They Do Not All Know

That it is a wasteful policy to invest money in anything but reliable goods.
Everybody knows there's a world of difference in clothes. But only those who have had the experience are conscious of the fact that any old thing looks good when it is new. Some suits of clothing will outwear three or four others, and they will look better than the fourth that is made of shoddy. It pays, and pays well, to invest in good clothes. The so-called cheap article is seldom cheap. It is when a reliable firm, such as Deeks & Munson are known to be, offer to sell at largely-reduced figures in order to make room for the coming season's goods, that real bargains may be had.

Admits It Is Acute

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain on the South African Situation.

Signal Victory for the London Anti-Ritualists.

Official Declaration of Grand Duke Michael's Heirship.

Aeronaut Slashed His Balloon and Threw Himself Out of the Car — Seats for London Shop Girls.

London, July 12.—In the House of Commons yesterday Sir Henry Camp- bell-Bannerman, Liberal, asked Mr. Balfour for the latest information regarding the progress of negotiations in the Transvaal. He was referred to Mr. Chamberlain, and the latter asked for time on the ground that the situation is acute.

John Dillon, in parliament, asked Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, sec- retary of state for the colonies, if any dispatches regarding the Transvaal from Sir William Butler, commander-in-chief in South Africa, had been withheld, while Sir William Butler was acting for Sir Alfred Milner. Mr. Chamberlain replied in the affirmative, but added that there was no objection to their publication.

There are now 40,000 troops in South Africa. The official estimate of Boers — males of 16 years and upward — is only 39,038. Thus there is an English soldier for every Boer man and boy able to carry a gun.

The Tory and the Liberal press are divided on the question of the conces- sions offered by Kruger. The Tory Standard says: "If any honest Eng- lishman should find himself unable to grasp the result of the reforms granted to the Uitlanders he need not feel ashamed."

The Liberal Westminster Gazette says: "Under Sir Alfred Milner's scheme the whole of the country in- terior, which came into the country in or before 1897, would have had the franchise in 1902. Under President Kruger's latest scheme they will all have it in 1904. Under Sir Alfred Mil- ner's scheme all new-comers from this time forth would have got the fran- chise in five years. Under President Kruger's scheme they will wait for seven years."

The St. James Gazette suggests the interposition of the steamer Reichstag, which left Naples last week with 15,000 rifles, 500 tons of war material, and 500 mules for the Transvaal.

NEXT!

St. Petersburg, July 12.—The Of- ficial Messenger today publishes the following manifesto: "Our beloved brother and heir to the throne, the late Grand Duke George Alexandrovitch, died at Abba, Tuman, June 28, (old style). In submitting without mur- mur to the decree of Providence, we call all our faithful subjects to share our deep sorrow with us and to offer fervent prayers for the repose of the soul of our departed brother. Hence- forward and so long as it may not please God to bless us with a son, the right of succession to the throne de- volves, according to the precise defini- tion of the law of succession, upon our beloved brother, the Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch."

Three months' court mourning for the death of the Czar-witch, has been ordered.

Messages of condolence have been received from Queen Victoria and other sovereigns.

The late Grand Duke was an Eng- lish scholar and a most earnest stud- ent of naval matters. According to a Paris correspondent he was private- ly married, with his mother's con- sent, but left no children.

ANTI-RITUALISTS WIN.

London, July 12.—The anti-ritualists have won a signal victory in their cru- sade against the high church practices in the Established Church of England. The Archbishops of Canterbury and York, the highest prelates in the church, made a report, as a result of the protracted inquiry, held during the past few months, in Lambeth Palace, upon the use of candles and incense in church ceremonies. Both archbishops agree in declaring the use of incense

Time for Arbitration.

It must be clear to all that settlement of the differences between the strik- ers and the great body of the public, on the one hand, and the Company on the other, can be adjusted only by fair and full arbitration.

There has been a vast amount of talk back and forth as to the precise point where fault on either side be- gan. Such controversy has outlived its usefulness. The past is past. It is an actual situation, not an academic discussion, that now confronts us. Force is no remedy. Through arbi- tration alone can a solution, fair to the company, fair to the men, and sat- isfactory to the public, be reached.

If we interpret public opinion right- ly, nineteen-twentieths of the citizens of London consider the time ripe for prompt settlement of the whole trou- ble by arbitration on all points at issue. Why should either side object?

The striking employees, in their gen- eral statement of grievances, offer to leave all matters in dispute of every nature and description whatsoever, to be arbitrated, the Company and strik- ers to appoint one arbitrator each, and the two arbitrators so appointed to appoint a third, and the decision of a majority of the said arbitrators, after hearing the sworn evidence produced before them, to be accepted and adopted by the London Street Railway Company and its striking employees, as a final settlement of the matters in dispute between them and each of them.

The Company, under date of July 11, made reply to the foregoing; but do not express willingness to accept as full a measure of arbitration as the strikers propose. We trust this does not represent the final position of the Company. To merely thresh out the straw of old controversies and to make stipulations and reservations in advance, would be to nullify arbi- tration at the outset. We give the company's reply in another column, making no other comment at this time except that we sincerely trust their offer of partial arbitration only does not represent the whole mind of the Company.

There is but one possible solution in sight, that will be just to all without humiliation to any, and that is the Christian solution of full and fair arbi- tration between the parties. Let each side appoint an arbitrator; let these two appoint a third; and let the de- cision arrived at be final.

AERONAUT'S DESPERATE DEED.

Vienna, July 12.—A most extraor- dinary attempt and failure to commit suicide is reported from Graz, the cap- ital of the Austrian Province of Sty- ria. Prof. Merighi, a scientist and aera- naut of note, after rising in his balloon to a dizzy height above Graz, slashed the silk of the balloon and threw him- self out of the car during the descent.

This was done in view of a multitude of people. A thorough investigation by the Graz authorities as to the consensus of opinion of aeronautic experts, sup- port the belief that Prof. Merighi had deliberately planned to kill himself in this sensational manner, having grown tired of his unsuccessful efforts to perfect aerial navigation. He left a note in the car: "I die in peace; I have reached my goal." Prof. Merighi re- ceived internal injuries of such a se- rious nature that his recovery is de- spaired of.

STUDYING TORPEDO DESTROY- ERS.

London, July 12.—Mobilizing for the naval maneuvers have begun, 118 war- ships and about 25,000 men taking part. One of the principal objects of the man- euvers is to exhaustively study the value of torpedo boat destroyers, of which 54 are engaged.

TO BATTLE FOR A DUKEDOM.

The Pall Mall Gazette says a syndi- cate in this city has subscribed $50,000 to prosecute the Duke claim to the dukedom of Portland, and that ar- rangements have been made for sub- scribing another $50,000.

ARTILLERY FOR THE TRANSVAAL.

The Seventy-third Battery of Artillery has been ordered to South Africa, making the fifth battery of field artil- lery now under orders for the Cape. All the gun carriages of these batte- ries are being painted to match the local color. Thirty machine guns were shipped to the Transvaal today.

SEATS FOR THE GIRLS.

The House of Lords passed the sec- ond reading of the bill requiring shop- keepers to provide seats for their as- sistants by a vote of 73 in favor to 28 opposed. The Marquis of Salisbury spoke and voted against the measure.

BAD BEEF.

The secretary to the admiralty, Mr. W. E. Ellison McCartney, replying to a question of Mr. James Christopher Flynn, Irish Nationalist, asked re- garding the recent destruction at Deptford of 35,000 pounds of salt meat which was unfit for food, and whether, in view of this enormous loss, the ad- miralty would consider the advisa- bility of contract for salt meat with Irish and other home curers, said that the whole of the work destroyed at Deptford was Irish pork, and that all the beef condemned was American beef. He added that all the salt beef consumed in the British navy was obtained until recently from America, which was the only available com- mercial source of supply. But, he con- tinued, 50,000 pounds of beef are now cured annually at Deptford.

CANADIANS AT BISLEY.

Bisley, England, July 11.—The Can- adians commenced their first rifle con- tests here today in the premier com- petition of the annual meeting of the National Rifle Association, the con- ditions being seven shots at 600 yards, Crowe and Huggins scored 34, equal- ing the best score. In the Golden Penny competition, seven shots at 200 yards, Huggins and Gilchrist made 34, equaling the highest score made.

DISSOLUTION URGED.

London, July 11.—The Globe and other Conservative papers this morning urged Sir Alfred Milner, governor of Cape Colony, to dissolve the Cape Par- liament and dismiss Premier Schreiner and the ministers for disloyalty to the crown in giving moral support to Kruger.

STEAMER PARIS AFLOAT.

London, July 12.—The situation of the American Line steamer Paris this morning is most favorable. She is fully afloat, clear of the rocks, and was se- curely anchored during the night in a small creek, near the spot where she struck. Divers are now patching the holes, and it is expected that she will be towed to Falmouth at high tide this evening if the weather is favorable. Capt. Watkins, of the stranded Amer- ican Line steamship Paris, makes no attempt to evade responsibility, for the

"LOST HIS HEAD"

The Mayor Gets Mad at the Police Magistrate.

Lively Meeting of the Police Commis- sioners—Cars Given Protection.

There was a stormy meeting of the police commissioners last night. The board, as usual, met in secret. The manager of the street railway company had asked for police for the night ser- vice, and Chief Williams, before act- ing, desired instructions from the com- missioners. Judge William Elliot, Pol- ice Magistrate Parke, Mayor Wilson, the county crown attorney, and the chief of police were present.

Some lively cross-firing ensued be- tween the mayor and the police magis- trate, in which the mayor became ex- ceedingly warm. The police magis- trate expressed the opinion that it was unwise to order the cars to run at night just now. He criticised the call- ing in of outside militia, and remarked that citizens told him the mayor was frightened.

The mayor was furious at the idea, and said he acted on the county crown attorney's advice.

Judge Elliot sided in with the mayor and said the city needed a Colonel Denison on the police court bench.

Finally it was moved by the mayor that two cars—one on Dundas street, and one on Richmond street—be run last night. Judge Elliot seconded. Magistrate Parke voted nay. The motion carried.

The chief considered that six men were needed on each car.

Mayor Wilson subsequently admitted that he had "lost his head" during the meeting.

BOUGHT HIS OWN HOUSE

The Premier Makes a Personal Explanation.

Denies an Unfounded Rumor—The Groups in the Yukon.

Ottawa, July 12.—At 2 o'clock yesterday the deputy speaker again took the chair in committee, the sitting which commenced the previous evening being continued.

In further explanation of the item under discussion, "clothing and necessities, $150,000," Dr. Borden stated that wherever practicable all articles required were purchased in Canada.

Mr. J. Ross Robertson asked the government to carefully consider whether they should carry out their intention to withdraw half the troops from the Yukon. Public opinion would, Mr. Robertson said, support the government if they kept in the Yukon the whole force now there, as the Americans were sending more troops there, and the two nations should co-operate in preserving law and order. He called attention to a Washington dispatch to the New York World, stating an intimation had reached the state department that Canada contemplates sending a body of mounted police to the Kluane River region, and that if this is so the United States will require to send troops to Pyramid Harbor. The dispatch, he also stated, did not credit the story. Mr. Robertson asked if the prime minister could give any information upon the matter.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that without betraying a state secret, he would say that for his part he would strongly object to the Americans sending any force into the territory which is now in dispute under existing circumstances and until a permanent boundary has been settled.

After this diversion the house again gave attention to the estimates, and Dr. Borden, in reply to an inquiry, said that although the vote for the Royal Military College was larger than last year, the net expenditure was really smaller. The increased expenditure was caused by the larger attendance of cadets; the amount of fees received was much larger in proportion, but this, of course, was not shown in the estimates.

By 9 o'clock tonight the last item in the militia estimates had been passed.

Dr. Borden explained the arrangement with the Imperial Government for the defense of Esquimaux which has been agreed to by the government, Canada is to pay half the cost of the Imperial garrison of 520 officers and men, say $2,345. Dr. Borden explained that the item of $3,000 for monuments for battlefields included $2,500 for a monument at Stony Creek and $500 for a tablet at Burlington Heights.

A PERSONAL EXPLANATION.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said he desired to call the attention of the house for a moment to an incident which took place Monday night, in which he was personally interested. On Tuesday, when he looked at the report of the incident, he had taken place in the house, he read that the honorable member for South Leeds (Mr. Taylor) had stated that the Messrs. Bate had bought and furnished the house in which the premier lived. Mr. Laurier then read from Hansard the remarks of Mr. Taylor, and continuing, said:

"Now, I may say at once that I do not feel called upon to contradict anything that has been said by the honorable gentleman, but in order to show to what levity gentlemen on the other side of the house can descend, and how they can utter absolutely unfounded and less accusations, I would like to put me if I ask them to follow me into my private affairs. In the spring of 1897 I bought a house in the city of Ottawa. I bought it from the Leslie estate. The price agreed upon was $9,500. I paid down $5,000 cash and gave a mortgage on the balance for $4,500. I bought the house in the name of my wife, because, being poor, and well knowing that if I died I should have nothing left to her, I thought I would be right to give her a home. The balance I myself raised upon a note, which has not been altogether extinguished. That is all there is about it. The house has been furnished by myself, with the exception of a few gifts which were given to my wife by some of her lady friends. That is all there is to this transaction. For the occasion of the honorable gentleman there is not a shadow of foundation. The Messrs. Bate have never furnished nor bought a house for me."

Mr. Taylor said he had made the statement on hearsay evidence. The rumor was flying around Ottawa. Mr. Taylor said that when the premier sat on the opposition side of the house he and his friends behind him charged Sir John Macdonald with having, through his wife, accepted a bribe from Sir Donald Smith, consisting of a gold necklace. When the people of this country made Sir Hector Langevin a present, the present prime minister declared that no public man, occupying the position of a minister of the crown, should receive a gift from his friends without having their names made public and laid on the table of the house. What do we find today? Lord Strathcona is a civil servant of this government, representing Canada in England, and is more closely associated with the C. P. R. than he was then. He now telegraphs that he will head the subscription list for a present to the prime minister of $10,000 and, if necessary, he would make it $20,000.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said there was a rumor that a house had been offered to him, and it was also true that he had refused to accept it.

LISTOWEL TRAGEDY.

Listowel, Ont., July 12.—Wm. Manning, a laborer, about 40 years of age, was in the habit of beating his wife when he got the worse of liquor, and gave her a beating on Saturday morning, after which she laid a complaint against him. When he found it necessary to give her another beating on Saturday evening. Finding the constable was coming to arrest him yesterday morning, he said he would never appear before the magistrate, and took a drink of laudanum. He leaves a large family in very poor circumstances.

ELDERLY MEN.

There Is No Better Youth Restorer Than Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. H. S. Barnes, Seventy-Five Years of Age, Feels Young and Smart as a Boy—Used Dodd's Kidney Pills and Delighted With the Result.

Rat Portage, July 11.—Mr. H. S. Barnes is an elderly gentleman, being five years past the three score and ten. He is the father of ex-Mayor Barnes, and no old gentleman in Rat Portage is more esteemed and respected. Mr. Barnes is one of the many who have been cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills in their old age.

There is a letter showing Mr. Barnes' experience with the greatest remedy of the present day—Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Rat Portage, June 18, 1909. Gentlemen:—I would like to make the following statement for the benefit of whoever would like to hear the truth. I am 75 years old, and have lived in Rat Portage for the past 13 years. Some time ago my wife asked me to get her some Dodd's Kidney Pills. She was suffering from some kind of kidney trouble, and desired to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I finally got her a box but she never lived to take them. Having little faith in patent medicines, I, however, was soon forced to change my opinion. I had long been neglecting similar symptoms to those of my wife, these now became very severe. Having the box of Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house, I thought I might as well try them. I suffered terribly with pain across my back with a scalding sensation when urinating. When the first box stopped these symptoms, and continuing their use I became completely cured. All the citizens of Rat Portage were greatly surprised at the change in my appearance, I can tell you. They often used to greet me with "Hello, Mr. Barnes! Why how smart you are looking!" They were not far astray. I felt smart too, and younger and in better health than for years. You may publish this statement with my full indorsement of your remedy which possesses real genuine merit.

LIGHTNING CAUSES HAVOC

A. E. Hould & Co.'s Furniture Factory Destroyed—Loss $8,000.

Four Barns Burned to the Ground With All Contents—Narrow Escape of Two Boys.

Lightning did a great deal of damage in London and vicinity last evening. Several fires resulted. The most disastrous was at the furniture factory of A. E. Hould & Co., Quebec street, where the damage amounted to $7,000 or $8,000. The building is located outside of the city limits, and about 6 p.m. was struck by lightning. Fire broke out and was observed by some of the hands, who were not long in extinguishing it, as they thought completely. Some sparks probably escaped their notice and continued smouldering. At any rate, the place was in flames at 8:15 this morning, when the fire department was summoned. It was a long run for the brigade and the fire had spread throughout the factory. Little could be saved except the lumber in the kilns. The building and stock were partially insured.

FOUR BARNES DESTROYED.

Two barns on lot 2, con. 2, London township, were struck by lightning, and burned to the ground with all their contents. A load of hay had just been driven into one of the barns, and so quickly did the flames spread that there was not time to back the wagon out of the barn. A reaper which was removed from the burning building was burned completely while standing outside. The buildings were owned by H. Brownlee, of this city. The contents were the property of the tenant, Mr. Rogers. The loss on the building is $1,500; insurance $900, in the London Township Mutual.

Two barns at 575 and 577 Oxford street, owned by Wm. Liley and Philip Edwards, were struck by lightning and burned to the ground. Total loss, $600.

LETTER FROM THE SHERIFF

Refutes Some Unjust Insinuations by a Corporation Lawyer.

Sheriff Cameron sends the following letter to the Free Press, which is self-explanatory:

To the Editor of the Free Press:

I was called upon by Messrs. T. H. Spelman and C. H. Ivey shortly before eight o'clock on Saturday evening, urging that, because of the failure of the mayor to do so, I proceed to read the riot act. I replied that I would, if necessary, read the riot act, but not until I knew the reason for the mayor's refusal; that if the conditions were as they stated, and the county attorney advised, I would not hesitate to do so in any event. Mr. C. H. Ivey undertook to drive me to where he represented the county attorney then to be—the car barns, East London. We drove there, but failed to find Mr. Magee, nor could Mr. Ivey get him by telephone from the barns. Mr. Ivey then asked if I was afraid to go through the crowd apparent at the head of Lyle, on Dundas street. I replied: "Certainly not. Go ahead." We did so, turned west on the latter street, and though the crowd on the north side, as far west as Adelaide street, filled the sidewalk from the street line to the curb, we were not disturbed; not a finger was raised to impede our progress, nor an act done that betokened violent intentions towards us. When the corner of Adelaide street was reached, the smashing of the windows in the two cars approaching us from the west, and being taken to the barns by Detective Nickle and police constables, so disturbed the horse that I suppose Mr. Ivey, who drove, was prompted to turn up Adelaide street. He immediately turned back into the Dundas street crowd, that had less than three minutes before attacked the cars. But no violence was here attempted towards us, and the statement that "the sheriff asked Mr. Ivey to at once drive him from the scene," either at this point or elsewhere, is not the fact—is as untrue as the insinuation reference to me was gratuitous and unnecessary.

Mr. Editor, I would not, but for one fact, obtrude this denial, involving as it does the delicate question of personal courage, and a public attack upon me when the public mind is unsettled, and when many allege that the supineness of authority has much to do with the disorder that prevails, but for one fact. The paragraph may be taken to mean that in the discharge of whatever duty falls to my lot in connection with this sad occurrence, I will exhibit the same "scare" which the reference supports. It is readily appreciated that such a feeling is apt to induce the lawlessness which we all condemn, and which it may become me, as an instrument of the law, to punish. I think, then, in all soberness that Mr. Ivey, solicitor of the street railway company, of all men, should have held his peace at this juncture, even if the circumstances as he detailed them to your reporter were facts. There is much to moralize on along this line, but I refrain, as the paramount duty of every citizen at this juncture is to do nothing to increase the undue tension prevailing. For this very reason I do not think it mean while to follow up my experiences from the buggy episode until I left the neighborhood of the car barns on Sunday morning. The facts are not a part of the record at this juncture. Sincerely,

D. M. CAMERON.

Sheriff's Office, London, July 11, 1909.

C. E. CONVENTION

Characteristic Closing Scenes of the Great Gathering.

Detroit, July 12.—The closing Christian Endeavor meeting in Tent Endeavor was an enthusiastic affair from start to finish. There was an attendance of over 10,000, counting those who remained on the outside and watched the proceedings through the doors.

A veritable babel of songs and state calls began. Each delegation had a song of its own, and many had individual "Endeavor yells," and as each sang its own song and yelled its own yell at one and the same time, the effect produced can be imagined. It was impossible to begin the exercises until the noise ceased.

Secretary Baer then read cablegrams from the peace commissioners at The Hague, which created the wildest enthusiasm. A telegram from Lord Minto, secretary of the Canadian peace greetings sent by President Clark to President McKinley and Queen Victoria. Applause followed the reading of each. This applause was taken up by those in the outside of the tent and resounded throughout the entire camp.

Twenty-eight thousand Endeavorers.

Mr. Baer made a statement about the convention that pleased everybody. He said there had been an attendance of 28,000, including the Detroit delegates. One hundred and fifty meetings had been held, at which the total attendance had been 298,500, which does not include the 66 evangelistic meetings, whose attendance aggregated over 15,000.

Great Britain's leading representatives, Messrs. Tressider and Murrell, of London, and Pollock, of Glasgow, stood together and sang "Britain for Christ." Then all sang stanzas of "God Save the Queen" and "America." Dr. J. Wilson Chapman preached the concluding sermon in Tent Endeavor, from the text, Luke vi., 6 and 10—the story of the healing of the man with a withered hand. The closing address was given by Mr. Baer.

Guelph, July 11.—London can thank George Cooper for today's victory. With no one out and three men on bases, Lohman had him replace Seiver in Guelph's third inning. At that time the Leafs scored one run, and were in the hitting humor. There is hardly any doubt that several more runs would have been scored had not this change taken place. Cooper retired the side without scoring, and all through the game gave a beautiful exhibition. The Leafs could not find him until their last inning, when they tallied up four hits, netting three runs. The features of the game were three double plays, one by Babbitt to McFadden, and two double plays by Francis to Miles to Grimshaw. London batted Damoth freely, and at opportune times. This, aided by Guelph's costly errors, won their game. Popkay's decisions were unquestioned. Score:

JESSAMINE.

How relieved he was as soon as the service was over, and the remains of Mr. Kirke committed to the earth. "Thank you," he said, "for your kind words, and for the sympathy you have shown me. I will call you, should you be needed."

Alternately, and in company, they watched her until Dr. Winters' visit that day brought hope that was consoling to their sorely tried souls. "If she sleeps, she shall do well," said Dr. Baxter, when Roy carried the glad tidings to him, that the supper had changed to a natural slumber. He was sitting in the window of Mr. Kirke's study, for a wonder, without book or paper before him, but absorbed in contemplation of the mountain scenery.

"You are wearing yourself out," he added, observing that Roy's complexion, tanned by the sea voyage, was fast regaining its natural hue, and that his eyes bore evidence of grief and anxiety. "Jessie is safe in her sister's care, and while she sleeps cannot miss you. Blue here a bit with me"—he often relaxed into the Scotch dialect—"and refresh yourself by a survey of this picture. I must quit you tomorrow, and I should much like to have a few words with you before I go."

Jessie was alone when she awoke. Eunice had been called to the parlor to see a parishioner who had not heard of Mr. Kirke's decease until this morning, had ridden twenty miles to attend the funeral, and arrived too late. Eunice had been too long the obedient servant of the congregation to hesitate as to the course she should pursue in the dilemma. Jessie slept soundly and peacefully, and Roy would be back soon. She closed the door noiselessly, and stole down stairs to obey the summons of her father's friend.

Summer zephyrs were coquetting with the sombre pine branches; summer scents were stealing up to Jessie's window; the garden to the south of the house was in full bloom, and such wooing whispers and goodly odors had she awakened many mornings during many years. She mistook the colored light visible through the shutters for dawn; and, dazed and sleepy, her limbs ached and her head was weary.

"It must be time to get up," she meditated, "twixt sleeping and waking." "Yes, I am not res-d. I have not heard Eunice of Patsy go downstairs."

In tossing her arm up to pillow her head for a second nap, she saw her sleeve. How had she happened to fall asleep without undressing? She sat upright, and tried to remember when and how she had gone to bed overnight. How queerly her head felt.

"As if it had been dead and was coming to life again!" was her first thought. She was at home and in her own room; everything about her was in its usual order. Yet something had happened. What was it? A Bible lay on the stand beside her bed. Between the leaves was a handwritten note, which she drew it out, and saw Eunice's name on the corner. How came it there? Had Eunice sat with her last evening? If so, why? Her feet were oddly numb when she stooped to pick it up; and she walked to the door, opened it, and hearkened for movements upon the lower floor. It was so quiet she heard the droning of a humming-bird moth which had come to look for untimely blossoms in the honeysuckle draping the hall window. Another sound, almost as monotonous, blended with this—the steady flow of a man's voice talking to a young girl in the study. Who was her father's guest? And what hour of the day was it? It must be morning, since she had just awakened, yet looked and felt like evening.

A draught from the open door she had left blew that opposite slightly ajar. Surely that was Dr. Baxter's voice. Had she dreamed of his arrival? A fearful dream, the dim recollection of which made her sick and faint! Sinking to a settee that stood outside the study door, seeking to stimulate her half-dead brain by rubbing her temples hard, she endeavored to gather the meaning of what Dr. Baxter was saying. He was in the middle of one of the monologues which were sometimes a bore, sometimes a delight. A gleam of amusement flitted over the wan, vacant visage of the eavesdropper as she pictured to herself—still as if she were somebody else, and not Jessie Kirke—the knotted handkerchief she doubted not was on active duty.

"Is it consistent with the divine economy for an immortal being to spend twenty-five, fifty, three scores and ten years, in the acquisition of knowledge and experience for which he is to have no use in the world to come? Believe me, they are in grievous error, denying themselves the abundant consolations which the hope of a continued and eternal existence should bring, who overlook the plain teachings of the word, and the almost divine intuitions of the human soul on this question. The Future Life! What is it but the stretching into regions yet unknown to us, into the eternity of which we have but imperfect conceptions, of the life which now is? The Present, which is the journey toward the continuing City! Into that state we shall, it is true, be born as spiritual babes; but not idiots! As the instincts and actions of the babe prefigure the disposition and appetites of the man, so the habits of thought and feeling, the inclinations and aspirations of the newly disembodied spirit will bear a certain relation to that which it will at length become—the perfect man in Christ Jesus. As hereditary taints and hereditary virtues are reproduced in the mortal babe, we shall find definite traces of our earthly individuality in the heavenly nursing; and that the proportion which the loftiest attainments of the profoundest philosopher will bear to the infancy of this celestial creature will be less, far less than that which the mere instincts of the earthly infant bears to the wisdom and strength of the adult. I also believe, we shall have to begin with the rudiments of infinite knowledge, but we shall have Eternity in which to learn."

Jessie still chafed here forehead, where wrinkles of painful perplexity gathered and deepened, as she tried to put word to word and sentence to sentence. She lost what came next in vainly attempting to get the sense of these last sentences. Perhaps she should understand better when she was quite awake.

"Such proportion as the seed sustains to the mature plant, or ovum to the moving creature, you will tell me," Dr. Baxter was saying, when she again lent attention to his dissertation. "I grant it. But like produces like in vegetable and animal genera, and why deny the spiritual analogy? What we call Death is but the threshold—a narrow one—separating the vestibule from the temple. It is all one building—the life that God has given. When I cast off this earthly shell I have been so long that I foolishly fancy it is myself—a part of my being, without which I should be naked, shivering, and helpless; when it slips from my soul by reason of its own weight and rotteness, I shall enter upon my new existence. It will be I still—not a different creation. For a moment, perhaps, I may not know what has happened. Thus, I have seen a butterfly trembling with the strangeness of its position, clinging with damp, untired wings to the bough that supports the little pendant coffin, now broken— from which he has just crept. A delicious sense of liberty and space there may be as one breathes more freely in leaving a close room for the outer air. I shall miss the incubus of the body, and the fleshly desires I have sloughed off with it. Then will dawn upon me gradually—as I have strength to bear the revelation, that I have passed! Not been made over, mark you! We are nowhere taught that regeneration is a posthumous experience. He is gone! Some one will say. And perhaps another—'He is dead.'"

"Dead! I tell you, my friend, I shall be the liveliest man in that room! Not until that hour of glorious emancipation shall I know what life is!"

There was an interval of silence. Jessie had staggered to her feet. Her eyes no longer blank, were dilated with intensest and eager inquiry. What did it signify—this talk of death and the life to come? Who was the speaker's companion? Her father? Oh, how did he not speak?

Another voice, deeper and sweeter, made reverent response: "Thanks be to God for his unspeakable gift!"

She flung the door widely open; faced the astonished men with the demand, shrieked, rather than spoken: "Where is he? He said that! my father! Where is he?"

"Jessie, love!" Roy caught her in his arms, but she pushed him from her. "I will know! I am going mad! Where is my father?"

Dr. Baxter secured her fluttering hands, looked steadfastly, yet not sternly, into her eyes. "He may be here, my child! We cannot tell. Be sure he remembers and loves you still, he who, while the life he held you so dear, believed this and he still under the mighty but loving hand of God!"

Her head sank upon his shoulder. "You would not deceive me! You are a good man, and speak the truth always," she sobbed, excitedly. "Is my father really dead? Oh, I remember it all now!"

THE TYRANT CUPID.

Say what you will, Cupid is somewhat of a tyrant after all. He waves his lash of government over the head of every woman who elects him to rule her life. No woman can choose the happiness and honor of widowhood and motherhood without being subject also to its pains and penalties. But no woman ought to suffer as most do from those ailments and weaknesses which are due to her peculiarly delicate and susceptible organism. Every woman ought to know that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure these unnatural and debilitating troubles. It cures them absolutely, completely, permanently. It contains no alcohol to create a craving for stimulants.

"It is with heart-felt gratitude that I must tell you what my medicine has done for me," writes Mrs. A. F. Crenshaw, of Passaic, N. J., in a letter to Dr. R. V. Pierce after consulting after consulting with me, I took your medicine and it cured me of female weakness. I was all run down; I suffered with sick headache, pains in the back and bearing down pains. I took two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and was then able to take care of my house. My health is better than it has been for three years. I do not know how to thank you for the kind advice you gave so cheerfully."

This grand "Prescription" has accomplished the same beneficent purpose for thousands of women in every corner of this broad land, has imparted health, strength and endurance to the special organism of womanhood and gives tonic vitality to the entire nervous system. Its marvelous properties are more fully described in one chapter of the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser by R. V. Pierce, M. D., a splendid thousand-page illustrated volume which will be sent free paper-bound for 31 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of customs and mailing only; or cloth-bound for 50 stamps.

The Lost Game

Came the big children to the little ones, And unto them full pleasantly did say,

"Lo! we have spread for you a merry game. And ye shall all be winners at the same. Come now and play!"

Great is the game they enter in—Rouge et Noir on a giant scale—Red with blood and black with sin, Where many must lose, and few may win, And the players never fail!

Said the strong children to the weaker ones, "See, ye are many, and we are but few! The mass of all the counters ye divide, But few remain to share upon our side. Play—as we do!"

Strange is the game they enter in—Rouge et Noir on a field of pain! And the silver white and the yellow gold Pile and pile in the victor's hold, While the many play in vain!

Said the weak children to the stronger ones, "See now, how'er it fall, we lose our share! And play we well or ill, we always lose; While ye gain always more than ye can use. Beshink ye—is it fair?"

Strange is the game they enter in—Rouge et Noir and the bank is strong! Play they well or play they wide, The gold is still on the banker's side, And the game endureth long.

Said the strong children, each aside to each, "The game is slow—our gains are all too small; Play we together now, 'gainst them apart; So shall these dull ones lose it from the start, And we shall gain it all!"

Strange is the game that now they win—Rouge et Noir with a new design! What can the many players do, Whose wits are weak and counters few.

When the power and the gold combine? Said the weak children to the stronger ones, "We care not for the game! For play as we may, our chance is small, And play as we may ye have it all. The end's the same!"

Strange is the game the world doth play—Rouge et Noir with the counters gold, Red with blood and black with sin, Few and fewer are they that win, As the ages pass untold.

Said the strong children to the weaker ones, "Ye lose in laziness! Ye lose in sleep! Play faster now and make the counters spin! Play well as we, and ye in time shall win! Play fast! Play deep!"

Strange is the game of Rouge et Noir! Never a point have the little ones won. The winners are strong and flushed with gain, The losers are weak with want and pain. And still the game goes on.

But those rich players grew so very few, So many grew the poor ones, that one day They rose up from that table, side by side, Calm, countless, terrible—they rose and cried

In one great voice that shook the heavens wide: "WE WILL NOT PLAY!"

Where is the game of Rouge et Noir? Where is the wealth of yesterday? What availeth the power ye tell, And the skill in the game ye play so well, If the players will not play? —CHARLOTTE STENSON.

Klondike Climate Makes Hair Grow on Bald Heads.

[San Francisco Call.]

The experience of Roderick Dhu Smith, who recently returned from the Klondike region with a big budget of experience, quite a little sum of money and a head of hair which almost qualifies him to take an engagement as a Circassian girl in a circus, is of special interest to a large contingent of his fellow men and women. For he it is known that Roderick, before making his perilous way to the Arctic regions, though otherwise pleasing to look upon and still on the sunny side of 40, was made theater ushers, whenever there was a ballet on the program, escort him down to the front row without even glancing at his seat check.

While this might have been considered an advantage by some people, it was not pleasing to Mr. Smith, who is an essentially modest man and averse to being made unduly prominent on any occasion. It is said, too, that his baldness was the real cause of his starting out in search of gold, since he spent all his patrimony in the purchase of hair restorers, and it was necessary for him to do something, no matter how desperate, to retrieve his fallen fortunes.

Be that as it may, he went to Alaska, and after a two years' residence there, has returned a modern Samson, as far as chevelure is concerned, and he declares that the transformation of the climate in that quarter of the globe.

"The intense cold kills all germs and microbes," he asserts, "and stimulates the scalp, and Nature does the rest. And he proudly exhibits his Bonklike mane as proof of what Nature can do when she takes a fancy, unassisted by washes or oils or unguents."

ALL TUCKERED OUT.

Ordinary household duties shouldn't exhaust a woman who has good health. Doesn't take much work, though, this warm weather, to tire out, or even prostrate a woman who suffers from any derangement of the heart or nerves.

strength and energy to my weakened frame. Other troubles from which I suffered, together with severe headaches, have been altogether removed. I know there are a great many people suffering just as I did, and it is my earnest wish that all should know that a reliable cure exists in Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Every summer thousands of women break down in health.

Their daily work becomes a burden— They can no longer sit still and read or sew— Even the joyous laughter of their own children distresses them.

The great majority can't go to the seaside to recuperate—

Must struggle along as best they may. Is there any help for such?

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.

This remedy supplies food for the exhausted nerve cells, enriches the blood, strengthens and regulates the heart and invigorates the entire system.

Any worn-out, run-down, tired-out, weak, nervous woman who starts using these Pills soon finds her health and strength returning.

Her appetite improves— She does not tire so easily— Sleep is sound and refreshing—

The ashen color of her face is replaced by the rosy tint of health—

Her heart beats strong and regular.

Such has been the record of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in the hundreds of cases that have been brought to our notice.

Here is one woman's statement:—

Mrs. J. Delaney, who lives at 262 Brussels Street, St. John, N.B., says:—"Some time ago I became extremely indisposed. My blood became poor, and I was very much run down and suffered from loss of appetite, nervousness, pallor, sleeplessness and debility. I have tried a great many remedies but without securing relief. I was at last advised to use Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and decided to give them a trial. I must say that from the first few doses I felt a distinct increase of strength."

"My nervous system has been invigorated and regulated. Refreshing sleep comes to me every night. Day by day these wonderful pills have built up my run down system and have given me strength and energy to my weakened frame. Other troubles from which I suffered, together with severe headaches, have been altogether removed. I know there are a great many people suffering just as I did, and it is my earnest wish that all should know that a reliable cure exists in Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills."

dance in, but they don't amount to a row of pins where one is out boating or wheeling or fishing or climbing hills. And that's what the summer girl of today is doing most of the time. She does not want to be pinched up or helpless, and enjoys the fresh air of heaven and the sunshine of nature. The broad, comfortable shoe was a godsend after years of misery with sharp-pointed footgear that kept her toes twisted together and her instep raised like a flagpole. And now, just after salvation has come, must she once more don the painful horrors from which she has but recently been unchained?

Every woman will declare that she will never again be a victim of short, narrow shoes whatever the fashion may be. That's all right to say, but how many will have the courage to wear one sort of a shoe when the rest of beset humanity is wearing some other style? Not many, it is to be feared. The physical culture advocates will be among the minority, and possibly the girls who go in for outdoor sports to an unusual extent. But no matter how advanced women may become, or how strong-minded, it takes the nerve and energy and courage of a Julius Caesar or an Alexander to war against the decrees of fashion—and Julius Caesars and Alexanders are rather rare in femininity's ranks these days.—Chicago Times-Herald.

FAGGED OUT—None but those who have become fagged out know what a depressed, miserable feeling it is. All strength has gone, and despondency has taken hold of the sufferers. They feel as though there was nothing to live for. There, however, is a cure—one box of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will do wonders in restoring health and strength. Mandrake and Dandelion are two of the articles entering into the composition of Parmelee's Pills.

LIFE SAVED—Mr. James Bryson Cameron writes: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs and was given up by physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best results. Acting on this advice I procured the medicine, and less than half a bottle cured me. I certainly believe it saved my life. It was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any remedy to do me good.

RESULT OF NEGOTIATIONS

What the Mediators Have So Far Accomplished.

An Offer From the Street Railway Company—in Reply to the Men's Statement of Grievances—Waiting for the Men.

The sub-committee of mediators, Mayor Wilson, Ald. Parnell and Mr. A. B. Cox, following yesterday morning's meeting interviewed the Street Railway Company. The employees' statement of grievances was discussed, and an effort made to have the whole question go to arbitration. A board meeting was immediately called, and about 5 o'clock Chairman Parnell was handed the following offer by the company:

"London, July 11, 1899. To His Worship the Mayor and the Committee Appointed by the Council:

"Gentlemen.—The directors of the London Street Railway Company have considered the so-called list of grievances of the striking employees of the London Street Railway Company, which, however, I am instructed to point out, are simply general, and do not contain any of the specific grievances, which the company asked for before the strike took place, and which the committee of the council have also asked for—and in reply to your request as to the position of the company, would say:

"The London Street Railway Company hereby offer now, as they have done before, a bona fide arbitration in matters in dispute of every nature and description whatsoever between the striking employees and themselves under agreement of 10th November, 1898, of which particulars have been given to the company, and as to whether the company have or have not violated the said agreement, and as to whether the striking employees were justified in striking as they did on the 22nd of May, and that in the event of the finding being that the employees were not justified in the strike of the 22nd of May, then that the entire cost of the incident to such arbitration shall be paid by the striking employees, while if the finding be found at fault they are to pay the entire costs, security for such costs to be furnished. Yours truly,

"C. E. A. CARR, "Sec. London St. Ry. Co."

GROCERS' OUTING AT NIAGARA

London and St. Thomas Grocers to Join Forces—Trading Stamps and Premiums Discussed.

London retail grocers held their regular meeting on Monday evening, with a fair attendance. President R. A. Jones was in the chair.

A communication from St. Thomas Retail Grocers' Association was read, thanking this association for an invitation to the excursion to Niagara, and stating that the St. Thomas grocers had decided to close their stores and make July 26 a grocers' holiday, and join London grocers in a day's outing at old Niagara. The secretary was instructed to forward advertising matter to the St. Thomas association, and Mr. J. C. Trebilcock reported that Mr. T. A. Rowat, the secretary, and himself, had been to Niagara, and arranged for reduced rates on the electric roads, and the Midland Reservation Park carriages, the museum, and arranged everything for a pleasant day. The committee will have tickets for all points of interest for sale at reduced rates on the train. The committee took a trip over the Buffalo and Niagara Electric Railroad, and found it very pleasant and interesting, and excursions can take in this trip and have about six hours in Buffalo, and return the same day.

The trading stamps and premium question was discussed, and the feeling was that if the system was abolished entirely it would be beneficial to the trade and their customers, as there is more or less dissatisfaction caused through this system of doing business. No one could give as good value in goods and give premiums or stamps as well, and no one can expect to get something for nothing. There was either a loss to the dealer, or the customer paid for the stamps or premiums. After considerable discussion the question was laid over until the next meeting.

The secretary reported that he had been informed that the bill to amend the garnishee act has been given a six months' hold. A chat on the state of trade generally, and the prospects for a large turnout for the excursion on the 26th, brought the meeting to a close with a burrah for Niagara.

DEATH OF J. M. COUSINS

Ex-Mayor and for Many Years Prominent in Municipal Life.

Was One of London's Pioneer Manufacturers—The Oldest County Magistrate in the District.

Ex-Mayor J. M. Cousins died last evening in his 80th year, at his late residence, Bathurst street, from the effects of pleurisy and rheumatism. He had been ailing about a year.

James Mitchell Cousins was born in Truro, N. S., in April, 1820, and when 23 years of age left his birthplace for Toronto, where he remained about a year. He came to London 55 years ago and during that time there were few who took such a prominent part in the city's progress. He was captain of the volunteer fire brigade, an alderman for 15 years, mayor in 1872, water commissioner three years and chairman of the board in 1888. He was also the oldest county magistrate of the district. In connection with the Western Fair he was a very active worker, and was generally regarded as the originator of the fair. Although so much of his time was taken up with public duties, Mr. Cousins applied himself with great industry to building up a successful business, first as a partner of the firm of Craig & Cousins, and latterly alone, in the manufacture of pumps, fanning mills and windmills. He was one of the first windmill manufacturers in the Dominion. Mrs. Cousins preceded him to the grave less than two years ago. One son, Thomas Cousins, of this city, and one daughter, Miss Sarah Cousins, who kept house for her father, are the survivors of the family. Two brothers, Job, of Westminster, and Thomas, of Brandon, and two sisters, Mrs. Jos. McGlinish, of Truro, N. S., and Mrs. Henry Johnston, of this city, survive also.

A NEW INFIRMARY

Western M.P.s Say London Asylum Needs One—Annual Inspection.

The annual inspection of the London Asylum for the Insane took place yesterday. Several of the M. P.'s from the western district were unable to be present. The visitors spent several hours in looking over the buildings, the gardens and the farm, and expressed the most unqualified approval of the arrangements. They strongly expressed the opinion that a new infirmary is badly needed, and that one should be built right away. The estimated cost of the infirmary is $300,000, and if approved for it is made, it will be erected on the old stable grounds back of the stores.

At 1 o'clock luncheon was served in a large marquee on the lawn. The Asylum Band, under direction of Dr. Asylum Band, discoursed sweet music, and a most enjoyable social hour was spent. Dr. Buckle presided. Among the guests were: Col. Leys, M.P.P., Dr. McKay, M.P.P., Dr. McWilliam (Thames Valley), Mr. McKel (Lakeside), Messrs. Webster, W. J. Reid, J. S. Pearce, D. B. Dewar, M. Masurel, J. H. Ginge, R. K. Cowan and W. A. M. Goode (New York).

The young man who has always thought he must have his clothes made to measure by an "exclusive" tailor doesn't know till he tries "Fit-Reform" garments how much he can save in money without any sacrifice of correct form and fashion.

REMARKABLE ROBBER HUNT

Chase Given Up—Bandits Used Smokeless Powder and Could Stand Off an Army.

Omaha, Neb., July 12.—F. M. Hane, the well-known western detective, has returned to Omaha from a long chase after the six men who held up and dynamited the Union Pacific express train in Wyoming on June 2. Speaking of the extraordinary chase, Hane says:

"These men have made the most remarkable flight in the criminal history of the west. They were here over 1,500 miles since committing the crime and have been chased by 200 or 400 men constantly, yet they escaped. Time and again they have been surrounded by ten times their number, yet by a display of desperate nerve and their knowledge of woodcraft, they have managed each time to get away.

"They first fled to the Hole-in-the-Wall, I found, but being so hard pressed and having such a large reward on their heads ($18,000), they did not dare stop among their old outlaw company for fear of being betrayed. They kept on into the Big Horn basin, then turned back and retraced their steps through the Hole-in-the-Wall country into Jackson's Hole, the wildest and most desolate stretch of mountainous country in the west. Here the Indian police under Baldwin got after them and chased them south toward the Utah mountains, and it was here that they were completely lost. They have two horseloads of smokeless ammunition, and in their retreat could stand off an army.

"These fellows are the remnants of the most daring outlaw band in existence. I have been a scout, plainsman and detective in that part of the west for 25 years, and I know all those fellows. I knew Curry, their leader, when he was an honest rancher. It was but ten years ago that he turned highwayman, and since then he has been in a number of desperate games. It was he and his gang that held up the Spearfish, S. D., bank, when several of them were killed. I believe this will very nearly wind them up, for they have got to put in their appearance at some town in the west some day, and when they do they will be shot down."
