"Little Robinson Crusoe," a Big Hit

Jackie Coogan's Newest Metro-Goldwyn Picture Great Entertainment.

Seemingly there is no end to the possibilities of Jackie Coogan's genius as an actor; no limit to his powers of appeal. He is at the Nickel Theatre in a production, supervised by Jack Coogan, Sr., and directed in its principal elements by Eddie Cline. It is called—with far more propriety than most pictures are named—"Little Robinson Crusoe," and it is a story written expressly for little Jackie by Willard Mack.

It is a thrilling success. That was the verdict of yesterday's audiences at this theatre.

It begins, in San Francisco where, at the opening of the story, the hero, little Mickey Hogan, is found bereaved of his father. The latter, a member of San Francisco's police, was killed. The boy is now fatherless as well as motherless.

The story begins on the day of Mickey's mother's death. He is being taken ready for a long journey to Australia where he is to be cared for by a sister of his mother. The voyage is abruptly ended in mid-ocean. The ship is wrecked in a typhoon and all are saved, except little Mickey. He is found by a ship's cat and together they cast upon an island in the South Seas.

"Peg O' My Heart," a Beautiful Performance

ARLIE MARKS SCORES BIG IN POPULAR CHARACTER AT CASINO.

It can be truthfully said that "Peg O' My Heart" as played by Arlie Marks and her Players, is one of the finest pieces of dramatic work seen in a long while. Last night "Peg" duplicated her success of the previous night. Miss Arlie-Marks is perfectly at home in the role of Margaret O'Connell, who is known as "Peg." Miss Marks is such an accomplished artist that at one moment she has you in tears of laughter and then changes the laughter to seriousness in a manner that grips the attention of her audience. The role of Peg abounds in heart interest and delicate humor. In fact Peg is a lovable character and the way she so cleverly matches her Irish wit against the chilly heartlessness of her English relatives and beats them to a standstill is indeed interesting.

Lindsay E. Perrin, who plays the character of Sir Gerald Adair infuses reality into the role. His performance is excellent to a detail. The entire cast shows good directing and each character scores individual triumphs.

The settings are indeed atmospheric and is a true life interior of the home of English aristocrats. The lighting is perfect and the furnishing very handsome.

The vaudeville numbers are big attractions of this well balanced show. Princess Abdi Hamid, the woman of a thousand eyes is an entertainer of a particular nature. Her crystal gazing and the secrets she reveals are certainly marvelous.

The Great Andrews delighted all by his feats of Magic and Judging from the reception tendered him, he is going to be very popular with lovers of this kind of amusement. The remainder of the programme was excellently carried out. The play for the balance of the week is the celebrated success, "Speed Jones." Tickets for same are now on sale.

T.A. Ladies' Entertainment

An enjoyable card party and dance was held last night in the T.A. Armories, under the auspices of the T.A. Ladies' Auxiliary. The affair was largely patronized and proved a financial success. The card party was participated in by a large number of players and the competition was so keen that a play-off was necessary to decide the prize winners. The lucky winners were Mesdames Tobin and Cantwell. At 9 o'clock dancing was indulged in and was kept up until an early hour this morning. The ladies announced that the next entertainment will take place on Wednesday, eve of the holiday.

Magistrates Court

A married woman of the West End, who is well known in police circles, having served several terms in the penitentiary, for various offences, was arrested yesterday at the instance of a city mechanic, and appeared before court this morning charged with stealing a purse from his pocket on Monday night, which contained the sum of $28. The evidence of the complainant was taken, and that of a detective, who has been engaged on the case.

Shortly after the woman had been placed under arrest the detective cautioned, and although she denied the charge, she declared she knew where the purse could be found. The detective, stated further in his evidence that the woman, on the night that the larceny was committed, had cashed a five dollar note in a shop on New Gower Street and later hired a taxi and drove in Mundy Pond Road. Supt. O'Neill then asked for a postponement of the case for the purpose of giving the police ample time to complete their evidence. This was granted. The woman was then remanded to the penitentiary for eight days.

An 18-year-old girl, who gave her home as Salvage, E.E. was also arraigned before court, and was charged with stealing a ladies coat, valued at $30.00 from the store of Messrs. James Baird, Ltd., within the past four weeks. The girl stood weeping before the bar, and between sobs acknowledged her guilt, and upon answering questions addressed by Judge Morris, she stated that she was fatherless and motherless, had no work, and was depending on a few friends, whom she had met in the city to give her enough to eat. Mr. Piercey who was called on behalf of Messrs. Jas. Baird Ltd., did not wish to have the girl sent to prison, but stated that something would have to be done to prevent stealing, which has been altogether too prevalent of late. He would only ask that some arrangement be made to refund cost of the coat. Judge Morris took into consideration the circumstances surrounding this girl's case, and rather than send her to jail, he decided to suspend sentence to give her another chance, but she must make good the amount of stolen property.

A resident of Manuel's who was held on remand about a week ago, charged with stealing a sum of money from the store of J. R. Martin, at Manuel's on April 5th, came up before court this morning, and upon being convicted was sentenced to six months imprisonment. According to the evidence submitted the accused was a bosom friend of Martin, and visited his home on the day of the larceny and partook of tea with his family. The Martin family left the house that evening to attend church, while the accused went off in another direction. In the meantime Martin was very suspicious of his friend, and left Const. Efford in hiding in the shop, which adjoined the residence. Upon his return he found the man had entered the shop by a false key, and was caught red handed by the constable at the cash drawer from which he had taken $2.45, and placed in one of his long rubber boots. The officer waited his chance and flashed

The Street Car Service

There is considerable speculation as to the concessions which the Street Railway Company propose seeking during this session of the Legislature. When the propositions were submitted to the Council some short while ago, they were turned down flat, but very little information was given out as to their nature. From a well informed source it is learned that the company regard the street car service as a white elephant under present conditions, and are asking that free customs entry be given for all material to be used in rebuilding the lines; that the Municipal taxation be reduced and that the onus of clearing the tracks of snow be shouldered by the municipality for the payment of a fixed sum. The right to prevent jitneys operating on streets where there is a car service is also said to be one of the concessions asked, as is also the right to raise the fare from five to seven cents.

The hearing resumes this afternoon.

The Best Advertising Medium in Newfoundland

Mr. Wm. Wrigley, Jr., the chewing gum king, of Chicago, in explaining the rapid growth of his company, said it was all due to advertising. "But," interrupted one of his friends, travelling with him to the Pacific Coast, "you have already built up a remarkable business. Why not save some of this advertising money and run along on momentum for a while?" "Well," Mr. Wrigley said, "we have had a fine, fast trip West from Chicago so far. How much progress do you think we would make if they took off the engine?"

Well Meaning Slanderers

Now and then articles published abroad by strangers tend to give a false impression of Newfoundland. If they are of a humorous and harmless nature, we are ready to join in the laughter; if they are vindictive, we can generally afford to disregard them, but when they are written in ignorance, however well meaning, they call as far as possible for correction. The following comes in the latter category:

REV. H. MACDERMOTT.

"Who is he? Ask anyone who knows anything about the outposts of Newfoundland and you will immediately receive the reply, 'Why it's Mr. Mac.' 'Mr. Mac' is the only minister along 120 miles of rugged coastline in Newfoundland. He is a doctor, too, and a magistrate, and a road maker, and—well, the adviser and friend of everybody. The people in the outposts are all simple fishermen. The men go off to the Grand Banks two or three hundred miles away for the deep sea fishing. They are hardy men to whom the intricacies of our modern civilization are unknown, but they understand the simple Gospel as revealed in the self-sacrificing service of a brother man, and therefore they understand MacDermott for he meets them on their own ground."

The above, taken from a pamphlet issued by a certain Colonial and Continental Association in Sheffield, may be excellent propaganda in the cause in which it is used, but as a distortion of facts, as a reflexion on the self-sacrificing work of the other clergy and doctors in Fortune Bay, and as an unfair representation of the conditions which exist in our outposts, it merits the strongest censure and entitles us to ask if steps cannot be taken to put an end to the circulation of such highly coloured effusions which discredit us abroad.

Not for a moment do we imagine that the gentleman referred to has wittingly been responsible for the statements made. It would be unlike Dr. MacDermott, who, so far as we know him, is anxious to do his best in his particular field, and would not desire to belittle the work of others in his profession, to exaggerate the hardships that he undergoes, or to classify the people of Fortune Bay as ignorant and unsophisticated.

There was a time when such methods were used to stir up interest in the mission field, but long ago it was discovered that they worked more harm than good, and whereas in the earlier days there might have been some grounds for referring to the backward condition of the country in such terms, they by no means apply to-day. Hardship there is, certainly, and here as elsewhere there is much to be done for the uplift of the people, but the devoted missionary is inclined to make light of his experiences, and is too deeply interested in his work to spend much time in elaborating upon it.

Ominous Signs in Europe

Is the stage being set for another war? Warnings have been issued from various quarters that another outbreak is imminent. Germany has been shown to be making preparations to meet, or perhaps to precipitate such an event, and Hindenburg is a candidate in the Presidential elections. The despatches to-day announce that the political situation in France has developed into one of the most serious crises in her history. Recently it was suggested that the Hungarian regime was working to restore the Hapsburg dynasty and the Empire of Austria Hungary, with a view eventually of forming an alliance with Germany. In Russia, in order to inflame the minds of the people or to detract their attention from the blunders of their rulers, reports have been circulated that the other powers are preparing to attack her.

In the messages received this morning is an account of an attempt on the life of King Boris of Bulgaria, the killing of two of his attendants, and the murder in Sofia of one of the generals who was closely identified with the overthrow of the Peasant Dictatorship under the control of Stambulsky in June, 1923. This incident vividly recalls the event that occurred at Sarajevo on June 28th, 1914, when a Serbian student assassinated the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir to the Austro-Hungarian Crown, and his wife Sophie, Duchess of Hohenberg, and thereby precipitated the war which involved all the great nations and not a few of the lesser powers.

If matters are as serious as they appear to be, how will such a catastrophe be averted and by whom? Undoubtedly in Britain and her Dominions and in America any attempt to renew hostilities in Europe would meet with universal disapproval, and the united decision to prevent it at any price would do more to have a sobering effect than anything else. To conduct a war money and supplies are essential. To-day most of the European countries are in straitened circumstances, and it is unlikely that either of those powers which could, and formerly did replenish their depleted resources would be willing to lend any assistance to such a purpose.

S.S. Ranger Seventh Arrival

S.S. Ranger, Capt. Wesley Kean, arrived from the icefields at 8 o'clock last night, with a catch of 6,000 young and old seals. The Ranger like the other ships got jammed up early in the season, and even after getting clear very little could be done with seals owing to continuous fog and bad ice conditions. While the ship was working the old seals engine trouble arose and she was forced to put into Grosbeak Islands, for repairs, and after making a second attempt further trouble developed, when she was compelled to abandon the voyage and harbor at Conche. After temporary repairs had been effected at the latter place, the ship was made to port with stops at Twillingate and Pool's Island. Capt. Kean and crew are in good health after the trip.

A Sensation on Water Street

Not for some time, have such crowds assembled to view a shop window as gathered around Ayre & Sons Grocery Store window this morning, to see the most "lively" display ever seen on Water Street.

The immense window is given over entirely to an artistic display of Crisco, the popular shortening. A mechanical figure of a French Chef attracts considerable attention, for this figure, actually is "alive" in as much as it lifts up different cards and holds them long enough to be read, and then takes up the next one. The eyes, lips and hands move perfectly and it is difficult to believe that the chef is really a live man. People were standing for hours watching the clever device operate and much favorable attention was attracted to the Crisco, which is being particularly sought after these days, on account of its success in making Flippin Pie. Altogether, the display is a very attractive and ingenious one and reflects very creditably upon this popular grocery store.

Prominent Wedding in the C. of E. Cathedral

CRAWFORD-WHITE. This morning at ten o'clock, the Church of England Cathedral was the scene of one of the most fashionable and pretty weddings that have taken place in that stately edifice for some years, when Dorothy, the eldest daughter of His Lordship the Bishop and Mrs. White was united in the bonds of Holy Matrimony to Mr. James H. Crawford, President and Director of the firm of Messrs. G. Browning & Sons, Ltd.

An immense crowd had filled the Cathedral long before the bride entered the building, leaning on the arm of the Honorable the Chief Justice, Sir William Horwood, and escorted by her sister, Miss Beth White, who acted as bridesmaid and little Alice White, niece of the bride, who was train bearer.

Among those present were His Excellency the Governor, Lady Allardye and suite and many prominent officials both in church and state. The bride was charmingly dressed in a gown of white satin and silver brocade and real lace with the train lined with pale blue. She carried a magnificent sheaf of Easter lilies, and her long veil was held in place by a wreath of real orange blossoms. The bridesmaid's dress was of pale pink georgette beautifully embroidered, and she wore a black hat and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The duty train bearer, who performed her part of the ceremony admirably, was dressed in white.

The groom was supported by Mr. Hagen Fraser, the youngest son of Dr. N. S. Fraser, and the Chief Justice gave the bride away. His Lordship the Bishop officiated and was assisted by Rev. Canon Jacobs, the Rector of the Cathedral. During the service Mr. King presided at the organ, and as the party left the Church the Wedding March was played.

After the return to Bishop's Court, refreshments were served and the health of the bride and groom, proposed by His Excellency the Governor, was responded to by the groom. The happy couple were the recipients of many and beautiful presents, which were displayed in the drawing room and much admired by the assembled guests. Afterward Mr. and Mrs. Crawford accompanied by many of their friends drove to the Red Cross liner Rosalind, which was ready to depart, and by which they are traveling to Halifax en route to England and Scotland where the honeymoon will be spent. The bride's travelling costume was a brown ensemble suit trimmed with fur, with hat to match. They received a most hearty send-off from those present. The Telegram joins in wishing the couple bon voyage and many years of wedded bliss.

Attempted Assassination of King Boris.

A General and Two Attendants Killed.

SOFFIA, April 14. King Boris of Bulgaria, had a narrow escape from death to-day at the hands of alleged Communists, while General Gheorghiu, one of the leaders in the movement which overthrew the Stamboulsky Government in 1923, was killed in the streets of Sofia. The King's automobile, which was travelling in the direction of the capital ran into an ambush of Communists who fired upon him. The King was not hurt but two of his attendants are reported to have been killed and the chauffeur wounded. One of the slain men was a young nationalist, Hlofref. Almost immediately after the attack the assassins fled. Troops went in pursuit and searched the entire district, but without success.

REVOLUTION FRUSTRATED IN COLUMBIA.

BOGOTA, Columbia, April 15. A coup d'etat was frustrated Sunday when a group of army officers who planned to take possession of the palace and government were arrested and thrown into prison. The conspirators purposed to take advantage of the absence of President Noloplan from the capital. The President had been on a visit to the various departments of the Republic, but he suddenly returned Sunday and the arrest of several army officers and some government officials at the capital followed.

Wesley Young Men's Literary Class

MOCK PARLIAMENT. The Mock Parliament held by the above mentioned class last night proved to be a huge success. Everything was carried out under full Parliamentary procedure, and the speaker, who was the speaker, and he performed his duties with all the dignity and efficiency which that high office calls for. Ronald Cross ably performed the duties of Governor. He read the Speech from the Throne in a very calm and distinct way, thus enabling the large number of visitors to hear and understand every sentence of the speech.

Mr. Tim Rooney moved that an address in Reply be drafted and sent to His Excellency. This was seconded by Wm. Joyce.

The Leader of the Opposition, W. S. Sparkes then let loose a storm of criticism on the Speech from the Throne. He attacked the policy of the Government in a very able manner, and his delivery was admirable. In other words "Watty" was a typical politician. L. M. Knight, (Government) then spoke and upheld the Government's policy. Then followed H. H. Hooker (Opposition) and W. Whitmarsh (Government). Both members delivered very brilliant addresses. Other Opposition members who spoke were C. Newbury and W. Grouchy. The other Government members who spoke were B. Simmonds and E. Bursey. Mr. Bursey was the Prime Minister and he delivered his address in a most able manner. His delivery was exceptionally good.

Some of the Bills to be presented for the approval of the House are as follows:—"The Spinster's Test Act," "The Crown Lands Act," "The Bell Island Mining Act," "The Non-Indulgence and Non-Immigration Act," "The Redistribution Bill."

The Potential Wealth of the Labrador.

Sir Patrick McGrath's Address Before the Rotary Club and the Holy Cross Institute.

Mr. Chairman.—As certain features of the Labrador Boundary dispute have already been discussed, here and elsewhere, at some length recently, I decided to deal with some of the developments in connection with it, which bear on a possible settlement.

The late Lord Salisbury, British Premier for many years, once said that "the secret of proportion in judging international controversies lay in the use of large maps." I think this is a sound saying, so I am using to-day some large maps to give you an idea of the territory in question, and the issues involved.

The first map, which I now display, (exhibiting it) is a reprint by the Hudson's Bay Company of an official map, on which the Company gives its various establishments and managerial districts. I use it, first to show the relative size of the Labrador peninsula to the rest of British North America, the whole of which can be seen, and secondly, to enable you to realize the extent of the region itself.

Labrador's area is about 511,000 square miles, or say one-seventh of that of British North America.

Labrador of the geographers, is the area north of the black line I have drawn on this map. The Encyclopedia Britannica describes it as that portion of the mainland, north of a line drawn from the S.E. corner of Hudson's Bay, near St. N. (near Rupert House), to the mouth of the Noisier River on the north shore of the St. Lawrence, near Seven Islands. Its area is about twelve times that of Newfoundland, and its population about 10,000 to 12,000.

From Seven Islands eastward along the coast of Blanc Sablon, which we know as Canadian Labrador, are about 4,000 souls. From Blanc Sablon north to Cape Chidley, our territory, are about 3,800 according to the last census, about 800 being Eskimos under the Moravian Missionaries.

From Cape Chidley along the shores of Ungava Bay and Hudson Strait, and down the East coast of Hudson Bay, the population is entirely Eskimo, probably not exceeding 2,000, while in the interior are wandering tribes of Monties and Nascope Indians, whose numbers can be counted in hundreds. The only white inhabitants of the latter sections are the officials—with their families—of the Hudson's Bay Company's posts round the coastline, about 100 souls altogether.

The Labrador of the treaty makers is somewhat different, and is shown on this second map (exhibiting same). This is a reproduction of what all students of the Boundary Question know as "Low's Map" of Labrador, the most authoritative yet produced on the region. The colorings on it relate to the case now preparing for the Privy Council. The original was drawn by Prof. Albert Peter Low, who, in the early '90s, explored much of the peninsula and notably the Hamilton River region. He was then a member of the Canadian Geological Survey and afterwards became Deputy. His published "Reports" regarding the peninsula are accepted as of equal standing with his maps.

The area colored green on this map is that which we claim in the present dispute. That colored blue represents the northern boundary of Quebec as fixed by the Treaty of 1763 and that colored yellow the northern boundary of Quebec till 1898. This was a height-of-land boundary and developed from the Hudson's Bay Company's original grant in 1670. This covered all the territory, the waters of which drained into Hudson Bay. Quebec next acquired all that draining into the St. Lawrence. We claim that by the same reasoning we should possess all that draining into the Atlantic. In 1898 the northern boundary of Quebec was extended to the east main and Hamilton Rivers, and in 1912 the remainder of Ungava was taken in, with a proviso that the eastern boundary should be "the westerly boundary of the territory over which the Island of Newfoundland has lawful jurisdiction." It is therefore admitted by Canada that we have a right to some territory on the Peninsula.

The eastern terrain, or watershed, which drains into the Atlantic, and which we claim, has an area of about 119,000 square miles, or less than one-fourth of the entire Peninsula. This, however, is nearly three times the size of Newfoundland, and is, therefore, of substantial importance.

Of this area some 60,000 square miles, or slightly more than half, is within the region of wooded growth. Estimates by various local and Canadian authorities, give the region covered with commercially valuable timber, about half that, or say 30,000 square miles. Mr. Ellwood Wilson, Chief Forester of the Laurentide Paper Company of Canada, one of the foremost paper making concerns in Canada (whose plant at Grand Mere, Quebec, was shown to us at the Imperial Press Conference of 1920 as the finest in Canada), in an article to the Pulp and Paper Supplement of the Toronto "Pioneer" of 29th August, 1924, published some maps and diagrams of the wooded areas of eastern Canada and therein he classed the section of Labrador, north of Belle Isle Strait, as having a "stand of spruce and other wood suitable for making pulp and paper, of about four cords to an acre. Various competent authorities on the forest areas of our country estimate the wooded growth of sections here, in which the manufacture of these products could be undertaken, at six cords to the acre. I, therefore, assume for the purpose of this little talk, that the wooded areas on Labrador, commercially workable, have about the growth Mr. Wilson estimates, or 2560, say 2500, cords to the square mile, or 75 million cords altogether.

Successive Governments in Newfoundland have been content to allow forest areas to pass into private hands for an annual rental fee of $2 a square mile, which in many cases is not paid. Quebec, however, demands bonuses sometimes running into hundreds of dollars per square mile, and also stumpage fees and royalties. At present, I am told, the Colony is owed about $40,000 for rentals, stumpages, etc., for lands in this island and $300,000 for lands in Labrador.

Most of these holding lands in Labrador, content they should not be asked to pay because the Colony, owing to the Boundary Dispute, cannot give them a good title. Successive Governments have argued, on the other hand, that these people acquired their lands with the full knowledge that there was a boundary dispute, paid the rentals for a few years while they tried to sell the lands to outsiders and then, when they refused to do so, refused to pay any longer. Notices of cancellation of the grants have been issued from time to time, but have not been followed up, because of representations by the parties holding these lands that such would be unfair treatment to them. Not all the holders of Labrador lands take this stand. Some have paid their rentals every year.

Under our system of handing our lands, it usually happens, unfortunately that it is the speculator who makes all the profit. I can say on excellent authority that the Armstrong concern had to pay nearly two million dollars to acquire lands on the West Coast to make their timber areas adequate, and that nearly all this money went to American speculators, who had secured this land and held on to it by merely paying $2.00 a square mile annually as rental therefor. I can also state, on equally good authority, that the Reid interests will have to pay nearly one million dollars to the same class of people to secure forest areas in the Gander region, to guarantee the wood supply for their proposed industry there. I am glad to note that the present Government a few months ago took the first steps towards the adoption of what may be called the Quebec policy in regard to our forest areas by securing a payment of $5,000 as a bonus for the granting of certain timber areas in Gander region.

Before closing my references to Labrador lands let me say that Mr. Ellwood Wilson, in the same article declares that the forest resources of Quebec Province, essential to the pulp and paper industry, will be exhausted within 21 years. In this fact you can see a strong reason why the forests of Labrador will increase in value every day as that time comes nearer, and you can also see a reason why the pulp and paper interests of Quebec should desire the transfer of Labrador from Newfoundland jurisdiction to that of their own Province.

Eastern Labrador also possesses in a large degree that indispensable adjunct to the pulp and paper industry, namely, waterpower. The latest official Canadian bulletin—issued for the world's "Power"—conferred at London last year, estimates the water powers of Quebec at about 7,000,000 horsepower, and Mr. John Powell, of the Reid Mfd. Company, who has given much study to the problem, figures the value of those on "Ter-ranovan" Labrador, exclusive of the celebrated Grand Falls, on the Upper Hamilton River, at about 3½ millions, or about half that total. On Canadian Labrador there are several rivers yielding moderate hydro-electric energy, but the drawback there is the lack of safe harbours. On Terranovan Labrador there are equally large rivers, such as the Pinware, Lewis, Alexis, Gilbert, Hawkes, three in Sandwich Bay (The South, Eagle, and White Bear) and several in Hamilton Inlet region, not to speak of those farther north, which are, however, too remote to be likely to be utilized for a long time. This territory has, moreover, the advantage of numerous fine harbours so that the export of any products manufactured in the interior is rendered easy.

The waterpowers, however, most likely to attract the attention of capitalists and result in development are those on the Hamilton River. The Encyclopedia Britannica gives the length of this river as 300 miles. The Northwest River, also in this area, is about half as long, the possibilities of which in this respect have not yet been adequately examined.

Low's map shows that between Goose Bay, at the head of Lake Melville, which is the outlet of the Hamilton River, and the Bowdoin Canyon, where the river emerges after tumbling over the Grand Falls, there is a rise of 900 feet, while the Falls (represented on this map by a black circle), are 315 feet high against 155 for Niagara, and the River above the falls flows downward from a plateau of 1660 feet above sea level. Let me quote Low himself as to this, from his chapter in Grenfell's book on "Labrador."

"The distance between the lake expansion at the upper end of the portage route and the mouth of Bowdoin Canyon, is eight miles in a straight line running south-southwest. The river at the upper end of this line has an elevation of sixteen hundred and sixty feet above sea-level, a little below the general level of the surrounding country. Where it is issues from the canyon into the main valley, it is nine hundred feet above the sea, there is thus a drop of seven hundred and sixty feet in a distance, by the river of less than twelve miles. Considering the volume of the stream, estimated at fifty thousand cubic feet per second, this is a phenomenal descent. If the energy developed by the fall could be turned into work, it would produce the enormous amount of upwards of four million three hundred thousand horsepower. Neglecting the rapids above and below the falls and confining the calculation to the power of the falls itself, we find that it would develop energy equal to one million seven hundred thousand horsepower, an amount sufficient to operate a large proportion of the manufacturing and railway systems of Canada.

Mr. Powell calculates that the Muskrat Falls, 27 miles up the river from Goose Bay, can develop half a million horsepower without regulation, and twice as much by regulating the stream for some miles above. He believes, too, that five or six other powerful installations can be created between there and Lake Winokapau, about two-thirds of the way to the Grand Falls. To this Lake there is a rise of 750 feet and he says that "a head," or vertical drop of the water from the flume or pipe-line, to the turbines in the power house, of about 120 feet, gives suitable formations and not too expensive installation of dams, is sufficient to generate a profitable power. The "Head" at Petty Harbour is 185 feet, at Grand Falls 125 feet, and at Deer Lake 175 feet. As Niagara one plant has a head of 135 feet and another 180 feet, and at Saguenay the head is 127 feet. Mr. Powell holds, therefore, that on this river, at every rise of about 125 feet, an installation can be put in capable of furnishing a very great horsepower, even disregarding the Grand Falls entirely, because of their remoteness and the engineering problems they would present.

An example of what is possible in this direction is afforded by several rivers in Quebec Province, as shown by this panoramic view of the eastern section which I now exhibit (shows map). Look first at the St. Maurice River, starting almost due north of Montreal. In its upper reaches the Provincial Government, under the regime of Sir Lomer Gouin, established the Gouin dam at La Tuque, a reservoir with a capacity of 60 billion cubic feet, to regulate the source of the river to 1200 cubic feet per second. It cost 2-1-2 million dollars; but already the paper mills and water-power plants on this river have nearly doubled the output as the result of this dam, while several smaller falls still remain to be disposed of by the Quebec Government. This dam rendered possible three big power installations on the St. Maurice—the St. Maurice Power Company at La Gabelle, with a development of 134,000 horsepower, (or one-third more than that of the Armstrong, Whitworth Company projects at present at Deer Lake), the Laurentide Power Company at Grand Mere, with a development of 164,000 horsepower, and the Shawinigan Power Company, with a development of 20,000 horsepower. Thus, on a comparatively small river, is a development of $36,000 horsepower, enabling in turn the operation of six of the largest paper mills in Canada, besides which the Shawinigan Company supplies a large proportion of the power for lighting, heating and other purposes in the city of Montreal, though it is 100 miles away. The six paper mills on this river are the Laurentide, Belco, International, Waymanack, St. Lawrence and St. Maurice; and I may add that besides being run by power from the river they get much of their wood from its watershed.

Then again, let us take the Saguenay, a much larger river, but, because of being farther away from Quebec City and centres of population, not so fully developed. It is, however, the scene of the principal activities of the great paper-making firm of Price Brothers, of Quebec, and within its watershed, including the Lake St. John and tributary streams, developments exceeding a million horsepower are in hand. Two years ago a combination was made between Sir Wm. Price, (who was killed by a landslide on this very river last fall) and Mr. Duke, the New York tobacco millionaire, for an installation at Grand Discharge, of one million horsepower alone, of which the first unit of 200,000 horsepower is to be brought into use the coming spring.

This plan shows numerous other installations on both sides of the St. Lawrence, but time does not allow of my dealing with them to-day. Ontario has an immense hydro-electric reservoir in Niagara River and several installations on both sides of the Niagara Falls furnish enormous supplies of power. When we visited Niagara in August, 1920, with the Imperial Press Conference, we were shown the construction work of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission's plant to generate 550,000 horsepower, and in December, 1921, I was invited to be one of an official party proceeding from Niagara to witness the inauguration of the first of the ten units, each 55,000, into which this installation is divided.

The next item of potential wealth of Labrador is its minerals, but of these there is not much to be said, because the record in that respect is yet a blank one. It is known that there is a vast deposit of iron ore to the northwest of the Grand Falls, but its remoteness forbids its being utilized at present, though large day will probably come when it will be smelted with the electricity generated at the Grand Falls and the finished product exported by railroad running down the Hamilton River, or by one built due south to Mingan, opposite Anticosti, if the venture warrants the development of a shipping port there.

However, the fact that Labrador has not yet shown the existence of workable mineral wealth, is no evidence that the territory lacks it. When Alaska, with an area of 586,000 square miles, or say one-sixth larger than Labrador, was purchased by the United States from Russian in 1867, for $7,200,000, it was termed "Steward's Icebox," and Mrs. Steward, when Secretary of State, who was responsible for its purchase, was denounced throughout the United States for investing his country's money in a section of the Arctic region. Yet we find that Alaska has since produced vast gold, coal and other minerals, fishery, peltry, and other wealth returning to the United States a thousand-fold on its outlay. The Encyclopedia Britannica says that "Between 1867 and 1903 the revenue returns from Alaska, totalled $9,555,909, and in the same period the United States drew 'from Alaska, fish, furs and gold' to the value of about $150,000,000, that up to 1903 the imports from the United States totalled '$100,000,000 and that $25,000,000' of American capital was invested in Alaska."

The New York World Almanac for 1925 says that up to the end of 1920 Alaska produced $20,000,000 of gold and $127,000,000 of copper, and that the United States Geological Survey estimates the value of the placer gold reserve alone at $360,000,000 more. This Almanac also gives figures showing the total trade of the territory to be about $84,000,000 annually for the past five years.

Last, but not least, in the item of Labrador resources is that of its fisheries. A statement compiled from returns of our Fisheries Department for a number of years past shows that for the 13 years, from 1912 to 1923, the average value of fishery exports from the coast was $588,000 per year. Authorities differ as to the quantity of cod brought back to Newfoundland each year to be cured, some saying as much as exported and others twice as much, so I have "split the difference" and estimated the total as 1½ million dollars, or from a sixth, to a fourth of the annual value of our cod fish export.

This, however, is only a fraction of what the region might produce. For instance, half a century ago there was a very large herring fishery on Labrador, but it no longer exists, though it may come again and prove equally valuable. Again, in bygone days there was a large salmon fishery on that coast. Low says that "Hamilton Inlet was once famous for its salmon fishery, but the use of numerous codtraps along the coast has practically exterminated the salmon." With

READ THE FOLLOWING EXPERIENCE:

Mr. M. of Nova Scotia bought one hundred million German Government bonds about January, 1924. He paid four hundred dollars for them. When he took delivery of them at the Bank he was very much criticised, the Bank Manager laughing at him and told him that the bonds would make good wall paper. The Bank clerks grumbled at him as he carried away the bonds. His friends and business associates laughed at him and took him for a fanatic, his wife criticised, scolded and raged at him for wasting four hundred dollars of good money. Mr. M. at last became discouraged and disgusted by his friends jibing at him so he sold his one hundred million bonds, got his four hundred, but Mr. M. finds that he is to be laughed at more than ever, months after Mr. M. sold his bonds they began to advance in price and it is now that if he had kept these bonds he could have sold them a few months ago for more than a quarter of a million dollars.

approximately 87 per cent. was in the salmon industry alone. Employment was given to 21,974 persons, or 6,994 more than in 1921. The total value of the products in 1922 was $36,170,948 or $12,084,081 more than in 1921.

This is due in a goodly measure to an efficient fishery regulation service, and to the artificial propagation of salmon on a large scale, and the book is filled with details of the work carried out in these directions.

As it has been stated officially in the Legislature that two alternative proposals for the settlement of the Boundary Question by a transfer of the territory to Canada, have been mooted, I can, without impropriety, deal somewhat in detail with them. The first contemplates a cession of the entire territory, with the sovereignty thereof; and this would involve not alone parting with the coast, but with the territorial waters as well—those extending three miles seaward from the shore. It is, of course, intended that such an event, special provision will be made for the retention by Newfoundland of an enjoyment of the fisheries on the coast, and this will have to be guaranteed by some Imperial instrument, a Statute, or a Treaty, such as guarantees the rights possessed there to-day by the subjects of the United States. It will be a surprise to some of you that this is the case, but it is a fact, now the less. By the convention of 1818, between Great Britain and the United States, American subjects were guaranteed "the liberty to take fish of every kind on the coasts, harbours and creeks along Labrador from Mont Joli east and north indefinitely," with a further liberty to "dry and cure fish in any of the unsettled bays, harbours and creeks . . . of the coast of Labrador." Though large fleets of American fishing vessels once resorted to that coast these liberties are no longer exercised by the Americans, except perhaps to an infinitesimal extent, because of changes in their fishing industry, but they may again be in the future.

Arising out of the general fishery is this question would be several minor ones—such as the right to fish in the rivers as well as in the sea, one being in Canada, under provincial, and the other under federal control.

The impression, therefore, which prevails in some quarters, that this Boundary dispute can be settled by a stroke of the pen and the exchange of a cheque, is an entirely mistaken one. Enactments by our Legislature, by the Legislature of Quebec, by the Parliament of Canada, and by the Imperial Parliament will become necessary and the drafting of the instrument to embody any agreement arrived at, will be a matter of the greatest concern and call for the acutest minds, in the endeavour to avoid as far as possible future complications. We know all ready, to our cost, what these complications have meant in the case of the French Shore Question, and in the case of the disputes with the Americans in regard to fishing on our coasts, both in begone years, and in more recent ones. Therefore, I think it well to emphasize this aspect of the matter, so that people may not run away with false ideas. By this settlement—the sale of our sovereignty—the Byers on the coast would become Canadian subjects, no longer under our control. There would also pass into Canadian hands the light-houses, wireless stations, and other public utilities there, the administration of the law, the mail and other services, and also the provision of relief in cases of distress. We would have to secure guarantees for the proper carrying out these services and also for adequate steam communication for the mail, passenger and freight needs of our fishermen resorting there because Canada's care for her own section of Labrador has not been anything like as effective or sympathetic as our care for our part of the coast, though we have been criticized at times for alleged laxity. The reason is, of course, that with us the Labrador fishery is a vital factor, while with the Dominion of Canada or the Province of Quebec, it is a mere insignificant industry, and attracts little attention.

The alternative proposal, is for a transfer of the hinterland. This would mean that a strip three miles deep would be retained by us along the whole seacoast from Blanc Sablon to Hudson Strait. Such a settlement would bring its own complications. One would be whether Canadian ships or Canadian cargoes could pass in or out through our waters there free of our control; and whether imports for Canadian enterprises or the products of Canadian industries established in the hinterland such as pulp and paper, minerals, etc., passing over our three mile strip without being subject to our control? Another would be as to whether our people, both "livers" and summer-folks, could have access to the forests of the hinterland, for all the wood they require for legitimate purposes connected with the fisheries. At present they have in some sections to go long distances to secure the wood they need. Governor MacGregor, in 1908 recording it as 30 to 40 miles in some cases. Equally important is the question of the continuance of the trapping industry. As many of you know, the "livers" on Labrador prosecute the fishery in the summer from their rooms on the outer coast and in the winter retire to their homes at the heads of the bays and in the valleys, to carry on the trapping industry in the interior. Low says "each hunter has a path or line of traps, fifty miles or more in extent, and a single visit to all the traps on the line may involve a weeks journey." Any settlement would have to provide for all these points and for many others that would arise during the negotiations. Moreover, all the same steps, as to the passing of laws to give effect to the decision, would have to be taken in this, as in the other case, and those who imagine that this boundary issue can be settled in an afternoon are cherishing a profound delusion.

Probably somebody present feels by this time, like asking, "What should we sell for, if at all?" In reply I can only say that if we should consider selling, we should remember that the price of territory, like everything else, has gone up in the past sixty years. Whereas the United States bought Alaska in 1867 for 7 1/2 millions she paid Spain, in 1897, after beating her in war, $20,000,000 for Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands; paid Panama in 1903 $10,000,000 for the right to strip ten miles wide along the Panama Canal, with an annual rental of $250,000; paid Denmark, in 1917 $25,000,000 for the Virgin Islands or Danish West Indies; and paid Columbia in 1921, another $25,000,000 for the loss of Panama and the Canal Zone. Clearly, of course, if we sold the sovereignty we should expect to get a bigger sum than if we sold only the hinterland, but to what either figure should be, involves various considerations.

Some people say to sell the region as it has lain idle since the dawn of creation. Against this is the fact that this was equally true of the Exploits until the Harnsworths came in 1905 and also true of the Humber until the Armstrongs came in 1922; and now we see two vast industries on the banks of these rivers. Other people say to sell the region because we are a small country and lack the capital to develop it. But against that is the fact that the Harnsworths did not ask us to risk one dollar in the development of the Exploits River, and that paper-making and power-producing might be enterprised in Labrador in the same way. Other people say to sell the region as it can never be developed through Hamilton Inlet, but only by a railroad from Quebec. The answer to this is that there are on our Statute Books three different Acts at different times, granting concessions to Canadian promoters for railways to pass over our territory in Labrador, but that nothing has ever come of them. Last December another one was discussed in Canada, a line from Quebec through the interior to Hamilton Inlet. Mr. Powell and I went into this very fully, he being in Montreal, and his view was that it too, would never come to anything. He showed that it would have to traverse an unpeopled wilderness, at a high elevation; that from Chicoutimi at the head of navigation on the Saguenay, to Hamilton Inlet, is 500 miles; and that everything brought to the Hamilton for the creation of industries there would have to be hauled over 500 miles of railroad and every pound of paper or anything else produced on the Hamilton would have to be hauled back 500 miles to the Saguenay and loaded at Chicoutimi, and the Saguenay is icebound for five months of the year.

A gentleman interested in the sale of Labrador land gravely assured me recently that lumbermen could not operate in Hamilton Inlet because of the heavy snows in winter and the pest of flies in summer, to which I replied that Alfred Dickie, and others of Nova Scotia, had operated there for several seasons with Canadian lumbermen, and that previously Low's exploring party had traversed the region in both seasons. I also pointed out that the same drawbacks would afflict all industrial undertakings on Canadian Labrador. Then he came back at me with the argument that it would not be profitable to operate mills in Hamilton Inlet because of the large quantities of supplies and spare parts of equipment that would have to be stocked for the six months' ice embargo which, argument I met by pointing out that the Harnsworth Mill, at Clarke City, near Seven Islands, on Canadian Labrador, had to face the same situation for five months every year. This ended the discussion.

Mr. Powell holds strongly that the development of the Labrador hinterland must come through Hamilton Inlet. He thinks it will be gradual and progress up the valley from point to point, the first installation to be on the Muskrat Falls, only 27 miles from tidewater, where ocean steamers can swing at anchor. His view is that whoever develops at Muskrat Falls will build a railroad from tidewater to the Falls, bringing in all machinery and necessities thereby and shipping all its pulp and paper outward—as Grand Falls does via Botwood. Then at a later stage another fall further up the river will be harnessed, another 20 or 30 miles of railroad built, another pulp and paper plant started, and the product shipped out via Hamilton Inlet in the same way. Then in time a third, then a fourth, and so on, till Lake Winokapau is reached. This, he argues, is the natural and logical direction through which developments should come and I believe this is how it will come.

This question is one of the most important that has ever confronted our people. Some day, in the not distant future it will come before them for a decision—either to sell the region or to litigate it. The fuller the information they can secure the better they will be able to form a judgment, and I trust that what I have been able to say here will be of some little service in helping to that end.

Scotland's Eternal Snow

One usually thinks of Switzerland and the Alps in connection with eternal snow, but there are areas on the mountains of Scotland where the snow never melts.

Hidden away on the mighty slopes of Ben Nevis and Cairngorm are gullies and chasms to which the sun's rays never pierce. There the snow never melts, and has possibly never melted during thousands of years.

The northern precipice of Ben Nevis is always covered with a counterpane of dazzling whiteness, and even in the hottest days of summer, when the valleys are sweltering in heat, snow falls up there. In one of the clefts there is a miniature glacier, the last remnant of the age when one continuous glacier extended from the Grampians to what is now known as the Irish Sea, and which carved out the hollows in which now lie such lakes as Loch Lomond and Windermere.

In England and Wales there is no mountain which has even a patch of snow which never melts, but there is a gully on Snowdon called the Deep Cut where snow often lies while summer visitors are sporting themselves in tropical heat at Llandudno. Mid-summer snowstorms are by no means uncommon on the summit of Ceder Idris where in the Lake District snow often covers the mountain tops till the end of May.

PRESERVES ROADS AND PREVENTS DUST.

For each and every road building problem there is a Tarvia solution. Tarvia B is recommended for use as a preservative and dust preventive on highways and byways.

On the famous Riverside Drive, New York, is a tribute to the excellence of Tarvia. In New York City 500 miles of streets have been Tarvialized. The Michigan Pike, the New York State Highway, the Ohio Expressway, the Park Boulevard, the National Road, the Lady Gray Road, the Toronto Main Road, the Galt-Preston Highway, etc. In Ontario alone, over 100 miles of roads were Tarvialized last year.

Since 1911 Tarvia has been used on roads in St. John's to the satisfaction of everybody. It costs less to keep a road in good condition with Tarvia than to rebuild it after it deteriorates.

In Canada, Tarvia holds the premier position as a surface saver. Tarvia was used on the Ontario Provincial Highway, the Sherbrooke-Derby Highway, the Lady Gray Road, the Toronto Main Road, the Galt-Preston Highway, etc. In Ontario alone, over 100 miles of roads were Tarvialized last year.

Tarvia is favourably known in England. It was an Englishman who first gave the name of expression who said "Tarvia is Topping!" When all our roads shall have been Tarvialized, we shall have a dustless, clean and healthy city.—mar25,w.t.

BUICK VALUE

Is something more than appears on the surface. It is more than the excellence and beauty of Buick design—more than the greater riding comfort, power and safety that Buick provides. Buick's value comes from the sum total of all those Buick qualities and traditions which together make up Buick character. A Buick owner appreciates Buick character. He knows the dependable, satisfying and trouble-free transportation which Buick gives however long or however far a Buick owner may elect to drive his car.

House of Assembly

TUESDAY, April 14.

The House opened at 3 p.m. MR. WARREN presented a petition from the people of Hermitage, asking that that place be made the Capital of the new district created under the Redistribution Bill.

MR. DUFF presented a petition from the people of Victoria on the subject of unemployment relief.

MR. RANDALL presented a petition from the residents of New Harbor, on the subject of a road.

QUESTIONS.

Replying to a question from Mr. Warren, the MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS said permission for export of wood to St. Pierre had only been granted in the case of birch wood in junk.

In reply to Mr. Scammell, THE MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS said "I have no knowledge of any intention of the government to restore Mr. E. J. L. Levesque. As to the suggestion of appointing Mr. F. C. Archibald I do not regard it as a compliment to that young and energetic gentleman to be asked to regard him as seeking a government job."

The Committee stage of Ways and Means, Supply, and the Textile Resolutions, was deferred.

The Amendments to the Judicature Act was taken up in Committee and explained by the Minister of Justice. Under the Bill Supreme Court may be held by one Judge, the standard of qualification for Grand Jurors is raised and the age limit for serving on juries is raised from sixty to sixty-five. The Measure is the result of the deliberations of the Court.

It passed Committee with some Amendment. The Report was adopted and the Bill goes to third reading tomorrow.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the Bill to Amend Chapter 74 of the Consolidated Statutes, entitled "Of Old Age Pensions."

THE PRIME MINISTER pointed out that the Bill provided that the old lady's age should be 70 years, but he had an open mind on the matter and would agree to having it set at a younger age.

MR. HICKMAN agreed with the Prime Minister as to age and suggested that it should be put at 65 years or even 60. He thought that provision should be made so that the pension would not continue if she remarried.

THE MINISTER OF JUSTICE said he thought the age could be set at 60 years and the pension to cease in case of remarriage.

MR. BROWN agreed with the previous speakers and urged that the pension should be made available to men of 70 years of age.

MR. P. MOORE said that no Bill that ever came to his notice, during the past 16 years, appealed so much to him as the present one, and the Prime Minister should be complimented on the Bill. It was to him a wonder that all the politicians of former years, none had the foresight or wisdom of introducing a measure that would provide for the widows of aged fishermen.

MAJOR CASHIN gave his support to the Bill, which he termed was the most human that has been introduced for years. He complimented the Prime Minister and added that all over Newfoundland people would appreciate his action on behalf of the old fishermen and his wife.

The Bill was amended by putting the age of eligibility at 65 and providing that the pension continue until remarriage or death.

The Bill respecting the Records of Pure Bred Animals passed Committee stage without amendment.

Section 3 which reads that the Minister may appoint such officers as he may deem necessary for carrying out the provisions of the Act, evoked some humorous debate, in which the Leader of the Opposition, the Minister of Justice, Mr. Warren and Hon. W. Woodford took part.

THE MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE pointed out that it was not the intention to make any new appointments as he felt that the work of registration could be done with the present staff. MR. HICKMAN thought that a registration fee should be charged.

MR. WARREN agreed with the suggestion, but the Minister did not concur.

The Bill "An Act to Amend Chapter 4 of the Consolidated Statutes, entitled 'Of Legislative Disabilities and the Vacation of Seats in the House of Assembly,'" was given second reading.

MR. HALFYARD again voiced his protest against the Bill, and Mr. Godden claimed that it did not redound to the credit of the Government as it was to give a soft job to some member of the Government.

The Bill "An Act Respecting a Tax on certain Incomes," was deferred from second reading, and the House adjourned.

CONVERSATION MADE AND FEMALE.

When the ladies get together they begin to blab and blather. Religion, commerce, industry or art. Do they seek to run the nation by their title of conversation? And pose as being very wise and smart?

Oh, it's men for grave opinions in his little own dominions. But a woman still is modest when she chats.

Even though she's been to college she won't try to air her knowledge. She is satisfied to talk of gowns and hats.

When four men or five foregather they begin to bluff and blather. With an air of grave finally they speak.

Women chatter much and cackle. But a gabby man will tackle. Problems sagas cannot seem to figure out.

When the male once gets to crowing. Then he makes a noble showing. He's a milk about weather. Do they begin to bluff and blather.

But the female talks of baking. And the simple frocks she's making. For the woman wisely keeps to what she knows.

When the butcher, baker, broker. Get together in the smoker. You'll discover if you'll stay right where you are.

That with great men you are riding Who have long been kept in hiding. They'll admit it ere they've travelled very far.

Lend to man an ear that's willing And that ear he'll start to biling. With a wisdom no one living quite commands.

He'll surpass all limits human. But much wiser is the woman. For she only talks of what she understands.

The Earl of Oxford's First Speech

"It was an extremely interesting occasion. Where were the soft collar, the blue serge suit, and the sand shoes? All gone. Gone, too, the gesture of the outspread hand rubbing the coat which was affectionately familiar in the House of Commons," says the Evening Standard in a "London's Diary."

"The and Asquith must now, I fear, be dropped, for the noble earl stood up at the bar without a trace of the wit which used to send the House of Commons into a roar, nor of the supreme astuteness and debating adroitness which has marked all his recent Commons utterances, made a speech which was conceived in the oldest traditions of the House of Lords."

"Never once did he show the slightest hesitation in using the formulae of the Upper Chamber, and I could not help thinking that probably, when the elder Pitt became Chatham, something of the same kind occurred."

Development of Local Arts

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—I should be grateful if you would give me space in your widely read paper to explain the aims of a "Guild of Art and Handwork" which I wish to organize in Newfoundland. But before doing so I would like to say a few words on Art and Craft work, or rather the lack of it in Newfoundland. I think I would be right in saying that there probably is no other country of the size or with the population that has no established Art and Craft school where one could study art or craft, or an Art Gallery where one could see and study good work. During the eleven years I have been out here I have had the opportunity of teaching all grades of students from Kindergarten up to the Teachers in training at the Normal and Summer Schools, and I have no hesitation in saying that the love of Art is deeply planted in the majority. The ability is also there, but the facilities for studying this branch of work is so small that it prevents even the most promising from getting very far with this subject. I believe as many other people from other countries do, that the Newfoundlander once he knows what he is to do is the finest possible workman, and as for ingenuity in making something for a given purpose out of almost any material he might find handy, at that he cannot be beaten. Now I would like to explain what I wish to do, as everyone knows a Guild is a group or band of people who work for the advancement of a certain object.

My aim is to get everyone in Newfoundland interested in Art and Handwork whether for pleasure, or profit to join in or help to raise the standard of Art and Craft work in Newfoundland, and try to develop a local style. As far as I can find out, there is nothing in the craft line that one could describe as peculiar to Newfoundland. Most countries have their local pottery, (we have the clay I believe) or some form of basket work, bead work, weaving or stone-work, which is recognized as being descriptive of the life, habits and scenery of that particular country. The hooked mats and other craft work made at the Grenfell and Gordon Missions usually depict in artistic design something peculiar to the Labrador. Newfoundland wishes to attract visitors and to advertise herself abroad, and I think if all hobbies and crafts work had designs to represent some flower, animal or scene, or if work was made of any material found in different parts of the island, it could be used to help to interest visitors, and would be of great educational value to other workers.

As I am only a Newfoundlander by adoption I feel that there are many people here who could suggest suitable subjects, forms or objects, or materials to use in the designing of articles typical of Newfoundland. Any suggestions would be welcomed. My idea at present on this subject is that if a number of people interested get together it could be talked over and decided as to whether it should be run as an educational or business proposition. The Guild I was once a member of started with a few art workers, and later developed into an institution where persons could learn all kinds of Art and Craft work, and as soon as they were able to do work of commercial value they were given work in their particular branch, on which a certain value was placed and a certain percentage went to the Guild towards expenses. That Guild is now known all over the world and has a branch in Montreal I think. It is called the Browsgrove Guild. I should be pleased to hear from anyone interested in Hobbies and Craft work in any part of the island. Thanking you in anticipation for space.

Yours faithfully,
JAMES MURDOCH.

UNPOPULAR.

Some delegates of sterling worth think life is really out of plumb; they have no friends upon the earth, and no one's glad to see them come; and their approach is death to mirth, they strike the merry neighbors dumb. One is a teller of old tales in which no point or punch survives, come down from prehistoric males who bored with them their yawning wives; he drones along and never fails to knock the joy from human lives. One's a collector of old shoes, and nothing else is worth his while; he's always primed with startling news of gaiters added to his pile; and when he talks men have the blues, they gnash their teeth and cease to smile. Another has a hundred aches all down his legs and up his spine, and when he meets a friend he makes a long and melancholy whine, and wonders why that neighbor shakes from brimning eyes a lot of brine. Another is fond of jokes so personal they stir your bile; he springs his foolish jests and pokes his finger in your ribs the while; and he, too, wonders why all folks avoid him by a half a mile. Each one of these means well, no doubt, it grieves him much that he is shunned; he would be thought a pleasant scout, and by cold glances he is stunned; when neighbors from his path turn out, he groans and rends his cummerbund. One has to learn what people like if one would not be deemed a bore, must chat with pilgrims on the pike on themes and topics they adore; thus may he gain from Pete and Mike a welcome at the Blue Front store.

Giving Local Products a Chance

TORONTO, April 12.—(Can. Press).—The story of the Bachelors of Vilna, Alberta, who were going to send a Missionary abroad to bring back brides for them, then recalled him because they had so many applications from Canadian girls, has aroused some comment in Old Ontario. "Rural Ontario needs its own girls," said Miss Ethel Chapman, Assistant Superintendent of Women's Institutes. "There are just as few girls in rural Ontario as there are young men. In some communities the girls are in the minority." Another angle was seen by Mrs. Henry M. Aitken, of Beeton, Ont., who approved the action of the Alberta Bachelors. "It just goes to show what a highly specialized race we are becoming. Instead of the lengthy process of courting by candies, cars and flowers, these enterprising young bachelors say 'I want a wife, tall, strong and blonde, and if you cannot fill the order please do not substitute.'"

Peak Fills Up Gulch

SAVES BUILDING BRIDGE.

MEEKER, Col., March 26.—Meeker's "moving mountain" has stopped its trek into the Rio Blanca Valley after having shifted about 150 yards to a broader base, observers to-day declared.

Beyond the shifting, which geologists say is not unusual, except in cases of such large peaks as this one, the slide has caused little trouble except to block the highway between Rifle and this town for some 600 yards.

No damage was resulted, and residents of the region said that by filling a gulch in the Rio Blanca Valley the towns of Meeker and Rifle will be spared the expense of building a bridge to complete a projected highway.

You cannot get anything better for washing and cleaning than Pearline. Ten cents everywhere.

Young women's coats come in decidedly fared effects with smooth, flat backs. Felt and straw is a combination that is emphasized in spring millinery.

Fads and Fashions

The ensemble costume still dominates the mode. They give the new flare an extra whiff for dancing. Godolite serves to widen the coats at the front and sides. Three straps on each side of a coat may form pockets. Rows of little buttons may be used to suggest a closing. Jumper suits of silk jersey are delightful for sports wear.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

THE CHILD WHOSE MOTHER DOESN'T WORRY.

My neighbor and I were coming home from an afternoon tea in the late dusk of a winter afternoon when we met a little nine-year-old girl playing a bout these cold afternoons unless we mothers tell them to. And there's no one but the maid there when she comes home from school, no one to show her arithmetic paper to, with the good mark on it, or to give her a square of fresh gingerbread, or any of the little things that mean so much to children.

Those Little Wifely Motherly Duties.

"She gives an excuse that she has always hated housework. So do I for that matter. But I thought it all out before I got married. I used to be a bookkeeper, and I had a fine position with good wages. I vastly prefer the work I did then to housework, but I decided that there were certain duties, little wifely motherly duties, that couldn't be left to a maid if my husband and children were to have a real home, and so I've stayed home."

"I was much interested in my neighbor's little talk. And I think that on the whole I agree with her.

Circumstances Sometimes Alter Cases.

There are cases, of course, where it is necessary for the wife to help out, or where some other woman or relative can take her place perfectly well at home. And there are many opportunities nowadays for a wife to pick up "pocket money" without neglecting other duties. But married life entails certain responsibilities which cannot be lightly relegated to a hired outsider, and I doubt very much if the extra luxuries which Nancy's mother is able to supply with her librarian's salary will make up to her for what she loses in mothering.

As my neighbor put it: "It's sort of pathetic to think of a child whose mother doesn't worry about her."

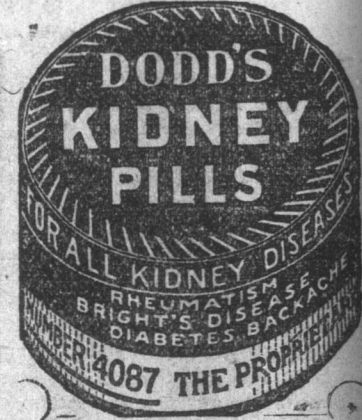

Those Little Things That Mean Much To Children.

"I declare," she said, "I don't know what to make of that child's mother. She's a college graduate and she works in the library. Not because her help is needed to support the family but because she hates housework and prefers to do library work and hire a woman to do the household drudgery. Now in theory that's all very well. I'm not passing judgment on her because I haven't any right to do that. But I do know that Nancy gets precious little mothering. She always looks neglected. You know how it is with little children. They never know enough to put on an extra sweater

What is a Tizzy

Just as the first Treasury notes were called "Bradsburys," so the $5 note was known for many years as an "Abraham Newland," after a celebrated Bank of England cashier. A "sham Abraham" was a forged note. The sovereign has been variously called a "glistener," a "goldfinch," a "mousetrap," a "new hat," a "remedy," a "thick bun," a "stranger," a "bean," and a "smelt."

On account of its size, a five-shilling piece was christened a "coach-wheel," and is to-day often called a "cart-wheel," since the coach is no longer in fashion. The shilling is called a "bob," but it used to be called a "Manchester sovereign," perhaps because it was sometimes gilded to cheat the unwary. Similarly, the sixpence has been known in turn as a "tester," "tizzy," "bender," and "cripple."

SCIENCE AND TRAINING.

It is instructive to read that at the beginning of their training the Oxford crew were all inoculated against colds. The result can hardly be regarded as a triumph of applied science. Irrespective of what happened on Saturday, only two of the crew escaped illness during training, and one was unable to row at the last. Those who did not have colds had something worse; and it may well be suspected, that, so far as the inoculated prevented colds, it caused a liability to other complaints. Something wrong with the serum, perhaps. But I wonder what the trainers of thirty or forty years ago would have said to a proposal to put men through a medical operation as a first step to perfect fitness?—Truth.

VARSITY NIGHT IN LONDON.

Following the unfortunate ending of the Varsity boat race, London did not witness the usual invasion of Under Graduates at night, but a few attempts were made to uphold the tradition. A party of young men in Oxford "bags" carrying a huge cardboard crab, "fond memory of Wansborough," who had caused considerable worry by the number he caught during the practice, were soon deprived of their mascot by a group of Cantab supporters, who advised the Oxonians to buy a U-boat and practice in that!

ONE-WHEEL SULKY IMPROVED.

Grand Circuit trotters will continue to race in two-wheeled sulkies for one more season at least. H. W. Hannan, newly invented one-wheeler, says Thomas W. Murphy a rough ride when tried out at Syracuse the other day, and it has been laid away for the present. Too much vibration and an inclination to skid were the weak points developed by actual use at high speed.

Murphy is working his horses with a fractured left hand as the result of a misunderstanding last week with the two-year-old filly Georgia Etawah, one of his nominations in the $50,000 Hambletonian Stakes. While his juvenile trotters are nowhere near as far along as the Florida ones are in their development, the matured horses have lately been going miles in from 2:30 to 2:25, which is about as fast as those in the far South have worked.

Czar Worthy, 2:01 1/4, is regarded as Murphy's stable king. After working him a few days ago the wizard of the sulky said: "Czar Worthy is the best trotter that ever wore harness. He is always ready to race over any kind of a track and in any company. He has worn out all those that started against him in his first races, and is now ready for the next generation." Sick-ness last season prevented him from trotting into the 2:00 list, but he will get an opportunity to do the trick this year. Mr. Hannan's five-year-old mare Etta Drulen, 2:03 1/4, may also essay the feat. Her only engagement so far is in the race for trotters of the 2:00 class at Toledo.

MUNN TO MEET ZBYSEKO.

PHILADELPHIA, April 7.—Wayne Munn, heavyweight wrestling champion, will defend his title here on April 15 against Stanislaus Zbyseko. Gabe Kaufman, manager of Munn failed to come to terms yesterday with Promoter Fitzsimmons for a $50,000 purse to meet Ed. Strangler Lewis in a championship match at Michigan City, Ind., May 30.

Kaufman said he has received a $100,000 offer for an European tour for Munn. He told Fitzsimmons that as Munn was the champion, Fitzsimmons should have negotiated with Munn first before signing Lewis.

How Old Should a Bride Be

Marriage has been wittily described as the voyage for the unknown, with the unknown, and bearing in mind the large number of couples who, without any very close acquaintance with each other's personalities, rush into matrimony, the epigram contains a considerable amount of truth.

In the best course of an impetuous courtship, in an almost wholly artificial atmosphere where both are on their best behaviour and intent on little but the exercise of mutual charm and fascination, little heed is paid to the important factors of personal habits of life, family traditions, temperaments, and, most important of all, relative ages.

But before considering the question of the right ages for the prospective husband and wife respectively, it will be as well to glance for a moment at the subject of the marriage of mere adolescents. The children resulting from marriages of the immature are likely to inherit the physical, mental and moral immaturity of their parents.

Happy Brides of Twenty-Five.

The average young man, then, should wait until he is in the middle twenties, before he marries. In the case of women, since they mature earlier than men, a suitable age for marriage is twenty-two or twenty-three. At an earlier age than this they are scarcely fitted for the accomplishment of those tasks which healthy motherhood entails, and there is a possibility that their children would be inferior both mentally and physically. An ideal age would seem to be twenty-eight for the bridegroom and twenty-five and a half for the bride.

It is usually taken for granted that for a happy marriage a husband should be older than his wife. Most people hold this view. They seem to have conjured up a picture in their mind's eye of man as the chivalrous knight, and woman as hapless maiden threatened by all the powers of darkness, against which he is her sole and trusty protector. This idea arose during that long period in which women were kept in subjection, and it was assumed that man was the guide and must therefore be the wiser of the two.

Many marriages in which the husband is a good many years older than his wife prove happy enough; but the chances of their being so are greater than those in which the wife is some years older than her husband. The point, after all, would seem to be that the ages of the husband and wife should not differ greatly. While it is possible for many marriages to turn out quite happily where the age of the husband exceeds that of the wife by five, ten, or even twenty years, the marriage most likely to prove successful is one where the man and the woman are of the same age.

When there is no disparity in ages, there is less likely to be any subsequent clash originating in the totally different habits of life and general mental outlook of the pair who have been unequally yoked in respect of their years. Again, a couple who have seen the same number of summers are likely to watch the passing of succeeding winters in close com-friendship and with deepening affection.

A powerful factor often overlooked by those contemplating marriage is the fundamental "mothering" instinct of woman. Pending later developments, she wants to mother her husband with all the care and devotion which in her younger days she lavished on her unresponsive dolls. To her, the wisest man is only a big and wayward child, to be duly "tended, nursed, and mended." But—and this is important—if he is so obviously and insistently her senior that her mothering instinct is balked of its satisfaction, it will have to be repressed with somewhat disturbing results to her equanimity. But this should fight itself when her first baby arrives.

Thirty Saloons; No Drinks

BRILL, WITH 5,000 INHABITANTS, MOST SOBER TOWN IN ENGLAND.

LONDON—The town of Brill in Buckinghamshire, with a population of 5,000 and thirty saloons, claims to be the soberest place in England.

In three and one-quarter years not a single case of drunkenness has come before the local courts. But fifty years ago murderous fights between poachers and gamekeepers, encounters between drunkards in saloons, night attacks on police were frequent. The leaders of the old gangs were driven out by orders of the then Duke of Buckingham. Since then Brill has been wholly law abiding.

A Fish of Mystery

We are so accustomed to think of fish breathing by means of gills that it is difficult to imagine a species which have lungs and can breathe air like the higher land animals. These are the Dipnoi (meaning double-breathers). At one time numerous, they are now almost extinct. There are three species of them. These are found in different parts of the world—one group in Queensland, another in Africa, and the third in South America. They inhabit the tropical rivers, which, though full in the wet season, are parched up when the heat comes. During the dry season they bury themselves in the mud of the river bed and start to breathe air, which they are able to do by means of a swim-bladder, similar in structure to our own lungs, though naturally not so highly developed.

Their internal structure is certainly illuminating. As well as in their lung or swim-bladder, they show resemblances to amphibians and land vertebrates in the skull, heart, and blood-vessels. In spite of these resemblances, however, it is not certain that they are really a "missing link" between fish and amphibians. It is thought that the latter have been evolved through a different line, even the lungs of land vertebrates being of supposedly different origin to the lung of the Dipnoi.

A Cart Wheel Clue

Just over one hundred years ago Dr. Peter Mark Roget, who was born in London in 1779, read a paper before the Royal Society which was destined to lead to the invention of the cinematograph.

One day in the summer of 1824 he was looking out of his window at a baker's cart delivering bread at houses opposite. Passing his eye up and down the slots of a Venetian blind he received the impression of a stationary wheel, which he saw was revolving when he kept his eyes still. He discovered the cause and effect, and ultimately gave his findings in his paper to the Royal Society.

The publication of his paper started a new train of thought among the leading scientists of the day; and that his writings on the subject were widely read is proved by the acknowledgments of Dr. Paraday, Dr. Plateau, of Ghent, and Dr. Stampfer, of Vienna, who agreed that but for his clearly-given data and lucid explanation of the phenomena the invention of the phenakistoscope by Dr. Plateau, and of a similar instrument, the stroboscope, by Dr. Stampfer would not have occurred.

Labour Ex-Premier

TIRED OF SMALL HOUSE: MOVES.

Ramsay MacDonald, the Labour ex-Premier, has moved to a bigger house—Upper Froggall Lodge. It is called, which looks like an Italian Villa, with spacious grounds. Ramsay had to pay about $40,000 for the lease and it is being most handsomely decorated. His Labour friends are smiling. His excuse is that at present he has nowhere to keep his books and as he has a bigger library than most other politicians this seems a good excuse. Anyhow he has turned the new drawing room into a library. Isabel, his eldest daughter, who was "Mrs. Premier" at Downing Street during the Labour Government regime, is devoting herself to Socialist movements, though very occasionally she is to be seen in the smart Restaurants and Ballrooms.

A Plausible Explanation

The announcement that Mr. Forbes Lankester, the well-known London magistrate, is shortly to retire, recalls an amusing incident that occurred at the Court over which he presided.

An Italian organ-grinder had been playing before the house of a very frascible old man, who furiously and with wild gesticulations ordered him to "clear off." The organ-grinder, however, continued to grind away, until finally the old man had him arrested for disturbance.

At the police-court the magistrate asked why he did not leave when requested to do so.

"No undershan' mooch Inglesse," was the reply.

must have understood what this man meant when he kept stamping his feet and waving his arms.

"No, not know," replied the Italian. "Thinka he come dance to my music."
