blue color. In 1879 a priest ran away with a Rane, and they took the pearls with them. Later the priest and his wife were found killed.

In 1886 the pearls were next heard of as being in the possession of the Duc d'Annam, in France. He gave them to his friend, Colonel Du Verney. Misfortunes followed the possessors of the pearls. Du Verney and his wife both died, and the gems were sold at auction and reset by Parisian jewelers for the King of Belgium.

The gallant captain next told how King Leopold presented the pearls to Clarice De Merode, a French dancer, and famous in her day. Mlle. de Merode sent one of the pearls back to the Maharajah, and the other she gave to a French officer. He fell in a duel. His vanquisher took the pearl and again it disappeared from view until coming into the hands of a wealthy American.

It was pawned by him when stocks broke badly in Wall street for a paltry $1,000. Now here's the sequel.

Captain White, as the agent of the Maharajah, asked and obtained from the magistrate a summons for the appearance of Morris A. Forgoston, a dealer in pawn tickets in upper Broadway, who he said, had purchased the ticket for $150. The latter, it is said, has resold the ticket to a stranger. Mysterious Hindus are in town trailing Forgoston and the clues to the pearl, and meanwhile Forgoston is busy telling folk that he is entirely ignorant of the present whereabouts of the Maharajah's treasure.

Arrangements are being made to form a regiment of boy scouts in Ottawa. A number of local military men and private citizens are interesting themselves in the scheme, and already several hundred applications are in from boys to join the new organization.
