TRUE LOVE'S PASSION.

CHAPTER IV.

In Love With a Face.
"And generally miserable. Having been in the same condition myself, I knew the signs and felt a fellow-feeling."

"You stopped and spoke," resumed Cyril, his voice so full of music that it stirred the heart of the listener, "and insisted upon my coming home with you and sharing your supper. You asked no questions, and therefore got no fibs. And you have asked none from that hour to this."

"Which proves that I have not inherited my Mother Eve's crowning fault—curiosity," put in Jack under his breath.

"You took me on trust, helped me to gain my living—were, in short, that rarest of all rare things, a friend, a true friend in need; and, as a return for all your kindness, I refuse to confide in you!"

There was silence for a moment, then Jack Wesley looked up.

"Why should you confide in me?" he said. "Keep your secret, whatever it may be, my dear Cyril. I am quite content with my ignorance concerning it. A man's a poor kind of friend who wants to pry into his chum's private affairs. And now, will you come back to London to-morrow?"

Cyril Burne thrust his hands in his pockets, and frowned at the carpet. "No," he said, not ill-naturedly, but with firm emphasis, "Jack, I cannot." Jack Wesley knocked the ashes from his pipe, and regarded it intently before saying anything further; then he said:

"Then I must go alone. All play and no work will make Jack a hungry boy. You can paint down here as well—better than in town; I must be near my books. Yes, I'll return; but—" He paused, and, getting up, regarded the handsome, pensive face with a shrewd, kindly smile. "You didn't see the lady—old or young—who quoted Shakespeare on the terrace to-night, Cyril?"

Cyril Burne's face reddened under its tan, but he raised his eyes, and met his friend's gaze steadily.

"No," he said. "I know what you mean, and I plead guilty. Jack, I'll take if you think I am going to try and persuade you; but you'll let me say that, if I were indeed the friend you call me, I should secure you by main force and convey you as a lunatic out of harm's way; that is to say, miles away from Santeigh Court and the girl who resembles the De Vinci picture. Cyril, what good can come of this? For all you know she may be engaged—perhaps married!"

Cyril almost started, and bit his lip. "At any rate, she is on a visit to an earl. She may be no end of a swell herself."

"And I am a miserable painter," broke in Cyril. "I know. There is nothing you can say that I have not thought of, and yet I cannot go. Leave me here, Jack, for a few days at least. I know it's madness, but—well, knowing it won't cure it."

Jack Wesley nodded. "I understand, old fellow," he said in a voice full of sympathy; "that artistic nature of yours has caught fire, and I'll leave you to blaze it out. Is there anything I can do before I go? Anything in the shape of—" he hesitated and colored slightly—"well, to put it bluntly, anything in the exchequer line?"

Cyril Burne grasped his hand. "That's just like you, Jack," he said in a low voice. "No, thank you. I've enough for my modest wants, and I shall work—no, you needn't smile; I mean it."

"Well, then, I'll go to bed," said Jack. "Good-night." "Stop!" said Cyril. "We—we shan't want to talk over this again to-morrow, and I've remembered one thing you can do, or rather refrain from doing."

Jack held the door in his hand and waited, while Cyril paused.

"It's this: I've an idea that possibly some one may hunt you up and make some inquiries about me. It's not very probable, but it's possible. If any one should do so, will you tell them as little as you can?"

Jack nodded. "The Sphinx shall not be more discreet," he responded, with a smile. "I'll forget that such a person as Cyril Burne exists."

"That's just what I want," said Cyril. "Good-night, old fellow, and pleasant dreams."

"Left alone, he resumed his seat on the table, and fell into deep thought. Presently he took some money from his pocket, and counted it out on the table. It was anything but a large sum, but he appeared satisfied, and returned it to his pocket. In doing so his hand came in contact with a small fusee box, and he drew it out, and looked at it thoughtfully. It was of silver, and bore an elaborate monogram, and it seemed to suggest some idea to him, for, holding it still in his hand, he opened the door and went into the street. There was a horse pond close by, and he walked to it and hung the fusee case into the middle. It fell with a little splash, and he stood absently looking at the circle it had made in the water.

"I don't think there is anything else," he murmured, feeling in his pockets. "No, that was the last link and it is gone to the frogs." Then he was turning to retrace his steps to the cottage, when he heard a voice, a woman's voice, in the lane on the other side of the pond.

It was a pleading, agitated voice, and he caught these words distinctly: "You are hard—hard! Why do you treat me so? Do you think I am made of stone?"

Then a man's voice came in response: "Nonsense! I am prudent for both our sakes, that is all. Trust to me and be patient. Go home now, and don't fret over nothing."

The woman's voice murmured complainingly for a moment, then all was silent.

Cyril Burne smiled to himself. "I'm in for adventures to-night," he mused. "A lovers' quarrel, I suppose."

At that moment he heard a step, a man's quick, firm step, coming toward him, and instinctively drew back into the shadow.

A tall, thin young man passed him rapidly, and went down the road, glancing to right and left as if he were anxious to avoid recognition.

Cyril Burne looked after him with a faint wonder and speculation.

"If I were the young lady, I should think twice before I trusted you, my friend," he said to himself; "you are too cautious and careful in your movements."

Then he went back to the cottage, and the incident vanished from his mind. The canvas at which Jack Wesley had pointed attracted his attention, and, going up to it, he took up a piece of charcoal and rapidly sketched an outline of a woman's head.

Quickly as it was done, it bore a striking resemblance to the head that he had seen at the carriage window, to Lady Norah Arrowdale.

He looked at it for a moment with heightened color, then muttering "A Hie!" smudged it out impatiently, turned out the lamp, and went to bed.

CHAPTER V.

A Trespasser.

WHEN Norah woke the next morning, and, raising herself on her elbow, looked round the luxurious room, she felt bewildered and confused; it was all so different to the small and plain, though neatly furnished little room at Cliff Cottage. Then it flashed upon her that she was in Santeigh Court, and that she was Lady Norah Arrowdale.

Instantly another remembrance sprang into her mind—the mysterious voice she had heard on the terrace. She got out of bed and peered through an opening of the window curtains, certainly not expecting to see the owner of the voice, nor to revive her memory of the incident every phase of which was strongly impressed on her mind.

Norah was not a sentimental young lady, by any means, but she was not without a natural sympathy for romance, and the mystery of the unseen, unknown visitor who had been, all unconsciously, so close to her, affected her more than she would have liked to admit.

A knock at the door caused her to hurry into her dressing gown. It was Harman, who had come to help her dress.

"Good-morning, my lady," she said in her subdued manner; "I hope your ladyship slept well."

"Oh, yes," replied Norah; "I always sleep well."

"Yes, my lady," murmured Harman as she prepared the bath; "will you have hot water?"

"Oh, cold, please," said Norah, promptly.

"The bath is ready, my lady. I will come when your ladyship rings," and he went into the next room, where Norah heard her at the wardrobe.

It seemed strange to be waited upon, and and foot, and Norah thought with a smile what a helpless creature a fine lady must become in course of time.

When she rang, Harman appeared with a couple of morning dresses on her arm.

"Which will you have, my lady?" she asked, as if the question were of the deepest importance.

"Oh, I don't care," said Norah; "you shall choose for me."

Harman considered the matter with evident conscientiousness, and at last selected one of white pique with small black leaves.

Knocks Obsolete Coughs in a Hurry

A Simple Home-Made Remedy that Gets at the Cause.

Thousands of people normally healthy in every other respect, are annoyed with a persistent hanging-on bronchial cough year after year, disturbing their sleep and making life disagreeable. It's so needless—there's an old home-made remedy that will end such a cough easily and quickly.

Get from any druggist "2½ ounces of Pinex" (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Begin taking it at once. Gradually but surely you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether, thus ending a cough that you never thought would end. It also promptly loosens a dry or tight cough, stops the troublesome throat tickle, soothes the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes, and relief comes almost immediately. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with gaultherol and is used by millions of people every year for throat and chest colds with splendid results.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

A VERY ATTRACTIVE DRESS.

Waist 1849—Skirt 1871—Comprising Ladies' Waists Pattern 1849 and Ladies' Skirt 1871.

The waist is a popular model, with its frill revers, and the skirt is new and novel with its jaunty pocket trimming. Serge, gabardine, voile, corduroy and broadcloth are nice for the skirt; lawn, madras, crepe, voile, taffeta and batiste could be used for the waist. The Skirt Pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 20, 22, 24, 26, 28 and 30 inches waist measure. The Waist is cut in 6 sizes: 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. It will require 3¼ yards of 36-inch material for the waist, and 4¼ yards of 44-inch material for the skirt for a medium size. The skirt measures 3 yards at the foot.

This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns, which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents FOR EACH pattern, in silver or stamps.

A PRACTICAL MODEL FOR UTILITY OR GENERAL WEAR.

1870—Ladies' Coat.

Plush and velvet fabrics, velour, sabeline, corduroy, chevot, tweed, novelty suitings and broadcloth are all appropriate for this style. The fronts are lapped in double-breasted style and meet a wide collar at low neck outline. The sleeve is finished with a deep cuff, and the fronts are trimmed with smart, comfortable pockets. The coat is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 6 yards of 64-inch material for a 36-inch size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

PARIS, Oct. 25. The cavalry of the Salonika army is in touch with Italian cavalry detachments from Avlona on the Adriatic Sea.

THE ROMANIANS.
BUCHAREST, Oct. 25. In the Uzul Valley the Romanians advanced westward, taking more than 100 prisoners. At Oltuz enemy troops were driven beyond the frontier, losing 195 prisoners.

HELPING ROMANIA.
LONDON, Oct. 25. In reply to a question in the House of Commons to-day regarding the situation in Roumania, David Lloyd George, Secretary for War, said: "We and our Allies are working in concert. Everything that is possible is being done to help Roumania. Obviously it is undesirable to detail more exactly the measures being taken."

FRENCH HOLD DOUAMONT.
PARIS, Oct. 25. The clearing out of Fort Douaumont was completed during the night. The commander of the fort who was in a dugout was taken prisoner.

THE LOSS OF CONSTANZA.
PETROGRAD, Oct. 25. The loss of Constanza, the Roumanian chief seaport on the Black Sea, according to semi-official comment among members of the general staff, puts the Roumanians in a serious position, but it is not to be supposed it will entail any catastrophe. Col. Stumsky, military critic of the Bourse Gazette, says the success of the Teutonic Allies lacks that importance which it appears to have, and means only that the Roumanians have fallen back to a new defensive line from Tchernavoda to the Black Sea, slight-

Mr. J. R. Smith of the "Princess Pats" writes: "Tell my friends, if they want to help me to send some Zam-Buk, find it very useful indeed, and we can't get too much of it."

Mrs. Johnson, writing home, says: "Mrs. Johnson has offered to send me a rug. Ask her to send some Zam-Buk instead. It will be of more use here than all the rugs in creation."

ly northward of the railroad, and protected on the Danube by a strong bridgehead fortification. The assault of the invaders along the Constantza-Medjidie line is likened to the Belgian operations. The number of men crowded on this short front (Colonel Stumsky estimates there is one division to every three miles on a thirty mile stretch), is said to have been exceeded on any front. Meanwhile the Austro-German campaign against the Roumanians continues to be accomplished by the delivery of a series of blows against the extreme left flank. On the southwestern Russian front, from Dorna Waterna to the Roumanian frontier, the Austro-Germans are attempting to pierce the Russian line in order to isolate Roumania and prevent the further passage of Russian troops to assist Roumania. The Russians are said to have been able to check this offensive on all points on this sector.

Soldiers Entertained.

The sociable held by the Daughters of the Empire in the Presbyterian Hall last night under the patronage of Lady Davidson, as a form of welcome to our returned soldiers, was largely attended. His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson were present. About thirty veterans were in the audience and were greeted by Major Montgomerie, who acted as Chairman and complimented the heroes on their patriotism and work on the battlefield. A very enjoyable concert took place. Those taking part were: Mrs. G. W. B. Ayre, Mrs. Foster, Misses Mare, Shea, Ryan, Messrs. Hutton, Courtney and Pot, Messrs. Christian and Hutton acted as the accompanists. The farce entitled "Packing Up" was very amusing. The performers were Mr. Cooper, Corp. Cooper and Corp. Hobbins. At the close of the concert refreshments were served by the ladies. Quite a handsome sum was realized which will be handed to one of the patriotic funds.

Keep Liver Active And Bowels Clean With "Cascarets"

Best when bilious, sick, headachy, constipated, or for bad breath or sour stomach.

Be cheerful! Clean up inside to-night and feel fine. Take Cascarets to loosen your liver and clean the bowels and stop headaches, a bad cold, biliousness, offensive breath, constipated bowels, sour stomach and gases. To-night take Cascarets and enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced. Wake up feeling grand—Everybody's doing it. Cascarets best laxative for children also.

CANDIDATES.

My whole attention I am giving, to meet the rising cost of living. It keeps me hustling like the dickens to buy the liver, spuds and cholesters to feed the wife and children twenty, and see that they have shoes aplenty. The transient hours are swiftly moving, and all of them I'd be improving; I'd keep on humping, even harder, that hams and pigs may stock the larder. So I'm not cordial to that smarty, that office-hunting, widdy party, who interrupts me when I'm telling to tell how politics is boiling, explaining how this jaded nation can never find its true salvation until to something he's elected, and his antagonist rejected. I'd never vote for any fellow who comes and shows his streak of yellow by boring me when I am earning the stuff to keep the furnace burning. When at the polls in Black November, you bet I always will remember the candidates who did the spelling, and I will help them hit the ceiling.

Expert Opinion.
London Chronicle: It was a crowded railway compartment in the train carrying excursionists from the little town in Essex near which the flaming Zeppelin had been brought crashing to earth. Every body in it had found, or had acquired by purchase, a relic of the fallen monster. Generally it was a bit, sometimes quite a big bit, of the aluminum frame. There were metal workers in the compartment, and consequently expert criticism. "Not a very good job of riveting, is it, Bill?" said one, examining the joint; and Bill replied, "No, and they wouldn't pass brazing like that at our shop, b'leve me." Now what can you do with people who, instead of being scared by Hunish frightfulness, make deprecatory remarks about the workmanship of the instrument of destruction?

THE NEW BRITISH LOAN.
NEW YORK, Oct. 25. An official announcement was made to-day by J. P. Morgan & Co. that the new British loan by American bankers aggregating $300,000,000, which has been arranged, will bear interest at 5 1/2 per cent. Repayment will be made in two instalments, one three years and one five years. An interesting feature of the loan, according to the firm's announcement, is that because of the easy money market here it was arranged to advance the time contemplated by the British Government. Another is that it will cause for a time at least a cessation of the enormous inflow of gold to this country, which is said to have caused apprehension in banking circles of late because of the danger of inflation of fictitious values. Morgan settled for England recently and arranged the loan; he is still there.

GUEST OF HONOR.
OTTAWA, Oct. 25. Sir Robert Borden, Prime Minister of Canada, has accepted an invitation from the Canadian Club of New York, and will be the guest of honor at a dinner on Monday evening, Nov. 25.

THOSE POISON BOMBS.
BERLIN, Oct. 25. Referring to the official German announcement of Monday, that hostile aeroplanes which attacked Metz dropped bombs which emitted poisonous gases, killing some civilians and making others ill, the Tagblatt says: "Poison in bombs causes intense suffering and death in a few days." The newspaper continues, "General Joffre could not have sanctioned the assassination of non-belligerents," and expresses the hope that the French Government will apologize and punish the factories, adding "until this is done the incident will give a new turn to the war, the consequences of which cannot be foretold."

Everyday Etiquette.
"When I escort a lady home is it proper to take her to the gate or to the door asked Percy.
"You should escort the lady to the door and see that her key works all right, or that her ring is to be answered," his older brother answered.

Don't Neglect Your Cough.
A little cold may not seem a dangerous thing—you may feel inclined to let it go on hoping that to-morrow it will be better—but can you afford to take chances? Just as the little insignificant acorn grows if let alone, to the mighty giant oak, that cough if not stopped may grow to a very serious illness. When a Cough starts there's no telling where it will end. You know no doubt, of cases right among people you have known, where serious complications and fatal illness have had their start from a neglected cough or cold. "Don't neglect your cough." Stafford's Phorotone Cough and Cold Cure is what you should take. For sale at Stafford's Drug Store, Theatre Hill, and Stafford's Pharmacy, Duckworth Street. Price, 25c. postage 5c. extra.

Parcels and Money.
ANOTHER COMPLAINT.
Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I wish to call the attention of whoever it may concern, with regard to parcels and money sent to our boys now fighting in France. I sent my boy about $20 worth in parcels, and I telegraphed him $2 from the Royal Bank of Canada somewhere about the latter part of July. He never got any of the parcels and he never received the money. I want to know who is to blame in this important matter. I had a letter from my boy last night asking for socks, telling me the weather is cold, and I don't see any good in sending him any. It's too bad and I think the matter should be looked into.
Thanking you for space,
I remain, yours respectfully,
A SOLDIER'S MOTHER.

If the facts are as stated, there is good ground for complaint, but if the matter should be looked into it is clearly for the writer herself to do so as far as possible. If the instruction is that the authorities are to blame, we regard it, in one respect at least, on their behalf. If the money was telegraphed through the Royal Bank of Canada, we are fairly certain it reached its destination. If not, the sender should go to the Bank and have it traced. Whether or not similar observations would apply to the case of the parcels we cannot say, but in justice to all concerned it would be well if those who send remittances of any sort across would be most careful to see to the proper addressing, wrapping and other details connected with letters and parcels. Where so many hundreds go without mishap we cannot believe that the trouble with the few that go astray lies altogether on the other side.—Ed.

Roumania's Peril.

The situation in Roumania is so serious and so important that we are compelled to notice it again. There was yesterday a message of confidence in the result from Roumania herself, which we sincerely hope is not unfounded, but the succeeding reports do not altogether tend to inspire it. Constantza has been abandoned to the enemy and now it appears that Tchernavoda, more important in its strategic position, is the point of the Danube and the railway to the capital, has also been evacuated. It is rumored, these messages says, that the line bridge, the only one that spans the river in this whole region, has been destroyed in the retreat. This is true, and indeed, though the destruction of the bridge will greatly aid the defence, it could only have been the last resort of dire necessity, to become a big handicap if the battle turns eventually in favour of our ally. We shall wait for official confirmation before we believe it.

The fury of the German onslaught on Roumania has long been obvious and the effect is beginning to be painfully manifest. It may be true, as is usually the case, that this whole campaign is dictated largely by pure vindictiveness and the desire to make a "lesson" of Roumania as of Serbia, but the unfortunate thing is that it consists very well with sound strategy. This might not be the case at another time, but present circumstances enable the Germans to turn almost their undivided attention to this theatre without too great fear of being, as it were, stabbed in the back while they are doing it. Italy can exercise very little direct effect; the same is true in Macedonia; and Russia, though she alone can act effectively, has her hands full. It is encouraging, however, to note that the attempt of Falkenhayn to cut the communication between the two armies at Dorna Watra seems to have failed. Plainly, then, the object of the Germans is by an enormous and sudden attack on both sides to break into and overrun Roumania while the weather lasts, then to return in full force to the west. For this reason, we are convinced that it is on this front, the one farthest removed, that the most beneficent efforts can be made. It is good to see in the brilliant French victory at Verdun striking proof of the weakening of the German lines, and reinforcements are certain to pour in from some source. Germany counts much upon the advent of winter, and it already operates in her favor, but even so powerful an agent cannot take the place of men and guns. All the time, therefore, that the vital struggle aways to and fro in Dobruja and Transylvania, it is being helped to a decision in Picardy. A few more miles gained around Bapaume and Peronne, a couple of blows such as Tuesday's at Verdun, and Hindenburg may have cause to rue his latest expedition. But the situation is a critical one.

King Edward Brigade.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Will you please allow me to call the attention of the friends of the King Edward Brigade of St. John's, to the fact that they intend holding their annual Jumble Sale at their armoury, Harbour Grace, about the end of the present month. Any donations in kind or money will be thankfully received and acknowledged by me, if sent to my residence, 52 Leslie Street, City. I might point out that this small brigade has sent every available man that is on its roll eligible to enlist to the front, while others have joined the Naval Reserve, and are now serving with the colors on active service. The King Edward Brigade deserves well at the hands of the general public, and any donation, however small, will be received thankfully and appreciated by every member.

Therefore please help the lads, and by so doing we develop in them Patriotism, manly development, and cleaner living. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am,

Very truly yours,
W. J. JAMES,
Honorary Lieut.-Col. K. E. B.

White Elephant Sale Now On.

The chance of a Lifetime for the Newlywed, or Those that Are Going to be.

The much talked of White Elephant Sale opened at the British Hall at 10.30 a.m. to-day and was attended by a large gathering of ladies and gentlemen anxious to use the proverbial words of our country, you could buy anything from a needle to an anchor. Our esteemed citizen and auctioneer Mr. F. C. O'Driscoll, was in charge of the hammer and was instrumental in getting good prices for the articles offered. The sale is being conducted on the main floor and as the visitors enter the hall they are confronted with lawn mowers, carpet sweepers, children's coats, carriages and chairs, barrels, boxes and bags of all kinds of vegetables. On long tables are fancy goods, ornaments, lace curtains, dishes, chairs, tables, book cases and hundreds of other useful household articles, too numerous to mention. The affair is in charge of Mesdames MacKeen and Syme, assisted by an able staff of ladies, and judging by the success of this morning's sales the affair promises to be a success. The kind ever put off in the city. The auctioneer will be on hand at 2.30 this afternoon when the sale will be continued at the White Elephant will be sold. The object is most deserving, the prices rest with you, the articles are useful and numerous, so why miss the chance of a lifetime to help the disabled soldiers who have been wounded in fighting our battles? The sale will be on all day to-morrow.

Pine Tree Lozenges are one of the best remedies to have when the weather is turning cold with changes more or less sudden in temperature, and the consequent liability to throat colds, hoarseness and acute catarrh. A few of these lozenges, used at the outset of an attack of any of these affections will often do away with the symptoms promptly and entirely. The essence of pine trees which they contain is one of the best antiseptics and softening and soothing remedies that we possess. In this elegant lozenge are combined with other ingredients expectorant and soothing so as to make Pine Tree Lozenges an extremely valuable lozenge. Price 25c a box.

Booze "Litter" Brought to Task.

A laborer of the Higher Levels celebrated "gloriously" last night at the expense of an outport man, who had two bottles of whiskey stolen from him. It appears that both men were in a liquor saloon on Water Street and the outport man had the two bottles of booze in a box which he laid on the counter while he was getting a "smile" from the bartender. Suddenly the towny disappeared from the shop as did also the parcel from the counter. The outport man lodged a complaint with the police who rounded up the accused last night, but most of the liquid had been consumed. The booze "litter" gave a very unsatisfactory explanation of his conduct to-day before Judge Hutchings, who imposed a fine of $10 or a month in jail.

The Mood of a Wild Beast

It is an altogether vicious idea to imagine that one can deal with the German government of the hour and the German people in its present mood in the manner in which one might deal with an individual or a nation cheerfully concerned with also questions of honor or humanity. Germany is in the mood of a wild beast and she has broken over every restraint which civilization and honor impose. She can be restrained only by fear of gaining a new enemy, whose actual opposition may be more useful to her enemies than the submarine campaign would be costly to Germany.—New York Tribune.

Ring Round the Piling Kills Teredo.

An extremely novel method of attacking the teredo problem, which is a serious one to marine construction in many parts of this country, has just withstood a sixteen months' test on the pier of Long Beach, Cal. These little destroyers attack themselves to the piling or other woodwork standing in the water, at some point below the high tide mark and down to about two feet below low tide, and several days are necessary for them to effect an entrance into the fibre of the pile. The present invention takes advantage of this fact and the animal is killed by the action of a metal ring which is placed loosely around the pile after it has been driven. With the action of the water this ring automatically traverses the affected area, and the reported blows of the ring against the pile are said to kill the teredo before it has the opportunity of entering the wood. The abrasion resulting from the movement of the ring is considerable.—Scientific American.

Lord Roberts on War.

When the late Field Marshal Lord Roberts warned the British Empire that it ought to prepare for war which was bound to come sooner or later as a result of the German idea of expansion, very few people in authority took him seriously. Events have proved that he was right, and Lord Roberts is now given credit for sizing up the true Germany more correctly than any other man of his time.

But "Bobs" went farther than this. A short time before his death he wrote an essay in which he made some striking statements on the subject of war and its value to the nation. On first consideration some of his arguments will no doubt be looked upon by peace-loving people as alarming and incapable of being supported, but the average man who will agree that Lord Roberts at least gave the subject great thought and study and that there is something in what he wrote. For example, in declaring that the great war was the nation's greatest need, he said:

"Politicians demand pay for work which should be patriotically given to the nation; men, women and children speak out of conformity to the religious observances of a former generation; all men begin to live above their incomes; a grotesque extravagance has become the fashion; schoolboys and undergraduates think it necessary to begin where their fathers left off; a political corruption begins to be the smart thing; the nation has begun to live for the moment."

The late Field Marshal went on to argue that peace begets overcivilization and overcivilization degeneracy, which is bound to be followed by war, the supreme test of a nation's stability. Whether that be true or not, no one will doubt the correctness of the great General's words when he said that "if the country has any health left in its constitution it receives when war comes, gathers itself together, makes the most tremendous sacrifices, puts forth an effort of a strength of which no man thought it capable and rises like the phoenix."

How true this is of Great Britain! It is doubtful if Lord Roberts himself ever dreamed of the British Empire rising with such tremendous energy to meet a great crisis as it has done during the two years since Germany swept over the Belgian border and began its slaughter of innocent women and children.—St. John Telegraph.

Political Personalities.

"What personalities will come out of the weather and the eclipse and earthquake of this war-time?" asks Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M. P., in "Reynolds". "It is quite impossible to say as yet. Except Mr. Asquith and Mr. Lloyd George no man of the old or the young generation has adhered much to his former position; indeed, many, if not most of them, have rather receded than advanced. A Coalition Ministry has had, in its brief career, a political life, many unexpected by-products. It did not add to, but diminished the hold of many party leaders on their old friends."

"Probably Mr. Asquith will have had enough after the war. Some other Ministers will also have had enough by that time. But, after all, nobody can speculate on the future of any of these with confidence, for no man can tell what the new conditions of social and political life in England will be after the war."

"We are certain to face an entirely new world, and it is conditions as such as their own gifts that make or mar the fortunes of all politicians. When the contingencies are all discussed and all exhausted, there enters that final factor in the life of a politician, when every politician is bound to be, and that decisive factor is the great god Chance."

Here and There.

BIG SHIPMENT.—The s.s. Kaiford left here for Mediterranean ports last evening with over 20,000 tons of codfish.

MINNIE ARRIVES.—The barq. Minnie, Capt. Wakeham, 33 days from Barbados, reached this port last night bringing a cargo of molasses to A. Goodridge & Sons.

TO GO MINING.—A large number of men from Spaniard's Bay and Bay Roberts, who were fishing on the Labrador and returned recently by the Sagona, intend seeking work at Bell Island and North Sydney.

TO ENTER HOSPITAL.—Three women from the outports arrived by last night's accommodation train to enter the General Hospital for surgical and medical treatment. One of the number, who belongs to Vale Island, was refused admission to the institution this morning on the grounds that she was only suffering from the effects of a corn on her foot, an ailment which could easily be attended to at home. Several similar cases have been reported at the hospital during the past year and some of our outport doctors should use a little more common sense as in every case the government have to foot the bill.

INVESTIGATING ASSAULTS.—The police detectives are investigating the many assault cases, which have occurred in the city of late after night-fall.

Rugby Football as Bomb
The Paris Journal records the impressions of the taking of Tielvaig given by a wounded Australian who, with five comrades, advanced in an attempt to silence a German machine-gun which was bothering them:—"Getting near the enemy blockhouse we threw all the bombs we had, and the enemy certainly were on the point of surrendering when our ammunition gave out. Already the Germans were showing their noses over the redoubt. One of my two surviving comrades seized a Rugby football which he dribbled before us from our trench and made as if to throw it. The Germans took it for a new bomb, held up their hands, and we captured them easily."

Join the Army of Health
Why be a straggler in the rear guard limping along with weak nerves, chronic indigestion and lower vitality? Desert to-day from the army of General Debit and enroll under the banner of General Good Health. You need assistance? Zoetic is a faithful friend that will put you on your feet again. This famous health tonic supplies in a most pleasant form just those elements which your nerve torn fibres are crying for. Take it for two weeks. And if you cannot report real progress toward renewed health, we will refund the purchase price. That's how sure we are of it. So how can you longer trifle with this urgent matter of getting well again? Sold by T. McMurdo & Co., Sole Distributing Agents for Newfoundland.

Two Men.
"Has the war produced two more delicate passages than these, which I read in Mr. Gibbs' description of the battle on the Somme?" asks "A Wayfarer" in the Nation.
"There were two fellows on the roadside to-day, an English soldier and a German, trudging side by side to a field dressing-station." Both heads were bandaged, and one man could see out of one eye and one out of the other.
"Said the Englishman: "This chap tried to gouge out my eye with his fist, and I did the same to his with my elbow, and now we get on famously together."
"Two gibber men came in—enemies an hour before."
"This is old Bill," said the English soldier, pointing to a wounded German. "Where I go Bill goes. I wounded him and he took him. . . . Come on, Bill, old son."

GENERAL LAURIE SAILS.—The General Laurie, Capt. R. Benson, sails to-day for Bahia with a cargo of 3,623 drums of codfish, equivalent to 4,140 quintals. The fish is being shipped by G. M. Barr. This will be Captain Benson's second trip in command of a foreign-going vessel.

IS NOW A SNIPER.—Mr. William Thistle, of the G. F. O., received a letter from his son, Private John H. Thistle, who left here on the 19th of July on the Sicilian. The letter was written on October 16th and stated he was leaving Apr that night with B Company for France. Private Thistle sent his father a fine pipe which he was presented with by the G. O. for shooting at Irwin, making 140 points out of a possible 160. He was chosen as one of the snipers for the Regiment and no doubt he will get in some good work when picking off the Huns.

Cold Comfort!

By RUTH CAMERON.

A letter friend has a point of view to present. "While on the whole this plea for cheerfulness and the making the best of things is a healthy symptom," she writes, "don't you think it can be overdone? In some cases, it seems to me, it leads to selfishness. Do you not think that some people, for instance, make a sort of shibboleth of 'Don't worry' and just use it to stave off a conversation which they think would bore them?"

"In fact, I often say that some people when they say 'Don't worry' really have 'Don't worry me.'

Admit They Have Something to Bear. "I do believe in helping people to be brave and cheerful, and happy if possible, but I want first of all to be sympathetic, and I think in many instances one can accomplish more by admitting that the complainer has some grounds, than by just saying some platitude about looking on the bright side.

"For instance, is it not more likely to accomplish what is desired, if we say, 'Yes, it is a hard task, but you are equal to it,' or 'God will help you,' than if we just say, 'That is easy,' or 'You ought to see what some people have to do.'

Don't Talk Too Much About Other People's Blessings. "One of my strictest rules is never to tell a person she ought to be thankful unless she has more than I have. How exasperating it would be, for instance, when a person is bed-ridden to be told by someone in perfect health that she ought to be thankful she can use her hands!

Don't you think anyway that there is a certain perverseness in human nature which makes us want to contradict, and that when we are told that we are very fortunate, we at once begin to think of our drawbacks? So, really, if we want to help anyone to appreciate his blessings, it is unwise to say too much about them."

Sometimes These Vicariously Cheerful People Are The Least Resigned. Can you understand that point of view? I emphatically can. There is something almost uncanny in the cheerfulness and fortitude some people can show about other people's troubles. When their own troubles come, these are often the people who are the least resigned. I have in mind a woman who in her own days of prosperity told a poor widow, who had to fill in for other people's homes for a living, after the death of her husband and only child, that she ought to be thankful that she helped out so many people in tight places. When that woman lost her prosperity and had to do similar work, I never saw anyone so unresigned.

What Are You Doing for that Eczema? "Nothing; I've about given up trying to cure it." "That is not wise. Do as I did and you will probably be cured in a short time. I used Zylax and Zylax Soap with it and my Eczema began to improve at once. A couple of boxes cured. You can get Zylax at your druggists." Zylax, 50c. a box; Zylax Soap, 25c. a cake. Zylax, London.

Our Volunteers.

Two recruits offered themselves for enlistment at Headquarters yesterday. Their names are:
Lorenzo Dawe, Cupids.
Wm. Thompson, Liverpool, Eng.
During yesterday the volunteers in training were for a march country-wards, going and returning via Le Marchant Road, Patrick Street, Waterford Bridge Road and Bay Bulls Road.

Another Assault.

While on her way to her home on the Southside Road at an early hour last night a young woman was chased and insulted by some unknown black-guard and but that her screams put her would-be aggressor in flight, might have been attacked. She could not give a description of the scamp owing to the intense darkness at the time.

Your Boys and Girls.

Anxious mothers err in one or two ways in looking after the physical wants of a young child. They either line the medicine chest with gargles, castor oil, cathartics and dope for colds, or they neglect the child's needs entirely. Physicians are recommending to mothers to get further away from using the old time, honored medicine chest. They should take the suggestion offered by the Chinese physicians who make it their business to keep their patients well. If you are a rational mother you will give your child a wholesome and liberal diet. This means plenty of milk and fresh eggs, and a good portion of fresh vegetables and fruit. Most once a day for a young child, but she needs it that often to make strength and blood. One of the simplest ways of keeping your little girl well is to give her plenty of fruit and water.

RESUMED VOYAGE.—The Norwegian steamer Aro, which put in here yesterday short of coal, has resumed the voyage to Glasgow where she is bound from New York.

Record Railway-Building.

Wonderful Feats in Rapid Construction Achieved By Clever Engineers.

Russia has just beaten all records in railway construction. She has built a great double-track, broad-gauge line from Alexandrovsk, an ice-free port on her north coast, down to Petrograd, and completed it within six months. It is 1,200 miles long, and 10,000 men, mostly prisoners, were employed upon it. At the beginning of the war we foolishly talked of the Russian steam-roller. The fact of the matter is that when the Colossus of the North makes up her mind to do a thing, she does it at least as rapidly as any other nation.

Look at the Great Siberian Railway! For a generation she dreamed of it. Then when the time came she built it in eight years.

The Road To Klondike. Think if it! Five thousand five hundred and twenty-seven miles of line, most of it across wild plain and forest and over great mountain ranges, in a climate where for five months of the year the soil is frozen to the consistency of granite, and all this in eight summers! It is a record which, even in America, has never been equalled.

T. J. EDENS.
Duckworth Street and Military Road.

It cost one hundred and forty millions, and since the date of its completion another twenty-two millions have been spent in improving the line. The best work done by Americans under similar, but even worse conditions was the construction of the White Pass and Yukon Railway, which opened up the route from the coast of Skagway to the gold region of Klondike.

Within twenty miles from its starting-point this line has to climb the White Pass, a height of just on three thousand feet. When the station at the summit was opened seven feet of snow surrounded it, and the thermometer registered 57 degrees below zero—that is, 89 degrees of frost.

Eight Miles in Twelve Hours. These first twenty miles were built in a single summer, the company using seventeen hundred men, divided into two shifts, and working night and day. Considering that every rail and bolt had to be brought more than a thousand miles there is not a yard of level ground, the country being one mass of precipitous mountains and terrific ravines, this is really a wonderful record.

What we may justly boast to be the quickest piece of track-laying of which any record exists was accomplished in the year 1911 on the Baro-Kano Railway, in Northern Nigeria.

Here, on a contract leased to a British company, six and one-third miles of main line were laid in a single day. This was done in flat forest country by native labourers, bossed by white men.

The Americans boast that they once laid eight miles of track inside twelve hours; but this was on the prairie, and the comparison is not fair, for they had laid out all their sleepers beforehand, and they used a track-laying machine to put down the rails.

Some of the best work ever known in this direction has been done on the Cape-to-Cairo line. Up in Northern Rhodesia, beyond the Zambesi River, the line progressed for a long time at the rate of a mile a day, and on one occasion five and three-quarter miles were laid in ten hours.

Hustling of Crewe. A French engineer, who had been constructing railways in French West Africa, and was visiting Rhodesia, would not at first believe that construction could go on at a rate greater than half a mile a day. Just to show him what could be done, a quarter of a mile was laid in twenty minutes! We might instance the building of a locomotive at the Crewe works of the London and North-Western in record time. Eighty-five men were set to work at eight minutes past nine in the morning. At twenty-past eight in the evening all was finished except setting the valves.

At ten past nine next morning the engine was complete.—Answers.

Fads and Fashions. Ruffles are used even in fur. The hat-betted coat is a new feature. The autumn suit must have a fur collar. The coat may be as long as one wishes. Autumn hats are almost untrimmed. Corduroy has a great vogue for little children's hats.

GERMANS FAIL TO RECOVER GROUND.

PARIS, To-day. Three successive counter attacks by the Germans north of Verdun in the region of Haudremont and Douaumont were repulsed by the French yesterday, says a bulletin issued by the staff office at midnight. The prisoners taken by the French exceed 4,500.

STOPS MAIL STEAMER.

LONDON, To-day. The Central News learns that a German warship stopped a Norwegian mail steamer which left Bergen Monday for Newcastle. This is the first action of the kind.

A GREATER CANADA.

NEW YORK, To-day. Baron Shaughnessy, in an interview granted to a representative of the Canadian Press as he was about to board the steamer en route to Europe, predicted a greater Canada industrially and politically when peace is declared, though bleeding with wounds and bending with the weight of the great Empire of which it is an integral part. He said Canada's biggest role in the play of the world is not now but in the future.

WAR REVIEW.

LONDON, To-day. The Allies are working with feverish haste to attempt to encompass Romania from the northeastern and western borders of Transylvania and the Dobruja. In the latter region progress in their broadsides into Ferdinand's territory with the Russians, however, in engagements with the Bulgarians they have been driven on the heights south of Dobruja. Keeping up his drive in the Dobruja Field Marshal Von Mackensen brought his line well above the steams-Tchernovoda railway and a right wing resting approximately 10 miles north of Constantza and the only bridge across the Danube in this region. Whether the Roumanians in their evacuation of Tchernovoda left intact the fourteen mile bridge which would be of immense value to the Teutonic Allies in their resumption of Bucharest, has not yet been made known, but following a precedent, despite the quickness of Von Mackensen's forward push, it is presumably been destroyed. The ground on the eastern Transylvanian front on the Austro-German border given up to the Austro-Germans by the Roumanians, but according to the charettes in Transylvania have been driven northward, while in the United States and Oltaz Valleys the Roumanians have made advances. In the region of Verdun, where the French yesterday made their spectacular ground drive north and northeast of Verdun, despite vicious counter attacks, they fared particularly in the region of Haudremont and Douaumont.

WAR REVIEW.

LONDON, To-day. From three points the Teutonic Allies are working feverish haste to attempt to encompass Roumania from the northeastern and eastern borders of Transylvania and through Dobruja. In the latter region and on the east Transylvania front further progress in their inroads into King Ferdinand's territory have been made. On the northeast Transylvanian front, however, in engagements with the Russians they have been driven from the heights south of Dorna Watra. Keeping up his drive in Dobruja, Field Marshal von Mackensen has brought his line well above the Constantza-Tchernovoda railway line, his right wing resting approximately on Techau near the Black Sea, twelve miles north of Constantza and left and north of Tchernovoda, whence runs the only bridge across the Danube in this region. Whether the Roumanians in their evacuation of Tchernovoda left intact the fourteen mile bridge, which would be of immense strategic value to the Teutonic Allies in a diversion towards Bucharest, has not been made known, but following military precedent, despite the quickness of von Mackensen's forward push it has presumably been destroyed. Further ground on the eastern Transylvanian front on the Roumanian side of the Vulean and Predal Passes has been given up to the Austro-Germans by the Roumanians, but according to the latest news the Roumanians have driven northward, while in the Usul and Oltaz Valleys the Roumanians have made advances. In the region of Verdun, where the French on Tuesday made their spectacular drive north and northeast of Verdun, they are still holding the ground gained despite vicious counter attacks, delivered particularly in the region of Haudremont and Donaumont and east of Fumh Wood. North of Chemnitz they have gained further ground. More than 4,500 German soldiers were captured in this region. Elsewhere along the front where the French and British are facing the Germans in France, little activity except by big guns has been shown. Likewise in the Austro-Italian theatre the artillery is doing the greater part of the work along the entire line of battle. The northern part of the Carso plateau is under heavy bombardment. Only minor operations have taken place on the fronts in Russia and Macedonia.

NORWAY'S HEAVY LOSSES.

LONDON, To-day. Lloyd's reports the Norwegian steamer Anno Gurine from Glasgow for Nantes, sunk and the crew landed at Plymouth. A Reuter's despatch from Kristiania reports the sinking of a Norwegian steamer Garibaldi and Ravn (previously reported). This despatch says the crew of the Ravn were saved. The Norwegian barque Randi has been burned by a German submarine. The Norwegian steamer Edam, which was previously reported to have been captured, is now reported sunk and the crew taken to Emden.

GERMAN WARSHIP DESTROYED.

COPENHAGEN, To-day. Large quantities of wreckage were washed up on Revshale Island, near Copenhagen, on Wednesday, according to the 'Eikstrabladet'. An investigation showed the wreckage was from a German warship, and included large sections of the after part of the ship.

VERDUN A SWEEPING VICTORY.

PARIS, To-day. The French troops at Verdun are following up as fast as they can the advantage gained by their sudden forward stroke on Tuesday and according to the latest information have closed to within less than five hundred yards of Vanux fort. Announcement of its capture is momentarily expected here, thus completely restoring the French line held on February 25th. The German forces at Verdun are reacting so slowly and with such apparent lack of strength that it is the opinion of French military men they no longer possess a general reserve but are obliged to withdraw men from one section of the front to reinforce another section in case of need. The reports of the casualties which are now in hand show that the French losses were very slight indeed, and considerably less than the number of prisoners taken, and a large proportion of them will be cases in which the men were slightly wounded. Considerable material was captured. The Germans had massed guns of all calibre in the ravine of death, all of which fell into the hands of the French. The three Lieut-Generals who under command of General Mangin, led the attacking divisions were all Lieut-Colonels at the outbreak of the war and had been singled out by General Joffre for promotion on account of their technical ability, energy and initiative.

ANOTHER ONE.

LONDON, To-day. The Norwegian steamer Tag, has been torpedoed by a German submarine, the crew were saved.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE.

Via LONDON, To-day. Can the German line on the Western front be broken? Next to General Sir Douglas Haig, few British soldiers are in a better position to judge than General Sir Henry Rawlinson, General Haig's right hand man in the Somme offensive. "Undoubtedly it can," was Rawlinson's reply to the question which the whole world is asking. "Are you satisfied with the results?" he was asked. "Yes," he replied. "We have taken position after position and thirty thousand prisoners. For nearly four months this new army has kept on attacking and has asserted its mastery over the enemy, who had forty years preparation. The dogged and heroic gallantry and tenacity of our Infantry has been proved, despite their desperate counter attacks, by how few prisoners the Germans have taken. The Allies in close sympathy and co-operation will keep on pressing simultaneously on all fronts until at some point the enemy gives away. It is difficult to say what the result of a break in the line might be, but it will seriously weaken his whole system of defence. Our army has not yet reached its zenith of power nor will it have done so until next spring or possibly next summer. I think we have reached the top of the hill, but there is an undulating table land to cross before we really get on to the down grade portion. Beyond this step it may be quite a gentle slope, but it will be down hill work and comparatively easy."

TROUBLE IN MEXICO. MEXICO CITY, To-day. The War Office announced to-day that Government troops had been despatched from three points to reinforce the garrison at Santa Isabel and to surround the Villista force which is attacking it.

BRITISH SHIP SUNK.

LONDON, To-day. The British steamer Sidmouth has been sunk and the crew landed.

No Peace Possible Yet.

London Telegraph: For France there can be no peace until the military power of Germany is crushed in the field. For Great Britain none; for Russia none; for Italy none. All the Allies know it, and all are inspired by a determination which is dictated by the same fear. Let the truth be stated frankly! For twenty years and more the Powers of Europe have been living in fear of Germany and of the vast military machine on which the fabric of the German Empire was based. Wars, indeed, there were in which she took no part, but everyone knew that the hour of the world-war would come when she said the word, and all lived in dread of that word being spoken. The Allies are resolved not to enter upon such another era of what M. Briand has called "wa peace"; they are resolved to make an end not of Germany—that is in no man's mind—but of the infernal military machine of which the Kaiser is the head. There is no peace possible while that machine endures, and it will endure until it is overthrown either from within or from without. The German people believe what they are told, and they are told by their idol Hindenburg that their military position is still brilliant. They will not believe the contrary till their lines are broken and their armies are rolled back upon their frontiers. Peace will come within sight, perhaps, when France is cleared of the foe, Bulgaria knocked out of the war, and the corridor to the East closed once more both to Germany and Austria. How can it come before?

Sing a Song of Zeplins.

"I was trying to remember an old nursery rhyme last night, and I could not remember the Westminister. It would come wrong—something like this: Sing a song of Zeppelins, A little bit awry; One and twenty Germans Dropped from the sky. When the Zepp descended, The Huns began to sing, But 'Deutschland über Alles' Didn't seem the thing. The Zepp was in the farmyard, Sitting on its tail, An Essex Special met the crew And popped them into gal." FRESH COD SUPPLY.—The local market was well supplied this forenoon with fresh cod brought there by several boats, which were on the local fishing grounds early this morning and secured good fares.

The Countess's Curse.

Francis Joseph's Tragic Life. Francis Joseph, Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary, has for years sought release from the appalling tragedies of his life in death. He is haunted by a terrible curse. "May your life be wrecked and yet may you live on in lonely, unbroken, and horrible grief, to tremble when you hear the name of Karolyi." It was Countess Karolyi who uttered this awful imprecation when her husband fell a victim in the Austrian massacre of Hungarians. This fearful curse was uttered over sixty years ago, and from that day fate marked the Austrian Emperor down for a life of tragedy and sorrow. To-day, at eighty-five, he awaits the end tremblingly, knowing that, terrible though the punishment has been, he has in a great measure deserved it. See how the curse of Countess Karolyi has worked. It was Countess His brother, Maximilian, who had attempted to establish a Franco-Austrian monarchy in Mexico, was executed. Carlotta, the wife of Maximilian, went insane as the result of her husband's execution. The Emperor's only son, the Crown Prince Rudolph of Myerling, was found dead with Baroness Vetsera following a romantic love affair. Stephanie, widow of the Crown Prince, married an attaché of the Austrian Embassy, losing her Royal rank. Archduke Johann Salvator fell in love with a dancer, and on being refused the right to marry he resigned his rank, married her despite the Royal decree, and sailed for America. He was lost at sea. Duchess d'Alencon, the Emperor's sister-in-law, was burned to death in a charity bazaar in Paris. Francis Ferdinand, the heir-apparent to the throne, married beneath him, and the humbled Emperor had to acquiesce. Empress Elizabeth, the Consort of Francis Joseph, was assassinated in Switzerland after an estrangement from the Emperor. And then came the crowning tragedy of all. In June, 1914, the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, nephew of the Emperor and heir to the throne of Austria-Hungary, and his wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg, were assassinated in the streets of Sarajevo, Bosnia, a tragedy which precipitated this great war.—Tit-Bits.

RUBBER COVER FOR THE WATCH.

Among the rubber novelties recently introduced is a watch protector which covers the case entirely except the dial. It is designed for the use of workmen principally and for those who are compelled to move around electrical machinery and it renders the mechanism proof against damage. The clinging quality of rubber makes it almost impossible for the timepiece thus protected to slip out of the pocket.

Two Years of War Enough of Horror.

Young Newfoundland Veteran, Visiting Here, Found Nothing but Frightfulness in Experience.

On Torpedoed Vessel.

Soldiering in the Great War with Newfoundland regiments is a compendium of horrors that would stagger the imagination of a Dane. You lie in blood-soaked trenches for days with German shells bursting over you, and taking toll in the lives of your comrades. You are commanded by English officers who neither understand nor appreciate the character of their men. You toil for hours at a stretch with pick and shovel. Your clothes are caked with mud and sweat, and for days are never removed. Your body is crawling with vermin.

You are starving most of the time, and half-starved all the time. All day and all night, day after day, the big guns roar and the shells shriek. From ghastly No Man's Land the stench of the rotting corpses is stomach-turning. Deadly gases and sickening gas masks add to the horrors. At night you lie as part of a listening patrol among the dead bodies between the armies. Before daybreak you man the foremost trenches with your comrades, for the German rushes come at dawn. When it's your time to charge, the nervous tension before the word comes is frightful. When you charge you are simply insane. Sherman was right.

All of this is according to Fred O'Toole, twenty-two years old, of 1733 S. 22nd St., late corporal of the First Newfoundland Regiment, veteran of the Dardanelles campaign and the July Somme offensive. O'Toole's regiment was practically wiped out July 1 of this year, in an attack on a German advanced trench at Malley, France. Returning to Newfoundland in command of twenty-four time-experienced soldiers, he was discharged at St. John's, and caught the Red Cross liner Stephano for New York.

The Stephano was one of the six vessels sent to the bottom last Sunday by the German U-boat that raided the New England coasts. O'Toole witnessed her destruction from the deck of the United States torpedo boat destroyer that picked him up.

Glad to See U. S. Warships.

"I had been down to tea," he said, when asked about the sinking of the Stephano, "and when I came on deck I saw a submarine lying about a hundred yards off and sending shells across our bow. There were two shots fired by the time our engines were reversed. All around us were warships. I thought at the time that it was some kind of a drill, and even when they commenced lowering away the boats I didn't realize that a German submarine could be attacking us on this side of the Atlantic. When I did I was glad to learn that the other warships were part of the United States navy. The submarine was flying no flag when she shot across our bows.

"I enlisted in St. John's, which has been my home from childhood, in 1914, I went to Edinburgh, Scotland, with my regiment, and from there to Ayr, where I was made corporal of military police. Then we went to the Dardanelles. I didn't get much chance to get acquainted with the Turks, for I was stricken with dysentery and spent several weeks in the hospital. From there we went to Alexandria, Egypt, and there I was corporal of police, besides being cashier of the regimental cinema show. Then we embarked from Port Said for France and zigzagged through submarine infested waters to Marseilles. Every man had to wear a life preserver all the way and to remain below decks. The penalty for violation of this order was Field Punishment No. 1. Fancy tying a man to a stake for four hours a day for the violation of an order! That was F. P. 1.

"We spent but a short time back of the front, and I'll never forget our introduction to the battle lines. We had an English guide. He lost the way for us, and as a result we tramped for miles in a sap, a sunken path leading to the advanced trenches. It was raining, and most of the time we were knee deep in mud, stumbling in the dark except when the star shells lit up the sky.

"I took part in bomb raids on the German lines and had charge of sappers who mined villages held by the enemy, and took my turn as listening patrol between the lines. It sounds exciting, but it was all so ghastly and gloomy and dirty.

"Bayonet fighting? No one can describe it. You are insane. You see gray figures with spiked helmets and you dash at them, I suppose, and try to kill them, and they try to kill you. You are frenzied and you stab and slash, something like you—and you wake up in a hospital. What was it like? You don't know. I don't know.

"The charge on July 1 at Malley was my last engagement, and I'll be satisfied if I am never in one again. The night before the battle we were told that we would attack in the morning. We were eight miles behind the first line then. We loaded our equipment—about 130 pounds—on our backs and shoulders and marched to the first line early in the morning. We 'non-coms' were given permission to sight through the periscope and study the 250 yards of No Man's Land we had to cross under fire. It was a stretch some hundreds of yards in length and about 250 yards across. Our artillery had been shelling that trench across the way for over a week, and a torrent of shells was being dropped upon it then. At 8 o'clock our lieutenant-colonel took his place with us. He drew his watch from his pocket and announced: 'One hour. The word went down the line.

Suspense Before The Charge. "At half-past eight he announced: 'A half-hour.' "Later he said, 'Then minutes, then five minutes, two minutes.' It seemed an age. The men were trembling, eager, pale-faced, excited. At last the word came.

"We were on the parapet with a rush. Some dropped as they mounted the earthen wall, but most of the command reached the centre of No Man's Land, when an almost unbelievable storm of machine gun fire burst upon them. A few, but very few, reached the scattered barb wire entanglements. Almost all the rest fell before that awful fire. Eight hundred and two men answered the lieutenant-colonel's command to charge. Fifty-six of us returned to our trenches under command of a sub-lieutenant."

O'Toole declares that the German bravery has been exaggerated in some cases. "Some of them are very brave," he said, "and some of them are the worst cowards I ever saw. As far as the war is concerned, I think they're beaten right now, but they are stubborn fighters and it will take some time to convince them."

Drooping, Tired, Weary, Try This Remedy.

Don't give in to that depressed, played out, don't care sort of feeling. Better days are ahead. Cheer up, do as the other fellow is doing, tone and strengthen your blood, and you'll feel like new again. You'll dance with new found energy once you use Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They will quickly fill your system with energy, bring back the old appetite, restore that long lost complexion, make you feel like a kid again. A wonderful medicine, chucked full of health bringing qualities. You need Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Get a 25c. box to-day at any dealers.

Killed in Action

Mr. Goodyear, of Grand Falls, yesterday received a telegram from his son, Sergeant Joe Goodyear, telling him of the death in action of another son, Private Ray Goodyear, on October 12th. The extraordinary patriotism of this family will enhance the sympathy felt for other in their loss. Mr. Goodyear had five sons in khaki—the two mentioned above, two others, Lieutenants in the Nfld. Regiment, and a Lieutenant in a Canadian unit. As if this were not enough, a daughter has volunteered, and is now serving as a nurse. We think few families can show such a record, and the rank held by the gallant young men is proof of their worth. Not merely the sympathy but the gratitude of the country is due the Goodyear family, in which the Telegram sincerely joins.

Fifty-five British Peers Killed in Action.

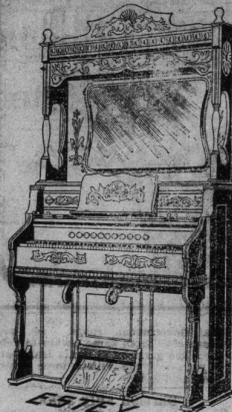

Sons of Four Cabinet Ministers Among Heroic Dead.

London, Oct. 16.—Fifty-five sons of British Peers have fallen on battlefields of the European war. The last was Lieut. W. Wyndham Tennant, the eldest son of Glen-Connor, who was killed in France on September 22, at the age of nineteen. Only a few days before, the death in action of his cousin, Lieut. Mark Tennant, was reported.

Four Cabinet Ministers—Mr. Asquith, Lord Lansdowne, Pike Pease and Arthur Henderson—have lost sons, and Lord Crewe a son-in-law.

FASHIONS AND PADS. As a rule sleeves are large. Children's velvet hats have scarfs to match. Persian cashmere is a charming trimming. Some of the chemise robes have no pockets at all. Narrow metal ribbons are used for neckbands. Vivid green velvet is used for evening frocks. Very many of the new suit jackets open on the side. Japanese embroidery effectively

Amusements.

Go to the Crescent Picture Palace to-day and see the all feature picture programme that is on. Allan Forest and Jay Morley in "The Gulf Between" an absolutely Lubin drama produced in three reels. Charles Wellesley and Zena Keefe in "The Unforgotten," a great social drama by the Vitaphone Company. Davy Don, the unique comedian, in "Frocks and Pills," one of the funniest comedies. Professor McCarthy playing the piano. Tomorrow, "Haunted and Hounded," a great three reel Knickerbocker star feature.

Here and There.

Turkeys, Ducks and Chicken at ELLIS.
BOY MISSING.—A boy named Joseph Moss was reported missing to the police last night, having been absent from his home since the previous day.
St. Ivel Cheese, small tins, at ELLIS.
STRIKE UNSETTLED.—The situation regarding the stokers strike remains practically unchanged. All ship-owners but one refuse to recognize the Union henceforth.

Fresh Irish Hams and Bacon at ELLIS.
A CASE OF TYPHOID.—A resident of New Gower Street suffering from typhoid fever was removed to the Fever Hospital yesterday. Very few cases of this disease have been reported within the past two months.

SEAMEN FIGHT.—Yesterday afternoon two seamen, a Norwegian and a local water traveller, engaged in a free fight in Steer's Cove. They had pummeled each other badly when Head Constable Peet and a constable came along and arrested the peace disturbers. The Norwegian got his left thumb broken as a result of the row and had to be attended by Dr. Roberts at the police station.

GLENCOE'S PASSENGERS.—The S. S. Glencoe reached Placentia yesterday afternoon with the following first class passengers:—C. Curtis, Mrs. C. Carter and child, Miss V. Simmonds, Miss J. Rowvell, R.
