CHAPTER XXX.

"I do not think we need trouble ourselves about your bete noir, mother," Sir Charles said, after his memorable interview with Ebenezer Lupus. "My fears have merely been played upon by a rascally lawyer, who is lucky to have escaped me as easily as he has done."

His eyes burned with resentment when he thought of the ugly scandal that had already gone the round of the scurrilous press. It had only been dwarfed into insignificance by a still uglier story concerning personages who laid claim to royal blood.

That Lady Hastings was greatly relieved was apparent in the sign of satisfaction that she gave, and it was with a pang of remorse that the young man noted how thin and pale she looked. In his own wretchedness he had forgotten his mother. It was true that most of their troubles were attributable to her folly, but she was still his mother, and her life had been lonely and miserable for many years.

"Mother," he continued, "I am afraid that I have been very selfish for a long time. I have almost forgotten you. I have quite neglected you, while I have been intent upon mending our fortunes. But see how well God has rewarded us!"

He led her into the sort, September sunshine; for, though it was the end of the month, it seemed that summer was lingering still. He led her over the springy lawn to an eminence which commanded a view of the surrounding country for many miles. Beneath them the village lay sleeping under a purple haze; beyond, the fields looked like oceans of gold.

"Mother," he said, simply, "you see the result of my years of labor. We are prosperous, and our cottagers are happy and contented. I have tumbled the revenues, and do not now owe one shilling of the money borrowed."

"How happy we might be if I could but undo one mad act of my life," Lady Hastings replied, tearfully.

"We must not look back," he said. "My gaze shall be ever to a brighter future. It is not good for man or woman to live alone, as you have been doing for so long, and I want to make the old place merry within as well as without. We will open the rooms that have been closed for so long; we will brighten them with new paint, new carpets, and new furniture, and there are many friends of mine, mother, who would like to know you and be friends of yours, too."

Just then there was a merry peal from the church bells, and the sweet music seemed to ripple about them in showers of melodious blessings.

"It will make you happier, my boy, I do not care how many people you bring here—now," Lady Hastings sighed deeply.

"It is not society that neglects us," said her son, "but we ignore people who would like to be sociable." Then he added quickly: "Mother, I want you to go to church with me this morning. You will feel better for it, and it will be the first step to a happier future."

To his surprise she made no objection, and from that day Emden Hall underwent a change for the better. There was a busy month with painters, and decorators, and upholsterers; and then the place was made lively with visitors, and half-dozen new servants.

Sir Charles was more than satisfied. The change was not only beneficial to his mother, but to himself. His disappointment was not even present when trying to amuse others; the sting of the canker-worm at his heart could not always be felt now.

Among these visitors were Lady Craythorne and her daughters, and the quick eyes of Lady Hastings soon detected Ada's passion for her son. It was evident at every glance—it was all-consuming, and her heart went out to the girl with a mother's love. By and by they exchanged confidences, and Lady Craythorne's society became indispensable to Lady Hastings.

Lady Craythorne and Flosie went home after one week at Emden Hall, but Ada remained. Lady Hastings could not do without her, and Sir Charles was glad that his mother at length had one woman friend. He was no longer expected to provide amusement; Lady Hastings and Ada were quite capable of entertaining friends, and devising plans for future pleasure. Sir Charles had only to give his consent, and during the Christmas holidays it was their intention to have a large gathering of people, and there were dreams of ice carnivals, sleighing, balls, and conquests!

"My dear," Lady Hastings said to Ada Craythorne, one morning, "I really believe that my son has something more in view than he cared to own to when he insisted that I should invite you and your people here."

They were sitting in Lady Hastings' newly-furnished boudoir, and her ladyship had been idly watching Ada's deft fingers for some little time, as they fidgeted about the smoking-cape which she was tastefully embroidering. This was to be a Christmas present for Sir Charles.

Ada looked up inquiringly from her work.

"Something more in view than he cared to own to," she asked.

Lady Hastings nodded, and Ada turned her eyes to the cheerful fire that was glowing in the steel grate before her.

"He is in love with you!" her ladyship smiled. "And but for one thing, he would tell you, dear. I am sure of it. He is never so happy as when near you. When you are absent he wanders about in search of you."

"I am not ashamed to own that I care for him," Ada replied, calmly. A very faint tinge of pink mounted to her cheeks, but her splendid eyes became luminous. "He is a king among men!"

"Oh, if it might only be!" exclaimed Lady Hastings, weakly. "If we could only prove that that woman were dead!"

It was true that Sir Charles found pleasure in Ada Craythorne's society; her advice upon many things was valuable, and she took an interest in all that interested him. She admired the same flowers that he admired. She petted his favorite dog, and fed it when sick. She visited an old couple, who had lived on the estate for nearly a century, because he had heard that they were ailing.

While Sir Charles admired Ada Craythorne, and cared for her in a friendly, brotherly way, no thought of love had ever entered his heart. Such a thing was impossible. Though Lady Gladys Howard were lost to him forever, Ada Craythorne had not the power to stir one emotion. No woman had that power. Besides, he felt safe from her in the knowledge that to love or to be loved would be sinful in the eyes of the world and of the law. He went to her for sympathy, and Ada thought that he craved for love.

one day, arranging some choice bits of work in water colors, which Herbert Gardner had sent to Sir Charles. "These are from the brush of an amateur," the baronet was saying to Miss Craythorne, "the truest friend that man ever had. He will be one of my guests at Christmas."

"I have often heard you speak of Mr. Gardner," replied Ada. "I did not know that men cared for each other so much. I am sure that women never do."

"I never had a brother," continued Sir Charles; "but I do not think that the fondest of brothers love as we love. A brother is a mere accident of birth. Our love has been tried by the furnace of affliction and adversity. I have little else that I value in life."

She looked up at him half-reproachfully, but he did not seem to notice her. His thoughts were with Gladys.

"Then you do not think that any woman's friendship can equal that of your friend, Mr. Gardner? I declare I am quite jealous!"

He laughed a little.

"You must not put it in that way," he replied. "Gardner is one of my oldest chums. Nothing can alter my affection for him. A woman's love is so different, and, then, I can never hope for that."

She knew what he meant, and his plaintive tone found an echo in her heart.

"Never!" she whispered. "I do not like that awful word, 'Sir Charles. You must sweep the barrier away.'"

He shook his head mournfully, and she was about to speak again when one of the women servants passed between them with swift, noiseless steps.

Ada Craythorne was startled by the vindictive gleam that flashed from the woman's black eyes, and could not resist a cold shudder running through every nerve. She had seen the servant before often enough, but had never taken much notice of her until now. It would be impossible to forget those wicked eyes.

She waited for an opportunity to point out the woman to Lady Hastings, and ask her name.

"I do not know, my dear. She is one of the new servants, and I leave all those matters to the housekeeper. Why do you ask?"

"Only that her face appears to be familiar," replied Ada, evasively. "It is of no consequence."

Nevertheless, she always regarded the woman curiously, and by adroitly questioning the housekeeper learned that her name was Agnes Maitland, and that she had been well recommended by responsible references.

BRITAIN MAKES MAGNANIMOUS SETTLEMENT OFFER.

Professor Bell Dies at Beddeck, C.B. --Expulsion of Bottomley From Commons -- Free Staters and Republicans Have Sharp Engagement.

BRITAIN'S MAGNANIMOUS OFFER.

LONDON, Aug. 1. The British Government cannot treat repayment of the Anglo-American loan as if it were an isolated incident in which only the United States and Great Britain have any concern, says a note addressed to-day by the Earl of Balfour, Acting Foreign Secretary to France, Italy, Jugo Slavia, Rumania, Portugal and Greece. This transaction, continues the note, is but one of a connected series, in which Great Britain's appears sometimes as debtor and sometimes as creditor. If, it says, Great Britain's undoubted obligations as debtor are to be enforced, let not less undoubted rights as creditor cannot be left wholly in abeyance. Declaring that it is regretfully constrained to request the French Government to make arrangements for dealing with the best of its ability with the Anglo-French loan, the British Government says it desires to explain that the amount of interest and the repayment which it asks, depends less on what France and other Allies owe Great Britain, than on what Great Britain has to pay the United States. The policy favored by His Majesty's Government the note states is that of surrendering Great Britain's share of the German reparations and writing off, through one great transaction, the whole body of inter-Allied indebtedness. But if this is possible of accomplishment, the note says, we wish it to be understood we do not in any way desire to make profit out of any less satisfactory arrangement. In no circumstances do we propose to ask more from debtors than is necessary to pay our creditors, and while we do not ask more all will admit that we can hardly be content with less, for it should not be forgotten, though it sometimes is, that our liabilities were incurred for others, not for ourselves. Pointing out, in conclusion, that it is not merely a question between the Allies, because former enemy countries also are involved, and the great debtor is Germany. The note declares that the Government does not suggest, either as a matter of justice or of expediency, that Germany should be relieved of her obligations to other Allied states, but Great Britain would be prepared, subject to just claims of other parts of the Empire, to abandon all further rights to German reparations and all claims to repayment by Allies provided that this renunciation form part of a general plan whereby this great problem could be dealt with as a whole, and a satisfactory solution found. A general settlement in the view of the British Government would be of more value to mankind than any gains could accrue even from the most successful enforcement of legal obligations.

OSTENTATION.

I told my aunts with precious stones, I hang rich furs upon their bones, and send them through the town: "The fact that I am healed," I say, with coin enough to lose a dray, must have a wide renown. I represent the newly rich, and having clambered from the ditch up to a high estate, I want the whole blamed world to know that I have every kind of dough put down in kegs and crates. My house is like a large hotel, and in it stately footmen dwell, a butler from abroad; with jeweled tools I swat the flies—and all is done to advertise the fact that I've a wad. My socks are brought from far-off France, and London tailors make my pance, my neckties come from Rome; and yet, with splendor all around, I have a sort of doleful sound, as I sit in my home. For all my efforts don't impress my next-door neighbors, I confess, and hence my weary sigh; those neighbors watch my trail of smoke and see to size me as a joke, and smile when I go by. Old guns who sit in shabby nooks, and paw the leaves of ancient books look on me with disdain, and residents whose only pride is that their dads for freedom died, observe me with a pain. With such a bank account as mine, with all around me sick and fine, my life should be a song; I am the man who cuts the ice, I am the one who has the price, and yet I don't belong.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

TOO FRIENDLY.

He never caused a man to sneer, He never taunted by a jeer, Had never battled with a foe, But through the years that come and go, He smiled his easy way along And played the friend to right or wrong.

He never ventured night or day Out of the well-worn trodden way, He never pried adventure's lid, He voted as his father did; But when an argument arose He sided both with friends and foes.

He talked as one who loved the right, But he was never known to fight; Fearing the hate of man, he stayed Holding opinions but afraid To give them voice. In moments tense His silence gave no man offence.

Pleasant his smile and meek his way, The same tomorrow as to-day, Living this life, it's joy and smart, Yet shirking duty's sterner part; A friend to all he walked along, But friendly both to right and wrong.

Who never braves the cynic's sneer, Nor win's the sinful braggart's jeer, But seeks through life's long years to go Free from the malice of a foe, Buries his talents in the earth With nothing done to prove his worth.

Better to fight and fall than stay Upon life's side-lines day by day; Better the scars than smiles of those Who should be looked upon as foes, For friendship has no value when It makes no choice twixt knaves and men.

MOTOBILIA.

Now that the Regatta is safely over (and, by the way, we hope you cleaned up a lot) the next thing to give attention to is the Motor Association Sports on the afternoon of the 12th. Great attention is being given the arrangements by the Committee and the proposed track from Pleasantville to the foot of the lake (including the connecting hills) will be put into good shape. Some handsome prizes are being offered for the different events and the Methodist Guard Band has been engaged to play throughout the afternoon. Special provision will be made for spectators. Car drivers who intend entering for any of the different events should see Messrs. Cocker or Silverlock immediately. Among those entered for the different events are Messrs. E. G. Reid, Robin Reid, Gerald Harvey, Basil Overbridge, Leslie Marshall, Thos. Soper and others, but more entries are needed to make the day a thorough success. Messrs. Cocker and Silverlock and the rest of the Committee are taking every precaution to see that the programme will be carried out with absolutely no risk to either contestants or spectators.

Last week we congratulated the Inspector General and the Police Department on the excellent and successful traffic regulations which prevailed at Mount Cashel and the C. E. Orphanage Garden Parties. This week we again offer them our sincerest congratulations on the more than excellent traffic regulations that prevailed at the Regatta. The juncture of Circular and King's Bridge Road was a regular "Piccadilly Circus" as far as cars going in different directions was concerned, while right throughout the day there was very considerable traffic all around the Pond. All this traffic was handled so well that there was not the slightest mishap, which is surely a matter for congratulation. While on this subject we certainly congratulate the I.G. on the better manners he has installed into many of the men under him. It was not so long ago that when many police officers had to give a direction or a reprimand to a driver they thought it necessary to bawl and shout at him as often as not emphasizing their remarks with floods of tobacco juice which it sometimes needed a raincoat to avoid. All this is changed now and the police issue their orders in a calm, quiet and dignified manner, which is a great improvement. In fact, yesterday, the lady being driven to the C.L.B. tent who was not allowed to proceed by the King's Bridge and Quidi Vidi entrance to the lake, had nothing but praise of the police sergeant who held her up because he said: "I'd like to let you, ma'ma, but I can't." And this praise even though she had to walk the rest of the way with a leg of ham under one arm and a rhubarb pie in the other hand!

And, while on this subject, our best thanks to the "cop" who told us we could sink home with only one light lit, the other night, if we took the back streets and were careful to avoid the sergeants!

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Wm. Noseworthy, Ltd. in the Telegram of a special brand of tires extremely well suited for the Sports competitions.

SAFETY FIRST.
With the growth of the cities and the demand for an over-increasing speed in transportation, comes the urge for methods to simplify traffic problems and make the highways and byways of the country safe for those who ride and those who walk. Legislation, while it has minimized the dangers on the city streets and the open road, is found to fall short of present day requirements.

Fear of a heavy fine or imprisonment or both has been quite often a preventive to accidents, but unfortunately the law does not differentiate between the man of sound mind and judgement, who at all times has his automobile under perfect control, and the apparently careless and criminal brainless fool. It is generally assumed that the pedestrian shares equally in the right of any thoroughfare and the drivers of motor vehicles, although some motorists would exclude all, but power driven vehicles from the highways. Legislation restricts, and rightly so, the speed at which motor cars shall travel on city streets and through populated areas. This is meant as a protection for pedestrian from himself and to protect the mind and nerves of the automobile driver.

Education would seem to be the only way to bring this about, and to be effective the education must commence with the child, who, if carefully taught to be careful in traffic, will, undoubtedly in after years develop into a careful motorist. Too often children are unable to explain the difference between caution and cowardice, or bravery and reckless bravado. If they were properly informed on these points a long step would be taken in the direction to avert street accidents, in which, unhappily, the majority of victims are young children.

DEPENDENT ON AGE.
The best method of instruction will depend largely upon the age, habits and previous training of the children themselves. Younger pupils need especially care full instruction, supplemented by practical training in safe ways of crossing the street. Older boys must be convinced of the danger involved in stealing rides, and in throwing stones or other missiles, and in tampering with unattended vehicles, and in using the street in exercise of roller skates, coasters and sleds.

Foreign born children require special study, and so also do defective children. Sensible and practical means for the guidance and regulation of pedestrians in general should be printed and sent to the parents; so that home instruction may supplement the training given in school. Rules of this sort will be much more valuable if they are accompanied by a few effective and striking pictures striving to bring the meaning out more clearly. Children are all the time breaking away from their mothers' apron strings for the greater freedom of the streets, and every one of these children must be separately impressed with the fact that trolley-car gongs and whistles and motor horns are danger signals, to which immediate attention must be paid. The notes of the gong, whistle and horn are new sounds to the average child, but their significance is new, and it has not been learned unless the parents have taken some pains on this point. Sometimes the parents themselves are gross offenders, and we occasionally see a man or a woman making a mad rush to cross a street pushing or dragging a child or two along at the same time, and utterly oblivious of all warning or signals.

YOUNG VICTIMS.
Dealing with this phase of the traffic problem, the following interesting article appears in the Travellers' Standard, published by the Travellers' Insurance Company:
Nearly one-half of the children under 15 years of age who die from accidental causes are the victims of automobiles, street cars, and railroads. Many of these traffic fatalities are attributable to carelessness of the operators of the conveyances that are involved, and this is especially true in connection with the automobiles; but it is equally true that a large fraction of actual casualties could be prevented by carefulness of children themselves. The main responsibility rests, of course, with the driver of the truck or automobile, because he is the individual who places the engine of destruction upon the streets, and who controls it; but it is highly important, nevertheless, to train children to do all they can for their own protection, and to extend this training and systematize it and make it as efficient as possible.

"Our schools can do wonderfully effective work in the way of cultivating and developing the safety spirit and the safety habit among their pupils. The results obtained in cities where this work has been carried on have already been highly gratifying and encouraging; and in at least one case the traffic accidents to school children were reduced by one-half within one year from the time when the training was inaugurated.

New York "Life" is responsible for the following. Several of our local garage owners tell us that if they could get absolutely clear of repair work that the car business would be a "clinch"—that there's no money in repairs, anyhow. So, don't take the following too seriously:
HANDY HANDBOOK FOR AUTO OWNERS.

Almost every car owner wants to know how to fix the car himself. This is particularly true of the man who owns his own garage.
After carefully reading all the books on "How to Repair the Car," and Handy Auto Answers for the "Anxious," I have boiled all the information they contain into a few simple questions and answers, which I have present to my fellow motorists free of charge.
Q. How is the distributor adjusted?

A. Under no conditions touch the distributor. Have it adjusted by a reliable garage man.
Q. What is the proper way to adjust a brake band?
A. A loose brake band may cause a serious accident.
Q. What is a crankshaft?
A. Do not attempt to touch the crankshaft. It is a job for only an experienced mechanic.
Q. If the car emits blue smoke, what is the trouble?
A. Do not attempt to remedy this trouble. Take the car to a garage.
Q. How may a dirty spark plug be cleaned?
A. Don't do it. At the first sign of trouble it is cheaper to have the car thoroughly overhauled.
Q. Where is the spark lever?
A. The sparking system is a very complicated apparatus. Have it fixed by an expert.

Glorious Weather Marks Regatta Day.

Thousands Assemble on Banks of Picturesque Quidi Vidi.

Outer Cove Fishermen Carry off Championship --- Capable Committee Cordially Congratulated.

The annual Regatta 1922 held yesterday proved highly successful. The weather was ideal, the races in most cases well contested and then the tremendous gathering was in a jovial mood. Everyone seemed bent on making the day one of pleasure when Democracy was king. Some thousands of people had assembled long before the hour of the first race, buses, motor cars and other vehicles being kept busy handling the traffic. His Excellency the Governor accompanied by A.D.C. Capt. Gerald Harvey, arrived on the ground at 10.20 and was received by the President and members of the Regatta Committee. Quite a number of distinguished visitors were present amongst whom were Mr. J. Cahlan, K.C., Toronto and Sir Edgar Bowring. Sir Edgar was greeted with cheers and a tiger. The arrangement made by the Regatta Committee worked out without a hitch and but for the Blue Peter being damaged in the fishermen's race the programme would have been carried through on schedule. It took over an hour to make repairs to the Peter. A noteworthy feature of the day was the traffic regulations, there was no congestion and not an accident recorded. The arrangements reflected creditably on the Constabulary. The Majestic moving picture man was present, and some excellent scenes were secured. The various tents, stalls and other attractions were well patronized and towards evening everything was sold out. The setback which the Regatta received early in the preparations did not reflect itself yesterday and the Committee deserve congratulations on the manner in which they surmounted the many obstacles which continually beset their path during the preliminary arrangements.

START OF THE RACES—AMATEUR CONTEST.
Sharp at 10.30 three boats Cadet, Nellie R. and Blue Peter lined up for the opening race. The Nellie R. made the best start and was a length ahead at the buoy but lost place to the Cadet after turning. The Blue Peter and Nellie R. made a splendid race for second place. The Peter however, by an extra pound on the finish beat by about 3 feet. The Cadet crew who had a fairly easy win were remarkable in that 3-oars were members of one family being sons of Mr. W. Martin. Registrar of Vital Statistics. The order of finish was Cadet, Blue Peter, Nellie R. Time 10.49 3-5.

WINNING CREW.
T. Hallett (cox); A. Martin (stroke); M. Chambers, J. M. Tobin, M. Cashin, R. Martin, E. Martin.

TRADESMEN.
Four boats contested in this race and all got away together. When opposite the Committee tent the Guard and Peter forged ahead and kept the position to the turning point. At the buoys the Cadet which was third made a good turn and led the home stretch and won by a length and a half. The race finished in the following order—Cadet, Guard, Blue Peter, Nellie R. Time 10.48.

CREW—(Portugal Cove Navy)— Wm. Hibbs, (cox); W. Mitchell (stroke); S. King, C. Mitchell, F. Mitchell, E. Churchill, Chas. Somerton.

TRUCKMEN'S RACE.
This race was expected to prove exciting and in this respect it was not disappointing. Three boats entered but the Peter's crew decided at the last moment not to compete. The Portugal Cove navy men in the Nellie R. led from the start and won by several lengths. Nellie R. Cadet. Time 10.46.

FOOTBALL RACE.
The Cadet (C.E.I.) and Nellie R.

LABOURERS RACE.
Four boats entered in this race. They made a splendid race down from the stakes, with the Blue Peter, (Cold Storage) having the lead. The boats turned the buoys with very little difference between them, but coming home the Cold Storage got a comfortable lead which they maintained till the finish which was made in the following order—Blue Peter, Cadet, Guard, Nellie R.

CREW—(Cold Storage)— J. Billard, (cox); B. Gordon (stroke); B. Burt, P. Madden, J. Yetman, F. Wheeler, J. Carter.

FISHERMEN.
Four crews competed—Cadet, (Outer Cove); Blue Peter (Quidi Vidi); Guard, (Logy Bay); Nellie R. (Portugal Cove).

The Outer Cove crew took the lead going down the pond with the Blue Peter a close second. On reaching the buoys the Guard unfortunately fouled the Blue Peter and a good many strokes were lost by both crews. The Cadet finished first by about 5 boat lengths. The order was—Cadet, Nellie R. Guard, Blue Peter. Time 10.32 1/2.

CREW—(Outer Cove)— J. Nugent (cox); M. Power (stroke); D. Hickey, D. Houston, J. Coody, S. Power, N. Power.

WAR VETERANS.
Following the interval there was a delay in order that the Blue Peter could be repaired. Three boats entered but the Peter's crew decided at the last moment not to compete. The Portugal Cove navy men in the Nellie R. led from the start and won by several lengths. Nellie R. Cadet. Time 10.46.

CREW—(Portugal Cove Navy)— Wm. Hibbs, (cox); W. Mitchell (stroke); S. King, C. Mitchell, F. Mitchell, E. Churchill, Chas. Somerton.

sey, (stroke); G. Clooney, W. Martin, J. Breen, J. Malone, W. Thomas.

FACTORY.
This race proved the most exciting event of the day. Three boats entered, Blue Peter, (Harvey's Butterine), Nellie R. (R.N.Co.), and Cadet (Imperial). The Peter had won the race for some years past and was again the favourite boat. The race to the buoys was between the Peter and Nellie R. and they reached there together. In turning the Blue Peter's stroke sprang his oar and it was only through good management that it held to the finish of the race. At the Committee tent coming up both boats were neck and neck, and it was hard to decide which would win. On the last stroke however, an extra pound on the oar won for the Nellie R. by a few inches. Time 10.30 1/2.

CREW— L. Rodgers, (cox); G. Squires, (stroke); A. Burton, L. Pike, K. Jeans, P. Coxworthy, J. Moore.

INTERMEDIATE FISHERMEN.
Only two boats competed in this race two others withdrawing. The race was uneven in that the Blue Peter's crew was composed of Juveniles, who were to enter that race but had no competitors. The Cadet was rowed by Logy Bay young fishermen and fairly good time was made. The race finished—Cadet, Blue Peter. Time 10.53.

CREW— P. Brown, (cox); M. Roach, (stroke); J. Roach, J. O'Donnell, W. O'Donnell, J. Burke, P. Devereaux.

INTERMEDIATE.
The Intermediate race created a big interest and four crews competed. The Blue Peter with a crew of Southside lads, took the lead going to the buoys with the Guard (St. Bon's) second, Nellie R. third and Cadet fourth. There was not much change in this position coming home. The Cadet did not finish the course, and the remaining boats arrived at the stakes in the following order—Blue Peter, Guard, Nellie R.

CREW— J. Hussey, (cox); James Taylor, (stroke); George Harvey, F. Cook, T. Cook, H. Rogers, F. Whitten.

MERCANTILE FINAL.
All the boats got away together and the race was fairly good to the bottom of the pond. The Guard turned the buoys first and was straightened out, when the other three boats were turning. The race to the stakes was well contested between the other boats. The finish was—Guard, Nellie R. Blue Peter, Cadet.

CREW— L. Rogers, (cox); W. J. Penney, (stroke); F. Brown, H. Coulter, A. Miller, R. Walsh, H. Hawkins.

CHAMPIONSHIP.
Four crews entered—Cadet (Outer Cove); Guard, (Logy Bay); Blue Peter, (Cold Storage); and Nellie R. (mixed trade crew). The Truckmen did not enter. The pond was ideal at the time, there being scarcely any wind. The Outer Cove crew led from the start with the Nellie R. a close second. The Cadet led the way to the winning post finishing in bonus time. The Order was—Cadet, Nellie R., Guard, Blue Peter. Time 9.40.

The programme for the day being completed, His Excellency the Governor being present gave a short address congratulating the Committee and all those who helped towards the success of the day. The Committee then repaired to the marquee where the presentation of prizes took place. The time being short Vice-President Higgins asked that the proceedings would be put through as quickly as possible. The presentation of prizes was made by Mrs. Hiscock, wife of the President. She was assisted by Mrs. Tasker Cook wife of the city Mayor. At the conclusion Vice President W. J. Higgins, K.C., in moving a vote of thanks to Mrs. Hiscock announced that to-day Mr. and Mrs. Hiscock were celebrating the tenth anniversary of their wedding and in honour of the occasion, Mrs. Hiscock had kindly donated two dollar gold pieces to the winning crew in the Intermediate Fishermen's Race and on behalf of the donor Mr. Higgins made the presentation. President Hiscock addressing the gathering, thanked all for the splendid co-operation which made the day successful. The Hon. H. J. Brownrigg and W. J. Ellis for so kindly donating prizes for the Tradesmen and Laborers Races, and also, Mr. George F. Kearney, who, when the Intermediate Race was placed on the programme, generously donated a set of gold medals, also to Mr. Garrett Brownrigg, who donated the silver medals for the crew taking second place in the same race. Mr. Higgins, in a few closing words, thanked the public, the coxswains, the crews, the Boat Clubs, police, and all who contributed to the success of the day. Cheers were then called for Mrs. Hiscock, Mayores Cook, who was present, and President Hiscock and the Committee.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.
Halved marshmallows are nice added to fruit salad.
A freshly whitewashed cellar will give butter a taste.
A good substitute for the broken top of a percolator is a glass lemon squeezer.
Allow extra cretonne for bureau scarfs when buying it for bedroom windows.
A delicious and easily made dessert is jam roly-poly, served with hard or fruit sauce.
Chill glasses before serving iced drinks. This saves ice and the beverage stays cold longer.
When canning pineapples, cook in boiling water until nearly soft. Finish cooking in syrup.
Fried meat has a nutty flavor when rolled in rolled toasted cornflakes instead of flour.
A good salad is cabbage and unripe apple finely chopped and served with cabbage salad dressing.
Roast chicken, Charleston style, is served with boiled rice, candied sweet potatoes and gherkins.
Sage stuffing is made by adding one teaspoon of sage and a half teaspoon each of summer savory and thyme.
Cookies may be made ever so interesting by decorating with raisins, halved marshmallows, nuts, jelly or cinnamon.
Before placing a meat roast in the oven sprinkle it thickly with dried breadcrumbs. These make it attractive and are good.
Watercress, known to most as a garnishing, is delicious stewed and served with a thin white sauce, and makes excellent cream of soup.
To 2 cupsful of seasoned white sauce add 1/2 cupful of chopped green peppers and 1 1/2 cupfuls of cooked shrimps. Serve in puff paste cases.

The Event of the Year

Regatta Day is but twenty-four hours passed, but is three hundred and sixty-four days away, and the scenes on the banks of picturesque Quidi Vidi yesterday will long linger in the minds of those who had the pleasure of participating in the one day in the year when St. John's meets itself on the green to celebrate the annual aquatic sports which have been rendered time-honored by custom and tradition.

Will Enter the "Mount."

By Tuesday's express there left to enter Mount St. Vincent, Halifax, Miss Mary Emerson, daughter of Mrs. Annie G. and the late Otto Emerson.

Vitamines and Cod Liver Oil.

We are asked by Dr. Zilva to correct a statement made in an editorial article of Tuesday's issue, wherein we said that Drs. Drummond and Zilva who have been lecturing to the Board of Trade on the nutritive value of edible oils and fats have raised the point that the refined cod liver oil of Newfoundland is far richer in "life savers" than that of Norway.

The Late Alexander Graham Bell.

Professor Alexander Graham Bell, LL.D., Ph.D., D.Sc., M.D., whose death was recorded yesterday, was an outstanding figure in various activities, but his name will be remembered longest as the inventor of the Bell Telephone, a system of which is practically universal.

In the world war, Dr. Bell and F. W. Baldwin invented a boat called a hydroplane which developed a speed of 70 miles an hour and was called the fastest in the world. It used an airplane propeller and carried beneath it a series of planes which lifted its main body above the water as its speed increased.

Filming the Pigmies of the Congo.

The cinematograph has been put to many strange uses since its invention some five-and-twenty years ago, but none stranger, surely, than the filming of the Congo pigmies in their native haunts, a feat recently accomplished by an American, Dr. Leonard Bergth.

WHI Attack Ruge Animals.

They have no fixed abodes, but wander at will through the vast tropical forest—of which they are the only human inhabitants—in search of the game that constitutes their principal means of subsistence.

Though they are exceedingly timid and shun contact with all human beings not of their race, they are, nevertheless, bold and successful hunters.

BUT THEY CAN'T SMOKE.

Following on an elephant kill, or if a pigmy band happens on a patch of forest where game is plentiful, they will remain at the one place for a couple of weeks rarely longer. They may build themselves rude shelters of boughs as diminutive as their bodies.

Though they are exceedingly timid and shun contact with all human beings not of their race, they are, nevertheless, bold and successful hunters.

Cunard Liner Carried Away Power Cable.

Travellers who have passed up and down the St. Lawrence river between Montreal and Quebec are familiar with the sight of the big cables that span the water near Three Rivers, which were erected in 1918 by the Shawinigan Water and Power Company for the transmission of power.
A strange accident happened to this installation a few days ago, when the big Cunard liner, the Tyrhena, came in contact with these cables with its masts and broke four of them. It was a happening which was full of dread possibilities; but fortunately nothing more than a temporary delay to shipping came of it. The accident happened at six o'clock in the evening of full light of day, when the liner, under command of Capt. F. G. Brown, ascending the river to Montreal,
caught with her masts two of her cables, which snapped and were followed by the breaking of two more.
The broken ends fell short of the ship.
One of the Canadian Government tugs which was in the river, at once went to the spot and started on preventive work and the clearance of the wreckage. The overhead crossing was completed early in 1918 and is the longest of its kind in existence. The cables are strung in a horizontal plane, each fifty feet from the other.
The length between the towers is 4, 800 feet, with the anchor spans on the shore, gives a total length of crossing 6,324 feet. The minimum clearance between high water and the lowest point of the cables is 165 feet, which was believed to be sufficient for the tallest masts to pass under. There were two theories for the occurrence:
that the water had risen unduly, or that the cables had sagged owing to weather.—The Review.

Boost the Country.

Advertising Newfoundland could be a profitable move providing the descriptions given were not exaggerated. Much has been said about tourist traffic: little has been said of the beautiful scenery in recent years to give the outside world information concerning the possibilities of sporting travelling and the pleasant resting resorts that abound. Those who come in, talk of the hospitable people they meet and the spirit of adventure of the Newfoundlander. Some have admitted that they expected to find half civilized natives and even feared on entering our shores that Indian axes and arrows would greet them with unpleasant results.
Even in those countries like Canada and America, many have not heard of the island that lies in the Atlantic, whilst they are only divided by the Gulf of St. Lawrence and not a great gulf at that. It seems that more publicity in the foreign journals and magazines is needed or an invitation to the wealthy to come over and view our many highways of attraction and places of development, so that the value of the colony can be noised abroad with such rapidity to excite interest amongst investors. Of course many are already interested in big schemes and thousands and hundreds of thousands know of Newfoundland, but many yet, who seek recreation as well as wealth, know very little of the mineral that we are in possession of.
Dr. Grenfell has done much in advertising and when seeking help from the foreigner, has done considerable to stimulate sympathy for the sick and suffering as well as adding capital for his many institutions. Others have brought in American money and all with the aim of doing the very best for all concerned. We hope to see more investment because we have the raw materials that can be put on the market with immense returns
when operations are begun.
Many seek the wealth of the land to carry away when retiring from their labours. Is not this land a pleasant land to spend the remaining years of life besides spreading earned capital to get on easy street and when the boosting is adequately done we believe many will migrate to our shores as well as Western Canada. It is then imperative that capital be sought after with honesty and enthusiasm so that mines can be opened,
the fisheries revolutionized and educational systems be reformed.—Twilling-ate Sun.

ESKIMOS MAKING RAW ALCOHOL, WHICH THEY DRINK AS FAST
AS THEY MAKE IT.

NOME, July, 25.—The Northeastern Siberian coast from Anadyr north to the Arctic, is in a state of chaos as a result of manufacture of raw alcohol by the Eskimos, which they drink as fast as they can make it, according to a despatch of the Siberian correspondent of the Nome Nugget.
"The whole section is a vast distillery," says the correspondent, who adds, that seventy-five per cent. have died recently from the lack of food and medicine, and that the other natives are "drinking, fighting, and killing each other in their orgies."
The Hudson Bay Company steamer Bay China has left Nome for Anadyr, carrying supplies, including medicines.

Feather Flag Waggers.

BIRDS THAT SIGNAL TO ONE AN-OTHER WITH THEIR TAILS.

Do birds signal to each other with their tails? They do, says that enthusiastic naturalist, Ernest Thompson Seton, in "Bird Lore."
In each family of birds there seems to be one species that makes wig-wag signals with its tail to others of its kind. And in nearly every case the tail so used is decorated with colours or with white spots, bars, and blotches, so as to make it more easily seen from afar.

Tail-wagging birds use their signaling apparatus for various purposes—to give warning of danger threatening, to call the flock together when migrating, and for love-making.

The well-known British tail-wagger is the robin. The clear white spots at the corners are very plain as the bird alights and then, for the benefit of whom it may concern, he gives the wig-wag sign of his race—a wag down to right, and then a wag down to left.
The tip of the tail describes a cross
in the air when he makes the sign.

Among larger birds the sparrowhawk and the green heron are energetic wig-waggers. The spotted sandpiper, too, is well known for its tail signal. Usually its line of movement describes a W in the air, beginning at the top on one side and ending at the tip on the other.

Of all tail-signalling birds, however,
the most remarkable is the American cat-bird. His signalling outfit consists of a red lantern, and a black fan
for a screen.

When sending a message he first

HOUSEKEEPERS

The dust which you see blowing about the streets is composed of horse manure, filth from the drains and cesspools and various other disease-bearing particles or atoms.
This dust blows into grocery shops and settles on all uncovered foods. If your grocer has an open sugar barrel in his shop the dust and dirt will surely get into the sugar.

Whenever you buy sugar taken from an uncovered barrel, depend upon it,
you get a goodly share of disease-bearing dust. Do you care?
If you want clean sugar, free from dust, buy Lantic Sugar in dust proof, full weight, sealed packages. Lantic Sugar is guaranteed very highest quality of pure granulated white sugar. Buy a 2 pound or a 5 pound package and see for yourself how good it is.

SHOPKEEPERS

Do you know that to put up sugar in paper bags costs you for the bags, tying, time, and loss of weight, from 75 cents to $1.00 per hundred pounds.
Do you know that 80 per cent of the sugar handled by Canadian and American grocers is sold in packages.
These grocers know that package goods are more profitable than bulk goods because there's no waste.
Any grocer who knows how to figure costs and profits can readily find out whether he is selling sugar at a profit or not, careful figuring will convince such a grocer that package
sugar pays better than bulk sugar.
The jobber who wishes to lessen his percentage or risk, will find Lantic Package Sugar in 100 pound cases very convenient for this purpose. The loss of one case is less than one third the loss of one barrel.

When Naval Captains
Had to Suit Their Crews

The original "Black Book" on which the old naval articles of war were founded was discovered accidentally at the bottom of an old chest in 1874.
To turn over its pages is to get a good idea of life in the Royal Navy
two hundred years ago.
When a captain in those days wished to discharge his crew, he had to give them notice of his intention by taking away the table cloth, three meals in succession.
In certain circumstances, such as the question of setting sail, he was always to consult the crew and act according to the opinion of the majority.
Another curious custom decreed that the chaplain was to reward with sixpence any midshipman who learned a speaking.
When a ship was anchored near any land a seaman who felt his end approaching could demand to be buried on shore and not at sea.
This sometimes gave rise to curious complications. For example, about a hundred years ago a man-of-war was lying becalmed off a desolate island when the captain's cowman died. Before doing he claimed his right to be buried thereon. The chaplain objected, as there was no consecrated ground on the island in which he could bury the man.
The captain ordered him to consecrate some. He pointed out that only a bishop could consecrate a cemetery.
The captain then sent for his clerk and made out an order rating the chaplain as acting-bishop. The latter was then rowed ashore and carried off his duty.
Feeling later that the acting-bishop might become the senior officer over him, the captain formally disrated him to the rank of chaplain.

Before covering a table with oil-cloth, paste squares of heavy muslin on the wrong side of oilcloth, where it is to cover corners, so that the oil-cloth will not break at corners of table.

In the Realms of Sport.

To the tune of the Old Oaken Bucket, Dear Fans, sing the words of this verse.
It's right here before us, sing along the chorus—
We admit that it couldn't be worse.

How dear to our hearts is the old seventh inning.
You love it, dear fans, and you know that you do—
For whether the hometown is losing or winning I'll then you can't stand for you'll spoil someone's view.
It gives you a chance to get back into action.
For six lengthy innings have made you feel numb,
The hard wooden seats drive a man to distraction,
And so in the seventh this chorus we hum.
The old seventh inning, it sets us grinning,
We love the old inning and that's going some.

The baseball game between the B.I. and the Wanderers is the big attraction for to-night and a large gathering of the fans should be present to witness the battle. With the champion Lions one game astern, the second round finds the Cubs and Irishmen vying with each other for pennant honours. The Wanderers and their supporters have not lost hope however especially as Tim Harnett, who swings a murderous club, is just home and it is likely that to-night he will rally their swatters as in the days of yore.

Lots of people are on the street today looking for "that guy" who was holding the bets.

Tuesday's football between the C.E.I. and the Cadets was a terribly one sided affair despite the fact that the Institute boys had on some of their old-timers. The game ended 4 to 1 in the Cadets' favour—Bobby Meaney doing all the scoring for the victors. The Cadets have only one more game to go—the Highlanders—and have lost only 2 points for the season—being just one behind the B.I.S. Should the champs come a cropper then the silverware looks good to them.

What sort of people are Bill's ancestors?
Oh! they are cheap skates.
I thought they came across in the Mayflower?
They did, but that's the last time they did.

tion as far behind the bag and towards centre field as you safely can. Keep the bag in front of you and as many plays as possible between you and the first baseman." Higgins made play at second base a picnic. When touching a runner always try and make him slide in front of you so that you can see him as you reach to touch him. So, when taking a throw from the catcher on a steal stand behind fairly astride of the base and make the runner slide in front of you. Never let the runner slide in behind you if you can help it. Whenever a ball is hit to left field move to the inside corner of and stand on the base. Make all runners go around you. If the ball is hit to right field you may have to go out and help to relay it into the diamond. In this case the shortstop must cover the base. Always see that all bases are covered. Chase all flies anywhere near your position to the end. Never give up a fly ball till it hits the ground. Stand behind, not in front of the base when taking throws from the catcher. Throw underhand on all short throws to the first and second baseman. Throw overhand on doubleplay to the first sacker.
