Everything around the place was perfectly quiet. The tavern at the corner of the quadrangle, kept by a rufianic landlord, supplied them with fuming ale, and on the evening when our story commences, he had just placed on the table some fresh tankards, when a long and shrill shriek echoed on the night air.

the face of the fact that the soldiers, with-in and without the guard-room had seen all that passed? However, some inward motive prompted him to assist this young girl, and this man who at present had not addressed to him a single word.

'Enter,' he said, 'and I will do my best but it must be only as far as my duty here will justify.'

'The girl muttered something perhaps in the way of thanks; and in a few minutes the two strangers had passed through the guard-room, and, conducted by the young captain, had entered a room at the rear of the premises; a room that was reached by a little dark staircase with but a few steps.

'Remain here,' he said, 'and in a few minutes I will return, when I hope you will be able to afford you the information which is my due.'

'He bowed to her and to her father, and then left the room, locking the door as he went. The second fugitive—a fine noble-looking man, about fifty, now spoke for the first time.

'He spoke in French. 'My child,' he said, 'this man will betray us.'

'No, no, he will not,' cried the girl with a strange burst of enthusiasm; he is too good and too noble, and will save us when he hears our story.'

'The Frenchman smiled and shrugged his shoulders. 'Helas! Helena,' he said, 'you were always too enthusiastic. But, at any rate, we are better here than being hunted through the streets.'

'To whom do these papers really belong?' he asked. 'To my father.'

'Then I will go myself,' said the young captain; though perhaps the condition which I name will be considered unworthy of me.'

'Name it,' returned the young girl, with a flutter at the heart for which she could not account.

'That if I succeed, you will give me the right to win your hand. I am a romantic fool,' he added, with a light laugh; 'but I believe in first impressions.'

At that instant, when hope had begun to rise in the heart of Helena, and she turned to her father with a quick exclamation of joy, there was a loud voice in the adjoining room, the stamping of feet, and the sound of many angry voices.

'Put out the light and do not utter a sound,' said the captain in a low voice. And as the lamp went out he passed out in the guard-room.

On entering it, he found an officer and a file of soldiers. 'Good evening, Captain Armer,' he said, 'I hear you have made an important capture. Is it true?'

'I hear that you have arrested a notorious rebel, one Colonel Despard of the French army; and you have him still in the guard-room?'

EGYPT.

Some of the European powers—and especially France—have shown a sudden jealousy at Great Britain's influence in Egypt. The purchase of the Suez Canal a short time since, and the threatened occupancy of that country in case of certain events that may possibly occur at no distant day, are matters upon which the Court at Versailles are looking with anxiety, if not with irritation. France has a material stake in northern Africa, and she naturally looks with a suspicious eye upon whatever tends to give an increased influence at the head of the Mediterranean to any other European power.

AGRICULTURAL MEETING.—A meeting of the Bridgetown Agricultural Society will be held at Buckler's Hotel, on Tuesday, 5th inst., at 2 o'clock, p. m., by order of the President. DONATION.—The members and congregation of the Paradise Baptist Church intend giving the Pastor, the Rev. John Brown, a donation visit on Thursday evening, the 7th of February. ADJOURNED MEETING.—An adjourned meeting of those interested in the erection of a building for Agricultural and Industrial Exhibitions, will be held at the Court House, this town, on Tuesday, the 12th day of February next, at 10 o'clock, a. m.

REFORM CLUB.—Another very large audience assembled on Thursday evening, at Victoria Hall, to attend the meeting of the Reform Club, and a rich treat they enjoyed. The usual business having been got through with, the President announced that the entertainment for the evening would be commenced. The first was a dialogue by Sisters Payson and Dodge, Brothers McLean and Murdoch; all the actors did credit to themselves and afforded much pleasure to the audience. Mrs. Dodge and Mr. McLean deserve special notice—scarcely do professional performers carry off the parts assigned them more creditably. The Club will meet next Thursday evening at the Court House. The entertainment for the evening will consist of a Lecture by Mr. Jones, of Clements.

CASUALTY.—On Saturday afternoon Mr. George W. Wade, proprietor of the Albion Hotel, this town, started with a passenger from the train, who lived about four miles below here on the Annapolis side of the river, and it appears after letting the party out he drove towards the residence of Mr. William Cary to deliver a message. On the way one side of the shaft became detached and fell down against the horse's heels, the animal started into a run, and when crossing a small bridge the wagon wheel ran off the side, throwing Mr. Wade out upon the ice. He struck upon his head and shoulders, breaking his collar bone and several ribs. He was immediately carried into Mr. Chas. B. Whitman's house, and medical aid sent for. On Monday afternoon there was no hope of his recovery, but we learn that a turn for the better took place during the night.

CHARLES ROSS REPORTED FOUND IN TWO PLACES. Special despatch to the Boston Globe.] BALTIMORE, Md., January 19.—The brig Potomac arrived here from Demerara last night with a small boy on board, and there is a sensation in town over the report that he is Charles Ross. The boy says his name is John Sylvanus. The captain of the brig says that the little fellow arrived in Demerara from Boston some four years ago. The woman who accompanied him was disolute in her habits and was frequently arrested for beating the boy. A few months ago she abandoned him, and Mr. A. M. Perot, one of the owners of the brig Potomac, took him in charge and sent him here for the purpose of placing him in some charitable institution. The boy has brown hair and eyes and is apparently about seven years of age. Captain Wilson of the brig Potomac states that the boy was put on board the brig by Mr. A. P. Perot at Demerara, who consigned him to his brother, W. H. Perot of this city. The boy's mother, or the woman who called herself his mother, arrived at Demerara about four years ago, and said she came from Boston. The boy was then small, but he told a number of people that he was not his mother, but had stolen him from home. She treated him most unmercifully, and was brought before the police magistrate several times for her ill-treatment of him. On one occasion, when closely questioned by Mr. Brummel, the Magistrate, she stated that she was a mulatto and a native of Demerara; and that in early life she was taken to Philadelphia by her parents, and when quite a girl fell in love with and married a white man named Crawford, who followed the occupation of a painter; all went happily with them and others written in their place, Egypt's original name remains the same that it was in the days of Abraham. The manners and customs of the people on the banks of the Nile, are probably little altered since the time of the Pharaohs. The higher civilization of more enlightened Europe, however, is beginning to exercise an influence in that ancient historical land. Railroads and other modern improvements will no doubt ere long transform Egypt and its people into sympathy and action with the present progressive age which is so wonderful in some other parts of the world.

"The Preachers I heard in London" was the subject of a very interesting lecture, delivered by the Rev. G. W. M. Carey at the Baptist Church, in this town, on Friday night. Owing to the state of the roads but few outside of the town were present.

The Rev. F. P. Greatorex, Episcopal Minister, Granville Ferry, was the recipient on Tuesday evening, the 22nd inst., of a donation of $54.00 from the members of his congregation. The Rev. Mr. Smith, Wesleyan Minister, Annapolis Royal, also received a similar visit from his friends and $50.00 in money.

The manners and customs of the people on the banks of the Nile, are probably little altered since the time of the Pharaohs. The higher civilization of more enlightened Europe, however, is beginning to exercise an influence in that ancient historical land. Railroads and other modern improvements will no doubt ere long transform Egypt and its people into sympathy and action with the present progressive age which is so wonderful in some other parts of the world.

for a short time, but after the birth of their son, the so-called Charley Ross, her husband got into some difficulty and was sent to the Penitentiary; she then went to Boston in search of employment, and falling to find work, returned to Demerara in the hope of getting something to do in the lap of her birth. Mr. Brummel communicated with Charley Ross's father, in Philadelphia, and received several letters from that gentleman. In one of his letters Mr. Ross, in reply to a question of the Magistrate, stated that his boy had a remarkably large vaccination mark on his right arm, and such a mark Mr. Brummel found on the boy. The woman was not about the time of the departure of the boy; she had deserted the boy on the streets, and Mr. Perot had clothed him and placed him on board in the hope that he might be admitted to a charitable institution in Baltimore. During this forenoon the steward of the brig took the boy ashore to purchase a hat for him. Upon his coming from the cabin the large crowd of curious gazers began jostling each other to get a close look at the little fellow. At every street the party were met by new crowds, who followed to the hat store and back again to the vessel. On a change and elsewhere through the city quite a stir was created by the reported finding of the abducted Charley Ross. The parents of Charley Ross have been communicated with, and the boy supposed to be him is still on board the brig Potomac. He bears a very close resemblance to the photograph of the missing child taken at the time of the abduction.

CINCINNATI, O., January 16.—A boat came here from Pittsburgh having on board a boy, a woman and two men. The men had a quarrel, and one went to the telegraph office and said that the other was an accomplice of the Long Island burglar who had stolen Charley Ross, and that the boy was Charles Ross. The boat left here, but Mr. Ross was telegraphed to. The police are working the affair up.

THE DISCOVERERS OF AUSTRALIA.

Australasia, the fifth great division of the globe, began to be discovered after America and the South Seas were known to the Europeans. Magellan, who first undertook a voyage round the world, had promised the Spanish monarch, into whose service he had entered when he left the Portuguese, that he would arrive at the Moluccas by sailing westward. On this voyage he discovered, March 6th, 1521, the Ladrones, or Mariana Islands, a group of islands which constitute a part of Australasia. Magellan, therefore, must be regarded as the first discoverer of this portion of the globe, and opened the way for subsequent discoveries in this quarter. Three hundred years elapsed before all the islands, which now pass under the name of Australasia, were known to Europeans. After Magellan, the Spanish navigators continued the process of discovery in this part of the world, particularly Alvaro de Mendana, who, in the last part of the sixteenth century, discovered the Solomon Islands and the Marquesas, and passed through the Society and Friendly Islands without seeing them. Fernandez de Quiros, who had accompanied him on his third voyage took a southerly course, and hit upon the part of the South Sea which has the most islands. He made known to the world the Society Islands and Terra del Espíritu Santo. In the seventeenth century the Dutch began to explore this part of the ocean, and, besides several small islands, discovered the largest Island of Australasia, New Holland, which receives its name from them, although there is some reason for supposing that it was visited by the Portuguese a hundred years earlier; but their discoveries seem to have been concealed by their Government and afterwards forgotten. Tasman, a Dutchman, and Dampier, an Englishman, continued the discoveries. In the middle of the eighteenth century Byron the Englishman, Wallis and Carteret, and the Frenchman Bougainville, exerted themselves to extend the knowledge of Australasia. But James Cook, who circumnavigated the world from 1767 to 1779, contributed most of the more accurate examination of this portion of the globe.

A GREAT ICE MAKING MACHINE.

There is in construction in Newark for Senator Jones, of Nevada, an immense machine intended for the manufacture of ice for the supply of parts of the South. It is nearly complete, and will be forwarded to New Orleans in a few days. It will manufacture about fifty tons of ice daily, and is said to be the largest machine of the kind in the country. The machine is constructed of cast iron, weighs about twenty-two tons, and is simply an immense compressor. It has for a base an oblong reservoir, perpendicular by 6 feet, out of which rise two cylinders of 25 inch bore, to the height of 10 feet. It works on the well-known principle that compression of a body or gas increases its heat. The gas is introduced into the reservoir and then compressed by rods working in the upright cylinders, after which, relieved of its heat, it is passed in liquid form through coils to a room where there is water. By its presence the temperature of the room is reduced to a degree far below freezing point, even to twenty and thirty degrees below zero. The water is thus quickly frozen into what is known as anchor ice, which is harder than ice made naturally and sinks in water.

New Advertisements.

Middleton Corner CHEAP CASH STORE. JANUARY, 1878. THE subscriber in returning thanks to the Public for the very liberal patronage bestowed the firm of Pinney & Smith, respectfully solicits a continuance of the same. I shall be constantly on hand to serve all the old customers and as many new ones as may favor me with a call. I hope to keep up a good reputation for square dealing and strict business principle, thereby making friends of my customers. Although unable to advertise or offer such enormous discounts as some of our country store keepers, I can safely say that I am prepared to sell as low as any of them, and selling altogether for cash can give my customers the full benefit of the extra percentage necessary to carry on a credit business. So as to make room for a heavy importation in Spring, I have determined to close out my stock of Winter Goods at Reduced Prices. It is needless to enumerate the articles, as I have a general assortment of Staple and Fancy Dry Goods, CLOTHING, Boots, Shoes, &c., DRESS GOODS, DRESS TRIMMINGS, Mantle Cloths and Trimmings, Men's Suitings, OVERCOATINGS AND READY-MADE CLOTHING, in extensive, new and well selected. Call and examine Goods and Prices before going elsewhere. I take great pleasure at all times in showing goods to an appreciative people. As usual I shall take COUNTRY PRODUCE in exchange for goods and give as high a cash price as possible. TERMS—STRICTLY CASH. J. HENRY SMITH & Co.

NOTICE.

CONVINCED that Business conducted on strictly CASH principles, is the safest and best, for both buyer and seller, we have resolved, from the first day of January, 1878, to sell at the very smallest profit for CASH ONLY. Thankful to our numerous customers for their liberal patronage in the past, we most respectfully solicit a continuance of the same on our new basis of operations. RANDALL, HIGGINS, & CO., Opposite Railway Station, Annapolis, Jan. 1st, 1878.

BETTER STILL.

THE Subscribers have lately received per "Atwood" 100 lbs. Choice Flour, 100 lbs. K. D. Corn Meal, "Gold Drop," 100 lbs. Fresh Irish Potatoes, 50 "Cracked Corn." Arrived to-day per "T. B. Harris," direct from Mills—200 lbs. Flour, "Millstone," "White Eagle," and "Avalanche." Also in stock—50 Boxes Layer Raisins, 50 "Boxes," "Paris Raisins," "Biscuits," "Cocoa," "Salt," coarse and fine, Pickled, Dry and Smoked Salt. A few casks of Kerosene, by each 25 cts. Middleton Corner CHEAP CASH STORE. JANUARY, 1878. THE subscriber in returning thanks to the Public for the very liberal patronage bestowed the firm of Pinney & Smith, respectfully solicits a continuance of the same. I shall be constantly on hand to serve all the old customers and as many new ones as may favor me with a call. I hope to keep up a good reputation for square dealing and strict business principle, thereby making friends of my customers. Although unable to advertise or offer such enormous discounts as some of our country store keepers, I can safely say that I am prepared to sell as low as any of them, and selling altogether for cash can give my customers the full benefit of the extra percentage necessary to carry on a credit business. So as to make room for a heavy importation in Spring, I have determined to close out my stock of Winter Goods at Reduced Prices. It is needless to enumerate the articles, as I have a general assortment of Staple and Fancy Dry Goods, CLOTHING, Boots, Shoes, &c., DRESS GOODS, DRESS TRIMMINGS, Mantle Cloths and Trimmings, Men's Suitings, OVERCOATINGS AND READY-MADE CLOTHING, in extensive, new and well selected. Call and examine Goods and Prices before going elsewhere. I take great pleasure at all times in showing goods to an appreciative people. As usual I shall take COUNTRY PRODUCE in exchange for goods and give as high a cash price as possible. TERMS—STRICTLY CASH. J. HENRY SMITH & Co.

UNITED STATES CROPS. The United States Commissioner of Agriculture, in his report, shows that there has been great increase in the products of that country. He says: "The wheat crop of the present year has been promising in a high degree during the entire season. The aggregate in Wisconsin was early reported, except in a few counties in Minnesota. The losses from winter-killing, the fly, the chinch-bug, grasshoppers, rust, smut, etc., have this season been far less than usual. The heaviest production is in the section of the lightest yield last year—the North-western Spring wheat States, whose product fell off 20,000,000 bushels. The aggregate in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and Nebraska double that of last year and nearly 20,000,000 bushels greater than in 1875. The entire crop promises to exceed that of last year by 70,000,000 bushels, or nearly 100,000,000 bushels for exportation, with a surplus remaining above the actual requirements of consumption. Other crops have been generally good. Among the "industrial crops" cotton, the most prominent, promised 4,500,000 bales in October, but the weather has since been unfavorable, and may lead to a smaller percentage. The sugar crop, picking season to the end of December, might reduce the product 500,000 bales. The tobacco crop promises to be a large one, and may reach a product of 440,000,000 pounds, about 100,000,000 pounds above the estimated product of last year. The season has been unfavorable for fruits of most kinds. The main crop, that of apples is a complete failure. The fruit is in abundance, and greatly reduced in yield and high in price. The grape crop suffered in an unusual degree from rot, and the wine will be reduced in the affected districts. The products of the dairy are abundant and the prices fairly remunerative. A tendency to the enlargement in the West is manifest in a marked degree."

HIGH GAMBLING IN LONDON CLUBS. Gambling is a vice which thrives and grows in spite of police regulations, legal prosecutions, and daily illustrations of its perils and miseries. A year or two ago hardly a week passed without its being scandalous. An officer high in Her Majesty's army had to resign his commission for cheating at cards. A well-known gentleman about town was ignominiously kicked out of a West End Club with two boxes up his sleeve. Two young gentlemen of family were ruined at a club where play was understood not to "run high," and a disgraceful case of card-sharping came before the courts. For a time it seemed as though these expenses had a deterrent influence on high stakes and unfair players, but the old vice is still rampant, and the latest development of club gambling is the formation of a "Luccombe" proprietary club, which is beginning to excite public attention, and is likely, I hear, to attract the attention of the police. I have in my possession information that reaches to a young Scotch Laird, a Colonel in the army, whose name I withhold, for the present at all events, lost at this "Luccombe" club, at one sitting, $350,000. His opponent had played with him from nine o'clock on Saturday night till four o'clock Sunday morning, when the losses of the young Colonel stood at this enormous sum. "I will go you double or quits," he said, with all the earnestness of a gambler, though lacking the proverbial prudence of a soldier. "No," responded the winner. "I don't think I will; let me ask you one question first at all events." "Proceed," said the loser. "Supposing I go you double or quits, can you pay £140,000 if you lose?" "Frankly, I cannot," was the reply. "Then we will not go double or quits, but we will continue to play until I win, and then I will leave off." "The game went on and at 10 o'clock the young Scotch Laird had reduced his losing to $30,000 which he paid.—London Letter to N. Y. Times.

AN AUTOMATIC HORSE. Mr. J. H. Nolan has invented a novel means of locomotion, which the Boston Traveler describes as in the form of an automatic or self-propelling horse, the locomotion of which being produced by the weight of the rider and the weight which is carried. The horse and its appliance are models of mechanical simplicity, and any amount of speed can be produced, in fact he can be made to go a mile faster than the fastest trotting horse of the day. A small "horse," capable of carrying a man or twelve miles an hour, can be built from three to five dollars. The "horse" can carry considerable weight in addition to the rider. The person sits in position as he would upon the live animal, with his feet in the stirrups and the reins in his hand, in which position he can govern the speed and guide the "horse" at will. There was an exhibition made with one of these "horses" recently, in a hall in this city, and although the room was small and unfavorable for either speed or ease of locomotion, a boy weighing thirty pounds propelled the "horse" at from six to seven miles an hour with the utmost ease. The experiment thoroughly established the practical value of the invention.

DEPTH OF THE ATLANTIC. It appears from the sounding operations of the "Challenger," conducted by Sir Wyville Thomson, that the mean depth of the Atlantic is about 2,900 fathoms. An elevated ridge, with a mean depth below the surface of 1,900 fathoms, traverses the basin of the North and South Atlantic in a meridional direction. This, in combination with a second transverse ridge, separates the ocean into three basins—An eastern, extending from the coast of Iceland to the Cape of Good Hope, with an average depth of 2,500 fathoms; a north-western, occupying the great eastern right of the American continent; with an average depth of 2,900 fathoms; and a Gulf running up the coast of South America as far as Cape Orange, and open to the southward, with a mean depth of 3,000 fathoms. The deepest hole in the Atlantic lies just north of the Virgin Islands. It has a depth of 3,875 fathoms. Whilst the Bermuda situated up an isolated peak from the ocean bed, the Azores rise projections from the summit of the meridional ridge.

TO PRESERVE THE TEETH. Dissolve two ounces of borax in three pints of boiling water, and before it is cold add one tablespoonful of spirits of camphor, and bottle for use. A tablespoonful of this, mixed with an equal quantity of tepid water, applied daily with a soft brush, will preserve the teeth, extricate tartarous adhesion, arrest decay, and make the teeth pearly white.

PROMPT PAYMENTS.

Few persons are at all aware of the evil done to others, or the injury inflicted on themselves, by the single neglect of punctuality as to the payment of debts. There are many men of business who would not have their names in the rank unpaid at maturity for anything, or a debt of honor forgotten, and yet they will say to their poor creditors go and come again, time upon time. Indeed, with many men, the which balance lying in their bankers' hands so ostentatiously to keep up their credit is made up of small sums long overdue, but out of which the proper owners are kept by various devices. With some it is more carelessness, with others a settled principle, that it is never safe or wise to pay any sum of money so long as the payment can, by any art or artifice be delayed. They are not dishonest. They mean to pay, but not till the last practicable moment. Were it a debt of honor, they would pay it directly; but a mechanic's account or a store account of a few dollars may be sent for and sent for a dozen times, and there is no sense of wrong or even impoliteness in all this delay.

The Queen of England is notorious for her prompt payment of all accounts. Not long since, on the marriage of her daughter, she employed a distinguished artist, at the price of about two hundred dollars, to design the bridal veil to be worn on the great occasion. A piece of forgetfulness or a great mistake, by which that artist was left unpaid for a short time, caused her death, in absolute want, in a garret. She was told to call again and again and again. At last, nervous as a lady of refined sensibilities would be, but weary with a long walk, she was taken sick with fever, and died before the money came, in absolute want. In the time of George II., tradesmen's bills to the amount of hundreds of thousands of dollars were left unpaid for years. The result of the present Queen of England borrowed money on the Continent to take her wife to England, for Victoria to be born within the kingdom of Great Britain. That money was never repaid until after the present Queen came to the throne. In this country many neglect their small accounts to the ruin of those who trust them.

FOUR CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH IN A CAMP IN THE WOODS. From the Bangor Whig. Last Friday night another of those shocking accidents which cast a feeling of sadness over the community, occurred in the vicinity of Cherryfield, particulars of which are as follows:— "It seems that Mr. Jason Leighton of Cherryfield, is engaged in lumbering on the West River, and when he went into the woods he built two camps, one to be used by the crew and the other by his wife and six children. The camps were situated about twenty-five feet apart, and Mrs. Leighton was doing the cooking for the crew. As four of the children were quite small she had been in the habit of giving them their supper early and putting them to bed, after which she would go and get supper for the crew. On Friday evening she gave the little ones their supper, and after fixing them to the night she went into the other camp to prepare the evening meal for the crew.

INTERESTING DISCOVERY AT JAFFA. A late English paper has the following:—"And order was recently issued by the Sultan for removing the old walls and fortifications of Jaffa (Joppa). In cutting a gate through a water battery at an angle of the sea wall, built by Vespasian, and directly in front of the reputed house of Simon the tanner, the men came on three oval shaped tanner's vats hewn out of the natural rock and lined with Roman cement, down every near the sea, and similar in every respect to those in use eighteen centuries ago. There is also a fresh-water spring flowing from the cliff close by, long known as the town spring. This discovery at least proves that the house on the rocky bluff above, and from which steps lead down to the vats, must have belonged to some tanner; and as perhaps not more than one of the trade would be living in so small a place as Jaffa, some probability is given to the tradition that this is the very identical spot where the house of Simon stood, with whom Peter was sojourning when he saw his vision, and received the servants of Cornelius."

Dr. Wilkes in his recent work on Physiology, remarks that, "It is estimated that the bones of every adult person require to be fed with lime enough to make a marble mantle every eight months." It will be perceived, therefore, that in the course of about ten years each of us eats three or four mantle-pieces and a few sets of front-door steps. And in a long life I suppose it is fair to estimate that a healthy American could devour the Capitol at Washington, and perhaps two or three medium-sized marble quarries besides. It is awful to think of the consequences if a man should be shut off from his supply of lime for a while and then should get loose in a cemetery. An ordinary tombstone would hardly be enough for a lunch for him.—Adelphi.

A LECTURE TO YOUNG MEN. We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, &c., resulting from excess. Price, in sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically. This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land. Address: The Culverwell Medical Co., 41 Ann Street, N. Y. Post Office Box, 4559. n17 y

Joker's Corner. A FIGHT FOR SUPREMACY.

A gentleman residing in this city had occasion, a few days since, to take a journey down the river and several miles back from it, using a saddle-horse. Darkness overtook him in a sparsely settled district, and as the roads were in a very bad condition, and the evening looked threatening, he halted before a forlorn looking hut and asked if he could find lodging. "I reckon you mought," said a sorrowful eyed squatter after hesitating a moment. The Vicksburger found little to eat, and his horse found still less. The squatter and his wife were all alone and they had but a few words for the stranger, and scarcely spoke to each other. When the evening grew cold the traveller camped down on the floor on a blanket, and being very tired he fell asleep, while the host and hostess were smoking their black clay pipes at the other end of the room. He had slept about two hours, when the squatter shook him by the shoulder and said: "Stranger, I'm powerful sorry to disturb ye, but I want to ax a favor." "Yes—yes—what is it?" inquired the Vicksburger, and he rubbed his eyes and sat up. "Ye like to see fair play, don't ye stranger?" "Yes, of course." "Well, I'm sorry, but I guess I'm in a trifly ugly. Leastwise we don't hang up our old boots. We've fit our 'n' it; I'm old an' she's chuck full of grit, an' it's about an even thing." "Well, I'm glad to hear that," said the Vicksburger, as the squatter hesitated. "We've been a balkin' since ye cum, stranger, and we've made up to ax ye to hold the candle and to let's go in for a little more of a fight—a regular old sockdologer, which shall settle our fuss. If I like she'll go; and if she likes I'll go."

"I'm sorry if there's any trouble, and I hope you won't fight." "We've got to do it, stranger," replied the woman. "I won't live with a man who kin lick me, an' he's just as high born. Sam's good as the run of men, and he's lazy and sassy and he wants to wear the hat on his ear." "She's right, stranger," said the squatter. "This cabin can't hold both of us any longer. It's to be a square fight, no kicking or clubbing, and we won't go back on your decision." The Vicksburger protested, but the woman placed a lighted candle in his hand and posted him in the door, and man and wife stepped out on the ground together. "Suke, I'm going to wallop ye right smart in just four boots and a holler!" said the squatter as he pushed up his sleeves. "Sam ye don't weigh enough into three tons!" she replied in a grim voice and the battle commenced. The Vicksburger mentally bet twenty to one on the man, but in two minutes more he was betting even. The fight was like a wild cat springing, dodging, striking and clashing, and presto! soon her husband had to stand on the defensive. "Look out for the Bengal tiger, Suke," he warned as he bowed off the air. "I kin lick the bows off'n you, Sam!" she replied, and the battler grow fiercer. One of the woman's sharp nails struck the husband in the eye and blinded him for an instant. As he tried to wipe his eyes she seized both her hands in his hair, yanked him down and in another moment had the 'gouge' on him. "Sam, do you cave?" she asked as they both lay quiet. "Thee's the dead word, Suke, and I'm a licked man!" he mournfully answered. "She let him up and he turned to the Vicksburger and inquired:—"The squatter was it a fair fought?" "I guess it was." "Then I travel!" He entered the hut, put on his coat and hat, and as he came off he reached his hand to his wife and said:—"Good-bye Suke, we agreed far an' square 'n' here I go," then turning to the traveller he added:—"Much obliged, stranger—ye held the candle plain far, an' ye didn't holler for either one of us!" And he walked off to the fence, leaped over it, and was soon lost to sight. "Good 'nuff on the shoot," mused the wife, as she gazed after him, "but his fighting weight is clar run down to nuthin'!"—Ed.

WHY HE WEPT. A man about twenty-five years of age, and a stranger in the city, sat in the doorway of a tenanted house on Elm street and wept. A pedestrian, established at the sight of a man in tears, halted and inquired:—"What's the matter—why do you weep?" "They beat me out of all my money in a saloon down here a piece," was the reply. "A policeman told me not to go in there, but I would go." "Would he, eh?" "Yes; but I hain't crying 'cause I lost my money, for I can foot it home." "What is it, then?" "You have read how a fellow named Sampson slayed the Philistines with the jaw bone of an ass, haven't you?" "Yes." "Must have been a purty big ass, musn't it?" "I guess it was." "Well, what I'm crying about is to think that perhaps I haint the biggest ass that ever lived! It hurts me to come almost to it and fail!" The gentleman tried to convince him that he was the biggest ass known to the sacred or secular history of the world, but he and the young man leaned against the door and continued to weep.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

"Is Governor Rise in?" inquired a seedy looking man of the clerk of the Brunswick, Boston, a few nights ago. "Yes," said the clerk, "yes he is." "Well," said the man, walking out, "I'm glad of it; it's a wet night, and he might catch cold if he was out." Counter claims—You wife's shop-ping bills.
