RUSSIA FACES BLOODY REVOLUTION; CZAR IN DESPAIR TURNS TO WITTE

General Strike Throughout Empire Only a Matter of Hours and Pacific Solution Is Believed To Be Impossible—Bloodshed at Moscow.

[Special to The Advertiser.] St. Petersburg, Oct. 25.—The council of ministers held a special meeting at Peterhof today to discuss the strike. The czar declined to preside, and directed that Count Witte act in his stead. Owing to the fact that no trains are running, the ministers returned to St. Petersburg in the imperial yacht Polar Star. They met here again this evening, but their decision is unknown. The newspapers are ignoring the censorship and are printing everything they receive, thereby risking suppression. The entire press, with the exception of the Novoye Vremya, Gazette and Svet, favors the strikers.

Pacific Solution Impossible.
The university has been thronged by enormous crowds of students, workmen and others to listen to revolutionary speeches. Railway men filled one lecture hall, anarchists another, and constitutionalists another. Some of the speeches were very violent. The speakers called on the people to begin an armed rising forthwith. It is reported this evening that the union of unions has declared a general strike, but this cannot be confirmed. Everything, however, is tending to such an outcome. It becomes clearer daily, although proof is not needed, that the whole movement is political and revolutionary. Many observers are convinced that a pacific solution is impossible. It is needless to specify the numerous cities and towns from which reports of revolutionary meetings are received. Every center of industry and population has joined the movement. Wherever the strike is effective the railway stations contain a number of strike-bound passengers. Many hundreds are here and more in Moscow. The railway officials are furnishing the necessities with money with which to buy food.

Bloodshed at Moscow.
Moscow, Oct. 25.—The only remaining connection between this city and the outside world is by telephones and telegraphs. It is impossible to say when these will be severed. The central telegraph office is held by a large body of infantry, whose presence alone prevents the cessation of work. The operators are disaffected. Most of the lines running south are already idle. Strikers attacked the central office early this morning, intending to stop the work, but the soldiers repulsed them. It is reported that many were killed, but inquiries are futile. The agitators are bringing pressure to bear on the operators, and following persuasion with veiled threats, which are interpreted as meaning that bombs will be used against those who do not join the strikers.

All Out at Odessa.
Odessa, Oct. 25.—The whole staff of the Southwestern Railway, including the telegraph operators, have struck. No trains have left here in 24 hours, and only one has arrived. The men working at the grain elevators are also on strike. It is expected that the men in other industries and the postal employees will follow.

Bureaucracy to Blame.
London, Oct. 25.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Telegraph declares that the reports of internal reform which were within an ace of realization have all vanished. The bureaucracy has been seized to its reactionary attitude by the spectacle of the vast population on strike. All that had been done to pacify the people has been interrupted if not undone. The unconceivable procrastination of the bureaucrats created distrust in their intention to reform. The result is anarchy unredeemed even by such good intentions as fell. Every thing is forbidden to all things are allowed. Killing and incendiarism are permitted. Neither is hindered nor punished. It is even lawful to order the death of others by daggers or rifles. Meetings are strictly prohibited, but they are daily summoned and are attended by tens of thousands of persons.

ADVANCE IN LEATHER

Dealers Buying Hides of Animals Now Roaming the Rauches.

Toronto, Oct. 25.—An advance of 1 per cent per pound for heavy leather went into effect this morning. It is stated that all the hides in sight up to the end of the year have been already purchased, and that buying is now going on for delivery in January of hides on the backs of the animals grazing on the western ranches. Such a situation is unprecedented in Canada.

OFFER FOR INTERCOLONIAL

Government May Have a Chance to Sell Road for $80,000,000.

Montreal, Oct. 25.—An offer of $80,000,000 for the Intercolonial Railway, it is said, will be made by the Government before the next session of Parliament. The chances of a sale will be increased when Mr. Emmerson, assistant collector of the House for another $10,000,000 for the purchase of new rolling stock for the railway. The need of this addition to the equipment of the road is said to have been impressed upon Mr. Emmerson during his recent inspection, but neither the Government nor the House is likely to grant the money.

UNION MULCTED $7,500

The Sheet Metal Workers Lose Case Against Metallic Roofing Co.

Toronto, Oct. 25.—The jury of the civil assize court in the case of the Sheet Metal Workers' Union, which was sued by the Metallic Roofing Company for wrongfully and wilfully coercing the company's employees to join the union, deliberated today, after an hour's deliberation, brought in a verdict against the Sheet Metal Workers' Union. The latter were ordered to pay $7,500 damages.

FORGOT HIS TROUSERS

Harriman Was Caught Leaving the Train in His "Unions."

[Special to The Advertiser.] Omaha, Neb., Oct. 25.—Attired in a union suit, coat and hat, overcoat, but minus his trousers, E. H. Harriman, the railroad magnate, started to leave his private car in the Union depot here this morning, and had already opened the car door to step outside, when the staff of cold air and the hasty exclamation of "Harriman!" arrested him. He was still in bed when Omaha was reached, but when he was told that one of the new gasoline motors was in the depot waiting for his inspection, he called his valet, and hurriedly dressing, between Harriman and the valet, the trousers were forgotten.

FROM LABRADOR'S WILDS

No News of the Dillon Wallace Expedition Party.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 25.—The steamer Amethyst arrived last night from Gilliesport, Labrador, and reports lots of snow. She brought no news of the exploring parties, headed by Dillon Wallace, and Mrs. Hubbard, of New York, other than that one of the guides had returned from the woods, and thought both parties would push on to Ungava.

SIR FREDERICK SATISFIED

Nothing in Report That Militia Minister Was About to Retire.

Ottawa, Oct. 25.—Sir Frederick Borden yesterday took occasion to say that stories to the effect that he was leaving the cabinet were untrue. Not only is he well satisfied to remain minister of militia, but he is anxious to see the realization of his plans for a vast military.

SANTIAGO'S GALLANT COPS

$200,000 Raised for Them by a Popular Subscription.

Santiago, Oct. 25.—Complete calm prevails here today, although troops continue to guard the main thoroughfares. All disorder ceased soon after the return of the troops from annual maneuvers. The police suffered so severely and behaved so gallantly in their efforts to suppress the recent disorders that a popular subscription raised in their behalf has already realized the sum of $200,000. The casualties during the rioting are estimated at about 60 killed and 250 injured.

Sandwich, Ont., Oct. 25.—It is reported from a reliable source that the steel company, which took an option on the old Scotten property, down the river, are still paying $1,000 a month to hold the option. It is said that up to the present time they have forked over $6,000, and it is believed they are late to conclude. He purchases some time in the near future. They have also options on some other property in the vicinity, which they are holding for the present.

MUTUAL ACTUARY ON DIVIDENDS

Were Not Based on Any Given Year's Business.

$100,000,000 LIMIT PROPOSED

Three Big Companies Attempted to Reach Some Agreement, But the Hydes Backed Out.

[Special to The Advertiser.] New York, Oct. 25.—Emory McClintock, chief actuary of the Mutual Life Insurance Society, was the sole witness today before the Armstrong Insurance Committee.

Mr. McClintock explained in detail the methods employed by the actuaries of the Mutual in determining the dividends paid to policyholders, and stated that in his opinion these were the reasons for the marked diminution in dividends paid by the company in the last few years. The fact was established that the dividends as paid annually by the Mutual to policyholders are not determined by actual calculations based on the results of the company's business for any given year, but are largely a matter of the actuary's judgment based on the results and the experience of previous years. The dividends, it was shown, were paid from year to year, according to what the actuary conceived to be a fair average.

Only $900,000 Last Year.

It was shown that the amount paid in dividends each year was a surprisingly small part of the total gains which the company had made for that year. For instance, last year the Mutual policyholders received in dividends only about $900,000 out of the $8,000,000 gain which was made by the company, exclusive of its gains in the value of its investments. With the gain in investments added, the grand total accruing to the company for that year was over $15,000,000. Notwithstanding these large earnings, the company had paid dividends in 1904 to policyholders when the assets of the company had actually been reduced 4 per cent required by law as the reserve on policies. This, of course, reflects only the $8,000,000 gain. In the increased value of the assets, not divisible among policyholders under the terms of the company's charter, the assets have actually been disposed of.

Advise a Limit of $1,000,000,000.

Mr. McClintock was questioned at the morning session by James McKen, the investigating committee's associate counsel. Mr. McClintock said, among other things, that he was sure the Mutual Life would favor the enactment of a law limiting the amount which any insurance company shall write to $1,000,000,000. The witness said that there had already been two serious attempts on the part of the representatives of the three big companies to secure some satisfactory conclusion in regard to some such limitation. Mr. McClintock said that several years ago when the Equitable was getting to be a big concern he had a talk with the late Henry B. Hyde, and that as a result of his conversation Mr. Hyde agreed to support any effort for the passage of a law placing a limit on the amount of insurance which any company should write. This limit was to be $1,000,000,000. Mr. McClintock and Mr. Hyde consulted with President McCall of the New York Life, and he readily gave his consent. A bill was introduced in Albany and then Mr. Hyde for some reason backed down and the bill was withdrawn.

In 1904 Mr. McCall of the New York Life, President James W. Alexander, of the Equitable, again agreed to support the bill. A bill was introduced in Albany by Senator Bracken, placing the limit at $1,000,000,000. At that time, the witness said, the New York Life was getting on nicely, and was not getting any of the other companies, and the idea sprang up in the minds of some of the New York Life officers that the law would be the other two big companies. As a result of this change of opinion by the New York Life officers, the bill was not passed in Albany and died a natural death.

The committee adjourned until Nov. 8, the day after the city election. Mr. Alexander, chairman of the committee, announced that several of the members of the committee, the assemblymen were up for re-election, and that at that time a little more raising. After election there will probably be five sessions of the committee a week until the inquiry is concluded.

WOMAN KILLS A CONSTABLE

The Victim Leaves a Sick Wife and Six Children.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Oct. 25.—Constable Peter Martin, of Marion, was shot through the heart in Cedar Rapids by Mrs. Zetta Eddies in her home yesterday afternoon. He was attempting to serve a writ of execution and remove some furniture.

The woman, to frighten Martin, shot once into the ceiling over his head. He persisted, however, in taking the furniture out of the house, and then she shot him dead.

Martin had been a constable for fifteen years and was a veteran of the civil war. He leaves an invalid wife and six young children.

The Norwegian Oath.

Christiania, Oct. 25.—The Government, at a secret session of the Storting, today asked to be endowed with full power to negotiate with Prince Charles of Denmark for his acceptance of the crown of Norway, and the understanding that the people of Norway endorse the decision of the Storting, and the Government, by a referendum similar to that taken on Aug. 12 on the question of the dissolution of the union. The debate was postponed until Friday.

To Win Twenty-Five Cents Drunk Wrecks a Train

Intoxicated Farmer Decides He Will Wake Up Town So He Runs Engine Into Standing Freight.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—In a drunken prank at Chesterton, Ind., Patrick MacGrath climbed into the cab of a freight engine on the Lake Shore Railway yesterday, and after crowding on full steam, tried to bunt a work train off the siding. The train and engine were demolished in the collision, and four Italian section hands were injured, but MacGrath got off unscathed. He explained that he had made a bet that he "would give this sleepy old town some excitement."

MacGrath, who is a farmer, drove into Chesterton early in the morning, and, after hitching his team in front of the postoffice, waited for the tour of the saloons. In the course of his plights he acquired an exhilaration that led him to great ambitions. He offered cheerfully to thrash any man in the town regardless of weight, and when this challenge was unaccepted, cast about for other methods of amusement.

After tacking up and down Main street several times MacGrath noticed a large freight engine standing on a side track with the steam hissing through the safety valve. The crowd had gone off to dinner and the huge locomotive was without a keeper.

"I'm going to wake this old graveyard up," boasted the farmer, with many hiccups.

"G'wan, you said that before," jeered a companion.

"I'll bet you two bits I'll give it plenty of excitement in ten minutes," insisted MacGrath.

The bet was taken, and the farmer lurched in the direction of the switchyards. He managed to pull himself into the cab of the big engine, and, propping himself against the engineer's seat, began to juggle with the levers. He wrenched the water cocks, shoved over the reverse, and finally pulled out the throttle to the last notch.

The engine sped down the track, gaining speed with every turn of the driving wheels. Half-way down the yards was a siding on which was a construction train. At the rear end was a freight car used as a dining car by a gang of sectionmen. Inside six Italian laborers were sitting down to a frugal meal of spaghetti and bacon.

Plunging along at the rate of forty miles an hour, the wild engine rushed into the work train, telescoping four cars and piling the Italians in a mass of debris. Four men were injured and the engine became a mass of twisted iron and steel.

When help came MacGrath was climbing out of the wreckage, sobered but otherwise uninjured. The two Italians who had escaped without injury had dragged their four companions to places of safety and were advancing on the farmer with drawn knives. MacGrath took to his heels, regained his buggy in front of the postoffice, and hastened forward.

Later Detective Rank, of the Lake Shore road, and Marshal Stephens, of Chesterton, captured and brought him to the town jail. He was taken before Judge W. C. McMahon, and bound over to the Porter county circuit court.

"I didn't intend no harm, judge," explained MacGrath. "I was simply trying to win a bet and liven things up a bit."

ACROBAT MAKES A RECORD

He Turns Triple Somersault From Springboard at Hippodrome.

New York, Oct. 25.—Dan O'Brien, a tumbler, achieved the ambition of his life at the Hippodrome yesterday morning when he executed a triple somersault from a springboard. The feat has never been accomplished before a lay audience. It was caused by the death of scores of athletes. O'Brien escaped with nothing worse than strained muscles.

O'Brien has spent his life leaping over elephants and camels and claims the record double somersault distance of 22 feet. After completing the triple turn yesterday he said: "I lost all brain sense after the second turn, and expected to land on my back or on the back of my neck. I shall be content with the 'double' hereafter."

"LORDOSIS," DEFECT OF RICH

Exaggerated Thrusting Out of Chest Is Symptom, Says Physician.

St. Louis, Oct. 25.—Lordosis is one of the penalties of riches. It is a physical defect, consisting of protrusion of the hips backward, and exaggeration of the forward thrust of chest and shoulders—what was once fashionable as the Greek bend.

It is peculiar to the children of the wealthy, said Dr. H. S. Wingert last night in an address delivered before the American Physical Education Association here. Speaking of the effects of heredity on the human race, he said:

"When you see a child with that chest and rounded shoulders you can frequently trace the trouble to parents with tuberculosis or phthisis. As your parents are, so you are. The offspring of the very rich suffer from a defect called lordosis."

Shotguns for Scorchers.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 25.—The St. Louis County court has authorized Sheriff Herpel to swear in four extra deputies for 30 days to patrol the county with shotguns and stop-watches, for the purpose of stopping scorchers, automobilists. The action was taken on the advice of prosecuting Attorney Johnston, who said the emergency existed.

MIDNIGHT BATTLE

WITH FIRE FIEND

Heroic Father and Mother Badly Scorched in Saving Children From the Flames.

Walkerville, Ont., Oct. 25.—Louis Ferrari, his wife and four small children, narrowly escaped being cremated when the hotel in Sandwich, East, burned to the ground early this morning. A neighbor, seeing the fire around the family, the father wrapped the children in bedclothes and beat his way with difficulty through the flames and smoke. The mother also did heroic work in saving two of the children. Both the father and mother were considerably scorched in getting out of the building. All of their belongings were burned including their clothes.

A MAN OF JUDGEMENT

G. T. R. Conductor Keeps His Head Under Trying Circumstances.

Kingston, Oct. 25.—Captain Donnelly states that when leaving Morrisburg on the westbound Grand Trunk train this morning, Fireman MacNair, Montreal, slipped on a piece of coal, and fell head first from the tender of the engine, alighting on the top of his head on the rail. The train was backed up, and MacNair taken into the station when it was found that he had sustained a bad scalp wound. Conductor Elliott acted with the best of judgment, telephoned for the doctor from Morrisburg, and borrowed a flask of stimulant, which was of great benefit to the injured man. A fireman was borrowed from a passing freight train, and a telegram was sent to the railmaster, during which not over three people on the train proceeded on its journey, arriving in Brockville on time.

IN FULL ACCORD

Great Britain and Russia Believed to Have Buried Differences.

Paris, Oct. 25.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Temps describes an audience that the British ambassador had yesterday with the Russian emperor, and says it has caused much astonishment, and that it was connected with the projected Anglo-Russian alliance, which seems to be inevitable since the failure of the scheme for a Russo-German alliance.

The Petit Parisien's St. Petersburg correspondent declares that an entente between Great Britain and Russia is an accomplished fact. He ascribes the success in bringing an understanding into the efforts of Mr. Bonaparte, the French ambassador to Russia, who worked hard to arrange a Russo-German alliance, and says that the emperor, according to the correspondent, is now a friend to a more pacific basis, leading to the development of commercial relationships in the far east and the maintenance of peace in Central Asia.

Can't Get the Power.

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 25.—F. H. McQuigan, fourth vice-president of the Grand Trunk Railway, when asked about the proposed use of electricity in the St. Clair tunnel, said:

"We require power to draw at least 50 tons in our train, as our tunnel locomotives now do, but so far no electric company has been able to demonstrate that it can do this. We are still working at the problem."

English Visitor

Wealthy Resident of Blackpool, England, Accidentally Killed at Port Elgin.

Port Elgin, Ont., Oct. 25.—Mr. Thompson Bennett, a wealthy resident of Blackpool, England, met with a fatal accident here today. He and a party of friends had been touring in the west and called here to spend a week with his nephew, Mr. John Bennett, intending to sail for home on the 31st inst. While walking about after dark Mr. Bennett fell into a cellar gangway and broke his neck. He lived some hours only. His nephew, with other friends in the company, are taking the body home to England, starting tomorrow. Deceased was a genial and wealthy bachelor and was enjoyed

North York Says Good-Bye to Sir William Mulock

Newmarket, Oct. 25.—There was a great gathering here this afternoon for the farewell reception being tendered to Sir William Mulock, who has borne the Liberal standard in North York for the past 24 years. The reception was held in the town hall, which was well filled. It was non-political, conservative, as well as Liberal, working hard to make it a success. People came from all parts of the riding. Sir William arrived about 2 o'clock from his farm, whither he went last night, and was right royally greeted. Many remarks complimentary to Sir William were made.

The Harvest of the Storm.

The sailors on the great lakes have been in need of a Pilsnol. Pilsnol was an Englishman who fought a hero's fight against the giant shipping interests of Great Britain on behalf of the humble seamen, who were shipped in death traps, and he lived to see the Pilsnol line established throughout the British merchant marine. Every British sea-going vessel bears the Pilsnol mark on her port side, and she is forbidden to carry a load which will submerge it.

There is no such protection for the sailors on the great lakes, which are periodically swept by storms almost as violent in their effects as the ocean tempests. Last week thirty vessels foundered or were wrecked on these inland seas, and eighteen souls went down to a watery grave. It is charged the Canadian carrier, the Clashed, which sank in Lake Huron with all her crew, was overloaded. Whether this is true or not, there is no effective prohibition of overloading in Canada or the United States. The public has learned this with painful surprise. It is said there is a law for the inspection of vessels loading at inland ports, but it has been observed in a very perfunctory manner. The Canadian Minister of Marine, with his usual energy, is determined to have this point settled as soon as possible.

Twelve of the vessels which foundered in last week's storm were over 30 years old, three of them having sailed the lakes for over 45 years. It is pointed out that there has been a careless disregard of human life. Mr. Pilsnol has the opportunity to be a Canadian Pilsnol.

Canada as a Holiday Ground.

The Canadian Northwest has been termed a discovery since it began to grow, and the British press is now discovering the discovery. It is quite the fashion now for British dailies to send staff correspondents to write up Canada. Most of them have confined their attention to the west, but the representative of the Commercial Intelligence of London touches on one of Canada's assets which is too little noticed, in addition to the finest holiday grounds. Of the latter the Commercial Intelligence correspondent says:

What Americans desire in choosing where to spend their summer vacation is a place where they can enjoy a cooler climate than their own, a more attractive scenery, (1) a view of water or river or lake, (2) fishing and boating, and (3) good surf bathing and a sandy shore where, which means itself, not to fashionable promenade, but to sun bath and saunter. All these attractions are offered in numerous places in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Quebec, which are reached by the Intercolonial Railway—the Government railway of Canada—and the Dominion Atlantic Railway, while further west, in the region served by the Grand Trunk, and only a few hours' pleasant ride by fast trains from Toronto, in the Muskoka country, there is a delightful summer climate, a district fresh and invigorating on account of its altitude and its forest surroundings, with boating and canoeing and many other charms as long as the summer and autumn last, and fishing as good as plentiful and as varied as in the most favored lake and river country. The resorts, for which the Maritime Provinces have now a world fame.

Canada's natural charms are an abiding legacy to her people, and the mountains and forests and the rivers and lakes of the Maritime Provinces and the streams, lakes and woods of Muskoka are among the scenic assets of the North American continent. When the boundary lines were finally drawn after the domestic unpopularity of 1776-82, Canada certainly got the best part of the natural beauties of the continent—most assuredly from the point of summer and autumn vacation life; and today these glorious possessions of Canada are of obvious and appreciable value in the present growing time in the Dominion.

The rush of American tourists to Canada in the summer months has reached great proportions, and is yearly growing. In Muskoka and Nipissing the Province of Ontario has one of the most spacious and attractive holiday grounds in the world. Our American cousins are probably the greatest summer "resorters" on earth, and many of them penetrated to the wilds of Nipissing long before the locomotive. The bulk of the tourists, however, prefer to keep within touch of the telegraph, the railroad and the postoffice. The new Temiskaming Railroad has opened up for them a new summer paradise. The present season introduced them to Lake Temagami, and the volume of tourist traffic exceeded all expectations. That region in a few years will be a second Muskoka. Eventually summer hotels will be springing up on the shores of James Bay. The scenic beauty of New Ontario is one of its natural resources which should be developed as well as its wealth of mine and forest.

A Contrast in Living.

Mr. Joseph Choate, late ambassador of the United States at the court of St. James, has been regaling his countrymen with some of his impressions gathered in an eight years' residence in England. He noted the immense activity of American life, and contrasted it with the more leisurely and less-loving habits of the English. He thought that Americans would do better if they devoted themselves less exclusively and energetically to business and paid more attention to the art of enjoying life. He thought that they might profitably emulate the example which the old world sets by allowing themselves a larger measure of relaxation and by cultivating a greater capacity for recreative pleasure, and he feared that if they did not, if they continued to lead the pace that kills, as it seemed to him that they are doing now, they would in the end be made to pay dearly for their folly.

Mr. Choate's advice is good, but there are some valid excuses to be made for the American. His way of living is still the way of the pioneer. The latter had a great work to do, building the nation, developing its resources, planting its institutions, making its wealth. These things demanded the highest degree of energy and resourcefulness, and produced a peculiarly active type of citizen. There was no country which offered such opportunities and such rewards. Its boundless material wealth stimulated men to exertion, and the habits of one generation became nature in the next. It is different in a country like England which, to use Kipling's expression, has "arrived," and in which people have moved for generations in well-defined grooves. The Americans of today and their pleasure in work, but with the accumulation of wealth a class is arising which will be disposed to take life easier, and will set an example of leisure which will gradually change the modes of living.

[Thanks, J. V. N.]

There are no people who have more reason as a nation to be in a Thanksgiving frame of mind than the people of Canada. This country has been favored above most others, and this year in a special degree. We have had the greatest harvest in our history. We are entering on the greatest era of railway construction in our history. Immigration has this year broken all records, and attained a volume unhoped for a decade ago. Industry continues in full swing and labor is fully employed. We have been blessed with an unexampled prosperity. If there is any danger it is a danger arising out of an excess of prosperity which may tempt men to improvident or reckless courses. We can only hope that moral and intellectual progress is keeping pace with material progress.

If I Should Die Tonight.

[H. F. Gadsby, in Toronto Star.]
Lines supposed to be spoken by Sir Wilfrid Laurier on reading in the press the tributes to Sir William Mulock on his retirement from public life.
If I should die tonight,
The world would look upon my quiet face
Perhaps, who knows, would even have the grace
To say that Laurier didn't do so bad, Considering the troubles that he'd had,
And, weighing this and t'other—how I can Admit that I had managed fairly well—
It would, that is, if I were dead all right.

If I should die tonight,
The world would come and stand beside my bed,
And take back all the hard things it had said,
And point out how I got the best of Blair,
And prove I did the state good service
And, sobbing editorially, explain
How well I stood with W. E. Macdougall—
It would, if I were dead and dead tonight.

If I should die tonight,
The telegram would summon up a tear,
Give forth, sharp, scolding screams above my head,
And hold it a deplorable trait in me
That Canada owns half the G. T. P.
And, quivering with remorse, would softly say:
"We always loved poor, erring Laurier,
And, though sometimes he caused our check to blench,
The only reason was he thought in French."
It would, if I were dead for keeps tonight.

If I should die tonight,
Before my body was put underground,
The opinion press would gather round
And intimate that I had done some good.
That, often, I had been misunderstood.
And that, that, now that I was dead and gone,

Behind the Lattice.

[Isaac Klier.]
Behind the lattice eagerly she waited,
And oft she scanned the clock and deeply sighed;
Her heart was a thousand fears was freighted,
And had he tarried long she must have died.
He came at last, all flushed with hope, to greet
Back from the lattice, ere he knew, she fled.
And as his hands outstretched he rushed
To meet her.
She checked him with the proud poise
Of her head.

He went away, half hoping and half fearing,
And as he mingled with the passing crowd,
She, wounded with gladness, through the lattice peering,
Forgot to be reserved and calm and proud.

Deserving of Recognition.

[Montreal Herald.]
It is an amazing thing that Canada has no monument to Lieut.-Col. John Macdonnell, who was Attorney-General of Upper Canada at the time of the war of 1812, and who went to the front as military secretary and aide-de-camp to Sir Isaac Brock, and fell beside him at Queenston Heights. Young Macdonnell was then just 25 years of age and was entering upon his brilliant career in our political history; but he laid it all upon the altar of his equally young country. He was strongly praised by Sir Isaac Brock and by his successor, and had already performed a great national service, in arranging the surrender of the American army at Detroit. For him Glenagarry has a particularly warm spot in his heart, for he was a Glenagarry boy, and sat in the Legislature for that county, and it is a question whether a monument to him should stand on the historic heights where he fell, or in the Legislative building, where he has long been so proudly remembered. At the same session of the United Empire Loyalists' Association, at which a fitting memorial of Lieut.-Col. Macdonnell was proposed, a monument to the great Indian, Tecumseh, the hero of 1812, and has to his credit was suggested. He was also one of much of the honor of that splendid campaign of national defense. The Indian race in this country, has few—if any—greater names than Tecumseh; and a recognition at this time of his services to the British crown would be a gracious and well-deserved, if belated act.

But it can't be compared with a pay day.

The Seal and the Polar Bear.

[Punch.]
Once there lived a Polar bear.
Where the north's wastes were,
Creamy white his trousers were,
And his glance pathetic.
For he loved a little seal.
Who despised his passion,
Scorning every fond appeal
In the coldest fashion.
Serenades in vain he played,
Vainly coyly batted,
Danced the Arctic fling and made
Half the penguins frantic.
He climbed the pole that coy seal
Expedition leaders
Began imaginary bing
From pretended feeders.

Up she turned her nose in pride,
Down she curled her whiskers.
Vowed she never could abide
The sentimental frisk of a love Pluitor to a young widow, a handsome cavalry officer, Count Georges Perrady, Lost his appetite for seal
More and more dejected.

Desperate, he made his way
To an iceberg sailing
For the continent one day:
When she started with a name,
"Algonquin" (such was his name),
"Let us not be parted!"
Ah! for late repentance came,
For the bear had started.

Algy soon in sunny France
Drew large audiences,
Sung his songs and danced his dance,
More than sold expect, but
But the little seal, bereft,
Could stand the racket,
Pined away till night was left
Save a sealskin jacket.

Wayward beauty! Notice here
For yourselves a warning:
Waywardness makes a dear
Take no prize in scoring.
She whose haughty maidenhood
Made her say she would stand beside When at last she thought she would,
Found, poor dear, she couldn't.

October.

[Archibald Lampman.]
Now that the summer reached her golden close,
And lo! amid her cornfields, bright of soul,
Sarcophagi pervades from her divine repose
How near, how swift, the inevitable goal!

Still, she smiles, though from her careless feet
The bounty and the fruitful strength are gone,
And through the soft, long, wondering days goes on
The silent, serene decadence, sad and sweet.

Where the tiled earth with all its fields
Is set free,
Naked and yellow from the harvest lies,
By many a loft and busy granary
The hum and tumult of the threshers rises
There the tanned farmers labor without slack.

Till twilight deepens round the spouting mill, Feeding the loosened sheaves, or with fierce will Pitching wheel-deep upon the dusty track
In far-off sunset cornfields, where the dry
Gray shocks stand erect and withering, Half concealed.

In the rough earth the orange pumpkins lie,
Full-ribbed, and in the wilderness pasture field
The sleek red horses o'er the sun-warmed ground
Straggle pensively about in companies;
While all around them from the motionless trees,
The long clean shadows sleep without a sound.

Thus without grief the golden days go by,
So soft, we scarcely notice how they end,
And like a smile, half happy, or a sigh,
The summer passes to her quiet end.
And soon, too soon, around the cumbered eaves,
Sly folk, shall take the creepers by surprise.

And through the wind-touched reddening woods shall rise
November, with the rain of ruined leaves.

PASTOR FLEES IN DESPAIR

Denizens of "Pagan Hook" in England Refuse to Go to Church
London, Oct. 25.—The Rev. W. M. Dingwall, vicar of Hook, near Kingston-on-Thames, has drawn up the care of his parish and fled in despair to seek rest in the West Indies, because his people are pagans. The village, in fact, is known as Pagan Hook, because the people will not go to church.

Before sailing this week the broken-hearted vicar said:
"I have worked it hard here for nearly three years, and it seems in vain. I have spoken to them personally, and I have inspired them from the pulpit, but they will not come to church. No effort, either spiritual or material, no concert, whether of an extremely popular popular, and no branch of church activity that I have been able to devise or carry on will induce the people of Hook to come to church."

"There is a population of about 1,700, but few attend church, and these are not Hook people. In fact, it is a village that is spiritually asleep."

DREAM BURGLARS CAME IN REALITY

Robbed This Lady as She Had Seen Them Do in Her Night Vision.

New York, Oct. 25.—Burglars and highwaymen these days are more numerous in Clifton Park, Weehawken, than commuters; so when Miss Mabel Goble, a teacher, aroused the family of E. L. Ostrom, with whom she boarded, Saturday midnight, with screams of fright arising from dreams of masked men with lanterns and revolvers, they told her that the lawlessness of the neighborhood was working. "But I saw them just as plain as day," she protested. "They opened my trunk and took my diamond pin. Then they went out of the room, and by and bye came back and climbed out of my window with a bag full of plunder." To satisfy Miss Goble's family, the police searched the house from cellar to garret with the head of the house and a candle in the lead. There was not a sign of burglary or real phantom. "You can laugh at me if you will," said Miss Goble, "but I believe that was a dream. I believe in dreams, and I packed up my jewelry and most of her clothes, and when she went to call Sunday night she carried them in a bag. The Ostroms laughed and went out to call. When they got home at midnight they found everything topsy-turvy. The dream burglars had come, and $1,000 worth of jewelry, silverware and clothing had disappeared. There were Jimmy marks on the wall, and a window by which they had entered and left the house. The burglars went through her trunk, as she had seen them in a dream, but all they got was a diamond pin which she had overlooked in packing her valuables.

POISON IN LOVE PHILTRE

Cavalry Officer Nearly Kills the Lady of His Choice.

London, Oct. 25.—The Daily Mail publishes the following from Paris: In the belief that he was administering a love philtre to a young widow, a handsome cavalry officer, Count Georges Perrady, gave her a dose of poisonous fluid.

He had met the lady at the seaside, and subsequently he visited her in Paris. She repelled his advances, however, and he asked an elderly friend, who possessed the reputation of being an alchemist, to give him a love philtre. The alchemist, who is looked upon as somewhat mad, gave the count a small bottle of colorless liquid. The officer contrived to drop into the lady's wineglass when dining with her.

No sooner had she drank from the glass than she became pale and fell to the floor, suffering from cramp. A doctor was called in and declared it to be a case of poisoning.

The count promptly gave himself up to the police commissary of the Chateau district and made a full confession, but as the widow is now out of danger he was released from the Canadian Government in a marriage affair.

Couldn't Market Their Crop.

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 25.—The steamship Mascott has been chartered by Windsor men, and will make regular trips for the present between Windsor and Pelee Island, to bring the island crops to market. The islanders have lost heavily this season, being forced to let fruit and produce go to waste because of lack of transportation facilities. The Mascott was available since the Lincoln was burned. The Mascott is an American boat, and a special permit had to be secured from the Canadian Government to allow her to go on the route.

Make Home Dyeing Successful By Using

As there are weak, adulterated and worthless package dyes under varied names sold by some dealers to whom large profits are of more concern than the home success and comfort of our women and girls, we would urge all who ask for DIAMOND DYES to see that each package bears the words "DIAMOND PACKAGE DYES". Beware of common package dyes introduced in your town which pretend to dye all materials equally well with one dye. Such package dyes are snares and delusions. They ruin good dresses and all other articles of clothing, and are dangerous to handle. The Diamond Dyes are the popular home dyes all over the world, and ladies at all times can depend upon their strength, beauty and everlasting colors. Refuse all cruds and weak dyes and cling to the reliable Diamond Dyes, and you are sure of success in home coloring work. 46-K-2-W

BY DIRECT METHODS

By John Barton Oxford.

Briggs had drawn a chair to the open window and was deep in the financial page of the evening paper. So engrossed was he in the current page of listed securities, that the chatter of Mrs. Briggs, who, in a long pink kimono, was fixing her hair before the mirror, fell on unheeding ears. He frowned prodigiously behind his paper and answered his wife in perfunctory monosyllables. But presently from Mrs. Briggs' lips there fell a certain ominous phrase that caused the paper to be lowered suddenly and his interest in the financial page to sink into the realm of insignificance.

"They are simply made for each other, dear," Mrs. Briggs was saying. "What! demand her spouse, somewhat belatedly?"

"That couple that were playing on the golf course this morning," she explained, "this girl with the long pink kimono, was fixing her hair before the mirror, fell on unheeding ears. BOTH FOOD AND MEDICINE.

We like best to call Scott's Emulsion a food-medicine. It is a term that aptly describes the character and action of our Emulsion. More than a medicine—more than a food, yet combining the vital principles of both. It is for this reason that Scott's Emulsion has a distinct and special value in all wasting diseases. There is nothing better to remedy the troubles of imperfect growth and delicate health in children. The action of Scott's Emulsion is just as effective in treating weakness and wasting in adults.

"The late Gen. Lew Wallace, said a novelist, 'often used to amuse himself by bookmaking to get a work published well was quite as difficult as to write it well.'

"He claimed that good writers were poor in the world's goods because they neglected the publishing side of their vocation. Such neglect was foolish on their part. It indicated bad judgment. It reminded him of a man who, in the middle of a bath, Gen. Wallace told me one day of a bath-house keeper.

"This bathhouse keeper knew the working side of his business beautifully. No one with a glance could judge a man's or a woman's size and hand and put a fitting bathing suit as well as he. No one kept his bathhouse cleaner, supplied better towels, furnished such elaborate shower baths. So far so good. But, like the average novelist, this man fell short on certain other things.

"He was continually making the most foolish and inexplicable blunders continually losing patronage.

"For instance, a young woman wanted a bathhouse one morning and he told her she would have to wait awhile, as all the houses were occupied. Then he came from his little office and told her that he had a bathhouse for her.

CHRISTY GREATEST OF ALL PITCHERS

Veteran Umpire Says He Has Never Seen Superior of the Giants' Star.

Chicago, Oct. 25. — Jack Sheridan, who has just completed his twentieth year as a baseball umpire, returned from the east yesterday, and in speaking of the series for the world's championship between the Giants and Athletics, which he and Hank O'Day umpired, said:

"Mathewson is the greatest pitcher the game ever knew. I have seen them all, and Matty has them all beaten. Clarkson, Rustie, Waddell, Baldwin, Chesbro and many others were winners, and Chesbro is still, but none of them can be compared to the form Matthewson showed in the post-season games.

"That was an easy series to umpire. There was scarcely any trouble with the players. McGraw never showed himself on the coaching lines until the last two days, and then had little to say. Of course if his team had been beaten I think it would have been a little different. The Giants don't take defeat very gracefully, but as the games went there was not the slightest trouble in keeping the men in check.

"The main trouble with the Athletics was the failure to test the Giants on was the failure to test the Giants on their weak points. Instead of pestering Bresnahan by stealing bases and bunting they let the New York catcher have everything his own way. Bres-nahan is a strong thrower, but excitable and erratic, and had the Athletics tried a little foxy work on the bases they might have put Roger into the air and got the Giants off their feet. But instead of doing that they did not take the aggressive, merely coming up to the bat with the thought, 'Well, I'll make one more out.' "

Sheridan insists that he is through with baseball. Jack has been umpiring games for just twenty years, and says that is long enough. He will go into the undertaking business in Los Angeles, Cal., soon.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"THE SIGN OF THE FOUR."
Among the many peculiar characters in "The Sign of the Four," a play that has won an international reputation, there is a particularly striking figure, Edward E. Rice, several months to secure the services of an actor minus one limb. Finally, after he had been three agents on a hunt for this particular kind of a professional, an actor with one good leg and part of another walked into Mr. Rice's office one day and applied for a position. Needless to say, he was immediately placed in the cast of "The Sign of the Four." This is the greatest of the most important parts of the drama. "The Sign of the Four" comes to the Grand on Saturday, matinee and night, at popular prices.

"THE SERIO-COMIC GOVERNNESS."
There is more to "The Serio-Comic Governess," which comes to the Grand on Monday evening next, than to the average so-called musical comedy. "The Serio-Comic" is a play of the highest quality, which there is a story, a clear, tangible thread, that is not only easily followed throughout the entire action of the play, but is interesting, consistent and amusing. It is permeated with a rich vein of humor, a humor of the highest order. The play is a most enjoyable one. The principal comedy role has been entrusted to the experienced hand of Henry Donnelly, who made all America laugh last year after year, when he toured the country as a member of the firm, Donnelly and Girard. Vivadous Nellie Beaumont, whose work has often been compared to that of Rosina Vokes, appears as co-star with Donnelly, and Nellie O'Neill, the music hall favorite, supporting Miss Beaumont and Mr. Donnelly is a strong company, including a beauty chorus and a pony ballet.

CONDEMNED "BABY TALK"

Freebel Society Thinks It Should Not Be Inflicted On Children.

"Language" was the subject of the paper read and discussed at the Free-bel Society this week. The members felt that, being the foundation for conversation, reading and composition, this branch of education in the home and kindergarten needs due consideration. The study of the simple thought, gesture and word of the savage, of the mother and child, and of the deaf and dumb, up to the complicated thought, gesture and word, of the philosopher and orator, gives a clearer understanding of the child and his relation to language.

All agreed that the "baby talk" so often inflicted upon children, was much to be condemned, as the child could not possibly acquire a good vocabulary of simple, pure words, unless those around him used such when speaking in his presence.

NOTHING LIKE
IT IN HAMILTON

Ald. Macleod Has Good Words
for London's Central Fire Hall.

Ald. Macleod, chairman of the fire and light committee of the Hamilton
City Council, is the guest of Chief Clark, of the local fire department.
Ald. Macleod came up from Hamilton yesterday afternoon, and he will return home this evening.

Being particularly interested in fire department matters, Ald. Macleod visited the central fire hall, and was shown through the headquarters of the local fire fighters.

"What are your impressions of the hall?" Ald. Macleod was asked.
"It is very well equipped," he answered, "very well equipped."
"How does the station compare with those in Hamilton, which pride itself on its fire department?"

"We have no halls in Hamilton that can be compared with the central fire hall," said Ald. Macleod, who did not forget to remind the questioner that the Hamilton department was superior to London's.

"What does appear to need," said Ald. Macleod, "is another, or possibly two new stations."

ADDRESSES TOOK UP ENTIRE TIME

Many Interesting Subjects Discussed at Sunday School Convention.

Yesterday afternoon's session of the Sunday school convention opened with a brief service of praise and prayer conducted by Rev. D. S. Hamilton, of the First Congregational Church. The quarter of the hour was characterized by spiritually impressive worship, and was a fitting beginning to the afternoon's work.

Mr. Lawrence, of the Department, occupied the attention of the large audience for nearly an hour. The subject was discussed generally, each delegate being allowed to speak on the work. Leaders, with upwards of thirty questions, on them, were passed around, and a few minutes' discussion on each was asked.
The reason of the work, its necessity, importance, constitution, methods of work, difficulties experienced in active work, its financial condition—all were briefly referred to. Mr. Lawrence led the conference, and threw light on the different topics.

The treasurer's report was submitted by Mr. Theron Gibson, Toronto.

Mr. Lawrence's Address.
Mr. Lawrence, of the Department, general secretary of the International Sunday School Union, gave a very able address on "Our Needs and Means to Meet Them." A new vision of the possibilities of organized labor was an essential need in the rapid progress in the Sunday school work in this Province. "Sub-soiling is the thing essential—a general loosening up of the many minds the association work. A basis of work was necessary. Twice as many men could be used as are now at work, and then there is a particular need to cover the ground. Three times as much money should be spent.

The associations are practically beginning. They don't realize the possibilities of the work. When a proper vision of these is acquired, the entire organization will receive such an impulse as has never been experienced before.

To get the money was not the object of the work. Money was just an incident. The object was to get the work enthusiased, the money will come fast enough. When the heart is obtained, the money is sure to come afterwards.
The money was not the object. The object was to get the work enthu-siased. He is a messenger for God.
The secretaries were not hired help.
They were in the work in the work in the sum that they received was but nominal. They were characterized as servants.

Things That Are Being Done.
Some recommendations of the previous international convention were being crystallized. The appointment of a man for Sunday school work in Japan was under way, and a Mexican association had been formed with an able secretary in charge. The work in the south was progressing among the Negroes. Two secretaries, Messrs. W.
Pearson and J. W. Moutrey, were doing very effective work. A great missionary field lay in the northern part of this Province, and the speaker made an earnest appeal for contributions for the furtherance of the work.
The work of the associations, both in this field and all over the Province.

Mr. E. A. Hardy conducted an open conference on teacher training. The importance of this work was again emphasized, its methods explained, and its merits extolled. The convention as a whole seems to feel the great importance of this branch of the work, and every effort of Mr. Hardy was being heartily indorsed.

Sunday School and the Bible.
The evening session opened in the First Methodist Church and was very well attended. Nearly 400 delegates were present, and this number was supplemented largely by citizens in the young people until the church was well filled.

Mrs. Lamoureux, of Chicago, International primary field worker, gave an address on "The Sunday School and the Bible," that found a ready opening in the hearts of the people present. It was a whole new and most instructive value, but it was an address of heartfelt interest. The subject was a general one.

The period when a boy is arriving at years of adolescence is the critical one of his life. From 12 to 20 are the years when a new birth occurs in his life.

He is reborn physically, morally and mentally. These are the years when heredity becomes manifest. The inheritance that his ancestors have left him begin to show itself, and his habits become crystallized. Bad habits take root during this time and become fixed, and nothing but God's dynamite can overcome them.

In the "Tens" the life is most susceptible to induced influences, environments, etc., take their effect then. Boys are influenced more at 17 and girls at 15 than at any other period of life.
"If God has privileged you to come into contact with a life at this crisis,
I plead with you in his name to grasp it and hold it, that you may instill his love and grace therein."

Crisis in Life of the Young.
There are three great crises in a boy's or girl's life—the physical crisis in boys, from 12 to 16, and girls, from 12 to 15 years; the crisis of emotion in boys from 16 to 18, and girls from 15 to 17 years; and the crisis in intellect, in boys from 18 to 24, and in girls from 17 to 21.

In the first-named crisis there were two classes of feelings, of which one was the social instinct. Bright out of ten boys get into a club.
"If Paul were a modern Sunday school worker, I believe he would have some sort of social gathering for boys."
This social instinct was shown first at the time (in a boy's life), of bonfires and bare legs, games under the lamp-post, and "cave-builders." Altruistic feelings come over the young at this impressionist period, and when a feeling begins to grow it is the crucial time for this feeling to be nourished, or it will die. The emotional crisis is when a life becomes self-sustaining—morally, consciously. Especially with girls does this condition become apparent. This is the time when either a girl or boy ought to have a close friend.

Further discussion of the subject was prevented by lack of time, and much to the regret of her hearers. Mrs.
Lamoureux closed her able address
with these words:
"These are critical years, for it is at this time that the decision for Jesus Christ should come. In later years it is ever so much more unlikely to come.
There is a particular need, secular teaching out for him up to 15 years of age, and then the line drops and it never comes again."

Sabbath Observance.
Rev. J. G. Shearer, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, delivered a vigorous address on the line of which he has been engaged. He expected the co-operation of the Sunday school workers in keeping the religious integrity of the Sabbath. The life of the Sunday school depended on the Sabbath, for it was not possible for Sunday schools to do their work while the Sabbath was desecrated to a very great extent. As long as the Sabbath remains and has its integrity, just so long will the Sunday school continue.
The influences of greed and selfishness were vigorously denounced for their desecration of the sanctity of the Sabbath. There are 150,000 Sabbathless follies in Canada today.

Mr. J. J. Kelso, superintendent of the Department of neglected and dependent children, Toronto, gave an interesting insight into the work of taking care of homeless children. The lecture was thrilled by sympathetic views which were excellent in every way. The two states of the children before and after they were cared for and rescued were shown.
