Greer Defends Manual Training; Painleve For Premier

GREER IS AGAINST CHANGES

Inspector-Administrator Wants Manual Training and Household Science in Schools. EXPLAINS SYSTEM Says Both Departments Essential to Public School Course—Cites Hobby Fair.

Any move to eliminate manual training and household science from the public schools, such as is mooted in connection with the collegiate institutes, will meet with strong opposition by V. Kenneth Greer, M.A., inspector-administrator of the London school system.

"I will never be in favor of taking out those two departments from the public school course," stated Mr. Greer, "and each boy three years in the public school morning, and I will fight for them to be kept in, because I regard them as very essential to the course."

"Each girl in the public school receives three years' training in household science," explained Mr. Greer, "and each boy three years' training in manual training. The work in both subjects is simple and practical and the inspectors regard the work as a very essential part of the public school course."

"A visit to these departments in the public schools," pursued the administrator, "never fails to convince parents and those interested in the work of the need for the work and the fine results obtained. In fact it is a matter of surprise to those not intimately in touch with the work when they see the articles that are made by the pupils."

"In this connection," concluded Mr. Greer, "the hobby fair next week will embrace an exhibition of many articles of sewing and wood carving that have been made in the public school household science and manual training departments."

PAINLEVE LIKELY TO BE PREMIER

Well-Known French Statesman Is Expected To Succeed Herriot.

Associated Press Despatch. Paris, April 11.—The Herriot cabinet is out of power, overturned by the senate because of the charges that under M. Herriot's rule the legal limit of the banknote circulation had been secretly exceeded, but M. Herriot's majority in the chamber of deputies remains virtually intact.

At a general meeting this morning of the four groups of left parties forming the government minority since last May, a resolution was adopted "to continue with unshakable determination the policies for which the country voted at the last election." The meeting represented about 160 deputies, constituting a good working majority of the chamber.

The Socialists, 104 strong, went even one better, they decided they would support no other than M. Herriot.

The senate declared itself in such unequivocal manner—the adverse vote being 122 against 122—that although the consultations of President Doumergue looking to the selection of a new premier have hardly even started, it may be said that Mr. Herriot's immediate return is very unlikely. M. Painleve, president of the chamber, who announced that he would not accept the task of forming a cabinet, when it was first mentioned, but "would sacrifice himself to the cause of the left," should no other politician be found able to reconcile the widely divergent viewpoints of the senate and chamber, appears to be the man most likely to succeed in forming a ministry.

CAN HARDLY WAIT TRAIN WHEN GIVEN FREEDOM

James Brown, 54 years old, colored, appeared in court this morning charged with vagrancy. He created a disturbance last night at his rooming house and was placed under arrest when he could give police no definite information concerning himself.

"It was drunk last night," he told the court today. "I should have known better, but if you give me a chance I'll go back to Hamilton where I live on the very first train." He was allowed his freedom upon condition he be to his promise.

"Yes, sir, I'll leave on the noon train," he said as he jubilantly departed from the police courtroom.

WILL SHE BE PRINCE OF WALES' BRIDE?

The betrothal of the Prince of Wales to Princess Martha, niece of the King of Sweden, will be announced following the return of the heir to the British throne from his 25,000-mile tour of South Africa and South America, according to London gossip. Many rumors of a similar character have been connected with the name of the prince in recent years, but all have been dispelled. Whether this one is another false alarm remains to be seen.

ONLY HALF DOZEN LAWS PASS IN TWO MONTHS

Federal Session Just Closed Certainly Not Productive of Too Much Legislation.

LOTS OF ORATORY

Petersen Contract Likely To Be Biggest Issue To Come After Reopening.

By E. C. BUCHANAN, Special To The Advertiser by a Staff Correspondent.

Press Gallery, House of Commons, Ottawa, April 11.—The Easter adjournment comes when parliament has been in session just two months. If the results of its labors were measured by the legislation produced by the commons it could be said that no progress had been made, that the lower house had marked time while the senate took an enforced vacation for want of work. Only some six bills have been sent on from the commons to the senate, of which five are private bills of minor character, the principal one providing for the liability of printers under the criminal code. The single government measure submitted to the senate was the formal one for inter-term supply.

But inasmuch as it is frequently declared that parliament produces too many laws, that the statute books are cluttered with unnecessary enactments, perhaps the Commons is to be congratulated rather than censured for its performance so far. Whether its two months' activities have been vital or valuable is another matter. These activities, which have filled upwards of two thousand pages of Hansard, have in part been taken up by a large part of the two months, the remainder being given to resolutions from private members. The address was adopted without division, the ocean freight rates bill has been sent to the special committee, and the budget is going through its usual agonizing stage. Introduced on March 24, and having right of way in debate since then, it will occupy another week, probably ten days, after Easter.

On the address the debate brought little more than the usual and conventional tariff arguments, and the formal glorification and condemnation of parties. On the ocean freight rates control measure it disclosed the Conservatives outright in their opposition to the contract calling for. Please See Page 3, Column 7.

FIND BODY OF BABY HIDDEN IN AIR SHAFT

Canadian Press Despatch. Saskatoon, Sask., April 11.—Wrecked carefully in a bundle and secreted in a cold air shaft running between the floor joists, the body of a newly-born male child was discovered in the farm house of Fritz Malinowski, about four miles south-west of Rosthern, by a Saskatchewan provincial policeman yesterday. The alleged mother of the child is critically ill in a Rosthern hotel, so no police action has yet been taken.

NO GAS WAR IN LONDON

Oil Company Officials Agree Price Drop Due to Over-Production.

RUMORS ARE DENIED

No Price War Foreseen in London—Changes Declared Normal.

That a two-cent cut in the price of gasoline here is the result of over-production during a slack winter and is not the forerunner of a price war in London is the joint opinion of the officials of three of the city's leading oil companies.

James D. Good, manager of the London Super-Tex branches, has heard nothing of the price contest, which rumor had set for next week. The price of "gas" is controlled wholly by supply and demand, he reminded, and as the unusually severe winter cut the ordinary cold weather consumption, a general drop in price was decided upon to lower the heavy surplus. The two-cent decrease went into effect Thursday.

While he sees no change for some weeks, Mr. Good said that the Super-Tex company would meet any price cuts which might be introduced by other companies.

"An increased demand is always noted at this time of year," Vincent J. Colgan, manager of the British-American Oil Company, Limited, London, explained, "and as a moderate drop in price has a tendency to steady the trade, this plan was again followed this year. This winter's surplus is unusually heavy, I understand, and a price cut would also be warranted to ease this condition."

Local Imperial Oil officials also vision a period of comparative quietude for the next few weeks and deny the report that a price war is in the offing.

VISITOR BEATEN, THUG ESCAPES

Gordon Holtby, 25, of St. Thomas, Assaulted on Montreal Street.

Associated Press Despatch. Montreal, April 11.—Gordon Holtby, 25, a visitor from St. Thomas, Ont., was knocked down by a man at the corner of Peel and St. Catharine streets at 12:45 this morning and taken to the Western hospital for wounds on the head caused by contact with the sidewalk. His assailant was pointed out to a constable, who gave chase and fired several shots in the direction taken by the fugitive.

The sounds of firearms brought a good-sized crowd to the corner of the streets where Holtby was attacked. At the hospital, the victim said he did not know why he had been picked out as a target.

STILLWELL ADMITS CAR THEFT ATTEMPT

Prisoner Tells County Magistrate He Was To Get $50 For Work.

Alex. Stillwell, charged with assaulting and attempting to rob Verna Wilkinson, London township, on April 2, admitted to County Magistrate Hawkshaw 1 county court today that he had driven to the Wilkinson home, concession 5, London township, with Gordon W. Hardy, to take the Wilkinson car from the garage. He said he was to receive $50 for his part in the theft. Stillwell was in the witness box at press time being questioned by Crown Attorney Albert Judd.

One-Time Foundling Falls Heir to Tinplate Millions

Joy Louise Leeds, 12 Years of Age, Now One of U. S. Wealthiest Children.

Associated Press Despatch. Mineola, N.Y., April 11.—Joy Louise Leeds, twelve years ago a foundling and one of the earth's disinherited, is now one of the country's wealthiest children.

Warner M. Leeds, who made a fortune in tinplate production, and who, childless, had adopted Joy Louise twelve years ago when she was a year old, left her the bulk of his estate, estimated at more than $4,000,000. Two years ago the child was left the $4,000,000 estate of her foster mother, Mrs. Louise Hartshorn Leeds, who was killed in a Sixty-fifth street home. The will of the foster father, who died two weeks ago after a twenty years' fight of the evening was spent in discussion of the estate.

CAN DEDUCT LIQUOR FINE

Income Tax Official Points Out That Term "Bootlegger" Not Used There.

NO QUESTIONS ASKED

Men who follow the bootlegging "profession" in the London taxation district file income returns at the London office, setting forth their net profits, but they are not referred to as "bootleggers," George Tambling, inspector of taxation, stated this morning.

"We have hundreds in this district, and although a man may file his papers as a grocer, we know how he makes his money. We keep away from the term 'bootlegger' because we have no occasion to use it. Ours is a confidential office."

"The point is that his gains are illegitimate, but it is his business and the same. If he is arrested and has to pay a fine of $1,000, he is entitled to deduct that amount in his returns."

"If he starts the year, say, with $10,000, and finishes with $20,000, we estimate his living allowance, which, of course, varies. If we know he has spent $5,000 during the year to keep up the family, he must pay an income of $15,000."

Mr. Tambling was told of a Chicago burglar who claimed a deduction on tools that had been left behind on a job.

"That would be legitimate," declared the inspector. "It is his business, and certainly a loss."

"Any burglar on your income tax list?" the inspector was asked.

"No, we have no burglars, but I think we have a lot of thieves."

"We know they are a bunch of robbers ourselves."

FAILS TO RECOGNIZE CONSTABLE AS DRIVER

Norman Wilson, Long Sought, Cordially Treated on Request For Ride.

Norman Wilson, 35, is the latest Middlesex county husband to appear in court on a charge of non-support of his wife and family. He was remanded for a week today at the request of the high constable.

The high constable journeyed to Westminster township yesterday morning to bring in an insane man, and Wilson asked for a ride to the city.

"Hop right in," offered the high constable, who recognized Wilson as a man he had been looking for for some time.

Wilson "hopped," and he didn't hop again until the county jail was reached. It is said that the prisoner has deserted to his child, born after he deserted his wife last fall.

EASTER LILIES REACH PEAK OF POPULARITY

Ten Thousand Plants Bought in Last Week To Make New Record.

Ten thousand Easter lily plants have been bought within the past week to be placed in London homes for the Good Friday and Easter week-end. Not in years have Easter lilies been so popular, local florists declare. The firm of J. Gammar & Sons alone sold more than 2,500 pots of lilies within the past week.

HARBOR TO BE DEEPEINED AT PORT THIS SUMMER

Government Plans $160,000 Improvements For London's Lake Port—Work Will Be Finished This Year—Contract Let Last Thursday—Improved Harbor Will Take Big Boats.

NEW BREAKWATER SAVES ORCHARD BEACH

More than $160,000 will be expended this year by the federal government in improving and enlarging Port Stanley harbor, according to J. E. Hunter, deputy minister of public works, who was in London yesterday.

Work commenced on harbor improvements last year will be completed this summer, Mr. Hunter told The Advertiser. The harbor will be widened and deepened considerably in order that larger lake boats can dock at the Western Ontario port.

WILL STOP ORCHARD BEACH LOSS.

Contract for the work was let on Thursday by the dominion government to Birmingham & Son of Kingston. Building of an extrapier on the east side of the harbor will start the first of next week. The improvements will include also extension of the east breakwater at Port Stanley with a projection jutting out into the lake and designed to throw current of water away from the harbor and beaches on the east and west sides. In this manner further loss of property on Orchard beach will be stopped. With the breakwater extension several miles of Orchard beach property will be assured of protection against rough lake weather, which has always been responsible for loss of property through washouts and landslides.

Mr. Hunter, who came to London yesterday to visit Hon. C. S. Hyman at his home on Grand avenue, has served as deputy minister of public works under four governments. He took office when Mr. Hyman received his portfolio as minister of public works in the Laurier government.

Mother Pushes Baby Buggy Over 18 Miles to Get Work

With Three Tiny Children Starts on Foot For London From Union.

IS BEFRIENDED

Weary and dusty and with two children, four and six years of age, staggering at her heels, Mrs. George Bell walked from Union to Lambeth yesterday, pushing a dilapidated baby carriage containing her youngest child, a boy of two. She was on the way to London to get work and to see her mother, Mrs. Lavina Baxter, who could not be located last night.

A London motorist, on his way to Port Stanley, noticed the woman the other side of St. Thomas yesterday morning. Last night, on his return, he met them near Lambeth, and notified the county police when he reached home.

In the absence of the high constable, Inspector Walter Bolton motored to Lambeth and brought the weary mother and her children to London, where Mrs. Wharton, the high constable's wife, met them their first meal since morning.

Children Walked 18 Miles. The children, who had walked every step of the 18 miles, complained of having sore feet, and Mrs. Wharton bathed the tired little limbs herself. The baby cooed in delight at the sight of a glass of milk and buried his tiny nose in the fluid as soon as it was put to him.

Inspector Kelly of the C. A. S. was called when it was discovered that Mrs. Bell's mother could not be found. Police records showed that she had been in court on a charge of vagrancy last December, but has not been seen since.

The inspector said that he would motor the family back to St. Thomas, but when it came time for the children to put on their shoes their feet had swollen to such an extent that it was impossible to get them on.

Taken to Children's Shelter. The two youngest children of Mr. and Mrs. Wharton came to the rescue, however, and presented the kids with their own slippers, and the inspector carried the party off to St. Thomas children's shelter, where they are now staying pending arrangements for their keeping.

According to Mrs. Bell she had quarrelled with her husband and decided to leave him. Having no money, she intended walking to London, and told Mrs. Wharton that "I didn't walk fast on account of the children and because I wanted to be fresh enough to get a job on Saturday."

It was a Good Friday experience that Mrs. Bell hopes she will never have to repeat.

LONDON TAX LOSS IS LOW

GOOD SHOWING

$2,696,912 in Taxes Collected in Year—Real Estate Leads Losses.

London's taxes for 1923 to the extent of $2,696,912.53 were collected by the city, with a total loss of only $8,988, according to the records of the city treasurer, which were completed today.

Of the full amount paid in taxes, $2,279,197 was raised on the mill rate, and $417,715 for special rates. The special rates were made up as follows: area rentals, $132,530; cement walks, $18,260; curbs and gutters, $22,165; pavements, $158,773; sewers, $87,005; conduits, $4,748; garbage rates, $68,749; street cleaning, $18,896; and street cleaning, $4,031.

Other amounts in the taxes paid by Londoners in 1923 were: School rates, $895,085; Catholic school rates, $43,060; and patriotic rate, $2,467. The general rate for 1923 was $1.33, 58.

Discounts allowed in 1923 were $30,875; percentage charged where the taxpayers were late in their payments, was $17,394; real estate returns, $15,544.

Total losses incurred, which amounted to $68,387, included the following: Real estate returns, $17,344; income tax returns, $5,046; business tax returns, $3,942; and certificate returns, $28,373. Of this, the only actual loss which cannot still be collected is in the return from the income tax and the business tax, which amounts to $8,988.

The loss on the certificate return is unusually high, owing to the fact that the loss of the tax rate of $15,000 had to be shouldered by the city, although it was included in the tax roll for the year.

City Treasurer James Bell regards the showing for collection in 1923 as exceptionally good. There is generally an allowance of 2½ per cent for losses on the tax roll, and but for the annex figures the city treasurer would be $5,000 within this allowance.

WESTINGHOUSE BRAKE CO. TAKEN OVER BY SOVIET

Associated Press Despatch. Yaroslavl, April 11.—The large plant of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company, which was moved from Leninograd to Yaroslavl in 1919, has been appropriated by the soviet state monopoly, to satisfy the government's claim against the company for 900,000 rubles. The plant was appraised by government experts at 1,000,000 rubles, and offered at public auction, but as there were no buyers, the government took it over for operation by the state metal industry.

French Cabinet Swept From Office :: Sever Saved From Death By Gas Fumes

HERRIOT, FRENCH IDOL CRUSHED FROM OFFICE

Six-Hour Battle Climaxed by Lack of Confidence Vote Against Government.

POINCARÉ TRIUMPH

Paul Painlevé Mentioned in Group of Prospective Successors.

Associated Press Despatch. Paris, April 10.—The cabinet of Herriot resigned tonight.

Defeated twice within three days in the senate, M. Herriot and his ministers quickly decided there was no alternative but to resign. When a vote of lack of confidence—156 to 132—was announced the cabinet resigned immediately to the foreign ministry's resignation was drafted.

From the foreign office the defeated ministers, headed by M. Herriot, went to the Elysée Palace, where they were immediately admitted to the office of President Doumergue. M. Herriot placed the resignation in the hands of the chief executive, who accepted it and the retirement of the cabinet thereupon became official.

The fall of the Herriot government was due to former Premier Poincaré. For six hours the battle waged in the senate between the government and the opposition, with the fortunes of war swaying from one side to the other until Poincaré, throwing the weight of his authority into the attack, brought down the cabinet with a crash.

Glorious Victory.

It was a glorious day for a former president of France, M. Millerand. He had sent M. François-Marsal, a former lieutenant and minister of finance, to lead in the attack, and was ready to intervene personally had the fight appeared to go against the opponents of the government.

PUDNEY MUSICIANS

TO BROADCAST PROGRAM

Jack Pudney, and his band of popular London musicians, have again been chosen to broadcast by WAFD, the Ford Motor Co., from 12:30 midnight to 3 o'clock tomorrow morning.

This orchestra has steadily played its way from a small local dance orchestra to its present popular position, and lately Mr. Pudney has received many flattering offers to tour the United States.

CAPTURE CHILDREN FOR CHRIST IS PLEA

Rev. W. C. Poole Says That Solution of Present Day Problems.

The capture of childhood for Christ, constitutes, in the opinion of Rev. W. C. Poole, Ph.D., London, England, who spoke in St. Andrew's hall last night, the solution of all the problems that are engrossing the nations today.

"The heart of a little child is the highway to international understanding," declared Dr. Poole, who is president of the World's Sunday School association, "and the church has no greater task than to claim life at its beginning, instead of trying to reclaim it at the end. The strategy of the hour is the capture of childhood for the kingdom of God."

"A study of Europe reveals the fact that anarchy is idealism wedded to despair," said Dr. Poole, in beginning his address, entitled, "Learn or Perish," and that ordered government is idealism wedded to faith. The logic of events has given Christian education a new strategic importance. The alternatives that confront us are anarchy, or a world mind motivated by Christian ideals."

Bolshevism is nothing more or less than the relentless shadow of reckless materialism," affirmed the speaker emphatically, "and the collapse of civilization can be specifically charged to the evasion of the spiritual as the controlling factor of life. The fundamental apostasy of our day is not honest reservation regarding some religious credal statements, but rather the mode of life that human nature is human nature, and cannot be changed."

"Education is coming to mean the introduction of control into conduct," continued Dr. Poole, "and Christian education the introduction of control into the resources of the kingdom of God. Our well-nourished ideals should give us the proper attitude toward life, and these, in turn, should equip us with skill in living that would make a world mind possible."

"The urgency of the hour," concluded Dr. Poole, "is the re-exploration of the resources of the kingdom of God and a recovered belief in the irresistible energies that are represented by the great ethic of redemption."

Speaking before a group of 50 Sunday school leaders of the city at a banquet held at the Y. M. C. A. at 6 p.m. Dr. Poole glimpsed into his eyes some of the moods in Europe today and what some of the forward looking people see as the way out of the present predicament. "It is exceedingly difficult," said Dr. Poole, "for all the men who fought in the great war to entirely purge their breasts of the bitterness which was engendered during that titanic struggle."

"Nevertheless, it is the opinion of big men looking to the future," asserted the speaker, "that the solution lies in getting hold of the child life of Europe. The purpose of this is to put before the children, vitiated by sectional prejudices and corroded by racial enmities, ideals which, when accepted and practiced in life, will produce simple loyalty so that nationalism will not be thought an end in itself, but as a means to an end, to wit the international mind which will produce reconciliation, harmony and co-operation."

Dr. Poole's visit to London yesterday, to conduct the largest cities in the Eastern States, and concluding the latter part of the month.

BROKEN SPINE RESULTS IN DEATH OF VICTIM

J. Albert Lowes Loses Fight After Three Weeks in Hospital.

Special to The Advertiser. Ingersoll, April 10.—His spine fractured by a fall in his barn three weeks ago, J. Albert Lowes, a widely-known farmer of North Oxford, this morning died of his injuries in St. Joseph's hospital, London, where he had been confined since the accident. Mr. Lowes was in his 62nd year and had been engaged in farming in North Oxford for many years. He is survived by his widow, two sons, and two daughters.

The funeral will be held from the family residence Monday afternoon to the Ingersoll rural cemetery.

CATHOLICS HONOR SADDEST OF DAYS

Hundreds Attend Mass in Various London Churches—Simple Services.

Good Friday, the saddest day on the Roman Catholic calendar, was observed with simple solemnity in the Catholic churches of London yesterday, and hundreds attended the morning, afternoon and evening services, all symbolic of the crucifixion of Jesus Christ.

The mass of the Pre-Sanctified, austere in its simplicity and compelling in ritual, was celebrated in each of the churches in the morning. Good Friday is the one day of the year when holy communion is not distributed among the laity, and the celebrant was the only one to partake of the sacrament at this mass.

All the altars were bare and the statues were cloaked in purple. The empty tabernacles, with doors swung wide, emphasized the mourning for the crucified Christ. At three o'clock in the afternoon, the time at which the Saviour is supposed to have died, the Way of the Cross took place in each of the churches. In some churches the service was repeated in the evening.

Rev. Fr. J. H. Pocock officiated at the Mass of the Pre-Sanctified at St. Peter's Cathedral, the seat of the London diocese, while Rev. M. F. Fallon, D.D., Bishop of London, conducted the Way of the Cross in the afternoon. The evening devotions consisted of a Lenten sermon by Rev. Fr. Joseph O'Neill, of Woodside, and the chanting of The Te Deum by the choir.

METHODISTS HOLD SPECIAL SERVICES

Good Friday Programs Were in Aid of Chaplains' Fund.

Good Friday services in aid of the chaplains' fund were held by the Methodist denomination of the city yesterday morning at Robinson Memorial and Centennial churches.

The service at Robinson Memorial church, for the north London district, and for Robinson Memorial, First, Colborne street and Empress avenue churches, was addressed by Rev. D. N. McCamus, retired Methodist minister.

Rev. W. L. Hiles of Robinson Memorial, who conducted the service, was assisted by Rev. (Capt.) J. Bruce Hunter, B.D., M.C., Rev. J. F. Chapman and Rev. Herbert J. Uren, president of the London conference.

Taking as his subject Christ's last words, "It is finished," Mr. McCamus explained that Christ's redemptive act was finished. The speaker closed with an eloquent appeal for his hearers to accept Christ as their Redeemer and Intercessor, that through Him they might win salvation.

The address at the service held in Centennial church was given by Rev. R. J. McCormick, pastor of Hyatt Avenue church, on the subject, "The Glory of the Cross." In his remarks Mr. McCormick stressed the importance and value of sacrifice, and pointed out that the sacrifice of our heritage, gives to us beautiful life of joy, constitutes the very genius of brotherhood and guarantees victory, in that nothing can destroy the sacrifice.

Rev. A. E. M. Thomson of Centennial church conducted the service. He was assisted by the following pastors, for which churches the services were held: Rev. (Capt.) John Garbutt, Dundas Centre church; Rev. G. W. Dewey, Grace church; and Rev. L. W. Reid, Hale street church.

Both services were largely attended, and the collections secured for the chaplains' fund were such as to augment the fund by a considerable amount. The purpose of the fund, of course, is to provide for the salary of the chaplain maintained by the Methodist denomination in London to visit all the hospitals and public institutions of the city.

Rideau Hall Girls To Start Practice

The Rideau Hall girls will begin to get their feet into the opening of the local football league in May 12. Commencing next week, practices will be held every Tuesday at 6 p.m. and on Saturday at 2 p.m.

The grounds at the back of the Gorman-Eckert factory have been levelled and rolled and a new diamond prepared. Under the direction of Ed Walker, no effort will be spared to produce a team that will not only be a credit to the city, but will make its name known far beyond London.

This will be a splendid opportunity for young girls possessing the necessary talent to break into the senior league.

They are invited to come to the practices and will be given every consideration.

Gordon Ingram Offers Additional Loan of $2,500 For Cadets.

The expressed request of J. P. Hoag, B.A., Toronto, to withdraw on account of ill-health his acceptance of the post of inspector-administrator here, was accepted by the board of education Thursday afternoon.

After considerable discussion, in which the name of Inspector Geoffrey A. Wheable, B.A., M.C., was the only one mentioned for the position, the board decided to delay the appointment of a successor to V. K. Greer, M.A., until a special meeting to be held on Friday next.

Gordon Ingram, on behalf of Smallman & Ingram, offered to loan the board the sum of $2,500 to be added to the board's appropriation of a like amount, in order that 1,000 uniforms may be purchased immediately for the public school cadet corps. The offer was accepted, and a committee appointed consisting of Trustees G. F. Copeland and R. D. Mess, M.C., and Inspector Wheable, with power to complete the purchase.

Having listened with more or less impatience to a deputation of teachers, headed by T. B. Richardson and Mrs. Rawlings, protesting against the tearing down of Rectory street public school, the board decided to say that matter over also until the special meeting.

Very little discussion took place in connection with a motion proposed by Trustee Mrs. John L. A. Hunt, to eliminate manual training and domestic science from the collegiate institutes of the city, which, in turn, was deferred until the special meeting.

Review Situation.

Chairman S. F. Lawton introduced the question of the possibility of closing one or more of the public schools of the city by taking the different schools of the city, and thus reduce the cost of the local educational system. The board decided to review the whole public school situation at Friday's special session.

While expressing warm sympathy for the recommendation of the special medical committee that a full time school of nursing be established at the hospital to train the children there, the board felt unable, because of the stringent policy of economy enforced upon it by the council in the past, to undertake the work this year in such a complete manner, and the question was, therefore, referred to the inspectors for their serious consideration.

The board authorized the purchase of land adjoining Kaling public school at the rate of approximately $12 per acre, and empowered its officials to undertake expropriation proceedings, if necessary, to secure one particular lot, the owner of which is not willing to sell to the board at a reasonable price.

Outlines Work.

Miss Blanche Rowe, supervisor of the department, pointing out the chief aims of the department were to control communicable diseases and to examine the pupils and bring the results of the examination to the attention of the parents. Miss Rowe commented upon the fine spirit of co-operation which existed between the school nurses and the city board of health department.

The motion to permit Mr. Hoag's withdrawal, as moved by Mr. Mess and Mrs. Hunt, was adopted unanimously. Various members of the board expressed their readiness to proceed with the appointment of another man at once or to elect the man selected should have the unanimous support of the board.

Mrs. Hunt moved, however, that the appointment be deferred for one week in order that the executive committee might be given time to "look round."

Trustee B. N. Campbell objected strenuously to this latter suggestion, intimating that if it was the intention of the board officially to look for another suitable man, rather than appointing Mr. Wheable, he would move immediately that Mr. Wheable be given the post. In this attitude, Mr. Campbell was accorded support by Trustee A. R. Cairncross, vice-chairman of the board, Mr. Mess, N. P. Willmot, William G. Murray and F. H. Greenlee.

Moves Appointment.

When Mrs. Hunt, seconded by Mrs. J. A. Rose, J. B. Wright and G. F. Copeland, pressed for time, Mr.

SAVES LIVES OF SEVEN PERSONS

Police Called, Smash in Door and Find Residents Unconscious From Gas.

HEATER BURNING

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, April 10.—The chance visit of a friend to his home this morning saved the lives of seven persons who were overcome by illuminating gas fumes in a house on Hamilton street, in the east end of the city.

Yesterday James Graham, aged 38, his wife and eleven-months-old baby girl, Mrs. Mary Sandford and her two daughters, Helen Sandford and Jetta Sandford, aged 18 years and 17 years respectively, and Kathleen McDougall, aged 21 years, moved into the house and this morning a friend, Mrs. J. Wilson, visited them, but was unable to gain admission to the house. She summoned the police, who forced the door and found the seven persons in an unconscious condition from the effects of gas fumes, which were escaping from a water heater in the kitchen.

The heater had been left burning when the occupants of the house retired and as it was not equipped with the usual connections to the chimney the fumes spread over the house while they slept. They were given first aid treatment and rushed to the General hospital, where five of them are still confined. Mr. Graham and Miss McDougall being able to go home after several hours.

PRINCE PRESENTED WITH GOLD SWORD

Duplicate of Ashanti Sword of State Is Given Wales.

Associated Press Despatch. Kumasi, Ashanti, April 10.—The Prince of Wales today met the chiefs of the Ashanti at a grand palace, following his arrival here this morning from Seconde. The chiefs presented the prince with an address of welcome and a gold duplicate of the Ashanti sword of state, made by local goldsmiths. A noted figure among the chiefs who greeted the prince was former King Prempeh, who was exiled by the British in 1900 to Seychelles Islands in the Indian Ocean. He was released last year, and today was a member of the reception commission. Prempeh was the only native on the royal dais.

When the prince drove up to the great semi-circular gathering of the chiefs two of them advanced and presented gifts. The scene was a perfect riot of gold, one chief being covered with massive gold ornaments that hung around his neck, wrists, ankles and knees, while he carried huge bangles on his arms. Even the retainers wore fortunes in the shape of gold staves, while the executioners each had four large solid gold knives slung across their backs.

WIFE KILLED IN ACCIDENT. HUSBAND DIES OF INJURIES

Canadian Press Despatch. Welland, April 10.—Melvin Morgan, whose wife, Laura Morgan, was killed at Stevensville Tuesday night, when their motorcar in which they were riding was struck by a Buffalo-Chicago dier, died in the hospital here last night from injuries which he received. When he was removed to the hospital it was thought that his injuries were not of a serious nature, but closer examination showed that he had been seriously injured internally and little hope was held out for his recovery.

ASKS ALL TO WORK MORE FOR LEAGUE

Bishop Williams Declares League of Nations Represents Christianity.

Rt. Rev. David Williams, lord bishop of the diocese of Huron, preaching yesterday morning in St. Paul's cathedral, urged Christians to pray and work for the League of Nations as representing the practical national form of national Christianity today.

The bishop took as his text the 32nd verse of the 12th chapter of John: "I, if I am lifted up, will draw all men unto Me," and declared that Christ in His death was a pledge of a new life for the world.

"Before Christ the general conception of life was a purely selfish one," said the bishop. "Christ taught the world that God was a God of love and that love was the only basis for happy individual or national life. If we believe that Christ taught a true theory of life then we should do what we may to carry out its principles in our own lives."

"From a national and international standpoint the League of Nations represents the Christian ideal today more nearly than any other organization. Therefore let us pray and work for the success of the league."

"The crucifixion is the visible pledge of the divine forgiveness which we are young and we are old to overlook this side of the death of Christ. We do not pay much attention to forgiveness. As we grow older we take a different view of the value and comfort of forgiveness is more apparent and more real."

"It may be that the death of Jesus is the supreme mystery of our history, that the giver of all life should die at the hands of those to whom He had given life. It is the inspiration of our religion. No other religion gives us a sure hope of the future, and empowers the future, as well as our individual lives, and is the greatest fact in history."

Campbell went so far as to move that Mr. Wheable be appointed, which motion was promptly seconded by Mr. Willmot.

Mr. Wright thereupon hotly accused Mr. Campbell of "outletting" the matter to the other day that the matter was not to be brought up at this meeting" by enjoining the motion to appoint Mr. Wheable.

Mr. Campbell rejoined that he had made no undertaking with the board not to bring the matter up, despite an intimation to the contrary by Mr. Copeland that he had "sprung it on the board."

Mr. Copeland moved that the board apply officially to the department of education that Mr. Greer be permitted to remain in London until the end of June in order that the board might take more time in making an appointment.

This proposal was scarcely considered, and was agreed that the matter should stand over for eight days, the consensus of opinion being that while the board as a board would not look for another young man, individual members could do so if they chose and bring the names before the board at the special meeting next week.

WOMEN and THE HOME

Quaint Little Restaurant In New York Is Popular

Russian Notables Make Up Staff of Waiters and Entertainers.

PATRONS SING TOO

By JULIA MOYT.

New York, April 6.—Most of the restaurants where one goes for supper after the play are very much alike, with but little difference in decoration and music. There are one or two places, however, that have a distinct atmosphere of their own. One I am thinking of particularly is run by a Russian, but curiously enough, backed by the money of two boys lately graduated from Harvard. It is a funny little place with very little room to dance, not particularly good pictures on the walls, but a place to which every one wishes to return. The little Russian who runs the restaurant has a very interesting personality and one can see his influence not only on all his employees but on his patrons as well.

I must frankly confess to being not in the least interested in the dukes and duchesses of Russia who are living in Paris by getting meals from their rich friends, but I am very much interested in a certain class who come over here and are working hard under quite different circumstances from those to which they are accustomed, but from whom one never hears a word of complaint or self-pity.

All Famous People.

The little place, of which I am writing is entirely made up of these people. One of the head waiters, for instance, was a famous Hamlet of the Russian stage, and every waiter and cook in the place has been at some time an actor or singer in his own country. The only entertainment, as a matter of fact, that is given at this place is given by these men and women. For a certain period of time it is very difficult to get anything to eat if one so desires, as the entire personnel is entertaining with songs, and very amusing ones too. Even one of the cooks comes out of the kitchen, wearing his white cap and apron, and sings. One of the waiters is a beautiful dancer, another one sings and plays his own accompaniment.

I have said before that it is interesting in Paris to watch people forget their Anglo-Saxon origin and become natural and unconscious under the Parisian influence. It is just as interesting to notice exactly the same thing affect them in this place. It is the usual thing to see all in the place joining in the singing, throwing confetti at each other, and altogether behaving like children out for a good time.

Fresh From College.

I was there the other night when two college boys who had even-president of the ladies' committee of the highland golf club, under whose auspices a big luncheon and bridge will be held on Tuesday.

Recently had a club dinner and arrived in good spirits and, needless to say, full of health and vitality. A man in my party, who knew these boys, happens to be an extremely good pianist. During one of the intervals in which the orchestra was not playing, he went to the piano and started playing college songs. It ended by not only the boys and all the others in the restaurant singing, but also the Russians, with their deep and typical Russian voices, trying hard to understand and join the singing of "Fair Harvard" and the rest.

The whole atmosphere is one of pleasant comradeship. From the moment you are greeted at the door by the proprietor, dressed in a Russian costume, during the time that you have a word of appreciation from the waiter or the violinist of the orchestra (who, incidentally, is a symphony player), until you leave with a word of appreciation from the proprietor and his assurance that he waits for the day when you will return. I have yet to see anyone who goes there, old or young, resist its atmosphere, and invariably they do return.

For the interesting events in connection with the University of Western Ontario this month will be the first annual banquet of the Hesperiad club, to be held on Wednesday, April 15. It is expected that Prof. Wallace of the University of Toronto will be the special guest of the occasion.

The opening night of Julia Arthur's presentation of Bernard Shaw's "St. Joan," a number of theatre parties are being arranged in connection with the I. O. D. E. theatricals. The order, brought by the standard-bearers of the chapters, will be placed on the boxes, and at the front of the stage, in honor of the I. O. D. E. outstanding name as a Canadian.

A smart event for the end of the month will be the euchar, bridge and dance at which the members of the I. O. D. E. chapter, I. O. D. E., will be hostesses, entertaining in the new home of the Thomas Furniture Company on Richmond street. The patrons of the euchar, bridge and dance will include: Mrs. J. D. E. Wenzel, Mrs. A. E. Miller, Miss Grace Fairley, Mrs. A. V. Beecher, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. E. Wenzel, and Mrs. F. J. Greenaway.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Schollick entertained delightfully at their home on Quebec street this week, when an evening was spent in music and games. Mrs. Schollick contributed charming songs during the evening, and Mrs. Greenslade gave some very clever readings. The prize-winners of the evening were Miss Muriel Long, Mrs. Lucas, Mr. C. Gunner, Mr. A. Horner and Mr. W. Clark, Jr. At the conclusion of the evening, dainty refreshments were served by the hosts.

The home of Mr. C. Robertson, King street, was the scene of a jolly gathering this week, when a number of young people assembled for a delightful surprise party and enjoyed a pleasant evening. The guests included: Charles Beveridge, Gordon Daniel, Joe Hennessy, Miss M. Horman, Miss Hilda Gray, Miss Ruby Anderson, Miss Louise Andrews, Harold Hodgins, Jack Osborne, Frank Clements, Miss Jessie Holt, Miss Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Bertram, Mrs. Young, Mrs. Osborne, Mr. Tuffin and Miss Gladys Robertson.

In honor of the birthdays of Miss Bella Fisher and Miss Martha Simpson, about 35 young people gathered at the home of Mrs. Annie Henderson, Ekerton street, for a social evening. A huge birthday cake, centered the attractively-arranged table, from which a dainty buffet supper was served at the conclusion of the evening.

New Adventures of Sherlock Holmes

THE THREE GARRIDEBS

By SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

This is the third of a series of stories, never before published in a newspaper, in which "good old Watson" tells some of the most thrilling adventures of Sherlock Holmes.

It may have been a comedy or it may have been a tragedy. It cost one man his reason, it cost me a bloodletting, and it cost yet another man the penalties of the law. Yet there was certainly an element of comedy. . . . Well, you shall judge for yourselves.

I remember the date very well, for it was in the same month that Holmes refused a knighthood for services which may perhaps some day be described. I only refer to the matter in passing, for in my position of partner and confidant I am obliged to be particularly careful to avoid any indiscretion. I repeat, however, that this enables me to fix the date, which was the latter end of June, 1902, shortly after the conclusion of the South African war. Holmes had spent several days in bed, as was his habit from time to time, but he emerged that morning with a long flookcap document in his hand and a twinkle of amusement in his austere gray eyes.

"There is a chance for you to make some money, Watson," said he. "Have you ever heard the name of Garrideb?"

"I admitted that I had not. "Well, if you can lay your hand upon a Garrideb, there's money in it."

"Why?"

"Ah, that's a long story—rather a whimsical one, too. I don't think in all our explorations of human complexity we have ever come upon anything more singular. The fellow will be here presently for cross-examination, so I won't open the matter up until he comes. But mean-

The Kidneys— and their relation to Good Health

You want good health. You want to enjoy life to the full, unhampered by sickness and disease. Then you must see to it that every organ of your body is working smoothly and performing its functions properly.

Particularly is this true of the kidneys, the filters of your body. If the kidneys become clogged with impurities, your blood becomes poisoned, and your whole system suffers. You have headaches, pains in the back, swollen hands and joints, rheumatism. Urination is painful, scanty, or too frequent.

Unless this condition is checked, serious and perhaps fatal illness will result. If you detect any of these symptoms, correct the trouble right away by taking

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

They will restore the kidneys to their normal action, and give you back the good health you desire so much.

At all druggists—50c. a box.

ARTIST GETS JOB PAINTING GOWNS

No Longer Struggles to Copy
Old Masters—Earns
Real Money.

By ALLEN LAMONT.
Special to The Advertiser.

New York, April 10.—Greenwich Village has cheered up. More than one struggling artist has ceased to copy the old masters and is making rent money by painting for the young misses. Paris has sent us the hand-painted frocks. These are designed not alone for evening wear, but for informal occasions and even for sport.

Satin and heavy crepe de chine are the materials on which the modern artist is splashing at present. One charming dinner dress seen today is of black satin made along extremely simple lines with an 18-inch band of hand-painted birds and foliage about the hips. A jumper dress, designed by Agnes of Paris, which has just arrived, is covered with broad splashes of color lacquered by hand.

Some of the lighter dresses for late spring are of printed chiffon or georgette with hand-painted borders, and many of the chiffon frocks have their floral designs cut out and applied on a chiffon base. In place of the painted models, some designers are substituting brilliant hued Russian embroideries, executed in broad bands, chevrons and irregular

Dorothy Dix

It's All Right to Shout Your Love, But Don't Put It Down in Black and White.

A young girl wants me to tell her how to write a love letter.

Not on your life, sweet child. I would as soon give you a reliable recipe for concocting home brew with a forty-power white mulch to it as I would a formula for writing love letters. One wouldn't be a whit more dangerous and demoralizing to you than the other.

The only rule for writing love letters that I can give to any girl who is chewing up her penholder while she tries to think of how to put her surging emotions on paper and wonders if there are two "f's" or one in "affection" is DON'T DO IT. Whisper your love. Shout it aloud. Telephone it. But never, never, NEVER write it. Don't put it down in black and white.

If the urge to write is too strong for you, then let me implore you to seal your burning, sizzling billet doux up in a good stout envelope and park it in the ice box until the next day. Then read it over, and you will mail it in the fire or the waste-paper basket. You will never send it, and you will feel like going down on your knees and thanking God that you were saved one more time from making a fool of yourself.

It is silly enough and indiscreet enough for a girl to write sloppy love letters to the man to whom she is betrothed and whom she expects to marry. For it is the part of wisdom to keep a man guessing instead of having it go on record that you are ever and unalterably his, and that you pine away in his absence and would surely commit suicide if anything untoward happened to him or he should cease to love his own itty darling Tootsy Wootsy.

Unfortunately, however, girls do not confine their love missives to their betrothed. They put the climax on their folly by sending these incriminating documents, wherein they recall sentimental episodes, and exhaust the whole vocabulary of endearments, and swear their deathless devotion to men who are comparative strangers, men who have never asked them to marry them, and whom they wouldn't marry on a bet.

These girls fail to realize how serious, how sinister the written word can become. A girl may tell a boy she loves him and that she will break her heart if he goes away, and both he and she know it's just part of the "kidney" of a girl's flirtation. She may even kiss a youth innocently enough, but when she writes him that she is dying of love for him and that she is hungry for his kisses it becomes another thing and the gossips roll it under their tongues.

Many a girl has been sneered at and pitied for having given her love in vain or having been jilted; many a girl's character has been torn into tatters by the scandal-mongers. Just because of a silly letter she wrote some man with whom she was corresponding. She put in all of the highfalutin nonsense about love and dying and kisses just because she thought it sounded like "Three Weeks" or a movie scenario, and because she gave it her pep, and she never dreamed how it would look to a cynical and censorious world.

For these are the kinds of letters that father buys back when they happen to be written to a handsome and fascinating stranger with no principles and an itching palm. And they cost papa a pretty penny and the girl the scare of her life, for well she knows she would never be able to hold up her head again among her friends if these hectic letters, not one word of which she really meant, were made public to be laughed at and ridiculed by decent people, and to be made the most and the worst of by the evil-minded.

DOROTHY DIX.

"But you have been in England for some time," said Sherlock Holmes to Mr. Garrideb of Kansas. Mr. Garrideb wondered how Mr. Holmes knew. "The shoulder out of your coat, the toes of your shoes; could anyone assumed a far less amiable expression. "Patience, patience, Mr. Garrideb!" said my friend in a soothing voice.

"Dr. Watson would tell you that these little digressions of mine sometimes prove in the end to have some bearing on the matter. But why did Mr. Nathan Garrideb not come with you?"

"Why did he ever drag you into it at all?" asked our visitor, with a sudden outburst of anger. "What in thunder had you to do with it?"

"There was no redaction upon you, Mr. Garrideb. It was simply said upon his part to gain your end—an end which is, I understand, equally vital for both of you. He knew that I had means of getting information, and therefore it was very natural that he should apply to me."

Visitor Grows Suspicious.

Our visitor's angry face gradually cleared.

"Well, that puts it different," said he. "When I went to see him this morning and he told me he had sent a detective to a private matter, I just asked for your address and came right away. I don't want to put you into a private matter, but if you are content just to help us find the man, there can be no harm in that."

"Well, that is just how it stands," said Holmes. "And now, sir, since you are here we had best have a clear account from your own lips. My friend here knows nothing of the details."

Mr. Garrideb surveyed me with not too friendly a gaze.

"Need he know?" he asked.

"Well, there's no reason it should be kept a secret. I'll give you the facts as short as I can make them. If you came from Kansas, would you not need to explain to you who Alexander Hamilton Garrideb was? He made his money in real estate, and afterwards in the wheat pit at Chicago, but he spent it in buying up as much land as would make one of your counties, lying along the Arkansas river, west of Fort Dodge. It's grazing land and lumber land and arable land and mineralized land, and just every sort of land that brings dollars to the man that owns it."

"He had no kith nor kin—or if he had, I never heard of it. But he took a kind of pride in the queerest of his names. That was what brought me to need to explain to you who Alexander Hamilton Garrideb was. It's grazing land and lumber land and arable land and mineralized land, and just every sort of land that brings dollars to the man that owns it."

A Lesson From the Legislature.

Premier Ferguson's desire to close off the present session of the legislature resulted in third readings being given to 80 bills on the last day. This was made possible because the government has a majority that can be counted on to vote as the premier dictates; this majority does not ask too many embarrassing questions, but all through the session has shown a tendency to vote regardless of the personal views of some of the government members are known to have championed prior to their election.

The government put through the new beer regulations readily, and has made it less possible for the rural sections to strike back by wiring out many of the dry ridings and transferring the seats to the cities.

The increased sessional indemnities was put through in a similar way, although the opposition to this was painfully weak from the opposition parties. By adding $600 to the salaries of members and $2,000 to cabinet ministers, the province is saddled with an extra burden of $86,600, not for one year only, but for each succeeding year, as there is practically no prospect of any future government reverting to lesser figures.

The premier and his government had an opportunity to seriously consider the advisability of lessening the size of the legislature, and in this way simplifying the form of government and decreasing the cost to the people. In the same measure there was the possibility of giving definite form to the government's contention that it is in earnest about the problems of northern and rural Ontario. Instead he chose to stake his fortunes to the theory of representation solely by population, an idea that has been observed in Canada more by the breach than the compliance. He has weakened the voice of rural Ontario, done nothing for New Ontario, and placed more strength in the hands of the cities, which are more prosperous than the rural communities.

The government defeated an effort to cut down the number of prescriptions that could be issued by a doctor from 50 to 30 per month, and to reduce the fee for a prescription to 50c instead of $2. This measure was in the right direction, and the fee of 50c is sufficient. It was aimed to block the few doctors who write the maximum number of "pres" at $2 each.

The government's policy of stronger beer, which has now passed its third reading, is a direct reversal of the vote of the people on October 23, and also means that the province was put to the tremendous cost of taking the vote only to have the result negated by the government. The premier's announcement following the vote, when he said the will of the people must prevail, and that the O. T. A. would remain the law of the land, is a long way removed from the legislation he put through.

The lesson of the session now closing brings to the front very plainly the necessity for closing the breach in the ranks of the parties opposed to a reactionary government in Ontario. Liberals and Progressives have found themselves united in opposition to government measures on many occasions, but the two camps into which these forces are divided weakens the influence they should exercise. There have been movements in the past to bring these two parties to common ground, but they have not amounted to much because party leaders feared that any such move would mean the loss of party identity, or that they would have to make compromises that would not be acceptable to the rank and file of their following. To this situation the record of the past session of the legislature has added a degree of urgency that has not heretofore existed, and one that cannot be easily ignored or lightly put aside.

Let's Hear More of Such Cases.

The Manitoba Free Press is quite right when it says that it is almost impossible to pick up a paper or a magazine today unless one runs into some descriptive article telling how the young people of the present day are going to the deuce. The writers generally bring some examples to support their theory, and the outlook is rather gloomy. The Free Press presents by way of contrast the story of Dorothy Mitchell, who had some of her live stock on exhibition at the recent winter fair in Regina.

When Dorothy was 16 years of age, which was last year, her father died, leaving her the eldest of eight children, on a farm near Oakshel, Saskatchewan.

She and her young brothers decided to carry on the farm. They put in a crop and harvested it, going to school between whiles. They have two quarter sections broken and a third partly broken. Thirty head of cattle are on the place.

The crop came out on the right side and then the young farmers turned their attention to the stock. It was some of these that were exhibited at the Regina fair. The judges said that considering the material on which Miss Mitchell had had to work, she had achieved very creditable results, but the cattle had not been good enough to start with.

This year she has decided to give up school and take up farming seriously.

This is the outline of the story, but there is much between the lines, as anyone with any experience of a prairie farm will realize. It means keeping the family together and giving them a chance to grow up with the country. It means capacity for hard work and patience and courage and perseverance and all the other qualifications most to be desired in young Canadians.

The Free Press does well to turn publicity on such a case. It is a wholesome story, and every bit as interesting as any that specialized in the sordid details of doubtful life or positive crime. It gives the reader a chance to look at real Canadianism of the sort that should be held up to the younger generation, who may be tempted to think that success lies along the road of easy work and little effort.

A Remarkable Accomplishment.

In the annual oratorical contest for students of Ryerson school, one of the first-prize winners was Pearl Wong, a Chinese girl, who has been a student at the school for some time. Her choice of subjects was a description of a trip across Canada, and curiously enough this daughter of the east was able to portray in excellent manner the glories of this western land.

The incident also demonstrates that accomplishment and attainment is often coincident with the opportunity for securing it. The contribution of this now Canadianized girl rather negates the idea that there is anything in the plea that there is such a thing as a superior race, and instead inclines to the view that opportunity has a great deal to do with national or individual development.

There is the further suggestion, too, that people originating in another race can get the most out of life and associations here when they cease to cling to the love of another land, to reverse its tenets more than those of the land to which they have come, and enter wholeheartedly into Canadian thought and Canadian national ideals.

The 1925 Telephone.

The following was overheard on the telephone, and the speaker was a girl of 20 summers: "Can't you make it at 4 o'clock, that would suit me just fine?"

"On Thursday, well I don't know if that would do as well."

"Yes, I thought it was lovely the last time."

"Well, I don't know if I could wait until Friday or not."

"Well, all right, if you can make it on Friday, I'll be there right on time and won't keep you waiting a minute."

She was talking to the person who runs the beauty parlor and the hairdressing establishment.

A Notable Week In London.

The coming week will be one of unusual activity in London. It is the date of the Hobby Fair, which has come to be an annual event under the auspices of the Rotary club. The fair is being held at this particular date, which is a little earlier than usual, because during the same week, on Thursday and Friday, the district conference of Rotarians is being held in London, the territory represented taking in London, Chatham and Windsor on Ontario and 57 cities in Michigan. It is the first occasion on which a conference of this size has been held in London, and it is an ambitious undertaking on the part of the local Rotarians to handle such a gathering.

The Hobby Fair needs no introduction to the people of London, because they have seen its development during the past two years, they have looked at it carefully and pronounced it good. It has come to be recognized as a clearing-house for all the ingenuity of the boys and girls of London. It may be of interest to Londoners generally to know that Rotary clubs in other Canadian and American cities have undertaken the same idea, and are patterning their venture on the same lines as adopted in London.

There is an extensive street decorating program being carried out, and citizens and businessmen in general can assist very materially if they do what they can to make the city as attractive as possible during the days of the conference. A gathering of this nature will be a good piece of business for London; it provides an opportunity to make this city favorably known to some 700 delegates who will gather here from various points in Michigan.

Note and Comment.

The office joker says: "I backed a horse and it cost me $50—we backed into a plate glass window."

The government will tax pop because it needs the money, so if you don't care for 4.4 beer you can help save the province by the pop route.

Scientists are now arguing whether the world is fifty or a hundred million years old, but to the man who is trying to pay for a very small section of it there's really not much point to the controversy.

The Orillia Packer is authority for the statement that Whitby town council has been threatened with legal proceedings to collect an account of $12 for six plug hats rented for the occasion of the governor-general's visit last November.

The Niagara Falls, N.Y., Gazette had a special issue in connection with the opening of a new hotel there, and announced that the guests of honor included E. W. Beatty of Montreal, president of the C. P. R. With the announcement is a fine two-column photo, labelled "E. W. Beatty of Montreal." The only thing wrong is that the photo is that of Sir Henry Thornton, president of the C. N. R.

The March Fly

Of course we ought to swat them all and lay the dead ones in a row, but this one bein' the first to come I reckoned how I'd let him go!

A fly be sittin' on my desk, perhaps he's not the first to come, but him a-sittin' there is proof of how fly season is begun. He's not a nimble sort of fly he's blinkin' in a way what's queer, as though he had been suppin' up a thimbleful of four-four beer.

It wouldn't be no trick at all to fold a paper in my mit, and poise it upward in the air and knock him for a three-base hit.

Accordin' to the things I read I ought to rise and swat him now, and drop on him a fearful blow and crush the bones upon his brow. But he just sets a-blinkin' there and stretchin' out his legs a spell, and actin' in a lazy way though he not feelin' none too well.

I wonder if he ever heard that song that ran in rampant rhyme, that sang unto the world about where flies go in the winter time? I wish he'd tell me if the jay who wrote that thing was right or wrong, and if it was an evil thing for us to chant that silly song.

Was you the fly that come last year and tangoed on my barren head, and kept me from my needed sleep when I lay sweatin' on my bed? I be not much at holdin' spite or tryin' to pick a frisky row, but just the same if you're that fly I'd swat you hard and do it now.

Stop turnin' round your neck so much and listen what I got to say, I want to know just where you was upon a certain August day. Were you one of ten million flies what camped upon our picnic fare, and did you go and tell the rest as how we was a-eatin' there?

Where have you been this winter time, where did you and your folks remain—was you a-sittin' on a limb or hangin' on a picture frame?

Say, is it so that in ten weeks, if I don't take and swat you now, you'll make another crop of flies to settle on the brindle cow? 'Twould be a simple trick right now to swat you firmly in the eye, instead of smittin' ninety more when come the hot days of July.

Accordin' to reports I get I ought to aim at you a blow, but you just keep on blinkin' there, so just this once I'll let you go.—ARK.

Press Comment

COULD NOT CURE THE LOAFER.

(Bruce Herald and Times.)

A TOWN loafer, who was wont to betake himself to a local blacksmith shop and while away the hours roosting on an upturned nail keg watching the smithy sweat out a living at the forge, was driven into activity the other day in a manner that should have cured him of the sitting habit for a time at least. Driving a horse-shoe nail through the bottom of the keg, the smithy left the business end of the nail pointing upwards like a church spire towards the ethereal blue. Carelessly throwing a newspaper on top of the peak, he left the trap set and went on making hay while the sun shone. As the loafer pulled into port and proceeded to take his accustomed seat, the artist of the forge, being a tender-hearted soul, turned his back and pounded strenuously on the anvil so that he might neither hear nor see an explosion in his midst. The uproar came on schedule time, and for a spell there was a stir that would have made the Japanese earthquake look tame as a disturber of the peace. After the loafer had done his bit and loosed a brand of language at the head of the firm, the blacksmith knew his case was hopeless when he beheld him turning the nail over with a hammer with a view to resuming his old place again and catching up on his lost rest.

HIS GLORIOUS DEATH.

With eyes of deep compassion, Jesus gazed, From agonizing cross on which, half dazed, He hung in agony.

Into the upturned faces of His friends, The love He saw in them made full amends For brutal blasphemy.

Although in mortal anguish from His pain, He knows His words will live and Love will reign Throughout this world of lies.

And thus He gives one last sweet-smiled goodbye, Then murmurs, "It is finished"; gives one cry Of Triumph—and He dies.

—C. A. MORRIS.

Those Extra Indemnities.

Premier Ferguson's bill increasing salaries of Ontario cabinet ministers from $6,000 to $8,000 a year, and advancing sessional indemnities from $1,400 to $2,000, will be resented by the public, says the Ottawa Journal. Reason may possibly exist for an increase in the salaries of cabinet ministers, whose duties compel them to live in Toronto and to give their full time to the service of the province. But it is absurd to suggest that $1,400 does not adequately indemnify members of the legislature who are called to Toronto for not more than three months of the year, and who, in the majority of cases, are able to return home for week-ends and are by no means divorced from their businesses.

This country is going mad with its overhead of government. With about nine million people it is paying out something like $3,000,000 a year in salaries and indemnities to cabinet ministers, members of parliament, senators, members of legislatures and legislative councillors. Our maritime provinces alone, always turbulent about their wrongs, have more legislators than the great state of New York, with eleven million people and a budget almost as great as the Dominion of Canada. And every year, in every province, the case is getting worse. We are creating more representation, and paying the representation more money.

ARGENTINA MAY USE PLANES TO SPEED MAIL SERVICE

Associated Press Despatch.

Buenos Aires, April 9. — A saving of one week in postal service between New York and Buenos Aires, now occupying 18 to 20 days, is one of the features of plans for the establishment of mail plane routes radiating from this city, which have been submitted to President Alvear by the Argentine aero club. The president has promised to send a message to congress at its forthcoming session commending an appropriation for carrying out the plans. These include mail plane service to Antofagasta, Chile; Asuncion, Paraguay, and remote points of the Argentine republic.

The week's saving on New York mails would be gained by the proposed route to Antofagasta, where the aeroplanes would take on mails from steamships touching that port, and arrive in Buenos Aires two days later.

All Mutual Profits go back to the Participating Policyholders

This Company Offers You Life Insurance at Cost

Do you understand the difference between a Mutual Life insurance company and the ordinary insurance company?

The Mutual Life of Canada is organized to give insurance to its policyholders at the cost of carrying on the business. The only members of the company are the policyholders. They lend each other mutual financial support, and no charge is made for this mutual service except to cover actual cost of operation.

The Mutual Life of Canada grew up in this country from a sound if modest foundation of 500 members fifty-five years ago. Today it is one of the strong, stable institutions of Canada, with assurances amounting to more than $295,000,000. The Mutual Life of Canada is the only strictly Canadian Company in Canada offering life insurance at cost.

HEART TROUBLE SHORTNESS OF BREATH

Mrs. Geo. E. Bowman, Morrisburg, Ont., writes:—"I am writing you a few lines to let you know of my experience with Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. Two years ago I became very poorly with my heart and nerves and whenever I took the least little bit of exercise my heart would start to jump and flutter. I could not walk upstairs without having to sit down and rest before I was half way up, on account of my breath becoming so short.

—one GYPROC BOARD does the work of FIVE sheathing boards

THINK of the immense saving in time, in building a house when ONE board is made to do the work of FIVE!

GYPROC Board when used in place of sheathing, not only saves time but it gives you the valuable advantage of fireproof construction. It makes a stronger wall too.

GYPROC Board costs less than ordinary sheathing and is applied in much less time. GYPROC used also as an interior finish for walls and ceilings will enable you to complete your building from three to five weeks earlier and save proportionately on labor costs.

GYPROC is pure gypsum plaster cast in broad, smooth, straight-edged sheets, flexible and easily handled. These sheets of solid rock serve as an insulator against heat, cold and moisture. They can be sawed and nailed as easily as ordinary lumber.

St. Thomas and London Want Southern Loop Re-formed.

TERRIERS PRACTICE

Intercountry Going Ahead With Plans For Six-Team Circuit.

HE remnants of the Southern league, consisting of St. Thomas and London, met last night and drafted an appeal to President Snyder of the O. B. A. A. to reassemble the league.

The appeal, which was drafted by St. Thomas and London, was presented to President Snyder of the O. B. A. A. last night.

Speaking for Stratford, President Snyder said that the league had been reformed in the past, but that it had not been successful. He said that he would consider the appeal, but that he would not guarantee its success.

INTERCOUNTRY HIGH-BALL.

Special to The Advertiser.

Galt, April 10.—While the air has been full of rumors of late about London and St. Thomas entering the intercountry league, this organization is going ahead with its preparations for the league, as was constituted, of six teams, Stratford, Guelph, Preston, Kitchener, Brantford, and Galt.

The league will be held next week, and a meeting is to be held next week to draft a schedule. President W. A. Smith announced that the league will be held on Tuesday at 4 o'clock to arrange dates for the opening games.

It is known that the intercountry clubs have been full out as to admitting London and St. Thomas.

The interest in baseball has not waned here since the opening of the season, when a crowd of several hundred fans gathered in Dickson park to witness the second outdoor practice of the Galt team.

There were ten on hand, and the ball around and the batting and fielding practice, spending two hours on the diamond.

The players, several of the players being out of town for the week-end, were in the Galt team.

With Oshawa in the General Ontario league, made his debut in a baseball uniform last night, and showed up exceptionally well.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Interest In School Meet Is Growing Keener Daily As May 16 Draws Closer

Western Ontario Teams Making
Extensive Preparations
For Annual Track Events.

LOCALS STRONG

With the announcement that the 1925 W.O. track meet will be held on the new oval at the Western university stadium, and that Duke McGarry, premier starter of Canadian club races, will officiate, enthusiasts throughout Western Ontario are turning with renewed interest towards the event. The new track and the fact that the city with its first cinder track means faster times and a better meet all around. Secondly, Duke McGarry, who is a name to conjure with in Canadian track life, Duke has in his many years of experience learned the value of friendship, and has built up a circle of followers who rely on him like they would on their Dutch grandfather. The athletes all know Duke as a fair-minded, dignified, and kind man who talks to them at the starting line and takes away all their nervousness. Many runners are afraid of the gun, but when Duke McGarry is behind it, they are confident right off the bat, and are able to put their whole mind on the race. Any meet can hardly be a failure with Duke McGarry upholding the pistol end.

Then again, the championships last year were considerably spread around. Central had been holding them all for two years owing to the work of the famous squad which gave the noted Hamilton C. I. team a close run for Canadian honors, but now the purple and gold holds the trophy, and the entire team has disappeared through graduation, so it will be new blood this spring that will uphold the honor of Central. Technical school took the intermediate title through the work of Harry Reynolds, but he also has passed on, and so far there is no one to take his place. Samuels holds the junior championship by means of all-round teamwork.

Setting Down.

The last few years have been a period of construction in London, as far as schools are concerned, and the coaches have been considerably shifted around, with the result that the athletes were not given proper attention. But how things seem to be settling down, and a new era in track work can be seen for the city. This is brought out in the fact that the preparations for the meet this spring are going on with the enthusiasm of two or three years ago, and some surprising talent is expected to be thrown over the rails on May 16.

Central C. I. which holds the senior title, has not much of the old material to bet on. Jack Drew, who broke the intermediate record in the high jump at last season's four-school meet, will advance to the senior class owing to the weight ruling. Dick Logan, the old intermediate miler, who has been out of the game for quite a while, is expected to be back. His appearance should add to the confidence of the purple and gold runners, as he has the experience that is needed to hold the gang together. George Gnatzuk is the third of the trio about which Central's hopes will be built. The school has not been able to concentrate as yet on track work, owing to basketball, but Coach W. H. Adamson announces that after Easter they will get right into the training.

Of the four schools in the city, Technical has the best paper squad of all. Several seasons' members of other teams in the city have joined up with the Dundas street aggregation, among which are Doug Westman, shot-putter, javelin-thrower, discus-hurler and pole-vaulter, and one-time individual champion of Ontario, Basil Pitt, miler of Central and Western, a miler, who knows his stuff, and as this is his last year in W.O., he hopes to step out for the record. "Spec" Miller, also a Central product, and a good sprinter, who breaks fast and does the Padlock jump at the tape, and Clyde Volck of South C. I., a lad who does his thing in the broad events and specializes in the broad and high jumps.

Is Strong Nucleus.

This quartet could capture a title by their lone ones, and should prove to be

The nucleus about which the best senior track squad that "Tech" has ever had will be constructed. The boys started early this year, and have been giving the Queen's park track a work-out for two weeks.

At South and East not much is known regarding prospects this year. The school over the river has only one old-timer to fall back on, Ross Sinclair. It is doubtful whether he will be in the game this year. Bill Wadsworth has left school, and that leaves East without a leader and no one able to step up and take his place.

SARNIA TEAM CONFIDENT.

Special to The Advertiser.

Sarnia, April 10.—With basketball off the list and the summer exams afar off, the athletic activities of the collegians are swinging around to the development of the track team that will make a bid to bring the junior, intermediate and senior W.O. honors to this city, in London on May 23.

Charles Keeney, who has charge of the school team for the big Western Ontario track meet this year, is well pleased with the class of the candidates for the different races. He is counting heavily on his senior team carrying off the major award, even though they have none to compare with Eddie Hanna for the sprints. Ted Kennedy will likely go after the shorter distances. "How" Carter will bear the brunt of the jumps and hurdles, and is grooming some likely-looking candidates for the runs. The intermediate and junior teams, which have been left to look after themselves as a rule, will get some attention this year, and the result is likely to show when they strike the London track.

The collegiate mentor has nothing to say regarding the prospects of the team this year. He promises to show the followers who make the London trip a team that will make the going tough for the other schools, even if they do covet the silverware.

Outdoor workouts will start as soon as the campus is dried out and weather conditions are warm enough.

SEEK TO ENLARGE FIELD OF W. F. A.

Delegates Back Move To Lend Northern Centers Assistance.

21 TEAMS ENTER

Kitchener, April 10.—If communities in the northern section of the Western football association which have no teams in organized soccer are desirous of entering league competition, they will find the W. F. A. ready to assist them in organization. This was decided here today at the 46th annual meeting of that body, the oldest soccer organization on the continent. The meeting was held at the Hotel Victoria, and was attended by delegates from 21 teams, and was one of the delegates, while the W. F. A. will also send one, and the sum of $200 of the league funds will be available to carry on the work. It is thought that possibly ten to twelve teams not now in organized soccer will enter the W. F. A. fold.

Nineteen teams have already entered the senior-intermediate division, and two the junior. The last entry date was set at May 1. Again the major series will be in four-team groups with the winners in each playing off for the senior title, and the second place teams entering into an elimination contest for the intermediate honors. There are several new faces on the executive and the northern part of the W. F. A. territory is well represented on it. Reports submitted by Jas. Blake, the treasurer, showed that the W. F. A. is in a sound position from both a competitive and financial angle. There is a balance of $270 in the bank and the receipts last year were $1,596. The secretary was complimented and voted an honorarium of $150.

Rangers Turned Down.

The application of the Guelph Rangers for affiliation was declined, as the Guelph governing body objected on the grounds that the new club had not affiliated with it. Apparently there is a battle on in Guelph, and the situation will be talked over by the two parties with Secretary R. Muir of the O. F. A. shortly. It is expected that an amicable agreement can be reached.

The Walkerton club was returned to good standing when a check for a little over $100 was made out to the league in connection with the financial dispute of last year. A committee was appointed to hear the grievances of certain referees with respect to the ordering of replays on definite dates and grounds were more clearly defined by an amendment to the bylaws.

R. Mackay and A. Armstrong of Hamilton of the Ontario junior football association asked that the junior series of the W. F. A. be operated distinct from the rest of the league, and that it affiliate with the O. J. F. A., but the W. F. A. is unprepared to do this at present.

R. Muir, secretary of the O. F. A., was one of the main speakers at the luncheon tendered the delegates. Incidentally it was the 44th annual meeting attended by David Forsyth of Kitchener, the veteran footballer, who for years was secretary of the W. F. A.

See Successful Year.

There were 54 teams in the W. F. A. last year, and indications are that the coming season will be just as successful. The complete list of officers is as follows: Past president, Don M. Campbell; president, B. L. Bamford; Listowel; first vice-president, Fraser Campbell; Owen Sound; second vice-president, Preston Walker, Walkerton; honorary secretary, D. Forsyth, Kitchener; executive committee, Wm. Carter, Kitchener; E. Shaver, Galt; registrar and delegate to O. J. F. A., W. Brown, Kitchener; O. F. A. councillor, T. Elliott, Galt; auditors, A. Eaton, Kitchener and E. P. Dunmore. The teams which entered today were as follows: Senior—Stratford, Hespler, Preston, St. John's, Kitchener, Victoria, Listowel, Holstein, St. Marys, Knaple, Kitchener, Midway, St. Columban, Milbank, Walkerton, Kitchener Rangers, Carleton Place, Collingwood, Galt, Brantford, Walkerton, Junior, Walkerton and Midway.

Baker Signs Second Sacker Who Piloted Amateur Nine To World's Championship

Bill Knafel of Cleveland Cakes
Will Report Here Next Week.

FIELDS IS COMING

Mike Baker has carried the managerial load a little less than a week, but last night the load lightened until he thought he was merely packing around a small bag of helium gas, which is lighter than nothing at all.

Last night he received the signed contract of Bill Knafel, manager and second baseman of the Cleveland Grenn Cakes, world's semi-pro champions. "Well! What of it?" the fans may ask.

Nothing except that Michael had a gaping hole to fill at second base, and had he had his pick of all the sand-bottlers, the local manager would probably have chosen Knafel.

Mike is argumentative enough, but he doesn't attempt to argue down the accepted baseball truism that a team is just as strong as its players on a line drawn through the center of the diamond. Mike plays shortstop himself, and he knows what is needed on the other side of the bag. Also in front of him and behind.

Knafel may be one of those flowers that bloom on the sandlots, but not on the profits. Mike doesn't think so. At least he doesn't hope so. The local camp will open next week. Connie Fields will be back, although it was stated that he wanted to be sold down the river where it was warmer. Fields is considered around the circuit to be a smart pitcher, although the local fans who saw him knocked out of the box, game after game, may disagree. Anyway Fields is rated a good hurler by the players.

Whatever he may be as a pitcher, Fields is a fine gentlemanly type of player. If he strikes as much cold as he did last year, he won't need to be fired. He'll fire himself. Several times last year Fields wanted to go home, as he felt he couldn't do himself justice, but he was persuaded to stick.

School, the big right-hand pitcher, who reported Thursday night quite unexpectedly, Bill Coggans and Met Johnston, will make a trio of workers-out at the Y. today.

By the end of next week the squad should be pretty nearly all here.

COMING BACK.

Connie Fields will report to Manager Mike Baker next week. Fields didn't get going in the league last year, and is going to make another try. He's one of the smartest curve-ball hurlers in the business, the players say.

Inside Golf Strategies Used By Great Players To Win Important Matches.

THE MANOEUVRE OF "SPARING THE SHOT."

By OLIVER MEGRIM

"Sparing the shot."

This is a trick which experienced golfers often use. It consists in not hitting the ball for all the distance commanded by the club in use. In an exhibition match for a sizeable purse between an ex-open champion and a young fellow who was beginning to be a dangerous contender in the important tournaments the older player took the lead at the sixteenth hole by using this manoeuvre.

Following the drives his ball lay on one side of the fairway and his opponent's on the other—a condition necessary to the execution of the ex-champion's strategy. In this case it had come not by premeditation, but through the luck of the shots. However, the older man was quick to seize hold of his opportunity.

The play to the green called for a good strong spoon shot. The former titleholder was first to shoot. He ripped out a brassie and, taking an easy swing, reached the green hole high in fine style. His club was replaced in his bag almost while his ball was still in flight. He didn't want his opponent to see he had used a brassie.

The other player, thinking the play had been made with a spoon, also employed such a club.

Imitating his rival, too, he took an easy swing. Naturally he didn't get up far enough. He tried to lay his ball dead to the cup with a chip-shot from off the green, but failed and lost the hole.

This proved to be the break of the game and he had to take the lesser end of the purse.

"Sparing the shot" is a dangerous practice for an inexperienced player, because he loses all idea of the distance value of the various clubs. Nevertheless—although from an entirely different motive—he often does it.

Having, let us say, learned to play a brassie fairly well, but being unable to handle a midiron at all, he will use his brassie on midiron shots. As long as he continues the practice he cannot hope to learn to use his midiron. Ultimately he impairs the efficiency of his brassie. His whole game is affected.

A crack professional can "spare a shot" with impunity, however, and he often does so with advantage to himself.

Talks On Health

How Long Will You Live?—Is Average Length of Life Increasing?—The Itch of Chickenpox—Eyestrain at the Movies.

Edited by Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association and member of the staff of Hygeia.

In this column, published every Saturday, there appear discussions of subjects related to health, hygiene and the prevention of disease, and condensed statements of articles written for Hygeia, the official organ of the American Medical Association, for the public; also answers to questions provided by authorities through the association. Requests for specific medical advice or diagnosis, which can be given only by the physician on seeing the patient, will be answered by a note to that effect. This department is especially prepared for The Advertiser and other members of the North American Newspaper Alliance, with the co-operation of Hygeia. All questions should be accompanied by a stamped addressed envelope.

HOW LONG WILL YOU LIVE?

All sorts of statements appear in various places as to the number of years of life expectancy that has been added in this country during the last half century. In 1855 the average duration of life in America was forty years. Today it is fifty-eight years. It has been estimated by Dr. L. L. Dublin, from the figures of one of our great life insurance companies, that four years of life expectancy were added between 1900 and 1910.

Now the years that have been added are the result of the application of our newer knowledge of disease to the prevention of disease. Countries which have not benefited by such an application of knowledge—for example British India—have life expectancy about half of ours.

Most of the reduction in death has been due to the saving of the lives of babies. There was a time when half of all the babies that were born died before they were one year old. Today only about seven out of one hundred die before their first birthday and in some cities only three or four out of a hundred fail to reach the first year. Besides tuberculosis and typhoid fever, which accounted for a great many people in the past, have been brought pretty well under control.

The diseases that cut short lives today are the diseases of middle-age—heart disease, diseases of the kidneys and diseases of the blood vessels. The only way in which these diseases can be controlled is by detecting them early and treating them satisfactorily. The trouble with these diseases is that they are insidious in their onset. They develop with mild symptoms of which the person is usually unaware, and they may go on to a fairly serious condition before the pains or weakness become severe enough to cause

Endured Suffering for Over Twenty Years

Then Dodd's Kidney Pills and Dyspepsia Tablets Came to Her Relief.

Mrs. Andrew Johnston is Telling Her Many Friends What Caused the Great Improvement in Her Health.

Coldwater, Ont., April 10.—(Special.)—Mrs. A. Johnston, an old and respected resident of this place, is telling her numerous friends that her recent improvement in health is the result of using Dodd's Kidney Pills and Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"My sickness dates back twenty years or more," Mrs. Johnston says. "My sleep was broken and unfreshing; my appetite was fitful and I suffered from backache. I felt heavy and sleepy after meals, and was depressed and low-spirited. Rheumatism, lumbago and sciatica were also three of my troubles. "I have taken your Dodd's Kidney Pills and Dyspepsia Tablets, and must say I was greatly benefited by the treatment. I have recommended them to all my friends and could recommend them to anyone else. You may publish my testimonial for the benefit of others."

Dodd's Kidney Pills strengthen and heal sick kidneys, whilst Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets assist digestion of wholesome foods, furnishing the body with the needed nourishment, at the same time resting and toning the stomach.—Advt.

the sufferer to seek advice from a physician. Fortunately, however, the symptoms by which these diseases make their presence manifest are not extraordinarily difficult for the physician to detect, provided he is given opportunity.

For this reason the medical profession, the public health associations, the great industries and the great life insurance companies arrange, if possible, to have men examined regularly, at least once each year. Among 17,000 white men recently examined for one insurance company thirteen per cent were found to be overweight, more than twenty per cent above the usual standards for their heights and ages. Overweight is believed to be most frequently associated with premature breakdown of the heart, blood vessels and kidneys.

Forty-two per cent of the 17,000 men had severe infection of the roots of the teeth and more than twenty-five per cent had enlarged or infected tonsils. About seven per cent had high blood pressure.

These facts were discovered in the ordinary routine physical examination. The fact that they were discovered means added years of life for those men who take the trouble to begin proper preventive and curative measures. Dr. Dublin presents actual evidence that such examinations if properly followed up add years of life. In 1914 a large life insurance company began its system of periodic examinations for policy holders. In 1920 the records of 6,000 persons who had been examined were studied. According to the usual rates 302 of these examined should have died in the interval, but actually only 217 had died. "This means a reduction of 28 per cent in the death rate," Dr. Dublin points out, "more than enough in reduced claim payments to pay for the cost of all the examinations."

CHICKENPOX

About 500 A. D. an Arabian doctor named Rhazes found out that there was a difference between smallpox and chickenpox. In 1533 a Sicilian doctor named Ingrassias wrote a book describing chickenpox so definitely that it could hardly be mistaken. But there are still people and some doctors included, who make this mistake. The eruptions do look alike, but there are other symptoms that give the careful man plenty of opportunity to make the right diagnosis. Chickenpox—or the little blisters that give the disease its name—develops from fourteen to sixteen days after one has been exposed or in contact with someone having the disease. The blisters come out in crops for about four days.

"They itch like everything," the children will usually tell you. If the child lets them alone they usually clear up without leaving marks, but if they are scratched and become infected with the bacteria that are usually on the skin and under the nails, serious scars sometimes result. The little pockmarks that are left usually are due to the fact that scabs have been picked off instead of being permitted to fall off naturally.

The child with chickenpox should be kept in bed for four or five days until the scabs have formed, but should not mingle with other children until the scabs have come off. It seldom pays to keep the child isolated because everybody in the family that is likely to have the disease will already have been exposed by the time the first eruption appears on the first member of the family that gets the disease.

Keep the patient clean; keep the finger nails trimmed; keep him in bed if and while he has any fever; let the physician give some wash or ointment to relieve the itching. If any complications such as erysipelas develop, get prompt medical attention.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Eyestrain at Movies

P. H. P. writes: I have noticed at our local movie show all the children pile up in the front seats, not more than fifteen feet from the screen. I cannot look at a picture from that distance without straining my eyes. If sitting so close to the screen strains the eyes, something ought to be done to keep children from occupying those front seats.

Answer.—Persons with defective eyes, not fitted with proper glasses, and used long and often, have eyestrain. Motion pictures sometimes make the eyes ache and the eyes and lids become red and irritable. If the lighting conditions are bad or the picture is unsteady or is shown too rapidly any one's eyes may be severely tried.

Bad ventilation sometimes causes so-called movie headache. Some people wear glasses for reading, try to do without them at the movies. Glasses should be worn at the movies if they are used for any purpose. Those whose eyes are sensitive and who suffer at the movies from eyestrain should avoid sitting too near the screen. If one's vision is good the further one sits from the screen the less the eyes will be strained by any unsteadiness or imperfection in the showing of the picture or by the strong light. The glare is more tiring and the lack of steadiness most noticeable in the front seats. A distance of twenty feet is usually considered fairly adequate for proper adjustment of the vision to the picture.

New Models Splendid Showing

W. C. Morrison, proprietor of the Morrison Motor Sales, Fullarton street, announces the fact that he is distributor of the Hupmobile and the new Peerless Six. It is a happy combination that the distribution of this motor car is in the hands of one of Western Ontario's oldest and largest automobile distributors.

The Hupmobile fours and eights enable you to select just the car and body style best suited to requirements. The seven-passenger Peerless sedan arrived in London a couple of weeks ago, bringing with it a reputation which has never been broken since the first Peerless was built in 1901, and at that time was called the best car made.

"The performance of the Peerless," Mr. Morrison declared, "has amazed Londoners interested in cars."

ONLY GUM-DIPPED CORDS

Give You This EXTRA Strength Safety, Comfort and Mileage

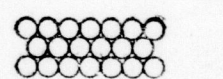

Gum-dipping is an exclusive manufacturing process developed by Firestone that has revolutionized all standards of tire performance. Gum-dipping insulates every fibre of every cord with live rubber giving extra stamina and flexing endurance to the cords. Gum-dipping so strengthens the tire carcass that blowouts, tread and ply separation are practically things of the past. Gum-dipped cords ride easier, last longer and provide safety on the road. Gum-dipping is the very foundation of balloon tire success, for balloon tires must have a super-strong flexible side wall.

You need not be a tire expert to understand the advantages of gum-dipping. These simple tests developed on the road and in the laboratory tell you the gum-dipped story in a nutshell.

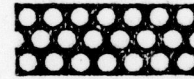

Gum-dipped Cords cost no more because Firestone has perfected the process to a point of efficiency and economy. Insist upon Gum-dipped Cords from your dealer or specify them on your new car. You'll get more service from your car, more mileage from your tires; you'll experience more satisfaction and your operating costs will be lower than ever before.

How Gum-Dipping Guards Against Internal Heat

When a tire is on the road the individual cords will rub together and generate destructive heat and friction unless they are insulated. Gum-dipping puts an extra coating of rubber on every cord, separating it from the others and preventing friction and wear. This extra rubber also acts as a bond between the plies preventing ply separation.

Enlarged section of ordinary fabric. Note how cords touch and rub.

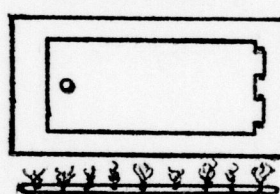

Enlarged section of gum-dipped fabric. Note how extra rubber separates cords and prevents rubbing.

Gum-Dipping Makes Tires Last Longer

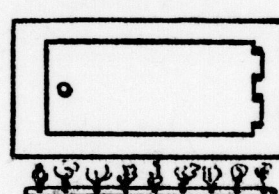

Gum-dipping waterproofs every cord and prevents it from absorbing moisture—even moisture from the air. Ordinary cord fabric absorbs moisture from the air or from road water if the tread is cut. This lessens its ability to resist heat. The combination of moisture and the heat generated in the tire when running deteriorates the cord fabric unless it is gum-dipped as this test shows.

BURNER OVEN NO. 1 TEMPERATURE 212°

Contains gum-dipped fabric which won't absorb moisture. When removed gum-dipped fabric is unchanged—has all its strength.

BURNER OVEN NO. 2 TEMPERATURE 212°

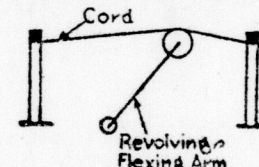

Contains ordinary fabric. When removed fabric has turned brown like cloth on an ironing board. Is brittle and weak.

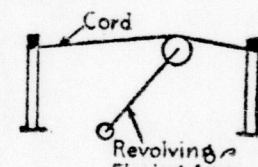

The same thing happens when a tire is running on the road. The only difference is that the heat is generated by road action instead of in the oven.

Gum-Dipping Gives Extra Strength

Cords in a tire are bent constantly backwards and forwards by road action. The stronger the cords the longer they resist this bending—in other words the longer the tire lasts. This test shows the extra strength of gum-dipped cords and explains why they give more miles.

Gum-Dipped Cord

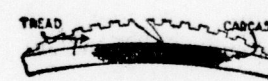

Ordinary Cord

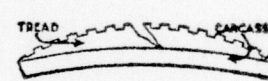

Two pieces of cord are stretched between two supports and flexed by a revolving arm with an action the same as the cords receive when on the road. Gum-Dipped Cord stands practically twice the amount of flexing as an ordinary cord—in other words a Gum-Dipped Cord is twice as strong. This extra strength gives added mileage and makes practical balloon tire construction with its thin side wall.

Gum-Dipping Stops Deterioration from Tread Cuts

Gum-dipping soaks every cord in pure rubber and makes the cord waterproof. When treads or sidewalls are cut, ordinary cords will take up water from the road by wicking action. Water or moisture inside the tire rots the carcass. Gum-Dipped Cords being waterproof will not absorb water.

Ordinary Cord Shaded area shows how it has absorbed moisture.

Gum-Dipped Cord Waterproofing has prevented absorption of moisture.

This diagram shows the result of an actual road test. Two tires, one with gum-dipped cords the other with ordinary cords, were purposely cut and driven several thousand miles on wet roads. The gum-dipped carcass was unaffected by moisture. In the other, the tread was loose and the cords had commenced to separate.

CANADIAN ACTRESS SCORES IN "ST. JOAN"

Julia Arthur Makes Big Hit
in Toronto—Here Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday.

Some idea of the interest that is being manifested in George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan" the greatest dramatic success of the decade, to be presented at the Grand on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, with Wednesday matinee, is to be found in the demand for tickets. Seldom in the history of the Grand Opera house has such interest been shown in any offering. Crowded houses will be the order, when all London turns out to greet Julia Arthur in her greatest role. Wherever "Saint Joan" is presented with Miss Arthur in the leading role, the critics have spread themselves as never before. Last Saturday, Miss Arthur completed her sixteen performances of "Saint Joan" in Toronto, and this week four special holiday repeat performances are being put on. The reason for this is only too evident, especially in view of such glowing praise as the following from The Toronto Star:

"The Arthur triumph is not the triumph of mere miming; but the blend of veteran acting with spiritual insight. Jeannette Durck (her real name), till pious pedigree makers constructed a spurious nobility for her family, was and is a spiritual beacon, and Miss Arthur is a serious woman, who has lived for great spiritual ends. Matrons who saw her could hardly believe her 56 years, 57 of which have been since she retired from the stage to marry Mr. Cheney, of Boston. She thought she retired for good; but she came back for better. Triumphant as she was with Irving and Terry, and uniquely successful as Juliet, it may yet be that as the soldier who, though she minded sheen in Lorraine, repudiated at her trial the name of the shepherd girl, will be accounted her greatest splendor when her jewels are finally set in biographical array. Miss Arthur is called a Canadian actress because she was born and schooled in Hamilton. She left there when she was 12. The latencies within her were of character more than locality. Anyway she is one of Canada's contributions to the great world. Perhaps we should make as much of her if she had always maintained her domicile with us, though it is often true that it is distance that gives the most exquisite enchantment to our view of the native-born.

Nothing finer than Shaw's "Saint Joan" will be brought to the Grand Opera house this year. Those desiring choice seats are advised to make reservations at once.

RICHARD DIX IS STAR OF "TOO MANY KISSES"

Frances Howard Has Featured
Role in Coming Loew's Photoplay.

Frances Howard, who made her motion picture debut in "The Swan," has her second picture engagement in a featured role in support of Richard Dix in his new Paramount starring picture, "Too Many Kisses," which will be the feature next Monday at Loew's theatre for a run of three days.

"Too Many Kisses" was directed by Paul Sloane, who made "A Man Must Live," Gerald Duffy adapted the story for the screen from the Cosmopolitan Magazine serial, "A Maker of Gestures," by John Monk Saunders.

The star plays the role of a fickle young American whose many love affairs result in countless breaches of promise suits. His exasperated father ships him off to the Basque country in the Pyrenees to get him away from girls, only to have him fall in love with a dark-eyed senorita, Yvonne, played by Miss Howard. All of Gaylord, Sr.'s carefully laid plans go up in smoke.

Art of Making Love Under Difficulties Portrayed in Film.

The two young men who are in love with the girl in "The Monster," Roland West's Metro-Goldwyn picture, which is coming to Loew's theatre on Thursday, certainly have a tough time trying to get her alone long enough to whisper sweet nothings. They are all prisoners in a sanatorium run by a maniacal doctor, and each moment seems as if it were to be the last on earth.

Imagine making love to a girl when at any time there may pop into the room a Caliban-like person with a horrible soaked bloodcurd, or a walking skeleton, or the fierce doctor, or just plain nut, or the whole bunch together! It keeps the two boys, Johnny Arthur and Hallam Cooley, pretty busy trying to make love to Gertrude Olmsted. And even in spite of all the excitement, they do pretty well, at that.

STOWAWAY ON R-34 IS NOW NAVAL PILOT

"Wings" Won by William
Ballantyne—Assigned to Desert Route.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, April 9.—William Ballantyne, who was a stowaway on the R-34 when she flew to America in July, 1919, has at last been successful in obtaining his "wings" or in other words his pilot's certificate. After his escapade on the dirigible, Ballantyne was sent back to Howden in Yorkshire, where he remained until the airframe was closed down and was then transferred to Egypt. Here he studied for the royal air force pilot's certificate. He passed his tests and is now pilot-sergeant in one of the air mail planes between Cairo and Baghdad, a desert journey of 700 miles each way.

Ballantyne was an original member of the crew of the R-34, but it was found necessary to leave him behind. He was bent on making the trip however, and two hours before the craft left Scotland, he hid himself in the rigging. When the airship was about 60 miles out he was discovered, by a sick and feverish among some gas bags to which he had crept from the rigging. After treatment by the staff physician he was sent to his way across for the rest of the voyage.

CALLES ORDERS SOLEDAD CHURCH TO CLOSE DOORS

Associated Press Despatch.
Mexico City, April 10.—The Soledad church has been closed to worship by orders of President Calles, in settlement of the conflict created by the Knights of Guadalupe, followers of the so-called "Mexican Catholic Apostolic church," who recently took over the building by force and ejected the Roman Catholic priest, Father Silva.

After carefully investigating the case, President Calles found no evidence that Father Silva had willingly handed the building over to the knights, or was in any way connected with them, as had been charged. Consequently, he declared, Patriarch Perez, of the new sect, and his followers had broken the constitution by taking national property under the keeping of the Roman Catholic church without fulfilling the requirements of the law.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

They Give New Vitality—and More.

There are many women who have been invalids or semi-invalids so long that they accept their condition as a life burden. They have endured broken sleep, stomach trouble, nervousness, headaches and weakness so long that they have given up hope of enjoying good health. In most of these cases a well-chosen diet, fresh air and a tonic to build up the blood would do wonders. To all run-down, nervous people the experience of Mrs. H. J. Cameron, Waterville, N. S., will be of deep interest. She says: "About two years ago I was in a miserable, run-down condition. I was unable to do my work, my head ached day and night, my nerves were all unstrung, and for three weeks I could not eat or sleep. I then decided to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial, and got six boxes. By the time I had used half of them I felt much better, and when I had taken the six boxes I was as well as ever. I could work all day and not feel tired and have been strong and healthy ever since. I have never taken any medicine that did me so much good and will always highly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

BRILLIANT JAPANESE CHIEF TO CHANGE JOBS

Appointment of Viscount
Makino to Privy Seal Is Expected Soon.

By J. RUSSELL KENNEDY.
Special Cable to The London Advertiser and The Chicago Daily News.

Tokio, Japan, April 9.—Retirement of Viscount Makino as minister of the household to become officer of the privy seal will be officially announced within the next few days. The new post, which at present is regarded as the most important, will retain the viscount close to the throne, but will afford him a rest which the state of his health demands.

Viscount Makino has been one of the great Satsuma leaders for more than a quarter of a century. He has been one of the most prominent men in the modern history of Japan. He is always self-effacing. His judgment and erudition and his grasp of international psychology and affairs have fitted him more particularly for the exacting work of directing the affairs of the imperial household since his return from Paris, where undoubtedly he was regarded as one of the leading delegates to the peace conference. He had the closest friendship and confidence of the American, British and colonial delegates.

Easter Bells Mean New Clothes

Milady's Fancy Lightly Turns To Dress

From Crinoline and Hoops to Ensemble Suits the Spirit of Easter Expresses Itself in the Same Way — London Authorities Talk About the New Styles for Women and Their Husbands

By HELEN McMILLAN
(Women's Editor of The Advertiser)

Illustrated by H. B. West.

Easter is a festival of clothes!

While joy bells ring out, new fabrics rustle happily along the streets and bright feathers and flowers nod to each other across church aisles. Grasses peep out of the earth in new green dresses and the trees spring into bud. It is a time of resurrection, when dull, drab garments of winter are cast aside and all the world clothes itself anew.

Paradoxical as it may seem, this biggest season for the display of clothes is the time of the greatest religious festival of the year. And the parade grounds of fashion are the streets that lead to church on Easter Sunday.

This very human desire for personal adornment, which finds its most universal expression at the Easter season, is often condemned. Yet there is nothing which will give a man or woman greater mental or spiritual confidence than new raiment.

Emerson knew this when he quoted with approval the woman who said, "There is a satisfaction in being well dressed that even the consolation of religion cannot impart."

Despondency and the "I don't care" attitude is shown very quickly in discouraged-looking clothes, hanging on an inert figure. In contrast a sense of peace and well-being seems to emanate from the man or woman who is well-dressed. And it's just a question of which attitude might best be taken to church on Easter morning. Personally I'd vote for the new clothes and a face of hope framed in a pretty bonnet.

This story is not to be just a review of the styles as they appear this year, but rather a fleeting glimpse of what London has been wearing for the last half a century. For feet tripped as lightly to church beneath a crinoline, fifty years ago, as they do today when the hem-line has shrunk almost to the knees and the silhouette is slim and straight.

Tells of Old Styles.

Fifty years is a long time, and there are few women in London who remember back that far. But perhaps there is no one here who has kept her finger more closely upon the pulse of fashion during the last quarter of a century than Miss Adelaide Yealland.

Miss Yealland has clothed London women for many years. Debutantes have blossomed sweetly under her skilful needle and many a bride has stood before her mirror on the day of her wedding, worshipping in silence the beautiful vision which her soul knew Miss Yealland had helped create.

It isn't strange, then, that Miss Yealland should be the one to whom I turned for reminiscences of the styles of twenty-five years ago. She tells me that she learned her work in the old Beattie drygoods shop, which beckoned to its trade from the site of the present Dowler store.

One can picture her at work, a very young girl, in a very long, dark skirt and stiff white shirtwaist with ballooning sleeves. In fact she confesses that she wore sleeves so very large that she had to rip them out each time they were ironed. Then she must sew them back in again until next washday. But one must keep up with the style and no labor was too great.

When the day's work was done, she jabbed two enormous hatpins into a stiff sailor hat, adorned with even stiffer loops of ribbon, which nodded as she hurried out of the shop.

One of the first gowns upon which she worked stands out vividly in her memory. It was made for Mrs. Harry Becher of Thornwood, who wore it at some large social function of the time. Fashioned of yellow faille silk, it was handsomely trimmed with black Chantilly lace. The slim bodice was accentuated below the waistline by a pipe organ back. Miss Yealland explains that this was a certain type of bustle very fashionable at the time, which stood out in huge vertical rolls of silk. From the bustle fell a magnificent train, two or three yards long, and so padded and lined that it was about six inches thick as it trailed upon the floor.

MRS. BRUCE, formerly Miss Fanny Becher, sister-in-law of Mrs. K. Becher, wearing the crinolines of sixty years ago

Miss Yealland has watched with interest the styles progress from this old hour-glass figure of twenty-five years ago, with its puff sleeves, its dust-trailing skirt and 18-inch waist, to the slim, waistless frock of the present day which permits the knees to flirt with the breezes.

Vivid Contrasts.

Rarely in the history of fashion has there been a more marked contrast than there is between the dress of today and the fashionable dress of twenty-five years ago.

The contrast is apparent in the materials used, as well as in the design of the gowns. The old-fashioned skirts stood out stiffly around the bottom because they were fashioned of gross-grain silks and stiff velvets. To give still more body to these heavy materials, fibre chamois was used to line the skirts and to puff out the sleeves. This material was nothing more or less than a glorified paper, but it did its work effectively, according to Miss Yealland.

The modern woman who ventures petticoat-less from home, and whose sheer undergarments might be drawn through a wedding ring, would gasp with dismay if she were asked to carry around the load of clothing necessary to the wardrobe of Miss Twenty-Five-Years-Ago. A quilted satin petticoat was but one of the many "essentials."

By the same token the woman of twenty-five years ago would have been scandalized at the short skirts and shingled heads of today. For short skirts are unquestionably a feature of this spring's mode.

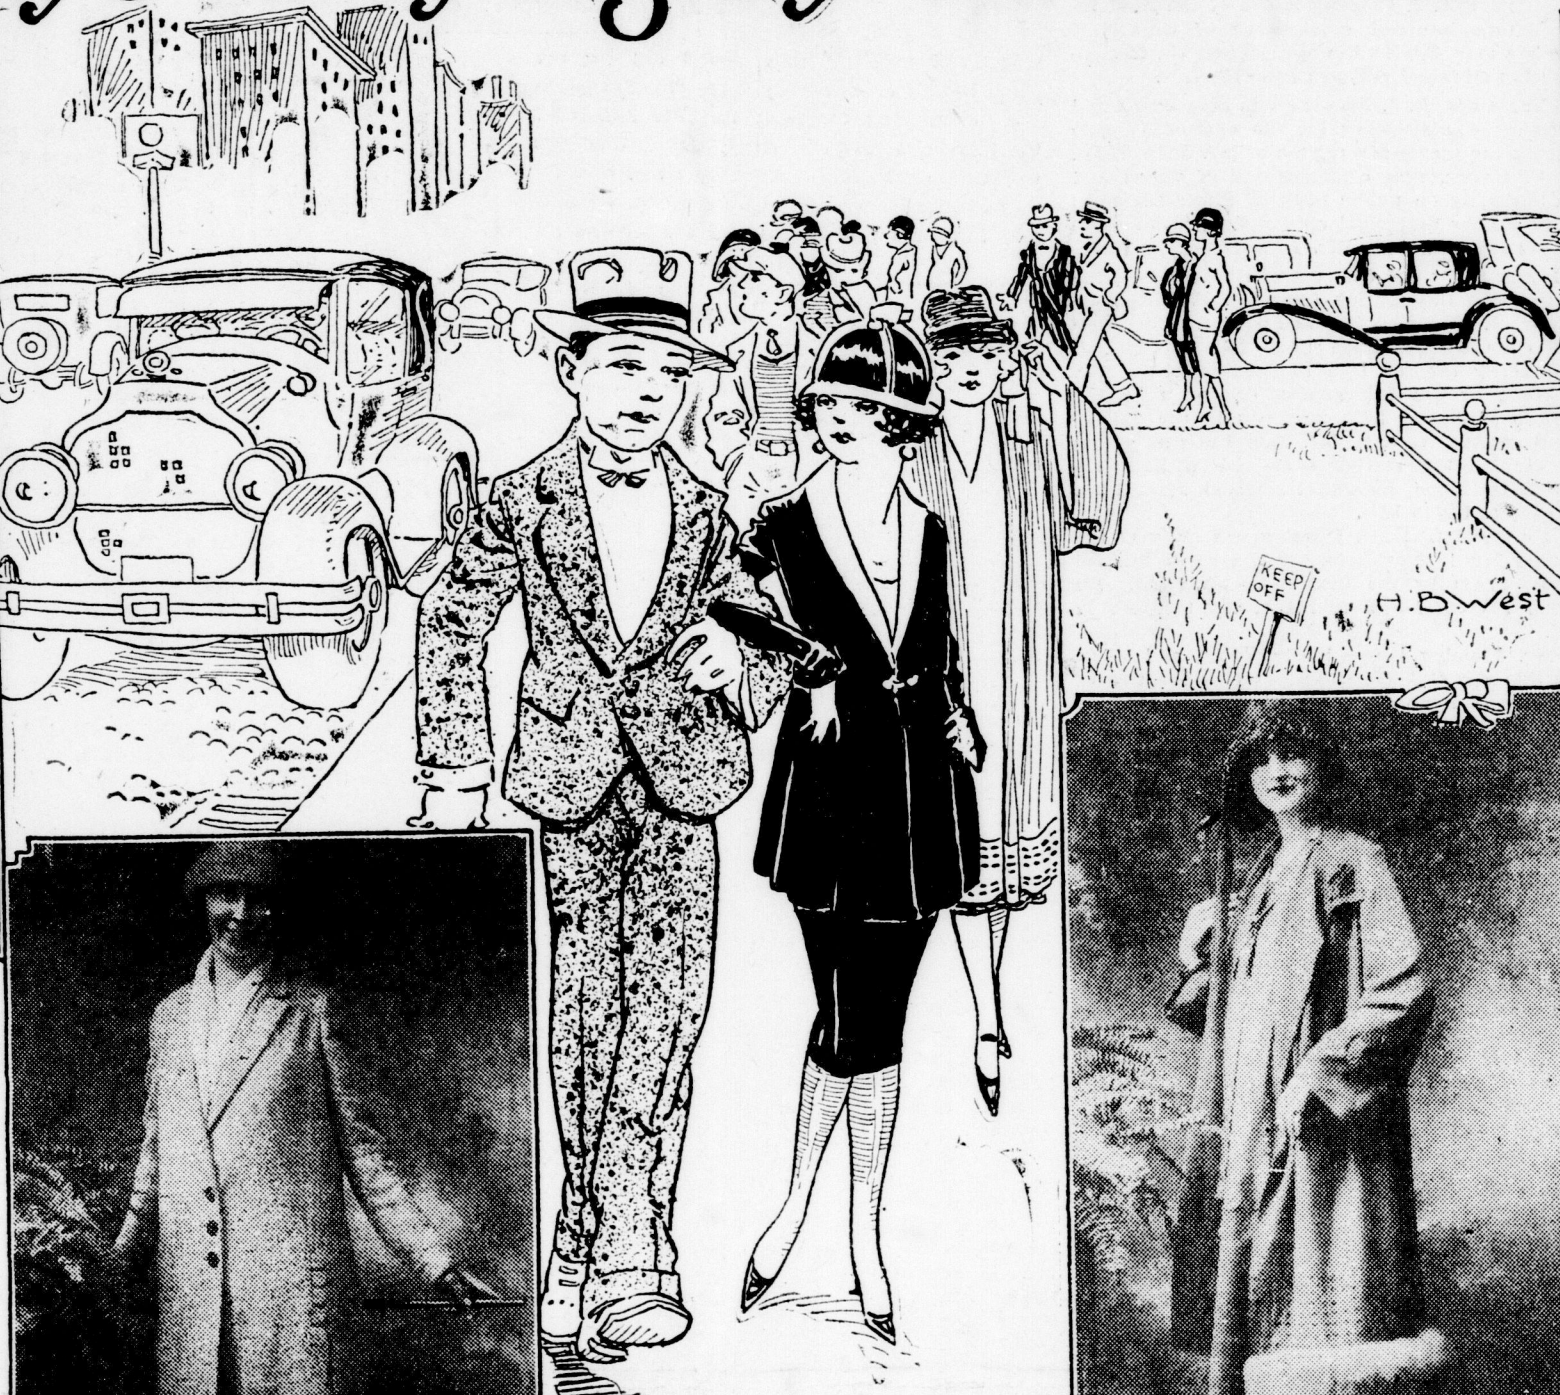

I found this out by calling on Mrs. Kathleen Harper. It was 4 o'clock and she gave me tea in the library. Between hot fingers of buttered toast, I managed to get in my questions. What was the fashionable woman going to wear this year? Would Easter morning find her swaggering in the mannish suit of last year? Or would she compromise a bit, to be more feminine? What about the ensemble suit I had heard mentioned so largely? In short, just how would Mrs. Fashionable look?

Object in Dress.

Mrs. Harper had a twinkle in her eye, so I knew that her answer would be entertaining. Mrs. Fashionable, according to her, would be nothing more nor less than a "glorified sloop." She hastened to explain that "sloop" didn't mean a real sloop. That would never do.

It meant that the fashionable woman this season would so study her costume as to give an appearance of carelessness. Although spending even more thought than usual on her clothes, it would be her aim to suggest that she had never entertained a thought about what she was wearing. Mrs. Harper went on to explain that there was nothing worse than a "dressed up" appearance.

"The woman of today wants to appear as if dressed for some serious occupation," says Mrs.

THE EASTER SUNDAY CHURCH PARADE OF 1925

MISS LONDON in her Spring suit of 1925 presents a contrast with hoops and bustles [from Hudson's Fashion Shoppe of London]

Harper. "And this is evident in the type of clothes she wears. Even the most frivolously-minded woman does not want to 'look' frivolous. She wishes to give the impression that this is a serious age and that she has serious work to do. Although after six o'clock she laughs at the world and casts 'serious' from her vocabulary."

"And so, in the daytime, she wears mannish-looking topsuits, tailored dresses and plain knitted sports clothes. But when evening comes she lets her frivolous heart have full swing, and comes out like a beautiful butterfly in printed chiffons and laces."

"The smartest thing this season will be a dress and a topcoat. There is no doubt of it," says Mrs. Harper. "The suit has had its day for the simple reason that no decent, respectable woman will be seen in a blouse. In fact the only excuse for a suit at all is a high collar and tie."

"The ensemble costume is certain to have a large following since it is something quite new. But I put it down as a costume for millionaires, because it means paying for a coat and dress at the same time and always wearing them together. And unless they match perfectly the ensemble is a failure. There is the danger, too, that most people will spoil it immediately by divorcing the coat and dress."

"They will argue something like this: How economical it will be! The coat will take the place of a topcoat and can be worn with any dress! And so on. I shudder to think of the consequences. For once the coat is worn over another gown, the ensemble is spoiled."

"How much more sensible to buy a topcoat with a lining made to harmonize with any gown. But people rarely are sensible, so I can easily predict that the ensemble costume will be the outstanding feature of the Easter fashion parade."

Skirts Are Short.

"Skirts are unmistakably short," says Mrs. Harper, who has just recently returned from New York. "I have no patience with the woman

MRS. KATHLEEN HARPER who says the fashion for Spring has a careful carelessness who will not shorten her skirts to keep up with the mode. I have the greatest difficulty with older women in this respect. Of course, I don't say that they must keep pace with the young girls, but I do say that no woman should wear her skirts longer than nine inches from the ground this season. Young girls who are slight and tall may have them 13 inches off the ground. The main thing is to give a general appearance of smartness."

"And in this connection let me say that I also have no patience with the woman who clasps all her clothes together with a pin in front. She favors too strongly of the cameo brooch age, and should come to life."

"The head line for early spring should be small, neat and tailored, with the hat worn well down over the eyes and straight."

"Scarves will add a touch of color to the duller costumes, while hose will appear in every shade of tan, from nude to morocco. Bright red purses and canes will give a dash of swank to the tailor-made."

"This summer the smart woman's wardrobe will be made up wholly of sports clothes and dressy frocks. Whether she has a serious occupation down town or whether she plays her time away at the golf club, her costume will be the same. Later in the day, she will change to filmy summer frocks."

"Among sports clothes, there is nothing that will take the place of the two-piece knitted dress. But the dress must be of the very best quality if the wearer does not want it to cling to her figure. There is nothing uglier than a knitted dress that takes the shape of the wearer."

"And just here let me put in a good word for the Canadian knitted goods. The best quality of all, of course, comes from Europe. But there is a very fine type of Canadian wear also, which is much superior to that manufactured in the United States."

"The sweater as a sweater, however, has gone entirely from the smart woman's wardrobe. In its place she wears the knitted suit or simple one-piece sports dress, and a sports flannel coat."

"Most of the dresses for early spring are suity dresses and button right up to the neck."

Bobbed Hair Here To Stay.

Mrs. Harper allowed herself to be questioned on the subject of bobbed hair. She believes it is here to stay, for older women as well as young. She has a secret longing to adopt this fashion herself, but refrains because of the objections of her family.

"I felt almost mid-Victorian with my long hair when I was in New York recently," she said. "Everyone there has cut her hair and it is almost impossible to purchase a hat large enough to fit over coils of long hair."

"It is a clever woman indeed who knows how to dress properly," says Mrs. Harper. "But it is an even wiser woman who acknowledges that she looks a frump and seeks out an expert to show her how to dress."

Mrs. Harper's tea was refreshing to my tired body, but her advice on dress should have the effect of reviving many a woman who has slumped down into an "Oh, what's the use?" attitude in regard to her personal appearance. And if there's ever a time in the whole year when a woman has an excuse to array herself in fine clothes, it's Easter.

But women are not the only persons who don new garments for Easter. Men are to be reckoned with, just as much as women, as part of the Easter parade. There was a time twenty-five years ago when the fashionably-dressed man went to church on Easter morning in a double-breasted frock coat and silk hat, not to mention a stiff white shirt. His was a long figure in every way. His coat was long, his hat was long, his cane was long, and usually his face was long. And he walked with long, measured steps.

Busy Man's Clothes.

The man of today hurries and his clothes are made accordingly. He has shortened his coat-tails and done away with the silk topper, and he doesn't twirl a cane because he is usually twirling a steering wheel.

This Easter he will appear in more English clothes than ever, according to W. F. Boughner, to whom I appealed for some hints on the mode. Loose, straight sack coats and large trousers will be featured with wider brimmed hats. There is an attempt being made to re-introduce the Ascot tie, worn twenty-five years ago, and when Mr. Boughner was in Atlantic City recently he found that the old shirt with the stiff, starched bosom and stiff collar was being worn. But this time the shirt is colored instead of white.

For the past year there has been an effort to introduce the Christy stiff, which had been absent from men's headgear for ten years. Although the vogue for the Christy stiff is growing, Mr. Boughner doesn't believe that these hats will ever be so generally worn as they were twenty-five years ago. And this, for the simple reason that the soft hat is more comfortable and more becoming.

An interesting novelty this season is the three-piece suit, including trousers, business coat and golfing breeches, all matching. Strictly golf clothes are extremely loud in color and pattern, with golf hose appearing in the brilliant hues of the Royal Stuart and Mackenzie tartans.

Having said this much about men's clothes, my story is finished. Keep your eyes open on Easter morning and see if it comes true.

Are Dominion's Famous Bachelors Immune From Marriage Rumors?—G.B.S. and His Canadian Royalties

THAT Canadian cabinet minister who, according to rumor, likes yellow pyjamas, must now step down off the sartorial pedestal among statesmen which has been his up till this time. Governor Al. Smith of New York state appeared in the city of the same name wearing a white shirt embroidered with crimson fleur-de-lis and with a collar and cuffs the hue of a beautiful June dawn.

LEAVING for Europe to discuss the building of a 1,000-room hotel, Joseph E. Gilbert, contractor and a highly successful man according to all the canons, with assets running into millions, says that the way to achieve success is to depend on luck. Those are his very words. "I'll tell you something," he said to a reporter, "a successful man is an accident. The only element a man can credit himself with is concentration. The success stuff you read about in the magazines is bunk. I read about these fellows getting up early and staying late and never missing a day at work. 'Well, between us, I doubt it.'"

Mr. Gilbert also states that he did not start to work until he was fourteen.

Is this a subtle method of heading off competition at the top of the ladder or just a case of unadulterated modesty?

OTHER pearls of wisdom dropped by famous people off to Europe on a holiday include these words from the lips of Gertrude Atherton, the famous novelist: "A woman can write better about a man than a man can about a woman."

Like all generalities, this is apt to be full of holes. Suppose the woman had never learned to write at all?

PPROMPTED by somewhat recent additional rumors of the marriage of the Prince of Wales, "Anxious Mother" writes to ask how it happens that there are never any about-to-wed reports concerning two of our most famous Canadian bachelors, Premier King and E. W. Beatty Khamis Mohammed El Arabi, the original sheik of all sheiks, who lives at Alexandria, Egypt. He has just divorced his 27th wife. He himself is 97 years old; his oldest child is a man of 70 and his youngest a girl of 3. He asks that this photo be widely circulated, as he is seeking his 28th bride.

of the Canadian Pacific Railway. "Do our Canadian newspapers lack imagination?" she queries in conclusion.

BOOK critics on the London Times and other English journals have been commenting at considerable length and very favorably on an unusually well-written novel of English life, "The Rector of Malisett," by L. H. Reid.

L. H. Reid, it is well worth noting, is a young Torontonian, born in England but educated at the University of Toronto.

THIS business of being a highly successful literary gentleman is not at all bad. This season George Bernard Shaw will receive approximately $7,600 in Canadian royalties for five weeks' presentation of his justly successful play, "St. Joan," in the Dominion. Nearly $5,000 of this will represent his royalties during the month of April alone.

Mr. Shaw's play entered the Dominion as the production of a theatrical magnate whose wife is a Canadian and whose children were all born here. The star is a Canadian, the company is managed by a Canadian and the press agent ahead of it is a Canadian.

BY this time Count Michael Karolyi, exiled president of Hungary, is a temporary Canadian. Once the richest man in that land of one of our ex-enemies, Count Karolyi is now a man without a country. He entered the United States gagged. Officials of the U.S. government allowed him to come in and visit his sick wife for a short time only after extracting a promise that he would not make any utterances of a political nature. Portions of the American press raised strenuous objections to the gag and made caustic references to "free speech" and "the land of liberty," but their protests had no effect and the lid remained very much on. His time limit expired on Tuesday.

While he was in the United States he was forced to listen to a variety of attacks on himself in silence. Now he can defend himself.

Why Become Excited? Is Mr. Fleming's Motto

Short Excerpt Dug Out of Toronto's Municipal Archives Carries an Incidental Moral—Never Get Flustered

RAILWAYMAN, farmer de luxe, civic statesman, R. J. Fleming is one of the most interesting and outstanding of Ontarians. He is a man dignified in appearance, not to mention his all-round coolness and calmness.

Years ago, R. J. Fleming was assessment and property commissioner for the city of Toronto during the mayoralty regime of Mr. John Shaw. R. C. Harris, now commissioner of works and an authority on public utilities whose advice is welcomed by municipal corporations in all parts of the Dominion, was Mr. Fleming's assistant.

Mayor Shaw and the controllers were demanding certain information from Mr. Fleming's department. Mr. Fleming was absent. Therefore the civic solons called upon Mr. Harris and summarily ordered him to produce either Mr. Fleming or the information or else take the chance of having both positions in the department declared vacant. Mr. Harris was unwilling to divulge the statistics desired without his chief's O.K., and, somewhat alarmed, started out at once to locate him.

He found that Mr. Fleming was away at the annual fair in Markham, Ontario, so he hurried to Markham by the first available train. He found his chief and told him his troubles in full.

Mr. Fleming listened attentively, and when the tale was finished suggested that the two of them go and inspect the prize-winning poultry. They did so. They then viewed the cattle. The exertion and the hour turned Mr. Fleming's thoughts toward food, and he suggested that they eat. Uneasy as he was, Mr. Harris fell in with the suggestion, and they dined leisurely and well.

As they headed homeward, Mr. Fleming made himself comfortable and slept soundly all the way in. He bid his assistant good-bye without as much as mentioning the pressing matter that had caused him to hurry to Markham.

The next morning, the assessment and property commissioner appeared before the mayor and council at the latter's urgent request and coolly told them that he did not think it wise, in the interests of the city, to make public the information they were seeking.

And that ended the incident.

Saw Lad Munch Sugar And Got New Gas Idea

Chemist's Daughter Makes Tests of Petrol Substitute Which Seems to Have Great Possibilities

WATCHING her young brother stealing sugar and happily crunching it in joyous innocence gave to the fifteen-year-old daughter of a Paris chemist the idea which may free France from her dependence upon foreign countries for oil explosives. The young lady is Mlle. Irene Laurent.

Her father, whom she had been assisting in the laboratory, had been seeking a solvent for trol, the explosive. Irene, after absent-mindedly watching her brother eat sugar, suddenly asked whether sugar, a carbon, would not do the trick. Of course, he said that she knew not whereof she spoke, but Irene thought she would find out for herself. She made some experiments and for some unaccountable reason the sugar solvent worked, the trol was dissolved into a golden liquid without precipitate, and the question of reducing the bulky explosive into a form where it could be utilized as petrol was solved.

The story is perfectly true, and on the basis of the young girl's inadvertent discovery her father has developed a gasoline substitute, which has worked very successfully in automobile experiments and may prove of far-reaching value.

Minister Gave Proof That He's Real Farmer

Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Agricultural Expert in the Federal Cabinet, Nearly Deafened by His Oat Crop

"THEY can't say now that I'm not a real farmer," chuckles the big, genial federal minister of agriculture, Hon. W. R. Motherwell, from the prairie province of Saskatchewan.

Some time ago Mr. Motherwell was suffering with one of his ears. He feared he was going deaf. He was urged by friends to consult a specialist and finally came to the point of doing so.

The learned doctor examined and probed and then deftly removed the cause of offense, an oat. Just an ordinary, everyday field variety of oat, the kind Mr. Motherwell grows on his farm at Abernethy.

A little girl friend of the minister of agriculture and his wife had been visiting them long enough to become well acquainted with parliamentary terms. She and Mr. Motherwell are great friends and the tiny maiden is devoted to him. When he told the story to himself in the presence of guests, she didn't consider the matter one to joke about at all.

She sprang up from her dolls and exclaimed anxiously: "Oh, DON'T tell people about that or the oat will be SURE to come up on the floor of the House!"

Alice Terry Solves Mystery of the Dreamy R.A.F. Officer

He Is Either a Genius or He's Crazy. Said His Canadian Wartime Companions at Toronto—He Was Rex Ingram—Movie Stars Present Their Views in the Matter of Love at First Glance

MOVIE publicity men spread out for the benefit of everybody bales of information concerning the most intimate details of the lives of screen celebrities. What they eat, why they eat it, the clothes they wear, whether they liked dolls when they were young, whether they like dogs now that they are older—we all know all about them.

This, no doubt, is one of those disadvantages which travel hand in hand with dollar-a-minute contracts.

The most interesting bit of recent news is the announcement that a group of stars and one authoress have given their answers to the question: "Is there such a thing as love at first sight?" As far as the question itself is concerned, most Canadians over the age of six years have very definite opinions on the subject themselves which no film star is likely to influence to any alarming extent. The various replies, nevertheless, are interesting because of their possible insight into the characters of some of those international figures who now have a most tremendous and widespread influence.

First there is the beautiful Alice Terry, who leaped into the inner circle of stars in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." She has no doubt about it.

"I know there is love at first sight," she comments. "There must be. The moment I saw my husband, Rex Ingram, I fell madly in love with him. I was one of the minor players in a picture and he was the director. I knew he was the only man. I was seventeen and impressionable. I think he fell in love with me the first time he saw me—at least he says he did. He joined the Royal Flying Corps, and after the war we were married."

Miss Terry's short statement carries with it the explanation of a certain Canadian mystery. Among the young men in training for service with the flying corps during the war years there was, near Toronto, a somewhat dreamy, but very handsome, man who said he was a motion picture director. He spent most of his spare time writing letters. His fellow flying officers-to-be said in some cases that he was either crazy or a genius and they were not quite sure which.

This man's name was Rex Ingram. Miss Terry's reply to the well-worn question mentioned above will explain both the dreaminess and the letter writing. Incidentally, the wondering acquaintances have now decided in favor of the genius alternative.

She Is an Unbeliever

BUT to continue with the question of spontaneous romance, Miss Betty Compton takes a very material view of the matter under discussion—at first glance. "I believe that love at first sight is a delightful fantasy which was created by the writers of sentimental novels."

Then she proceeds to elaborate. "Love is not a matter of a glance or even two or three. Love means toleration, consideration, concentration and admiration. Appearances are clever masks for our characters. If we are attracted at first sight, we are drawn by a mask, so to speak."

The consensus of opinion would not be complete without a word from Mr. Rudolph Valentino. To summarize his opinions, Mr. Valentino believes that there is love at first sight, also at last sight, and, incidentally, all the way between. Mr. Valentino believes that there are all kinds of love, in fact. There are century plants as well as dandelions, says he.

The other sheik of the celluloid, Rod La Rocque, disagrees with his eminent confrere. "I do not believe there is any such thing," is his blunt statement. "Love, it seems to me, is based on mutual self-denial, sympathy and consideration, rather than a sudden strong attraction."

A touch of levity is introduced into the discussion by the English actor, Percy Marmont, who knows that there is such a thing as love at first sight because exactly that is constantly happening to him.

Then there is Miss Pola Negri, who should be able to interpret the middle-European ideas on the subject. "We are in love with our ideal long before we meet him," she says. "We have an image of him placed upon an inner shrine at which we worship—perhaps unconsciously. When we come in actual contact with our ideal we are naturally attracted to him. This is what many call love at first sight. In reality it is only the awakening of a feeling that has been existing for years."

Elinor Glyn of Guelph

FINALLY there are the statements of a noted writer with a Canadian background. She is an authoress with almost a world-wide reputation, born in England, but a woman who spent most of her early years in Guelph, Ontario, where she was brought up with her sister.

The writer is Miss Elinor Glyn. The sister is Lady Duff-Gordon, otherwise known as "Lucille," the famous expert on fashions.

Miss Glyn's explanation is inclined to be a bit mystical and also somewhat similar to that given by Miss Negri. "Love at first sight is a very real thing," is her diagnosis. "Your subconscious self immediately recognizes a lover of other days—in another life—and your conscious self repeats that recognition."

This galaxy of viewpoints appearing singly and en masse has created a maximum of discussion, particularly in England, peculiarly enough, where the weekly, Tit-Bits, was responsible for its appearance.

All $100,000-a-Year Men Had Humble Beginnings

Book Lists America's High-Paid Executives—One Commenced His Career as a Vendor of Shoelaces

EDWARD BOK, the well-known author-editor, has given a list of $100,000-a-year men on this continent in his latest book. The list is somewhat in the nature of a cross-word puzzle, for he gives the definitions but not the names. It reads as follows:

A man who began by sorting rags at thirty-five cents a day for the same corporation of which he is now president.

A man who, as a boy, got up every morning, summer and winter, at a quarter to four, and served a newspaper route, never getting a morsel of food until seven, going to school all day, and working after school hours.

A man who was offered the choice of going to college or a $3-a-week job. He took the job. A coal president who used to drive the mules of a canal coal barge for the same company of which he is now the head.

The highest-paid executive known to Mr. Bok was once a pedlar of boot laces in New York. His salary is now $300,000 a year.

Colonel Was Defeated In a Battle of Wits

Toronto's Famous Ex-Cadi Swore He Would Not Rise and Greet the Vicar—But He Did

ATORONTO barrister who for many years was associated with Colonel Denison is telling this story to show that the Colonel always the Colonel.

When Bishop Dumoulin was Canon Dumoulin of St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, he decided to introduce the custom of the congregation rising to its feet when the vicar entered. Colonel Denison was one who demurred. He remained seated.

"It is done in England," said he. "It is a fitting custom for us to observe."

"I'll not do it," said the Colonel, decisively. "Tommyrot. A bit of affectation."

"Well," said the canon, "you will stand up next Sunday when I come in."

"I'll not," said the colonel.

"Oh, yes, you will," said the canon.

And the following Sunday, when canon and choir marched in, the choir was singing, "God Save the King," and Colonel Denison was smartly at attention on his feet, with the smile on his face.

AND HOW MANY CHOICES CAN ONE WOMAN HAVE?

MISS NORA BAYES, the American actress, who has just married for the fifth time, raises rather an interesting query: Is there a legal limit to the number of times a single individual may contract marriage?

There is only one case in which the law ever stepped in, and this case was entirely different from that of Miss Bayes; for it is reported that the popular actress is on good terms with all her former husbands, and that for their sakes as well as for her own she has refused to countenance married boredom.

"Some women are lucky and hit the right man the first time," she says, "but most of us are not so fortunate. We ones try again."

The case above referred to is mentioned in Evelyn's "Diary," and is that of a Dutchwoman of the seventeenth century who, after marrying twenty-five times, was forbidden by a special law to continue. In her case all her twenty-five husbands had mysteriously disappeared!

Nothing could be proved against her, so all the authorities could do was to "apply the closure."

HER SENSE OF HONESTY FORCED HER TO OBJECT

A STORY that will appeal to all lovers of children was told recently by Margaret Bannerman, the noted Canadian actress, now in London.

It concerned a small girl who, with her mother, was watching two men at work in the hall of a public building.

They were kneeling in the middle of the vast expanse of flooring and repairing the mosaic with minute pieces of colored stone, carefully fitting them together in a gigantic jigsaw puzzle. This was a business the maiden understood perfectly.

After two or three minutes one of the men lifted a small piece of stone that was not quite the right size, placed it on a small block and began to chip the edge.

The child was astonished at such a breach of the rules of the game.

"Oh, mummy, look!" she cried. "He's cheating!"

Some Remarkable Statistics

A GERMAN newspaper with a love for statistics has collected the following data on the German population: Ten out of every 1,000 men, and three out of every 1,000 women are idiots. On the other hand, out of 1,000 men, there are ten geniuses, whereas among 1,000 women there are none. When it comes to average intelligence, the women are ahead, 595 out of 1,000 being in that category, while only 380 out of 1,000 men thus qualify.

If the peach tree limb divines correctly, the city will pay for the excavation and stop the leak, but if the "tip" is wrong and the digging futile, the bank is to pay for the digging.

JOHN D., JR., TELLS HOW HE GIVES HIS MILLIONS

Benevolences of Rockefeller Family Never Before Equaled in History—Guiding Rules for Donations

BACK of the wholesale distribution of millions on the part of the Rockefeller family, there must be some set of rules by which the oil kings and their advisers regulate the size of the benevolence and pick and choose the institutions which they intend to benefit.

The generosity of the Rockefellers are unique in all the history of the human race. John D. sr., for instance, has given away approximately $500,000,000—a cool half-billion. His son, John D. Jr., is continuing the work. A few days ago he handed over to two negro educational institutions, Hampton and Tuskegee, the sum of one million dollars. He has given hundreds of thousands to Canadian colleges and medical faculties. He has subscribed for the rebuilding of the library at Tokio, Japan; the preservation of Rheims Cathedral, the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York city, museums, art schools and a tremendous catalog of other charitable and educational, religious and secular organizations.

P. W. Wilson, of the New York Times, attempts, in this connection, to clear away a common and mistaken belief concerning the elder Rockefeller. The story is prevalent that John D. spent the first half of his life collecting money and is now spending the last half giving it away.

Basing his statements on an examination of Mr. Rockefeller's first account book, Wilson declares that his giving and spending have always gone together. Between November, 1855, and April, 1856, for example, he spent $9.09 on clothes, while he gave $5.58 away. As his fortune increased, so did his contributions.

As far as gifts to individuals are concerned, the Rockefellers do not do a great deal of it. Mail bags crammed with prayers, demands and weirdly-worded requests for money come as regularly as the clock ticks. But it takes almost as much time and trouble to make a $100 gift as a

John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

$1,000,000 one and Rockefeller felt that he should confine himself to benevolence on a whole scale. Others with less at their disposal for charity should care for the minor cases; he would confine himself to the greater needs.

His First Philanthropy

THE gift to the negro institutes is a story in itself. John D. Rockefeller Jr.'s grandmother was an earnest opponent of slavery. John D. inherited her opinions. When his son, John D. Jr., was a small boy, he took him to Hampton Institute and bought a scholarship for him, that is, arranged that a negro lad would get free tuition in the name of John D. Jr. The negro boy who thus obtained an education wrote regularly to his youthful patron during his school days and told of the progress he was making. The whole thing made such a deep impression on the young son of the oil king that he has never forgotten it.

The Rockefeller funds and endowments have been developed on the firm principle that enterprises should start in a small way and grow by themselves. There has never been a policy of making enormous gifts and then finding objects on which to spend the money.

John D. Rockefeller was asked what reasons led him as well as his father to give their greatest support to educational affairs and matters of health. He and his father came to the realization, he declared, that disease, whether social, physical, moral or spiritual, is very difficult to eradicate, once it has gripped its victim. It is easy to see, then, that what is required is not cure but prevention.

Prevention necessitates scientific research and scientific research is always a gamble. Mr. Rockefeller goes on. You may spend a million dollars and get nothing at all. Yet you may spend another million on top of that again and get very valuable results indeed.

To seek small subscriptions for so uncertain a thing as scientific research—for that reason many wealthy men have felt, it wise to contribute.

Lastly, in considering the Rockefeller gifts, it must be remembered that their possessors do not consider the family millions as some huge treasure house from which they must distribute a certain tremendous sum. They have sworn no vow of poverty. They accept their fortune as it is and consider it as an opportunity for service.

GREATEST HOBBY FAIR IS PREPARED TO RECEIVE THOUSANDS OF VISITORS

Third in City's History Will Be Opened in Arena On Monday.

ENTRIES LARGEST

Splendid Musical Program Will Add To Pleasure of Week.

London's third Hobby Fair, to be held under the auspices of the Rotary club, and incidentally the world's third Hobby Fair, will be opened by Roy H. Cunningham, the father of the Hobby Fair in the Arena on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Three years ago when the idea of holding a fair for hobbies was sponsored by London Rotarians there were 1,400 entries and 8,000 people attended it. The following year, in 1924, there were 2,700 entries and the attendance was 19,000. This year, with the fair still a few days away, there are 3,500 entries arranged on the long tables.

It is particularly gratifying to Rotarians in the city that there is a big entry list this year, as the district conference coincides with Hobby Fair week, and the eight hundred visitors will be able to see the original fair in operation under the guidance of its sponsors and the personal supervision of the district who caught the inspiration in 1922.

Apart from the exhibition of work, a fine musical program has been arranged for the week, including every school orchestra in the city. Then a "Rotary Round the World" pageant has been arranged, and will be shown in the Arena on Monday night and Thursday night with more than one thousand school children under the leadership of E. W. G. Quantz, musical supervisor of the public schools.

The Arena, with its seats forming an ideal place for the fair, especially in view of the pageant. In the armchairs, where the fair has been held previously, a pageant would have been out of the question.

Since the inception of the fair the London club has received letters from practically every Rotary club in America, and from many in Europe, asking for particulars and arrangement. The visitors this year will carry the message of the London fair to every city in the fifteenth district, which covers all Ontario and Michigan.

Every Phase Covered.

Every phase of hobby inclination is covered, and provided for in this fair. In the eleven sections there is a class to welcome every sort of hobby and every kind of pet. The pet stock section, as a matter of fact, has proven the most popular of all sections. Nothing is left out. There are classes for pet hares, pet guinea pigs, pet pigeons, pet cats, pet dogs, pet kittens, and pet chickens. In each class there are sub-classes, so that you can get a prize for the best yellow cat or the oldest pet dog, or the youngest pet dog, or the ugliest pet dog, or the best tumbler or fan-

CUP STIRS INTEREST OF PUPILS IN SCHOOLS

One of the most keenly contested prizes in the Hobby Fair is The Advertiser silver cup presented to the school winning the highest number of points in the fair. Last year it was won by Lord Roberts school. The cup has to be won three years before coming the permanent property of any school.

Rules governing this contest which have been drawn up in collaboration with J. M. Watt, chairman of the Hobby Fair committee, and Roy H. Cunningham, the founder of the fair, are as follows:

All silver cups 100 points	All 3rd ribbons 40 points
All large shields 75 points	All 4th ribbons 30 points
All 1st shields 60 points	All 5th ribbons 20 points
All 2nd shields 50 points

PET STOCK CLASS POINTS.

All 1st ribbons 50 points	All 4th ribbons 20 points
All 2nd ribbons 40 points	All 5th ribbons 10 points
All 3rd ribbons 30 points

All entries in before April 7..... 5 points	All entries in after April 7..... 3 points

No school with less than one hundred pupils is eligible for this cup.

tail in the pigeon classes.

Art, mechanics, music, domestic science, woodwork, natural history, botany, collections of all kinds, photography, electrical work and musical compositions, all come under the headings of classes in the fair. If a boy or a girl cannot find a place for his or her hobby, then it must be an extraordinary one, and one the directors would like to hear about.

It is appropriate that Roy Cunningham, who was responsible for the original fair, should have the privilege of opening the fair this year. He is leaving the city this year, and it is considered a compliment on the part of the club to ask him to perform the opening ceremony the year of the district conference.

There are special Rotary silver shields given for the best exhibit in each class, and there is a special silver cup to the boy and girl having the best exhibit at the fair. There is as well a silver cup presented by the London Advertiser for the school having the highest number of points in the fair.

The idea behind the Hobby Fair is found in the motto adopted by Roy Cunningham, and printed on the fair programs. It reads: "In the hobby of the boy you find the big idea in the man," and he believes that it may hold in some way in deciding the vocation of the boys and girls in London. Deciding on a vocation is now considered by all educationalists one of the most important parts of their work. By developing the hobby desire among the children it is thought that some hint of the natural inclination of the child may be given which will help his parents and teachers in guiding him as to his work in life.

Musical Program.

The musical program for the week is as follows: Monday night, April 13, 8 o'clock sharp—Pageant, "Rotary Round the World," under the leadership of Mr.

Quantz, 1,000 school children taking part. Tuesday night, April 14, 8 o'clock sharp—Acrobatics by boys of De La Salle school (St. Peter's seminary) and Askin street Methodist orchestra, under the leadership of Dr. James Smith.

Friday night—Amalgamated orchestras of technical school and Wellington street Methodist, under leadership of Mr. Cresswell.

Friday afternoon and evening stunt program which will consist of sewing contest, cooking contest, woodwork-making contest by all public schools, colleges and technical school, beginning at 2 p.m., continuing until 10 p.m.

Saturday afternoon and evening musical contest. Saturday evening collegiate institute orchestra, under the leadership of Douglas Fetherstone musical director; Dorothy McCann, B. A., business manager. The Pushmobile and Brakemobile derby.

CHIFFON ANYWHERE.

Special to The Advertiser. New York, April 10.—Chiffon today is to dress what the utility infidel is to baseball. It can be placed anywhere. Even on the straight line, slim, plain, satin frocks, it is used as a flou, adding grace to the neckline and a contrasting color note to the costume.

RABBIT WAR YIELDS PROFITS TO KILLERS

Meat Cured and Sent to Big Alaska Fox Farms—Careful Process.

Associated Press Despatch.

Cordova, Alaska, April 10.—In Washington and other states of the union might profit from the jack rabbit pest if they killed the animals, powdered the meat and sold it to Alaska fox farmers for summer feed. In the opinion of J. Williamson, owner of the largest fox farm along the Russian river on the Kenai peninsula.

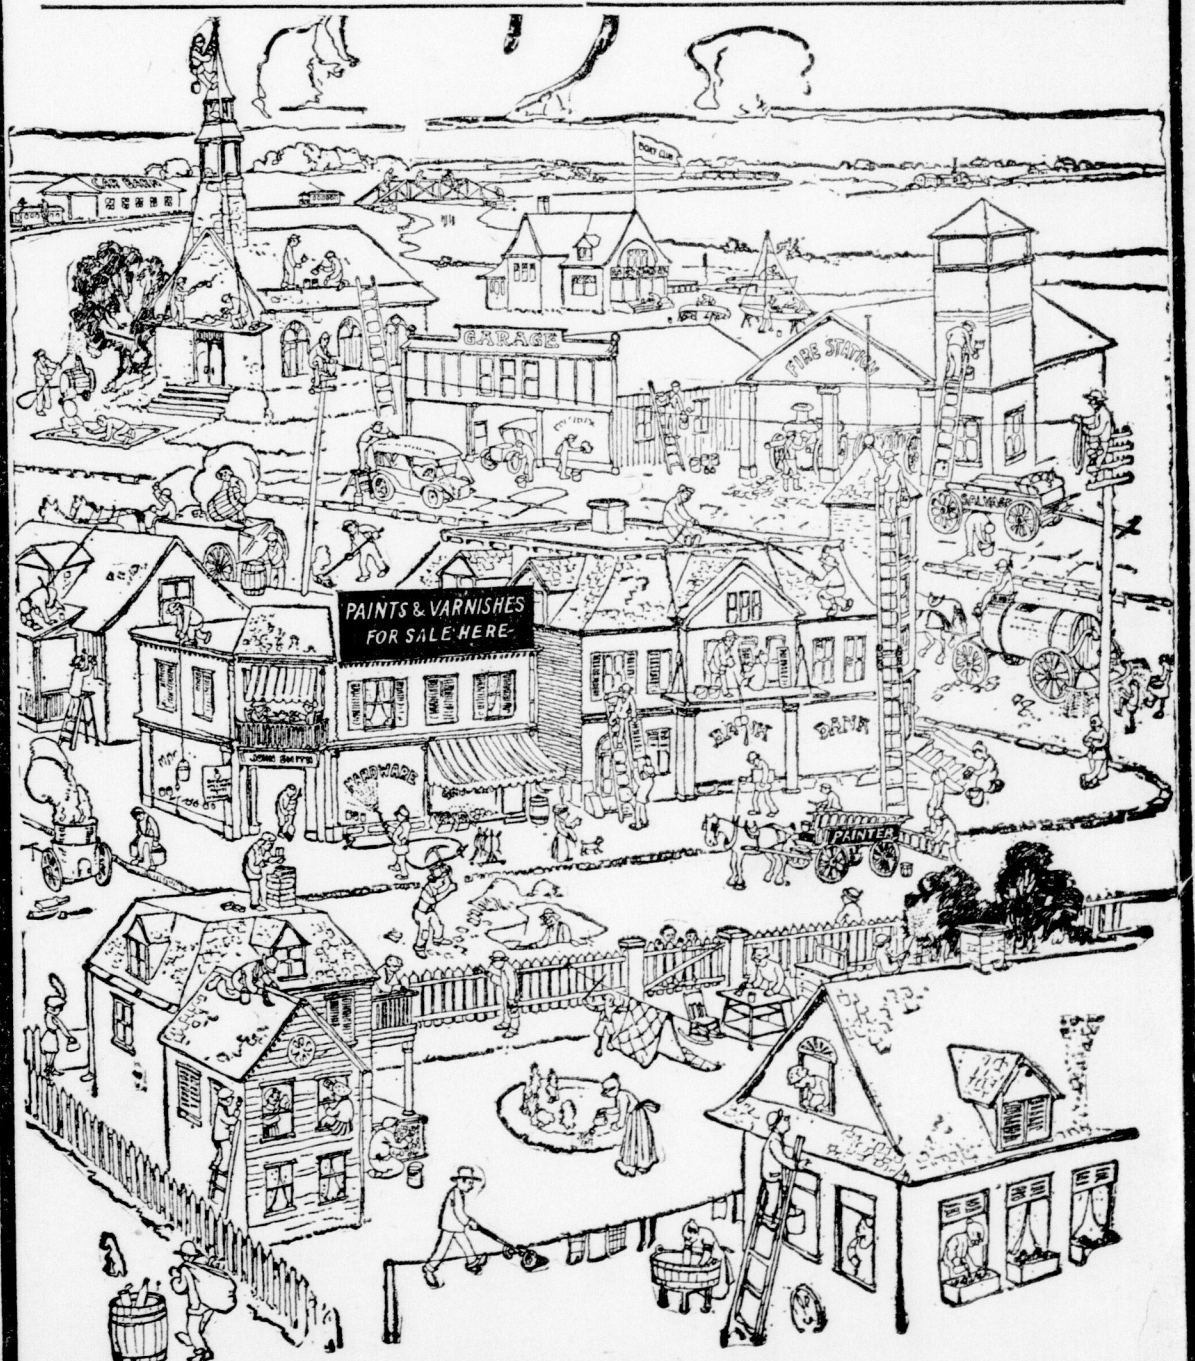

More than 5,000 rabbits were slaughtered by Williamson last winter. The meat was ground, placed on racks over a stove where it was dried, and then pulverized and stored in sacks.

The rabbit powder was mixed with water and vegetables, boiled and served to foxes during the summer, making an agreeable change of diet from fish and porcupine.

Another form of preserving the meat is to pack it when fresh into five-gallon oil cans. About 35 rabbits are put into one can. Water is poured over the meat and the can set outdoors until its contents freeze. The can is then thawed loose and removed from the block containing the meat. The block is stored in ice houses that prevent it thawing until feeding time in summer.

Her Face Was Covered With Pimples

SHE GOT RID OF THEM BY USING BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Miss T. Hunter, R.R. No. 8, London, Ont., writes:—"I wish to recommend Burdock Blood Bitters to all women who are suffering from pimples or any other facial blemishes. About two years ago I was greatly troubled with pimples and sores breaking out on my face, and could get no relief until, finally, a friend recommended me to take B.B.B. This I did, and I am now glad to say that your remedy has given me the desirable results, and I now have a nice smooth, clear skin, as it has eliminated all the impurities from my blood."

Get B.B.B. when you ask for it; it has been on the market for the past 40 years; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.—Adv.

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.—Adv.

The Inner Mysteries of Rheumatism

A remarkable book written by an authority who has spent more than 20 years of his life in study, research and experimentation in this distressing disease. One of the many new and startling facts which this distinguished writer clearly sets forth and proves that Uric Acid never did, and never can, cause Rheumatism—that Uric Acid is a natural waste product of our blood—found even in every newborn babe—and that without it we could not live.

Every sufferer of Rheumatism, Neuritis, Sciatica, Lumbago and associated disorders should read it. A limited edition is now being distributed free by the author, and fortunately anyone sending name and address to H. F. Newwater, 224 St. James St., Montreal, U.S.A., will receive a copy of this valuable book by return mail postage paid and entirely free of charge. If not a sufferer yourself, cut out this notice and help some afflicted friend by handing it to him.—Adv.

Radio Answers

By C. H. LANGFORD.

This department is conducted in this column each Saturday. Radio questions on troubles or information desired may be sent in. As many as possible of these questions will be answered in this column, except in cases where the writer is unable to do so. Address all communications to the radio department, London Advertiser, London, Ont.

Local radio fans will be glad to know that the radio research club of London is ready to help those who have trouble with any form of interference. In order that the listener may take advantage of this free service, all that is required is to go to any radio dealer and fill in a card specifying in detail the interference, actual description of the set, and the radio license number. In connection with interference from radiating regenerative receivers and others, both the owner of the set and the listener, who is annoyed by such, can secure a very helpful booklet containing information if application is made personally to any radio dealer. This booklet is free, and is well worth having to make a special aerial or else secure a 5 or 6-tube receiver.

R. M. of London, Ont., writes: I am informed that I should use a No. 4 wire from my lightning switch to the ground. Why should this wire be larger than the lead-in? Is it all right to connect this wire on the outside of the water meter? If this cannot be connected to a water pipe outside the house, is it safe to run it through the wall into the cellar, or could I bury a metal plate or rod and connect my lightning wire to this?

Ans.—While a number four wire is O.K., ordinary number 12 or 14 copper wire will do for the average lightning protector system. Never connect your lightning ground to the house side of the meter. If you cannot connect on the street side, then use a regulation ground rod, driven directly below the lead-in wire. For a more elaborate ground and one that would do well for receiving also, is to secure a piece of sheet copper at least 18 inches square. Look around and pick a spot near the lead-in wire. This spot should be one that is likely to remain damp, even in dry or hot weather. Dig a hole three or four feet deep in order that the copper will be in contact with the earth. In connection to make the ground hold its moisture better it is advisable to dump a bag of charcoal into the hole, so that it is packed about the copper sheet. Be sure that a heavy copper wire is well soldered to the copper plate before it is buried. Pour a few pails of water into the hole and then fill in the early packing it down well. This ground will give good results for both receiving or for a lightning ground. It is better practice to have a separate ground connection for lightning arrester, other than one for receiving ground.

C. G. of London, Ont., writes: Can receive concerts with an aerial 20 feet long, two stories above the ground? The aerial will be closed in by a number of buildings.

Ans.—You will get some concerts, but you will either have to make a special aerial or else secure a 5 or 6-tube receiver.

C. K. of St. Thomas, Ont., writes: I am building a four-tube receiver. In order to keep my battery properly charged I am told that it must be taken to a charging station for recharge. Why can't I use four gravity cells, commonly called croft-foot cells? I have a limited amount of money to spend.

Ans.—The best thing to do is to purchase a reliable battery charger. This can be attached to a hydro socket in your home and the battery can be recharged without trouble and at a cost of only a few cents. Using the croft-foot cells would be unwise, as they do not possess a large capacity for filament lighting. Stay with the storage battery. Better results will be obtained by using a used four or five any other form of filament lighting supply.

F. W. of Chatham, Ont., writes: Will you kindly answer the following questions on the Reinartz circuit? I wonder why my set so dead after connecting on to a charging station? What I do to eliminate body capacity? Would it be possible to connect a second Reinartz circuit web coil for long-distance reception? Would one stage of amplification help bring in distant stations when using head phones?

Ans.—In this type of Ultra Audio circuit, due to peculiar regeneration control and necessity for proper frequency current at phones, what a phone condenser is placed across phones or transformer are connected and kills the necessary action of choking. Shielding of the panel will eliminate capacity effects. However, the Reinartz circuit is not bothered by extreme capacity troubles and can be made entirely free from such effects by changing connections slightly in the set, so that the roots of both tuning and regeneration condensers are connected to ground. If this fails, something is variable wrong in your circuit. A cheap no tune condenser with composition and plates often gives considerable trouble. No tune to lower wave stations, make a connection say ten or fifteen turns down the coil from the grid connections and Ont.—Adv.

CANCER TAKES 125,000 LIVES IN U. S. IN YEAR

Dr. Francis Wood Declares It Is Neither Hereditary or Communicable.

New York, April 10.—Cancer takes an annual toll of 125,000 lives in the United States, and causes an economic loss of $25,000,000 a year, Dr. Francis Carter Good, director of the Institute of Cancer Research at Columbia University, asserted in a report submitted today to the Gorgas Memorial Institute of Tropical and Preventive Medicine. Of this number, probably 15,000 lives could be saved annually if cancers were treated by reputable physicians within a few weeks of formation, he estimated.

"So far the only adequate treatment for cancer is surgery," Dr. Wood said.

"Cancer is not hereditary nor is it contagious or communicable," said Dr. Wood.

SIR W. GLYN JONES COMES TO LONDON

Distinguished British Pharmacist Will Give An Address Next Thursday.

London will have a distinguished visitor on Thursday, April 16, in the person of Sir William Glyn Jones, noted British pharmacist, who is making a coast to coast tour of Canada. Sir William, who will be the guest of the London Druggists' association at the Hunt club, on Thursday, has been brought to Canada by the Dominion Pharmaceutical association in the interests of price protection. Already a move in this direction has been taken by Great Britain, Australia and South Africa.

DOROTHY ELLINGSON REMOVED TO ASYLUM

San Francisco, Calif., April 10.—Seventeen-year-old Dorothy Ellingson, the pretty bronze-haired girl whose pursuit for jazz and joy culminated last January in a quarrel in which she killed her mother in a bedroom of her home, was taken to the state asylum at Napa, California, last night.

The jury impaled to try the murder charge was dismissed until Monday, and will be formally dismissed then, and the matter placed on the "deferred" calendar, perhaps for all time. Should she ever be pronounced sane, the murder charge may be revived.

THOMAS STONEMAN DIES

Thomas Stoneman, a native of Perth county and a resident of Mitchell, died in the city yesterday. He was 66 years of age.

Mr. Stoneman was one of the pioneer undertakers of Western Ontario, and conducted a business in Mitchell at the time when coffins were made to order and to particular measurements.

Survivors were the widow, two sons and four daughters.

The remains have been forwarded from the funeral home of A. L. Oatman to Mitchell, where interment will be made.

LOW-COST TRIP TO PACIFIC COAST

A captivating four-week tour of Western Canada and the Pacific coast, with a trip through the United States on the return journey, is being planned for Canadian teachers and their friends this summer.

Those who take advantage of this trip will see the greatest scenery on the continent—the Buffalo herd at Watkinsburg, Jasper National Park, with its unsurpassed mountain scenery, Mount Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies; the totem poles of Kitwanga, and the mystic beauty of the Skeena river.

At Prince Rupert the party transfers from train to boat for the glorious water trip of 750 miles through the sheltered scenic seas of the North Pacific coast to Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle.

On the return trip five wonderful days will be spent touring Yellowstone National Park by motor, with a trip to Salt Lake City, and three days at Rocky Mountain National Park, Colorado. Then it's Denver, Clear Creek Canyon, Idaho Springs and Lookout Mountain, before heading for Chicago and Toronto.

The tour leaves Toronto July 9th, and cannot afford to miss it. Full information, fares, etc., can be secured with illustrated booklet from A. E. Bryson, 44 Silverthorn Ave., Toronto, Martin Kerr, 4 Beulah Ave., Hamilton, or any Canadian National railway agent.—Adv.

MAN DIES AFTER DRINKING GLASS OF DEADLY CYANIDE

Montreal, April 10.—Mistaking a deadly cyanide for soda water Andre Giroux, aged 60, one of the partners in the Royal Silver Plate Company, Craig street west, accidentally caused his own death, it was revealed at an inquest held by Coroner McMahon. Giroux was found dead in his laboratory by an employee yesterday.

One containing cyanide and the other containing soda water, were found alongside an opened package of sandwiches.

THE SPARK PLUG

Vitamins to nourishment are what a spark-plug is to a motor. To sustain vitality, the body needs three thousand calories of food daily, yet if this food is not activated by vitamins the body is unable to thrive in health or strength.

Scott's Emulsion

brings to a weakened system vitamin-activated nourishment of highest degree. A little taken regularly helps wonderfully to build strength and resistance.

If you would keep strong and vital—activate your diet with Scott's Emulsion.

MRS. JAMES MURISON MARKS 82ND BIRTHDAY

Helped Hew Home From Elgin Virgin Forest.

Special to The Advertiser.
West Lorne, April 10.—Mrs. James Murison celebrated her 82nd birthday yesterday. She was born near Prescott, Grenville county. She was the eldest of twelve children.

Mrs. Murison came to St. Thomas in 1864, where she married George Dodd, coming from there to East Aldborough, where they built a log-cabin, cleared and worked the land.

Mr. Dodd passed away in 1895, and after a few years she married James Murison.

Six of the twelve children are living: William of Tacoma, Washington; Amos of Detroit, Frederick; Rodney, George of West Lorne, and Mrs. D. McDonald of West Lorne. Mrs. Murison has been in ill-health for some time, and since Sunday her condition has been decidedly worse.

EXETER HOME SOLD.

SPECIAL EASTER MUSIC PLANNED BY CHURCHES

Most Joyous of Christian Seasons Will Be Welcomed in London With Songs of Praise—Clergy Vio To Bring Most Attractive Message To People—All Denominations Will Join in Giving Thanks.

THROGS OF CHURCHGOERS EXPECTED

The Easter season, most joyous of all Christian seasons, will be celebrated tomorrow in the churches of the city. Sermons appropriate to the season will be preached by all city ministers, who are scheduled to occupy their own pulpits. Music breathing the triumphant story of Easter and Christ's victory over death will be rendered by each and every church choir in the city.

Realizing as they do that people attend church on Easter Sunday in larger numbers than on any other Sunday which might be singled out throughout the whole year, clergy and musical directors vie with each other in providing a program which will measure up to the high expectations of both regular churchgoers and what might be termed the once-a-years.

Though Easter Sunday has come to be regarded as the musical Sunday of the year, it must be admitted that the musical programs prepared this year, in many instances, promise to excel all previous efforts.

At St. Andrew's, the pastor, Rev. D. C. MacGregor, D.D., will preach on the subjects, "An Easter Message" and "Easter Message, Jesus, the Constant Companion."

In addition to special musical numbers throughout the course of morning and evening services, the choir, under Charles E. Wheeler, F.C.C.O., will render the Easter cantata, "Our Risen Saviour" (E. L. Ashford), at the close of the evening service. The soloists for the day will be Miss Ulah Kennedy, Mrs. Robert Durst, A. L. Christiani and E. A. Webster. Miss Edith James will assist on the violin. The program for the morning service is as follows:

Prelude—"Resurrection Morn"
Anthem—"He Is Risen"
Hymn—"Jesus Christ Is Risen Today"
Solo—"Easter Bells"
Postlude—"Allegro Maestoso"
Offering organ—"Canto Triumphant"
Cantata—"Our Risen Saviour"
Solo—"The Lord Will Have Mercy"
Prelude and Chorus—"Hosanna in the Highest"
Solo and Chorus—"Ride On in Majesty"
Chorus—"Let Not Your Heart Be Troubled"
Tenor Solo—"O Love Divine"
Trio—"The Road of Sorrow"
Baritone and Violin Solo—"Calvary"
Baritone Recitative—"O Lamb of God"
Quartet—"Easter Dawn"
Reverie, Violin and Organ—"Hail, Happy Morn"
Soprano Solo—"Christ Is Risen"
Chorus—"Prelude—Jubilate Deo"
Postlude—"Hallelujah"
Solo—"Aria"
Tenor Solo—"In the End of the Sabbath"
Cello solo—"Adagio"
Handel—"Berceuse Slave"
Neruda Postlude—"Festival Postlude"
The program for the evening service is as follows:

Prelude—"Sonata in A Major"
Anthem—"Christ, Our Passover"
Hymn—"The Lord Is Risen"
Cello solo—"Aria"
Tenor Solo—"In the End of the Sabbath"
Cello solo—"Adagio"
Handel—"Berceuse Slave"
Neruda Postlude—"Festival Postlude"
The program for the evening service is as follows:

Prelude—"Sonata in A Major"
Anthem—"Christ, Our Passover"
Hymn—"The Lord Is Risen"
Cello solo—"Aria"
Tenor Solo—"In the End of the Sabbath"
Cello solo—"Adagio"
Handel—"Berceuse Slave"
Neruda Postlude—"Festival Postlude"
The program for the evening service is as follows:

At St. George's Anglican church, the pastor, Rev. Ven. Archdeacon G. B. Sage, will have charge, and will preach morning and evening on the subject of "Christ's Resurrection." The music for the day, under Frank D. Humphreys, organist, will be as follows:

deemer Liveth"
Mrs. Chalcraft.
Anthem—"What Shall Roll Us Away the Stone"
Hymn—"We Declare Unto You Glad Tidings"
Solo—"Christ Is Risen"
Mrs. Chalcraft.
Anthem—"Lift Up Your Heads"
(Messiah)
Handel
Askin Street Methodist.

At Askin street Methodist church, the pastor, Rev. J. E. J. Millyard, in the morning, will preach on the subject, "Does Death End All?" The evening service will be entirely given over to music by the choir under Dr. James H. Smith as director.

The soloists who will participate in the evening musical program, "In an Easter Garden" are: Mrs. W. B. Wartman, soprano; Miss Frances Cullis, contralto; Curran Lindsay and J. E. Mapletot, tenors; J. B. Hills, bass. The program is as follows:

Prelude—"Agnus Dei"
Hymn—"Jesus Christ Is Risen Today"
Solo and Refrain—"Whither Pilgrims"
Solo—"My Master Hath a Garden"

On Fifth Avenue

AN EASTER BOUQUET
Of a novel kind that comes in an old-fashioned posy ball, silver paper handle and all, enclosed in its special floral box.

Faded flowers they are (if you wash them in Lux!) in the loveliest variety of shades. Fairy flowers—that turn into silken stockings at a touch! There is no uncertainty in such a gift. You know she wears them!

ALL THAT A FOOT CAN BARE
Paris murmurs "Sandals"
On a skin you love to touch—
They say it may cause scandals.
If you wear them overmuch!

So for your stockings, choose a pair Made almost of lace. They're simply charming things to wear— And HOW they save your face!

BIRDS, BUTTERFLIES AND FLOWERS
Appear at her knee. Well—JUST below it, in gay embroidery on her stockings. A point of color, an interesting touch. Most intriguing to the eye of the Beholder.

HE-MAN STUFF
The ensemble idea has invaded the Men's Departments. Ties and handkerchiefs to match are the smart touch for lads. Two shades for choice with polka dots on a contrasting color, with a wide plain border—not only on the handkerchief but on the ends of the tie as well. And on sunny days, suits in springlike tints of blues and greens (very definite colors, though woven with something of the effect of a very dark opal) walk out to show themselves along the Avenue. A warning sight they are. May Brave Men and Fair Prices make them generally popular!

DROP THE KANDERCHIEF
And pick up the powder puff! It's tucked into a tiny design at the corner of the mouchoir—a basket, a flower, a bit of fanciful embroidery that makes the smallest pocket you ever saw—with the wee flat puff lurking in its depths.
