The general conclusion is that, inasmuch as the administration of 1839 was thrown out in consequence of an indiscretion which the people exaggerated into a crime, the present ministry is a hundred times more surely doomed, since the allegations will be infinitely harsher and more severe. It is the expectation of the whole official class that the prime minister will resign before the various political organizations have time Chinese authorities have lost all control, and until the Japanese take possession it is fessed that foreigners may be in serious danger. The commanders of naval forces in this violatity are earnestly called upon to provide marines for the protection of the open ports. The trial of the Korean Prince, Yi Chung, the favorite grandson of Tai Won-kun, on charges of treason and murder, came to an end on May 11. He was condemned to death, but the sentence was not put upon record. The Tai Won-kun, who had never left the print shop of which he had taken possession when the Prince was first confined, in order to be near the court house, rushed from his temporary quarters as soon ment, but since the setablishment of a particular or actic institutions has been followed by results which the advocates of a constitutional system never anticipated. The people have not only taken what was offered them, but have grasped at infinitely more, until now they find themselves endowed with the strength to destroy ministers, if such is their pleasure. BVIDENCE OF PROSPERITY.

"What a nation must do to become prosperous is to increase its imports," is the sublime conclusion arrived at by the Times, Mr. Blake told his supporters in South Longford that if he were re-nominated he would certainly stand for re-election, but he felt that his family ties in Canada, where his home still was, would not allow of his devoting so much time as heretofore to attendance at Westminster. THE ARMENIAN QUESTION.

Interest in the Armenian question has revived. A little while ago there were serious doubts as to the truth of the reports in circulation about outrages in Armenia. It was said that the Armenians themselves had invented the stories in order to create sympathy in Western countries. It was more than insinuated that the Armenians are great liars, and that there is a party in that who have come to the conclusion that free country which will not scruple to adopt any means calculated to prejudice the Christians of the West against the Turks. Instances were given of crimes which men of that party had committed or were prepared to commit in order to provoke the Turks to re-

It would be worse than that is crowded within the limits ish barbarity that were sent to massacres and from the victims of Turkish oppression the dreadful details of the treatment which the unfortunate Armenians suffered at the hands of the unspeakable

The consequence of the confirmation of the news lately received from Armenia has been that all doubts as to the cruelty of the Turks and as to the responsibility of their Government for the atrocities have disappeared, and the people of England have determined to urge upon their Government the necessity of interfering on behalf of the oppressed Christians, not only of Armenia but of the whole Turkish Empire. They remind the Government that it is their duty to interpose to see that the Armenians are protected, for by the 61st article of the Treaty of Berlin :

Speaking of what took place after the defeat of the Turks by the Russians in 1876 he said

In that treaty (the Treaty of San Stefano) Russia bound herself alone to protect the Christians. Russia would have had the right to an exclusive protectorate of Turkey, would have acquired for herself that rich and glorious inheritance of the East. At this moment our British Government in-tervened and said "You shall not have this treaty. It is true you overcame the Turks; you have wrung from them this treaty, but we say you shall not have it. We will take it out of your hands and insist that Turkey shall give those promises to all of us which you intended should be given to you alone."

That was our attitude at that time. Then, again, we saved Turkey and gave her a new lease of life, restored her power, and that if there were not a single word of treaty imthe Christians of Turkey. Now, the Turks have never fulfilled that promise, and I am sorry to say we have never fulfilled our part of the obligations to the Christians

BNGLISH PROTECTIONISTS.

We find that the Right Hon. Joseph to be met by exporte, goes on to say : Chamberlain, who ought to know something trade is a failure even in Great Britain, and he believes that the opinions of these British protectionists are entitled to consideration. This is what he said on the subject :

I find that there are a number of people who, under the present condition of trade, are coming to the conclusion that our free sort to extreme measures against the inhabitants of some parts of Armenia. The would, therefore, be ready to go back in the direction of protection. This opinion is not

Mr. Chamberlain then goes on to show why he believes that free trade is the best policy for Great Britain. He does not reason from abstract principles. He does not lay down the law that free trade is the best policy possible for all nations under any truth in the stories of wrong and out- every variety of circumstances. On the contrary, his arguments are arguments of Newspaper correspondents and others had expediency. He said :

country was truth and how much fable. don it. My first reason is this: In times The evidence collected by these men con-firmed to a construction of the country, when England was under protection, and in foreign countries firmed to a very considerable extent the to-day which are also under protection, rumors that first reached the West. But if, by any means, by protection or any other, you shut the door upon foreign Europe. These accounts were written goods, you may be quite certain that the by men who heard from the survivors of the English goods that will go abroad.

There are, we think, very few Canadian protectionists who will not admit that free trade has, hitherto at any rate, been the best policy for Great Britain. It is favorably situated for being the home of a great commercial nation. It has a large population. Its industries are firmly established. Its facilities for manufacturing are on the whole unequalled by any country in the world. Any other country that competes with it competes at a disadvantage. It is clear then that Great Britain having nothing to fear from the competition of other nations is in a position to trade freely with the whole world. It has far more to gain than to lose by a policy of free trade.

It is evident from the tone of Mr. Chamberlain's speech that if he lived in a country in which the conditions are different from those of Great Britain he would have no ent from the one which now obtains in that country. He swore that Mrs. Struthers, who accuses him of obtaining a feigned marriage with her, swore falsely; that Mrs. Struthers and he had as feigned marriage ceremony. Bates's record as a Lothario was unmercifully paraded before the large crowd in the court. Numerous letters alleged to have been written by him to ladies who had fallen captive to his charms for the last eighteen years, were produced in court, and the names of several ladies were mentioned to whom it was said Bates had proposed marriage. Bates was taken ill after and the trial was hurried to a conclusion The case was long, and the evidence exhaustive, some of the witnesses being guilty,

Highest of all in Leavening Power.-Latest U.S. Gov't Report

From THE DAILY COLONIST. May 31. COURT OF ASSIZE.

The Jury Decide That Mat. Matson Did Not Fire His Rival's House.

Presentment of Grand Jury Recommends Better Fire Protection for Jubilee Hospital.

The grand jury submitted their present ment at the assizes yesterday, and were discharged by Mr. Justice Drake who presided. The presentment read: To His Lordship Mr. Justice Drake:

We, the grand jury, wish to report that in accordance with the charge from the bench, we visited the provincial jail, and property came into the cabin. The day found everything in perfect order, the cells after though, while drinking with the other found everything in perfect order, the cells and all affairs being neat and clean. We donald, told him it came from the outer cannot speak too highly of Warden John, who showed us every courtesy and every thing in connection with the institution.

From there we went to the Jubilee hospital, and were received by the house nonpital, and were received by the house surgeon, Dr. Richardson, and shown over the building. Everything was in the ubmost order and neatness with regard to each department, but we wish to point out that in our opinion the drainage is not at all what it should be, and we would like to bring it to the notice of the authorities, and hope that they will see their way to give their immediate attention to a matter of such vital importance to the general public. More especially to the drain running along the sidewalk on Cadboro Bay road. Also we would like to draw your attention to the bad state of drainage at the present time in other parts of the city. We noticed and must point out that the system for putting out fires in the hospital is very crude. At present they have to rely simply on buckets. We are of opinion that something should be done to prevent what would be a very serious accident.

We would also counsel the necessity o enforcing the law in the case of the Chinese lotteries; we are informed that a great many persons frequent the different res in many cases losing more than they can afford. A very bad feature is the number of youths who attend. We hope the proper authorities will take steps to eradicate the evil.

JOHN. J. DOWNEY,

The Matson arson case was proceeded with and occupied most of the day.

Mat Matson was accused of setting fire on January 2 to the house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Smith on Haughton street, Matson being the unsuccessful rival of Smith for the hand of Mrs. Hunter, a widow, whom Smith married on New Year's eve.
Mr. A. G. Smith appeared for the Crown, and Mr. P. S. Lampman for the defence.

John Kelly Smith, the husband, said that a couple of weeks previous to his marriage with Mrs. Hunter he met the accused in the him names, witness, at the request of Mrs. Hunter, ran Matson out of the house and told him he was sick of him and never to show up there again, emphasizing his remarks with a kick. The accused then threatened. "I'll fix you. You'll never live in this house." At other times the accused had called him uncomplimentary names and used similar remarks. On the evening of the marriage there were feativities inside the house and, as the wit-

severe cross-examination, asking him whether he and his wife were in the habit of getting drunk and fighting; witness ac-mitted he got drunk occasionally, but re-fused to answer the other questions; he had lived in San Francisco, but never told any-one he had been the "king of the Knob Hill hoodlums there."

Mrs. Smith testified that she had seen Matson outside the house near the well the evening before the wedding. She had gone out to get some water; Matson put his head into the well and she pulled him out for fear he would throw himself it. She concluded that the prisoner had a number of times prowled round the house as he had told her what had gone on in the house. Three months before she married Smith, Mateon had said he would set fire to her house if she married another man. The night of the fire she woke up about 11 o'clock and heard a noise of coal oil tins in the woodshed; an hour later she woke again and saw the house was afire. A few nights before Matson had told her he would "fix" Smith. She had once said that she would like to see Matson get off as he had been a better husband to her than Smith. Smith got angry when he heard this and took up the gun and she went into the yard; Smith then smashed up some things in the house.

F. Larsen swore that Masson told Mrs. Hunter that if she married another man they would not stay long in that house. In cross-examination witness stated that this was said good humoredly as in a joke and was before Mrs. Hunter knew Smith. Sergeant Hawton told of going to Matson's house after midnight on the night of the fire and finding a pair of shoes wet and muddy.

Matson said he had not worn those boots for two days, and showed a pair of perfectly dry boots that he said he had worn that were each sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. Murphy preferred to wait for the assizes.

Mr. A. G. Smith appeared for the Crown, the prisoner conducting his own defence.
The goods were identified by Mr. R. Seabrook, and the breaking open of the ware-house and abstraction of the goods proved. Constables Macdonald and Mouat gave evidence as to finding the goods stowed away in a cabin in which the prisoner was.

The prisoner gave evidence in his own behalf, stating that he did not know how the men in the cabin, one of them, named Mac-

The jury brought in a verdict of guilty and the prisoner was at once sentenced to four years in the penitentiary. The court will sit this morning at halfpast nine.

two days, and showed a pair of perfectly dry boots that he said he had worn that day. The clothes in the room were dry.

For the defence John Laurie and Charles Bamfield, two boys, stated that they were out skating on the night of the fire and passing Smith's house about the o'clock they heard a noise going on in the house.

Mrs. Josephine Larsen stated that after the fire Smith had wanted her to give evidence to the effect that she had heard Marken for say he would set the house after if Mrs. Hunter married Smith. Smith ried to convince witness she had heard it, and said the would be well paid for giving evidence.

"Under this system the advantages of town life are blended to a very considerable degree with the charms of rural existence.
It is a system full of delightful possibilities. The Mormons have realized its substantial advantages in neighborhood association; but their model will be much improved by many colonies of more recent establishment. Farm life under the old conditions has involved isolation. The hunger for human sympathy and company has driven thouscity populations. There is no reason why villages patterned after those of Uta should not have a social life and an out. 160 people, and goes into the causes and ward beauty quite as pleasing as, for in-stance, the suburbs of Boston. There the architecture seems almost uniformly pleasng. Attractive lawns, with trees, vines and flowers, are everywhere. People of small means will be able to surround themselves

When the laws against plural marriages were made effective, a good brilliant and scientific chess players in Canada among their several families and thus pro-and though the average ability of the local vided for their future.

"It will be seen that the farm-village had population in northern Utah. "Another important feature in the Mormon system relates to the ownership of water. The canals were built by the common labor of the settlers and practically without the use of money. Each farmer performed work in proportion to the amount of land he desired to irrigate. Companies were formed and stock issued on this basis. Repairs were kept up in the same way. No single item in the long list of natural resources which Brigham Young found on entering the territory offered so good a chance for a safe speculation as the water in the mountain streams. It was water in the mountain streams. It was absolutely essential to existence, and a shrewd speculator might have taken possession of it at that time and levied perpetual tribute upon the agricultural industry. But the same principle which had led him to frown upon speculation and so insist upon a small farm unit and universal landownership made it a location account. landownership made it a logical necessity to prevent any monopoly in the control of the water supply. And here, as in other vital matters, the far-sighted leader established a precedent of the highest importance in the development of the institutions of Arid America.

from Mansanillo arrived this morning at l o'clock with official information for the governor of Colima regarding the Colina disaster. The report laments the loss of details of the wreck. Seventy-five miles below San Blas a hurricane was en-countered and it was debated whether or not the ship should attempt to gain partial shelter in the shallow and treacherwas felt to go through the ship. The captain ordered a slight change in the course and gave other directions, which were obeyed. In a very few seconds the keel lightly grounded on a rock and there was at once great excitement among the officers and crew, and fear on the part of the passengers on deck. In less than ten seconds, the great ship crunched on an unknown reef, and a shudder ran through her hull from bow to stern. Passengers sprang from their berths and ran out upon the decks, screaming and praying in a paroxysm of fear.

The wind howled, and a dense fog hung over the ship as she was tossed by the surges and began to pound herself to pieces on the rocks. She rose and fell three times, and then a crash was heard, followed by silence for about a quarter of a minute stience for about a quarter of a minute, during which time only loud sobbing was heard and muffled prayers. "Man the boats," trumpeted the captain. After a short interval, in which another crash was heard below the water, which had avaniously hear and the boats, which had previously been made ready, were launched. Within three minutes from the first crash the ship began to reel, to settle and sink in its free hinder part. The scenes about the life boats were indescribable. The panic stricken passengers and crew struggled for first place, although to the credit of the crew most of them gave their main attention to saving passengers. A number of children were on the passenger list, and one of them was pitched overboard by a frenzied mother, who aimed for one of the life boats while still on the davits. A woman of evident wealth and refinement among the passengers, whose name is thought to be Broslin, or Crosslin, displayed thought to be Broslin, or Crosslin, displayed remarkable presence of mind, and during the most trying moments passed among the frenzied throng exhorting the people to keep quiet, and taking particular care of the women and children. Some passengers, not willing to await the chance of a place in the boats, seized the life belts, and boldly cast themselves into the seas to their universal ate, as they were tossed lifely the waves, or were dashed agains

The Dutch are not fond of lazy people, and they have a very good way of curing persons who can but won't work. If a pumper who is able to work refuses to do so they put him into a cistern, to which a pump is attached, and turn on a stream of water. This stream flows into the cistern just slow enough to enable the lazy person by lively pumping to keep the water from getting up over his head.

The Intermediates put up a grand game at Brockton Point to-day. The Capitals espured the match; they played better combination and were quicker on their feet combination and were quicker on their reest and more scientific than the Vancouver team, whilst the home club were stronger players, harder, checkers, better individual performers than the visitors. The teams were matched to a marvellous extent. It seemed at times that the Terminal City players had all their own way, but the team play of the Victorias prevailed, as it was bound to do in the long run. The defence of the Capitals was very strong, whilst their goalkeeper, Norman, proved himself a marvel—"A mulberry bush," as one spectator remarked, "all branches." A hundred hot balls fired at him at close range were re-turned harmless, and he deserves more than passing mention, for he frequently saved the game for his team. Apart from this, when it is said that the team work of the Victorias was unusually good it would be wrong

o individualize. Description of the play of the home team however, would be taken up by an account of the individual plays as there was little combination, though some distinctive plays were very billiant. When the game stood two to one and twenty minutes to play the visitors took defence and by splendid work kept the exhausted Vaneouvers from tying them despite fast and desperate play, Cambridge was a satisfactory referee. There was no rough play and no fouls, and a small but very enthusiastic audience. The visitors' shout of victory was tremendous, and

Taylor and Mitchell Sentenced to Six Months' Imprisonment With Hard Labor.

Chinese Defendant and a Principal Witness Fail to Put in an Appearance.

Two men, Taylor and Mitchell, were pub on trial at the assizes yesterday before Mr. Justics Walkem on a charge of breaking and entering the Gordon hotel on Johnson street on May 23. Mr. A. G. Smith appeared for the Crown, the prisoners conducting their own defence.

The evidence, which was very short, was in effect that Taylor, being unable to pay the rent for his room at the Gordon hotel, Ross J. Ferguson, the hotel proprietor, as security retained Taylor's clothes. On May 23 Taylor applied to Ferguson to have his effects released, Ferguson refusing in the absence of other security. Taylor then got Mitchell to climb up at the back of the hotel, force open a window, and entering the house to throw down to Taylor some of the clothes.

In opening the case Mr. Smith gave a very comprehensive idea of blackjack, the game of chance that defendant was charged with having allowed to be played in his saloon. Constable Perdue saw blackjack played in the Beehive on the night of January 23. He saw money bet and paid over as the result of the play. He described black jack, stating that money is bet in the game be-

THE FAIR SEX FROM A COMMERCIAL AND PHILOSOPHICAL STANDPOINT.

Women Can Enjoy Much That Is Good. True and Beautiful; but, Alas, There Is a Fly In the Cintment-Late Styles For Spring Weather.

[Copyright, 1895, by American Press Associa-

It is no wonder that women are called frivolous and changeable creatures when they are so kaleidoscopic in everything. Oolor, form and materials change under their dainty hands so often that what they were once they will never be again, and it is a dizzying sight to attempt to keep track of it all. Flowers bloom to wither, moons wax and wane, but woman is perennial, and it is a good thing for the world that it is so. The whole commercial system not only of this country, but of the whole world, depends upon woman. What would men spend their lives mining, hunting, weaving and inventing for if woman was not there as the end and aim of all their artistic efforts? Who supposes that mankind would go toiling and grubbing about in gold and diamond mines, or growing cotton. or devising new means of evolving something newer and daintier in the way of silk or wool just for other men? They never would have thought of it. All the having a sort of bronze effect. commerce of the world turns about these poor little, insignificant creatures called women. The women have and hold, wear and enjoy everything that is hest and finest, but they are not happy, after all, for they cannot vote. They can now wear bloomers, but there is still the fly in the ointment. They will not console themselves with the thought that they are independent of collar buttons and stovepipe hats, for they want the "bowwow" too. Let me tell my unhappy sisters that they are not half as unkappy about it as they try to believe themselves. Just think how they would feel with half a dozen votes in their power if they couldn't buy the lovely gowns and other garments offered on every corner! There would be real grief, sorrow, trag-

These ribbons form straps in true blonse style, with their ends tucked snugly under a belt of the same ribbon. This belt has an upright bow and two ends which reach the bottom of the dress, being looped at the bottom in two deep flaps. The sleeves are of lace, with large puffs above laid in accordion plaits and strapped down with lines of lilae ribbon. What would she care for questions of tariff or the silver bill if she could not lovely creation of mauve shot peau de of the skirt, and lines of tinsel passementerie down each seam. The sleeves were so stylish, just full soft balloon puffs, with a dainty passementerie cuff trimming on the fore part, and the blouse in sprung plaits just too killing for anything. And over it all a great white yoke collar cut in deep points, richly garnished with the tinsel passementerie, and tucked cunningly each side the chin were two crimson velvet rosettes to match the velvet belt. Who shall say that woman has not obtained, if not chosen, the better part? What could a pasty, sticky little slip of paper count beside such a gown, particularly when there is offered as a sort of inducem a bonnet to match. This bonnet look like a magnified tulip leaf with the point turned backward and upward. The color was crimson, to match the velvet, and on the top was a small bow of maize velvet, with two small quills standing up aggressively. Of course the lovely woman wants her own gowns and bonnets tariff free, but she would like to see all other women have to pay no end of custom dues, so that they couldn't outdress her, but if she stay at her dressmaker's till the polls close, why, who is to blame? Certainly not she.

STILL WITHOUT A POLICY.

There has been a great deal of talk in the House of Commons, but very little of it seems to have been directed towards making the position of the Opposition on the most important questions before the country at all more definite than it was when Parliament met. Mr. Laurier on the tariff question still continues to be vague and uncertain. in and what he is aiming at, he did not fanatic. mean exactly what he said. Mr. Davies took There are, he says, admittedly semewhat the same ground that Mr. Blake did at Malvern. He tried to lead the manufacturers to believe that they need not be afraid of the Grit free traders, that their bark is much worse than their bite—that, in fact, they are very harmless creatures and do not bite at all. If the Liberals were in power the men engaged in the several protected industries would hardly be aware to be met by argument on the part of these a very large proportion of their own party other interest of the country is made subordinate to this petry silver industry, are the are not prepared to accept free trade as they men who must be marked down for public have it in England, or any approach to it, and discredit and be deprived of this malignant they are endeavoring to trim so as not to drive these protectionist Liberals into the ranks question that no thinking man, either Libpreach one thing and talk about practicing another it will be folly for them to ask the people to place the commercial interests of ents that they have in the country. the country in their hands.

That was not halians the same things had alleged views of the two men do not differ. alleged views of the two men do not differ. They may not believe the same things, but they profess to do so. Probably neither of them has any clear opinion as to the merit of any question before the country or cares to have, but each studies profoundly what he thinks the majority wish him to say, and then says it with great emphasis. McKinley is more solemn about it, having a strong infusion of Pecksniff in his mental composition. Foraker says it with more impuritely is in the article a table showing the sition. Foraker says it with more impuseriously. The men are radically opposed only on one point—their respective ambitions. The laws of physics do not allow two leaders to be in the same place at the same time; they both want the leader's place in Ohio and the fatness thereof—hence their quarrel. But it is plain that Foraker the output of silver was $51,575,000, and in could not have beaten McKinley, and the 1894 it is approximated at $193,

If, as the New York Times seems to think McKinley is discredited in Ohio the Repub lican party has received a severe blow, for McKinley was and, perhaps, is still one of its leading lights. He has been long before the people and is well known in every State of the Union. But a man to be strong in the States must stand well with his party in his own State.

By Cariboo people generally, and more especially the residents of Barkerville, among whom the spent upwards of twenty eight years of the useful life, will her loss be most deeply Since coming to Cariboo in 1867 Mrs.

Bowron has been prominently identified with every good and charitable object. As a leading member of the old Barkerville iramatic club and other institutions formed for charitable and other equally noble purposes, Mrs. Bowron, by her talent and capacity for organization and training, con-tributed more perhaps than any other single person to the advancement and well-being the community in which she so long played an active and important part.

She was a prominent member of the Church of England and an untiring church worker. For many years she was organist of St. Saviour's, Barkerville, and was closely connected with the Sunday school. Her cheerful, kindly nature, cultivated tastes and lively disposi tion endeared her to everyone with whom ermon by Rt. Rev. Bishop Cridge Be fore the Sons and Daughters of England.

A Practical and Interesting Discourse in Connection With the Queen's Birthday.

The following sermon was preached by tt, Rev. Bishop Cridge before the Sons and Daughters of England in connection with their Queen's Birthday celebration : The Lord giveth the word; the women that publish the tidings are a great host,—Psalm LXVIII, v. 2 (revised version).

The presence of the Sons and Daughters of England, whom we welcome amongst us to-day, coupled with the birthday celebrations, just ended, of our gracious and beloved queen, whose work as a true and noble woman will never be forgotten, seems to harmonise well with the reques which I and other ministers have received narrow and bigotted; but we must remem. ber that the requirement is not our's but we must remember that the requirement is not our's but her that the requirement is not our i should preach this last Sunday in May on women's work; a request which, for my own part, I the more readily acceded to, not cause the subject is a novel one to my because the subject is a novel one to my hearers either in theory or practice, but because through the circumstances of the times, I was glad of the opportunity of dealing with it a little more fully than I ave been wont. I have taken my text from this confessed y gospel Psalm that I might lay a sure oundation; a foundation on which alone a Since her marriage in 1869 her home at Barkerville has always been regarded as the centre of social attraction, and visitors to that town who had the good forther to the control of the c

I do not, therefore, propose to take up the do I speak of the "new woman," except to express a hope that as a " new creature in Christ Jesus" she may be counted worthy

I confine myself to two points—first, the motive and principle which alone can make woman's work effective for real and lasting good; secondly, the danger of lowering this standard in any way; it being understood that the work in question is that of rescuing our fellow mortals from sinful ways and their ruinous consequences.

And first, with regard to motive and vital principle, ib not enough to not enough to say that the work must be done with a good heart and a sincere mind, for all admit that, and there are few who would not claim the merit; but, taking our motive from the word of the Lord, we say that woman's work, to be good, effective, and true, must be done on of apparel, with arts and accomplishments good, effective, and true, must be done on Christian lines—the lines of obedience and for purely earthly ends, but the ornament of faith. ourselves to that) from its essential principal, are increasing every day.

Time was when those who denied the gospel were also indifferent about good works. It is not so now. All approved good works. It is not so now. All approved good works, even if they do not practise them. Some do good and benevolent deeds while continuing as eager in their devotion as ever, believing that charity in this sense will cover a multitude of sins; some give up the world, believing that their works will save them, while denying the grace which alone can justify and save; while some, ignoring or despising Christianity altogether, approve of good works in the purely humanitarian sense. By these latter it is argued that as all agree on good works and as all can de them, whether Jew, Turk, infidel or heretic, them, whether Jew, Turk, infidel or heretic, where is the need of the gospel? This was the impelling principle of the "Parliament of Religions," and is, I believe, the grand modern desire for the overthrow of Christianity, Christianity. This is why I say that Christian women ought to walk warily less they be drawn in any way to lower the standard of faith, or allow themselves to even seem to admit that sinful men and wemen can be effectively a raised from their degraded condition by any other power than the gospel of Christ. There is, we may admit, something fascinating in the idea of gathering together in one body all women of any name, whether the christian or otherwise, who labor, or are willing to labor for the suppression of vice and immorality, or for the alleviation of human miseries. It is not my place, nor is it my purpose, to speak against a design which is apparently so praiseworthy and good. We may even go so far as to concede a measure of force in the argument by which such an abence of unity—more apparent than cone can more deeply deplore the division and absence of unity—more apparent than the church, than the church herself. Yes the very fact of uniting together in one body people of opposite religious principles, not to say of no re ought to walk warily lest they be drawn in any way to lower the standard of faith, or hrist may be shut out, and all yet go well.

I merely point out the danger. I neither dictate nor condemn. While seeking to be faithful to a ministry which knows no saluation for time or abarnity but by the name ration for time or eternicy but by the name of Jesus, I would not be unjust to any who in any way are seeking to do good in this promote merality and virtue. I am sure that no Christian woman, whether in or out of the movement. would consent to this, or do aught to cast a stigms on the already existing society, established by our Lord himself, whose work is to bring men to righteousness and

"The foundation of God standeth sure :" let us be sure of that. The house of God on earth is the church of the living God; the pillar and ground of the truth, built upon a rock against which the gates of hell cannot prevail. Through the church come health and cure for the spiritual diseases of mankind. From the church comes forth the scattered army to publish the tidings of mercy and peace. Whatever be the evils that are in the world, unbelief is the greatest, for it is the rock of all. You cannot go forth with a sure and certain hope to save and bless mankind and leave faith behind. The religion of the world immorality, and the enmity against God remains unsubdued; the gospel attacks unbelief, and the enemy departs. Faith is God's cure for all evils, and it radical when received and obeyed. I know that to require women's work to be on Christian lines is by some deemed the Lord's, who said that "strait is gate and narrow is the way that leadeth in to life, and few there be that find it."

And now, Christian women, leaving to yourselves how best to use the influence which God has given to you, whether in combination with others, or freely, as God shall show you one by one, in any case abound in good works according to Christ Jesus. Everywhere great evils are calling for women's help; and everywhere, in ways open or hidden, women are nobly giving themselves to the task of their subversion. Think how many of your own sex are degraded and waiting for a helping hand to draw them out of the mire of pollution and sin. Lured from homes where they were sheltered by a mother's care; their inno-cence betrayed; deserted, abandoned, forsaken; but, perhaps, not yet altogether hardened; it may be yours to be to them a mother, a sister, a deliverer, to help them to mould their lives into better shape. How many a man laboring in chains, a wreck of his former self, left his home in the freshness of youth with a life full of hope and promise before him, may need but a woman's and and cheer to set him on his feet again. Ah, you will say, I am but a child and cannot speak. Be it so, your loving deed will be more eloquent than words; though words will come when needed.

But there are evils whose roots lie deep in society's rank bed, and are all the time forming recruits for the army of vice. It is here especially, before lewdness takes on its more hideous forms, that the example, more than the precept, and Christian women should exert its influence : an influence to be sought, preached unto you."

I will not speak of woman's preaching in the ordinary acceptation of the term. I only know that if I were, unformally to mealt in danger of my our as becometh women professing godli-ness. When we look at the ourrent literachild, to warn me to escape.

There are many ways of teaching the knowledge and fear of the Lord besides the platform or the pulpit. The Christian woman, whether she go after some poor lost, one or of her own sex, or seek to reclaim the wandsting and the vicious of either sex, will have it in her heart, that such a one should be not way.

A PATRIOTIC SPEECH.

The speech which Sir James Grant made in the debate on the Budget was in the best optimistic, it is true, but he showed that his ly. He showed that the pro- insurance. Has not Sir James Grant proved gress of the country has been steady and his case? Has he not the best reasons for continuous, and he also showed that so far believing in Canada and Canadians? from being exhausted many of the most important of the Dominion's resources have as yet been hardly touched. He reminded his hearers that hitherto the people of Canada had been equal to every exigency. When the Americans in a fit of anger and jealousy abrogated the reciprocity treaty of 1854, hoping thereby to do the country irreparable injury, Canadians kept on the even tenor of engaged in new industries, so that after a while what had been regarded as the greatest of misfortunes came to be looked upon as a stimulus to Canada's progress. Among the indications of progress to which Sir James Grant directed attention is one that appears to us as giving striking and irrefragible evidence of the steadily increasing prosperity of the people of this Dominion. This is what he said on a very important and a most interesting subject upon which politicians hitherto have said very little .

In discussing the progress made by

Canada during the last quarter of a century, reference has frequently been made to money

accumulated in our savings banks. How ever, we know perfectly well that it is a substantial structure to build upon. there are other channels of investment for the surplus earnings of our people. We know perfectly well that every family in our country takes into serious consideration the advisability of life insurance, and at no time in our history was life insurance in a more prosperous state than it is to-day. Let me tell the House that one company in the Capital of Canada, the Metropolitan Life, one of the largest industrial con Life, one of the largest industrial companies in the world, has forty agents at work togreater progress or advancement? To-day, company make their money? Out of honest has been investment of capital in the insuring of the lives of our people. If we turn to-day to the records of our companies, is it not pleasing and gratifying to see what they have accomplished in giving insurance and building up the fair name and reputation they are the fair name and reputation they enjoy throughout the Dominion. Life insurance is considered almost indispensable in every family. We find, on examining statisticsalthough hon. gentlemen opposite, with their to 1894, we have been going from bad to worse, as has been stated by the hon. member for South Oxford (Sir Richard Cartwright), it so happens that of the $106,458,-$63 of insurance subscribed, contributed and paid as premiums in Canada during the last 20 years, no less than $75,640,436 have been paid up during the last ten years, as against $29,818,027 during the ten years previous. Is that no evidence of the advancement, of the progress and of the resources of the people, and of their ability, out of their honest earnings, acquired by the exercise of brain and muscle, to pay that money, and thus insure their lives and build up the institutions of the country? The net amount of life insurance in force in 1875 was $85,-009,264; in 1885 ten years later, that had risen to $149,962,146, and in 1894, it Canada a gentleman who could perform the selves, which under the Canadian system East was most judiciously reticent. The ber of people covered by this insurance can be inferred from the fact that the number number in force was only 90,517. Surely which is justly his due. these indications show that Canada is able to stand a rainy day, and what better pros-pects can we have of the presperity of our people than to know that life insurance has quadrupled during the last ten years? I do gentleman opposite as overshadowing this the howling Canadian Grits, in defeating the country, since the regime of the Conserva-tive party commenced; I believe that we are living under a clear above and above two have

The large-mindedness and toleration of the "new woman" are conspicuous in some of these essays. Miss Mary P. Wright describes "Woman's Life in Asiatic Turkey" in a way that is truly sympathetic. She has not a disparaging word to say of the women of the harem, and does not make the occasion of her visit to a Turkish family an excuse to moralize upon conditions of life of which she has had no experience and which it is impossible for her to understand. Mrs. A. L. Howard's paper on "Moorish Women as I Found Them" is written in the same spirit of Christian toleration and intelligent appreciation. She describes Lieutenants what she saw and heard in the most lively and interesting way, and when she leaves the house in which she has been kindly treated and hospitably entertained, she has not an uncharitable or narrow-minded remark to make about the hostess whose ideas of propriety and whose manner of life are so and intolerance that is so often preferred against women is false and unjust. A LEGAL point of general interest to business men was decided by Kis Lordship Chief Justice Davie in Chambers yesterday morning in the case of the Hudson's Bay Co. vs. Haslett. On behalf of the plaintiffs, who held a partly unsatisfied judgment in the County court, Mr. B Drake applied for an order for a receiver of the book debts due to defendant's estate. Mr. Archer Martin, for the defendant, objected that this was not a case for equitable execution and that the plaintiff should be left to his legal remedies. The learned judge held there remedies. The learned judge held there was no jurisdiction to make the order and dismissed the application with costs.

Before Mr. Justice Walkem the argument in the case of Drake, Jackson & Johnson v. McLaughlin opened yesterday. This son v. McLaughlin opened yesterday. This is an action on a promissory note for $522 50 and interest, dated Feb. 7, 1889, and given by defendants to plaintiffs to obtain a transfer of a mortgage from C. S. Jones. The mortgaged lands are claimed by a third party who is in possession, and an action of ejectment was brought in 1891 and failed. Defendant claims that the note was not to be paid unless he was put in possession of the mortgaged premises, which plaintiffs have not been able to obtain. Mr. C. E. Pooley, Q. C., for plaintiffs; Mr. Thornton Fell for defendant.

AN INDIAN'S OPINION

During the Queen's Birthday holidays a number of Indians visited the Provincial museum. They were, as usual, interesting as well as interested visitors, from their knowledge of natural history and the information that can be obtained from them respecting the curios in the Indian room. They were also quiet and attentive, interfering with no one, handling nothing, and apparently enjoying the whole thing in their

On Friday last some fifteen or twenty of On rriday last some litteen or twenty of these dusky natives, headed by a venerable chief, entered the museum, and after a while found their way into the fish room where the painted casts of the fish appeared to engage their attention. The old chief, who had evidently been there before, was doing the honora of the occasion, and in the course of some discussion with his tribesmen, Curator Fannin brought from the work room a painted cast of the large trout presented to the museum by Captain Jones, and laying it down in front of the old chief asked if he knew what

"Che-e! che-e! che-che!" "They don't mind the rain," laughed grandpa, "for their little oil cans have done them a good service today."

"Whoever heard of a bird having an oil can? Birds don't have lamps, do they?" And Ted moved away from the window with an air of positive unbelief. "They don't have any lamps, for they ase their oil for something else," laughed grandpa, more heartily than before,

"Didn't you ever see the hens use their oil cans?" "No!" replied Ted shortly.

"Well," continued grandpa, "every bird has a little oil can—some call it an oil gland, but it means just the same thing. This tiny oil can or gland is placed at the base of the tail. It is of great value to birds, for they don't always have a home to shelter them, and it would be very disagreeable to them to be drenched to the skin every time it rains. To prevent this they have their little oil cans. They dip their little bills into their tiny cans and cover them with oil, and then they rub the oil over their feathers, and it thus makes their feathers waterproof-in fact, Ted, they all have a gossamer for rainy weather."

"Do they all have an oil can?" inquired Ted, with delight. "The hens

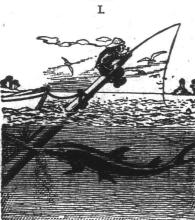

"Yes, indeed," answered grandpa. Now, Ted, get the umbrella, and we will go down to the barn, and who knows but that we shall find the hens using their oil cans, so they can go out for a worm!" Sure enough! When Ted reached the "Grandpa, you must know lots of funny things! I never knew that before -'bout the birds' oil cans!" And Ted took hold of grandpa's hand lovingly as he spoke.

'Tis rather queer, I'll admit," laughed grandpa.—Young Idea.

The Secret of His Success.

A lady once crossed a street where little boy was busily sweeping the crossing. She noticed with pleasure the care with which he did his work and smiled as she said to him, "Yours is the cleanest crossing I pass." He lifted his cap with a gallant air and quickly said, "I am doing my best."

All day the words rang in her ears, and for many days afterward, and when a friend, a rich, influential man, inquired for a boy to do errands and general work for him, she told him of the little fellow at the crossing. "A boy who would do his best at a street crossing is worth a trial with me," said the man, and he found the boy, engaged him for a month, and at the end of that time was so pleased with him that he sent him to school and fitted him for a high position, which he filled with honor. "Doing my best at the street crossing made a successful man of me," he was wont to say in after years. -Home.

MISS ANTHONY'S PROPHECY. She Recites the Advance Made by Wome and Predicts Greater Achiev Miss Susan B. Anthony sat in the sumny library of S. E. Gross' home on the Lake Shore drive. She was daintily, almost coquettishly, gowned in a dress of black satin, with a misty collar of lace caught about her neck with a jeweled pin of quaint and elaborate workmanship. Her white hair was parted smoothly over her high forehead and came down over her ears in a fashion so very old that it has suddenly become new again. Looking at Miss Anthony as she sat in the quiet library, observing her handsome dress, her air of elegance and her gentle voice it was hard to think of her as the type of all that is aggressive in the nineteenth century womanhood. In fact, she looked like only a very quiet, well dressed little gentlewoman who would like nothing so well Mr. Gross' library.

century woman it was harder still. For Miss Anthony doesn't much admire either of these in the accepted sense of the terms.

When a timorous inquiry was made as to who the new woman is, when she will come, or if she had come already, Miss Anthony said: "It all depends on what you mean by the term 'new woman.' The term has become a cant phrase, carrying almost as much opprobrium as the term 'woman's rights woman' used to imply. The 'new woman,' as the phrase goes, may mean a loud, mannish woman affecting the boisterous conduct of men, with none of the saving graces of her own sex. If that be the new woman, I do not welcome her coming. If by the new woman is meant a woman earnest, thoughtful, lofty of purpose, self reliant and equally well educated with man, why, then she has come. We have got her in our homes, where she stands side by side with her husband, welcoming his friends on the common ground of intellectual equality, joining in their discussions—a college bred woman, who can do something more than pour tea when her husband entertains his friends. We have got the new weman in everything except the counting of her vote at the ballot box. And that's coming. It's coming sooner than most people think. The new woman made her appearance 45 years ago, when Antoinette Brown entered Oberlin college. Next November we are going to have in New York an exhibit of new

Forty thousand women have been graduated from American colleges, every calling has its followers among women, and they are today as well educated as men, if not better.

"In the state of New York one-elevanth of the property tax is paid by women. In my own city of Rochester women pay taxes on a property valuation of 29,000,000. These are some of the results of the battle for equal rights, which women have been waging for 40 years, and they have fought alone. The blacks had a nation's aid in the struggle for emancipation. Women are the only oppressed class who ever were compelled to battle for emancipation unaided. No party gives our claims for equal suffrage its indorsement. But today the nation is known as a nation of educated women. To be sure, as wage earners they do not receive compensation equal to that of men. That is because, being without the ballot, they cannot dictate the terms upon which they shall be employed. All the women of today ask are the rights. powers, privileges and immunities of an American citizen. We have been granted equal suffrage in Wyoming and Colorado, virtually in Utah. Equal suffrage bills are now pending in the legislatures of Oregon, Idaho, Nevada, California and New York. The question of equal suffrage is beginning to be respected as a political measure. And it's coming. -Chicago Tribune.

Two Able Wemen. Miss Helen Morris Lewis and Miss E. U. Yates called out high commendation from the local press when they lectured for equal suffrage recently in the court-house at Asheville, N. C. There was a large audience, and the mayor was among the speakers. The Asheville Register says: "Miss Lewis, representing the ideal southern woman, being a native of South Carolina, and Miss Yates, a fine model of New England woman hood, are one in the great cause they so ably and worthily represent. These two devoted women should be called to speal in every town and city in the state. Those who heard their logical addresses cer tainly withdrew many of their inherited objections to equal rights for women.

The Effect. When women get to voting at al elections and for all candidates, the problem of street cleaning and proper sani tary care of cities will be solved, in addition to the causing of a decided improvement in the morals of candidates. Mansfield (O.) News.

The novel experience of Miss Reel makes an interesting story, not devoid of many ludicrous features. In answer to the query, "How did you manage the campaign?" she said:

burdens of the campaign, financial or otherwise. I traveled over most of the great state of Wyoming, which has an area of 97,000 square miles, much of the distance being covered by stage-coach or wagon. I did not make any attempts at oratory in my speeches and did not try to discuss the political issues of the day, but confined the remarks to explaining the duties of the office for which I was a candidate, telling why I thought I could perform them with satisfaction. I was treated with the greatest courtesy in all parts of the state and by the press of whatever political faith. Of course some of the eastern papers tried to manufacture a funny side to the campaign, and a paragraph went the rounds to the effect that I had agreed with my opponent to marry him in the event of his election and my defeat. As the man already had a wife, this camwhen it reached Wyoming. Another story was circulated to the effect that I secured my large vote-I had the largest vote of any candidate, by the way-by having sent my photograph to every man in the state. The only foundation for this story was the fact that I, in common with other candidates on the ticket, sent out considerable campaign literature bearing our none too flattering pictures. Wildly exaggerated tales of perfumed notes being sent to cowboys who rode 100 miles to vote for me as well as to wave six shooters in the faces of those who voted against me also went the rounds. Well, to make a long story short, the battle was won, and I am satisfactorily pushing my work."

"Is there any dissatisfaction in regard to woman suffrage in Wyoming?" was asked.

"There is not," was the decisive rejoinder. "On the contrary, the institution seems to give general satisfaction to all political parties and to both sexes."-Chicago Tribune.

Woman's Influence on the Drama. There are 24 theaters in New York city now open. In 16 of these theaters regular performances of plays are given. In eight diversified or continuous performances make up the bill. The current attractions at the regular theaters are made up almost exclusively of light operatic or farcical plays and comedier of manners and fashion, plays appealing particularly to the favor of women. At three theaters only, theaters of the cheaper class, are melodramas or sensation pieces presented. At no establishment is there a tragedy on the bill. At one house is a comedy written by a woman. There me because I am so beautiful. Met him has been of late years a visible change again—he is still in love with me, not in the standard of public entertainments. Some theater goers, in discussing the alleged evils of "the theater hat" and the laws proposed to abate them, declare that it almost seems as if a majority of the audience were women. They are. This applies particularly to the high priced orchestra or balcony seats. So long as it was against the prevailing custom for a woman to go to a theater without male escort, men predominated, but since the fashion in this respect has changed it is no uncommon thing for two women to go to a theater together. The increased number of women in audiences and the relatively decreased number of men in theaters of the first class have been reflected in the changed standard of taste in these theaters in New York. The New Child.

There is to be a "new child" as well as "new woman," and one of them is being brought up by a new method. Mrs. Digby Bell is a firm believer in the theory of the effect of the signs of the zodiac on every life, and that if people lived in accordance with the significance of the signs much sorrow would be avoided in this world. Consequently she is bringing up a young son in as strict adherence to the directions to be read in the signs of the zodiac as possible. When she sings "Read the Answer In the Stars," it is like chanting her creed. The child's playmates and everything else that concerns him are ordered by the zodiac indications.

Another young woman who is eminently successful in the world, but has modestly avoided all publicity, is following Mrs. Bell's example to a certain extent, but she also has a phrenological chart of her little son's cranium by which she is guided. This woman confesses that she selected her husband in accordance with the same rule, and after his proposal of marriage she insisted that he should visit a phrenologist with her. The man demurred, but finally went, and the result was so satisfactory to the girl that she accepted him at once. The couple are extremely happy. -New York World.

"My remedy is a very simple one," said the good housekeeper, "and I learned it years ago from my grandmother, when I used to watch her putting bunches of lavender flowers around to keep the flies away. My method is simpler. I buy 5 cents' worth of oil of lavender at the drug store and mix it with the same quantity of water. Then I put it in a common glass atomizer and spray it around the rooms wherever flies are apt to congregate, especially in the dining room, where I sprinkle it plentifully over the table linen. The odor is especially disagreeable to flies, and they will never venture in its neighborhood, though to most people it has a peculiarly fresh and prateful small "

"I shall certainly give it a trial," said the other woman.

The new millinery reveals some novelties and many elegant perversions of $10 00 former modes. The twist of a ribbon, the turn of a brim, the interweaving of certain kinds of straw, and the magnifying of a small and unimportant flower into a large edition of it are all the novel ideas which make up the original models of the millinery world. This particular season everything to do with hats and bonnets runs in a trio. Feathers come

THE FIVE O'CLOCK TEA TABLE.

Few Suggestions For Its Tasteful and Fashionable Fitment.

Beginning with the table itself, it may be a small oval, circular or hexagon shape. Any one of these is preferable to square one. Tables are shown in shors that are provided with small leaves or arms a few inches wide, to open out in all directions. Such are not especially commended. Their effect is not good as pieces of furniture, and they perform their office in rather an uncertain manner. Even four or five persons surrounding such a table endanger its freight, a slight jostle being sufficient to overturn a cup or plate on one of its frailly supported arms.

If the surface of the table is highly polished and it is preferred not to cover it entirely, a handsome square or round centerpiece doily which is only a dinner centerpiece is used, or a teacloth a yard square may prettily and wholly veil it. The Dresden designs are not so much in vogue as they were. Our unhappy fashion of doing everything to death, whether it be Dresden, Trilby or empire effects, has worked its inevitable reaction, and the powdering of linen with gay little blossoms is not much countenanced. Anything that is well done, however, remains beautiful, and those who have fine pieces of such needlework should let them see the light frequently. In planning a new cloth some later design may be employed.

For the actual impedimenta of the ta-For the actual impedimenta of the table there are required a tea caddy, teapot, a hot water kettle, a cozy, a wafer or cracker dish, two or three pretty cups and sancers, cream jug and sugar bowl.

The Mineral act, 1891, C. 25, S. 72, reads thus: "In measuring water in any ditch or sluice, the following rules shall be observed: The water taken into a ditch or sluice shall be measured at the ditch or sluice. inches, as it really is. These engineers were simply misled by the wrong use of the word "head" in sec. 72 of the mineral act, In practice what do we find? On account of the actual quantity of water supposed to be contained in the miners' inch not being stated in any known unit of measurement, an attempt is made to comply with the actual contained in the made to comply with the actual contained in the made to comply with the actual contained and we find he is getting 3,900 miners' inches. So much for chap. 25 sec. 72 of the mineral set, 1891. I do not make this remark ill-naturedly, as my labor in this matter is given gratuitously where any dispute was likely to arise should an attempt is made to comply with the act only as far as placing the top of any shaped orifice in use under seven inches of water. my labor in this matter is given gratuitously and my endeavor is to improve the method in use rather than to find fault with it. In orifice "two inches high" according to the make an in use rather than to find rather than the find rather than be necessary to exercise more care to insure each claimant his fair allowance of water.

lowing are Californian miners' inches : contains the requisite number of square inches; and as long as he puts the top of the orifice under seven inches of water (what is erroneously termed "head" in the mining act. 1891) he is increased.

paratus could be filed with the registrar suitable for any particular water right. I have to thank Mr. William McKinnon, sure and correct method of measurement according to the mineral act, 1891, is not feasible in practice, because it would require too much space. Consequently it naturally occurs to the ordinary miner that by increasing the area of the ordine he requires in a foot passing in one second of time. The following actions and the ordine he requires in a foot passing in one second of time. The following actions and the control of the ordine he requires in a foot passing in one second of time. The following actions are called a mineral mineral act, 1891, see 72, where the coefficient of discharge is taken at decimal 62, represents a volume of water equal to .028 of a cubic ing the area of the orifice he requires in a foot passing in one second of time. The following actions are called a coording to the mineral suitable for any particular water right.
