Waterway Plan Gets Unexpected Support From 26 States

Mississippi Body Backs East Route

Association of 26 States Surprise by Supporting St. Lawrence Scheme.

TWO ROUTES WANTED

Fight Washington For Lakes-to-Gulf and Lakes-to-Ocean Ways.

Special to The Advertiser.

Toronto, Dec. 19.—The St. Lawrence deep waterway project has found a champion in an unexpected quarter—the Mississippi valley. The valley association, which, with a membership drawn from 26 states is going to bring the most ruthless political pressure upon the present congress to complete the lakes to the gulf waterway via the Chicago drainage canal and also insists on the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence sea-way.

Its president, James E. Smith of St. Louis, in his just published annual report, says "the valley association has consistently supported the furtherance of this great St. Lawrence development since its inception. When an international agreement has been reached and engineering approval secured following its declared policy should give its assistance and co-operation to the full extent of its power."

The association does not consider the Chicago drainage canal inimical to the St. Lawrence project. What will be New Orleans' profit will also be Montreal's gain.

The Mississippi valley gives its reason for its confidence that it will obtain its two objectives, the St. Lawrence that leads to Europe and the gulf that divides North and South America.

"Our great valley territory now contains a population of 60,000,000 people, which is 35 per cent of our country's total population. It contains 66 per cent of our rural population. It covers 64 per cent of our total area. It produces 70 per cent of our total manufactured products. Its inhabitants pay into the national treasury a proportion of the nation's revenues and they are therefore fairly entitled to their full share of the government's expenditures for the necessary internal improvements required by them for their general welfare. Sixty-four per cent of the members of the valley representatives are from this important section of the United States and 60 per cent of the members of the senate are from this valley."

HAMILTON HESITATES ABOUT EXPERT ADVICE

Move in Street Railway Laid Over For Week—May Extend Agreement.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Hamilton, Dec. 18.—A halt in negotiations for an improved street car service in Hamilton occurred this morning when the question of the necessity of securing expert advice was raised by the board of control.

A sub-committee, appointed a few days ago, reported to the board, suggesting that the city council be asked to grant a further extension of the 60-day agreement with the company of experts might be secured concerning the city's transportation requirements. Several members of the board did not think that expert advice was necessary, and after some discussion the report of the sub-committee was laid over until next week. In the meantime, S. H. Kent, city clerk, will learn the attitude of the company regarding the granting of an extension of the temporary agreement.

TEN ARE INJURED IN TRAIN WRECK

Pennsylvania Passenger Train Derailed Near Altoona—Engine Car Turns Over.

Associated Press Despatch.

Altoona, Pa., Dec. 19.—Ten persons were injured, five of them seriously, in the derailment of Pennsylvania passenger train No. 32, Pittsburgh to Philadelphia, near Bennington, 10 miles west of here, early today. The injured were brought to a hospital here. Passengers said the entire train left the track and that the engine and one car overturned and rolled down an embankment. The injured included the fireman, engineer and eight passengers. They were brought to Altoona in a special train and taken to the Altoona hospital.

The train consisted of the engine, two express cars, three coaches and three sleepers. A special train, with doctors and nurses, was made up at Altoona and sent to the scene of the wreck, 12 miles away. The injured were given first-aid treatment and then taken aboard the special train and rushed to Altoona, where they were taken to the hospital. The uninjured passengers also made the trip to Altoona on the special train and from there continued their journey.

SUES FOR BALANCE OF CONCERT BILL OF $650

Murphy, Gunn & Murphy have issued a writ in county court for London, Ontario, against Harry T. Dickinson of the city. The claim against Mr. Dickinson is for $650, the balance owing to Mrs. Helen Stanley for a concert in London on Nov. 5, contracted for on June 12, 1925. The statement claims that only $100 has been paid on the total bill of $650.

HINGES ON CONTRACT

Any Elector May Bring Action As Result of Hospital Work. Is Claim Made.

City hall officials are greatly concerned over the fact that Mayor-elect John M. Moore, by virtue of the fact that he had a contract with the city on nomination day, may be disqualified from occupying the mayoralty chair during 1926.

It is known that supporters of Mayor Wenige have obtained the best legal advice possible, and have been told that Mr. Moore has no right to the position of mayor, and that any elector may bring action to oust him from the position of the city's chief magistrate in 1926.

Mayor Wenige, when interviewed this morning, had absolutely nothing to say for publication on the question. Asked whether he would sign the check authorizing $4,500 in payment of work done by Mr. Moore in preparing plans for the new hospital, the mayor stated that he had not yet seen the check, and therefore could not say whether he would or would not sign it.

Act Is Quoted.
Section 53 of the Ontario municipal act says: "The following shall not be eligible to be elected a member of a council or be entitled to sit or vote therein:

"Any person having any claim or interest in a contract with a corporation or a person who either himself or by or through another has any claim, action or proceeding against the corporation." If Mr. Moore's company had taken over incorporation pending the payment of the contract, it would be paid for services rendered according to the municipal act, but supporters of the mayor declare that no such papers were ever taken out, and that further the hospital trust at a meeting of Sept. 7 last appointed John M. Moore to draw up plans for the new hospital. The mayor's company, received the job of drawing up the plans, and the minutes of that particular meeting will show that Mr. Moore only was employed.

Means New Election.
When an alderman is disqualified from holding office, the candidate receives the next number of votes takes his place in the council. This does not hold good in a majority election, city hall officials state. This would mean a new election in the council.

In the event of Mayor George A. Wenige failing to sign a $4,500 check payable to his successor John M. Moore, for architect work on the new Victoria hospital nurses' home, done prior to the elections, Mr. Moore would be placed in the ridiculous position of signing a check as mayor of the city payable to himself.

Legal technicalities make it almost impossible for the city's mayor to resign his own check and should Mr. Wenige refuse to affix his name within the next 24 hours to the $4,500 check made out to his successor on Monday, the firm of John M. Moore & Co. may receive no payment for the nurses' home plans and specifications, which were practically completed on Friday.

Pay Up To Date.

Southeast Backs Up Bus Lines

Petition With 2,000 Names Will Ask That Council Retain Motor Units.

HOSTILITY TO L. S. R.

Big Crowd at Ealing School Organizes To Insure Continuance of Buses.

Any city councillor who dares to oust bus transportation in the city of London, and especially the Ealing district, will not get many votes in Ward 3 next year. This was the feeling of a warm meeting of over 200 ratepayers who jammed Ealing school kindergarten to the doors last night. The overflow crowd listened outside at the window and applauded every remark that was against the street railway and in favor of buses.

There were no members of the 1925 council present at the gathering. They would have been impressed by the undercurrent of feeling against the street railway, not only by all the speakers, but the meeting as well.

Following speeches by ex-Ald. Carswell, J. M. Donahue, J. R. Vincent and others a petition was circulated requesting the city council not to interfere with bus operation. If the council ignores the request of Ealing district, the matter will be brought before the police commission, and if Judge Macdonald and the commissioners fail to take the desired action, it will go to the legislature, and even Ottawa, Mr. Vincent told the meeting.

The petition, which will have some 2,000 signatures when it is presented to the mayor and city council. To His Worship the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of London: The undersigned ratepayers of the city of London, desire to protest against the action of the London street railway in threatening to cease operation of its cars unless certain demands are acceded to forthwith.

"We respectfully request that no action be taken by your honorable body which will have the effect of interfering with the operation of buses on the city streets until the interests of the city and the city are fully protected."

Ex-Ald. Carswell acted as chairman, and told the audience that it had been adequately represented in the council. As it was, they were represented by Ald. Ashton, a street railway councillor.

If he had his way, the street cars would be in the barns, Mr. Carswell declared. "Cheer!" The people of Ward 3 had not stood together in the recent election, Mr. Carswell stated. The other wards had elected a majority of the new Victoria council, and if Ward 3 had stuck by her candidates, the hospital would have been the result of the council during 1926. He had heard of an alderman-elect, living on the North Belt line, who had said, why should we cater to buses as long as we can get street cars.

HUNT FAILS TO REVEAL LOST CANADIAN PLANE

Party Searches Five Hours Without Result—Troopers May Join Hunt.

Special to The Advertiser.

Pittsfield, Mass., Dec. 18.—Warren Campbell, the Brooklyn chauffeur who said he tumbled across the wreckage of an aeroplane more than a week ago while temporarily lost on a hunting trip today in a five-hour search to relocate his find. He will try again tomorrow if the weather permits.

Sullivan of Brooklyn motored here from New York, starting at 2 o'clock this morning and driving continuously until they reached the home of William Mahan, who was a member of the hunting party from which Campbell became lost. The trio started at once to search for the wrecked aeroplane, which many believe to be the machine of Captain Mansell R. James, Canadian flier, who vanished May 29, 1919, after taking off from Tynningham, where he had landed the night before when he became lost on a return flight from Boston to Atlantic City.

State troopers said tonight they would join in the hunt Sunday if the plane is still unlocated.

SKATING ATTRACTS MANY LONDONERS TO COVES

London youths have been enjoying outdoor skating all this week at the Coves. The Coves have had a splendid coat of ice since the first of the week and every day finds the horshoe surface covered with young hockey enthusiasts and skaters. This is particularly early for outdoor skating in this district, as in the last few years the ponds were not available until after Christmas. The ice is about four inches thick.

ST. PETER'S ORGAN BOWS TO MARCH OF PROGRESS. The historical pipe organ of St. Peter's cathedral will peal forth its last music Christmas Day. It is then to be replaced by a new organ costing $25,000. The beautiful pipe arrangement, shown above, is to be retained.

L.S.R. FACES LOSS OF $30,000 A YEAR

Company Declares Loans to City Cannot Be Met This Month.

The London street railway's plea to the new city council, read at yesterday's council caucus, is reproduced in full herewith:

Dec. 19, 1925.
His Worship, Mayor Moore, and Members of the City Council:

Gentlemen.—Considerable anxiety exists with the public as to the operation of a street car service after Monday, Dec. 21, 1925.

The 1925 city council authorized a five-cent fare for a period of 60 days and decided that the matter of bus licenses for 1926 should be left with the 1926 council.

While relief has been secured by the company under the granting of a five-cent fare for 60 days, nevertheless the fact that the company operated its service at a deficit during November, 1925, of $2,000, under the five-cent fare, must not be overlooked, as the officials of the company fully explained to the 1925 council that bus competition is now reducing the company's revenues between $75 and $100 per day, which would amount to $25,000 or $30,000 per year.

As the operation of the railway is at all times being carried on at a very close margin, it can therefore be understood how bus competition would result in serious deficits to the railway, if it were to continue.

Negotiations for loans to carry on the operation of the railway have failed, due to present unsatisfactory conditions, and the company now requests to advise the city that it will not be possible on Dec. 31, 1925, to meet our obligation to the city in respect to payment of annual paving and interest charges for 1925.

The amounts due on Dec. 31, 1925, are as follows:
Interest on $40,000 loan at 6% $2,400.00
Interest on $6,207.11 loan at 7% 434.50

Total interest charges.....$2,834.50
Instalment on principal.....5,659.15

Total.....$8,493.65
The company, however, expects to make payment in full with interest, when conditions become normal.

The officials wish to assure you that they will entertain any reasonable proposition that will enable the company to carry on an uninterrupted service for the benefit of the general riding public in this city and shall be glad to discuss with the council at any time and means to accomplish this purpose. Yours truly,

L. TAIT,
Manager and Secretary-Treasurer.

Joyful Christmas Music To Be Organ's Valedictory

New Organ Costing $25,000 Will Then Be Placed in St. Peter's Cathedral.

MARCH OF PROGRESS

Old Organ, Dedicated in 1886, Cost $15,000 and Was One of Best in Province.

On Christmas Day, the organ in St. Peter's Cathedral will peal forth the joyful tidings of the Christ child's birth, even as it has done for the past 36 years. Then it will bow to the march of progress and will be heard no more.

A new organ, costing in the neighborhood of $25,000 and containing 3,754 pipes will take its place. The opening will be on April 15.

Following close in the wake of the memorable dedication of the stately cathedral some 40 years ago was the consecration of this beautiful organ, which at that time was the largest in the province and ranked among the best in the dominion.

The organ has served the musical demands of the cathedral seat of the London diocese its keyboard has responded to the touches of many noted musicians. Outstanding among these were the late Dr. Carl Verinder and the late Dr. J. O'Brien.

Plans and specifications for the organ were prepared by Dr. Verinder himself, who before assuming his duties at the St. Peter's Cathedral was organist at the old Queen's avenue Methodist church in musical circles in Western Ontario, and for many years catered to the desires of the most critical audiences. He conducted a choir of 50 voices from the members of his own 50 voices from the members of his own choir of years. Dr. Verinder received a complete and thorough musical education in England and Scotland, having in his youth been an articled pupil to the Exeter (Devonshire) Cathedral organist and choirmaster for more than five years.

Dedicated in 1886.
The old organ, which will soon be heard for the last time, was constructed by Warren & Co. of Toronto, and was dedicated on Nov. 10, 1886, at the time of the celebration of the 18th anniversary of the consecration of the cathedral.

Containing 2,800 pipes, the old organ was installed at a cost of some $15,000, an unusual figure in those days. Many who assisted in the dedication of the organ are still living in the city today. Some of them are John Bromzole, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Watts, Wesley Webb, Mrs. John Traher and Thomas Rutan. Mrs. Traher, who is in her 70th year, was soprano soloist in the choir at that time.

In 1907 several additions and improvements were made to the organ, including a new case, which was valued at approximately $4,000. This was made feasible by a bequest of $1,000 made to the church by the late Mrs. O'Brien, Mons. Aylward, rector of the cathedral.

SPEAKER'S CHAIR FOR AUSTRALIA To Be Made From "Victory" Ship

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Dec. 19.—A chair for the use of the speaker of the Australian house of representatives will be presented to the commonwealth government by the members of the Empire Parliamentary association belonging to the imperial parliament before the opening of the new parliament buildings at Australia's new capital at Canberra.

Husbands Lost To 11,998 Wives

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Dec. 19.—Statistics just issued by the London county council show that 11,998 husbands are missing in London. These official figures show that there are 87,298 married women, exclusive of widows, in that part of London ruled by the council, but that in this area there are only 85,300 married men. The question is, "Where are the missing husbands?"

At the time, is now head of the St. Joseph's church in Sarnia.

Following the services on Christmas Day the church will be without an organ for some time. The present instrument will be dismantled immediately, and the construction of the new organ will not be commenced until the early part of March. Some six weeks will be required for its erection and the date for the dedication services has been set for April 15.

Dr. Balogh Is Organist.
The present organist at the cathedral is Dr. Louis L. Balogh, who is considered one of the most skillful and accomplished of London's musicians.

The scheme and specifications for the new organ have been entirely prepared by Dr. Balogh, and will be one of the finest church organs in the dominion. The present organ, which is 110 years old, will be dismantled and re-arranged in order to save more of the rose window. The finish of the organ will be in oak, while the display pipes, which vary from 1 1/2 to 32 feet in height, will be refinished in gold bronze. The new electric pneumatic action and the latest type of console will be installed, the former to be especially made in accordance with the size of the church.

FASCISTI MAY REFUSE NEW RECRUITS FOR YEAR

Associated Press Despatch.
Rome, Dec. 19.—Refusal to accept any new members for the Fascist party during 1926 is urged by Roberto Farinacci, secretary-general of the party, in a statement to the press yesterday. He believes this measure is necessary as a means for checking the influx of undesirable recruits, especially newly converted Fascists, whose faith has not yet been proven.

Other spokesmen for the Fascist party say that the enrollment already has reached 1,600,000, and local organizations are hampered with applications for membership, so it is to be feared that many undesirable members will creep in unless some step like that suggested by Mr. Farinacci is taken.

Station On Richmond Is New Plan

Commissioners Seek Early Use of Chamber of Commerce Building.

WAIT COUNCIL ACTION

Department Would Move in Three Months From Carling Street Station.

A new police station in the present chamber of commerce building at Richmond street and Queen's avenue, with the approval of the police commission members. They yesterday signified their favor of a change from the antiquated Carling street building and the question will be presented to the 1926 city council.

Should the council agree to purchase the chamber building, formerly the Merchants' Bank building, and now in the hands of the London & Western Trusts Company, renovation work will at once be commenced and Chief Birrell expects the station to be ready for occupancy by spring when members of the Canadian chief constables' association meet here in convention.

A new police station has long been advocated by Chief Birrell, who points to the present Carling street structure as being entirely inadequate for systematic and efficient police work. The present station is too small. There are no quarters for the officers and the constables guardroom is only a makeshift arrangement for several years, Chief Birrell says. It offers ample ground space for a garage and drill square.

The proposed new building would be sufficiently large and of modern enough construction to suffice London police needs for several years, Chief Birrell says. It offers ample ground space for a garage and drill square.

ONTARIO TRAVELLERS HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

Association Members Gather in London Today to Elect Officers.

This morning members of the Ontario commercial travellers' association began coming into London from nearly every other city and town in the district for the annual meeting of the association, which will be held in the association office in the Dominion Savings building at 2 o'clock this afternoon. It is expected to be as large as usual this year, and these members, along with the local members, will, it is expected, make an attendance of over 150. The chief items to come before the meeting will be the report of the scrutineers on the result of the vote for officers for the new year.

AGED WOMAN FACES SHOPLIFTING CHARGE

Arrest Effected After Stolen Purse Is Presented and Exchanged.

Age is no excuse for crime or even petty offences the relatives of a 75-year-old woman learned this morning when detectives placed her under arrest on a shoplifting charge.

On information sworn out by Metropolitan Stores the woman, providing bail is not meanwhile obtained, will spend the week-end in jail to appear before Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon Monday morning.

Her arrest was brought about, police say, after she had made a present of a stolen purse and the recipient attempted to have it exchanged for another.

TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB HONORS CANADA'S PREMIER

Canadian Press Despatch.
Ottawa, Dec. 19.—"The only thing that I don't altogether like about this little function and this very thoughtful presentation is that stress is laid on the fact that I am 51 years of age," said Premier Mackenzie King at a meeting here last night of the Canada First Liberal club, a local branch of the Twentieth Century Society of Canada, given in honor of his birthday.

"There is no young man in the room who feels younger than I do."

The premier stated that the spirit of Liberalism itself was symbolic of youth, of progress and activity. The premier was presented with a book of poems by members of the club.

FOXCROFT NAMED SECRETARY FOR LABOR PARTY IN LONDON

Nominations Place Mould and Avery in Field For Presidency—Party Will Investigate Pleas of Labor Defence League—Committees Named.

Revision of the constitution of the London Labor party was decided upon at the meeting of this body last night, when Arthur Mould, A. C. Avery, William Pierce, Frank McKay and William Tite were appointed as a committee to go into the matter and bring in their recommendations at the next meeting of the party in January. In the work of framing a new constitution they will seek out suggestions from the various adherents of the party.

A communication from the Canadian Labor Defence League was read, urging the local organization to affiliate and take part in the work of defending labor men who have been imprisoned for taking part in strikes or in picketing activities. The letter pointed out that several persons, some of them mere boys of 15 years or so, had been placed in jail or given suspended sentences for peaceful picketing.

The local organization named a committee, comprising Messrs. Menzies, Thomson, Brewster, Mould and Pierce, to go into the matter of affiliating with the defence league. What ever recommendation it makes will be followed out by the organization.

The nominations for officers, which proved the main business of the evening, resulted as follows: President, Arthur Mould and A. C. Avery; vice-president, Albert Graves, John Ashton, Tom Clift and J. F. Thomson; secretary-treasurer, Robert Foxcroft; assistant secretary-treasurer, G. H. Brewer; sergeant-at-arms, William Tite. Ward chairmen: Ward one, J. F. Thomson; ward two, John Pawley; ward three, Donald Wright and W. Pierce; ward four, Tom Clift.

In the cases where acclamations did not result elections will be held at the next meeting, the third Friday in January.

The matter of securing coke from the old civic filtration beds for the unemployed of London was again brought before the members and in this regard it was decided to request Robert Foxcroft, president of the unemployed council, to call a meeting of the latter body to sound out the matter on the matter of whether or not they wanted this coke and if they would club together where possible to take five-ton lots, as has been advocated by the city engineer's department, in the interests of preventing congestion at the coke beds.

One of the matters to come before the meeting is the purchase of a gravel pit to be used as a source of material for road construction work.

Maintenance of suburban roads during the spring season will be discussed and the county engineer will submit his report for the past year on the work done on these thoroughfares.

SANTA CLAUS VISITS M'CORMICK PLANT

Great Christmas Program Entertains 1,200—Sweet Time Had by All.

A crowd estimated at 1,200, employees and their families, attended the annual Christmas tree and entertainment of the McCormick Manufacturing Company, held in the dining-room last night. The evening was full of frolic and merrymaking and the Christmas spirit was greatly manifested. The hall was beautifully decorated with red and green and the large Christmas tree, elaborately set with spangles and silver cord with red and green lights. A splendid program was provided by talent in the plant and the pupils of Miss Marion Stark, who entertained the audience with numerous dances. The program included violin and piano duets by Misses Dorothy and Sylvia Hill, and A. Longfield and M. Wilkie; readings by Alice Miller and Jean Shirley; the Charleston by Miss Olive Rowling; and a one-act comedy, School Days, by the girls of the biscuit department, that kept the crowd in riotous laughter.

The various dances, including the Scotch Highland fling, Dutch sailors' hornpipe, Hawaiian, as well as the waltz, by the staff dancers were well received. Those who took part in the dances were Margaret Wood, Bobbie Wood, Dorothy Donahue, Eva Gooding, Lucile Morrison, Violet Arbuckle, Neta Morrison, Billy Gorman, Jean Tuxford and Shirley Ayres.

A feature of the program was the presentation of gifts to the members of the girls' softball team, who were tied with the Brownies for the city championship. The presentation was made by F. A. McCormick, who in a few remarks reviewed the work of the team. Miss Vera Sumner was presented with a sweater for gathering the greatest number of hits this year. In the coupon drawing the gold wrist watch was won by Emma Ball, 19, Pottersburg.

The most important part of the program, and the part looked forward to by the children with great excitement and noise, was the arrival of Santa Claus, whose progress in his trip from the North Pole was relayed through-out the program by telegrams. It was really Santa Claus night and the fine old fellow with his long white hair and beard was greeted with a wild shout on his appearance. He was loaded with gifts for everyone present, especially for children, to whom he distributed over 500 presents.

The presentation of a box of cigars to Mr. McCormick by Santa Claus to the employees and other presents to the various superintendents, including a chicken to Mr. McNaughton, a rabbit to Mr. Scott, a large clay pipe to Mr. Russell and a large lollipop to James Craig, brought roars of laughter from those present. The evening was one of the most successful events staged in the plant.

YOUTH RECEIVED BY TUB'S FALSE BOTTOM

Shaving Soap Proves Satisfactory, But End Comes All Too Soon.

A London youth some time ago depleted his life savings to the extent of a dollar and a quarter for a new type of shaving soap which came in a little wooden tub about three inches wide and apparently about two and a half inches deep.

The soap had a wonderful perfume and proved entirely satisfactory in the all-important matter of reducing to some degree the hirsute units that made up his beard. It helped to make his skin the kind they love to touch.

But when he got near the bottom of the little wooden tub he discovered that he had been touched in an entirely different manner. It wasn't the bottom at all but only the top of the bottom.

To make this more clear, the bottom of the receptacle was about an inch thick and it was then borne into the youth's glibble mind that he had bought only about two-thirds of the amount which he thought he was getting.

What makes the matter more noticeable is the fact that it was made in England, whose manufacturers have always been thought of here as the epitome of integrity.

"I can't dope it out at all," said the London youth, "Why even a bee with a bad attack of nerves wouldn't sting you that way. The only reason for it that I can see is that the soap I bought was intended to be sold in the States as retaliation for the wooden nutmegs the Yankee peddlers used to unload on the British settlers years ago. Such is life, though; we have to live and learn."

PET STOCK ASSOCIATION HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

The final meeting of the year of the London Pet Stock association was held last night, and took the form of a complimentary expression for the work in behalf of the association during the year by President James McCormick.

During the evening, there was a showing of Buried Rocks, the winners being: Cockerel, James Mitchell, 1 and 2; James McLeod, 3; Pullet, F. H. Stokes, 1 and 2; James Mitchell, 3.

Election of officers for 1926 resulted in the following being chosen as an executive, who will name their own officers: R. E. Anderson, A. Hickey, J. C. Andrews, J. Mitchell, W. McLeod, James McCormick, R. Oke, F. H. Stokes and W. Wilkey.

The evening closed with cards and lunch contributed by the president, to whom a hearty vote of thanks was tendered.

COURT REFUSES TO BELIEVE TALE

James Bennett Fined $50 After Being Chased by Officer Through Streets.

James Bennett and a police officer battled with individual and inconsistent stories in police court this morning, the one attempting to prove his innocence on a liquor charge and the other attempting to convince the court that Bennett had a bottle of liquor in his possession last night. Magistrate Gray awarded the police for telling and the police to Bennett for telling the most doubtful story he has ever heard.

When P. C. Aitken saw Bennett's hip pocket bulging suspiciously last night he walked towards him. Bennett broke into a run and the policeman followed. As Bennett ran faster and faster he drew from his pocket a small flask, and emptying the contents on the sidewalk, threw it away into a nearby field.

The officer finally caught up, however, and searching Bennett found an empty whiskey glass in his pocket. "I never knew the officer was chasing me," said Bennett in court this morning. "I was chasing two other men."

He explained that, having several chickens stolen yesterday, and seeing two suspicious characters in front of his home last night, he followed them to being about their capture. "No, I told the officer I knew nothing about the liquor. I haven't taken a drink in seven years," Bennett said, "it happened to have that glass on me because I use it to take some medicine."

It is officially announced. The Moroccans surrendered their arms, including cannon and machine guns.

Forest collegiate institute will likely have an addition of four rooms in the near future if the plans in the office of a local architect are adopted. The question of the new addition has been discussed before, but the matter was put in the background at the time of the waterworks issue, that has been fathers there for the last year.

It is now intimated that the matter of the addition will be again brought up for discussion, and there is every possibility that the project will be adopted by the citizens.

The addition calls for a science room, chemistry room with laboratory and two class rooms.

MISS CAMPBELL APPEALS DAMAGE SUIT JUDGMENT

Margaret Campbell, London, public school teacher, will appeal against the judgment of Judge Talbot Macbeth, dismissing her action in county court against James G. Dow for $2,000 damages. It was learned from Howard Cluff, counsel for Miss Campbell, that Miss Campbell claimed in her suit that Dow was negligent when a car driven by him knocked her down and injured her when she tried to board a street car at the corner of Dundas and Colborne streets.

When the case came before Judge Macbeth in the sittings of Dec. 2, this year, he dismissed the case, claiming that no negligence on Dow's part had been proven. If the case is appealed, it will go to appellate court at Toronto.

CHAMBER ATTACKS STOCKING SCHEM

Coupon System Used by Peddlars Termed Menace to Local Business.

Citizens are warned by the chamber of commerce against the use of peddlars who go the rounds of buildings and homes asking girls if they wish to purchase a pair of silk stockings for 75 cents. When they secure a customer, they take the money and present her with a coupon. This coupon must be sent, together with $2.25, to New York, whence three coupons are sent on to the prospective purchaser.

She must in turn sell these three coupons, and they must be sent in to New York before the original purchaser receives her stockings. These are not actual prices, but the chamber of commerce gives them as an example. Retail merchants should protect against such a sale of stockings and take steps to locally protect themselves against such business methods, in the opinion of officials of the chamber.

Citizens are urged to their desire for the industrial development of the city should assist in the effort by purchasing the products of London factories in so far as possible.

"The coupon-campaign conducted by a United States company is quite subtle," said Major Wood, secretary of the local chamber, this morning. "Silk stockings are quoted to prospects at a cut-rate price, but only on the understanding that the client sell three coupons at the same price to friends. Let us suppose that the price quoted is 75 cents a pair. The customer sends this amount to the company and in return receives a book of coupons."

"When three of these have been sold the customer forwards $2.25 to the company and her stockings are mailed. The company has received $2 for a pair of silk stockings of a grade that may be purchased in any store for much less money."

"This method of merchandising is unfair competition to which London merchants paying $2.25 for their stockings are not subjected. For the protection of local storekeepers there is a transient traders' bylaw, which makes it necessary for day-by-nighters to pay a stiff license fee for the privilege of doing business. The imposition of a substantial tax upon outside companies tapping local markets would seem to be equally necessary."

"A transaction that saves one a few cents and costs one his job can hardly be called a bargain. If London houseswives could be brought to the realization that every dollar they send out of London for merchandise is promoting unemployment at home and making it that much more difficult for local merchants to offer bargains, the game of buying blindly would soon lose its zest."

"Something for almost nothing is the real profit."

MOVE IS SEEN TO UNSEAT MAYOR-EECT

Members yesterday, decision was made to pay Mr. Moore $1,000 for his firm's work on the nurses' home plans to date, after Mr. Moore, in a letter to the trust, declared himself unwilling to proceed with the work once he assumed the chief magistracy. Any further work carried out on the plans, arrangement of the details of specification, by John M. Moore & Co., will be done gratuitously.

The advice of City Solicitor T. G. Meredith and other lawyers was sought on the question of whether or not the mayor could sign a check payable to himself for work done prior to his election. They could give no answer, but they did give assurance that it would be legally correct for Mayor Moore to sign his own check.

In a resolution drawn up by members of the hospital board yesterday, no mention was made of when Mr. Moore should be paid or whether he or Mayor Wenige should sign the check.

Mayor Not Present.
A special meeting was called to decide the legal rights of Mr. Moore continuing with the hospital plans once he assumed the office of mayor. A decision was made unnecessary, however, when Mr. Moore announced his refusal to continue with the plans after Friday, and they were turned over to the hospital in an almost finished condition.

The question of who will sign the check might have been decided at the meeting had Mayor Wenige been there in his position of an ex-officio member, but a meeting of the police commission made his presence impossible.

Contract for the drawing of plans for the proposed nurses' home, costing $225,000, was given John M. Moore & Co. before Mr. Moore himself had announced his intention of entering the mayoralty campaign. Through a legal technicality, it was thought impossible for him to carry on after his election, and the special meeting of the hospital board was called yesterday to discuss the question. Mr. Moore himself, however, by declaring himself reluctant to continue with the drawings once he assumed the mayoralty.

MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE TO ADDRESS ROTARIANS

Hon. John S. Martin, Port Dover, provincial minister of agriculture, will be the speaker at the regular Rotary club luncheon on Monday noon at the Tecumseh house.

Although Mr. Martin's subject is not known, the weekly bulletin has this comment to make about the speaker: "Mr. Martin won international fame as a poultry raiser of White Wyandottes before his entry into politics. He is a fluent and able speaker."

Mr. Martin's last visit to London was to open the Western Fair, when he promised support to the directors of the fair in the erection of a large live stock arena.

President Bert Spital is striving hard to get a meeting with 100 per cent attendance of the members, and he hopes to get there with Mr. Martin as the attraction.

COMMUNISTS TO MEET.
It was announced last night by officials of the local Communist party that on Sunday evening at 8 o'clock an open meeting will be held in St. George's hall to explain the aims of the local Communist Sunday school and also to reply to condemnations of this system which have come to the fore during recent months.

High Boots Hide Multitude Sins

Associated Press Despatch. London, Dec. 18.—Artificial silk on the stock market is just now in shadow. There are hints of a production in this industry road. The present craze for the usian boot among ladies, who imagine that this footwear raises water to the height of fashion, is only alleged to be an obstacle to the artificial silk production, the Cossack boot can cover a multitude of sins in a pair of "all-silk" stockings.

FRENCH ARE PLEASED WITH SALVATION PLAN

Many Manufacturers Coming Forward With Offer of Assistance Under Scheme.

Associated Press Despatch. Paris, Dec. 19.—The plan to save the finances of France as put forward by the northern business leaders, representing one-fifth of French industry, although at first in embryonic stage, has made a profound impression among all classes.

Already the associations representing the other four-fifths of industry in the country are coming forward, eager and insistent on being included in the plan, so that it will embrace industry in its entirety.

"The plan is a serious one and calls for close and most careful consideration," declared M. Laval, Premier Briand's right-hand man. He warned the public against being misled by attempts to belittle it, which, he declared, might be made by various financial or political groups. Premier Briand will lay the proposal, albeit in incomplete form, before the cabinet this afternoon. Meanwhile details of the plan are being worked out, and it is expected that these will have taken on definite shape by Sunday night or Monday.

ORPHANS GUESTS OF ODDFELLOWS

Nearly 200 From City Institutions Are Entertained at Ritz Gardens.

Nearly 200 orphans from the three institutions in London were entertained last night by the local Oddfellows at the Ritz Pleasure Garden, along with 250 of their own children, at their annual Christmas tree. Santa Claus was there in all his glory, and the orphans enjoyed a real jolly evening. Santa distributed numerous gifts to the children, as well as candies and oranges. He was escorted to the hall by Canton London, No. 1, in full uniform, and his appearance at the hall was greeted with loud applause and excitement by the youngsters.

The program included orchestra selections by the Novelty Four orchestra, an address of welcome to the children by Santa Claus, a sketch, "What has become of Santa Claus," by five small boys, which was well given; recitations by Ruyi Hancock, Harold Griffin, Jenny Linkovitch, Mrtio Chambers, Bert Dun, Ada Hancock, John Bolton, Harry Clark and Evelyn Cowherd. Drills were given by girls, as well as a chorus by girls of the Ronald-Bay Gray home.

Solos were rendered by Robert Simmie, Mr. Scott and Mrs. Geddes. Scotch dances by Susie Butman, dialogues and community singing completed the program.

The children were transported from the various homes to the Ritz in buses, by the Metropolitan Bus Company and the Ingersoll-London bus free of charge.

CHRISTMAS "LONG" BEGINS
Today at 1 o'clock the last lecture of the year was closed at the University of Western Ontario.

Both yesterday and today students of the "U" have been leaving for the Christmas holidays. Some of the more fortunate completed the work of 1925 yesterday, and since then more and more final classes have been held up until noon today.

Classes for the new year begin on Jan. 5. Work will then begin in earnest for most students as the term examinations begin on the 19th.

Man Is Killed, Wife Also Dies

Canadian Press Despatch. Ottawa, Dec. 19.—Patrick Skelly, aged 72, lifelong farmer at Plantagenet, Ont., 37 miles from here, was instantly killed when kicked by a horse yesterday. His wife, aged 54, collapsed when she heard the news and died without recovering consciousness. Such were the meagre details received here last night by their son, Percy Skelly.

NORTH HURON APPEAL LIKELY TO GO FURTHER

Spotton Declares After Yesterday's Failure More Rounds To Be Fought.

Toronto, Dec. 18.—The end of the North Huron election case is not yet, according to George Spotton, the Conservative candidate, whose appeal against the decision of Mr. Justice Wright directing that ballots with counterfoils attached be included in the recount conducted by Judge Lewis of Huron county was dismissed by the second divisional appellate court here today.

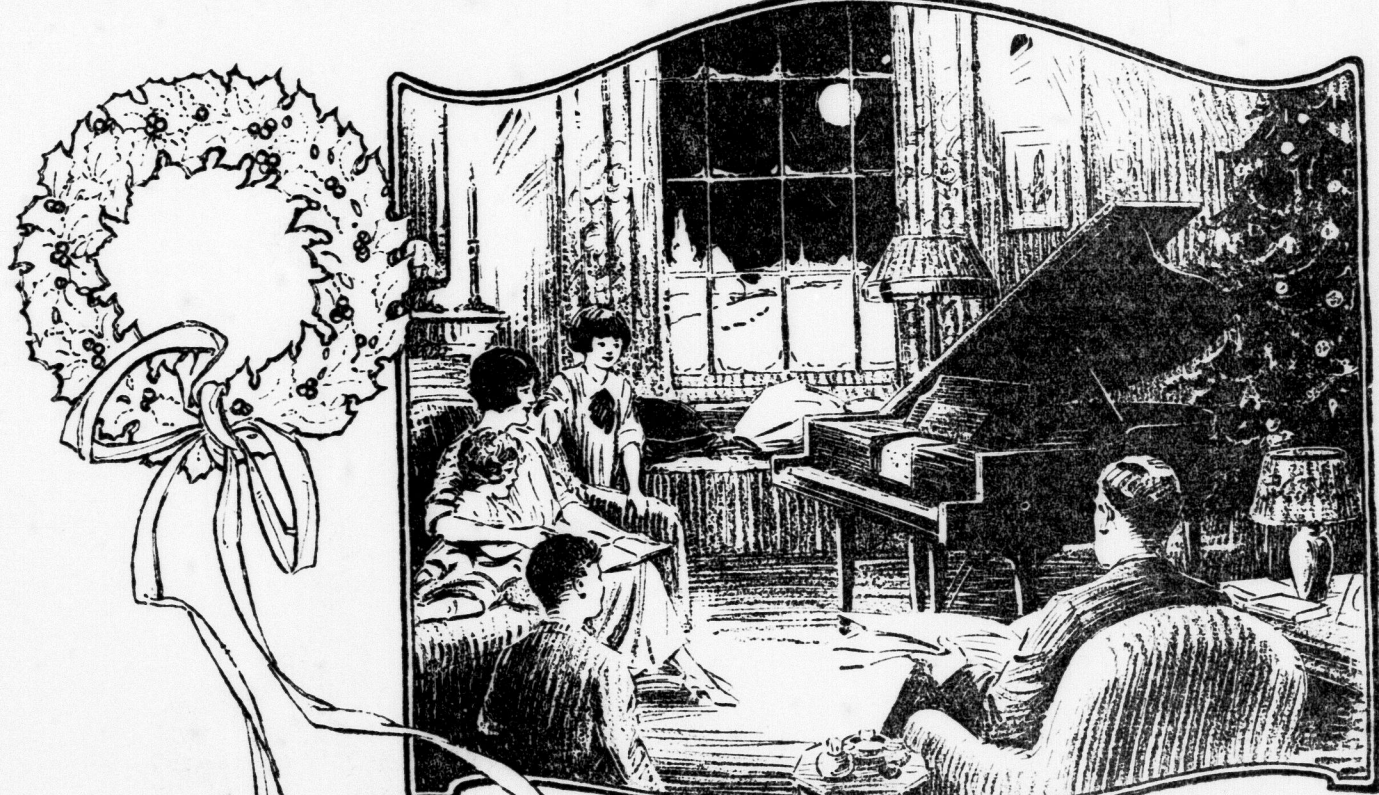

"The battle is not yet over," said Mr. Spotton tonight. "There are still a few rounds." The Conservative candidate's legal advisers also intimated that the fight for possession of the seat would be carried further, but neither he nor any of his counsel would state what steps it was proposed to take. They did suggest, however, that an appeal could be taken under the dominion controverted election act, which deals with corrupt practices.

It was pointed out that Mr. Spotton in the position of having been declared elected over J. W. King, Progressive, in North Huron, and that his election has not yet been upset and that while the Progressive candidate had been placed in a favorable position by Justice Wright's order, his right to the seat had still to be definitely settled.

Attention in the case now centers in the attitude of Judge Lewis on Mr. Justice Wright's decision.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Dec. 18.—Following two sessions in the supreme court yesterday in the case of James H. Cooke, of Toronto, against Hilda Betty Cooke, for custody of their five-year-old daughter Shirley, attorneys for the defendant were allowed a continuance of time until Jan. 21 in which to complete the findings of fact in the case.

RALEIGH BOOKS PASSED AFTER 5-YEAR AUDIT

Provincial Probe of Township Accounts Was Asked by 30 Ratepayers.

Special to The Advertiser.

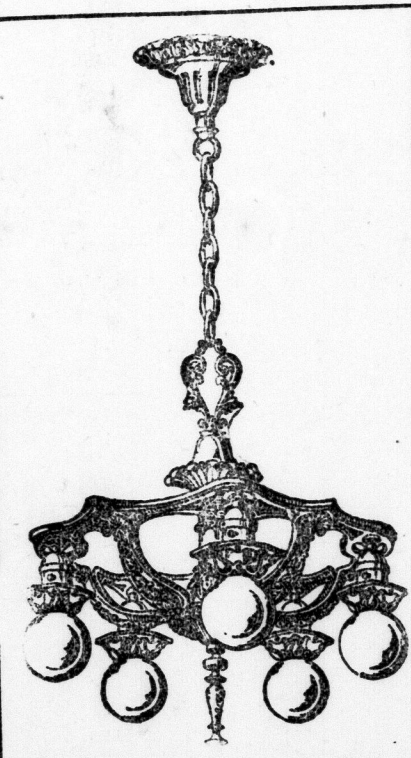

Chatham, Dec. 18.—All books and accounts of officials of Raleigh township are shown to have been well kept, according to a report received by the council from the provincial auditors. The audit of the books covered a period of five years, and was carried out upon a request of 30 Raleigh ratepayers, who forwarded a petition to the provincial government.

The report shows that at the end of December, 1924, the township had a balance of $51,000. By reason of this the township was able to carry on usual operations until October of this year without borrowing from the bank, effecting a great saving in interest items.

MAY REMOVE PEWS

United Church May Dismantle Building Presbyterians To Use.

Toronto, Dec. 18.—In connection with the action of continuing Presbyterian minority in Paisley for accommodation, the Ontario church property commission has recommended that they be allowed the use of the Methodist church building all of each Sunday, subject to the removal of the pews if the United church thinks such removal necessary, and also for one whole day each week until Dec. 31, 1928, on payment of $5 a week, heating, lighting and caretaking to be at the expense of the United church congregation.

The United church is worshipping in Knox Presbyterian church, but wish to retain the Methodist church for social work and mid-week meetings. Although agreeing with the majority report, R. S. Cassels, representing the Presbyterian church, thinks it unreasonable and improper to dismantle a church much needed by a minority and

HEALTH NURSE NAMED

Toronto Nurse Appointed By Board of Education in Woodstock After Hot Session.

Woodstock, Dec. 17.—Strong opposition to the continuance of the household science department of the collegiate institute was expressed at the meeting of the board of education tonight, when Trustee John Scott moved the abolition of the course, branding the instruction as "an unnecessary expense and having no educational value." Mr. Scott failed to secure a second, and the course will proceed under the supervision of Miss E. Doherty of Toronto, successor to Miss L. K. White, who is retiring.

Miss Alma Broadfoot of Toronto was tonight appointed by the board of education as school nurse for this city at a salary of $1,150 a year, following a keen debate on the appointment, in which Trustee Scott and others favored postponement of the appointment pending further consideration of local applications. The appointment was made on a vote of four to three.

LONDON TOWNSHIP WINS ONE MORE DEPUTY-REEVE

The population of London Township has increased to such an extent that the township will be entitled to elect a third deputy reeve to the Middlesex county council this year. This means that London township will have four representatives on the county council board for the first time in history.

Miss Mary Grant, clerk of the township, announced last night that there were now 4,288 municipal voters in the township. Of this number, 1,199 were wives of owners and tenants, whose votes were not counted for county council representation. This left 3,089 voters, and the township was entitled to a deputy reeve for every 1,000 population.

BRICK-FOR-BRICK TARIFF POLICY DENIED BY MEIGHEN

Canadian Press Despatch.
Portage La Prairie, Man., Dec. 18.—Digressing for a few minutes from his avowed intention of not discussing politics while on his present visit to his constituents of Portage La Prairie, Right Hon. Arthur Meighen turned aside to answer a criticism of previous utterances on the tariff. He declared that he had never advocated tariff brick for brick with that of the United States except in relation to farm produce.

Returning to the city of Portage La Prairie for the first time since he was elected as its representative in the house of commons, the Conservative leader was accorded a reception that was continuous throughout the afternoon and evening. Met at the station by a crowd of several hundred, he was escorted to a theatre, which was packed to the doors with people of all shades of political opinion from all sections of the constituency.

The Greatest Thing In the World.

The pastor of a Detroit church, a man between 60 and 70, is in his bed from shock received when he plunged into the ice-cold waters of the Detroit river in an attempt to rescue his son.

The son, a man of 38, had been in a sanatorium for some time, but was allowed home. Shortly after he was missed and his father found him on a dock at the edge of the river, preparing to jump in. As his strength would permit he matched it with that of the younger man in an effort to hold him back.

The son threw him off and plunged in, seeking beneath the waters the asylum for which his demerol mind called. The father, with no hesitation, went after him, and did what he could to bring him back, but it was only through the efforts of others that he himself was saved from the fate of his son who was swept away.

Of course there will be the usual criticism of an institution allowing freedom to one who was so strongly obsessed with suicidal tendencies. That is about the first thing that comes to the mind in thinking of such a case, and criticism of that sort is no doubt deserved and well directed.

But when that is through there is something that still rises like a rugged mountain—the love and devotion of a father and his willingness to go step by step in any direction to save the life of his son. Mental incapacity of the son had not dimmed the love of the father, neither had his violence made the paternal sense of protection less keen.

Love is the greatest thing in the world, and a love that is willing to lay down life in order that the object on which it is centered may be protected can be likened only unto the divine.

It was love that caused the father in the Bible story to welcome back the prodigal son. When he left the old home the father loved him; when the son was away wasting his substance and blasting his character the father loved him more than ever. It was that same love, longing and yearning for the sight of the boy to come back along the old road where he had departed months before, that caused the father to be on the lookout for him, because on his return he saw him when he was yet a great way off. He didn't need anyone to tell him who that ragged figure was; he didn't wait for the boy to come home; no, he ran to meet him. The Detroit pastor has written another chapter in the book of love.

The story of the prodigal son was told to show the love of the Heavenly Father for His lost and erring children; that eastern father was merely a type to teach a great lesson of Divine longing for the home-coming of lost souls. Love is greater than justice, it outruns discipline and circumstances; love begins when argument and logic have run their course, it is greater than hate and more wonderful than prejudice. Love is the one thing that makes it possible for us to understand God.

Sentence Was Justified.

Magistrate Graydon probably echoed public opinion when he voiced regret that he had no power to order the use of the lash on a wife deserter whom he sentenced to a term which is hoped will materialize in two years' very hard labor in the penitentiary.

This man had a wife and ten children in this country. For two years he has made no provision for them, although eight of them are under sixteen years of age. As though to aggravate the situation, if such could be done, he left for Detroit, where he married again. The fact that he was shipped out of United States and apprehended as soon as he landed on this side is a healthy sign showing that the international boundary is not necessarily a line of safety for those who have committed an offence.

Canada has had a surfeit of wife desertion cases; Toronto has as many deserted wives as it has widows, and London has its full quota. We are not particularly interested in all the details that surround these cases. The outstanding fact is that men have voluntarily married, taken to themselves family obligations and become responsible for the maintenance and upbringing of children. These are sacred obligations upon which our whole system of society depends, and they cannot be dismissed by such light action as simply getting on a train and leaving the responsibility for charity or the state to discharge.

In this case the wife and family will not have their sufferings enlarged by the husband being in jail, for he was contributing nothing to their support. The magistrate was right when he refused to temper justice with mercy in dealing with this case.

More Than a Question of Fares.

The question of fares is not the only one that must engage the attention of the council in considering an agreement with the street railway. There are nearly four miles of paving that has been held up because no working basis could be arrived at for doing the street railway's section of the construction.

The method for doing this has all been provided for in the bylaw 916 which gave the company the right to operate in the first place. It is set forth there that when the city decides to pave or repave a street, the street railway shall attend to its portion at the same time, using the same class of material as that used in the city's share of the work.

The street railway's claim is that it has not been able to do this work because there has been no money available. So important a thoroughfare as Richmond street remained little better than a corduroy road until the city undertook to provide the finances and complete one of the best sections of paving and roadbed in the city. This action cannot be repeated in other sections because the legislature stopped it. It was a good move at the time, but if the same plan were used many times the city might find itself guaranteeing an amount that the company could not meet.

Looking over the city there are these sections where paving has not been done because the street railway cannot finance its share:

Oxford street, from the bridge to Wharncliffe. Wharncliffe, from the highway to Dundas. Dundas, from the bridge to Wharncliffe. Oxford, from Richmond to Adelaide. Central avenue, from Wellington to Briscoe. Edward street, from Elmwood to Briscoe. High street, from Front to Tecumseh. South street, from Waterloo to Colborne.

Some of these roads are in sections forming an entrance to the city and it is a matter of serious concern that they should be left in their present condition. In nearly every case bylaws have been passed sanctioning the work, yet that is as far as progress has gone.

No agreement between the city and company will be sufficient that fails to make provision for removing the deadlock that has existed over street paving.

In Towns and In the Country.

East Lambton U. F. O. has been quick to give active sanction to the resolution carried at the Toronto convention to press for political action. At their Alvinston meeting they renominated Leslie W. Oke, the present member, for the legislature, and B. W. Fansher, ex-M.P., for the federal house.

The addresses given at Alvinston very properly had an important bearing on the "broadening-out" policy, a move fostered in the first place by Hon. E. C. Drury in order to secure numerical strength to make effective the political program of the U. F. O. It has ever since been a keenly debated point in the U. F. O. gatherings. Mrs. Darville, who presented the amending resolution that resulted in the Toronto convention favoring political action on the basis of a straight U. F. O. following, presented the case again at Alvinston. Her explanation of the situation is interesting:

"There is nothing in the constitution or platform that prevents sympathizers with our movement in the villages and towns voting with us, but it does prevent us going to the towns and villages and picking up professional men to our interests must be to theirs. We have no quarrel with our friends in the towns. What is to our interests must be to theirs. We have no animosity toward them, but some of them have toward us. They don't all come with us, as the returns for the last federal election show."

There is undoubtedly a very close community of interest between people in rural sections and those in the city, and it is more real than is often openly admitted. But it is not exactly true to fact to interpret a desire of towns or villages to vote either Liberal or Conservative instead of U. F. O. as expressing animosity toward people in the country.

No one can call into question the sincerity that prompted the coming into existence of the U. F. O. or that has sought to maintain it as a political entity. There are many things that believe to be right in legislation that find approval with a large number of residents in cities, as well as in villages and towns. Many of the tenets of the U. F. O. are Liberal doctrines, and we use the word "Liberal" in the larger sense, and not simply as applied to a political party. The real problem, then, becomes one of giving the most effective voice to these opinions that are held in common by members of the U. F. O. and residents of the larger and smaller centers of population. There are a large number of people in urban and rural sections who have the same ideas, and it was on this basis that Mr. Drury planned to work. The sticking point was that the U. F. O. refused to be called Liberals, and Liberals refused to be called U. F. O., and the result has been to bring no small measure of comfort to the reactionary forces in the province.

Sweet Caroline

By ARK.

When Caroline was young she lived upon a farm ten miles from here, where there was room to move about and where the atmosphere was clear.

"Twice in a kitchen on the farm she watched the happy weeks go by, 'twas there she learned to bake a cake and shape the toothsome apple pie. 'Twice there that came a lad to court, 'twas there they spooned and cooed and sat, 'twas in that house they wed one day, then moved into a city flat.

Now Caroline is not a nymph, in fact she's rather large in size, and modelled somewhat on the style they fashion those deep apple pies. The place she lives is up-to-date, it's modern like, it is, you bet, instead of spacious kitchen room it boasts a dinky kitchenette. That kitchenette is six by three, it has a stove that's two by four, when Caroline gets into there why there's no room for any more.

And when she starts to fly around like what she used to do at home, she bumps her shins upon the stove and on the shelf she dints her dome.

She cannot wield the rolling pin that made her elbows dimpled pink, for when she does she cracks 'em hard and skins them on the kitchen sink.

Yet Caroline's a dandy though, a sweeter girl you never met, but Caroline was never meant to caper in a kitchenette.

Editorial Opinion

SEVENTY MILLION FOR ACCIDENTS.

From the New York Sun.

IN no state in the union has "safety first" been more eloquently or more persistently preached than in New York. No state has more elaborate laws to safeguard workers; yet in spite of all precautions last year there were 574,000 industrial accidents of sufficient severity to require reporting to the state department of labor, and they cost industry $70,000,000. They impose a heavy burden on humanity, a tax paid in suffering, in the disruption of families, in death; and they impose a not negligible increase in the cost of living.

Pension Case.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—I read in your paper some time ago an article concerning the widows' pension, and if I remember right, read like this: "The widow remarries, her pension will be cut off, but the children's pension continues." Will you kindly answer in your paper? I would like to know if the children's pension continues. Yours, M. L. S.

Saving His Dollars.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—This week a young man came to me with an assortment of circulars from a distant correspondence school, offering to train him for some more remunerative position. The fees were $80, and the young man was just on the verge of sending his money when I dissuaded him with this line of argument.

"Why should you send your good money to the other side when right here in the public library you can get fully three-fourths of the reading matter which the school can offer you?"

"Oh, but the school will get me a position and I can finish their course and secure a diploma."

"How? The school has no control over the labor market. Even if they were to direct you to a position, it would be a matter of chance whether you would get it."

"I understand it the company went to the foreman and stated their case very frankly. They showed where they were losing money at present, and where, for a number of years, they had been expected a business on that basis to show any improvement? How would it be possible to get new capital to put on new cars or anything else?"

Every time any person says anything that looks rather favorable to the Hamilton street railway, the only habits developed since the war are lemonade and bribery.

It's the same after college days. Most of us are doomed to sit in the cheering section.

Prosperous times are those in which white-collar men can enjoy watchfulness. Just turn your back on soft snaps and there you are.

There's one nice thing about the school of experience. You can think forty times and still make the grade.

Another very good intelligence test is the effort to entertain yourself.

Blessed are the poor; they needn't go in debt trying to keep up with the neighbors.

Those who have least faith in government demand the most from it.

Old-timers were queer. They wasted liquor in mince-meat and fruit cake.

The easy way to reconcile yourself to censors is to have two or three small daughters.

People are much alike, and do a great deal of gadding at times he looks distinguished.

It is a queer world, and the few men who have the true look of greatness don't amount to much. The belief that pipe smokers are wiser than others merely signifies that the believer smokes a pipe.

It may be that responsibility for the crime wave rests with those who urged people to be natural. The reason women's shoes are high is because those that don't sell now have value only as antiques next month.

Europe Points the Way

By HENRY SOMERVILLE

tiser's resident correspondent in London, presents an interesting study of the economic forces that are drawing European nations together. He also gives an intimate view of how Europe regards the United States policy of isolation from the League of Nations.

LONDON—A newspaperman has his finger always on the pulse of public interest. In 1919 nothing European was too small to write about for readers across the Atlantic. They would read anything and everything about international affairs. Editors sent correspondents to France and Germany, Poland and Russia, Greece and Czechoslovakia. There was a large public in the United States and Canada interested in what was happening in Europe. Their interest persisted till about the time of the abortive Genoa conference and then it died away.

What was the reason for transatlantic interest in Europe? It was partly that the war had shown that the United States could keep itself out of war when Europe was at war. It was partly that the war had shown that the United States could keep itself out of war when Europe was at war.

BRITISH LIBERALS TRYING TO TAME THE WELSHMAN

Lloyd George Off To Italy For Sunshine, But Believed He Seeks To Escape From Political Fog—British Rush To the Riviera.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Dec. 18.—Mr. Lloyd George left London for Rome today with the declaration: "I'm going to Italy in search of sunshine; I'm tired of fog and cloudy weather."

Many of the London newspapers regard his allusion to cloudy weather and fog as somewhat figurative. The political weather has been decidedly unpleasant in Liberal party circles recently, and only yesterday the Earl of Oxford and Asquith (H. H. Asquith), Viscount Grey of Fallodon and other Liberal leaders held a secret conclave to discuss means of taming the Welshman.

Lloyd George disclaimed any intention of seeing Premier Mussolini in Rome. He said he had not arranged for an interview.

The arrival of Sir Austen and Lady Chamberlain at Rapallo, the scene of the framing of many recent treaties, has caused some amusement in political circles. The Chamberlains plan to spend the Christmas holidays at Rapallo.

"He's got the treaty habit, and can't get out of the treaty atmosphere," one politician remarked laughingly. "After the Easter surprise which the Russians and Germans handed Lloyd George and the other allied leaders at Rapallo three years ago (the Russo-German treaty), when the Genoa negotiations were on, one would think that English politicians would keep away from that part of the Italian Riviera. You may be sure Lloyd George wouldn't go to Rapallo."

Sir William Johnson-Hicks, the home secretary; Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, secretary of state for war, and the Earl of Birkhead, secretary for India, are leaving soon for the French Riviera for the Christmas season.

Premier Baldwin will spend Christmas at his farm at Bewdley, Worcestershire, and most of the other members of the cabinet are remaining in England.

Former Premier Ramsay MacDonald and his daughter Ishbel will start on Monday for Ceylon for Miss MacDonald's health.

POLICE SUSPECT A SUPER-CROOK GANG

Believe Manitoba Robbery
Work of Master Criminals—
No Trace of Bandits.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, Dec. 18.—Existence of a gang of "super-crooks" in Winnipeg and possibly operating in the prairie west was being discussed in police circles today while search continued for the three bandits who held up the Manitoba liquor commission cashier Thursday morning and escaped with $15,000.

Police now state definitely there were three men in the gang.

Investigators believe the men may be the same trio which seized the $87,000 payroll of the Winnipeg Electric Railway Company under circumstances almost identical early in August.

In the railway company robbery, as in Thursday's raid, gunmen operated a stolen car, swooped down on their prey in broad daylight and abandoned the vehicle within a mile of the scene of the crime.

One of the bullets fired by Thomas Nuttall, cashier of the liquor commission, crashed through the windshield of the fleeing automobile within a few inches of the driver's head, it was revealed with the finding of the stolen car. There were no bloodstains, however, and nothing to indicate any of the four shots fired by Nuttall had any effect. City police, provincial police and members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police continued the search for the bandits today, but early this afternoon no trace had been found of the men.

The Dream Detective

By SAX ROHMER

He led the way through that neat and business-like office which opened out of the cluttered shop and untidy shop. Although within the shop and in front of it only gaslight was used, in the office he switched on an electric lamp. But we did not delay long in

Moris Klaw's sanctum, lined with its hundreds of books, its obscure works of criminology, its records of strange things: we proceeded through another door and up a thickly carpeted stair. I had never before penetrated thus far into the habitable portion of Moris Klaw's establishment; the book-lined of to innumerable pairs of boots. Also, there was in it a French stove; and upon a Persian coffee table stood a tray containing a cooked sausage solidified in its own fat. There was clear evidence, moreover, in the form of a rolled-up hammock, that the place served as a bedroom.

Altogether there were four mummies in the apartment. One of these, partly unwrapped, lay amongst the litter on the floor—headless!

"Mon Dieu!" cried Isis, clasping her hands; "it is uncanny, this!" She was evidently excited for her French accent suddenly asserted itself to a marked degree. Moris Klaw from somewhere amongst the rubbish at his feet, picked up the severed head of the mummy and stared at it intently.

In the stillness I could hear the river noises very distinctly, and a sort of subterranean lapping and creaking which suggested that at high tide the cellars of the establishment became flooded. Moris Klaw dropped the head from his hands. It fell with a dull thud to the floor.

From the lining of his hat he took out the inevitable scent spray and noisily sniffed it. "I need the cool brain, Mr. Searles," he said. "I, the old cunning, the fox, the wily, am threatened with defeat. This slaughter of mummies it surpasses my experience. I am nonplussed; I am a stupid old fool. Let me think!"

Isis was looking about her in a startled way. "It is horribly uncanny, Miss Klaw," I said. "But the drugging of the man downstairs points to very human agency. Perhaps if we could revive him—"

"He will not revive," interrupted Moris Klaw, "for twelve hours at least. In his hour was enough opium to render unconscious the rhinoceros!"

"Is there anything missing?" I asked. "Nothing," rumbled Klaw. "He came for the mummy. Isis will you prepare for us those cooling drinks that help the fevered mind, and from downstairs bring me the seventh volume of the 'Books of the Lamps.'"

Isis Klaw immediately walked forward to the door. "And Isis, my child," added her father, "remove the tail case to the top end of the shop. Presently that William's snore will awake the Borneo squirrel!"

As the girl departed, Klaw opened an inner door and ushered me into a dainty white room, an amazing apartment indeed, a true Parisian boudoir. The air was heavy with the scent of roses, for boxes of white and pink roses were everywhere. Klaw lighted a silver table lamp with a unique silver gauze shade apparently lined with pale rose-colored silk. Evidently this apartment belonged to Isis, and was as appropriate for her, exquisite Parisian that she seemed to be, as the weird, dark, through which we had come was an appropriate abode for her father.

When presently Isis returned I saw her for the first time in her proper setting, a dainty green figure in a white frame. Moris Klaw opened the bulky leather-bound volume, which she had handed to him, and I sat sipping my wine and watching him, he busily turned over the pages (apparently French MSS.) in quest of the reference he sought.

"Ah!" he cried in sudden triumph; "vaguely I had it in my memory, but here it is, the clue. I will translate for you, Mr. Searles, what is written here: 'The "Books of the Lamps," which was revealed to the priest, Pankhaure, and by him revealed only to the queen—'" was the ancient Egyptian queen, Hatshepsut, Mr. Searles—was kept locked in the secret place beneath the altar, and each high priest of their private collections?"

temple—all of whom were of the family of Pankhaure—held the key and alone might consult the magic writing. In the 14th dynasty, Seteb was high priest, and was the last of the family of Pankhaure. At his death the newly appointed priest, receiving the key of the secret place, complained to Pharaoh that the "Book of the Lamps" was missing."

He closed the volume and placed it on a little table beside him. "Isis," he rumbled, looking across at his daughter, "does the mystery become clear to you? Am I not an old fool? Mr. Searles, there is only one other copy of this work—known to European collectors. Do I know where that copy is? Yes? No? I think so. There was a mummy in his hoarse voice. Personally I was quite unable to see in what way the history of the "Book of the Lamps" bore upon the case of the headless mummies; but Moris Klaw evidently considered that it afforded a clue. He stood up.

"Isis," he said, "bring me my catalogue of the mummies of the Bubastite Priests."

That imperious beauty departed in meek obedience. "Mr. Searles," said Moris Klaw, "this will be for Inspector Grimsby another triumph; but without these records of a poor old fool, who shall say if the one that beholds mummies had ever been detected? I neglected to secure the odic negative because I thought I had to deal with a madman; but I was more stupid than an owl. This decapitating of mummies is no madman's work, but is done with a purpose, my friend—with a wonderful purpose."

CHAPTER IV.
The Menzies Museum (scene of my first meeting with the public when not yet opened to the public when Coram (the curator), Moris Klaw, Grimsby, and I stood in the Egyptian room before a case containing mummies. The room adjoining—the Greek room—had been the scene of the dreadful tragedies which first had acquainted me with the wonderful methods of the eccentric investigator.

"Whoever broke into Sotheby's last night, Mr. Klaw," said Grimsby, "knew the ins and outs of the place, knew it was known to the people there. After having cut off the head of the mummy he probably walked out openly. Then, again, it must have been somebody who knew the habits of Mr. Pettigrew's household that got at his mummy. Of course, his eyes twinkled with a satisfaction which he could not conceal."

"I'm very sorry to hear that our man has proved too clever for you! Think Klaw's house!"

"Think of it, my friend," rumbled the other; "if it makes you laugh go on to be, as the weird, dark, through which we had come was an appropriate abode for her father."

When presently Isis returned I saw her for the first time in her proper setting, a dainty green figure in a white frame. Moris Klaw opened the bulky leather-bound volume, which she had handed to him, and I sat sipping my wine and watching him, he busily turned over the pages (apparently French MSS.) in quest of the reference he sought.

"Ah!" he cried in sudden triumph; "vaguely I had it in my memory, but here it is, the clue. I will translate for you, Mr. Searles, what is written here: 'The "Books of the Lamps," which was revealed to the priest, Pankhaure, and by him revealed only to the queen—'" was the ancient Egyptian queen, Hatshepsut, Mr. Searles—was kept locked in the secret place beneath the altar, and each high priest of their private collections?"

"I am not resentful," continued Klaw, "and I will capture for you the mummy man."

"What?" cried Grimsby. "Are you on the track?"

"I will tell you something, my laughing friend. You will secretly watch this Egyptian room like the cat at the mouse-hole, and presently—I expect it will be at night—he will come here, this hunt of mummies!"

Grimsby stared incredulously. "I don't doubt your word, Mr. Klaw," he said; "but I don't see how you can possibly know that. Why should he go for the mummies here rather than for those in one of the other museums or atar, and each high priest of their private collections?"

ST. JOSEPH'S NURSES' HOME TO COST $150,000

Construction On Building of 140 Rooms To Start
Shortly.

Wait & Blackwell, local architectural firm, have been this week instructed by the officials of St. Joseph's Hospital to prepare plans for a new nurses' home, which, when completed, will cost in the neighborhood of $150,000. The final decision of the sisters to have the new home constructed was reached a few days ago. Actual work on the building will be commenced within three months' time.

With the increasingly large number of student nurses entering the institution each year, it was felt that more spacious quarters were imperative. To conform with the remainder of the hospital, the new home will be of white brick, and will consist of 140 rooms for the nurses who are in training. It will also consist of an auditorium, reception room, with every possible convenience for the practising nurses. The floors will be of terrazzo type, and the whole interior will conform with the latest architectural designs.

FLOODING OF RINKS STARTS IN EAST LONDON

East London youngsters will not be without suitable ice accommodation this winter. The public utilities commission is building two open air rinks in Queen's park this year. The rinks are of a suitable size for hockey and the opportunity to use the rinks for both skating and shingles. One of the rinks, which measures 160x80 feet, is boarded in while the other is open and is 160x80 feet.

Flooding of the rinks started yesterday and already a nice coat of ice covers the surface. It is thought that the rinks will be ready for use by the end of next week.

KINDERGARTEN CHRISTMAS DATES BACK FORTY YEARS

Children Ply Busy Fingers Preparing Gifts and Decorations For the Big Trees Which Will Be Stripped On Tuesday Next, Last Day of School.

A pretty custom has been carried on in London every Christmas season for 40 years. It is the institution of a Christmas tree in each kindergarten of the city, a Christmas tree which is delivered to the school a week before, and which springs into beauty and sparkling color under the skillful fingers of the children themselves. Already the board of education has made its gifts of trees throughout the city, and they have arrived at the schools and are in the important process of trimming.

When the last day of school arrives (this year on Tuesday next) each London kindergarten will be resplendent with Christmas decorations, made by the children. In the center will be found the great Christmas tree, brilliant and colorful, and hung with the precious gifts which the boys and girls have made for their parents.

Community institution. The day of the Christmas tree has become of community importance. Not only do the children attend, but their parents and smaller brothers and sisters. In fact, the Christmas tree initiates the babies in the ways of kindergarten, which it will be their joy to attend later. And the kindergarten system is so arranged that every child has at least one Christmas during his time at kindergarten.

The school board has this year sent Christmas trees to the auxiliary classes as well as the kindergartens, and the

TO PUT PEOPLE AT THEIR EASE.

One of the most difficult things asked of royalty is that they must always open a conversation.

People are presented to them, not they to others. Which means that the royal person must find the first thing to say.

This is a real art. One acquires it by degrees.

Young people are often painfully shy and silent because mostly they are horribly self-conscious, always wondering what figure they are cutting, what people are thinking of them, if their clothes are all right, etc.

One attains to real ease of manner only when one has learned to put self aside in an effort to make the others comfortable or happy.

It is natural that we should be the center of our own world, we cannot help that! We are obliged to live with ourselves more closely than with anyone else. But when, for instance, we come into a room, if we concentrate our thoughts upon the others who are present, our shyness melts away miraculously.

Often and often people have been deadly shy when they came into my room. I put them at ease immediately—by getting them to talk about themselves.

Everyone likes talking about themselves, and why shouldn't they? You know the old definition of a bore: A person who insists on talking about himself when you want to talk about yourself! Self is an absorbing subject, one we are more competent upon than any other.

And really if you try you'll find no one quite uninteresting except those who pretend to be what they are not, or the lady who is too beautiful to exist. Those I admit, are exasperating types, but we must have exasperating types so as to appreciate others more!

I can make anybody talk by the way I ask questions and at the same time impart a certain amount of information about myself which sounds almost confidential, thus keeping them from feeling "out of it," "strange," "awkward."

The real secret of putting people at their ease is to be kind, not effusively and comprehensively, and you will see their shyness melt like butter in the sun!

answered Mr. Longears. "I think I shall find it quieter in the woods than here."

"I shouldn't wonder a bit!" laughed Nurse Jane Fuzz. "Wuzz!"

Over the fields and through the woods hopped Uncle Wiggily until he reached the place where, yesterday, Uncle Butter had made his acorn pipe. "The Bob Cat doesn't seem to be here today!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily, laughing as he thought of how the cat's nose had been burned on the hot pipe. "But wait a minute—there's something over there by the old stump!"

"It went on Mr. Longears, anxious and groveled."

"Perhaps I had better hop back home!"

But after waiting a few seconds and not seeing the object he had been anxiously looking for, he hopped a bit nearer. Then he saw that the object was a large sack, like a mail bag, and on it was printed:

CHRISTMAS TOYS.

"Oh, ho!" exclaimed the rabbit gentleman with a laugh and a jingle of his twink nose. "Santa Claus, or some one, has dropped a bag of toys. Perhaps they fell out of a Christmas aeroplane. Well, that's too bad."

Uncle Wiggily hopped in a circle about the bag of toys. It was no trap—it was just some Christmas presents that had been lost.

"It would be too bad to leave them here," thought the bunny. "The Wolf and Fox might come and scratch the bag apart, thinking there was something good to eat in it. Then the toys would be scattered and broken. I'll take the bag home to my bungalow, and if I hear who it was that lost it I'll give it back to them."

The rabbit hoisted the bag up on his shoulder and began hopping back to his bungalow. While he was doing this the Black Bear, a regular bad chap, saw the hopping rabbit and growled:

"Oh, ho! Now is my chance to catch Uncle Wiggily. He can't see behind him on account of that big sack. I guess it's filled with cabbage. But I'll slip up behind that rabbit and grab him!"

No sooner said than done! Uncle Wiggily did not hear the Bear behind him until, all of a sudden, the bad chap stretched forth a paw to knock the bag aside and catch the bunny. The bag aside and catch the bunny. But as the Bear hit the sack he gave a sudden howl, and no wonder. For something sharp had stuck the Bears to his bungalow. The team will then move to Toronto where they engage in their second contest on May 28, with the Toronto club. After Winnipeg on June 5, the team will spend three weeks longer in the country than did the Corinthian last year. Altogether the touristic figure in seventeen or eighteen contests.

REVIVAL IN OILS FEATURE AT N. Y.

Merger Rumors Cause Sudden Outburst of Buying—Pacific Is Leader.

New York, Dec. 18.—Revival of activity and strength in the oil shares was the outstanding development in today's irregular stock market. An early advance in other industrials was checked by stiffening of call money rates, due to heavy withdrawals of gold and other currency in anticipation of the holiday demand. Trading showed a marked reduction in volume, total sales running just above one and one-half million shares.

The sudden outburst of buying in the oil shares was based on rumors of the merger of some of the California oil companies and expectations of an early increase in mid-continent crude prices. Pacific Oil was the leader in that group, closing 2 points higher at 44 1/2, while Sinclair, Standard Oil of California, California Petroleum and Houston closed about 1/2 point higher.

The East American shares were heavily bought on prospects of heavy Mexican output. The general rail list showed the effect of heavy production common and preferred advanced 3/4 point and 1/2 point respectively, and the Northern Pacific established a new 1925 peak price at 77 1/2. Net declines of a point or more were recorded, however, by Canadian Pacific, Chicago and Northwestern, Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson, Louisville and Nashville, and a few others.

Industrials Steady. Standard showed only fractional net change. United States Steel common fluctuated within a range of 1 point, closing 1/2 point higher at 132 1/2. American Can closed 3/4 higher at 25 1/2, and Baldwin showed a net decline of 3/4, after having sold 2 points above that figure.

Business again advanced in a number of high-priced industrials. General Electric scored an extreme advance of nearly 10 points at 224 1/2, and the General Electric common and preferred advanced 2 1/2 and 3 points, respectively.

Motor Weak. Weakness again developed in the motor and rubber shares. Chrysler fell back 1/2 point to 10 1/2, and General Motors declined 1/2 point to 21 1/2. Ford Motor common and preferred advanced 1/2 point and 1 point, respectively, to 21 1/2 and 22 1/2.

Call money returned at 4 1/2 per cent, high bid advanced to 4 1/2, closing at 4 1/2. Time money was in moderate supply, with 2 per cent rate for 10 days.

French francs rallied over 20 points to 250, and then eased about 5 points from the top in the later trading.

Polish zloty rallied 160 points to 110, and other European exchanges moved within narrow limits.

J. A. Page Firm Is Now Local Agency For the Mack.

A striking indication of the growth of the business of the J. A. Page hardware and tin-smithing firm, now located at 807 Dundas street, is found in the fact that before next summer, a new building will be located in its new building, now under construction at the corner of Elizabeth and Dundas street. This new building is necessary as larger quarters were necessary to keep up with the growth of its business.

For the past sixteen years the Page firm has been part of London's commercial life, and in that time its trade has so expanded that it is now rated as one of the leading tin-smithing concerns in Western Ontario.

This shop is now the local agency for the Mack furnace, which has been specially designed for burning soft coal and other substitutes for anthracite. It is proving highly popular, as at the present it is difficult to use anything but hard coal in the types of furnaces now in use. The Mack has special parts which eliminate the gas and heavy smoke which generally result when soft coal is burned in a furnace.

When soft coal is burned in the Mack the home is heated just as well as would be the case if anthracite were being used, and there is no muss or bother such as is generally the result of burning soft coal.

The Banner furnace, which has been on the market for more than 20 years, also is handled by this company. It has attained an enviable reputation throughout Canada for reliability of performance, longevity and economy of fuel.

Because it believes that proper installation is as important as the selection of the right type of furnace, the Galt Stove and Furnace Company, which makes the Banner furnace, has always taken care in selecting firms to represent it in the various centers. It therefore stands behind the installation work as well as the furnaces supplied by the Page firm.

As well as the tin-smithing department, this concern stocks a complete line of hardware.

Martin-Senour 100 per cent pure paints, famous from coast to coast, as well as a complete line of brushes, oils, turpentine and all the other incidentals needed in painting work, are handled by this establishment.

EXPERT TAILORING IS
DONE IN EAMES SHOP
Special Machine Assures Satisfaction in All Pressing Work.

V. L. Eames, who conducts a tailoring and cleaning and pressing shop at the corner of Wharncliffe road and Pipe Line road, is considered an expert in repairing and altering both ladies' and men's clothing.

His pressing is done on a Hoffman pressing machine, which is the last word in equipment of this nature. The Hoffman method of pressing is considered by Mr. Eames the very best possible. By the use of these machines it is impossible to burn or scorch a garment while it is being pressed.

But that does not end the advantages of the Hoffman press. It is possible to take a tweed suit or a nap overcoat and raise a new nap where the original has disappeared.

In addition to conducting a cleaning, pressing and altering shop, Mr. Eames has a choice range of samples of cloth on hand for made-to-measure clothing for men. Gentlemen who like good clothes should call and see the samples at the Eames shop.

When your clothes need cleaning, pressing, repairing or altering, just remember to call in or phone, and have Mr. Eames look after them for you. He will make your used clothing look like new.

Keeping Up With Progress

Give us speedy service is today the general request of people the world over. They want things done in a hurry because such must be the case if they themselves are to keep up with the pace of modern progress.

They want their autos repaired and their shoes mended and their tires vulcanized with the minimum expenditure of time. Besides these, there are a host of other things which must be done quickly.

On this page will be found the advertisements of the shops and plants and other business establishments which are ready to render Londoners satisfactory service at fair prices.

Perusal of the message they have to tell, both in their advertisements and in the written articles dealing with their businesses, will prove of benefit in two directions:

The person seeking their service is assured of prompt and satisfactory attention.

The businessman himself, in securing more and more trade, is enabled to put more money into the expansion of his establishment and consequently into the commercial life of the city.

All Worry of Travel Banished By Tourists' Baggage Insurance

Protects Against Fires, Thefts, Explosions, Damages in Train Wrecks and Thefts by Burglars, Sneak Thieves and Hold-Ups.

Why have an otherwise pleasant trip spoiled by worrying over your personal effects?

It is an easy matter to escape this burden, says Harold Childs, of the local insurance firm of H. J. Childs & Son.

"Instead of always being fearful lest your baggage be lost, stolen or damaged, you can free yourself of this burden and can travel with a carefree mind, simply by taking out a St. Paul Tourists' baggage insurance policy," he says.

Tourists' baggage insurance protects you against loss of your personal effects and valuables, regardless of where it may occur. With such a policy you are no longer dependent upon the slow and inadequate adjustments offered by hotels and transportation companies, which, after all, are only partially liable for your losses.

Under a St. Paul policy you are fully insured and should you sustain a loss you are certain to receive a prompt and satisfactory adjustment.

The effect of a policy of this nature is but a trifle compared with its value in relieving you of worry about your personal effects and valuables when they are outside your own home.

"Fires, thefts, and explosions—in hotels, laundries or anywhere outside of your home—will cause you no loss if you have this tourists' baggage insurance."

"Damages in train wrecks are fully covered by St. Paul Tourists' baggage policies."

"The burglar, the sneak-thief and the hold-up man are among the hazards against which a St. Paul policy affords complete protection."

"If baggage is lost, stolen or damaged in transit, your losses will be fully covered under a tourists' baggage policy."

Mr. Childs will gladly furnish all information to persons interested in this form of insurance.

COMMERCIAL ELECTRIC SHOP STOCKS UNUSUAL XMAS GIFTS

Something new in the way of Christmas presents is to be found in the Commercial Electric shop at 457 Richmond street, in the form of unique vases, glove boxes, incense burners and other similar articles made of special types of glass and porcelain. They are unusual both in their form and appearance, and in the fact that they are imported directly from Japan. They are decidedly attractive because of the original and clever workmanship.

Has your boy been asking you for months past to buy him an electric flashlight? If he has there is no time like the present for obtaining it. The Commercial shop has them in all shapes and sizes.

Have you been promising yourself to get a clock by heater or grille, or to install an electric grate? The Commercial shop has these, too.

In fact, its stock includes everything, large and small, that is needed in an electrical way.

Germ-Laden Dust Danger to Health
Vacuum Cleaner in the Home Removes Serious Menace.

The Bowley Electric Shop, of 206 Dundas street, handles the better type of electric ranges, heaters, washing machines, vacuum cleaners, electrical appliances of all kinds, and the various articles needed in an electrically-equipped home.

In regard to vacuum cleaners, Mr. Bowley says: "Germ-laden dust is in every breath we breathe. The particles are often so fine that they cannot be seen even in the sunlight."

"Dust, grit and dirt in large quantities are carried into the home on our clothes and shoes, and are blown in through open windows and settle in the carpets, rugs, upholstery, draperies, etc. They are deeply imbedded in the surface when walked upon, and there form a breeding place for germs."

"That is why you need a vacuum cleaner in your home. The broom is a good servant in its day, but the modern housewife demands a vacuum cleaner. Why? Because you simply draw the vacuum cleaner over the surface to be cleaned, and the powerful air force sucks up every particle of dust above and underneath carpets and rugs."

Foot Comfort Depends Upon Proper Fitting

George Boyd Offers Advice on Elimination of Ailments.

By GEORGE BOYD
Foot Specialist.

Much has been said about high heels and pointed toes and ill fitting shoes, but very little has been said about how to obtain perfectly fitting shoes, which less than 10 per cent of the people of London enjoy.

Why is this?

Simply because your shoe fitter fits notions instead of feet. You do not expect your physician to prescribe until he has diagnosed your case. But you do expect your shoe clerk to supply you with a perfectly comfortable shoe merely according to a size or width. In most cases this is impossible.

Many persons show very poor judgment in buying shoes. And the same people will ask what is the reason for nine out of ten adults suffering from fallen arches, cold or perspiring feet, callouses, bunions, ingrown nails, weak ankles, chilblains, swollen ankles, aching feet, and the host of other foot ailments.

At present there are more than 275,000 shapes of shoes made in Canada and all stamped the same size. So you see it is impossible to buy a pair of shoes by guess and have them satisfactorily fit the 52 bones and eight arches which are in every pair of human feet.

The best way to secure absolute satisfaction is to have your feet specially fitted. It may be necessary to have a side four heel, size five arch and six across the ball of the foot. We specialize in both ladies' and men's shoes with this combination last feature. It is highly essential to have shoes that fit right, and this method is the only sure way of attaining this. Why throw away good money for shoes and then find out that you cannot wear them? It costs you no more to have your shoes properly fitted to your feet with a perfect tripod bearing—as nature intended.

Improperly fitted shoes often cause corns and bunions. However, if you wear what I advise and your corns return I will remove them free of charge.

In making shoes and arch supports to exactly meet the particular requirements of the individual, we first make a plaster of paris cast of the feet and in this way are enabled to secure accuracy in every detail.

Don't use snap judgment in selection of the place where you buy your shoes. Scientific foot-fitting is not usually practiced in shoe fitting.

Don't let your shoe salesman what size you wear. Make it his business to fit your foot.

Don't foolishly allow "eye" style to supersede common foot sense when buying a pair of shoes.

Good, honestly-made, comfortable shoes are always an economy.

In my fourteen years' experience as a foot doctor I have found misfitted shoes to be the cause of 50 per cent of foot ailments. The cure for a fallen arch is not wearing an arch support or a shoe with an arch built into it, but in having the arches of the feet adjusted the same as a doctor would set a broken arm, then by holding the foot in its natural position until nature heals. No pain or loss of time. Simply go on working, feeling and looking 20 years younger.

That is what I am here for. Service such as is described above may be secured at a visit to Mr. Boyd's stores, 156 King street, or 119 Dundas street.

"Sh! Thought I heard sumptin—maybe he's in there now—"

"What's he doing? Oh, I'm frightened."
"Aw, don't get scared, honey—he's nice, Santa is. Big, you know, and jolly everything. Hope he don't forget what I specially wanted—wonder if he got my letter?"

"I wrote him, too—it wasn't real writin' like yours, but Mama said she thought he could read it—'cause he's smarter than most. What did you ask for?"

"Well, I specially wanted a real saxophone and some roller-skates, and a new sled—and some other things. Oh yes, I did specially want a fountain pen like Dad's and a pair of bunnies and a bicycle and a boat with real sails. What did you ask for?"

"Oh, I told him I'd like a fire engine that would gallop and gallop and blow a whistle and ring bells, toot, toot, and everybody out of the way! Hooray!"

"Sh, Sh—not so loud—say, you're thinkin' of a real fire engine, you are!"

"Yes, sure, with white horses."

"For goodness sakes—he couldn't give you that."

"Why not? I like that best of all."
"Well, a real fire engine with horses—well—it's too big—d'you know how big it is?"

"No, how big is it?"

"It's as big as our room, 'n as high as those stairs, the ladder is, and horses, real horses, d'you know how big they are, now?"

"No, how big?"

"They are about twice' as high as you are. I stood close to one on the street when the mounted policeman stopped, and I couldn't reach up to his top side, where the saddle is. Say, if Santa did give you one, Mama wouldn't let you keep it, anyway."

"Well, why not?" (Sadly).

"'Cause they has to be a barn for horses, bigger'n a garage, too, and our garage's all full of our car, and tires, and pop's tools, and you couldn't get a horse in anywhere, besides not two horses, specially. There now, don't cry over it. I bet Santa'll think up sumpin' just as good—maybe he'll get you a play fire engine about your size, and gee, that will be lots better, or a scooter, that you can play fire engine, and yell dang, dang! Fire, fire!"

Voice from below:
"Children, are you up? You should have been asleep long ago. Now trot right along to bed. Santa might go on by if he found you up—he likes good little boys. Hurry, now!"

"Say, Mother—"

"Yes?"

"If you see him, tell him not to forget my saxophone, Mother, specially."

"And, Mudder—"

"Yes?"

"Tell him not to forget my fire engine—very specially, please—"

"All right. Now hop along to bed, both of you."

"Merry Christmas, Mother!"

"Same to you."

"Merry Christmas, Mudder!"

"Yes, dear."

"And Mudder—Say Merry Christmas to Santa Claus, too, please."

"All right. Good night."

"Good night."

Predict Prosperous Years For Beef Cattle Business

Not Merely Passing Fad, Says Fay of Co-operation

Great Strides Made in Fifty Years Justify Term "Agricultural Revolution"—As Social Movement Has Dangers as Well As Strength—Thinks Education Needed.

_____

"Co-operation is social striving to ward a new way of doing business," Prof. C. R. Fay of the University of Toronto, internationally known authority upon economics, said in a recent speech before the U. F. O. "A co-operative society may be defined as one for the purpose of joint trading, founded by persons whose main occupation is not trading, and conducted in such a way that all prepared to assume ultimate producers or consumers should make for better business, better farming, and better living.—Sir Horace Plunkett's 'Three F's.' It is an improvement of economic democracy. Applied to agriculture, this means that the society is farmer-owned and controlled." Prof. Fay, "that it does not mean amateur management with the likelihood of bungling. In a genuine economic democracy membership must be open to all, not only to farmers, but as directors, but for the many. The must be co-operation at the base. There is to be successful management at the top." Lastly, the true co-operative society is open to all, but upon voluntary basis. "It is built up in a competitive field at its own risk, and its own suffering in this respect from municipal enterprise which supplies to its citizens services of a monopolistic character and can fall back upon the taxpayer if fails."

Not Passing Fad.

As a social movement, co-operation has the dangers as well as the strengths of such movements. Prof. Fay points out, "Its greatest dangers are that initial enthusiasm will spill over into honorable business with self-interest farmers into general supply before commodity marketing has been put on an efficient basis, or into fields in which it does not belong—pure palpaties; or as it grows, it may split between a conservative and a radical wing. To guard against these dangers the movement must push on with education—research into problems as they appear, and a saturation of the community, including the schools, with the duties of membership are admitted to membership and a share in the profits, not in proportion to capital holding, but to the degree to which they make use of the association."

Four Main Points.

Continuing, Prof. Fay laid emphasis upon four points: Co-operation implies mutual society; it seeks to combine honorable business with self-help through mutual association. It serves Beef Cattle, by Wade Toole. (Bulle-

"Notwithstanding the rapid increase of dairying in Ontario, there are still more beef cattle than milk cows in the province, and beef raising must continue to be one of the foremost branches of agriculture in the province," says the author, professor of animal husbandry at the Ontario Agricultural College, in Guelph. "The province is blessed with the advance in population and industry, but beef raising must also go forward."

Ontario better than to beef raising than to the production of milk and milk products."

The beef business must be pushed forward, says Professor Toole. "Unless steady progress is made it must slip back," he writes. "The great danger is carelessness in breeding, which in the past has been the principal cause of dairy blood. Better beef cattle for better beef should be our slogan."

The bulletin, which runs to 48 pages, in addition to a general consideration of the subject, has ample space to breeds and breed history, breeding methods, selection, care and management of breeding stock, handling commercial cattle, value of various types of feedings problems, and many other points.

LASCELLES WON MILLIONS IN CASUAL CONVERSATION

Became Richest Soldier in France But Insisted on Remaining With Regiment

PEER REVERTED IN RANK TO SEE ACTIVE SERVICE

Sportsmanship Made Him Popular While in Ottawa as Vice-Regal Aide

HOW a casual conversation with the eccentric old Marquis of Clanricarde netted a fortune of about $12,000,000 for Viscount Lascelles, who is now the husband of Princess Mary, has just been recalled by Viscount Castle-rosse, a former captain in the Irish Guards and a member of an old County Kerry family, who says:

"Lord Clanricarde had large estates in Ireland which, however, he never visited. As a result of his absentee landlordism, he was very unpopular and on one occasion someone shot at his agent. On learning of this Clanricarde cynically remarked, 'If my tenants think that they can intimidate me by murdering my servants, they are mistaken.'"

"Lord Clanricarde used to haunt the St. James' Club, of which Lord Lascelles was a member."

"One day Lord Lascelles, who happened to be home on leave, had luncheon in the club and they met."

"Now, Lord Lascelles had distinguished himself greatly. At the outbreak of war he immediately joined the Yorkshire Yeomanry, in which regiment he was a captain, but finding that there would probably be a delay before they went to France he transferred to the Grenadier Guards as a second lieutenant."

He remained with them as a fighting soldier during the whole war, with the exception of short periods of convalescence, for he was wounded three times and gassed once.

"Little did Lord Lascelles know the importance of that conversation, for so impressed was

Viscount Lascelles

Lord Clanricarde that he went straight home and altered his will, leaving Lord Lascelles £2,000,000.

"A few days after this interview Lord Lascelles returned to France still unsuspecting his good fortune."

"Shortly afterwards Lord Clanricarde died, and Lord Lascelles inherited this vast sum of money."

"As may be well imagined, Lord Lascelles and his money became the talk of the Guards' division."

"His brother officers implored him to accept a staff appointment. After all, he had fought since the beginning of the war; he had been wounded three times, and accordingly nobody could say he was shirking his duty had he been appointed to an administrative post."

"However, Lord Lascelles was not to be moved. To his eternal glory he remained right through with his battalion, and the end of the war found him in command. He had also won the D.S.O. for gallantry."

Despite his very serious tastes, Lord Lascelles is by no means a prig. In his youth he once landed up in a London police court because, in company with a friend, he kicked his top hat up Burlington street one night. On appearing before the magistrate he argued that as the hat was his own he could do as he pleased with it but the bench decided that such unconventional conduct could not be tolerated in England and accordingly read him a lecture and imposed a fine.

When in Ottawa, as an aide on the staff of Lord Grey in the years before the war, Lascelles won wide popularity by his unconventional and democratic disposition and by his good sportsmanship.

The same qualities won him the love of his men in France. His batman has revealed the fact that often on cold nights Lascelles would give up his blankets in order that some private might not suffer. In the matter of cigars and so forth he also was an ever-present but anonymous Santa Claus.

Although "the richest soldier in the trenches" he asked and accepted no privileges. He stuck to the end of the war, having commanded his battalion when it captured Marbucge two days before the armistice. Later marched on to Cologne.

Coal Probe Head Sober Harry Lauder

Sir Andrew Duncan Served Apprenticeship as Arbitrator in Disputatious Battlefield of Clyde—Now Assisted in Cape Breton Probe by Idealist From Ontario and Educationalist From Nova Scotia

"THERE are very few tricks Sir Andrew won't take if he has the cards at all," says one who knows the chairman of the royal commission now investigating the Cape Breton coal industry. "His mind is luminous, clear and logical, and his shrewdness is of the greatest value. And the nice way, the open way he has of approaching the men! He has acquired, at least we hope he has, a confidence that will go a long way to making agreeable whatever the commission may recommend. And practical? He is practical above all! He is a Scot, you know, from Ayrshire!"

The chairman is a compactly built, ruddy, jolly-looking man of forty-one who looks only a sober sort of thirty, a mixer with an infectious humor, a laugh like a boy, no swank but a superb self-confidence, a good honest Scottish "burr-r" and an appearance that makes one think of a sober, youthful Harry Lauder, and as off hand as an American; a very clean-cut, incisive sample of the modern business man.

He is a barrister, a graduate of Glasgow University, who has passed from the ranks of law into industry as a result of the peculiar flair he developed on the banks of the Clyde for settling knotty points between the men and the employers in that hot-bed of disputation; a hard school that should fit him for his present job.

And he worships coal! Coal is king! In it is all power; the key to industrial greatness. He is recognized in his own country as one who has had a very wide social, industrial and administrative experience, one of the best known of their men in industry, and an authority on big business-labor relations.

Although a Liberal, he has acted on commissions for other governments and he was of course selected for his present task by the present Conservative government in Britain. He has twice run for parliament, as a Lloyd George Liberal for Glasgow the first time and a National Liberal for Dundee the last time, and was on both occasions defeated, as he cheerfully admits, although in the first instance, only by thirty-three votes.

His reputation for fairness is such that any reader of the British papers in recent years will remember some of the favorable references to him made by various Labor leaders, such as that of Frank Hodges, who, at the Industrial Welfare conference in September, 1922, said: "The principles, (regarding miners' welfare,) laid down by Mr. Justice Sankey were brought largely to fruition by the single-mindedness, devotion and courage of Sir Andrew Duncan."

He was British coal controller in 1919 and 1920 and appointed chairman of the advisory committee of the coal mines department in 1921, an office he still holds. He is a member of the civil service arbitration tribunal set up by the government and has been a member of several courts of enquiry set up under the industrial courts act. He is a member of the Royal Commission at present sitting on National Health Insurance in Britain, is on the permanent court of international justice, League of Nations labor section, and has attended as British representative two of the international labor conferences held at Geneva under the League of Nations, and for these services he was knighted in 1921.

Cronyn on Board

AT his right sits Major Hume Cronyn, a kindly-faced, greying man, well-known for many years in Ontario, and since the war almost equally so throughout Canada. He has for six years past been president of a large insurance company, which, it is interesting to note, is a mutual and profit-sharing institution.

The dominant impression he leaves on one is that of a great kindness and idealism.

A nephew of Edward Blake, that name indissolubly linked with the thought of this country, he is a member of an old London, Ontario, family, and lives there in the house built by his grandfather. A barrister by profession, he too graduated into business when he gave up the law to become manager of a mortgage and trust company, a concern which his father had founded and of which he is still vice-president.

Unlike Sir Andrew, he has had no previous experience in industrial disputes, nor in fact with any producing industry, and his sole acquaintance with mines has consisted of visits to some of those in the Letbridge and Edmonton, Alberta districts, and the Scottish mines in Fife.

He was, however, chairman of the board of arbitration between the Toronto Street Railway and the city of Toronto.

Born and brought up as a Liberal, Major Cronyn's whole outlook on life was a Liberal one until conscription came, when, like so many others, he severed the relations of a lifetime. He was elected to the House of Commons in 1917 as a Union government candidate for London.

Perhaps it was the influence of Edward Blake with whom he lived in those formative years

Commissioners Hume Cronyn and Sir Andrew Duncan

when he was a student at the University of Toronto, but as a politician he was "anything but," and "practical" politicians like the Honorable "Bob" Rogers are said to have had little use for him, presumably because he took no interest in party politics but was devoted solely to questions of national welfare.

Nevertheless, he has behind him a record of solid achievement in the House of Commons. He entered parliament with a reputation as a sound business man and was grouped in the public mind, in so far as his parliamentary activities were concerned, with Sir Thomas White and ex-Speaker Rhodes, the present premier of Nova Scotia, a connection which, it is reasonable to suppose, led to this appointment.

In the House of Commons he was for two years chairman of the committee on soldiers' affairs at a particularly trying time, when the soldiers were returning and when it was the hardest-worked committee in the House, having to do with pensions, soldiers' settlement board and so on.

It was while a member of this committee that Major Cronyn, together with G. D. Finlayson, dominion superintendent of insurance, gave the country the admirable soldiers' insurance act, and by so doing undersold the wares of his own life insurance company, which is pretty fair as a sample of undiluted altruism!

He was for two years chairman of the committee on scientific research and was credited with being extremely keen on it and most anxious to institute in this country a research institute. The House of Commons, at his urging, did in fact pass such a bill but the senate killed it, and those close to Major Cronyn say it was a bitter disappointment to him, and continues to be such. A research council was ultimately appointed and the present government made him a member of that.

His idealism came into play again on the question of increasing the members' indemnities from $2,500 to $4,000. He opposed it, claiming that it was a matter that should be voted on at the next election, and after it was put through, gave his own increased stipend to the Western University of London as a fund to provide prizes for the study of government, all of which gives an insight into the mental workings of another of the men upon whose decisions so much now rests.

Divine Third Member

DOCTOR H. P. McPHERSON, the third member of the commission, and president-rector of St. Francis Xavier University at Antigonish, Nova Scotia, is a man whose name in his native province is synonymous with two things, good works and absent-mindedness. A newspaper man reports that, lingering with a friend over a good dinner in Halifax, he forgot his appointment to come to Sydney with the other members of the commission and missed his train so that he had to make a night drive of sixty miles to Truro to catch up with the other members of his party.

Another story told about him is that on one occasion, pursuing some delinquent youth to a dormitory, the student ran into a room at the door of which the doctor knocked and enquired: "Is anyone in there?"

"No," the student replied.

"Oh," he mused. "I thought I saw Smith go in."

At the college Dr. McPherson has his living quarters on the second floor of Mackler Hall and it is recounted that as he was returning to his rooms from dinner one evening the telephone in the corridor rang and he answered it. "Is Dr. McPherson in?" queried the voice at the far end of the line. To which Dr. McPherson in all seriousness replied, "Just one minute and I will see."

He then walked down the corridor to his own room, knocked loudly several times and, on receiving no reply, returned to the phone and reported, "Sorry, Dr. McPherson hasn't returned yet from dinner."

To be sure, these stories about the absent-mindedness of the reverend gentleman are accompanied by no affidavits and accordingly may be taken with a pinch of salt. Certain it is Dr. McPherson does not resemble the absent-minded professor in personal appearance at least.

He is a man probably somewhat older than his colleagues, erect and vigorous, with a bright, enquiring eye that misses nothing. He has the splendid physique which would lead one to take him for a Scottish Nova Scotian. But he speaks with an Irish brogue. He shares with Major Cronyn that benign look that inspires an absolute certainty in his fairness.

To these two there fell the task of much of the housing investigation in the first days of the commission's activity, and it is related that their distress was very great at what they felt was the intrusion they were forced to make on the private lives of miners.

Dr. McPherson has been president of St. Francis Xavier since 1906; before that he was for thirteen years parish priest of Acadiaville, or West Arichat, an Acadian-French fishing and farming community; and his chief contact with public life, aside from his university connection, has been that of a clergyman who naturally participated in most local movements.

In Nova Scotia most of the higher education offered is along denominational lines, due to the fact that in the early days the church took the initiative in education, and each university still retains its connection with its church. St. Francis Xavier is in this respect associated with the Roman Catholic church although it receives and has pupils of all denominations, regardless of their religious beliefs.

The enrolment is largely drawn from Cape Breton and includes the sons of many working miners, as well as many boys who themselves work in the mines during their holidays, as the various coal companies have always been at special pains to provide jobs for such students.

Consequently, although Dr. McPherson has had less than either of his confreres to do with industry in the usual sense, in another sense he has had more to do with coal-mining and with this people than either of them, for most of his working life has been spent in communities intimately associated with the life of the district now under examination.

Sergeant Found One Man Who Refused Rum Ration

Canadian N.C.O. Found He Had Been Giving Orders to Peer and Brigadier-General

AN amusing incident occurred in December, 1915, while the 20th Battalion of the Fourth Brigade, C.E.F., were holding that part of the line known as the M. and O. trenches, a mile and a half east of Diekebusch.

Lord Brooke was in command of the brigade at the time and this popular officer often could be found wading along the front line, deeply concerned over the health and comfort of "his boys."

On a particularly dark and rainy evening Sergeant S—, nursing carefully in his arms the jar containing his platoon's rum issue, splashed around a traverse in the trench and bumped against the figure of a man who was peering intently over the parapet. Steadying himself, he leaned wearily against the side of a flooded dugout, tilted the jar and poured the man's "issue" into a battered cigar tin. He extended it at arm's length to the figure almost indiscernible in the gloom with a gruff "Here y' are!"

When no attention was paid to this very important proceeding the astounded sergeant almost gasped for breath, but, recovering himself he commanded somewhat angrily, "Heh! Come and get your issue. Don't keep me standing here half-drowned all night."

"I'd rather not," was the reply.

"What?" roared the thoroughly amazed n.c.o., "don't want your tot? Well, you're the first guy who's refused it to-night."

"Well, you see, sergeant," was the quiet response, "I don't think it would be quite proper for a brigadier to drink the men's rum."

HUME HOPED TO BE POET FORCED TO BE NOVELIST

AS a youth, Fergus Hume, the English novelist, passionately desired to get some of his poems printed. But on all hands publishers told him it would be too great a risk to put on the market the works of an unknown poet. So, in order to make a name for himself, Hume wrote the Mystery of the Hansom Cab. He sold the manuscript for £50, and the publishers sold 559,000 copies of the book.

Its success was so great that once again the publishing houses refused to listen to Mr. Hume's plea regarding his volume of verse. But, however, they told him that they would take all the mystery stories he could grind out. The net result of his frustrated poetic ambitions has been the publication of 137 detective novels.

DESCENDANT OF BRANT STUDENT OF FOLKLORE

Is Poetess and Writer Herself and Great Admirer of Late Pauline Johnson

LIVES NEAR DESERONTO 'MIDST HISTORIC SCENES

Proud of Connection With Great Sachem Who Helped Britain During War of 1776

ON the reserve a few miles west of Deseronto there lives a girl who is the great-great-granddaughter of Joseph Brant, the redoubtable war chief of the Iroquois confederacy of the Six Nations Indians, who fought so effectively for the British cause from 1763 onward and who when the New England colonies revolted remained loyal to England and accompanied the United Empire Loyalists into Upper Canada.

The young lady is Miss Teresa Brant. She is fond of writing and is a contributor of special articles and news correspondence to a Belleville paper. Miss Brant is also a great admirer of the poems of her relative, the late Pauline Johnson.

She herself also writes little snatches of poetry which breathe the spirit of the fields and woods and sunshine.

Her education she received at the school on the Mohawk reserve and she takes a lively interest in Indian lore and legend. Most of this, in so far as it relates to the Deseronto Indians, is oral, one of the greatest repositories of tribal history being Mrs. Nancy Maracle, whose ninety-two years make her the oldest member of the reserve.

As a result of Miss Brant's studies along this line, she was able to render valuable assistance to officials recently sent to Belleville by the archives branch at Ottawa.

During the United Empire Loyalist commemoration celebration held at Belleville in 1924, she had an opportunity to relive some of the stirring scenes in which her warrior-ancestor played the leading role, having taken part in the pageant which portrayed the landing of Joseph Brant on the Bay of Quinte in the old revolutionary days.

Teresa Brant

In the church where Miss Brant worships there is still in use a part of the magnificent silver communion service given to the Mohawk Indians by Queen Anne. The other part of the gift is at the reserve near Brantford, having gone there following the division of the tribe.

Queen Anne's gift was in part a tribute to the devoutness of Colonel Joseph Brant, or, to give him his Indian name, Thayendanegea. He not only translated the prayer book and the Gospel of St. Mark into the Mohawk tongue, but also went to England in 1786 and raised the funds which helped build the first Episcopal church in Canada.

Although a fearless and brilliant warrior, Brant displayed in battle a restraint which was an example to his more primitive brethren, for even in the massacres which then characterized Indian warfare he made a point of sparing the women and children of the conquered.

Following the close of the revolutionary war, he also acted as a valued negotiator and did much to place a curb upon the frontier fighting and skirmishing which had gone on more or less interminably in the past.

In short the old sachem was a man whose name can be borne with pride by the present city of Brantford and by those of his descendants who are now alive.

Miss Brant traces her descent in a direct line to Thayendanegea, her father having been Joseph S. Brant, her grandfather Seth Brant, her great-grandfather Jacob Brant, and her great-great-grandfather Joseph Brant.

Miss Brant is proud of her Indian origin and of her Indian name, Thayendanegea. This has been a common tribal appellation since the days of the old eighteenth century sachem and it recalls his traditional policy and motto, being translated into English as "combined strength." More literally, it means, "two sticks bound together."

The body of Jacob Brant, or Gahladobonh, who played a prominent part in the war of 1812-15, lies buried in the Mohawk reserve and Teresa makes a regular ceremony of placing flowers upon the grave.

Are Charleston Champions

These smiling bell-boys at a hotel in Piccadilly are converts to the Charleston craze, and, according to Miss Beatrice Jackson, who claims to be the world's champion Charleston queen, they perform this southern dance even better than the Prince of Wales himself. Miss Bee asserts that she herself was not only the one to popularize the Charleston, but was also the first white woman ever to dance it. She first made its acquaintance while down south in Charleston, where she encountered several colored children dancing for all they were worth to the "music" made by beating an empty soap-box with a stick. Fascinated by the fantastic movement of the dance, she stood watching them until she learned the steps and then went home and practised before a mirror until she felt sufficiently expert to introduce the Charleston to Broadway.

THEATRE ATTRACTIONS for the COMING WEEK

MERRY SHOW HERE ON CHRISTMAS DAY

Naughty Nifties, One of Brightest Burlesque Shows, Will Be at Grand.

Naughty Nifties was accounted one of the brightest and merriest shows on the burlesque circuit last season, and it has been entirely rewritten and provided with new music for this season's tour. It comes to the Grand next Thursday, Christmas Day, Saturday, with daily matinee, with a sparkling cast of principal players, including Miss Bennett and Lou Rice, comic duo actor-comedians; Beulah Baker, a stunning prima donna; Dolly Dale Morrissey, singing and dancing; and Helen Harris, ingenue, and Ray King and Arthur Lines, character and juvenile actors, respectively.

A chorus of pretty, singing and dancing girls attractively costumed will appear in handsome scenic settings. Seats for the Christmas matinee have been reserved. Secure them early. Miss Beulah Baker, the prima donna of the Naughty Nifties company, began her stage career at the tender age of four years, playing child parts in a dramatic stock company, and before she was twenty had established herself as a dependable player of principal roles in musical comedies. Miss Baker also broadened her experience by appearing in several Biograph pictures and a season in vaudeville. She declares her preference for modern burlesque in no uncertain terms, because of the abundant opportunity it affords her for the demonstration of her ability as an actress and the display of her indisputable personal charms.

CHARLES RAY HERE IN BRIGHT LIGHTS

Film Is Particularly Adapted to Popular Star—Plays at Loew's.

The combination of Charles Ray and Pauline Starke in Bright Lights, the picture playing at Loew's on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, was a happy one, according to Robert Z. Leonard, the director.

Ray was secured by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer organization for the role of Tom Corbin in this picture, and his work in this serio-comic part was the talk of the studio. "Ray's boyish charm and unsophistication, coupled with Pauline Starke's wiseful appeal, offered a marvellous opportunity for a type of comedy that is certain to win the approval of theatregoers," said Leonard.

"In the making of this picture we worked on the supposition that any man likes to see another in an embarrassing situation. Carrying out this idea, there are many different ways of getting a laugh, and Mr. Ray and Miss Starke utilized them all. For instance, an audience loves mentally to foresee an action and then see it happen. Another type is the surprise laugh; that is, when something totally unexpected occurs. A third is when the inevitable is interrupted by a totally unexpected event."

Though Leonard has been directing pictures for many years, Bright Lights is his first out-and-out comedy. With the aid of Charles Ray and Pauline Starke, who are co-starring in the picture, and Lilian Tashman, Lawford Davidson, Ned Sparks and Eugene Bessner he has made one of the year's most charming comedy dramas. Jessie Burns and Lew Lipton adapted the picture from the Liberty magazine story by Richard Connell.

Glittering Gowns, Daring Dances Feature The Masked Bride, Underworld Story.

Glittering gowns, daring and spectacular dances, cafes, the froth and gaiety of Paris—these are the embellishments in which Mae Murray is seen in an intensely dramatic role in her latest picture, The Masked Bride, her first picture since The Merry Widow.

It is a sensational story of a Paris underworld plot encompassing Miss Murray, in the role of a French dancer fighting to save her lover's happiness. Christy Cabanne directed it on a lavish scale at the Loew-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

A notable cast appears. Francis X.

BATTERIES MAY CAUSE NOISES

"B" Units Should Be Discarded When Voltage Drops Below 34.

Radio reception has not yet reached that foolproof stage where it is only necessary to turn a switch to secure continuous satisfactory production.

How many times have you looked forward to some broadcast program of particular interest, only to be greeted by a flood of jumbled harshness belching from the horn of the loud speaker? It is not infrequently the program, it grates upon the nerves of the listener, and tries the patience of those people who desire quality reception unaccompanied by this objectionable noise.

By understanding the reasons for the various noises, you may obviate disappointments and get a quality of tone value that will be a continual delight.

Let us consider the sources of these noises.

Studio Noises. First, we have the studio noises, which may be defined as those noises which originate at the broadcasting station. Noisy microphones cause a steady hiss which often blurs the voice of the artist. Programs picked up outside of the studio and carried over land by wire for broadcasting are usually excessively noisy by induction from neighboring wires—a steady rushing sound, especially noticeable when the receiver is tuned to resonance is caused by the generator, which supplies the plate potential to the transmitter tubes. This noise is more or less pronounced on all stations and continues until the broadcasting is finished and the stations sign off the air. When this occurs the rushing sound suddenly disappears.

Noise contributed by the ether medium may be defined as those sounds which are caused by electrical disturbances between the broadcasting station and the receiver itself. In this group we found the disturbing influences of high tension power lines, violet and X-ray machines, jumpy transformers, electrically operated elevators, sparking motors and generators, trolley and elevated railway systems and telephone and telegraph wires. Electrical impulses from these undesirable sources usually occur at short wave lengths and are picked up by sensitive receivers. Static also comes in this class and is more or less prevalent throughout the summer months. Many satisfactory programs are suddenly broken up by a series of unfamiliar clicks and in many cases are interrupted entirely for short periods. These are caused by key clicks from continuous wave transmitters and by improperly operated regenerative and superheterodyne receivers.

Receivers Also Cause Noises. In the third class are the noises which are caused by the receiver itself or by the equipment which is used in connection with the same. Discharged "B" batteries become noisy and are usually the cause of a high-pitched squeal when the receiver is operating on the second audio stage. These batteries should be discarded when their voltage drops below 34. Storage "B" batteries often cause the same trouble even when the voltmeter reading is high. Squeals in this case are caused by one or more dead cells which are

Sydney Station All Home-Made

Associated Press Despatch. Sydney, N.S.W., Dec. 18.—The Sydney trades hall station, which has recently come on the air, has been equipped entirely with broadcasting apparatus built at Sydney, and is believed to be the only big station in the world entirely of local manufacture.

WAVE OF 1.3 METRES IS FEAT OF STUDENT

Amateur Record Is Made by Iowa Senior—Is Inventor Also.

Iowa City, Ia., Dec. 18.—The shortest wave length used in radio by an amateur has been successfully employed by Winfield W. Salisbury, a senior in the college of physics at the State University of Iowa, who performed experiments at various points in the United States last summer. Salisbury's shortest wave-length used on the campus outside the laboratory was 1.3 meters, or a little over four feet in length. In the laboratory he succeeded in generating a wave of 74 centimeters.

The discovery was the result of experimentation carried on by Mr. Salisbury while student assistant in a course in "Electrical Measurement of High Frequency." This course is given as part of the summer school program of the physics department of the State University of Iowa.

MUSICAL FEE CUT MAY SOLVE RADIO PROBLEM

By ROBERT MACK. Washington, Dec. 18.—The radio music controversy that reached such a complete deadlock in the recent radio conference that it was placed outside of the sphere of the meeting may be given another chance to straighten itself out before being thrown into the adjustment mills of congress.

As an expression of its desire for a compromise, the society of composers, authors and publishers is prepared to make substantial reductions in its charges for certain classes of service. The cuts, it is understood, apply to the use of music in the classroom and to organizations holding performing rights from the society, who wish to broadcast for several hours a week.

18 STATIONS CUT OFF.

By ROBERT MACK. Washington, Dec. 18.—A net reduction of 18 broadcasting stations in the United States is the record established by the radio section of the department of commerce since the radio conference held early in November.

Twenty-six stations, all of them class A, were deleted from the government rolls during the month, as against the addition of eight new stations.

RADIO REPORTER PLAN IS ADOPTED BY WHI

Chicago Station Will Use Expert Receptionists to Better Transmission.

A staff of radio reporters, or expert receptionists, located in every large city in America, is being organized by station WHI in Chicago through its engineering research department, in charge of Chief Engineer Reeve O. Strook, for compilation of technical data to aid in correcting faulty transmission and to insure uniform quality of reception throughout the dominant broadcasting range of the station.

Each WHI reporter will forward a weekly report to the research department, and these reports will be checked one against the other at the weekly conference of the WHI operators, and it is believed that much valuable information will be obtained.

NINE STATIONS ARE GIVEN TEMPORARY LICENSES

By ROBERT MACK. Washington, Dec. 18.—Although no permanent licenses have been issued by the department of commerce since the annual radio conference voted unanimously for a limitation of broadcasting, nine plants, whose call letters do not appear in the official list of stations, are operating under temporary authority from the department. In each case the station had applied for a license prior to the change in the governmental policy, and had actually begun erection of a station.

TALK ON AUCTION BRIDGE WILL BE GIVEN FROM WJJD

Milton C. Work, one of the foremost authorities on auction bridge, will give a talk on that subject from the Palmer House (Chicago) studio of the Loyal Order of Moose Station at 5 p.m. (central time) on Sunday, Dec. 27.

This will be one of the features of the opening week of programs to celebrate the opening of WJJD's new eight-room radio suite in the new Palmer House.

HEAD PHONE OHMS. Many people have the mistaken notion that the resistance of head phones is a measure of their quality. Actually, radio head phones of 2,500 ohms resistance may be much better than others of 5,000 ohms resistance. The resistance is determined by the length, size and kind of wire used in their construction. Their performance is a matter of proper engineering design and the use of good materials.

LOOP AERIALS.

From the experience of radio engineers throughout the country, it has been found that the average loop aerial is about 5 per cent as efficient as the average outdoor aerial. Indoor aerials are from 10 to 15 per cent as efficient.

BEST RADIO DRAMA WILL GET $500 PRIZE

Contest Will Be Held by Drama League of America and WLS.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 18.—To create for radio drama the equivalent of the scenario in motion pictures is the object of the nation-wide contest for the best radio play just launched by the Drama League of America in co-operation with radio station WLS of Chicago. George Junkin, field secretary of the league, as chairman of the contest committee, worked out the details of the contest with D. D. Richards, assistant director of WLS.

Five hundred dollars in cash, a silver loving cup, as well as national fame awaits the writer of the best radio play, according to Mr. Junkin. The contest is limited to United States citizens.

SHIPS' INTERFERENCE WITH BROADCASTING IS SOLVED

"Ever since the development of broadcasting on an important scale, the U.S. commerce department has been deluged with complaints from owners of radio sets relative to the great interference encountered from ships' signals," says Professor Morecraft, writing in the January Radio Broadcast magazine. "Plans will be delighted to hear, therefore, that the department of this country has agreed with British and Canadian authorities to prohibit the vessels of the three countries from using frequencies in the broadcast band when within 250 miles of the United States, Canada or the British Isles."

HAUNTING VENETIAN MUSIC TO BE HEARD IN "FORTUNA"

Pittsburg, Dec. 18.—Fortuna, this year's musical comedy of the Princeton Triangle club, will be broadcast by KDKA when it is presented in Pittsburgh on Wednesday evening, Dec. 23. Love in the grim corridors of the Doge's palace, romance beneath the Bridge of Sighs, and intrigue on the old Rialto, all amid the haunting melodies of Venetian gondoliers, are the colorful themes of Fortuna.

AMATEUR MAKES RECORD.

KILLING OF THREE ITALIANS SEALS DOOM OF WHOLE CITY

Capital of Sultanate of Mijertin Occupied and Destroyed and Entire Coast Blockaded—Revenge For Killing of Two Non-Commissioned Officers and Artilleryman.

Rome, Dec. 18.—Official announcement was made today that Barga, capital of the Sultanate of Mijertin, Italian Somaliland, has been occupied and destroyed by Italian military forces as reprisal for the killing of two Italian non-commissioned officers and one artilleryman by native forces of Sultan Osman Mahmud. An Italian naval squadron is blockading the entire coast.

The official statement is as follows: "Operations in the sultanates of Mijertin and Obbia, Somaliland, continue with a view to affirming in the most direct and effective manner the establishment of the Italian protectorate."

"While the activities of the Italians have been favorably received by the sultanate of Obbia, difficulties have been met in Mijertin territory. Sultan Osman Mahmud, who some time ago made full declaration of loyalty and abstinence, attempted to prevent the landing of the Italian warship Campania at Barga, which carried functionaries entrusted to confer with him. Two non-commissioned officers and an artilleryman were killed in the attack. "Italian counter-measures were started immediately, with the occupation and destruction of Barga. "The vain resistance of Osman Mahmud cannot continue much longer, meanwhile, we are occupying all important towns in the sultanate and a naval squadron is blockading the coast."

BORAH OPENS WAR ON WORLD COURT

Chairman of U. S. Foreign Relations Committee Begins Fight in Senate.

Special to The Advertiser.
Washington, Dec. 18.—Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee opened the fight of the irreconcilables in the senate today upon the Swann resolution, which would pledge American adherence to the world court. His main contention was that the court and the League of Nations were inextricably linked together. The league was the mother of the court, in spite of the statements of President Coolidge and other Republican leaders to the contrary, he declared.

Borah opened his attack before a crowded gallery immediately after Senator Lenroot, Wisconsin, Republican, had presented the case for the motion.

Not Independent.
Borah quoted a judge member of the court as saying that any "tempest that beats down upon the league would also have its effect upon the court," and adding: "This shows what will be the effect of any world court which sustains a relationship to a political body like the league, which may be changed or destroyed by political storms which sweep over Europe."

Borah said those who founded the court didn't attempt to set up an independent court, but "a legal department" of the league. He read and invited nations to nations for appointment of delegates to form the court, which included a statement that it would be "the most essential part of the League of Nations."

Proposes Reservations.
Borah proposed three reservations to the Harding-Hughes-Coolidge proposal for American adherence to the court: 1. The statute of the court should not be construed so as to require the United States to depart from "its traditional policy of not interfering in political questions" of foreign nations or its traditional attitude toward purely American questions.

2. "American adherence to the court is conditioned upon the understanding that no force or economic sanction shall be used to enforce the judgments of the court."

3. No change can be made in the court's statute increasing its jurisdiction unless every nation party to the court ratifies the change.

LOBLAW'S OPENING ATTRACTS CROWDS

New Groceries Thronged With Shoppers Who Admire the Efficiency of System.

All London seemed to pass through the new Loblaw Groceries yesterday afternoon. From the opening hour at 2 o'clock until 10 o'clock last night streams of shoppers poured through the store to look things over and to take advantage of the bargains that were offered. The first person to enter the new store was none other than Mayor George Wenige, followed shortly after by John M. Moore, London's mayor-elect. Both men expressed themselves impressed with the system, cleanliness and general lay-out of the store.

C. B. Shields, assistant managing director of the Loblaw stores, gave great credit to S. G. Score, chief supervisor of stores, for the splendid work he had done in the equipping and opening of the store. In the short time that has been taken, Mr. Score is indeed to be congratulated on the splendid outlay of stock that is on sale.

The entrance is clearly marked "In," and one enters through a turnstile into an aisle, the sides of which are lined with goods. On the right at the entrance is a bin full of provision baskets of ample size, which are loaned to the customers for the tour of the shop; at the exit the baskets are emptied, the goods wrapped and the basket returned to the bin for the next customer.

Along the walls of the shop are shelves and bins filled with canned goods, jars of pickles, fruits, jellies and all sorts of preserves, and in the center of the shop along the side is the biscuit and cake counter, at which are two girls, who cut and serve the cake.

At the end of the store is a novel arrangement for serving the sugar and flour to the shoppers. Two bins on the second floor are filled, and the material comes down through tubes to a control which the public can use to procure as much of either as is desired.

Down the center of the stores are more counters, which are filled with perishable goods, such as bacon, butter, eggs and vegetables. The butter and bacon and other goods are kept in patented refrigerator counter, open at the top, which combines all the advantages of a shut-in refrigerator with an open glass display. The bacon is held up in one and half pound transparent packages. The cheese is packed in sizes at all prices to suit the desire of the buyer. Other commodities are packed equally conveniently and placed on sale so that they can be bought without any delay whatever.

The idea of the groceries is the same in the grocery line as is the cafeteria in the restaurant. Patrons serve themselves, obviating the cost and trouble of clerks; no wait for service is necessary at all, and an article may be chosen and taken without the least delay.

BANDITS PLEAD GUILTY

Owen Sound Youth and Windsor Man Remanded For Investigation.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Windsor, Dec. 18.—Alfred Morton, 16, of Owen Sound, and Dorvin Cousby, 24, of 414 Brant street, Windsor, this morning entered pleas of guilty to charges of robbery while armed. Magistrate W. C. Gundy remanded them for eight days for further investigation.

Morton and Cousby were arrested Thursday morning after holding up and robbing Louis Donnelly and Elton Bambrick, proprietors of the Red and White grocery and butcher shop, at 527 Erie street east, of $12. The youths were captured following a movie-like chase by the police in two flyers, which were driven more than 70 miles an hour during some parts of the chase.

Morton, who is the son of an Owen Sound chef, is believed to have a previous police record.

SESSIONAL PROGRAM ENGROSSES CABINET

Sub-Committees Handling Preliminary Details, Premier States.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—The numerous conferences in the office of the prime minister during the week have been held for the purpose of discussing the sessional program. This was the statement of Premier Mackenzie King, made at the close of one of the conferences this evening. The premier said that it had been considered advisable to turn over the various items on the sessional program to committees of the cabinet, which would review and discuss them before they were presented to a full meeting for final approval. In this way a great deal of time would be saved. Every effort was being made to have the work of the session in readiness for parliament, Mr. King said. He pointed out that a number of sub-committees of the cabinet had been working simultaneously on the sessional program.

HARD WINTER CAUSES BIRDS TO EAT BERRIES OFF HOLLY

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Dec. 18.—Birds in England are experiencing one of the hardest winters in years, and are responsible for the fact that holly is arriving on the Christmas market shorn of its berries. Owing to the severe weather the birds began to eat all available berries a month ago. Much of the mistletoe is also reaching the market without berries, owing to vegetable disease. Dealers are trying to work out a plan for supplying artificial berries, so that Christmas customers will not be disappointed.

Police commission members made no decision yesterday after a lengthy session. A meeting of the commission was held on the number of standing passengers buses operating in the city should be licensed to carry. Nor did they take any action concerning the operation of buses on city streets in competition with the London street railways. Both questions were referred to the 1926 council.

ing the operation of buses on city streets in competition with the London street railways. Both questions were referred to the 1926 council. A resume of police accounts revealed that the department expenses for 1925 will come well within the estimates for the year, with an expected surplus of a few thousand dollars. Chief of Police Robert Birrell, Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon, Judge Talbot Macbeth and Mayor George A. Wenige were present, it being the last meeting before the mayor's retirement.
