The Kilmainham Court-room Dublin, was in crowded with privileged spectators, inding many ladies. Among those present to Mr. Jenkinson, Director of the Irish minal Investigation Department, and Mr.

Mullett, James Mullett, Edward O'Brien, William Maroney, Daniel Curley, Daniel Delaney, Thomas Doyle and Fagan. The 13 are all charged with conspiracy to murder Mr. Burke and Lord Frederick Cavendish and to attack Field.

It had become known that Michael Kav-anagh, the carman, had turned informer and would he the first witness examined. There was great excitement accordingly when Kav-anagh was placed in the witness seat. Kavanagh apparently

LABORED UNDER CONSIDERABLE EXCITE-

He deposed that on the 6th of May last he was at the Royal Oak public house, in Park gate street. He was engaged by four men—Brady and Kelley and two strangers. Brady here utt red a loud guttural threat, but no distinct words were heard. There was no laughter among the prisoners when Kavanagh identified the ". Kavanagh then pointed to Patrick Delaney as another f the men present. He drove the four men into the park by the Island Bridge gate to the Phoenix monument and along the main road to the Gough monument, and they there got down. They said there was no signs of "Skin the Goat," meaning James Fitzharris. The witness saw him with a cab coming from an opposite direction, and saw four meaning from the saw four meaning from t alight from the cab. Kavanagh iden ified Fitzharris as the driver of the cab. The cab stayed a long way up the road, with the horse's head turned toward Dublin. James Carey and Daniel Delaney were on the seats at the side of the road in the park. Delaney said they were watching the Chief Secretary. After the men had alighted he put a nosebag on his horse while waiting. He heard a person speak to James Carey. Delaney afterward instructed him (Kavanagh) to look sharp and be ready to start. Upon this he drove to the waiting group, which included a me persons he did not know. eaventish and Mr. B in arm. Some one among those he drove

THE TALL MAN WAS TO BE ASSASSINATED. Kavanagh was then ordered to go further away by some of the conspirators. As he did so witness heard some one, he could not tell who, repeat: "Mind, it is the tall man."

As the gentlemen came along either Carey or Delaney raised a white handkerchief. While he was waiting a carman nicknamed "Nowt" passed him, driving a passenger named Nolan toward Dublin. He was also passed by some bicyclists. He was so near the scene of the assassination that he heard one of the victims cry "Oh!" On looking round he saw one gentleman fall, and saw that the other who had an umbrella, was lying on the ground. The four men he had driven to the park jumped on the car and he drove away. Brady sat on the right side of Ou driving from the scene of the murder they took a turn to the left, then cossed the bridge to the right along the Inchi-core road. Delaney directed him where to drive. He drove rapidly until he reached Roundtown, three miles from the Park. Here Tim Kelly alighted. He then drove round to Leeson Park, stopping at a public house near Leeson Bridge. Brady there paid him £1 and dismissed him. On Sunday morning he met Brady again at Townsend street and received £2 Brady afterward bought harness for him. He allowed the car to remain as it was for some time; afterward he had it painted; his mare was dark

On the night Mr. Field was attacked Kavanagh was on the College street stand. Joe Brady again engaged him. They drove into Fleet street. Delaney then got on the car, and thy drove to Hardwick street, where they al ghted. They told him to wait. While waiting Kelley and Lawrence Hanlon came up. Kelly lost his hat when he mounted on the car after the attack on Field. They fled by a circuitous route. In Townsend street Kelly bought another hat. Kavanagh, replying to Mr. Murphy, Crown council, said that on the 6th of May he wore a white hat, but a man on the car, who is not in the prisoners' dock, changed with him, giving him a large brown one. This is important, as it is believed to furnish a clue to a murderer who has not been apprehended, Kavanagh further deposed that Fitzharris on one occasion told him that they were after Judge Lawson. Kavanagh said he became an informer on Thursday last. He had been sworn into the society by Kelly. The task assigned him was to by Kelly. The task assigned him was to drive the boys. Doyle was present when he was sworn into the society. He identified Doyle as having told him he must, the day after the swearing, drive anywhere they required. The prisoner. Doyle, thereupon exclaimed, "It's a ie." Doyle told him that Mr. James Mullett and a lot of big people were attached to the society. Upon Kavanagh entering into further details as to the various times he drove the assassins after the Phenix Park murders Fitzharris called him a "Giar."

Doyle, Patrick Delaney, and Fitzharris aid that they had no questions to ask Kava-agh. 'Tim Kelly's counsel endeavored to

He could not say whether four or five men were engaged. Jacob was unable to recognize any of the men in the car. Before the arrival of the bicyclists two men, one after another, came and looked at the bedies and walked away.
Independent witnesses swore to having seen Kavanagh previous to the Phoenix Park murders at the public houses he menti ned in his evidence as having visited b fore he drove to the park. George Motley, a hatter, of Capel street, Dublin, deposed that he saw Kavanagh on the 5th of May at Wren's public house which Kavanagh mentioned in his deposition. Counsel for the Crown announced his intention to produce every tittle of evidence which would corroborate that of Kavanagh. The case was adjourned to Thursday next.

Kavauagh's evidence makes it certain that Mr. Burke was the first murdered, and that the plot was primarily against him. Kava-nagh's evidence is felt to be conclusive. Lit-tle can be added to it, as the Crown will not accept the evidence of the actual participants. The prisoners evidently feel that the game is up. All of them now exhibit a detant demeanor, except James Carey, who sits motionless gazing fixedly at the bench. ferences, and sometimes laugh. Somebody tells the story of the late venerable President Ford, of the Bangor Theological Seminary, that on one occasion he delivered an almost interminable harangue in opposition to Darwinism, winding up with the question: "If we are monkeys where are our tails?" One of his tired auditors responded: "We have sat on the n so long that they are all worn off."

The Rev. Whangdoodle Baxter recently met Jim Webster on the avenue. "What's de reason, James, dat I doesn't see yer at de church no moah ?" asked Whangdoodle. "Bekase I wasn't dar, I recon." A Pittsburg lawyer became a clergyman and tried his hand at preaching for awhile, but at last foun it a failure. He looked around for some sphere of usefulness in which his talents might find a fair field for their exercise. After making several misfits, he procured a position as baggage smasher at the railroad station. In this he is said to magnify his office and conduct him-self with becoming and acceptable energy.

It is the aside remarks that let in light upon men's characters, A worldly-minded Sunday-school su erintendent, being about to go to Europe on business, addressed the school on the Sunday before his departure. He waxed fervent as he depicted the horrors of the sea voyage, the risk of life, the separation from friends and home, and the possi bility that he would never see them again. "Oh, children," said he, "It is dreadful to think of. Nothing but money would induce

A complete circumlocution office of mystification was devised for delaying plots and throwing dust in the eyes of conspirators. In one case, which has hitherto escaped repord, the Nihilists were suspected of having driven a mine beneath the railway line from Gatschina to St. Petersburg. Unline from Gatschina to St. Petersburg. Under the pretense of a desire to recover an old telegraph wire said to have been lest thirty years ago (such was the story told by the official and copied by the non official press). a large staff of workmen were employed to search for the hidden danger. The imperial railway carriage was ostentatiously brought from its shed, and as ostentatiously made to perform the journey between Gatschiva and St. Petersburg on a date ostentatiously given as that of the emperor's arrival. The empty carriage arrived without accident, hus proving the safety of the line; and when the real journey took place a little ime afterward, its secrecy was well kept, he czar travelling, in the most literal sense, darkly and at dead of night."—London

AN ADVENTURESS'S CAREER.

The woman Freeman came to my place of business, No. 9 Barclay-street, in the beginning of December, 1880, in quart of employment, but not thinking her competent I would not engage her. She told a pitiful tale of having been shipwrecked and having lost all her money, about £40,000, but that she was still heiress to a large estate. However, she must have some kind of employment for three months at least. She referred me to Dr. J. H. Downs, of No. 14 Barclay street, who, she said, had been the family physician in England. She asked as the family physician in England as the family physician in England. GENTLEMEN-We have much pleasure in stating that our sales of your EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL are steaffly increasing, amounting now to about a thousand bottles mombly; and thet it seems to give very general satisfaction. During our long experience (over forty years) in the Drug business we have seldom met with any proparation of similar character which has obtained so large a sale, or to wide a popularity not only with the general public, but also amongst MEDICAL MEV. In hose results, we believe, are largely due to the maries of your specialty, as well as to the skill with which it is prepared; and the moderate price at which it is supplied to the consumer. BUCKLEY & ALLEN HALIFAX, N. S. Solu by I. R. MACILRELI'H,

The seventh son of a seventh son humbug is not dead yet. A man in the States s making quite a pile of money by it.

It is a poor look out for us sojourners in Canada if we are to have the snow flea added to all our troubles, and that at the season when there is usually a sort of rest from the torture of vermin. Perhaps there may be some plan hit upon to make some of these pests mutually distructive.

A notice is going the round of the papers to the effect that a Dr. Russell, of Yarrow a friend of Walter Scott, has just died at the age of 74. It is fifty years last September since Walter Scott died. Dr. Russell could not have had much opportunity of knowing much of the great Wizard of the

"Our Fritz" has been twenty-five years married, and those who know say that he has made a first-rate husband, and his wife an equally good better half. Good for the two! When so many couples in high life and low are quarrelling like cats and dogs, it is something that one royal pair seems to be passably happy.

In the death of Richard Wagner, the postle of the so-called "Music of the future," the musical world has sustained a

Is the "manly art of self-defence" going to rise to a position of respectability and honor? Are the broken-nosed, beetle-browed ruffians that do the honors and wear the laurels of the ring to be rehabilitated and made presentable? It would almost seem so. If it is, so much the worse for the world. Morals must be getting low and intellect at a discount when Sullivan can be a society pet, and Jim Mace worth writing about. Things may be bad enough, but surely not so bad as that yet, one would

The coronation of the Care will, it is feared, be marked with something very terrible and very decisive. Apparently the authorities think that they have stamped out Nihilism, and can now take things in easy comfortable, manner. It may be so, but a good many are sadly fearing that they halloo before they are out of the wood. It seems the Czar can now walk about St. Petersburg unattended and unharmed. May that not be part of the plan to lull the security in order to make the sweep all the cleaner, and the destruction contemplated cleaner, and the destruction contemplated the more complete? In any case it would just be as well for those who are concerned in these matters not to be too sure. They may get a terrible wakening themselves at the feet of a master in order

But then a gaol is not a boarding-house, not even a tavern. Many a poor honest man fares much less comfortably than the most of criminals, and perhaps it would just be as the Third inhibitely poorer, and what a little more than it is difficult to imagine, except that he would be baser and more contemptible still, and that the people, whatever appearance of rest they might get for a short time under his the strength of the stren well if imprisonment had just a little more the appearance of being really a place of punishment and not of fooling, indolence and more or less of vice. somewhere, and of law not having that supremacy which it ought always to possess. In a sparse, newly-settled country, there will be times when the quiet, peace-loving section of the community have to take the law into their own hands, if the rogues are not to have it all their own way. It is a pity when this is the case, but it is then a rough remedy for an intolerable evil. When there is no fear of the wrong-doer eventually getting all he deserves, it is different. Yet, even then, it is no wonder that sometimes even then, it is no wonder that sometimes the common indignation thinks ordinary legal proceedings too slow and uncertain.
Sometimes the outrage is so terrible that nothing but present personal vengeance will satisfy. It is not surprising, but it is a great mistake, all the same. Anything that lessens the reverence for and belief in the supremacy of law is at once a crime and a stake. Lynching is not common in Canada. May our laws, and the administration of them, ever be such, that there will be no necessity for its existence at all.

We are glad to see the ladies still moving in the matter of the election franchise. The subject is not without its difficulties, but a good deal is perfectly clear, and why should that which is so not be acted on, without waiting for the doubtful to be made entirely plain? There are apostle of the so-called

There is no sense and no justice in such discrimination. Let the single women who have the requisite amount of property be enfranchised at once without waiting to settle how the married women are to be disposed of.

We do not know any class of community more to be pitied than the young children of many well-to-do peo-ple. They are utterly neglected and handed over to the tender mercies of the hired and the indifferent. Talk of the sufferings of the children of the poor! These are often neither few nor small. They are often cold and ill-clad. Sometimes but poorly fed, and often very hardly treated. But often they are the ting be to leave the country altogether reverse, and they have more or less of their and come home? It seems strange that mother's attention at any rate. D.:—Dear Dr..—I take great pleasure in saying your treatment of my wife by inhalations for an affection of the bronchial tubes, has proved most satisfactory. After being treated by several of the most prominent physicians of Toronto. I almost despaired of her being relieved of the distressing cough, which clung to her in spite of the best efforts put forth by skilled men to relieve her, and pronounced by some as incurable. Now, after a lapse of almost nine months since discontinuing your treatment, she has passed the fall weather without any signs of her old complaint returning. Yours respectfully.
