And there are diversities of operations, but it is the same God which worketh all in all. But the manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal. For the mone is given by the Spirit the word.

Ald Carpenter thought it would have to every man to profit withal. For to one is given by the Spirit the word of wisdom; to another the word of knowledge by the same Spirit.

To another the working of miracles; to another prophecy; to another discerning of spirits; mow I have that gift) to another divers kinds of tongues; to another the interpretation of tongues.

Proceeding from this point Mr. Griffin stated that his wife had, under control, the gift of tongues, speaking French, Spanish, several Indian dialects and other languages of which she was entirely ignorant.

Ald, Carpenter thought it would have been better to have sounded the council before bringing the matter up, but now it had been brought up it would lower the city to throw out the motion.

Ald, Blight and Ald, Lewis opposed the grant, as unnecessary, the churches having actively taken up the work. Still Ald, Lewis admitted it would look rather small to refuse to vote such a sum after all.

Ald, Sulman said if Chatham gave nothing it would stand alone among the other cities of the dominion. Montreal had given $5,000, Toronto $4,000 and Winnipeg $2,000. It there were people in Chatham as badiy off as the mayor said, it was mostly their own fault.

a man goes out, by natural laws, through the change called death, why can he not by the same law return."

Mr. Griffin then turned his attention briefly to thought, Brain, he said, cannot create thought. Knowing this, what is more natural than to suppose our spirit friends are here trying to throw their thoughts into our brain.

"In the United States there are between sixteen and seventeen million spiritualists outside of the church, and many more who do not avow themselves, as spiritualism is not a popular religion. We have five societies in the city of Detroit and fourteen in Cincinnati. We have regularly ordained ministers and hold over fifty camp meetings during the warm weather. Now, in 16,000,000 people there must be some clever, thinking men, some smart minds. If you believe in spiritualism—if you believe that the dead mother or father, sister or brother can see you and know everything you do—you are bound to be a better man. "Preachers of orthodoxy are down on spiritualism; but take spiritualism away from this book (the Bible) and there is nothing left but history. Preachers tell us that God is Spirit and that we are part of God; that God never changes. And yet they say that the passage I read to you, and others like it, had reference to that day and date and not to the present enlightened age.

To Give $100 to the Indian Famine Fund -- Have Our Own Poor.

At last night's council meeting, Ald Sulman moved, seconded by Ald. Mo-Phee, that to show our sympathy with the famine sufferers in India, $100 be granted to the Indian relief fund.

The mayor said we had so much dis tress in our own town he could not see how we could send $100-how we dare send $100 to the Indian relief fund. He said he knew families in Chatham who were to-day suffering for the actual necessities of life, and were without fuel. He believed, England, wealthy as the way county. STREET OBSTRUCTION.

Several Parties said to be the By-law. R. T. Phillips asked the council last night for leave to occasionally occupy a small section of the side of the street near his mill in North Chatham. The pear his mill in North Chatham. The mayor and Ald. Smith urged that Mr. Phillips be granted the concession. Other mills, lumber yards and ice houses now used the streets whenever they wanted to.

Ald. Carpenter said we might as well rescind the by law. If, as his worship alieged, a number, of others were occupying the streets the by-law was simply useless. If we knocked the by-law out altogether we would know what to do.

"I must say I agree with Ald. Carpenter," said Ald. Blight. He had had no less than three complaints last week, he said, of street obstruction. week, he said, of street obstruction.

Ald. Lewis said if damage resulted from these obstructions the city was liable. Because three or four people were already breaking the by law it did not follow that another man should be allowed to do the same. All should be made to observe the by-iaw.

The mayor said what seemed peculiar that the made to observe the by-iaw.

to him was that Phillips should be singled out and brought up in the police court, while the Blondes, Hadleys, Piggotts and others could obstruct the streets when they liked and nothing was said about it. He suggested the committee of works consider the matter and make some suggestion as to whether it would be wise to amend the by-law or not. This was agreed to. to bim was that Phillips should be

Ald. Weaver—I would like to ask Ald. Smith if there is anything more than that Mr. Coyle was intoxicated that night, against him.

Ald. Smith—I do not care to anticipate the report of the committee by answering the question.

Ald. Weaver—But I would like an answer.

Ald. Smith—I know you would, but this is not the time to give it. I have no right until the committee investi-gates the case to answer any questions of any kind, and I'm not going to.

Ald. Smith,—Then I decline to answer it.

Ald. Carpenter said Ald. Smith was right. Ald. Weaver had no business to ask such a question.

The mayor rulled that Ald. Weaver had a perfect right to ask the question.

Ald. Weaver—Of course I have.

The mayor—And Ald. Smith has a perfect right to decline to answer it. (Laughter).

Ald. Smith said the preliminary investigation was simply held to justify Chief Jacques' course in suspending the watchman.

The mayor said Mrs. Coyle was present and expected to be heard. But in view of the postponement that would not be expedient.

Ald. Bray urged the committee to expedite affairs.

Ald. O'Keeffe claimed the committee should have acted in the first place and brought in a final report. He wanted a ruling of the council so that if there was a repetition of such an affair they would know what to do.

Ald. Carpenter claimed the committee had no power to act in such a matter until they were empowered to do so by resolution of the council.

Ald Bray upheld this view, and the mayor sustained it.

The matter then went back to the committee for a full investigation, the committee to report at the next meeting of council.

explained that their action was not dictated by pique but by a sense of delicacy in accepting other business against the city while acting in these cases on its behalf.

Later on when a discussion arose over the settling of the Aldis suit reference was made to Mr. Wilson, last years solicitor, throwing up the briefs he held. Ald. Carpenter said only it had been understood Mr. Wilson's firm would continue these suits it might have made a difference in the appointment of Mr. Douglas as city solicitor.

Ald. Aroold said the Aldis cases were about rea y to go for trial. If Mr. Wilson threw them up nearly all the expenses incurred would have to be incurred over again. He suggested that some independent solicitor be cousuited as to Mr. Wilson's right to abandon cases under such circumstances and at

The firm's communication withdrawn The firm's communication withdrawning from the cases in question was accompanied by a bill extending from July 18 to date. It amounted to $512.-63. Of this amount only about $45 was incurred in the Aldis cases.

As far as the Aldis cases were concerned the majority of the aldermen favored letting them go to trial. They expressed the opinion that if the city fought one or two cases it would stop it being imposed upon by claimants for damages.

NEWSPAPER CORRESPONDENTS. Why Some are Good and Others a Perfect

At the meeting of the press association in Toronto last week A. R. Faw cett, of the Toronto Junction Leader, read a paper on "Country correspondents." The best-correspondent he ever had was a shoemaker. School teachers, he said, are too pedantic and prosy. Ministers of the gospel, said he, are dead failures as correspondents. They usually send church news, and, ten to one, news of their own church only." There is something in what Mr. Fawcett, says, but this journal from experience can put in a good word for both school teachers and ministers. Their correspondence is usually reliable. If they do not cover all the ground what they do cover is done properly. The poorest correspondent a newspaper has to deal with is the man who imagines its columns are for the purpose of making jokes about his neighbors. He is greatly mistaken in that. A lie is a lie whether it is in a correspondence column or not. Ridicule is offensive whether offence is intended or not. If newspapers could slay correspondents who think it is funny to say or hint that so and so visited his best girl on Sunday last or was frequently seen on our sideroad-wonder what's the reason land so on, the world would be better and happier for the

Anyone who imagines such items are clever is greatly mistaken. His work is very differently appreciated both by the paper be is writing for and by its readers. But fortunately for one correspondent of this kind a good journal usually happens across twenty honest, able men and women whose items are a credit to themselves and an assistance to the paper. On the other hand where it is unlocky enough to have unwittingly secured the services of a fool joker his work is a material injury, for he loses the paper both prestige and subscribers.

LOOKS LIKE A CONSPIRACY

To Deleat the Ends of Justice-The Globe

The outery the political debauchery practiced by the Liberals in South Brant has caused is widespread. Even the Globe is outspoken and honest enough to condemn the acts of its po litical friends. It says:

"The personater must go. merely the personator who lies and cheats and perjures himself for the opposing political party, but also, his brother who does the same thing for the Liberal party. His crime is treason against good citizenship, and its pun-ishment should be as swift and as severe as that which our courts meteout to the burglar or highway robber There has been too great a disposition to regard all sorts of election frauds as legitimate weapons of party war-fare. cal corruption." The Globe might even be more spe cific. It is fair to assume that when the briber Johnston was bailed it was intended he should skip out. That being the case the party must have pledged itself to make good the $200 bail if it were estreated. The magistrate, too, who granted the bail must have had a good idea what might happen when he fixed on such an absurdly low figure. Personation will never be put down until the bribers are properly punished. The Globe should insist on Premier Hardy putting the law in motion in this case. There is a very strong appearance of a conspiracy to defeat the ends of justice. If the Attorney-General does not approve of the whole scoundrelly proceeding he will soon act. Of course if he does approve of personation we can expect nothing from him-not even the dismissal of the magistrate who released Johnston.

It only took one Cook to spoil the Liberal broth in East Simcoe. He did it by giving it in the soup.

Wanted, a light in the darkness, a leader to love and obey.
A guide through the mist and shadows that darken, endanger the way; From cottage and crowded city; from mountain valley and fen, Comes the cry of a nation's travail, "Wanted, a leader of men."

A leader unblinded by passion, with feelings unbittered by hate, who was all for the vote of the people, nor all for the strength of the state; where the heart with a mind to govern, a mind with a heart to control, Not always forgetting the body, nor ever forgetting the soul.

Not a man of one party or faction, but a zealous uniter of creeds; Not an engine of wordy vapour, but a doer of worthy deeds; Not. a speaker of veiled sedition, but a guide for the struggling mass, Who crowd through the valley of la-bor, crying, "Room for the millions to pass."

To Investors.

As the properties of the Colorado Gold Mining & Developing Company show constant and steady improvement, and as the present rate of dividends warrants an advance in the price of the shares, without regard for further improvement, the same will be made on the 12th of January, 1897, and on and after that date no shares will be sold at less than fifty cents per share.

All orders at the present price must show a postmark not later than the 11th instant.

At the price now quoted, with the present rate of dividend, the shares net the investor fifteen per cent. per annum, and as the Company's profits warrant an increase in the dividends, it is expected that the February dividend will be double the present amount, and we are warranted in saying that the shares of the Colorado Gold Mining & Developing Company are the best investment in the Dominion to-day, and we confidently recommend them to you as such.

Full information regarding the Company's properties and prospects may be had upon application.

Subscription books are now open at the office of Lownsbrough & Co., Bankers and Brokers, 22 King Street East, Toronto, Ontario, where J. Grant Lyman, managing director, will be pleased to receive your suscription for the number of shares desired. Price 40 cents per share, par value $1.00, full paid and non-assessable, being subject to no further call.

WOMAN AND HOME.

COUNTESS ABERDEEN, "THE FIRST LADY OF CANADA."

ar as a Home Nurse-The Use of Coal-The Rocking Chair Spine-Keepa House Clean-Carrying Her Own

the governor general of Canada takes recedence at all functions honored by her nce in social or official life in the Do-on. She is "the leading lady" of Canada. The Countess of Aberdeen, however, does not pose as a "hutterfly of fashion." She does not set the fashion for Ottawa women, much less the women of Canada; neither does she hold court with the extravagance of some of her predecessors. Nevertheless the Aberdeens are very wealthy and could well afford to dazzle the Canadian people with magnificent enter-tainments. Her ladyship's inclinations are toward the elevation of her sex, and s large share of her time is devoted to the work of the National Council of Women of which she is president. It was she who introduced that organization into Canada, and the numerous branches which have en organized are the result of Lady Aberdeen's earnestness. She is a good woman, devoted to her family, and discharges the social duties of Rideau Hall with that ess expected from the mistress of the noble house of Aberdeen. She dresses with perfect taste, richly on occasions, and very plainly in everyday life.

el, countess of Aberdeen, is a daughter of the first Lord Tweedmouth, and long

LADY ABERDEEN AND HER SONS. y identified with movements for the eleva-tion and enfranchisement of women. The Aberdeens came to Canada in 1891 and spent the summer of that year in Hamil-ton, Ont. They traveled much, and while in British Columbia Lord Aberdeen bought a tract of 16,500 acres in the valley of Lake Okanagan. Before coming to Canada Lady Aberdeen had founded the Onward and Upward society, an association having for its object the presentation of a higher ideal of life to working women. It was in a desire to improve the condition of her own servants that Lady Aberdeen's idea first ook root. From this grew the association which now has a membership approaching which now has a membership approaching 10,000. This busy woman's good work in the establishment of the Irish village at the World's fair at Chicago was only a continuation of the work in which she has been engaged for years as president of the Irish Industries' association. The labor involved was very great. She visited towns, villages and districts all over Ireland selecting exhibits and suitable persons electing exhibits and suitable persons electing exhibits and suitable persons. land, selecting exhibits and suitable per-sons to take them in charge, and finally made it one of the most popular features on the Midway plaisance. Better than that, substantial benefits were reaped from the advertising by many an Irish lacemak-er and artisan at home. Lady Aberdeen was a conspicuous figure at the World's fair, where she was elected president of the world's congress for women, and just before leaving England in 1893 for Canada —Lord Aberdeen having been called sooner than was expected to accept the post of governor general—she accepted, in succession to Mrs. Gladstone, the presidency of the National Women's Liberal Federation. This is distinctively a partisan office and is largely honorary, since she is prevented nce from active participation in the ante-election work of the society. Lord Aberdeen is a man of considerable wealth, as riches in England are considered, and has a long rent roll. But the noble mistress of Haddo House does not entertain with the lavishness of some of her predecessors. For that reason-there can be no other-Lady Aberdeen is not as popular in Ottawa as she is elsewhere in Canada. But she is a devoted wife, a fond and indulgent mother, and her three children, Lady Marjory, and the two handsome young Gordons whose frank faces are hown in the accompanying picture, idolina er .- Buffalo Express.

The Mother as a dome Surse. While the children are small the mother of course, the family nurse. For many reasons this is as it should be, perhaps, but for a greater number the mother is the very last person to undertake the work, both on her own account and on that of the child she is to nurse.

In the first place, the mother argues in fa-vor of her affection for the child, while this vor of her affection for the child, while this same affection is the greatest argument against her real efficiency. By reason of her very feeling she is prevented from doing firmly and regularly all that is required in nursing. She "uses her judgment" when strict attention to orders is necessary. The patient cries and whines, and unless she is an exceptional mother the teaspoonful of hitter made very seant bitter medicine is either made very scant or the time for taking is delayed. She reor the time for taking is delayed. She resorts to coaxing and cajoling and persuading, all of which is deleterious to the patient and retards convalescence by inducing a condition of excitement.

A nurse trained for the purpose, or even an obliging neighbor or relative, is of far more advantage all around. She can see and will see that there is great regularity of treatment in the sickroom. She, having her mind free from other household ar-rangements and management, can give her undivided attention to the patient. her undivided attention to the patient. And she can do it with far less mental and

And she can do it with far less mental and physical strain than can the mother.

While the mother is making Mary's bed ar administering her medicine she has her aris constantly open to listen for baby's cries and her nose constantly titled to catch the odors asceneing from the kitchen, for any this way from her isolated regard. only in this way from her isolated perch can she judge whether the meals are being hurried or even being started on time. Her mind is in a constant strain devising plans, laying out future work, wondering what the children are at and tending the what the children are at and tending the patient. What wouder that the last inbibes from her nurse a restless frame of mind which affects her whole system, for, little as one may believe it, nothing is more quickly communicated to a patient than the mental atmosphere of the nurse. Now, then, for the mether herself.

THE ILLS OF LIFE. Almost all the ills of life arise from wrong action of the stomach, liver and bowels, therefore wisdom is shown by using Burdock Blood Bitters to regulate, strengthen and purify these organs, thus preventing and curing all diseases from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore.

Minurd's Liniment Cores Dandruff.

Housekeeping, with its multiform duties and demands, is, if well conducted, enough for one woman to contend with. Add to for one woman to contend with. Add to this the conditions previously spoken of, and what wonder that the tilness of the nurse so often follows that of the child or husband, and now some one must come in to take the mother's place. How manch better to have a nurse for the first invalid, and thus avoid the probability of a second, by leaving the mother to pursue her regular avocations without the added physical and mental labor entailed by watching beside the sickbed of one near and dear. The mere wear and tear upon the affections in witnessing sufferings one is not able to relieve is in itself strain enough to break many down.

many down. Hence, as we have argued, whoever may or may not be called upon to do it, a moth-er is the very last one to undertake the "home nursing." — Emma Churchman Hewitt in Home.

The Use of Coal.

A great many housekeepers do not know that there are two varieties of anthracite coal. The hapf anthracite kindles slowly, but gives a lasting and strong fire. It may be recognized by its red ash. It is a far more economical coal to buy for the range than the more common white ash or soft anthracite. The soft anthracite, however, will do better in the grate be-cause it makes a rather more luminous fire, possessing something of the brilliancy of bituminous coal, but none of its smoke. The soft anthracite is distinguished from the hard anthracite by its white ash. Probably the cook will prefer the white ash coal because it comes up quicker in the

There is about the same difference, however, in a fire made of pine or any soft wood and one made of hickory or oak as there is between a fire of white ash coal and one of red ash. The red ash coal gives out a more intense heat, insures a better oven and is a better fire for broiling. The best broiling is not done over coal, however, but over the redhot embers of a bickory fire. Even this fire is supersord a nick-ory fire. Even this fire is superseded now by the modern gas stove, where roasting and broiling are both done under the flame in a draft so that no taint of the gas can in a draft so that no taint of the gas can affect the meat.

The best kindling wood for a stove of range contains about equal amounts of hard and soft wood. It is utterly superfuous for any intelligent person to add korosene or asbestos soaked in kerosene. The latter is a contrivance frequently offered to assist in kindling the fire and practically indestructible and safe. It leaves, however, an unpleasant odor, like all such patent fire kindlers, and its use is entirely unnecessary.

If the paper is crumpled loosely and the kindling wood laid in loosely so as to allow air to hlow through the mass from beneath and reach the chimney through the drafts, there will be no difficulty in starting the fire. When the fire falls to burn, it is because there is some impediment to the drafts or because the kindling wood is damp.

The little bundles of kindling sold by The little bundles of kindling sold by the grocer are very apt to harbor water bugs and cockroaches, and for that reason careful housekepeers prefer to buy their wood by the quantity and keep it in the cost cellar. Where wood is needed for the fire in the morning it should be brought up the night before and left in the heating closet under the oven to dry. It is much more economical to buy wood by the cord or quarter cord than by the bundle.—New York Tribune.

The Rocking Chair Spine. "Weaver's thumb" and "housemaid" knee" are quite familiar terms, especially to those who are fond of perusing journals, medical and hygienic, but the "rocking chair spine" is less talked of, possibly because it is one of the possessions of those dwelling in more affluent circles and is what may be classed among the luxures

But it is none the less a clearly defined all, and one that often leads to consequences more serious than its primary condition might suggest.
Indolence and love of case are the inciting causes of this affliction, and genuine spinal disease has in many instan ts unfortunate climax. Strict hygienists and health culturist tell us that the rocking chair is an un-mixed evil. It perpetually changes the equilibrium of the body and agitates the circulation. It injures the eyes, as it continually changes the focus of whatever one may be looking at. It so disturbs the brain that physicians have forbidden mothers and nurses to rock delicate babies. It will thus be seen that the rocking chair begins its deadly mission very early in the lives of its victims, and it is equally true that they are very likely to keep up the mischief until they are ready to make their final exodus and slip from the rock-ing chair in to the grave.

The symptoms that first attract attention are a soreness and sensitiveness of the spine, usually that portion near or below the waist, and sometimes extending to the lower edges of the shoulder blades. There may be more or less indigestion accompanying it, and headaches are not infre

The trouble arises from an improper po sition in sitting. Instead of keeping the spinal column in a perpendicular position the lower part is bent forward, as one lounges in a chair with a soft cushion. The strain on one side of the spine caused by its curved shape after a time produce irritation, and if long continued inflam-mation of a serious character ensues. While there may not be fatal consequences there surely are much inconvenience and discomfort attending a weak or irritable state of the spinal column. Good health cannot exist with such a condition of affairs; neither can good spirits dwell in such body. Persons who experience a sense of weakness or weariness or a dull ache in the back will do well to take thought if they may have been too devoted to the rocking chair and its luxurious cushions. It is by physicians declared to be much better to rest either sitting upright or in a recumbent position rather than the loung-ing, half doubled up attitude that rocking chair devotees ordinarily assume. But the wide, welcoming arms of an easy chair are so alluring that it takes Spartan courage to give up such a delicious luxury.—New York Ledger.

Keeping a House Clean. The easiest and best way to keep a house clean is by daily attention to small things, and by not allowing it to get into such a state of dirtiness and disorder as to require test and periodical cleanings. Some mis-resses and also some servants seem to have it idea that a house should undergo great washing and serubling every three mont, or so, on which occasions the house is turned almost inside out and the inmates are rendered most uncomfortable. Waoden floors, if kept in order by daily sweepings and other small attentions, may be effectually cleaned by washing them with warm water and soap. But if spots of grease are to be removed these should be previously taken out with fuller's earth.

Rer life when her first-born nestles in her neck. Motherhood is a woman's duty and should be her joy. There are thousands of women to whom motherhood is a torture because of weakness and disease of the organs that make it possible. This is wrong and need not be. If a woman will but study the physiology of the organs distinctly feminine, and learn to take the proper remedy for weakness and disease peculiar to her sex, motherhood will become an unalloyed pleasure, where now it is dreaded and avoided for its pains and dangers.

The best medicine for a woman to take during the period preceding motherhood is Dr. Pierce's Ravorite Prescription. It is the only medicine for this purpose invented by a regularly graduated, skilled and expert specialist in the treatment of the peculiar diseases of women. It cures all weakness and disease of the organs that perpetuate the race. It makes them strong and vigorous. It rids the expectant period of its usual discomforts. It insures baby's health and makes its coming easy and almost painless. It is the discovery of Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalq, N. Y. Women who wish to know more of the "Favorite Prescription" should write him.

Frederick Frederick, of No. 1114 S. Second St. Camden, N. J., writes: "My wife is a customer of yours. She has used 'Pavorite Prescription' to prevent miscarriage. She had a sickness last july, and suffered untold misery from a severe pain. I repeatedly told her to use your medicines, but she persisted in going to a so called specialist, whose treatment only made her more sick and miserable. Then she used the 'Favorite Prescription' and was cured."

Pleasure. It is a matter of health alone. Nothing else. A healthy man can't be unhappy if he wants to. Much sickness is caused by constipation. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation.

Mr. Taylor stated that last Friday afternoon he and Mr. Mundy made an examination of the entrance to Little Lake, the government reserve, and found the same depth of water as at Mitchell's Bay. Mr. Alexander, a fisherman of 30 years' experience in these waters, stated that after careful these waters, stated that after careful observation he had come to the conclusion that the carp did more towards the distruction of base than all the seines drawn, and that to prohibit seines would only tend to increase carp at the expense of the other fish.

He also stated that the base never spawn in these waters before the 20th of May. These statements were corroborated by others present. It was a matter of regret to those present that the sportsmen did not attend this meeting. The meeting passed a vote of ing. The meeting passed a vote of thanks to Mr. Bechard for the use of the room, and adjourned to meet again at the call of the chairman.

NEW MARKET HOUSE. Aid. Mounteer reported that they examined the old market building and amined the old market building and found it utterly unfit for use. They recommended the erection of a new market building properly heated and ventilated; also that a small fee be charged until the building is paid for, and that in the meantime a by-law te submitted to the people asking power to raise $10,000 for the purpose by issuing thirty year debentures.

Ald. Smith opposed a $10,000 market house. It would be utterly unsuitable, he said, to put the free library over a noisy market, and the people would never vote $10,000. He ught $7,000 or $8,000 quite suf-

The mayor said more extensive quarters were certainly necessary for the library. These they did not expect to seenre for less than $400 a year.

Ald. Smith—Your actions are very peculiar, your worship. You went to Toronto to try and knock the free library by law out in 1894. Now you are upholding the idea of running the library on a more extravagant basis than ever.

The mayor said it was very true be did try to knock the by law out but didn't succeed. Now they had the library he wanted it run on the most efficient but economical basis possible.

The report of the committee was adopted and power given to prepare a by-law for submission to the people to endorse an issue of $10,000 worth of debentures for a new market house.

R. G. Fieming asked for instructions concerning the vacating of the old market house. Ald. Sounteer said a months notice was sufficient. It would be too bad to turn the tenents out and then have the by-law for the new building defeated. The Council agreed to leave the matter to the market committee to have the building cleared when necessary.

Ald. Blight was added to the market

Sulman moved a select commit-ceisting of Ald. Arnold, O'Keeffe, heer, McPhee and himself, to con-the necessary steps for the reduc-or the number of wards. The law will not permit the abalition of wards altogether, and it was suggested that the committee patition the legislature for this power. A repert will be brought in at next council meeting. Aid. Sulman called attention to the necessity for a crossing at the corner of Murray and Church streets, but Ald. Blight said it could not be put down at this season.

The by-law for the purchase of an electric light plant, was read a third time in conformity with the law.

Londoners may yet Make a Bid for it.

However, their Chances Against Chatham are not very Bright.

Local wheelmen are beginning to dis-cuss in earnest the question of the C. W. A. meet for 1897, and whether or not it will be a wise move to have it in London. The London Bicycle Club in particular is devoting no small amount of attention to the matter, and already committees have been appointed by that organization to "feel" the mer-chants and citizens generally and ob-

That it is pretty near time for London to again have the big meet is not denied, for over fifteen years have elapsed since the C. W. A. was here. Then the association was only two or three years of age, and small in point of numbers: high wheels were all the rage and low wheels were unthought of, and it was then that Jim Lamb, of this city, was at his best. The meet was held on the old Exhibition grounds. and the races were run on the sandy horse track, in the presence of a few thousand persons. Year by year since then the big meet has gone from place to place, until the principal cities and towns in Ontario and Quebec have been favored with it; and year by year the ssociation has grown in strength, until the annual meet is an event of no small importance, for it brings to a place for three days thousand upon thousands of people, who spend their money freely. London has always been well repre-sented at the meets, and now its wheelmen are convinced that the gath-ering of 1897 should be held here. The city is suitably situated, and it has one of the best third of a mile tracks—if not the best—in Canada. The management of a meet such as the C. W.

A. involves an immense amount of work and the expenditure of large sums of money in advertising, etc. and only once in the history of the association has a meet been held without loss to the club conducting it. That was at Waterloo a year or two That was at Waterloo a year or two since: The meet, however, is a big advertisement for a place, and sets in circulation with the railways, merchants and hotel proprietors large sums of cash, which might otherwise remain unspent. When the meet was held in Quebec the council of that city joined with the local clubs and made a very liberal donation of $2,000 to help the good thing along, while the business men gave guarantees to come to the assistance of the clubs in case the meet was a financial failure.

Of course, London's wheelmen do not f r a moment expect that the city cour-merchants to give guarantees, as they are the class that will receive the most benefit. Prompt action will have to be taken by the London club, as already Brantford has scattered throughout the country flaring posters, asking wheel-men to vote for the meet for that city. Chatham is also understood to be after it, but London's claim is stronger than either of those places. In fact, London has just to speak for the meet, as it was virtually promised at the last annual meeting of the association.

Some of the local riders are a little timid over the matter, while others are very anxious to have the championships run off on Tecumseh Park.

'There is no cause for fear at all,' one of the latter said recently. 'I waited on eleven business men in one day, and I got guarantees to the amout of $500. They would all follow suit, if once they were satisfied that the wheelmen would go in for it, heart and soul."

The old story of Prometheus is parable. Prometheus was on terms of intimacy with the gods. From them intimacy with the gods. From them he stole fire, and gave it to men. For this sin he was bound to the rocks of Mount Caucassus, and vultures were set upon him. They only ate his liver. This grew again as fast as it was pecked away. Are his sufferings to be imagined?

Take a modern interpretation of the parable. There is no cooking without fire. In cooking and eating the mischief lies. The stomach is overtasked, the bowels become clogged, they cannot dispose of the food that is given them. The impurities back up the liver. Then come the vultures—the torments of a diseased liver. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is more than equal to the vultures of dyspepsia and its kindred diseases. There is no more need of suffering from dyspepsia than there is of hanging one's self. Sold by all medicine dealers the world over.

"A GLASS OF BEER."

The William Street Baptist church was filled last evening when Rev. E. O. Taylor rose to deliver his earnest and Taylor rose to deliver his earnest and eloquent lecture on "A glass of beer." In opening the lecturer put the query—what is temperance? and answered in a definite manner. Fifty years ago, he said, temperence was defined as the moderate use of liquor, but this definition was no good to day for the reason that it had been learned that it was of no definite food value. Temperance was not the moderate use of any pure and simple drug, divested of its food value and capable of doing positive harm. Temperance was the moderate use of things good in their essential nature, but total abstinence for all things bad in their essential composition.

The lecturer placed alcabol in the class of narcotics and irritant poisons. It had a local affinity for the brain and It had a local affinity for the brain and unbalanced the higher faculties and rendered dominant the impulses of animal nature, thus leading to crime and accounting for the fact that the saloon and the brothel are generally found in intimate relations. He claimed that the drink habit lead on physical grounds he the arcticles and logical grounds be the social vice, and that the government was under obligathat the government was under obliga-tions to protect its citizens against the use of a deadly drug of which they know little, the same as it legislated against the indiscriminate sale of others of like character.

Our friends also cabled that fresh buying was starting there. Market quickly railied 1.4c from low point and closed with firm undertone at about highest point of the day. Bristsh Market - Canada v Largest Trade Mr. Davies Says, Whose Preference is for Trade With Great Britain-American Manufacturer Has Everything to Gain by the Arrangement Proposed.

Washington, Feb. 8 .- Sir Richard Cartwright, Canadian Minister of Trade and Commerce, and Hon. L. H. Davies, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, for the Dominion, who arrived in Washington on Thursday last, are making the most of their visit to the National Capital. During the past few days they have had interviews more or less extended with Secretary Olney, Speaker Reed, Senator Sherman and other prominent Republicans and gress. To the United Associated Presses reporter to-day Sir Richard and Mr. Davies outlined the basis upon which such a treaty could be drawn.

"In the first place," said Mr. Davies, "please make it clear to the American people that we believe closer trade relations should exist between the two countries, and that a commission, con-sisting of two Americans and two Canadians, should be appointed to consider the general sociect of recipro-city and report to their respective Governments if a commercial treaty be

It was suggested to Mr. Davies that the American farmers along the north-ern frontier would protest vigorously against any recipiocity which included an exchange of the natural products of the soil. "But," interjected Sir Richard, "'our people raise the same objection. Our people raise the same objection. Our agriculturists fear American competition quite as strongly as the American farmers fear Canadian competition. During the past three months, while our Tarin Commission was giving its hearings at Ottawa, we were constantly reminded that American competition would be fatal to Canadian interests. The Canadian its in the ests. The Canadians living in the Niagara peninsula were most insistent that the partiers should not be thrown that the carriers should not be thrown down. They asserted that the American grape and the American strawberry would, if protection were removed, flood our country and destroy their interests."

"Similar objections were made by our farmers with reference to a free exchange of other products. The truth is," continued Sir Richard, "the quality of some of our articles is shperior to yours. On the other hand, the Americans raise certain articles which are superior in quality to ours. For example, our wheat is better in quality generally speaking, than that of America. Your corn is superior to ours. This is true of a large number of articles. Those natural products which develop better in a warmer climate are superior on your side of the line to wars. Other products of ducts which develop better in a warmer climate are superior on your side of the line to ours. Other products of the soil, which are more natural to a cold climate, are produced better by us. There is no reason why the people of both countries should not enjoy the superior products of Canada and America at the lowest price instead of purchasing an inferior article for the same money."

"Laying aside the question of na-

"Laying aside the question of natural products, to what extent would the manufacturers of the United States be benefited by such an arrangement?" Sir Richard was asked.

"The trade of the United States with Canada." replied Sir Richard, "would be greatly stimulated. We are to-day your best customers. We purchase more largely per capita in the American market than Great Britain does. Our trade with the United States aggregates $100,000,000, of which the larger share is in favor of the United States. Under the stimulus of reciprocity this trade could be expanded to $00,000,000 a year, with the same relative advantage on the side of the United States. We estimate it this way: We have a population of five millions of people, which is equal to the population of one of your larger States. There is little, if any, difference between the two peoples. We speak the same tongue, we are descendants of the same race, the climatic and soil conditions are similar, and there is no difference in temperament and feeling. Your statistics show that the trade in this country between two and soil conditions are similar, and there is no difference in temperament and feeling. Your statistics show that the trade in this country between two states having populations of five millions each amounts annually to about 1206,000,000. I think trade between the States and Canada, with a liberal measure of reciprocity, would equal, if it did not exceed that amount."

"Are the Canadians large consumers of American manufactures?"

"Our largest trade with the United States," replied Sir Richard, "is in these articles. We purchase comparatively few manufactured products from Great Britain. We purchase from the home country our woolen manufactures, a certain brand of extra fine prints, cotton cloths and books of a certain quality. This practically covers our trade with Great Britain. On the other hand, nearly everything we need in the line of manufactures would, under reciprocity, come from this side of the line. Our manufactures would under reciprocity, come from this compecition, but that is to be expected. I might observe in this connection that our trade with Great Britain has suffered a steady decline. During the 25 years I have been in Parliament it has decreased from $68,000,000 to $22,000,000 annually with a corresponding increase in favor of the United States."

"It will result," said Mr. Davies, who at this point again took part in the conversation, "in an enlargement of our trade with Great Britain. We must trade somewhere and shall naturally trade where we can make the best bargain. We have in Canada today a large element whose influence is thrown in the direction of a more extended trade with the Mother Country as against the United States. We Canadians believe that our trade should flow through natural channels, and this natural channel inclines to this country. If we can't trade with America we shall be compelled to trade with Great Britain, and once these intimate relations are established with the Mother Country it will be difficult to break them. The effect of Canadian competition can only be felt immediately along your northern border, dian competition can only be felt immediately along your northern border, while on the other hand the manufacturers of the United States will becure a greatly enlarged market. I do not believe that the effect of Canadian competition is felt to any extent except along the northern fringe of your northernmost States. As Sir Richard has said, our Canadian agriculturists fear American competition quite as keenly as the Americans fear Canadian competition, so that there is practically little difference between them. On the other hand the American manufacturer has nothing to fear, he has everything to gain by such an ar-

The results of the second post mortem were detailed by Dr. Johnson, the others present having been Dr. Arm-strong, Dr. Richardson and Dr. W. R. strong, Dr. Richardson and Dr. W. R. Waiters, all of whom agreed in the results. The examination showed that the greater portion of the arms and legs had been burned away, but that the trunk and head remained. The head was turned to the right, and the right arm, or what was left of it, was raised. There was an irregular cut upwards in the throat below the Adam's apple, and the evidences were that smoke had been inhaled and, therefore, that the boy had been breathing when the fire reached him. The wound in the throat was not necessarily fatal. The razor blade produced could have inflicted the wound.

"SONG OF THE SHIRT."

Everybody is familiar with the old, pathetic poem, with its melancholy refrain

Stitch, Stitch, Stitch!

But there are shirts and shirts. The garments made by overworked and underpaid seamstresses in the old land may well excite the horrified comment :

Oh, God, that bread should be so dear, And flesh and blood so cheap.

Those handled in this store are not the product of white-slave labor, but the work of skilled makers, aided by the most improved machinery; and each and all have been turned out at prices which not only renumerate the sewer, but also the maker of the material and the manufacturer in whose establishment they were produced. And yet, so well adjusted are the various items of cost, these goods come to the retailer at a figure astonishingly low. This House in particular, can testify on the subject; for it effected a big purchase recently at a take-'em-all quotation. Now it purposes letting its customers into the deal.

The Margin of Profit is so Small

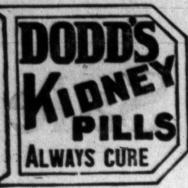

That only in a general clearance can it show at all. That clearance is our object for the next few days.

Bare, low, tawny hills, With bluer heights beyond, And the air is sweet with spring, But when will the earth respon Prairie that rolls for leagues,

Dusky and golden pale.

Like a stirless sea of waves,

Unbroken by ship or sail.

The hollows are dark with brush And black with the wash of showers And ragged with bleaching wreck Of the ranks of the tall sundowers.

No cloud in the blue, no stir
Save the shrill of the wind in the grass,
And the meadow lark's note, and the call
Of the wind borne crows that pass. Bare, low, tawny hills.
With bluer heights beyond,

Society In New York City to Beautif Without doubt the Tree Planting association of New York has undertaken a most beneficent work. So far as it proves to be practicable, it will contribute as much as any other scheme that could be projected for the embellishment of the city. The incorporators are to a considerable extent the same as the incorporators of the Botanic gardenmen well known for public spirit and intelligence. Thus the society begins under the most favorable possible auspices, for caution and discrimination as well as for enterprise. Of course its work will be largely experimental. There are streets, even resiiential streets, in New York in which it may not be wise to attempt tree planting at all, for the reason that the space cannot be spared, either from the sidewalk or the roadway, for the boxes that must protect the young trees or for the trunks of such as live to maturity. Even in those streets in which there is room enough for trees there are many places in which no trees can thrive by reason. of the lack of sunshine, and, indeed, there are scarcely any streets in New York below the park in which trees can be expected to do so well as in a place like Washington, where the streets are so wide and the buildings so low as to give all trees that may be planted a fair chance for life. Almost the only streets in New York that are as favorably sitnated are the Broadway boulevard and the Riverside drive. The boulevard has been until within the past few months dismal monument to municipal neglect. Now it is kept in order, but time is required to replace the trees that have been allowed to die, and the double row of trees that were meant "high over-arched to embower" does not embower at all, but presents upon the whole a scraggy and dismal spectacle. This, of course, comes mainly from neglect, for there is no reason why trees in this thoroughfare should not thrive if they can be made to thrive anywhere in New York. The general introduction of electric lighting will do much for the trees unless gas is still carried through the ground for fuel. It is given out that uncontaminated earth will be used for the setting of the new trees, but, judging from what we have experienced in the opening of Fifth avenue for a sewer and the previous openings of other avenues for laying cables, the percolation of the gas through the fresh soil would f only weeks at the longest. The new association is plainly destined to encounter many obstacles. If it succeeds in gaining even a partial victory over them, it will entitle itself to the gratitude of all New Yorkers.—New York Times.

Musical Recitation.

Although the Quakers, as a sect, do not favor music, regarding it as a profit-less amusement indulged in by the world's people, there are occasionally stories told which show that the love of music sometimes steals its way into a Quaker household in spite of discipline.

George Thompson, the famous English abolitionist, while lecturing on the abolition of slavery in the British provinces, stopped one night with a Quaker family. He was a great lover of music, and at that time was a good singer.

During the evening he sang "Oft In the Stilly Night," which was listened to with the closest attention.

In the morning his Quaker hostess appeared somewhat uneasy. She wished to hear the soug again, but it would hardly do, she thought, for her to request its repetition. At last, however, her desire overcame her scruples. "George," she sald, with a faint pink color in her soft cheeks, "will thee repeat the words of last evening in thy usual manner?"-Youth's Companion.

A PUZZLING PARIS HOUSE.

Has Two Spiral Stairways Which Look One of the greatest curiosities of Paris is the house with the double staircase

It does not figure in the guidebook and is not among the places of interest that are photographed, but, for all that, it is of greater interest than many of the things that come within this class.

This house has entrances at 35 Rue Radzivill and at 18 Rue de Valois. It is in the quarter of the Palais Royal-that palace now given up largely to restaurants and cheap jewelry shops, and once the residence of the most licentious of French princes, the regent d'Orleans. The quarter is one of the most central in Paris, and all Americans who have been in Paris know it, but the house, which is a few steps from the Palais Royal, the Ruede Rivoli and the Louvre, escapes general attention because it faces on dark and narrow streets.

Each staircase begins on opposite sides of the central space of the house and is continued separate right up to the roof. They are in a graceful spiral form. The house is nine stories high, a very con-siderable height for one so old. As you look up the wall you can hardly realize that there is more than one stairway.

The result of this arrangement is that one stairway takes you to the first floor apartment on the right, the second floor on the left, and so on. The other stairway takes you to the first floor on the left, the second floor on the right, and so on. You must be very careful to choose the right stairway when you are going to an apartment, otherwise you may mount as far as the sixth floor and find yourself on the wrong side of the house. It is just as well then to go to the top and come down by the other stairway.

It is difficult to describe the puzzling effect of this contrivance on those who see it for the first time. No more ingenious contrivance for exciting profanity and causing confusion was ever designed by architect. The beauty lies in its simplicity, which gives it an advantage over secret doors and such laporious devices

It is a favorite trick with those who know the house to take moderately intoxicated friends to see it. The man who knews tells his friend to go up stairs. Then he goes up himself by the opposite stairway. When he has gone ap about two stories, he leans over the balustrade and tells his friend to join him. The inebriate endeavors to do so, running up and down stairs, but never able to catch the other. - New York

GREAT GRAPE INDUSTRY.

The management of the vineyard is an interesting study and one which to be successful requires technical knowledge. In the large vineyards, as a rule, the owner himself gives personal supervision to every detail. Sometimes a manager or overseer performs these duties. One of the largest growers in this section tells me that the most successful grower is the foreigner, who, with his family of eight or ten, comes and leases or buys 25 or 50 acres of land, each member of the family having his or her part in the work to perform from spring until picking time, while the winter is devoted to the making of the baskets Thus no outside expenditure is incurred, and when the grapes are sold the pro ceeds return to the family as the profit on the individual labor of each member, quite in contrast with the large owner, who is compelled to hire help to do each little thing in addition to buying his

The Concord grape is the only variety of any consequence raised in this region, and some idea of the magnitude of the business carried on may be had when it is known that the shipments for one year from Chautauqua county alone will amount to 3,500 carloads, 8,000 baskets of 10 pounds each in each car. These are taken from the grower by come one of the numerous growers' associations, whose business it is to find a market. Strange as it may seem, it is nevertheless true that three-fourths of them go to points west of Chicago, while the other one-fourth travels eastward.

The making of baskets is an imporant item. Many factories are employed. The price ranges from 2 to 2 1/2 cents per basket. Thus the grower who would find his business in any way profitable must, in addition to the cost of the basket, realize at least I cent per pound for his grapes, while today it is a common thing to find a ten pound basket on the retail market slow sale at 10 cents. Thus we find that the utmost care must be taken in the management of a vine-yard to make it profitable.—Chautan-

ABSENT, YET PRESENT.

As the flight of a river My soul rushes ever In tumult to thee.

I am where thou art; My heart in the distance Beats close to thy heard. Look up. I am near thee,

I gaze on thy face; see thee. I hear thee, I feel thine embrace.

As a magnet's control on
The steel it draws to it,
Is the charm of thy soul on
The thoughts that pursue it.

And absence but brightens The eyes that I miss, And custom but heightens The spell of thy kiss.

It is not from duty.
Though that may be owed,—
It is not from beauty.
Though that be bestowed;

But all that I care for, And all that I know, Is that, without wherefore, I worship thee so.

Through granite as breaketh A tree to the ray. As a dreamer forsaketh The grief of the day.

My soul in its fever
Escapes unto thee;
O dream to the griever,
O light to the tree!

A twofold existence I am where thou art;
Hark, hear in the distance
The beat of my heart!

The Family Washing.
One of the things that surprise foreign soursekeepers, notably Frenchwomen, when they come over here is our cumbrous somestic machinery. Particularly are they amased that it should be such an almost universal custom to have the family washing done at home. It is bad enough in the dwellings that shelter only one family boneath their roofs, but laundry work going on in the little sets of rooms in the markument houses fairly startles the Parit spartment houses fairly startles the Pari-sian chatelaine. That this custom must be changed sooner or later seems inevita-ble. So much of co-operative housekeep-ing could be adopted with profit to him or them who would undertake it and with enormous addition to the comfort and con-venience of living. The nearest approach to this millennium at the moment is the wheme of some of the laundries to take the family washing by the pound. Five onts per pound on all bundles of five pounds or over is charged, a price which includes the ironing of certain flat pieces like towels and bed linen. The starched pieces are returned starched and dried and ready to dampen and iron, and the other pieces rough dried. If such a system will pay in isolated establishments with neces-sarily limited artscrages it deserves a trial carily limited patronage, it deserves a trial can a wholesale plan.—New York Post.

The Hungarian Housekeeper. The mistress of a large household in Hungary has need to be a very capable ewife, for she is cumbered with many cares. You must boil your own scap, mold your own candles, dry your own s, prepare your own candied fruits, smoke your own sausages, cure your own hams, bettle your own compotes, make your own vinegar, store your own fruits and vegetables, butter and cheese for win-ter use, grind your own maize for culinary purposes, grow your own wine, act as your own butcher and poulterer, laundress and mstress. The eye of the mistress must be everywhere, even though she invariably has a housekeeper under her. Servants ge much smaller wages, work harder and live less comfortably, but they are very inde pendent, and there is absolutely no stand-ard of personal morality among them.—H. Ellen Browning in "Wanderings in Hun-

A Leg of Mutton. An ordinary leg of mutton, says a fa-mons chef, can be transformed beyond rec-

mous chef, can be transformed beyond recognition by the following treatment:

Remove the bone and season the meet with a teaspoonful such of ground ginger and cinnamon and a quarter of a teaspoonful of pepper, cloves and mace, mixed with a pint of hot vinegar in which a bouquet of herbs has been placed. Rub the mutton with this preparation and set it in a cold, dry place for a day and a half. Then stuff it with a head of celery, chopped fine, cooked till tender, mixed with a pint of white sauce and seasoned when cold with a can of chopped numbrooms and half a peund of chopped almonds. Set aside for a day and then roset in a hot oven, basting censtantly with a mixture made of equal tantly with a mixture made of equa quantities of strained tomatoes and rice

A Hall Seat.

A hall seat seems to be what is needed in many halls, but every housekeeper can not afford an old oak or mahogany settee or even have one built of pine and stained to match the woodwork in the room. A plain wooden bench, such as is to be found in every house furnishing store, stained to imitate cherry or oak, makes a nice looking settee. Make a box cushion for the top, covering it with sumptuously colored cretonne, corduroy or some inexpensive material, tufting it by tacking down, ith covered buttons. Put a 12 inch flounce upon the cushion, box plaining it on, and pretty hall seat .- New York Sun.

The Decorative Ironing Tab The combination ironing table that can The combination ironing table that can be turned into a seat has been put to other than kitchen use by some clever women. One had been stained a deep olive green and had the seat upholstered with clive corduroy fastened with white nails. Another seat, stained an oak color, had a pattern on the back picked out with fancy headed wrought iron nails. The one was covered with figured burlap in oak color, fastened in place with the same kind of nails used on the back. A seat of the kind in a bedroom is painted with white enamel and has the seat covered with scarlet.

Take 18 grains of powdered white castile scap, 5 fluid drams of strong squa am-monia, 24 grains of granulated saltpeter. First dissolve the soap in a pint of warm, not water; then add the saltpeter, and after it has dissolved add the ammonia. after it has dissolved add the ammoula. Set aside overnight, or the equivalent of ten heurs, and then it is ready to use. Take a cloth or small sponge and after wringing it out of this mixture gently rub the tie until all dirt disappears. Use this on white or dark ties and fine silk and wool goods. It can be made for about 10 cente per pint.

To Polish Steel Goods.

The most unresponsive metal for a housekeeper to attack is steel. Rub and polish as one will, unless a certain secret be known there is still the dull look, and the hardware dealer will only advise the expensive expedient of sending the article to be ground at the factory. The old fash-sened knife brick; however, will work wonders here by simply buying it pow-dered, mixing with sweet oil and rubbing on freely. Allow this to dry on; then pol-iab briskly and finish off with emery pow-

Breasing Room Tables.

Small, round tables, that look at first glance like those intended for smokers' use, serve a valuable surpose in a lady's dreading room. They have attached to their polished tops all paraphernalia needed to crimp the heir, including safety matchbox, aloehol laup, with tongs standard, hairpin tray and bandoline jar. The tables are in oak or mahogany finish and the attachments in various metals, brass, mickel or silver.

A woman who likes to have uncommon taings in her home has discovered that the slear glass jars such as are used for electric batteries make admirable flower holders. She gots them at an electrical supply heuse, and at one visit found an old jar 3 fact high and not more than 5 inches assess, into which a trio of American Beauty roses goes with rare effect.

Study Your Children

It is an evidence of the advance of knowledge that the wise parent today studies his child and measures his physical development by the physical standard that science has established. He keeps himself in touch with the best knowledge. Foods are no longer considered merely the natural prevision to meet the demands of hunger, but as the remethes, the protection, the substitutes provided to meet the physical needs of each body. This is one of the results of child study. Precociousness and stupidity are regarded as symptoms, and no longer as the cause of pride or shame. The physical causes are studied. or shame. The physical causes are studied.

If the child is stupid, his sight, his hearing may be at fault. If he does not spell, an effort is made to discover whether he is an effort is made to discover whether he is stone deaf. If he grows tired quickly, sommon sense seeks to discover whether his chair and his desk are suited to his height. If he is irritable, it becomes a question of food. If he does not develop physically, it becomes a question of exer-cise and nutrition. The temple of the Holy Ghost is considered as worthy of the best care and intelligence that time and best care and intelligence that time and education have developed.—Outlook.

The Housemaid.

A comely, tidy maid, gowned in blue and white in the morning and black and white at night, if imbued with your cordial warmth and consideration for others, will learn to be a sort of expression of the spirit of the house. The way in which she widely opens the door, as if hoping the guest will enter, will be a vicarious welcome. A door barely opened, threatening to close, as if there was a suspicion that the ovecroats were unsafe, is not an uncommon piece of bad manners, and a servant with discretion enough to show you the respect to allew you to enter if you desire, or if an old friend, or "a cousin from the country," to make you comfortable, to take your wraps, stir the fire and offer you a cup of tea, is a jewel only to be found where the atmosphere is full of cordial friendliness. Such a one at dinner absolutely appeals to you to partake by her dgft handling of the dishes and gives by her bright watchfulness of your likes and dislikes a sense of personal care which is comically gratifying.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Teapot.

A terrible mistake of housekeepers is to leave the coffeepot and teapot on the back of the stove to steep all day. It is a fruitful source of dyspepsia and indigestion. Never set tea aside unless in a glass jar or pitcher for leed tea. Heated over, it is simply vile. Coffee, if you must economize that way, should be poured off into a bowl or pitcher and covered closely. Over the grounds pour a cupful of boiling water, shake and let simmer three minutes, then pour into the bowl and throw the grounds away and wash and dry the coffeepot. This will insure you sweet coffee. To make the coffee, grind fine the necessary amount. pour the liquid saved carefully into the pot, so se not to stir up the grounds. In a teacup mix a tablespoonful of coffee to each person, "and one for the pot," with half the white of an egg. When the liquid is boiling, dash the coffee in, stirring briskly for a moment. Fill the pot with boiling water—measured, mind you, one cup for each—and set to steep gently for five min-

Sometimes a "green" housekeeper buys a tough hen unawares, and then she tears her hair because it is not fit to eat when baked. Drees fowl and hang it up over night to freeze. Put to boil in hot water as soon as the fire is made and keep it boiling for three hours. If in hard water, put a pinch of soda as large as a butter bean in the water. Do not salt. Two hours before dinner lift from the water; dress and stuff lard it with nice sweet bacon or fat pork, and bake in a medium oven, basting often. The hen will be tender as spring chicken. The water in which it was boiled will make delicious soup, with bits of chicken shredded in it, for the second day, and makes delicious stock for hashed chicken

The Foot Box.

The fashionable woman now cares for her feet as cazefully as for her hands, and a foot box is as necessary to her as a mani-cure set. The box is a good sized one, and contains everything required for the well being of both shoes and feet. For the former there are various kinds of dressing fluids for taking stains out of satin, brushes for removing dust, spools of silk and waxed shoe thread, a cobbler's needle, thimble shoe thread, a cobbier's needle, thimble and scissors, quantities of laces of all col-ors and assorted buttons, while for the pedal extremities themselves there are pro-vided instruments for amateur surgical treatment, scaps, salves and bandages, the last being intended principally for the cor-rection of disfigurements caused by long use of shoes that do not fit.

Bags are a hobby with some women They delight in all kinds for many differ ent purposes. One of this class had a bag hung near her desk for receipted bills, bung near her desk for receipted bills, which she looks over in December and puts away, the beg being large enough to hold a year's bills. She claims the stout linen hag is preferable to bux or drawer in desk. Putting away summer stockings is an art in this same woman's case. "It is such a comfort," she says, "to find them ready for use in the spring," so instead of being thrown in a pile into some drawer or trunk, they are mended, rolled up in pairs and put away in chints bags, each memand put away in chintz bags, each mem-ber of the family having one of these bags hung up in the dark corner of his chamber

English Nursery Breakfast.
The bacon which is one of the most poplar nursery dishes in English house is quite different from that usually eaten here. It is not smoked and is home cured, sweet and delicious. It is sliced very thin, cooked very quickly to be just done through, and is eaten hot, but not dried up, on slices of bread. English physicians consider this the best of food for growing children and as valuable as cod liver oil in tissue building. tissue building. A typical nursery break-fast in a well to do English household is natureal purridge, with rashers of bacon, marmalade and cambric tea and coffee made with much rich milk and very little

A Woman's Purse.

Mrs. Levi P. Morton says: "A woman's purse is a woman's pride. She dotes upon it, and inciste that it shall always be absolutely correct. When the fashion changes, her purse must change. A woman's purse is indicative of a woman's taste. She who is dainty carries a dainty purse, but she who is powerful and strong and a leader carries a hig purse that is, like her brain, a sterabouse for many things. The practice does create trouble now and then. But the cases are really rare. And a disturbance is only aroused when the woman lesse her head as well as her purse." A Woman's Pures.

Reported Refugees From Canes Fed the French Foreign Minister, Intimates That Great Britain Has Violated Inter national Law in Egppf-General News

Brass, Guinea Coast, Feb. 8.-The King of Benin, who caused the massacre of Consul Phillips' party, to avenge which a punitive expedition is now being fitted out under the super-vision of Rear Admiral Rawson, C. B., Commander-in-Chief of the British Cape of Good Hope station, has sent a message saying that if the whites choose to fight he will come and fight them with his soldiers at the waterside as they land. The King says that if his soldiers are killed he will send more and if these are killed he will re-tire to the backwoods.

THE CRETAN TROUBLE

London, Feb. 8.-In the House of Commons to-day Right Hon. George N. Curzon, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, stated that the rumors of a massacre in Crete were unfounded. It was true that there had been some firing there, but the loss of life had been small. During the firing he said the Turkish troops are reported to have conducted themselves in an exemplary manner and there was practically no plundering. Mr. Curzon said that 5000 retugees had embarked from Canea, and that place was now perfectly quiet. As there had been a scarcity of food reported at Canea the admiral in command of the British Mediterranean squadron had sent a troopship with biscuits and meat sufficient to feed twoive hundred persons for a fortnight. Two thousand refugees were on board the British warships at Canea, Mr. Curzon said, and the last of the fugitives were taken off by the Greek war vessels. tically no plundering. Mr. Curzon said

Athens, Feb. 8.—Advices received here to-day from Canea say the Greek squadron has arrived at that port, and that upon arriving failed to salute the Turkish flag, according to custom. The officer in command of the British warships at Canea paid a visit to the commander of the Greek vessels immediately upon their arrival.

The despatches also say that the Christians and Moslems at Retymo, Crete, are massing in opposition to one another and making all preparations for a battle.

Two Rundred Buildings Burnt. Canea, Island of Crete, Feb. 8 .- It is officially announced that the fires started by Mussulmans in the Chris-tian quarter have been quenched. In all, according to the official report, 200 buildings have been destroyed, and 5000 Christians have fied. Of this num-ber 2000 are on board British warships. The Greek warships have taken ships. The Greek warships have taken the remainder of the Christian refugees. In conclusion, the report says that tranquility reigns in the town and in the vicinity, and that the Turkish treops throughout behave in an orderly manner. No excesses are reported on their part, and it is asserted that there had been no plundering.

United States papers on the Pacific Coast are once more handling the Alaska boundary question, pointing out an alleged disagreement between the

for reporting the lecture, and there is a very strong suspicion that it was not desired that the newspapers should have a verbatim report. All of the arrangements were of a "hole-in-the-corner" character, and the general public is resenting the manner in which Dr. Nansen's agents and publishers are reserving his explorations. Dr. Nansen's reception compares badly with that accorded to Henry M. Stanley upon his feturn from Africa. The conduct of the explorer's campaign here gives the impression that the object of the expedition was simply to make money, and that the benefit to science was a small consideration, especially an alleged disagreement between the Canadian and American surveyors and the possibility of friction before an agreement is reached. All this tilk is mere guess work. A comparison of Rome, Feb. 8.—A grand ball was given this evening by Wayne MacVeagh, the American Ambassador, and Mrs. MacVeagh, at their residence, the Palace Piombino. There was a large assemblage of guests. Among them were King Humbert, Queen Margherita, the members of the Cabinet, the diplomatic corps, all the prominent members of Roman society and a number of Americans who had previously been presented to Queen Margherita at a soirce. the two surveys show that at Forty-Mile Creek, Fort Cudahy, the largest settlement on the Yukon, the 141st meridian, the international boundary as run by the American surveyors only shows a difference of six feet from that defined by Mr. William Ogilvie, the well-known Canadian surveyor. At another point, where there are nei-ther mines nor population, there was a difference of 600 feet in the two sur-veys, but in this case the United States gherita-at a soirce.

The MacVeaghs will leave Rome up-gave Canada credit for 200 yards more territory than Mr. Wgilvie did. All along where the line has been run the difference is so, small comparatively that it is thought in official circles here there will be very little difficulty in reaching an agreement. The Journal has a very sympathetic reference to the late Patents Commis reference to the late Patents Commis-rioner Pope, who died yesterday and was a native of Toronto. It says: "In addition to his enlightened and far-peeing views of the place the mineral wealth of Canada held in any

Mr. Pope at once saw the needs of the hour and organized the Quebec Volunteer Rifle Association, thus showing the Imeprial authorities at a time when it was most wanted, that the sympathy of Canadians went out to them in the trying time. In his official life those who came most close-ly in contact with Mr. Pope speak warmly of his unvarying urbanity and kindliness. His administration of the various public offices showed him to various public offices showed him to be an honest, active, painstaking public officer. The civil service owes him a debt of gratitude for preparing the case of the service in the cause of Leprohon v. the City of Ottawa, on assessment of the civil service incomes. R. H. Williams, President of the Regina Board of Trade, on behalf of that body, asked for the abolition of the dutids on wagons, cotton, coal oil, agricultural implements and other articles used by settlers.

At the afternoon session J. H. Ashdown, ex-president of the Winnipeg Board of Trade, dealt with the duties on hardware and building materials, urging reductions.

F. W. Thompson, manager of the Ogilvie Milling Company, adduced arguments in support of maintaining the duty on wheat and flour in the interest of farmers as well as millers.

A farmers' delegation presented a largely signed memorial declaring it would be disastrous to take the duty off wheat and grain.

Another delegation asked that the duty on pig iron be maintained, also the bounty of two dollars per ton.

The tariff inquiry goes on to-morrow morning. A delegation of forty representative farmers, one from each Manitoba electoral district, will then be heard.

GOT THE ICY SHOULDER. Don M. Dickinson Says the United States Commissioners Were Coldly Received in Victoria.

San Francisco, Febi 8.—Don M. Dickinson, chief counsel for the United States in the pending international enquiry into the amount of damages due to British sealing vessels on account of seizure by United States cutters in Behring Sea, arrived here last night from Victoria. B. C. When the United States commissioners first appeared in Victoria, said Mr. Dickinson, they were looked upon in their official capacity with very great disfavor. The witnesses introduced to give testimony favorable to the side of the United States were tabooed and were generally made to feel that they were very unpopular with the people of Victoria. But notwithstanding all these disparaging conditions, the United States commissioners were able to bring out all the facts they wished to establish. This antagonistic feeling in Victoria was one of the very important factors. San Francisco, Febr 8 .- Don M.

feeling in victoria was one of the very important factors.

It is estimated that 15 per cent, of the total business capital of Victoria is invested in the ocean sealing business. Those primarily interested are all sallors and men engaged in the marine business, but their success and their microcurrent have an effect upon their misfortunes have an effect upon the whole community, particularly when it comes to taking sides in an international controversy.

In private social life Mr. Dickinson found the people of Victoria most courteous and entertaining.

THEY HAVE 6000 MEN. Babia Fanatics are Growing in Numbers and the Outlook is Not Very Peaceful.

New York, Feb. 8.—The Herald's correspondent in Rio Janeiro, Brazil, telegrapus that the fanatical insurrectionists, under Conscheiro, have now 6000 well-armed men, organized and concentrated in Babia. The people in the rural towns are helping the fanatics with arms and money. Where this help is not given the vengeance of Conseiner's band fails upon the settlers. In this manner more than 60 rich plantations have already, been destroyed.

The Government has been informed that several foreigners have joined the fanatics and are pushing forward a more scientific military organization among them. Two small towns were plitaged and burned by the fanatics yesterday. In several skip mishes with the Federal troops the latter were defeated. The fanatics have obtained steam launches, and now patrol the rivers and streams in the districts where they are strongest. In this way the range of devastation committed by them is extended, and the utmost terror prevails in that fregion.

The press of Rie Janeiro demand that the Government immediately send a much stronger force to Bahia to overcome the fanatical movement. The Society of Spirimilists of Rie Janeiro has sent a commission to Bahia to attempt to convince the fanatics that it will be well for them to submit to the Government in temporary matters.

Speaking about cement Aid. Phelps claimed we could save $4,000 this year on our sidewalks, if they were laid by day labor. If that were the case it would be better to order our own cement direct from headquarters and then we would know what we were get-ting. Contractors couldn't put in inferior grades then and the ratepayers would be better satisfied.
