CHILDREN

Are always liable to sudden and severe colds, to croup, sore throat, lung fever, etc. Remedies, to be effective, must be administered without delay. Nothing is better adapted for such emergencies than Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It soothes the inflamed membrane, promotes expectoration, relieves the cough, and induces sleep. The prompt use of this medicine has saved innumerable lives, both of young and old.

Strangling.
It had nearly ceased to breathe. Realizing that the child's alarming condition had become possible in spite of the medicine I had administered, I reasoned that such remedies would be of no avail. Having a part of a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house, I gave the child three doses, at short intervals, and anxiously waited results. From the moment the Pectoral was given, the child's breathing grew easier, and in a short time it was sleeping quietly and breathing naturally. The child is alive and well to-day, and I do not hesitate to say that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved its life.—C. A. Woodbridge, Wortham, Texas.

Miramichi Advance. CHATHAM, N.B. - DECEMBER 4, 1890.

Holiday Explanation. The demands of holiday advertisements upon the columns of the ADVANCE oblige us to give our patrons less reading matter than usual. We advise all to read the announcements and patronize those who make them.

The Unsettled 'Globe'. The Globe is hardly to be congratulated on the assistance it is giving the Monoton Times in its attempt to unjustly damage the reputation of one of our public men; and its rejoinder to the reference made last week to its position in the matter is as illogical and unbecoming as its desire to give political injury is apparent. Instead of admitting squarely that it sought, by giving currency to the Times' forged and mutilated correspondence, and intimating editorially that Mr. Tweedie was "a bad ticket," to injure the Globe of which he is a member, the Globe pretends that it "published the information just as it would information respecting a bank robbery, a theft, a report of a green goods swindle, the O'Shea divorce, or Mr. Tarte's correspondence in regard to the McGreevey scandal."

We know and regret that the press of the province is far too much engaged in catering to the morbid cravings of the "Times" which revel in bank robberies, green goods swindles, divorces, and other "scandals," but even if the Globe is satisfied that it is called upon to furnish such sensational papulum to its patrons, its editors should, in their efforts to be firm in their field with its excessive reasonable caution when such matter sensibly affects the business standing of reputable citizens and the credit of the province as well.

The fact is that the Globe was well aware of the malignity of the publisher of the Times towards the gentleman attacked and it deliberately lent the aid of its circulation and more respectable standing to the propagation of a malicious libel. It may be in keeping with its ideas of expediency to play to give the "Times" garbled version of the correspondence, in the matter, emphasized by its own editorial intimation that a gentleman was "a bad ticket" and, when criticized therefor, plead that it had magnanimously said the "bad ticket" was yet to be heard from, but there are others who will think that when all the other papers in St. John waited to hear something on the other side before referring to the matter, their course was the fairer. They might have been so enterprising in the scandal line, but it is sometimes well to sacrifice enterprise of this class to the promptings of a disposition to give a man who is assailed by his enemies the same chance to save his reputation as one would himself like to have. The Globe will, no doubt, claim that its course was right and that of all other papers wrong. It had no word of reproof for the Times on finding that it had mutilated the correspondence and misstated material facts, in order to make out such a case for the "Times" as it is silent over the "Times' intimation that its article in reply to the ADVANCE letters are "just like green goods," and yet it repudiates the statement that it is not standard and not only declares that it does not share the St. John mania against the government but also that there is no such mania.

The Globe endeavors to make it appear that the ADVANCE has charged it with some offence against Mr. Blair, but this is another gross misstatement of fact. It would also have us believe that it would still support that gentleman but for his "having associated certain papers with himself in the government of the country." This suggests a lack of candor for the Globe supports the Government as a whole and favored the election of Mr. Tweedie after that gentleman and Mr. Pugsley were associated with Mr. Blair in the government of the country. And, as some "persons" have been added to the Government since those gentlemen joined it, something must have arisen after they became associated with Mr. Blair to cause the Globe to go into opposition. Is it, therefore, the reason it has abandoned for turning against the Government?

We fail to understand where there can be any party between the opposition offered by the ADVANCE to a certain portion of the former policy of the government and the Globe's present opposition. The ADVANCE invariably commended the government's general administration as wise and honest, but it opposed its stamp policy. The ADVANCE stated the reasons for its attitude in this regard, with plainness and candor. What similarity is there between the Globe's present opposition and the former policy of the government? We defined principles of governmental policy, and a "notorious" and growing hostility manifested in attacks upon the personal reputation of members of the government. If the Globe wishes to regain the place it once so ably held in popular respect it will have to abandon the narrow ways in which it has been found to operate, and come out in its old-time independence, open as a manly fellow. If it opposes the public men, let it be for reasons which are the public's business and by methods of which the public can approve. It will then be above the criticism which we have reluctantly applied and which we regret to say, voiced the sentiments of a large number of its old admirers.

"THE GREATEST THING IN THE WORLD." What is it? Those who do not know had better at once read the 13th Chapter of 1 Corinthians, and then Henry Drummond's little book. It tells what all well-worn, earth-stained souls need to have to sustain and refresh their lives and cause a fragrance and glow of sympathy to breathe from them to others. "The Greatest Thing in the World." If we could all have the millennium would dawn at once. The Children Ory for Pitcher's Castoria.

book itself is the report of an address delivered to students at Northfield, Mass., and has been published in several foreign languages. The edition published by James Post & Co., 14 and 16 Astor Place, N. Y., is the only authorized one. It will do you one good to read it, and all who have read "Natural Law in the Spiritual World" know that Henry Drummond's work is thoughtful, powerful and convincing. -747c.

Tenant-Farmers.—Mr. W. H. Boyce, of Fredericton, has been engaged by the local government to go to Great Britain for the purpose of inducing tenant-farmers to come and settle in this province. Mr. Boyce will probably sail for Paris on December 27th. This is a practical undertaking, and will, no doubt, be advantageous to New Brunswick.

The Unsettled Question. After the unexpected close of the O'Shea-Parrell divorce case, in which Mr. Parrell, although represented by counsel, made no defence, the great question of the restoration of the seat of the Home Rule party in the British House of Commons has attracted world-wide attention. The fact that Parrell makes no attempt to deny his guilt and, at the same time, has boldly claimed to retain his leadership of a party who are appealing for the rights of the Irish people on purely moral grounds, astonishes almost everybody, and the press despatches on the subject are the absorbing news of the hour.

From a number of sources of these, which indicate what the views on all sides are:— LONDON, Nov. 23.—A national meeting was held in the committee rooms of the house of commons to-day. Every national-ist member in town was present. The room was crowded. Mr. Power, Chief Nationalist whip, presided. Parrell was cheered as he entered the committee room. The general impression throughout was that Parrell should be asked to resign, and when the members had assembled, Mr. McCarthy's proposal that Power be made chairman was accepted. The sitting was private.

It is announced that Parrell will retain the leadership at the express desire of his followers. Parrell held a conference with Justice McCarthy this forenoon in one of the rooms of the parliament building. During the conference Parrell handed to Mr. McCarthy a bundle of papers containing memoranda for his guidance as sessional chairman of the Irish party.

GLADSTONE'S LETTER. LONDON, Nov. 23.—At the request of Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Morely has communicated to Mr. Parrell the following letter written Monday:—"Dear Mr. Morely—Having arrived at a certain conclusion with regard to the resignation of Mr. Parrell's leadership of the Irish party, I have sent Mr. McCarthy my own views, and have inquired from him whether I am likely to receive from Mr. Parrell himself any communication on the subject."

Mr. McCarthy replies that he is unable to give me any information, I mentioned to him that in 1882, after the terrible murders in Phoenix Park, Mr. Parrell, although totally removed from any idea of political activity, had undertaken to write an offer to me to his honor, but which I thought it my duty to decline.

"While obliging to the hope of a communication from Mr. Parrell, to whom, ever addressed, I thought it necessary, viewing the arrangements for the commencement of the session tomorrow, to acquaint Mr. McCarthy with the contents of my offer after using all the means of observation and reflection in my power, I had myself arrived."

"It was that, notwithstanding the special services rendered by Mr. Parrell to his country, his conduct at the present moment in the leadership would be productive of consequences disastrous in the highest degree to the cause of Ireland. I think I was warranted in asking you to so far to expand the conclusions given above as to add that Mr. Parrell's conduct as a leader would not only place many hearty and effective friends of the Irish cause in an embarrassing position, but would render my retention of the leadership of the Irish party, based as it has been mainly upon the prosecution of the Irish cause, almost a nullity."

"This view of mine you I begged Mr. McCarthy to regard as confidential and intended for his colleagues generally, if he found that Mr. Parrell contemplated positions of action, but I also suggested that he would make known to the Irish party, at their meeting tomorrow, that such was my opinion if he should find that Mr. Parrell had not in contemplation any step of the nature indicated."

"I now write you, in case Mr. McCarthy should be unable to communicate with Mr. Parrell, as I understand you may possibly have an opening to-morrow through another channel. Should you have such an opening, I beg you to make known to Mr. Parrell the conclusion stated in this letter. I have thought it best to put in terms simple and direct, much as I should have liked, had I been in a position to give you such an opening. I beg you to make known to Mr. Parrell the conclusion stated in this letter. I have thought it best to put in terms simple and direct, much as I should have liked, had I been in a position to give you such an opening."

"I now write you, in case Mr. McCarthy should be unable to communicate with Mr. Parrell, as I understand you may possibly have an opening to-morrow through another channel. Should you have such an opening, I beg you to make known to Mr. Parrell the conclusion stated in this letter. I have thought it best to put in terms simple and direct, much as I should have liked, had I been in a position to give you such an opening."

Parrell. The scene in the lobby was extraordinary. Excited groups of Liberal members were besieged by priests, reporters and personal friends seeking for information. In an interview Mr. Labouchere said that it would certainly prevent the Liberal victory at the next election, adding: "We should have won with home rule, but we cannot win with home rule and slavery both."

Parrell's Friends Speak. At the Nationalist meeting Messrs. Barry and Connolly were the first speakers to urge Parrell to resign. Mr. McCarthy followed with an eloquent and impassioned appeal in behalf of Parrell, upon whose sacrifices for the Irish cause he laid the greatest stress. But Gladstone's letter to Morely had materially changed the situation, and McCarthy's appeal failed of its desired effect. Mr. Sexton spoke 40 minutes. Mr. Lane appealed to Parrell to think of the Irish tenants who were waiting anxiously for a change of Government to improve their position. At the 5 o'clock meeting Mr. Sheehy adopted the same line as Mr. Lane and asked Parrell to reconsider his position if it were only for the sake of the evicted tenants in Tipperary, who were waiting for the restoration of their homes. All the speakers differed eloquently upon Parrell's past services. Several members objected to postponing the decision until Monday, but a majority favored a postponement.

It is stated that at the mid-day meeting of the Parrellites at least 50 favored retaining Parrell as leader. Several others, however, and writers of their own opinions, were ready to present them in the event of a decision that Parrell should remain. In the latter case a meeting of the Liberalists was to be called to express confidence in Gladstone and to appeal to him to continue as leader of the latter.

United Ireland says: "The decision of Mr. Gladstone and other most faithful friends of the cause of Home Rule alters the situation. It is useless for us to set our eyes to the fact that their defection will indefinitely prolong the reign of exaction in Ireland and postpone the triumph of the Home Rule movement. Only fidelity to Ireland overrides fidelity to Parrell." After paying a tribute to Parrell's services to the cause the paper expresses great regret at the absence of Messrs. O'Brien and O'Connell, whose opinion, it says, would have been much sought.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—A reporter called on William O'Brien to-night and presented a telegram stating that the assembled Nationalists in London were expecting to hear from the delegates in America before the meeting adjourned. Mr. O'Brien said the subject was delicate one, and he did not wish to express himself further than what was contained in the following despatch, which he sent this afternoon to his friends on the other side.

"In view of our obligations to Mr. Gladstone, the interest of our cause and the responsibilities we have contracted to the Irish tenant on the faith of a general election fought in cordial alliance with the Liberal party, I would earnestly recommend the party to open immediate friendly communications with Mr. Gladstone." Mr. O'Brien added that he had wired Mr. Dillon the substance of his utterances.

GLADSTONE'S ATTITUDE. LONDON, Nov. 23.—The Executive Committee of the Liberal Federation at a meeting adopted a resolution expressing its commiseration with Mr. Gladstone's attitude towards the question of the Irish leadership and assuring him of its hearty confidence.

The Liberal Federation Committee is receiving from the Provincial Liberal Associations a large number of letters and telegrams protesting against Parrell's remaining at the head of the Nationalist party. Many of the Nationalist members of parliament are greatly annoyed at Parrell's ungracious treatment of Gladstone.

LONDON, Nov. 23, 1890.—Mr. Parrell has issued the following manifesto:—"To the Irish People. The integrity and independence of a section of the Irish Parliamentary party having been apparently destroyed and destroyed the wretchedness of the Liberal party, it has become necessary for me, as leader of the Irish party, to take counsel with you, and having given you the knowledge which is in my possession to the best of my judgment, you will now be able to decide upon your own course."

Letter from Mr. Gladstone to Mr. Parrell, written for the purpose of influencing the decision of the Irish party in the choice of their leader, and claiming for the Liberal and their leaders the right of veto upon the choice of the Nationalist party. The thrust in that letter, repeated so insistently in the immediate past, and in numerous British newspapers, that unless Ireland exercises this right of veto to England, she will indefinitely postpone her choice of obtaining home rule, compels us, while not for a moment admitting the slightest possibility of the Nationalist party's being able to influence the decision of the Liberal party, to state that we are in the possession of information which will now, so far as my colleagues are concerned, has been fully in my possession, and which will enable you to understand the measure of the loss with which you are threatened unless you consent to throw me to the English wolves now howling for my destruction."

THE LIBERAL HOME RULE SCHEME. In November of last year, in response to a repeated and long standing request, I visited Mr. Gladstone at Hawarden and received the details of the intended proposals of his self and his colleagues of the late Liberal Cabinet who had been elected in my presence at the next general election favoring the Liberal party. It is unnecessary for me to do more at present than to direct your attention to certain points of these details which will be generally recognized as embracing elements vital for your information and the formation of your judgment. These details of a confidential nature may be suitably arranged and considered under the following heads:

1. The resignation of Irish members in the Imperial Parliament. 2. The settlement of the land or agrarian difficulty in Ireland. 3. The control of the Irish constabulary. 4. The appointment of the judiciary, including Judges of the Supreme Court, County Court Judges and Resident Magistrates.

From the subject of the resignation of Irish members in the Imperial Parliament, it would be necessary to reduce Irish representation from 10 to 8. Upon the settlement of the land question it was held that this was one of the questions which must be regarded as questions reserved from the control of the Irish Legislature, but at the same time Mr. Gladstone intimated that while he would reserve his attempt to settle the matter by imperial legislation on the lines of the Home Rule Bill, he would not undertake to put any pressure upon his own side or insist upon their adopting his views in other and broader words, that the Irish Legislature was not to be given the power of settling the agrarian difficulty.

With regard to the control of the Irish constabulary it was stated by Mr. Gladstone that it would be necessary to leave this force to the appointment of the officers, under control of the imperial authority, for an indefinite period, while funds for its maintenance, payment and equipment would be completely provided out of the Irish revenues. A period of ten or twelve years was suggested as the limit of the time during which the appointment of judges and resident magistrates should be retained in the hands of the imperial authority.

I have now given a short account of what I gathered of Mr. Gladstone's views and what he intimated during the two hours conversation at Hawarden—a conversation which, I am bound to admit, was mainly monopolized by Mr. Gladstone.
