AMERICAN TROOPS ORDERED TO CROSS THE BORDER AFTER VILLA

Major General Funston Receives Instructions From President Wilson to Head an Armed Force Into Mexico, and He is Expected to be Successful in His Venture.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Washington, March 11.—Major-General Frederick Funston, in command of the American troops along the border, has orders from President Wilson to-day to send an armed force into Mexico to take Francisco Villa and his outlaws dead or alive, and the Washington Government expects him to execute them. Actual details of carrying out the President's instructions are to be left to General Funston, who was expected to have American troops moving into Mexico before nightfall.

General instructions were sent to Funston last night after a long conference between officers of the general staff at the war department, when plans for troops movements across the border were formulated. The memorandum on the subject was later submitted to President Wilson by Secretary Baker. The strictest secrecy was being observed by the war department regarding the army's plans for the capture of the bandits. This is in accordance with the urgent request of General Funston, the object being to prevent Villa from learning of the movements of the expedition.

A PUNITIVE MEASURE ONLY Administration officials made it plain that the expedition was purely a punitive measure for the purpose of punishing Villa and his followers for the forces of the de facto government of Mexico were in control of the situation, any American troops then in Mexico would be withdrawn. The state department has informed General Carranza of the action of the Washington government, and expressed the hope that he would not object. Eleio Aranda, Carranza's ambassador here, has indicated that his chief would not oppose the movement.

MEMBERS OF CONGRESS, without regard to party, approve the step, the only difference of opinion being on the part of certain Republicans who favor even more extensive operations than those planned by the administration. On both sides of the capitol, the disposition apparently is to allow the president to handle the situation for the present.

Steps to prevent discussion of the subject in Congress, and to forestall any action which might interfere with the president's plans were to be taken at a meeting to-day of the Senate foreign affairs committee. The meeting was called by Senator Stone late yesterday after the president had outlined his position to him.

ON A WEEK-END CRUISE The "Mayflower" is to-day aboard the naval yacht, Mayflower, on a week-end cruise down the Potomac in close touch with wireless with the White House and the war department for any developments in the Mexican situation. Unless some unusual development occurs, the president will not return until Monday.

Princeton University Faculty has denied that students are taking up military drill.

215TH BATTALION CASES UP AT ASSIZE COURT

Junior Major and Quartermaster Are Announced. Both Spoken Of as First-class Men in Every Way.

The following items are taken from the Hamilton Spectator—"Judge Snider has received word that his son, Headley Snider, has been appointed junior major to Lieut.-Col. Harry Cocksbutt, officer commanding the 215th Brantford Battalion. Major Snider has been to the front with the Canadian Mounted Rifles, but was recalled, as it was thought that his experience on the firing line might prove very beneficial in the work of organizing this unit."

"The other appointment announced is that of Quartermaster-Sergeant R. J. Ferguson, who has held that office in the depot battalion since its inception, and who will be the quartermaster of the 215th Brantford Battalion. He will receive the rank of Honorary Captain in Lieut.-Col. H. Cocksbutt's unit. Capt. Ferguson united with the 13th Royal Regiment in 1891, signing up as a bugler, and will complete his 25th year with that regiment next month. He is taking out his commission through the local unit. He has already received his long service medal. Capt. Ferguson is a past-president of the sergeants' mess of the 13th Royal Regiment, and is now holding the position as secretary. He has been connected with the regimental stores department for twelve years. Since his appointment to the depot battalion it is estimated by the chief recruiting officer, that he has outfitted about 4,000 men. His appointment to a rank after such long service is very popular."

CASES UP AT ASSIZE COURT

Two Non-Jury and One Jury Case Carded Up to Date.

The Assize Court will be held here on March 21st, a week from next Tuesday. Mr. Justice Kelly will preside. No criminal cases are on the docket. The cases up are Charles Cutcliffe, builder, vs. Mrs. Robinson, Hamilton, asking to set aside deeds of land granted to the defendant by W. H. Thomas and Clara Scott, it being alleged the vendors had no interest in the land, it belonging to the plaintiff. The defence is that the plaintiff had already disposed of the lands to one Clara Burch, and has no locust stand in the case, also that the plaintiff when purchasing the lands had notice of the defendant's claim which came to her through a bequest in the will of her father. The statement of defence goes into quite a complicated history of the land in question during the last few years, and the case promises to be quite interesting. E. R. Read for the plaintiff, A. L. Baird for the defendant. This is a non-jury case.

Stephen P. Pitcher, assignee for the benefit of the creditors of Rebecca Lepovitch, vs. Rebecca Lepovitch and Joseph Lepovitch, who carried on the business of the National Coal Company and the Brantford Metal Co. The plaintiff claims that the defendant, Rebecca Lepovitch executed an assignment to the plaintiff for the benefit of her creditors of all her personal property which might have been seized under execution, and all her real estate, credits and effects, and that other property which might be assigned has not yet been put in possession of the plaintiff. It is also alleged that prior to the assignment certain assets were sold and the proceeds withheld, and the plaintiff demands an accounting. The defendants deny that any assets were sold prior to the assignment, or withheld. Wilkes & Henderson for the plaintiff, M. W. McEwen for the defendant.

Philip Gibson and Annie Gibson vs. A. McCutcheon, Brewster and Heyd for plaintiffs; Arrell and Arrell, Hamilton, for defendants. Mrs. Gibson, wife of Philip Gibson, was thrown out of a carriage on the 5th line, as a result of her horse being frightened by an automobile, driven by the defendant, who, it is claimed, disregarded the plaintiff's signal to stop and drove past her at a speed

A MASCOT

Lt.-Col. Cutcliffe and the officers of the 125th Battalion C. E. F., wish to heartily thank Warden Harris for his presentation to the battalion of a mascot pony. He is about 35 inches high, and rejoices in the name of "Brant." He has been formally enrolled and is a credit to all ranks. He is to be accorded with a khaki rug and with bridle and everything else to match. Yesterday he took dinner with Pioneer Sergeant Bennett in his dining room and behaved like a little gentleman. Now, then, who is going to help with his outfitting?

ENEMY MAKES SOME PROGRESS

PARIS, March 11, 2.30 p.m.—There is still violent fighting for the possession of the fort at Vaux, according to announcement of the French war office this afternoon. The Germans have made progress along the slopes leading to this position, but they have not yet reached the barbed wire entanglements in front of the fort. The Germans hold some houses in the eastern part of the village of Vaux, while the French are still in possession of the western part of the town.

One of His Followers When Captured Wore a Well Made Grey Military Uniform—Meant to Wipe Out the Town of Columbus Says Mrs. Wright, Woman Captive.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Columbus, N.M., March 11.—Seventeen wounded Villa soldiers captured by Col. Stocum's troopers of the thirteenth United States cavalry in Thursday's battle here, will be charged with murder for the killing of the seven American soldiers slain in the fight, according to an announcement to-day by E. B. Stone, special agent of the department of justice. The prisoners include a boy 12 years old and two officers.

Stone said he would confer to-day with United States district attorney Burkhart of New Mexico and that the charges probably would name Francisco Villa, the bandit chief, who led the raid on Columbus.

Stone added it was probable that similar charges of murder would be filed against the prisoners in the state courts of New Mexico in connection with the killing of nine civilians by the bandit raiders.

Pablo Sanchez, arrested while signalling Mexicans across the border yesterday, and held as a spy, will be charged with aiding an enemy while on the soil of the United States. Sanchez, claimed to be a rancher, but when he was searched a pair of field glasses were found under his blue jumper. The removal of his overalls revealed a well made grey military uniform.

MRS. WRIGHT'S STORY.

EL PASO, Texas, March 11.—Mrs. Maude Hawke Wright, the American woman who rode nine days with the Villa troop, preceding the raid on Columbus, N.H., is here to-day awaiting the arrival of her baby, which was taken from her and given to a Mexican family at their home near Pearson, Mexico. The baby is safe and she expects it to be brought to her today or to-morrow. Her husband was killed by the bandits. "Villa only talked to me twice," Mrs. Wright said. "I avoided talking with him because he would have thought I admired him and would have forced me to accompany him. He told his officers how he would wipe out the town of Columbus, and then when the United States tried to invade the Mexican territory, Germany and Japan would step in to interfere. Villa believed this firmly. "I have overheard him make such remarks from time to time. Whether some agents of these two countries are making him believe this, or whether it is an idea which came to him, I do not know, but he is convinced he will be assisted in the fight he has started."

VERDUN BATTLE DWINDLING IN INTENSITY

Portuguese Government Resigns in Order to Make Way for National Defence Administration.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Paris, March 11.—The battle of Verdun is fast dwindling in intensity. The Germans have in no way impaired the main defenses of the fortress, notwithstanding the violence of their onslaughts. Whether they will make another big effort after a lull, or whether the battle will end as did the other great offensives on the western front by return to normal conditions of trench warfare, cannot be discerned at present, but French military opinion is inclined to believe the latter will be the case.

On the west bank of the Meuse, the Germans facing an effective curtain of fire from the French, have made no further attempts on Bethincourt. They contented themselves with winning back, at heavy cost, portions of Corbeaux wood, which were wrested from them on the preceding day. The determined nature of the attack there indicates the Germans evidently intend, if possible, to drive through Cumieres wood to the village of Dead Man and Goose hills. This they nearly succeeded in doing on Wednesday.

Once solidly established there, they would be able to attack Goose Hill from two sides, as Hill No. 263 to the east of Goose Hill is already in their possession. If Bethincourt were carried in the meantime, they would be able to repeat this attack against Dead Man Hill. Fighting to the east of the Meuse is hardly as active as that to the west of the river. The ranks of the Germans were depleted by heavy losses in the attacks between Douaumont village and Haumont, and on the village of Vaux, which were cut short by French fire before being developed. Lisbon, Portugal, via Paris, March 11.—The Portuguese cabinet has resigned to give place to a national defence government, which is now being formed.

Cabinet Crisis in Italy? Hun Sea-planes Active

Berlin Claims Damage Done by Air Raids to Russian Boats in the Black Sea; Also Bombed British Ships at Samos.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

London, March 11.—A Milan despatch to The Daily Mail says that a cabinet crisis is believed to be imminent in Italy, owing to the insistence of the advocates of a coalition government on representation in the cabinet. Leonida Bissolati, leader of the Reformed Socialists, is the nominee of this group for the Premiership. It is believed that a place will be offered to him in the present cabinet.

IN THE BLACK SEA. London March 11.—An official German communication, according to a Central News despatch from Amsterdam says that on Thursday morning German seaplanes dropped bombs on a Russian squadron of one battleship and five destroyers, and on several Russian merchant ships in the Black Sea near Kali Anka Cape on the coast of Bulgaria, about 25 miles northeast of Varna. It was observed that some of the destroyers were hit. Despite heavy shelling from the Russian warships, the communication adds, the seaplanes returned safely.

NEVER HIT ONE. Athens, March 10, via London, March 11.—On Wednesday German aeroplanes coming from the coast of Asia Minor, flew over the Island of Samos, which lies 42 miles to the southwest of Smyrna, and threw bombs at British ships in a harbor there, without hitting any of them. The aeroplanes returned to Asia Minor.

The Situation.

The Huns have again secured the position in the Corbeaux wood which the French retook from them on Wednesday. In this incident the fact is again brought home that the end of the German offensive against Verdun is most decidedly not yet. The fact is clear that the Crown Prince and his associates, without the slightest regard to the cost in men, are still determined to bend every effort to secure the Meuse heights on which to mount big guns for the destruction of Verdun.

General Aylmer, in his operations for the relief of Kut-el-Amara, has been forced to fall back, owing to the lack of water.

It may be of interest to know that this is the 221st day of the second year of the war—a struggle with regard to which the Kaiserites had so confidently figured upon a speedy and crushing conclusion.

Brantford as a Military Centre.

When the desire was first expressed that Brantford should be made military headquarters during the winter for some Battalion, the authorities at Ottawa took the ground that the necessary accommodation could not be secured here. There was, in plain English, a turn down. Mr. W. F. Cockshutt, M.P., however, backed by other citizens, was persistent, and at last it was decided to send about two-thirds of the 84th Battalion here and the other third to Oshawa. Experience has shown that the whole outfit might just as well have been looked after, for the sleeping accommodation in the armories is not nearly so ample sufficient.

On top of the presence here of the 84th, the 125th Brant Battalion, which now numbers over one thousand men, has likewise been accommodated with headquarters in the old post office building.

In addition to this, no one doubts that the new Brant Battalion, the 218th, will also have its purposes amply served. Their headquarters in the old Y. M. C. A. building not only include office room, but also a spacious auditorium in the shape of the old Wickliffe Hall.

The truth of the matter is, that this city is exceptionally well equipped for the housing of large bodies of military. The large new Y. M. C. A. with its tremendous swimming pool, shower bath, entertainment and other spacious rooms, makes an ideal central spot for cleanliness and diversions; there are various large open spaces throughout the Municipality, and numerous halls in which classes can be held when the weather is inclement. On fine days the marching routes, north, south, east and west, are also excellent.

For every reason this community presents very many advantages indeed as a military centre.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The name of that man Carvell should be spelled Cavil.

The Crown Prince should in reality be known as the Slaughter Prince.

The first Spring robin is still understood to be firmly perching on the kitchen stove.

Uncle Sam is despatching 7,500 troops with orders to take Villa dead or alive. In other words, President Wilson of the White House is after a Villa.

The gizzard of a chicken killed at Princeton, Ind., was found to contain a diamond ring with fifteen inches of gold chain attached. Some of the prices asked hereabouts lead to the belief that the vendors have also an idea that there is valuable jewelry inside.

Here and There

It was a hundred years ago that Sir Humphrey Davey perfected his safety lamp, and the contrast between the life-saving and the life-destroying achievements of science forcibly emphasized in "Don Juan" in these lines written by Byron, with a remembrance of Waterloo the previous year: "This is the patent-age of new inventions."

For killing bodies and for saving souls. All propagated with the best intentions; Sir Humphrey Davey's lantern, by which coals are safely mined for in the mode he mentions. Timbuctoo travels, voyages to the Poles, Are ways to benefit mankind as true. Perhaps as shooting them at Waterloo.

Notice has been given in Tokio that the Japanese Government will pay three subsidies; one to a company specializing in the manufacture of dyestuffs whose capital is at least 5,000,000 yen (a yen is worth about 30 cents); the second to a company manufacturing glycerine and carbolic acid, whose capital is at least 1,000,000 yen; and the third to a company manufacturing drugs, whose capital must be at least 500,000 yen. The Government guarantees to each company a dividend of 8 per cent per annum, making up any deficit. Each company must lay aside one-twentieth of its net annual profits as a reserve fund. If its shares are issued at above par the premium must be included in the reserve fund.

The recently bombarded Durazzo is a port that has played a prominent part in both ancient and modern warfare. The Greek city of Epidaurios, as it was at the time of the struggles leading to the Peloponnesian war, was much harassed by these civil jealousies and feuds. The Romans called it Dyrrachium, whence the modern name is derived, and it became the principal landing place on the route from Brindisi to Greece. A great military road to the Hellespont began here. The town is memorable also for the battles between Caesar and Pompey and, later, became the capital of a Byzantine province.

An estimation of the number of stars seen with the aid of the modern telescope was a few years ago made at 125,000,000. According to more recent estimate there are about 219,000,000 stars brighter than the twentieth magnitude. Professor Hale has recently stated that "there is reason to hope that a 100-inch telescope would add nearly 1,000,000 still fainter stars, many of them lying beyond the boundary of the universe as at present known."

During a visit of the Kaiser to Corfu in 1905, a party of English midshipmen returning from a short excursion found the ferryboat too small to carry all of them back to their ships. Three or four of them accordingly stripped and swam the distance, passing on the way a nursery on Alysses Island. The Kaiser heard of it, and signalled: "I hear your midshipmen have been shocked, the good nuns by their costume. 'Your Majesty is misinformed; the young gentlemen hadn't any costume!' promptly replied the Admiral."

The Ville Achilleon, in Corfu, which the British Government is to use as an hospital for Serbians, cost $15,000,000 to build for the ill-fated Consort of the Emperor Francis Joseph. There are 128 rooms in the villa, and it contains Pompeian and Byzantine apartments that are the last word in Oriental splendor. Also there are a marble swimming bath, a magnificently equipped gymnasium, wonderful stables, rose jungles, and tropical gardens. Altogether a great change for the invalid brave peasant subjects of King Peter.

When Edward I, having planned an expedition to Flanders, found himself short of money, he seized enough wool and leather from certain merchants to make up the deficiency. A quaint tax in the time of the Commonwealth was that of the price of one meal per week, per head, to be paid into the Treasury. Excise duties originated during the Civil War in 1643, being first imposed only on beer, cider, and perry, and an income tax was first levied as a temporary war tax, by Pitt, in 1799.

Alaska's mining industry had its most prosperous year in 1915. The total mineral output was estimated at $32,000,000 as against $19,000,000 in 1914. The highest value for any previous year was in 1906, when Alaska produced over $23,000,000 in minerals.

To The Editor

AN OBJECTION AND AN ANSWER.

Highland Grove, Ontario, 5th March, 1916. To the Editor of The Brantford Courier:

Dear Sir—Your paper has always appealed to me as being fair-minded and as recognizing the great foundation principles that have made the British the greatest nation of the day—the principles of individual liberty of conscience. Hence I was surprised when I read the short article in Mar. 2nd's Courier on the stand of certain Bible students have taken—surprised in the manner in which you spoke of their course.

Surely, the very law in providing for such people recognizes the principle of individual liberty of conscience. You have an opposite stand to theirs, and you have a perfect right to your opinion, that is your liberty, but have you any right to berate others for using a provision of the law of the land has made for them. They are only endeavoring to follow the plain teachings of the Bible; they are not yours; and you give place to your wrath for it is written vengeance is mine, I will repay, said the Lord. Therefore, if thine enemy anger thee, give him a buffet, and drink to him; for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head. Be not overcome with evil but overcome evil with good." Rom. 12: 19-21. "Ye have heard that it hath been said, thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemy; but I say unto you, love your enemies, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which persecute thee. These are only two of the many passages in the New Testament on this same point. I am fully only to Christians in the world today, although many claim that name. Also I quote only from the New Testament, because these injunctions were to Christians, not to the Jews, and there were no Christians until Christ's day.—The disciples were called Christians first at Antioch Acts 11: 26. I wish to take up two points of your article:

First—You are alarmed lest this should lessen recruiting by leading those not truly Christians at heart to follow the same course in order to shirk a course their conscience approves of, namely, enlisting, but which they have not the moral courage to follow. Surely you must know that no man except one full of the courage of his conviction, would dare to this face popular opinion. No man is a coward who takes a positive stand against popular opinions. The coward, the shirker, always takes an opposite course—he has his excuses, which invariably end with—he will go later.

Second—Is it British justice because a very few Christians used the press to accuse them by used the press to land, to at once accuse them of being pro-German. Where is the proof? I see none at all. German work is done secretly. Surely, in Canada we are not less fair-minded than in England, and in the conscription Act now in force there, provision is made for those against war, and no ugly comments are made because the Society of Friends and the same Bible Students exempt. You may not understand the view-point of these people, but it is surely not fair play to treat the matter to which I wish to draw attention is that the very form of the affidavit reads: "I am a member of the International Religious Association, organized under the laws of Great Britain, with its chief office at No. 34 Craven Terrace, Paddington, London, England." Surely you must have overlooked this when you give the impression in the article that the association is wholly American. I cannot thus misrepresent any person or anything and hence, I hope that in the interests of justice and truth I will rectify the wrong impression given.

Yours very respectfully, Hope Gate, (Mr. A. G. Tate.)

(This paper has no desire to get into a controversy with its esteemed correspondent on the subject of Apologetics, but it should be remembered that the Saviour Himself took drastic action when need arose, forcibly driving the traffickers out of the Temple. (See Matthew 21: 12-13; Luke, 19: 45; John 8: 14.) He also used the words "For all that take the sword shall perish by the sword." Germany, without warning, took the sword this in stance, and now on earth is she going to perish by the sword unless somebody gets busy? Christ also said (Matthew 12: 30) "He that is not with Me is against Me," and surely on this basis those who are not actively with the righteous cause of the Allies are against it. Quite a few people have "conscientious scruples," which from a communal standpoint have to be overridden. For instance, some have "conscientious scruples" against work. They talk with accordingly, this phase of matters could be illustrated ad infinitum. It is the opinion of the Courier that an able Christian and God-given liberty, and who does not do so, is a slacker, whether he quotes a Bible Scripture as reason, or anything else.—Ed. Courier.)

ONTARIO BUYS OUT EASTERN ONTARIO POWERS

Last Power Monopoly in the Province Taken Over by People.

PURCHASE PRICE OVER EIGHT MILLION

All Companies Bought But One Situated in Trent Valley.

Toronto, March 11.—With one stroke, coupled with the expenditure of over eight million dollars in bonds, the Ontario Government has wiped out the last power monopoly in the province and brought within reach of the people of the whole central part of Ontario the benefits of public-owned power.

Last night just after the House rose Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, announced that the Government had signed an agreement with the Electric Power Company, which controls what are generally known as the Seymour enterprises, purchasing outright on behalf of the people all the vast interests of that corporation—water-powers, development plants, transmission lines, local water and light companies, and an electric railway.

The purchase is the result of negotiations carried on for some time, and the purchase price—$8,350,000, payable in Ontario Government 4 per cent bonds—represents the amount actually invested in the various enterprises as agreed upon after thorough investigation by the engineers of the Hydro-Electric Commission.

Twenty-two companies have been taken over, all of them, with the exception of the Nipissing Power Company and its companion enterprise, the North Bay Light, Heat and Power company, being in what is known as the Trent Valley district. By taking over the Seymour interests the Government, through the Hydro-Electric Commission, will be able to serve municipalities as far east as Kingston and the Hydro Commission will make provision at once for carrying lines to all the municipalities that have ENJOYABLE TIME. Last evening the pupils of the Business College and a number of their friends, held a very enjoyable sleighing and skating party to Paris. After enjoying a splendid skate in the Paris rink, the ice being in splendid condition, the party proceeded to the home of Mr. T. Flahiff, where a delightful lunch was served. Cards and dancing completed a very enjoyable evening. The trip both ways was very exciting, owing to the heavy condition of the roads, but nothing serious happened to mar the pleasure of the evening. The party arrived back in the city at an early hour.

M'UTCHEON BROTHERS FOUND NOT GUILTY. Jury Took Nearly 28 Hours to Clear Them of Charges. Toronto, March 11.—Gordon and D. S. McCutcheon were yesterday afternoon, by the Criminal Assizes jury, declared innocent of the charges of conspiring to defraud purchasers of lots and of misrepresentation to syndicate purchasers of sums paid for property sub-divided. It took the jury exactly twenty-seven hours and thirty-five minutes to arrive at their verdict of not guilty. The brothers in court and the two discharged during the progress of the trial were released on reduced bail to appear next Tuesday at 2 o'clock should the Attorney-General instruct the Crown Counsel, N. F. Davidson, K.C., to proceed with other indictments, charging them with using false documents. As the evidence in the other cases is somewhat similar to that presented in the trial just closed, the other charges are not likely to be pressed.

Co-operative Stores.

By N. O. Nelson. The co-operative movement in the United States has had a checkered career in the last forty-five years but it must be added that all countries have gone through the same course. England is the birthplace of modern co-operation, but Robert Owen, the world reformer, carried it through two decades of disaster.

It was after his several hundred co-operative stores had failed that the famous twenty-eight weavers and Socialists of Rochdale, England, started the present successful plan in 1833. These twenty-eight pioneers insisted on self-help and independence; they contributed $5 apiece in four-cent weekly installments until they had $140. With this they bought staple groceries, and retained them at the full market price, for cash in hand, out of the little "Food Lane Store" cost member received a token, showing the amount of his purchases, and at the end of three months he received interest. Non-members received half-interest in money.

The essential of this Rochdale plan, which has spread the world over, is cash payments and the profit going to the purchaser instead of to capital. This unique plan was noticed abroad; neighboring towns started similar stores; it was self-contained and self-acting.

Jumping a period of seventy years, Great Britain's co-operative stores now have a membership of over three million, retail sales of four hundred million, and a net profit of $10,000,000 a year, manufacturing and wholesale business of two hundred and twenty million dollars, and annual net profits of $10,000,000.

The same principle has spread into practically all the civilized countries, not only in storekeeping, but in manufacturing and business, in banking, and in insurance. The system is democratic; every member has a single share, whether he holds a single initial payment or whether he holds the maximum shares allowed. Every member pays the same price in a store store; the same price in a productive enterprise, and whatever profits are made he gets his share according to the amount he has contributed.

Roughly estimated, there are fifty million members of co-operative associations, representing a population of two hundred and thirty million. The movement has been spreading at an accelerating rate; it doubles itself, say, every ten years.

There is no limit to its expansion. The very large profits that are earned and returned are a pressing inducement. Experience has shown that co-operative concerns secure as good managing ability at moderate pay as private concerns at high salaries. The Americans have lagged far behind Europe and the Orient in this movement, but there is a substantial start, and it is sure to come. In the 70s the Patrons of Husbandry movement ran largely to co-operative stores; the country was full of them. It was a protest against the supposed exorbitant prices and the rigid terms of the merchants. The Patrons took the co-operative idea, but not the Rochdale plan. They sold on credit; they sold at cost; they limited the membership to over 100. Any of these motives was obstructive; combined, they made success impossible. Innumerable stores have been started from that time to this, but rarely one catering to the needy. The Rochdale plan is self-help, not aid to the helpless, not reprisal against the prosperous. The twenty-eight Rochdale weavers raised their own capital, they bought the goods they had cash to pay for, they sent them to members or others at full market prices. They economized expenses, got more members, more business, more capital. John Smithie, with the help of the others,

John C. Keller's delineation of the character of Shylock in the "Merchant of Venice" has been truly described by the press of New York ...

The New York Telegraph, speaking of Mr. Keller's portrayal of Shylock, says: "The dominant quality of Mr. Keller's Shylock is dignity. He makes the money lender an austere and almost patriarchal character—

Mr. Keller keeps Shylock well within the bounds of dignity until the scene where the Jew discovers Jessica's flight. Then his outburst was vivid and convincing, without suggesting hysteria.

AT THE COLONIAL. Commencing Monday, the management of the Colonial will present to its patrons something unique in the way of a musical extravaganza. The company includes 12 people (mostly girls) who take part in a beauty chorus of exceptional merit.

VARIETIES

Sugar exists not only in the cane, beet root, and maple, but also in the sap of nearly one hundred and ninety other plants and trees. A man who has completely lost his memory at Oamaru, New Zealand, had even forgotten the use and need of food, and had to be forcibly urged to take a meal.

ANIMALS THAT BLUSH. Poets have for ages regarded the blush as a thing of beauty in the gentle sex; but, after all it is only a rush of blood to the face, caused by modesty or some other emotion. Animals blush too, but through fear. Horses blush in their ears, especially the left ear when a horse is frightened.

CANADIANS AND BRITISH MADE HEAVY ATTACKS ON GERMAN LINES DURING THE FIRST WEEK OF MARCH

"Sincere Thanks For Your Most Valuable Co-operation," Said Commander of British Corps Concerned—Patrols Still Keep Up Good Work—Canadian Journalists Visit the Boys in the Trenches.

Ottawa, March 11.—The following communique from the Canadian General Representative in France was received by the Militia Department last night: Canadian General Headquarters in France, via London, March 10.—Early in the week of March 1-7 our Canadian artillery was invited to assist in a heavy bombardment of a section of the enemy's line.

HOSTILE BATTERIES SILENCED. On the Canadian front the enemy displayed little activity. Our artillery maintained its normal rate of fire, but throughout the period of rain, sleet and snow rendered accurate observation extremely difficult.

SUCCESSFUL FEINT ATTACK. One mine was exploded in a feint attack arranged and successfully carried out by our 2nd Infantry Brigade. A mine was exploded and the enemy took alarm at the demonstration and rapidly manned his trenches, opening and maintaining a heavy fire of artillery, machine guns, rifles and grenades in anticipation of an attack.

PATROLS ACTIVE AS USUAL. Our patrols were as active as usual in reconnaissance and in bombing enemy positions. During the past seven days lines were cut by our patrols through the enemy's barbed wire entanglements in nine different places, making gaps through the enemy's wire wide enough to afford passage to twelve men wading.

BRIG-GEN. ARMSTRONG IN THE TRENCHES. Brig-Gen. C. J. Armstrong, Chief Engineer of the Canadian Corps, while returning to the front from the Canadian base in France was unfortunately injured in a railway accident. The last three coaches of the train were telescoped by an express, and the General, sitting in the rear compartment, narrowly escaped death. He was thrown forty feet from the track, and suffered a compound fracture of the left leg, a severe rib fracture, and was badly cut in the face.

NEW BRIGADE COMMANDERS. Brigadier-Generals G. S. Tunford and F. O. W. Loomis have been appointed to the command of our 3rd and 7th Infantry Brigades, respectively, in place of Brig-Gen. Leckie and Macdonell, who were wounded on February 17.

RECONNAISSANCE. A patrol of our 2nd Eastern Ontario Battalion, consisting of Lieut. Pym, Corporal Nicholls and Lance-Corporal Jensen, passed through German wire and worked its way up to the enemy parapet. Hearing no sounds of sentries, the patrol climbed up on to the parapet and Lieut. Pym remained there watching while the two scouts entered the trenches. A careful examination was made of three encountered, although the Germans were heard moving and talking in their second line trenches about twenty-five yards to the rear. Our patrol withdrew without being detected, and returned to our lines at an absence of over three hours.

RECONNAISSANCE. On the night of March 3rd Sergeant Fournier and Scouts Doucet, Lebel, Morin and Caron, of our 2nd French Canadian Battalion, went out to the German wire and brought back samples of the wire and a German wire-cutter. While returning, this patrol was fired on by two German machine guns, but eventually signalled its trenches, one man being slightly wounded.

RECONNAISSANCE. Lieut. H. J. McClurin of our 16th Canadian Scottish Battalion made a daring reconnaissance of an enemy listening post on the morning of March 10th, crawling from our trenches along a hedge, he found the post occupied and surrounded by wire. He went out on a second time to the same point, and finding the post vacant made a detailed inspection of the work and brought in empty sandbags and other articles.

RECONNAISSANCE. In the early morning of March 7, an enemy patrol of twelve men was noticed approaching the trenches of our 13th Battalion (4th Highlanders). The patrol was driven off by our bombers, who subsequently went forward toward the German lines and bombed the enemy's sentries.

Sarnia, March 11.—The O. H. A. intermediate championship came to Sarnia last night when the local seven defeated Belleville, 14 to 4, overcoming the nine goal lead secured in the game at Belleville a week ago. The result was unexpected. While it felt that the locals would win, not even the most rabid supporter of the Tunnel Town felt that they would overcome the nine goal lead, the score at Belleville being 14 to 4. A monster parade, led by a band traversed the streets after the game. Sarnia have left all season that the championship was due for a rest in this town. The rink was packed to capacity. Sarnia put everything they had into the game, especially in the last ten minutes of play, when victory loomed up on the horizon. The winning goal expired the sixty minutes of play. Hillman notched it when Conley came out of his goal to break up a rush.

Hamilton's Four Goals Against London's Nil

Hamilton, March 11.—Hamilton Rowing Club obtained a four goal lead over London Overseas in the Northern League senior semi final here last night. They scored 4 goals while the Cockneys were blanked. Three of the Sculler's goals were scored in the first half. London, minus Ritchie and Sutherland, two of their stars, put up a strong front for the first fifteen minutes, but the pace told on them and they faded. In the second half Hamilton had all of the play, bombarding the London nets continually, while only three drives were directed at Minnock. Chapman, in the London nets, had lots to do and did it well. These teams meet in London tonight, and Hamilton's lead should win for them.

THE SPORTING SURVEY

Only a couple of hundred people, says The Montreal Mail, saw the N. A. game between Toronto and Wanderers on Wednesday night last. It was the smallest attendance at any pro. match of the Montreal season.

Hamilton has the same tale to tell as other places. The professional hockey players did not deliver the goods in the way of attractive bits, and now nobody wants to see them. Manager Fellowes of the St. Nicholas rink says he will not put on any games between N. H. A. teams in this winter. It has been the custom to have a post-season series for the benefit of New York lovers of the Canadian game, but the show was not worth the money, Mr. Fellowes declares, and that rink is closed to them.

He has won many prizes in various branches of athletics. It is probable that other Stratford athletes will put on the uniform of the popular Toronto battalion of sportsmen.

Get a 10-cent box now. Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles. So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty. Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets, and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

CANADIANS AND BRITISH MADE HEAVY ATTACKS ON GERMAN LINES DURING THE FIRST WEEK OF MARCH

"Sincere Thanks For Your Most Valuable Co-operation," Said Commander of British Corps Concerned—Patrols Still Keep Up Good Work—Canadian Journalists Visit the Boys in the Trenches.

Ottawa, March 11.—The following communique from the Canadian General Representative in France was received by the Militia Department last night: Canadian General Headquarters in France, via London, March 10.—Early in the week of March 1-7 our Canadian artillery was invited to assist in a heavy bombardment of a section of the enemy's line. As a result of the combined fire, the German trenches, communicating with the front for a considerable length. A British attack followed and was entirely successful, owing in part to the perfect accuracy of our shells. Several German supports from coming up. The German trenches were occupied and many prisoners taken. Several determined counter attacks subsequently attempted by the enemy melted away beneath the heavy weight of the British and Canadian artillery fire. Numerous German troops remained in possession of the ground won.

HOSTILE BATTERIES SILENCED

On the Canadian front the enemy displayed little activity. Our artillery maintained its normal rate of fire, but throughout the period storms of rain, sleet and snow rendered accurate observation extremely difficult. Numerous enemy working parties were dispersed, and on several occasions hostile batteries were effectively silenced. One German road battery was destroyed and a German road barrier and on the same day shells from another of our batteries caused three explosions in the enemy's trenches, probably as the result of striking bomb stores.

SUCCESSFUL FEINT ATTACK

One morning recently a feint attack was arranged and successfully carried out by our Infantry Brigade. A mine was exploded and smoke was sent up from our trenches. The enemy took alarm at the demonstration and rapidly manned his trenches, opening and maintaining a heavy fire of artillery, machine guns, rifles and grenades in anticipation of an attack. Our only casualty was one man accidentally wounded in the hand, but it is probable the enemy suffered considerable loss from our fire.

PATROLS ACTIVE AS USUAL

Our patrols were as active as usual in reconnaissance and in bombing enemy positions. During the past seven days lines were cut by our patrols through the enemy's barbed-wire entanglements in nine different places, making gaps through the enemy's wire wide enough to afford passage to twelve men walking abreast. Three hostile patrols were observed, but retired at the approach of our men.

NEW BRIGADE COMMANDERS

a small patrol under Lieut. W. E. McFarland of our 13th Battalion, Royal Highlanders, encountered an enemy patrol of nine men. Our patrol advanced and attacked with bombs. At this moment German flares revealed the position of the enemy patrol very clearly, and Lieut. McFarland opened on it with rifle fire. The enemy retaliated with fire from five or six rifles, but was finally forced to retire to the cover of the barricade with at least two casualties. Our patrol returned safely.

DARING RECONNAISSANCE

A patrol of our 2nd Eastern Ontario Battalion, consisting of Lieut. Pym, Corporal Nichols and Lance-Corporal Jensen, passed through German wire and worked its way up to the enemy parapet. Hearing no sounds of sentries, the patrol climbed up on the parapet, and Lieut. Pym remained there watching while Corporal Jensen entered the trenches. A careful examination was made of three bays, but none of the enemy were heard moving and talking in their second line trenches about twenty-five yards to the rear. Our patrol withdrew without being detected, and returned to our lines at an absence of over three hours.

REPELled HIGHLAND PATROL

In the early morning of March 7, an enemy patrol of twelve men was noticed approaching the trenches of our 18th Battalion (4th Highlanders). The patrol was driven off by our bombers, who subsequently went forward toward the German lines and bombed the enemy's sentries. The work and brought in empty sandbags and other articles.

FRANCE HAILS AS HERO ONE OF HER BRAVEST AIR FIGHTERS

George Guynemer, Successor to Pegoud, Garros and Guilbert, Is Called "Fokker Killer," and His Work Attracts Attention of Country—Skill in Aerial Strategy Makes Him Dangerous Opponent.

Special Dispatch.
PARIS, Saturday.
France has a new air hero in the person of George Guynemer, sergeant pilot. He has just had the rare distinction of being mentioned in the French official communication, and all France is talking of him and his exploits.

For the first time a machine mounted by a successful aviator has a popular name. For both Guynemer and his aeroplane are becoming household words, the latter being called "le vieux Charles." The hero is popularly known as the "Fokker Killer."

For brilliancy of action only three French pilots in the past have been compared with him, and they heretofore had been regarded as the three greatest fighting aviators in the world—Pegoud, Garros and Guilbert.

Many refer to the present hero as "the new Pegoud," but Guynemer has a style which is all his own, and he really has constituted himself in a class apart.

Guynemer is serving in the army as a volunteer. Strangely enough, he had the utmost difficulty in being admitted into the service. When he first presented himself he was rejected by the medical inspectors on the ground that he did not weigh enough; he was too tall for his weight.

Five successive times the young man tried to enter the army, going to different parts of the country to present himself, and each time he was refused. Finally he insisted on installing himself at the aviation ground, and after showing his worth he was admitted into the army.

He is very boyish looking, and was twenty-one years old on last December 26. On board his monoplane he operates single handed; he is both pilot and gunner.

His Unprecedented Feat.
In a brief period he has performed the remarkable and unprecedented feat of bringing down six of the most formidable German machines.

In seven months Guynemer has passed from private soldier to sergeant, has won the military medal, has been made Knight of the Legion of Honor and has received the War Cross with four bars. Such an accumulation of honors for one soldier is unique in the annals of the present war.

The young man's duties have consisted in chasing enemy machines and in escorting French aeroplane squadrons on bombing expeditions. A description of his latest exploit indicates his methods of operation.

While cruising up and down the German lines he noted a German machine which apparently had the intention of passing over into the French section. Requiring a little, in order to hide himself from the view of the larger enemy machine which was coming up, he suddenly cut across the latter's line of retreat, and at once opened the duel.

The German fought valiantly, but Guynemer, after firing a few shots, succeeded in placing a bullet in the gasoline tank of the Fokker. An explosion occurred and flames surrounded the German machine.

Both pilot and observer rose up from their seats in an attitude of anguish and bewilderment. Their machine was slipping down from beneath these flames, and Guynemer accompanied it until he saw it fall on the ground, a mass of ruins, at a point near Herbecourt.

George Guynemer is a Parisian. His father is engaged in the manufacturing business at Compiègne. When the war began the young man was studying in Paris and was living with his grandfather. The latter speaks with pride of his grandson, and any mention of his numerous exploits brings a smile of satisfaction to her face. To the reporters who interviewed her when she recently received an honor was conferred on the boy she said:

His Young Ambition.
"George is just twenty-one years old, and he was born on Christmas Day—good luck. When he succeeded in entering the army he was sent to the aviation school at Pau, where he was perfected in the profession which he had chosen."

"In this connection I can tell a little secret about him. George already had been following aviation work, unknown to his father. Some boys hope to be engine drivers or policemen when they grow up, but George for years had said he would be an aviator. His father did not wish to encourage him in his idea, but as he was living with me, I could not very well oppose his desires. I said nothing to his father and used to give George a little money to go to the aviation ground."

"Since he became a soldier he comes to see me occasionally and tells me of his exploits. He never boasts and indeed he talks but little. I have to question him on the work he does and on the dangers ever existing, for although I have the greatest confidence in him, I cannot at times help feeling a little anxious about him. He invariably says to me, 'Grandmother, it is very amusing; I just imagine that I am out with a gun and following the game. Suddenly I shoot, the animal is struck and falls. Really, it is not at all difficult.'"

"That is the way he tells the story. He is the son of soldiers. His great-grandfather received the Legion of Honor twenty-three years ago. He took part in the campaigns in Spain and it was General Hugo, father of Victor Hugo, who decorated him."

"His grandfather, my husband, was decorated for his military services in Algeria, and my son, George's father, also was an officer. But George himself has been decorated youngest of all of them, and would you believe it, he did not tell me of the fact."

The Legion of Honor.
"He came here one day and I looked at him closely, for my eyesight has become very poor. On the left side of his uniform in a confused way I noticed some thing. George, I said, you have obtained your uniform."

"Very calmly he replied, 'Why no, grandmother, that is the Legion of Honor.'"

"That young man has been decorated by the person who knows him perhaps best of all."

"The French newspaper for some time have been very anxious to obtain permission to mention the name of the new aviator, but this was forbidden. As the censorship does not allow the names of the aviators to be mentioned except in the official communication, however, opened the way for mentioning George Guynemer's name and reported throughout France."

"I mentioned in order of a brigade, a division, an army corps and of the entire army is embellished by the soldier as a possession of very high distinctions, but to attain to mention in what is called an "order of the nation" means that the military authorities consider the individual mentioned as heroic and as serviceable to the nation in the very highest degree.

Among the hundreds of brilliant aviators in the French service scores are men of the very highest qualities as pilots, fighters and observers. But once in a while a man emerges who has peculiar qualities that put him in a special class.

Such was Peugeot, who lost his life in a struggle of reckless bravery; Garros, who was taken prisoner by the Germans, and Gilbert, who, having been forced to come down inside Swiss territory, has been interned there as a prisoner.

Great Aviators in Captivity.
Garros is kept under such close watch in Germany that there is no prospect of his taking any further part in the war. Gilbert on August 21 last made his escape from Switzerland and reached Paris, but he was sent back by the French authorities, as there was a question of his having violated his parole in escaping.

How great the value of one man in the air service is considered, when that man is of exceptionally distinguished ability, was seen in the case of Gilbert, as the whole French nation regretted the fact that he had to be returned to internment. He had written a letter to the commander in chief of the Swiss army formally notifying the latter that he was withdrawing his parole and would feel free to escape if he could. The letter was delivered in time to give the notification before Gilbert started for France, but he was allowed to remain on the Swiss General's bureau for a considerable time before the Zepplin raid on English towns, but that they discreetly retreated away when the Zepplin shelled the city of Paris in the last days of January.

On being returned he refused to engage his parole and on February 5 he again escaped from the military barracks where he was interned in Zurich. Accompanied by another French aviator, named Paré, he had succeeded in getting aboard a train in Geneva, on board which 111 French prisoners were being returned from Germany. The aviators, however, were recognized at the station at Oren and were obliged to return to their captivity.

The little monoplane which Guynemer mounts is of a type which the French censorship does not allow to be described in detail, but it is small and seems under the perfect control of the young aviator. Following the name which the French troops have given to it, "le vieux Charles," the British soldiers, who have already become acquainted with it, refer to it as "Old Charley."

"Der Alte Karl."
It is said that the German aviators themselves, by the peculiar process of intercommunication of information between adversary airmen, have learned the sobriquet of the machine and that they call it "der alte Karl." This is the first machine on any side which has been accorded a popular name by the soldiers.

It was stated that during the recent Zepplin raid on Paris a very brilliant French aviator had come up hastily and pursued the Zepplin and attacked it at close quarters for an hour, during part of which time he was within thirty yards of the struts, and his personal attacks only when through lack of both ammunition and gasoline he was unable any longer to render service. It has been hinted that the aviator in question was Guynemer and permission was sought to name the machine, but the authorities would not consent.

Guynemer's special mission being the destruction of the Fokker machine, the new fighting monoplane which the Germans for a while had so successfully used, has been able to cause a great deal of alarm on the German side.

It was said that Fokker machines are summoned to the colors yearly when the Zepplin shelled the city of Paris in the last days of January.

Guynemer has already made for himself a place in the affections of the entire French nation, and if his personality is being eagerly studied and all records of his actions followed with interest.

Gave His Life to Expedite Trip of His Gunboat Up the Tigris

Lieutenant Commander Cookson Chops at Cable Turks Stretched Across River to Prevent His Advance Until, Wounded in Seven Places, He Has to Turn Back.

Special Dispatch.
BRITAIN, Saturday.
How Lieutenant Commander Edgar Christopher Cookson, in command of the British gunboat Comet, during the advance up the Tigris River, attempted single-handed to get through a train of cable stretched across the river as an obstruction is vividly told by a letter which one of the crew wrote to his mother and which was recently published in the English newspapers. While trying to cut the cable the gallant commander was shot seven times and died soon after reaching the deck of his vessel again. For his gallantry he received the Victoria Cross.

In his letter the seaman explains that the Turks were heavily entrenched north of the river. During the time that we were bombarding them, they never spoke afterward. We had six nearly succeeded, but found the enemy a little too strong, though they captured 100 prisoners and about twenty guns. Just as it was getting dark our aeroplane dropped on to the water alongside us and told Lieutenant Commander Cookson that the Turks were on the run.

"A little further up the river they had placed obstructions so that we could not pass without clearing them away, giving them time to get away. This turned out to be the liveliest time of the campaign. The fighting started. Lieutenant Cookson decided to go up and clear this obstruction and then give chase to the Turks. It was very dark when we started off with the shallop and Sumans following.

"When we got around the head of land the Turks opened fire with rifles, but we steamed right up to the obstruction. The Turks were then close enough to throw hand bombs, but luckily none of them reached the deck of the ship. The obstruction turned out to be a big cable stretched across the river with dows made fast to it. An attempt was made to sink the centre dows with gunfire, but when this failed the commander ordered that we steam alongside of it.

"Commander Cookson, when he saw that the boat could not be sunk by firing, took an ax and leaped over the bows of the Comet onto the dows. He stopped at the cable and he had to turn back, he was so badly wounded. He was shot in seven places, and when we dragged him back to the boat he was very near death. He never spoke afterward. Bavarian Crown Prince Says British Are Untrained Troops

German Commander at Lille Expresses Pride in His Men, but Asserts Their Adversaries Lack Officers and Are Too Cautious.

Special Dispatch.
BERLIN, Saturday.
Herr Karl Rosner, a well known German writer, has just had an interesting interview with Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, who is in command of the German troops near Lille.

"I cannot say too much in praise of my men," said the Crown Prince. "With these soldiers everything is made possible. Nothing is too much for them and no sacrifice too great. While they have accomplished much, there are still hard days before them. Our worst enemies now are not the French and the British over there in the trenches, but the cold and the floods. But even over these they have become masters."

When asked to express his opinion of the British troops the Crown Prince replied: "They are no longer the same men. We notice this more and more every day, and since they received such bloody heads during their last offensive at Lens they have become very cautious.

"They are handicapped, too, by a lack of competent officers; they lack leaders, and the men—well, most of them are raw troops and it will take a long time for them to be properly trained. Of course, the longer it takes the greater will it be to our advantage."

"Tell the world that we here are all cheerful and happy. One thing I particularly want to mention, that is the bravery of our German women. While the men are here at the front their wives and sweethearts are constantly encouraging them with letters of cheer and good will. I have yet to hear of a single instance where one of the men has received any letter of complaint from his wife or sweetheart. This is a great stimulus to the men, who thereby stand ready to undertake any task. Just say for me that our incomparable troops will lead the Fatherland to glorious and ultimate victory."

"I noticed that two soldiers were speaking in low tones, and they showed considerable excitement," says the writer. "I caught the following sentences:—

"I have not the heart to do it," said the second. "He appears to be an elderly man, and no doubt he has a family. You go ahead and do it."

"No, I can't; it goes against me. It would be murder."

"I approached and wondered what the conversation meant. Just then I noticed a German soldier out there in the open lying about near the barbed wire. He evidently did not know of our position, or thought, perhaps, that we had abandoned him. Then I knew what the two soldiers were talking about.

"You must know," I said to them, "that if you do not shoot him and spare his life you may perhaps be in a position any time where he would not hesitate to shoot you if he had the opportunity."

"Yes, we know that," replied one of them, but he cannot bring himself to do it; we do not want to be murderers. Why don't you do it?"

"I at once got ready and took aim at the man, who was still gathering wood with thoughtless disregard. Sometime I too, hesitated. For several seconds I stood ready to fire, but I could not.

"It's no use," I said. "I have not the heart, either."

"And we stood there still watching the German gathering his wood. When he had gathered a good amount of wood he went back to his trench and disappeared, never knowing how his life was spared."

THE VON HINDENBURG FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH
Special Dispatch.
BERLIN, Saturday.
Recently Field Marshal von Hindenburg gave expression to some interesting views regarding the influence the war has had on the youth, vitality and energy of the men engaged in it. It was at his headquarters in Busstia a few weeks ago that the Field Marshal was pleasantly surprised by a call from an eighty-year-old man who had been a neighbor of his for a long time. He was delighted to see the aged man so full of energy and vitality, and made some complimentary remarks on the care he took of himself.

"But, my dear Field Marshal," replied the aged man, "it is all right for me to take care of my health. I am at home, enjoying myself and have little else to do but to look after myself. I had, however, wondering how you manage to keep your health and look younger than your sixty-eight years in all the storm and stress of this campaign. I understand you go to bed very late and get up very early, obtaining on an average only a few hours' sleep out of the twenty-four. Yet you appear in better health than ever before."

"My friend, it is all a matter of the will," replied the Field Marshal. "Whatever happens, I make up my mind to do it, and there is the whole secret of youth. All that is necessary is to have some purpose, some ambition, some goal before you, and it is surprising how cheerfully you will go to work. There it is that you have no time to think of getting old. You sleep less and eat less, never think of looking at the clock, and simply work, work. It is immaterial whether the weather is stormy or the sun is shining; you don't even notice it. That is why I am keeping me young."

"I consider for a moment our brave soldiers out there in the field. We have so many who are more than sixty and some even more than seventy years of age, and yet they are so fresh and so full of life that even the younger men marvel at it. Indeed, these men are thankful that in their old age God is giving to them the opportunity to show of what stuff they are made. They are overjoyed to know that now they can make use of their experiences and training and education. Who can feel old when he knows that, now is the time for him to reap the fruits of years of labor and learning. Such men simply will not permit themselves to become weakened. The great work in which they are engaged throws off all illness."

"No one engaged in this war thinks of himself for a moment. There is the real fountain of youth—to engage in work that eliminates the self. Just think of the many men who in times of peace complained of feeling old at forty or fifty. Ask any of them now if they still feel old. Thus it is that when a man has a lot of work to do and finds pleasure in doing it he will never for a moment imagine that he is old, even if he is sixty or seventy."

"You are right, Your Excellency," said the Field Marshal's aged friend. "The war has made me younger also. When I saw my dear son leave for the front my youth was renewed, and I am doing work at home now that the young men used to do before the war."

Germany Calling Boys To Be Ready for "Next War"

Frank Admission of Teutons They Are Preparing for Another Conflict Is Warning to Allies Against Inconclusive Peace, Says French Writer.

Special Dispatch.
PARIS, Saturday.
Under the caption of "The Beast That Must Be Killed," A. Fitz Maurice writes in the Paris Figaro of February 10:—

"We read in news despatches yesterday about a discussion in a committee of the Bavarian Diet on the subject of militarizing the German youth. The project does not concern Bavaria alone, but the whole German Empire, and it is the intention of the Imperial government to have it enacted into a law by the vote of the Reichstag. The aim is to place all young Germans who have attained the age of seventeen at the disposal of the military authorities. This is not a temporary measure, but is meant to be a law of satority validity for an indefinite time after the war. One of the provisions applies to the higher schools, where half a day each week will be set aside for military instruction, a drill sergeant taking the place of the erudite professor.

"Germany, which has taken more than forty years to prepare for the present war, has recognized that even the 5,000,000 men it has been able to mobilize are not sufficient to assure it of victory. The German Empire has found itself compelled to summon to the colors youths who had not yet received any military training, and it is such an emergency that it now proposes to avoid it possible in the future. While all of us allies carry on this war with the hope of the leading in the end to a durable peace, Germany already is thinking of a new war, which it will stir up by the same means as the one now raging. For Germany has a presentiment that even if it should emerge victorious from the present struggle it will not gain enough to satisfy its ambitions, to realize its dreams of world dominion.

"Did not the leader of the German agrarian party say a few days ago, when speaking of the necessity of an economic alliance with Austria, that from now on one should commence to furnish the arms for the next war and those to follow?"

And the German Empire actually is preparing for this. Its children are going to be made ready for mobilization as soon as they are strong enough to shoulder a gun.

In this, then, the Germans don't do, treacherously with us. They let us know in advance what we will have to expect if we agree to make peace before having accomplished our material purpose of definitely and completely crushing the military power of Germany, of destroying the Prussian military aristocracy which has produced the Pan-Germanist movement. They know in Berlin that their game has failed this time, and they already for a long time have been thinking of trying to conclude peace on the best conditions that may be obtainable. The time will come, no doubt, when they will be ready to accept, or perhaps to ask for, peace on any terms whatsoever. Who knows but that it may be from their side that some day will come the proposition to declare the war a crux as King Constantine of Greece expressed it, and that some kind of neutral Power may offer its mediation for the re-establishment of peace on the basis of the status quo ante.

All that is necessary is to have some fixed purpose, some ambition ever before you and it is moving forward cheerfully you will do your best. There is no time to be lost, no time to be wasted, no time to be spent in looking back at the things that are done, work, work, work. It is a matter of whether the sun is shining or the sun is shining, your heart even notices it. That is what is keeping me young."

"That is a moment our brave soldiers out there in the field. We have no many who are more than sixty and some are more than seventy years of age, and yet they are so fresh and so full of life that even the younger men marvel at it. Indeed, these men are thankful that in their old age God is giving to them the opportunity to do what stuff they have no time to think of doing now. They know that now they can make use of their experiences and training and education, which can feel out when he knows that now is the time for him to reap the fruits of years of labor and learning. Such men simply will not permit themselves to get ill or become weakened. The great work in which they are engaged throws off all illness."

Pure, clean, flavory and strong, in sealed packets.
