FRENCH DRIVE ON GERMAN MARNE INTO THE DIAPY CROWN PRINCE'S HORDES CAUGHT IN 'PIAVE' TRAP

MAIN ALLIED SMASH IN FALL TO DRIVE GERMANS TO RHINE

Real Counter-Offensive of Entente Powers Set For Later In Year When Overwhelming Numbers Will Chase Huns From Belgium and France--General March Tells Senate German Offensive Is Completely Stopped.

Washington, D. C., July 20.—War department officials expect the real counter-offensive against the Germans to be launched later in the present year. This was disclosed to members of the House military committee by Gen. March, chief of staff, who indicated that the employment of possibly eight American divisions in the present double battle on the Aisne-Marne-Rheims front would not affect materially plans to hurl overwhelming man-power into the great struggle to come when the effort to beat the enemy back off French and Belgian soil begins.

It was made plain that the smashing attack of Franco-American forces on the Aisne-Marne line is as yet regarded as only a minor operation in comparison to what is to come. The success of the drive launched by Gen. Foch, however, has already been startling.

Washington, July 20.—Six of Gen. Pershing's divisions, or about 200,000 American troops, are fighting with the French in the present offensive in the Aisne-Marne district. Gen. March, chief of staff, today advised members of the Senate military committee, at their weekly conference, that the Franco-American offensive will continue as long as it is possible to force the Germans back, Gen. March stated.

Gen. March told the senators also that the Germans had been preparing for an offensive against the British to the north on the western front, to be simultaneous with the German offensive against the Franco-American front.

For some reason, Gen. March stated, the drive against the British was postponed, and that is the probable explanation given for the British policy of not attacking the Germans until the British and Americans are engaged in their offensive. Allied military opinion, Gen. March said, is unanimous that the German offensive movement has been completely stopped.

EX-CZAR OF RUSSIA SHOT

London, July 20.—Former Emperor Nicholas, of Russia has been shot, according to a wireless statement today.

ENEMY MUST STOP ALLIES OR GIVE UP MILES OF GROUND

Two Choices Only Are Open Now to German High Command.

Washington, D. C., July 20.—Two choices, in the opinion of military observers here today, are open to the German high command as the result of the Franco-American drive between the Aisne and the Marne, and decision must be made within thirty-six hours. Either the advance of the allied troops must be halted, it was said, or the Germans must evacuate the salient they hold south of the Marne, and possibly the entire territory they held at the time of the offensive on the Chemin-des-Dames front last May. The Germans, it was believed, must stop the counter-attack before Sunday night or fall back.

All reports indicate that despite strengthening resistance due, no doubt, to fresh reserves being thrown into the battle, the French and American forces are gaining steady progress. The war department has received no confirmation of the reported capture of Soissons, but there was a distinct feeling that the city was in the Allied hands.

BRITISH LINE IS EXTENDED TO HEBUTERNE

Village of Meteren Held and 436 Prisoners Are Taken.

London, July 20.—British troops last night advanced their line on a mile north south of the town of Hebuterne, the war office announced today.

London, July 20.—As the result of yesterday's operation on the Flanders front the British line was advanced along a broad front of 4,000 yards in the Meteren sector. The village of Meteren, and a group of buildings southwest of the village are now held by the British troops. The prisoners taken aggregate 436.

BOLSHEVIK TROOPS BADLY DEFEATED IN EASTERN SIBERIA

General Semenov Takes Men, Stores and Ammunition.

London, July 20.—Gen. Semenov, the anti-Bolshevik leader in Eastern Siberia, says a Tien-Tsin dispatch to the Daily Mail dated Thursday, has inflicted a sharp blow, with heavy losses in men, stores and ammunition. The correspondent does not specify his opponents or the date or place of the action.

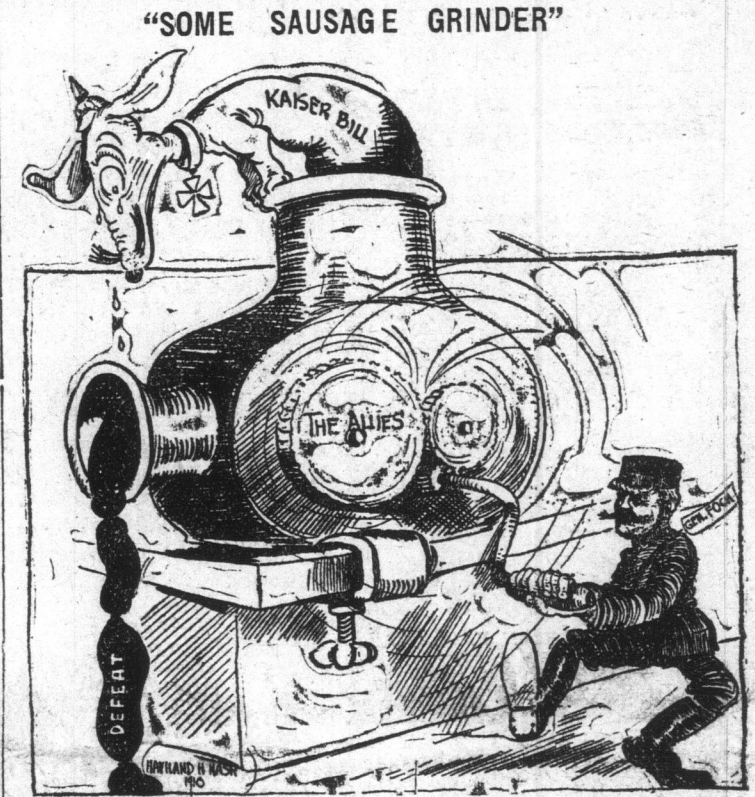

An Associated Press dispatch from Peking, dated Monday, reported that Gen. Semenov again had taken the field and had occupied Sharsun. It was not reported that there was any fighting.

TWO ZEPPELS DESTROYED BY BRITISH AVIATORS

Copenhagen, July 20.—German airship sheds at Tondern, in Schleswig-Holstein, were bombed recently by three British airmen, and two zeppelins were destroyed, according to an eyewitness account of the raid printed in the newspaper Stifts Tidende of Ribe, Denmark. The four hits obtained by the airmen started a fire, which lasted half an hour, during which the zeppelins were burned.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS DRIVES GERMANS BACK

London, July 20.—A German airplane crossed the Kentish coast this morning and was driven back by the fire of anti-aircraft guns, according to an official announcement.

OVER 1,100 SAVED FROM TORPEDOED CRUISER LANDED

Survivors Brought Into New York From Scene of Sinking Off Fire Island—Navy Department Unable Yet to Give Estimate of the Dead.

New York, July 20.—All the survivors of the cruiser San Diego, said to number over 1,100, have arrived in New York. They were brought in during the night from the scene of the destruction of the cruiser, which was sunk off Fire Island, just east of New York, yesterday.

According to the commander of one of the rescuing ships which brought in some five hundred of the crew, the survivors were of the opinion that the San Diego was torpedoed.

LOSS OF LIFE NOT KNOWN. Washington, July 20.—The department still is without information as to whether there was loss of life, though it is known that nearly all of the officers and men of the crew have been landed by rescue steamers.

BEHAVIOR CRUISER SUBBED. Washington, July 20.—That the cruiser San Diego was sunk by a torpedo is expressed in a dispatch today from the chief of staff of cruiser reports to the navy department. The dispatch follows: "The captain of the San Diego reports that he is inclined to believe that the ship was sunk by torpedoes. There are no conclusive factors, however, on which to base a definite opinion at present, in view of the following circumstances: "1.—No torpedo wake was seen. "2.—No convincing evidence that periscope was seen. "3.—No submarine appeared, in spite of the fact that three unarmed rescue ships were in the vicinity for about two hours. "4.—Ship was struck on port side."

SWEDEN MINISTER AND STAFF HAVE BEEN LOST

Tokyo, July 20.—The whereabouts of G. O. Wallenberg, recently Swedish minister to Japan, who left for home by way of Siberia two months ago, with a party of fellow-Swedes, is not known, and friends here are mystified. Advice received from Sweden says that he has not arrived there.

Minister Wallenberg and fourteen other Swedes were compelled to leave on May 25 because of unusual conduct.

FOCH ROLLING HUNS BACK IN THE SOUTH; GAINS AT SOISSONS

U.S. TROOPS WENT UP HILLS COVERED WITH GERMAN DEAD

Yankees Advanced on Soissons-Chateau Thierry Front Against Heavy Fire.

TANKS WERE IN ACTION. Difficulty Experienced by American Officers in Holding Men Back.

With the American Troops Between the Aisne and the Marne, Friday, July 19, Night.—By the Associated Press. American troops participating in the allied advance of about a mile and a quarter on the Soissons-Chateau Thierry front late today went forward against strong machine gun fire over ground covered with German dead. From a hill east of Domlery, about six kilometers southwest of Soissons, the correspondent on Friday saw the Americans going into action in the forward movement. The advance was well organized and the system worked well from one end of the line to the other. Under a barrage fire from 75's and 88's, infantry and machine gunners advanced through rippling grain fields trampled by the retreating Germans on Thursday, and reached their objectives according to schedule, despite the fire of German machine guns. The bombardment of the big German guns was feeble at this point.

The Americans started from a point just west of the Paris-Soissons road, near the village of Maucourt, and advanced a kilometer before the Germans began to reply with their big guns to the Allies' barrage. Missy-aux-Bois lies in a valley, and the American were advancing up the hillside toward the east. A few tanks were here and there preceding the infantrymen. The advance was well organized and the system worked well from one end of the line to the other. Dead Covered Hill. The hillside east of Domlery, over which the Americans advanced, were dotted with dead. The entire region was well within the German lines until after the French offensive on Thursday. One quickly-dug trench had been filled with German bodies. The Americans were advancing up the hillside toward the east. A few tanks were here and there preceding the infantrymen. The bombardment of the big German guns was feeble at this point.

Behind the advancing troops came trucks loaded with various foodstuffs. These went back and forth steadily. The chauffeurs of these trucks were frequently under fire. One chauffeur passed through Missy-aux-Bois, after pushing peasants before the Germans, and the result of the fire of the big guns. From the hillside the smoke and dust thrown up by the allied shells could be seen away beyond the advancing Americans. Behind the advancing troops came trucks loaded with various foodstuffs. From the hillside the smoke and dust thrown up by the allied shells could be seen away beyond the advancing Americans.

Twenty-five minutes after the Franco-American advance began, the rattle of German machine guns could be heard in the distance, but it did not affect the Americans, who only appeared more eager to progress. The officers had to caution the men not to proceed into the barrage, in accordance with the schedule. The German machine gunners, however, continued to fire, and as the Americans could be seen steadily pressing forward, the German machine gunners finally stopped.

Allies' Offensive Is Throwing the Germans Back to Southern Em- bankment of the Marne While Advance On Northern Section of Line Continues—Entente Wins Another 1,000 Yards At Rheims.

18,800 GERMANS FALL TO FOCH; FOE'S RESERVES ENTER LINES

With the French Armies in France, July 20, 11 a.m.—Entente Allied troops today are driving back the Germans on the southern bank of the River Marne and are now approaching the river embankment.

ANOTHER PIAVE.

Paris, July 20.—It is believed here that the Germans are in great danger of being caught at the Marne as the Austrians were at the Piave by the Italians.

PRISONERS TAKEN, 18,800.

London, July 20.—French troops on the Soissons front have extended their advance from Monte-de-Paris, southwest of the city, to Belleau, a town southeast of Soissons. The number of German prisoners taken in the Franco-American offensive now has reached 18,800.

On the Rheims front the French forces have advanced for a distance of 1,000 yards between Souain and Auberive. The French also made slight progress near Pourcy.

The French advanced on an average of one mile on a 20-mile front between noon yesterday and 9 o'clock last night.

MORE GROUND RETAKEN.

Paris, July 20.—French and American troops are continuing their advance between the Aisne and the Marne, according to an official statement issued by the war office today. South of the Marne the French have thrown back the enemy between Fossy and Oeuilly and have retaken ground towards the Marne.

ALLIES REACH LINE VIERZY.

The Allied advance has reached the line Vierzy, beyond the wood of Mauloy, east of Villers-Helon and Neuilly-St. Front.

100,000 RUSHING TO SAVE HUNS.

Paris, July 20.—The Germans have been forced to bring up 100,000 reserves to the army of the German crown prince as a result of yesterday's fighting, and the French and Americans, after fluctuations, have been able to strongly fortify the newly-gained positions southwest of Soissons, says Marcel Hutin in the Echo de Paris.

PERSHING GOING AHEAD.

Washington, D. C., July 20.—Continued progress by the Americans between the Aisne and the Marne was reported early today by Gen. Pershing in his communique for Friday.

The weather was clear this morning, and this gave some satisfaction to the thousands of men engaged on the Allied side. The indications, however, were that the day would be one of exceptional heat.

CLOSE TO TRANSPORT CENTRE.

Paris, July 20.—The French line has not been advanced much further toward Soissons, but the front is now very close to the main road opposite Villemontrou, six miles south of Soissons. Villemontrou is an important centre for the transport of German troops.

MENACE OF PARIS LIFTED BY THE ALLIES' GREAT COUNTER-BLOW

Paris, July 20.—M. Hutin, in the Echo de Paris, says that the enemy menace toward the Paris region has been frustrated, and that the efforts of the crown prince against Epernay, Montmirail and Rheims have gone for naught.

QUESTION ENGINEERING FEAT.—Residents of Sterling street, in the north end, have complained about the new sidewalk laid on that street. The walk has been put down much lower than the roadway. The residents question the engineer's action in having the ground underneath the sidewalk removed. Ald. Moorhead, who looked over the walk, says the only way out now is to lower the road. He has reported the matter to Chairman Moore of No. 2 committee.

RUSSIA WILL COME THROUGH FAVORABLY TO ALLIED CAUSE

Londoners Told of Excellent Market for Their Wares

There is a restricted but none the less favorable opportunity for Canadian manufacturers to trade with Russia, according to C. F. Just, former Canadian trade commissioner stationed at Petrograd. Mr. Just was in London on Thursday, talking to London manufacturers. He left Russia in March via Finland, taking four weeks to get out. He was most cautious in discussing political questions in connection with the past or future of Russia, but expressed great confidence that eventually the outcome of Russia's troubles will be favorable to the Allies.

CHILD WELFARE NURSE MUCH-CONTESTED POSITION

Many Applicants But Work Calls for Special Training.

A big sheaf of applications has been forwarded to the secretary of the London Child Welfare Association, Mrs. P. T. Robinson, for the position of child welfare nurse in London, and in turn have been given to Col. Gantshore, chairman of the special committee appointed to consider the applications. It is probable a meeting of the executive will be called within a few days to receive the recommendation of the special committee for the important office. Of fifteen or twenty applications, some cannot be considered, for the reason that those making them are not qualified.

CROP CONDITIONS IN THIS DISTRICT ROSE

Bradstreet's Says Yield Promises To Be Above Average.

London reports to Bradstreet's that retail distribution has been stimulated by more seasonable weather. Crop conditions in this district are splendid, and the yield promises to be above the average. At country points trade has been decidedly better, and the outlook for good fall and winter trade is good. The shortage of goods in some lines makes it a difficult problem to fill all orders. Price changes have been made in some hardware lines, and builders' hardware of Canadian make has advanced considerably. Collections have been good.

FIREMEN ARE GETTING IMPATIENT; DECLARES COMMITTEE TOO SLOW

Probe Into Department Wants Speeding Up, They Declare.

"The committee is too slow. It had better get 'live on,'" declared an officer of the Firemen's Union today in discussing the probe being carried on by the city council. The committee has concluded its hearing of the firemen's complaints. It is understood that it now proposes to visit the different fire halls. The members are reluctant about announcing any changes that they have found necessary as yet or even outlining what matters may be remedied.

WOMEN'S BATTALION HOLDS FIRST DRILL

WHEN YOUR COLOR FADES

When a girl—or a woman—finds her color fading, when her cheeks and lips grow pale, and she gets short of breath easily and her heart palpitates after slight exertion, or under the least excitement, it means that she is suffering from anaemia—thin, watery blood. Headache and backache frequently accompany this condition, and nervousness is often present.

The remedy for this condition is to build up the blood, and for this purpose there is no medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They build up and renew the blood, bring brightness to the eyes, color to the cheeks and a general feeling of renewed health and energy. The only other treatment needed is plenty of sunlight, moderate exercise and good, plain food. The girl or woman who gives this treatment a fair trial will soon find herself enjoying perfect health.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine, or by mail post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

ROYAL RED CROSS FOR ANOTHER OF LONDON'S NURSES

NURSING SISTER MARY E. McLEOD has been awarded the Royal Red Cross in recognition of her heroic services at the front during the past three and a half years. Announcement of this honor has been received by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. McLeod, 420 Park avenue. Miss McLeod left London with No. 3 Canadian Stationary Hospital in the early part of 1915, and remained with this unit for many months' continuous service in France and on the island of Lemnos. Miss McLeod was given a furlough in the fall of 1917, on her return to England was attached to No. 3 Canadian General Hospital, where she is still engaged.

WILL STAND BY LEASE

City's Deal With Reliance Garage Somewhat Jumbled.

"The shortest session of the year," remarked Controller Little on Friday as the board of control adjourned after being in session five minutes. The menu offered by Controller Baker did not take long to devour.

The Salvation Army East End branch asked for the East End hall for a patriotic concert on August 2, and got it.

The Reliance Garage lease is getting into the same category as the market rent question. It has been up numerous times. The council passed a by-law to rent it for two years for $125 a month. Since then a couple of altered leases have been submitted. This morning a new one was on hand. It provided for a five-year term. As Controller Moore remarked, the matter has been jumbled somewhere. The board decided to stand pat by the lease already passed.

A. M. Hunt wrote thanking the city for the services of the engineer in assisting the fair board to erect the subway into Queen's Park.

Easty Bros. want the footbridge to Chelsea Green rushed. The city has asked the London Railway Commission to do the work. Controllers Saunders and Moore were asked to take the matter up with Sir Adam Beck. He will be in London tomorrow.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

FUNERAL OF R. H. MORGAN. The funeral of Richard H. Morgan, who died on Tuesday, was held from his late residence, St. John's, on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Services were conducted in the Methodist Church at 2:30 by Rev. L. Bartlett and Rev. R. J. Hosking of Thamesford, a former pastor of the church.

UPWARD, EVER UPWARD, SOAR HARDWARE PRICES

"Hardware and Metal," July 20, will say: Another eight to ten-cent advance in lined oil has been recorded during the week, and the future is one of decided uncertainty. Most certainly lower prices are not looked for and that even higher levels may be reached seems quite possible. Seed shows another jump in price for the week, and the outlook for supplies is none too bright. Mixed paints are in a very firm position, and that a higher level of prices will be reached seems more than likely. The advance in lined oil, with prospects of further ones being made, coupled with the recent advances made in white lead in oil, are considered factors.

Eye-trough, conductor pipe, ridge roll and kindred lines have made an advance of 10 per cent during the week. This follows higher prices named on corrugated sheets, metal ceilings and shingles some time ago, and is in line with predictions made in "Hardware and Metal" at that time.

Revised prices are announced on tarred roofing felt, tarred and dry building paper, coal tar, roofing cement and heavy dry and tarred strawboard. The present scale of prices provides for advances in each instance, which, while very heavy, reflect the tendency of the market.

Manufacturers of woodenware are faced with continually increasing costs on their lines. Among the lines affected this week are clothes pins, clothes horses, pastry boards and skirt boards, with higher levels looked for on tubs. "Wood waste and wipers have both reached a higher level of quotations. One manufacturer of cow ties, dog and halter chains, the-out chains and kindred lines has announced new prices which show an advance of about 12 1/2 per cent, though jobbers have not yet changed their quotations.

Other lines to undergo revision during the week are food choppers, single-barrel shotguns, cross-cut saw handles, toilet clippers, flashlight bulbs, mouse and rat traps, steel squares, night latches, tackle blocks, rivet sets and egg beaters. Advances are recorded in each instance.

HORSE IN BARN IS BURNED TO DEATH

One horse was burned to death when the barn at the rear of 428 Ottawa avenue was destroyed by fire Friday. The total loss will be about $300. J. Drucker, who was the owner of the property, was burning some wood off old iron in the yard, when a spark caught in the hay, and the fire spread. The damage was done before the firemen could reach the scene. Prompt action on their part saved the house.

55 per cent of the output of the seven big Maxwell plants is war work!

Every one of those plants is doing its patriotic duty—100 per cent.

We are frank to say we believe that is equally true of our competitors—we have yet to learn of a single shirker in this industry.

If there is anything more our government desires done, we will tackle that too.

Meantime, and for the very reasons set forth above, we deplore the loose statements of panic-preaching publicists throughout the country.

These would close down the third largest industry in America on the grounds that it is a "non essential" industry.

No other industry is doing so much outside its regular sphere—doing it so willingly, doing it so rapidly and doing it so honestly as is this very motor car industry.

For a ship builder to make a few more ships; or for an ordnance plant to make more guns is only to develop their normal business.

But for a motor car factory to make ships entire and in part—and guns—and shells—and fuses—and caterpillar tractors—and mine anchors—and airplane motors, wings and other parts—that is doing things.

This industry is doing all that and more.

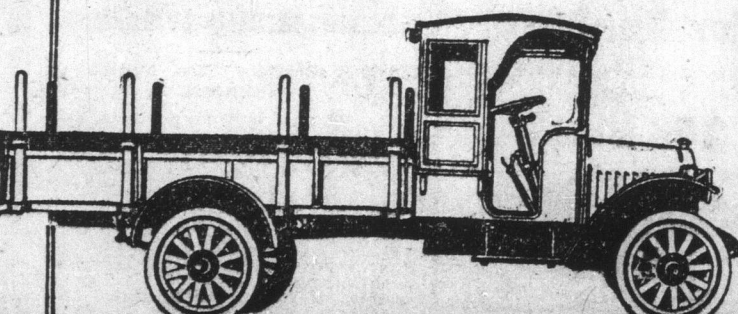

Detroit, the very center of the motor car industry—an inland city and one where, in normal times, we had no war industry—now is doing more war work than any other city in America.

And in our regular line we are also helping more than any other class of business men to solve the transportation problems at home and abroad—for we not only transport a very large percentage of our own raw material and finished product on its own wheels, but every truck—yes, and every passenger car too—helps by thousands of tons per year in carrying, formerly done by the railroads.

Loose talk is harmful at any time—it is particularly serious just now.

Let other industries do their part—do a tithe of what the motor car industry is doing—and they will be going some.

Meantime your own transportation problem, accentuated as it is by the war activities and the war prosperity of the country, can best be solved by an efficient, economical, reliable Maxwell Motor Truck.

PERHAPS AND POSSIBLY.

PERHAPS General Foch's way is best. Possibly after all the leaders of the Allied armies in France do know more about how to fight the Germans successfully than do those who have chafed and "speechified" at home about how the French, British and American armies ought to be used to smash the enemy and who, in private, have expressed grave doubts as to the abilities of Foch, Haig, Pershing and others in high command.

Why do not the Allies smash right back at the Germans, after the latter have come to a standstill in an offensive, instead of waiting to let the Huns take the initiative again? Why do not the French or British on the flanks of the attacking foe swoop down upon him and destroy him utterly? Why this and why that? Everyone has heard these questions and a good many have asked them, aloud or in thought. Foch's blow of the last few days should supply the answer.

It is evident, painfully evident, to everyone at home that the Allies should prepare not only to meet an offensive but to launch a counter-stroke immediately the German effort slackened. Of course, it was just as evident to the Germans. It was the logical thing to do and was expected and preparations were made to withstand such a movement. Probably that is where the Allies outgassed the Germans; they did not do the expected thing.

Now they have outgeneralled them again. Ludendorff, Hindenburg or whoever is alive and commanding the foe has ceased to expect prompt counters, and on the presumption that they would not come he has failed to prepare. Foch has struck and the news columns tell the results: Surprise, bewilderment, fear and dismay among the Teutons; brilliant success for the French and Americans.

General Foch has not been asleep, nor has he been showing a complete lack of common-sense and vision. Strange as it may seem to some, he does know his business and has a certain amount of interest in winning the war. He has with him others who share his interest and have their fair share of brains, so that the Germans may be beaten without any call having to be made for the amateur soldiers who have been itching to take the guiding reins from the hands of those who at present hold them.

REPORTERS IN THE ARMY.

EVER SINCE Douglas Fairbanks appeared in the role of newspaper reporter aspiring journalists have been trudging to editorial rooms all over the country. They would find much of the romance of newspapers is confined to the motion picture conception of the business. That's not saying there's no excitement left, for there is always a thrill or two for the lad of quick wits who accepts the challenge of running the news item to its lair through the mazes of rumor and gossip and uncertainty. Once in a while there is a real adventure. The reporter usually is first on the field of events because he is close to the centres of action, and while the war has changed the quotations on news values, the good local story has not lost its place in the home circle. So upsetting to newspaper staffs has been enlistment in the army that hundreds of news writers and "desk men," a large proportion of the trained men of the business, have been removed from it. Today trained reporters are at a premium, and newspapers are constantly teaching the young idea the system of gathering the day's story. The effect has been to cut out many of the flourishes and to make the newspaper more a matter of chronological record than before. When the absent journalists return, those of them who have not fallen, the columns of newspapers should be more interesting because of their experience with the greatest news story of the ages.

THE EXAGGERATED EGO.

REFERRING TO Napoleon Bonaparte, a writer says, "Our sketch of Bonaparte would be imperfect, indeed, if we did not add that he was characterized by nothing more strongly than the spirit of 'self-exaggeration.' The singular energy of his intellect and will, through which he had mastered so many rivals and foes, and overcome what seemed insuperable obstacles, inspired a consciousness of being something more than man."

These statements apply with equal accuracy to the Kaiser. The exaggerated ego seems to have troubled them both. The New York Herald asked its readers, "What shall be done with the Kaiser after the war?" All the replies wanted to make him suffer as he had caused others to suffer. One critic puts it, "We should make that miserable, booze-soaked, brazen-headed lunatic of a rat un-largo, with his family, especially the crown prince, the tortures that so many people have undergone." Another writer "would like to have a room built thirty feet square, made out of 2-inch planks, sixteen feet high without any roof, and the floor made of sharp, broken stones stood on end, and twelve rattlesnakes, twelve black snakes, twelve copperheads and twelve pilots put into this room, and the clothes to be taken away from the Kaiser, who would be fed the same as the snakes for the remainder of his days." Other suggestions are made, but the one some time ago attributed to a Chinaman is worth repeating. The Chinaman would put him in a barrel and feed him on salt through the bung-hole.

Any of the punishments suggested would take the "exaggerated ego" out of him, but no punishment that could possibly be inflicted would fit his crimes. The world has no means of punishing the greatest criminal of all ages.

HIS VERY GOOD HEALTH!

JAMES EGAN, of 234 St. George street, yesterday celebrated his 91st birthday. Living in retirement for some years past, the younger generation requires to be told of his distinguished services rendered on behalf of the Forest City, of the many institutions for which it is indebted largely to him. A year ago, when he achieved his ninetieth milestone, The Advertiser published a sketch of some length, recalling events in James Egan's career, and his close association with the obtaining of a pure water supply for London, the planting of trees, which have made of the whole city a veritable park, the securing for all time of a beautiful park in the centre of the city, namely Victoria Park, and many other boons now accepted as a matter of course.

Living in retirement for a number of years, he still takes a keen interest in all matters affecting the public welfare, in forward movements in education, in music and art. Literature and music are interests which lie very close to his heart, and his love for beautiful things has been reflected in his character and in his face.

The years have touched him so lightly that he is still keen in intellect, his memory accurate even in regard to minute details, whether of the interesting past or the stirring present. A year ago, Canada's most distinguished portrait painter sent this message, through a mutual acquaintance to Mr. Egan: "Tell James Egan to come down to Toronto. I want to paint his picture. We became friends through his interest in art. I haven't seen him for years. He was an unusually handsome man."

"And he is a strikingly handsome man yet," said the mutual acquaintance who had seen and been inspired by an interview with Mr. Egan at his home a few days before.

The majority of Mr. Egan's old associates in public affairs have passed on. He delights to reminisce in regard to them. But he has a lively interest in all that goes on in the world around him, and, at the advanced age of ninety-one, a capacity for making new friends that most people never know all their lives.

London's first photographer, he was also a pioneer in newspaper work, entering the journalistic field here as a reporter on The Prototype, a forerunner of The Advertiser.

While there are women in London who recall the fact that they danced with the late King Edward, then Prince of Wales, at the famous ball given in his honor in this city, Mr. Egan had an important part in helping to arrange that ball. To talk to Mr. Egan for an hour is to be transported through the past under the most enchanting traveling conditions. If any citizen can possibly know his London, it is James Egan. He has watched it grow up, exercising affectionate care in bending its childhood years in the way it should go, and in the shaping of its character along lines of worth. It is owing to such men as Mr. Egan that a solid foundation has been laid for the sound position which has made this city an enviable place in the midst of the unrest of present economic conditions. It is owing to pioneers of his type that the things which lend grace and adorn have found a place in the life of the citizenship, that London is an educational centre, and that music is cherished in the life of the people. Fortunately, others have risen to "carry on" what he has initiated, but to him all honor is due as a pathfinder of the Forest City.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

With the ebb of German offensive power, the flow of Allied blood is likely to decrease.

"Food Conditions in Old Land Improve," says headline. Does the same remark apply to Canada, Mr. Controller?

"APPEARANCES DECEIVE."

The daily cry is still for men
To carry on the war;
We must fill up the vacant spots
Of those who've gone before.
The farmers' help has quit the job.
In East, South, West and North,
To join the fight for liberty
They valiantly went forth.

The daily cry is now for men
To help the farmers out,
To save the glorious fields of grain,
You see all roundabout.
Now, in this fair domain of ours
Thousands have volunteered
To do this work, but, sad to say,
There's many who have feared.

They tell us that the farmer's life
Is one long day of toil,
Of milking cows, of hoeing corn,
And plodding on the soil.
They would not have a farmer's job,
"The work's too hard," they say,
"We'll stay around the city here
To earn our daily pay."

I don't agree with men like these.
The reason, soon you'll see,
For on my annual holidays,
Which I took recently,
I went back to the good old farm.
To limber up my bones,
And, say, I would not trade the job
For all the kingly thrones.

At dawn of day, I broke my sleep,
To milk the Holstein cows,
And after this I broke my fast,
Then went to feed the sows,
And as the glorious sun broke forth
From out the eastern sky
To factory, with a load of milk
I made the old nag fly.

When I returned I saw the boss
Was filling up the hoes,
Says he to me, "It won't take long
To clean up fifty rows."
We worked together in the field,
Under a blazing sun,
And, when at 5 o'clock we quit,
He says to me, "Well done."

We milk again, and then we're through.
The day's work has been light;
We take the automobile, Ford,
And glide into the night.
To town we go, we see the show,
And sure, there is the girl,
Whose charming manner, lovely face,
Sets both our hearts awhirl.

And as we rode back to the farm
From revelry and spree,
I nudged the farmer in the side,
And said to him with glee,
"The farmer's life is not so hard
As some folk would believe."
He turned and whispered in my ear,
"Appearances deceive."

BRANDING MARY.

[By Ima Macdonald.]

"Contrary Mary, don't be scared. Guard your garden wall. Bare little Cupe, snooty fairy. Finally gets the best of it. And in your breast he'll shaft his dart. I swear this unto you— And pierce your now rebellious heart. For he's contrary, too."

Mary Rayburn knelt in her canoe and clung breathlessly to the low-hanging branches overhead that screened her as she watched the singer lift his paddle and suddenly with one long, sweeping stroke drive his own canoe into the hiding place beneath the ferns.

"A-h," he smiled, "at last!" Mary was startled and only stared. After all this time, he went on, "I've found you."

"Why—have you been looking for me?" she at last found her tongue. "Don't you remember," he chided her. "Don't you remember that day I saw you on the beach? Coranado? You wore a blue bathing suit and a yellow cap?"

She shook her head. "I've never been there."

"And in Frisco, I saw you, too," he went on. "You were coming out of a theatre and you smiled at me. Down in Florida one winter you came up out of the sea, your hair was yellow, that time and your eyes sea green. Don't you remember how you laughed when I tried to catch you? And in New Orleans at the Mardi Gras you threw me a rose from your balcony—and out in Nevada once we sat together and watched the starlight on the desert. Don't you remember?"

She shook her head and smiled wistfully. "I've never been to any of those places. Only New York and Boston—so you see, I'm not the girl."

"Oh, yes, you are," he assured her. "Your name is Mary and you've always been wherever I've been and I've been pretty much all over. He gestured vaguely with his bronzed arm.

"I guess you're mistaken," she said as he hummed the air of his song smilingly. "and—and I think I'd better be going."

She half arose to disentangle a dead branch that had caught over the bow of her canoe—it tilted and with a little gasp of chilled surprise she found herself in the water. Almost instantly he was beside her; the water was only to his waist, so it was in no wise a rescue, and with a laugh he lifted her up into her canoe and tilted the water out of it. Then he took hold of her and held her high in his arms.

"You—you needn't hold me so long," she protested indignantly.

"Long," he chuckled. "I'm only letting you drain before I put you back in the canoe. Believe me, you're one wet woman."

And finally he hunched over and sat her down in her canoe.

"Here," he ordered. "Drag my canoe along behind and I'll tow us up around the bend where there's a sand bar we can land on."

Meekly she reached out and took his canoe by the bow while he waded ahead hauling the two canoes. And when they reached the bar he drew the canoes up on the sand and helped her out of hers. From his own he procured a bathing suit and a rain coat.

"Go back up there somewhere," he directed. "and wait for my things. Then bring your things back here and spread them out on that bush. This sun'll dry 'em in a couple of hours."

She studied him silently for a moment and then silently took the things he offered and went back toward the thickly-wooded shore. And a few moments later she returned with the raincoat wrapped around her and her hair tumbled down her back.

"Cold?" he asked.

She shook her head brightly and set to spreading out her wet things in the sun. He seemed the right sort, and she saw no reason why she should be silly about it. He got out a coffee pot and a frying pan, talking in his droll way entirely unconscious of her shy reserve.

When he was searching for dry twigs he discovered a curious hollow in the gravel of the bar and predicted that if she dug there carefully she might find buried treasure.

"Oh," she exclaimed eagerly, as she uncovered something white and round, almost as large as a walnut. Another she found, and another. There were 28 of them in all.

"Now for a turtle-egg omelette!" he laughed, and set to work over the preparation of the meal.

After they had eaten they sat there while Chalmers smoked. She studied him covertly at every opportunity as they chatted and talked, but she had persistently refused to give him any knowledge of herself other than the first name of Mary, which he had guessed. She watched him curiously as he took a charred stick and marked a mystic sign on the smooth skin of her arm.

"What is it?" she asked looking down on the circle he had made, followed by a dash.

"I've put my brand on you," he smiled into her eyes. "I've a ranch in California, the Circle Bar—and that's my brand."

"Oh!" she murmured, rubbing the mark off with her hand, at the same time realizing regretfully that it was time for her to go. So she gathered up her clothes and went back into the trees to put them on.

"Sadly wrinkled, but nice and dry," she laughed, as she climbed into her canoe a few moments later.

Then silently they paddled along side by side, till she halted, saying: "You must not go any further."

The canoes floated together, and he leaned over and held them thus.

"Am I going to see you again, Mary?" he asked earnestly.

"Perhaps I'll come this way again," she smiled, as she dipped her paddle and swept on down the river, and out of sight.

That night Chalmers took the puncher's outfit that hung as a decoration on the wall of his shack and dressed himself for the costume ball that was to be held several miles below at the famous Windermere Inn, one of the most interesting resorts in the Maine woods. When he arrived the ball was in full swing in the great log balcony room made a thousand times more attractive by the colorful costumes of the chattering groups and the music.

In the centre of one group stood a delightful Spanish dancer who turned gaily to speak to someone passing and revealed to Chalmers a round, bare shoulder, on which had been printed with a black eyebrow pencil the brand of the Circle Bar.

Instantly he stood before the group and swept his high-crowned hat, which bore the same insignia, a deep Spanish bow, as he took the dancer's hand.

"The brand is mine," he explained apologetically to the rest of the group, indicating the mark on her shoulder, "and anything that bears the brand of the Circle Bar is mine also." And he led her toward the veranda.

"I wondered if you'd be here to-night," she murmured when they reached the shadow.

"My brand is on you, Mary dear," he said, "and I'll never let you go."

"I—I don't want to go," she whispered.

And it is reported that somebody saw somebody that saw the Cow Puncher kissing the Spanish dancer, though, of course, it might not have been true.

Our Joe Miller Contest.
Don Dodge claims that the oldest joke is the one about the fat candidate for Congress who was to address a mass meeting in a small town. When the hour fixed for the meeting arrived there were only two people in the hall. One was the fat candidate and the other was a mouse, who applauded the fat candidate and cheered him when he stood up.

The fat candidate decided to call the meeting off, and a newspaper reporter entered the hall to cover the meeting. "My boy," said the fat candidate, "when you write your story of the meeting say that a large and enthusiastic audience was present."

"How can I say that?" asked the reporter. "There are only two of you here."

"Well, that's all right," replied the fat candidate. "I'm large and this man is enthusiastic."

Munitions

In the year 1917 Canada produced:

55% of all the Shrapnel;
42% of all the 4.5's;
27% of all the 6 inch Shells used by the British Army.

This is a proud achievement!

The record can only be maintained by uninterrupted co-operation between Employer and Employee.

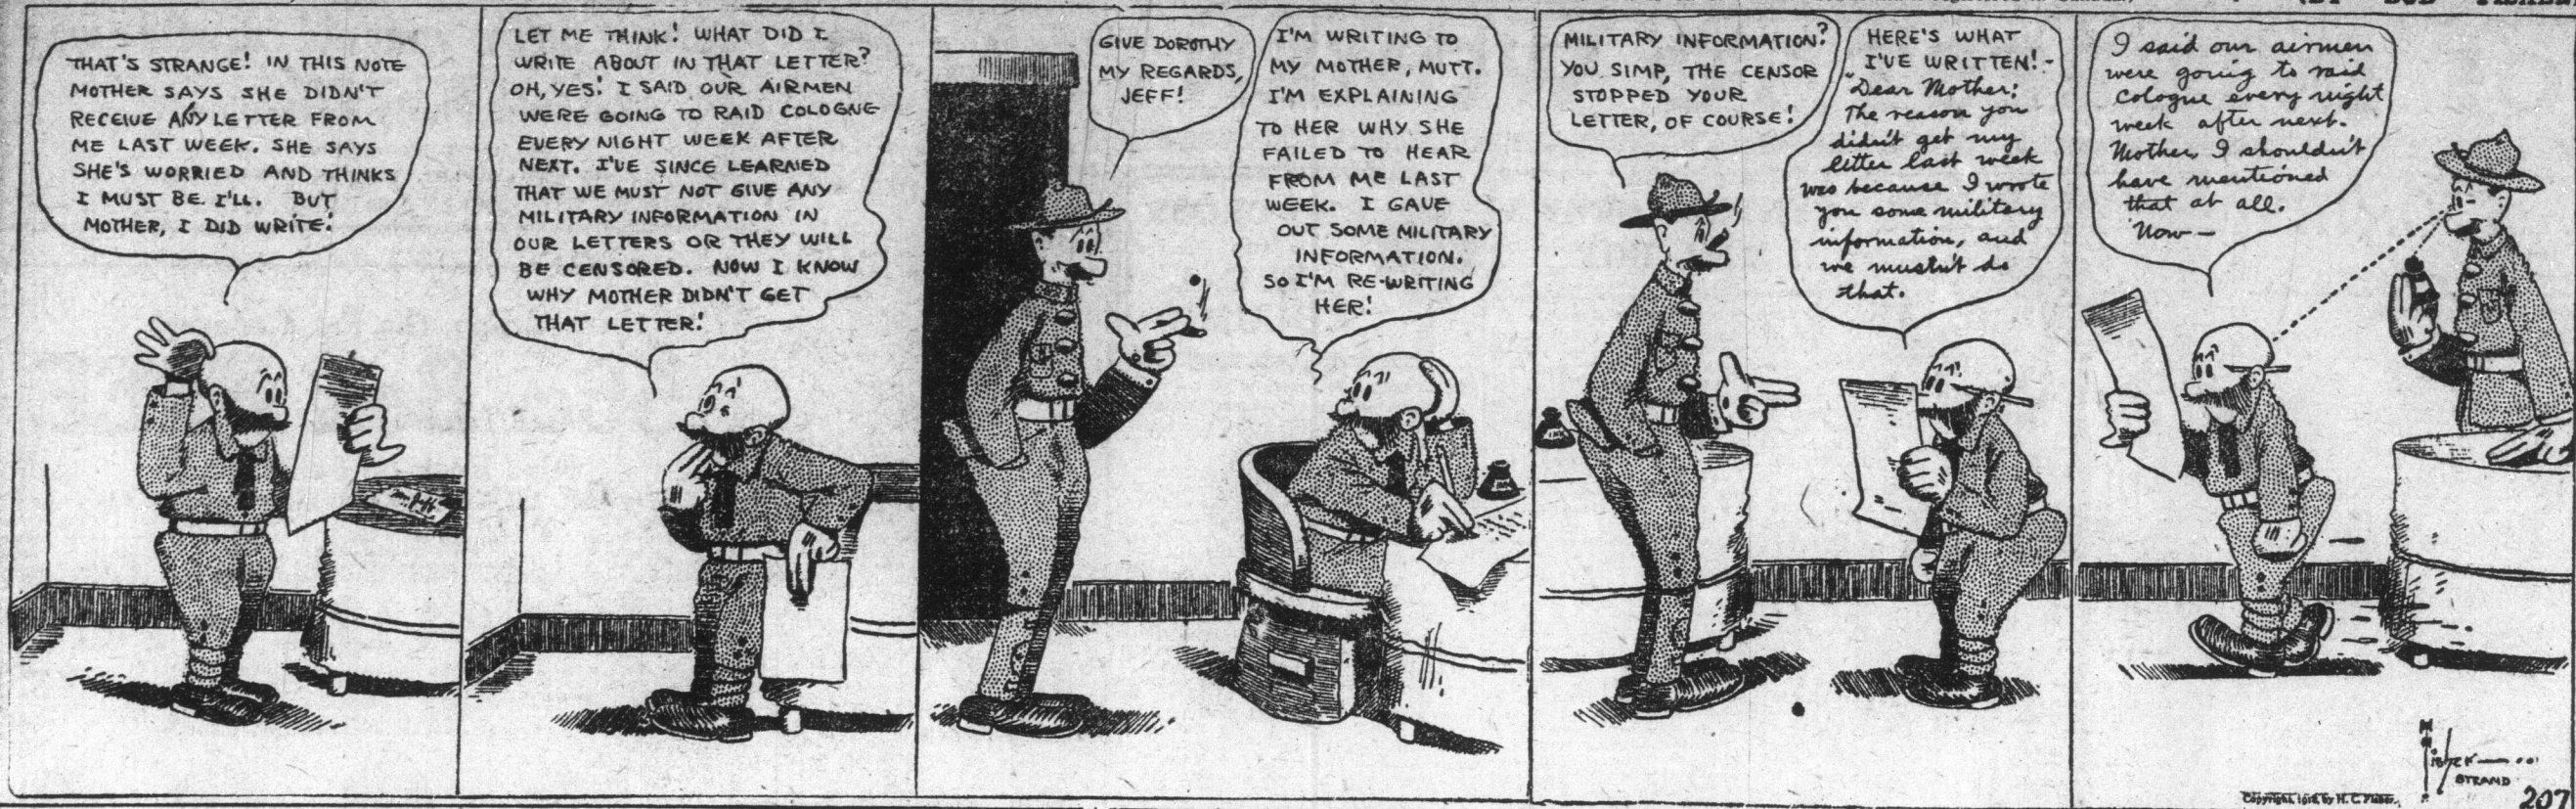

The Manufacturer of Munitions who refuses, in this crisis, to submit Labour differences to independent judgment, meanwhile continuing production, commits a crime against the State.

This is equally true of the Employee.

FIFTY-SIX STRONG RINKS
ENTER W.O.B.A. TOURNEY

Best Bowlers in Toronto and Western Ontario Will Compete in Provincial Bowling Classic—Play at London Rowing Club Greens at 1:30 on Monday.

Fifty-six rinks, representing the best bowling talent in Ontario, have entered for the W.O.B.A. tournament to commence at the London Rowing Club grounds on Monday. This number by far exceeds that of last year, and is no doubt the result of the decision of the W.O.B.A. executive to run the tournament on the elimination system, which for the past two years has not been in vogue.

Tom Rennie of the Toronto Granites will be in and with his expert trundlers. Other Toronto rinks of no mean reputation have also entered, while Hamilton, Brantford, Chatham, Windsor, Paris and other points in Western Ontario are represented by exceptionally strong aggregations.

Fifteen greens will be used and 48 rinks are scheduled to play in the preliminary rounds, commencing at 1:30 and 4:30 Monday afternoon. The remaining eight draw the privilege of playing in the first round.

The success of the tourney this year is assured. For several seasons the Western Ontario bowling classic has been wholly confined to rinks west of Toronto, but with the present diversified and strong entry the tourney now carries the favor of the chief provincial bowling event of the year, with the possible exception of the Niagara-on-the-Lake tournament recently staged.

CLEVELAND WILL CLOSE BALL
PARK FOR DURATION OF WAR;
CRISIS IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

Cleveland, O., July 20.—President Jas. C. Dunn of the Cleveland American League Club today sent the following message to Cleveland from Chicago: "We will play a double-header with Philadelphia tomorrow and will then close the ball park for the balance of the season. It is our desire to comply promptly with Secretary Baker's ruling on baseball."

Chicago, July 20.—A message to all club owners in the American League, asking them if they were willing to abide by Secretary Baker's order at once, was sent today by President Ban Johnson. The action of the Cleveland Club in closing tomorrow is the first result of the message.

BAKER DECLARES BASEBALL
NON-PRODUCTIVE OCCUPATION

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Professional baseball was held a non-productive occupation under the "work or fight" order today by Secretary Baker. "I have decided that the work or fight regulation includes baseball," said Mr. Baker in announcing his decision.

The decision was given on appeal in the case of Eddie Ainsmith, the Washington American League catcher recently ordered to work by a local board, which came up to the secretary with a suggestion from the board that the regulation should be changed to except ball players.

In brief the secretary held that with many players beyond draft age, it is by no means certain that complete organization of the baseball business follows; that the physical ability and mental alertness of ball players are not such that the employment of able-bodied persons in non-productive work for the duration of the war is of the social value of the national game.

The secretary also expressed the opinion that the draft regulation should be amended so as to include all persons engaged solely in entertaining within the work or fight provisions.

PHILS LOSE TO PIRATES

PITTSBURGH, July 19.—Philadelphia lost to Pittsburgh today 3 to 2. Comstock, the Pirates pitcher, kept the visitors' hits scattered and was effective with men on bases. Coachman passed two men in the second and Comstock, the next batter, singled to right, scoring the two runners.

REDS TAKE UPHILL GAME

CINCINNATI, July 19.—Boston secured a 4-run lead in the first inning today by consecutive hitting off Ring, but Cincinnati played a strong uphill game and won out, 6 to 4. After the first inning, Boston could do nothing with Jacobs and Regan. The Boston club played ragged ball behind Rudolph, with the exception of Herzog.

ST. LOUIS, July 19.—Ames out-pitched Sallee today and beat New York 5 to 2. Score: R. H. E. St. Louis.....0 0 1 0 0 0 0—5 11 1 Sallee and McCarty; Ames and Gonzalez.

ST. THOMAS, July 19.—When the command "Pull!" is given at the grounds of the St. Thomas Gun Club on Monday morning, followed by the report of a rifle in the hands of some of America's foremost shooters, it will not only signify the opening of the biggest trapshooting event ever held in this city, but it will mean the beginning of one of the biggest international shoots ever held in the history of Canada.

It is well known, especially among sportsmen and lovers of shooting, that there is only one annual trophy held on the continent that exceeds the one held here, and that is the Grand International Handicap, which opens here on Monday and will continue for three days following. It is open to everyone, no matter what their nationality or where their place of abode.

Dates Do Not Interfere.

The Grand American Handicap is held immediately afterwards at Chicago, and in view of this fact the directors of the St. Thomas Gun Club have arranged the dates so that those who attend here may do so and still arrive in time for the big American event.

To say that St. Thomas is fortunate in harboring such an enthusiastic gun club is putting it far too mildly, for a better form of advertisement for the city could not be obtained on the face of the globe.

One of the features of the St. Thomas tournament is the fact that the professionals, both amateurs and professionals, are brought together. The fact that there are just as many Americans as Canadians in the list of entries this year fully justifies what the directors of the event have said.

Equal opportunities are offered to the professional and the less proficient shooter through the Lewis class system. By this means the 85 or 90 per cent shooter is given the same opportunity of winning the money as the 95 or 100 per cent professional.

In addition to the $1,500 added money for the five-day program, there are trophies and a merchandise event worth nearly $500. There is no sport in America, not exception golf, the grips and the interest in the trapshooting, and in view of this fact the directors of the St. Thomas Gun Club have arranged the dates so that those who attend here may do so and still arrive in time for the big American event.

LEAFY MAKE CLEAN SWEEP OF THE SERIES

Defeat Bingoes in the Final Game—Bears Take Pair.

BINGHAMTON, July 19.—Toronto made a complete sweep of the series with the Cobblers here this afternoon by taking the final game by the score of 5 to 2. Errors behind Frock were largely responsible for the scores and Binghamton got the worst end of some had umpiring by both Lewis and O'Brien. When Fischer was forced out in the last of the ninth inning by a called ball, the umpire, Lewis, called him out, even when Fischer, the Toronto catcher, dropped the ball. Decisions like this featured the game and the fans were in a frenzy.

Margarita Fisher in "The Primitive Woman," at the Unique Next Monday and Tuesday.

Miss Margarita Fisher, one of the most beautiful young stars of filmdom has a first-rate chance for the display of her comedy genius in her latest American-Mutual play, "The Primitive Woman," showing at the Unique next Monday and Tuesday.

Miss Fisher has made her greatest successes in tomboy parts, sub-deb characterizations being her especial field. In the new play she is cast as Nan Graythorpe, an orphan girl of great wealth, who essays to charm a severe-minded young professor of anthropology out of his indifference to her sex by pretending to be a wild maid of the mountains. The learned young doctor endeavors to study her as a type and by falling violently in love with her, which, of course, is just what Nan intended in the first place that he should do.

Rich Nan, clad in the rags and rabbit skins of the mountain side, is an unconventional type—the very sort that suits Miss Fisher's very attractive personality, and the play seems destined to achieve great popularity. The production is superbly staged and photographed and its direction, which has been in the capable hands of Lloyd Ingraham, could not be improved upon.

MAJESTIC

Dorothy Dalton in "The Kaiser's Shadow," at the Majestic Next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mystery photoplays are relished by everybody. The deeper the mystery, the greater the thrill, and the more impenetrable it seems, the greater its power to attract. This is the view expressed by Dorothy Dalton, the famous Thomas H. Ince-Paramount star, and her opinion was given after she had completed her work in her newest photoplay, "The Kaiser's Shadow," in which she will be seen at the Majestic Theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The story of "The Kaiser's Shadow" deals with the German spy propaganda he believes, but this involves him in serious trouble.

Plans Are Saved.
Fortunately for him, however, two of Kremlins' trusted agents are in fact United States secret service operatives, and through their agency the German spy system, headed by Kremlins, is severely jolted and he not only double-crossed, but triple-crossed, as events prove. The plans are saved with difficulty and the spies dispersed after their leader had been slain. The mystery of the story is not revealed until the final scene and its interest therefore never lapses for an instant.

Miss Dalton's talents are not limited to any particular line of screen endeavor; she is delightfully naive and fascinating in comedy episodes, while she fairly revels in those scenes that make a demand upon the actress for big, powerful, dramatic moments. She screens admirably—and a Thomas H. Ince photoplay with charming Dorothy Dalton in the chief role is sure to prove William S. Hart in His Greatest Production, "Shark Monroe," at the Majestic Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The admirers of William S. Hart, who have seen him in "Blue Blazes Rawden," "The Tiger Man," "Selfish Yates" and other strong, virile photoplays, will find it rather difficult to imagine him as a sea rover, but in his latest Artcraft picture, produced under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince, he is seen as "Shark" Monroe, master of a sealing schooner. Hard tales have been told of the cruelty and daring of the "Shark," but when a beautiful young woman comes into his life his nature is changed and he finds courage and will to fight hard to win her affection.

Master of Ship.
As master of the "Sea Gull," Monroe's reputation for savagery is widespread, but under the influence of this young woman, who, with her dissipated brother, is on her way to Alaska in search of fortune, his soul is transformed.

formed. When her brother has squandered his money she appeals to Monroe for passage to the north, and he cheerfully consents. The situations are of remarkable interest and holds the attention from beginning to end. How Monroe is tamed through the purifying influence of Marjorie's love, and how Webster himself is reclaimed to manhood are excellently told.

Capable Cast.
Mr. Hart, as usual, is splendidly supported by capable players, chief among them being Katherine MacDonald, who does some unforgettable bits of acting as Marjorie Hilton. Joe Singleton as "Big" Baxter, a disreputable hotel-keeper, and George McDaniel as Webster Hilton, a dissipated man, who regains himself in the snows of Alaska. The picture will be displayed at the Majestic Theatre next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with every accessory necessary to make this one of the best

Heavy waves pass over them, but Monroe clings on grimly and finally brings the unconscious man back to safety.

GRAY-DORT

WAR-CONDITIONS to-day have set new standards of motor car value and efficiency. Gone is the demand for surplus size, for useless weight and speed. To-day's requirement is the Gray-Dort type of car.

- the car with enough power and speed to travel quickly wherever business or recreation may demand.
- the car of comfortable riding and driving for men and women.
- the car of low first-cost.
- the car of economical upkeep.

All this the Gray-Dort renders—and more.

The new motor is larger and more powerful. It will take five passengers practically anywhere any motor car can go. It will take them at the limit of speed most men dare drive. Its smoothness and flexibility are a new record in 4-cylinder motors. In acceleration it takes second place to none.

Yet this motor is a miser with gasoline and oil.

A larger radiator and fan—new-style water jackets—insure perfect cooling.

An improved carburetor takes care of low-grade gasoline.

For Gray-Dort comfort—ride in the car. Feel the benefits of scientific design, luxurious upholstery, ample room.

For Gray-Dort appearance—see the car. See the higher line of hood that sweeps smoothly into the stream-line body.

See the French-pleated upholstery, the double curve fenders, the new Gray-Dort green finish.

For Gray-Dort dependability—ask any man who drives one.

The five-passenger touring car is $1,195; the five-passenger Gray-Dort Special, beautifully finished, and with extra details of equipment, is $125 more. The three-passenger fleur-de-lys roadster is $1,050. All prices are f.o.b. Chatham.
