Watches!

Our sales this year have been larger than last, although there has been more competition. A good many who have purchased trashy watches are waking up sorry, and the reaction will have the effect of creating a better demand for reliable goods. We have no fault to find with honest competition so long as right goods are sold but do think the sale of dishonest goods ought to be prohibited.

Short Exposition of Christian Doctrine HOW WE KNOW GOD.

We know God first, by reason from the things that are seen. The great laws of morality which have their basis on the virtues called the Natural Virtues, point Him out distinctly. These virtues which command Prudence, Temperance, Justice and Fortitude, tell us plainly that there is a God who has gifted man with them, and that they are the work of His hand.

But we also know God in another way—this is called Revelation, or the speaking of God to man. It is a historical fact that God has done this in many times, places and ways, and only a man who deliberately shuts his eyes to evidence can make any attempt at a denial of this fact.

Men have said "we can know all about God without any Revelation." If we can, then we must be equal to Him, which is absurd. They have said, "God is far off and takes no interest in us, and so does not reveal Himself." If it be so, it contradicts the whole testimony of the order and course of nature, which shows the hand of God at every turn and step we take in its domain. We are ready to believe the latter rather than an individual philosopher. Men say again, "we need no Revelation; we can get along well enough without it." But the facts belie the words. The history of Revealed religion is the history of Christian civilization. For the men who get along so well without Revelation, they may take their choice of any of the barbaric or semi-barbaric races in the world.

As to the history of Revelation, it began of course with the first parents, and continued with Noah, Abraham, Moses, the Prophets, and finally it was completed and closed by the appearance of the Son of God in human flesh in the person of Jesus Christ. It will be interesting to know how these various Revelations have been made known to the world at large. In each case God has led on earth accredited persons who hold the deposit of truth, and had the authority to teach it to his men. Under the first dispensation, there were the men whom we call the Patriarchs, and who had from the Father of the human race the first Revelation. In the time of Moses God appointed the High Priest of the Jews in regular succession to the duty of teaching with His authority. Today we have the successor of the chief of the Apostles, whom Christ appointed to this same supreme office of holding and teaching and declaring and defining without error, exactly what He taught when He was on earth nineteen hundred years ago.

Then again God Himself has attested the truth of His Revelation by miracles which are beyond the power of man. So be assest to Abraham and Moses, and so He appeared in Jesus Christ. He proved Himself to be the Creator of nature by showing that He had the power of making it do His will.

The matter of Revelation itself, being as it is so consonant with all that is best in human nature; and showing man an eternal life of happiness in a world to come, depending largely on man's own personal exertions to attain it. And the assistance which God also promises to give to man to help him arrive at that life beyond the grave. These things all show conclusively to the unprejudiced mind, that God has made a Revelation, and that every word of it is true, and unless we believe it, we cannot be saved, for the denial of it is to make God the author of falsehood.

Rival Civilizations in Porto Rico.

(Catholic Standard and Times.)

The American flag now now waves over Porto Rico, and that means that American rule is sovereign in that island. War changes many things—even people's minds. We set out on war with the solemn avowal that we wanted no new territory as compensation, and our first act is to seize the first territory that offered itself, to be kept in perpetuity. We shall be judged in the future by our acts as well as our declarations. We know little of Porto Rico before the war; we know a good deal now. What we did know was of much the same character as our general knowledge of the Spanish colonial empire. A place of dreadful misgovernment, we were told; a place of savagery, ignorance, degraded superstition and chronic rebellion. Our going to Porto Rico and annexing it, without asking a word as to the wishes of the natives, was based upon the existence of an insurrection. Whether any such insurrection ever existed, save in the editorial rooms of the "yellow journals," is now more than doubtful. Now that our flag has gone up over Porto Rico and the Spanish officials and army have quitted it for good, it is proper for us, in order that we may put ourselves right before our own consciences, if we can, for the forcible annexation of this island, to take a glance at the actual facts as we are learning them now for the first time. For the past couple of weeks there have appeared in the Philadelphia Record letters describing Porto Rico signed Pannic B. Ward. The animus of this writer may be judged of from one trivial circumstance. In speaking of religious buildings in the capital, she speaks of them as "Romanish," and a Protestant church she refers to as "Episcopal." A straw shows how the wind blows, and the use of a deliberately offensive term to the people of Porto Rico, who are about ninety-nine per cent. Catholic, reveals the sort of manners and charity Porto Ricans may expect if the letters of Pannic B. Ward have the effect of attracting many to the island. But, in truth, it is doubtful whether such a stigma will set in—at least for a very considerable time. There does not appear to be very much opening for business for American speculators, either in spiritual or material things, in Porto Rico. Portions of this lady's letters may be quoted, in order to let the facts as she finds them speak for themselves. For instance, here is what the urban situation is like: "Ponce is the largest city of the island, with a population in normal times of perhaps 38,000. It is a rich old town, exceptionally clean for Spanish-America and well built. Its dwelling houses are mostly of wood, with iron balconies, green shutters and windows without glass—while the public buildings are of brick and stone. The latter are grouped around a palm-shaded plaza and include a Roman Catholic cathedral and an Episcopal church, besides the usual 'palacio,' theatre and casino. There are half a dozen other churches, of course all Romanish; a well kept hospital, public library and reading-room, two colleges, and a military school. The wide, well-paved streets are lighted with gas by an English company. The next town in point of population is San Germain, which has about 30,000, according to the latest census. A very interesting place to visit is Mayaguez, on the west coast, with a population of 12,000. It is a garden town, with clubs and gas works and the best hotel on the island. A fine iron bridge, completed some six years ago, connects the town with its port; but, unfortunately, the harbor is accessible only to vessels drawing not more than sixteen feet." "No doubt, when Ponce and San Germain and Mayaguez have had the advantage of the system of the Philadelphia City Councils and the Harrisburg Legislature, they will become much more modern and up-to-date sort of places, and the rigid monotony of well-paved streets and well-managed gas works will be replaced by more civilized methods of utilizing public money. So much for the civic portion of the island; the state of the rural districts may be gathered from the following items from the same despatch: "A good many Americans are already here to look up the prospects for investment of capital and the business chances for men of smaller means. They represent every element of professional, commercial manufacturing and industrial life, and it is safe to say that they are a shrewd lot, who will make searching and conclusive investigations. In every case they express disappointment. They did not realize at a distance that Porto Rico is not in the least like our Western States and Territories, with extensive tracts of unoccupied and unopened lands, or even like New England and our Southern States, with their abandoned farms and broken down plantations, but here every inch is owned by somebody and can only be acquired by the payment of a good round sum." "What Spanish rule has meant to this place is not only a happy social condition, but a system of inland communication well calculated to develop and foster industry. Spain had inherited from her ancient Roman rulers the grand art of making roads and building aqueducts, and this art she transmitted to her South American possessions in ample degree. Here is what this correspondent says about the roads and institutions of Porto Rico, as the Americans found them: "Nothing more delightful can be imagined than a saddle journey from San Juan to Ponce, the capital—a distance of thirty miles as the crow flies, but near as dry by the windings of the old omnibus trail, or 'royal road,' built by the early Spaniards almost four centuries ago. The interior of Porto Rico is extremely fertile and looks like a beautiful garden. It is remarkably well supplied with towns and villages, there being no fewer than seventy-three with upward of a thousand population, besides innumerable hamlets of grass-covered huts surrounding some elevated chert or bodega. All the towns are connected by good highways, with many transverse roads, and the railway began in 1893, follows the irregular shore line some 300 miles and already some several short branches into the interior. There are, under our American management—Porto Rico's railway system will include five lines, with twelve sections, about 500 miles all told—not a bad showing for the little three-cornered island, which is only about one-third the size of the State of Michigan, or somewhere about 36 miles long by 38 miles wide in its longest and widest part. Before the war there were 475 miles of telegraph in operation in Porto Rico and a deep-sea cable connecting it with the United States, Europe and the other Antilles. It had also a well established banking institution, whose headquarters were in San Juan, with branches extending throughout the island, and in 1880 a charter was extended for another bank, with the exclusive privilege of a note issue, the original capital being 1,500,000 pesos.

"We might well envy the Porto Ricans under their old Spanish civilization. If such results have arisen from the 'barbarous' and 'medieval' methods of Spain, we fancy that we could afford to be regarded as barbarous and medieval, too, if we could only secure life comforts of living and like happy social conditions. When the corrupt Legislature and the fraudulent contractor established their system in that little ocean gem, then we shall be enabled to draw the contrast between the methods of the 'people of dreams' and the people of 'brains.' A fitting pendant to these reflections and extracts is the following pregnant note from this week's Independent: "It is our duty to carry our schools to Porto Rico, much more than to bring colored Porto Ricans or Cuban boys and girls to our colored schools. Here they will learn that it is proper to forbid them to ride in the same cars or to go to the same private or public schools with white children. They will learn the wrong and sin of caste, the one course we are in danger of carrying to our new possessions."

More Light on the Philippines.

Eight Spanish priests of the order of Augustinians arrived in San Francisco from Manila on Monday [Oct. 17]. Their pastoral duties on the Island of Luzon were interrupted by the uprising of the natives, and they intend to proceed to South America in a few weeks. Among the travellers were the following: Rev. A. Cambrian, Rev. T. Catalan, Rev. G. Larralde, Rev. C. Peres and Rev. G. Osio. The reverend gentlemen wish it understood that they did not flee from the Philippines because of the American invasion. On the contrary they believe that Church interests will fare very well under the laws of the United States. The Padres granted an interview to a Monitor representative through an interpreter, on Wednesday evening. Padre Antonio, who acted as spokesman for the party, is an intelligent, kind-mannered gentleman. He has been in Manila for eight years and declared himself quite willing to tell the Monitor's readers the truth about the Philippines and their inhabitants. "Before anything else," said he, "I wish to protest against comparing Manila with Paris or New York. This is obviously unfair. You should remember that the Filipino has not been in touch with civilization as long as the Parisian or the New Yorker. It is contrary to the nature of things to transform in a generation a nation of herb-eating savages into drawing-room brilliant. You have been four hundred years trying to civilize the American Indian, and only last week the Chippewas—Well, that will do for a preface," he added smilingly. "What have you to say to me?" "What is the true character of the insurgents?" "The insurgents are an undisciplined mob of rioters, led by a demagogue. They are the riff raff of the islands. Men without principles or properly in most instances, and some cases poor fools or young boys who do not know why they are rebelling. Aguinaldo has them pretty well in hand today, tomorrow they may disintegrate into fifty gangs."

WELL KNOWN VIOLINIST

Traveled Extensively Throughout the Provinces—Interesting Statements Concerning His Experience. STELLARTON, N.S.—James R. Murray, a well known violinist of this place, who has traveled extensively throughout the Provinces, makes the following statement: "I was running down in health and my weight fell off from 175 to 150 pounds. Prescriptions did me but little good. My trouble was called nervous dyspepsia. I resorted to Hood's Sarsaparilla and after taking five bottles I was greatly benefited. I feel as well now as ever in my life, and have increased in flesh so that I now weigh 177 pounds. I am well known in this part of the country, having followed my profession, that of a violin musician for the last 26 years. I gladly tell my friends what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. Before I began taking the medicine I did not have any ambition, but now all is changed and my dyspeptic trouble perfectly cured. JAMES R. MURRAY."

N.B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy any substitute. Please get Hood's.

ROYAL Baking Powder

Made from pure cream of tartar.

Safeguards the food against alum.

Alum baking powder are the greatest menaces to health of the present day.

"He is a rattled pated ignora, whom cunning and circumstances have lifted to the position of generalissimo of a ragged band of law-breakers. Aguinaldo is an ungrateful renegade who was fed, clothed and educated by Catholic priests. He was a servant in a parish residence at Cavite and the Fathers attempted to educate him. They were not very successful as he later tried to obtain a position as teacher and failed. So you can see that his mental make-up is not of the finest. I suppose you are familiar with this genus renegade. He seems to flourish on both sides of the equator. In these worthies, and organized anarchy in Europe that we may trace the origin of the trouble in the Philippines. To give the devil his due, I will say that Aguinaldo occasionally acts as if he were a bit appreciative of the kindnesses which he owes to the Catholic priests. In fact, I believe, that if it were not for the hygienic influence of big bribes, he would not exhibit so much animosity towards the Church. I will recite you an incident illustrating this brighter side to an otherwise dark character. On the memorable morning when the American fleet destroyed the Spanish vessels and captured old Cavite, Aguinaldo placed a padlock on the disposal of his old master, Padre De Blas, and had him conveyed to Manila."

"Education general and progressive in Manila? It was a familiar slander during the late war that the priests tried to keep the natives ignorant. "Well, I will say that the boy or girl who graduates from the higher schools in Manila, of which there are a number, is as well educated as an Oxford or a Harvard graduate. The poor the boy or girl, of course, educate their children as literatures or musicians. Do they in this country? The native children are very bright, and, if it were not for the unstable condition of government, they would make astonishing progress in civilization. As it is, they will compare very favorably with the Anglo-Saxons in a corresponding state of evolution."

"How do the Filipinos regard the incursion of American soldiers into their country?"

"As a relief from the insurgent disturbances they welcomed their coming. Otherwise they were not pleased to have their country taken from them. What I will call the respectable element in the Philippines was well satisfied with Spanish government. They understood, even better than American Protestant newspapers, that Spain's government of the islands was all that could have been expected, considering the material with which she had to deal."

"What prompted you to leave the islands?" "Soon after the destruction of the Spanish fleet, the insurgents wrecked our schools, robbed and despoiled our missions and churches and drove us into Manila. About fifty priests were killed by them in the most brutal manner. As our field of work was laid bare, we decided to leave the Philippines. It was merely the discouragement of seeing the work of years destroyed by the men, we had gone to teach and the improbability of being able to build up the work again immediately."

"Is there any imminent danger of the insurgents rebelling against American control?" "I do not wish to spread consternation in the household of your soldiers, but if the American authorities in Manila do not nip in the bud the slightest tendency to revolt amongst the insurgents there will likely be great bloodshed. I certainly do anticipate serious trouble before matters settle down."—San Francisco Monitor.

A BRITISH SOLDIER Tells how Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills Conquer Disease.

Like the conquering armies of Britain, which are marching to victory in every quarter of the globe, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are everywhere triumphing over sickness, weakness and suffering.

Dr. David Walsh, of Carleton Place, Ont., a man who has served with distinction and credit in the British army, and now an employee of the C. P. Railway, says, "While in the army I got broken down, and my nervous system was completely shattered. I was unable to do any work, and I was suffering from indigestion, loss of appetite, etc. My rest became broken and was disturbed by vivid dreams. This had been going on for 14 years, although I took a great many remedies to escape from the troubles which afflicted me."

"However, I got no relief until I started to take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, which I used together with Hood's Liver Pills, and now after having used a few boxes, I am better than I have been for years. My nerves are restored to full force and vigor, I eat and sleep well, and my entire system has been toned and strengthened."

"I have been using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I can say that their action is natural and effective."

"Laxative Pills," says John Doherty, 28 North Street, St. John, N. B., "cured me of Constipation and distress after getting their action is natural and effective."

How Spain Lost Cuba. Mi Polvica en Cuba, by the Marquis de Polvica (Madrid: Emilio Minerva). If this book has not already been done into English, no doubt it soon will be, for the history of the administration of an ex-Governor of Santiago and ex-Captain-General of Cuba, written by himself, should prove both interesting and useful reading for those who are taking up the work which he had laid down.

of the conditions which make tyrannical effective. Or, as General Polvica says: "We Spaniards are entirely impracticable, and we live in extremes; we either commit barbarities, whereby we only succeed in making ourselves hated, and in allowing them (the Cubans) to think they are deceiving us with impunity."

In this connection the Catholics often complain that we have no great Catholic daily to which editors generally and Catholics alike might look for a true account of religious as well as secular news.

It took a long time to make the editor of Scribner's Magazine admit his error referred to above, and it would take as long to make the editor of the Century admit that his knotty problem article in the October number contains an ignorant and wholly unfounded paragraph.

Two men were hanged in the city jail of this city recently. Both were attended in their last moments by a Catholic priest. Hence we hear repeated the old charge that the great majority of murderers are Catholic.

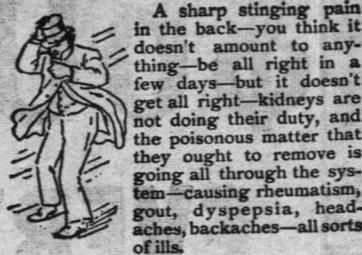

The editor of Scribner's Magazine, when forced to admit that one of the writers in his monthly has made a grave mistake which might injure the much-lauded aims of the Philippines, expressed his regret that Scribner's has no department for correcting such errors, as if his private letter and apology could mend matters or do more than show he was aware of the injury done, but unwilling to repair it.

JUST A BAD GOLD.

A sharp stinging pain in the back—you think it doesn't amount to anything—be all right in a few days—but it doesn't get all right—kidneys are not doing their duty, and the poisonous matter that they ought to remove is going all through the system—causing rheumatism, gout, dyspepsia, headaches, backaches—all sorts of ills.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS. Cure the disease by removing the cause.

W. D. Popham, Talbot St., St. Thomas, Ont., says: "I have for a long time had severe back and kidney trouble. My back was stiff and painful when I was down, and I had to have something to assist me to get up. I had taken four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, and they have cured me of my back and kidney trouble, and enabled me to get up without pain or difficulty."

BILIOUS. "Last summer I was troubled with Biliousness, and could not get any sleep at night, I tried several doctors but to no effect, and got completely discouraged. At last I saw an advertisement telling about Burdock Blood Bitters. My husband induced me to try it, and today I am using the third bottle, and can truly say it has done me a wonderful amount of good. I feel better than I have for years, and am confident I owe my restored health to B. B. WOOD'S BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS."—EDWARD BECK, Riverside, N.B.
