The $\mathfrak{E}$ venimg 弐espately.

Vol. 1.-No. 8.

SAINT JOHN, N. B., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 8, 1863.
One Cent.

Arriving at the Bricklayers' Arm.
Station, Loudon, which had been beautifully decorated, the Prince and Princes partook of luncheon, and between two and three o'clock the procession began:-The Prince, with the beautiful young lady on his arm, appeared at the opening, and stond there for a few seconds bowing. The stond there for a few seconds bowing.
The Princess curtsied and smiled very graciousls, a deep blush suffusing her handso:ne features at this first unexpected ordeal of contronting a large concourse of ordeal of confronting a large concourse of razers. They then turned and walked on to their carriage, the troops presenting armand the bands phayin.
The roval party occupied six carriages. The royal party occupied six carriages.
In the fifth were the Prince Christian Frederick, brother of the Princess, who Was born in 1843; the Princess Marie Was born in 1843; the Princess Marie Dagmar, her sister, a yoeng lady of si-teen ; and her youngest sister. the Princess The teen ; and her youngest sister. the Princess Thyra Amelia, a little girl of ten. In the last and sixth carriage were the Princess; last and sixth carriage were the Princess; ly of Hesse, Caassel, and now of Deanmark; her father, Prince Christian, the herediher father, Prince Christian, the hereditary Crown Prince of Denmark. by virtue of the law of succession, July, 1s53; and the Prince of Wales. As the carriage containing the Prince and his fiance comerged from the gate, a shout of welememe burst from the delighted mass of comen human beings that might have drowned in volume the thundering of a park of artillery. The scene became almost painfully in. teresting - so enthusiastic and heartfelt were the greetings showered upon the royal pair. It seemed as if the very bricks royal pair. It seemed asif the very bricks and mortar spoke, and life had been breathed into inanimate walls. the wing hreathed into inanimate walls; the waving of handkerchiefs and the showering down of flowerg were prodivious of flowers were prodigious.
Along the whole route the welcome given was uniformly most generons and $\qquad$ were ceaselessly engaged in howing their glad acknowledgements. The Princess Day ark, who was in the preceding cars riage, was continually mistaken for her $\qquad$ of the street, and oceasionally bearing inscriptions, among which the word $\%$ wel. come," with variouss accompaniments, everywhere predouinated. Every coneverywhere predominated. Every conceivable banner might have been seen in a walk down Fleet-street; numbers of a waik down Fleet-street; numbers of houses were festoned with flowers To To describe half the decorations would but Wescribe half the decorations would but weary our readers; ; we must therefore be content with the principal points. In Southwark an intereation feature of the the decorations

Along the whole distance from the corner of St. Paul's Churchyard to Farringner of don-street, at stated distances, of rosestos and other flowers hung across the of roses and other flowers hung across the road. The decorations which covered the front of the houses at St. Bride's corner, comprising the office of Funch to a remarkable degree the approbation of beholders. "Farther on, the handsome ront of the "London", was beautifully arlanded with flowers, and a few yards further on, from over the Middle Temple gate were suspended gate were suspended a Royal Standard and the lanner of the Crusaders. The ofty pile in the Strand occupied by Messrs.
Sinith displayed a profusion of banners while the front of the premises occupied whi Mr. Nutt, the foreign booksel Mr. Nutt, the foreign bookseller, presented the Danish inscription "Velcoresented the Danish inscription "Velcomenen Danske Rose," which was almost as comprenhensible to the Englishman as o his brother Dane, and which called up o his brother Dane, and which called up much attention, not only from the multinuch attention, not only from the multitudinous passer by, bat also from the royal party ; and hence stretching royal party; and hence, stretch ing the eye past the ©hurch of St. Mary, was visible past the Church of St. Mary, was visible a banner waving its broad folds, the in-cription upon crintion upang which was inspired doubtless by a true son of Caubrin ess by a true son of Cambria, and promi-ing to its future Princess a welcome to ng to its future Princess a welcome to the mountains of Wales. But a display省 more costly than any of these was to be witnessed upon Temple-bar, which nd which it had taken the incessant el. orts of four days and foum orts of four days and four nights to complete the transmutation upon. At the rown of the arch appearedd a medalliou of the Prince of Wales and the Princesu of the Prince of Wales and the Princess Alexandra; at each corner were tripods sending forth balmy odours; over the cootway were figuresholding forth oranae ootway were figures holding forth orange. blossons; at the top appeared initial etters of the names of the Prince and Princess, together with other devices, the Princess together with other devices, the arms of England being constantly repeated, while the upper part of the front was and uperbly decorated, presenting thint waspect of curtains of gold, the whole being bealof curtains of gold, the whole being beaniffully set of with crimson fittings tifully set off with crimson fittings At Temple bar the filing off of the civie part of the procession caused some cen-cusion. A difficulty also occurred here usion. A difficulty also occurred here with the gentlemen of the press, who. with the gentemen of the press, whoo though armed with passes from the Chief Commissioners of Police, were denied further progress for a time bere daptain Labalmondiere, upon whom several re. Labalmondiere, upon whom several reporters aceordingly take revenge, one describing him as is got un in arondel describing him as : got up in a wonderful dress reminding the spectator equally ful dress reminding the spectator equally of a policeman in antomime, and the ex-emperor Soulouque." Captain La ex-emperor Soulouque." Captain La. balmpndiere is stated to have said that he Prince of Wales "had complained of he Prince of Wales "had complained of This accounts, perhaps, for the comparatively meagre report of the West-end part f the procession Temple-bar, aseverybodr knowa, stands and separates exteceity city of Westminister.
As one of the most conspicuous objects in the route of the prosession, and 22

Cheaper than the Cheapest at the

