Miscellaneous.

Joking with Sea Guils.

Sea birds are always interesting objects to voyagers. They follow a vessel sometimes all the way across, ever restless and untiring. The gulls particularly, with their long, swift wings, realize the highest powers of endurance and fly with ease against the severest storms. Some say that these birds never visit the earth except to deposit their eggs; otherwise they live constantly between the sea and sky. In fine weather they fly high in the air, descending with great rapidity to seize the fishes on the surface of the water.

The symmetry and strength of the gulls are remarkable, showing how nature has adapted them in every particular for the purpose of long flight. Their pectoral or breast muscles are one solid mass of firm, hard muscle, and their bones are hollow, having no marrow in them. Sleep is not necessary to them, or, rather, they rest

TIMELY HINTS FOR MOTHERS.—It is at this season of the year that one of the most dreaded of diseases makes its insidious attacks. Many a fond mother, upon being suddenly awakened by the peculiar ringing, rattling cough that heralds croup, has been so frightened as to be unable to think of or apply a remedy. It almost always attacks its victim in the night, and is greatly to be dreaded on account of the extreme rapidity dreaded on account of the extreme rapidity with which it develops. If possible, in this case, as in all cases where you distrust your ability to act, send for a physician, but do not sit down helplessly meantime, as you may do much to relieve the sufferer and check the ravages of the disease. Give an emetic at once. Syrup of ipecac should always be kept in the house for this purpose, as it is the easiest to give a child. Let the doses vary from a quarter of a teaspoonful to a teaspoonful, according to the dreaded on account of the extreme rapidity

A change of even a few degrees marks the difference between comfort and pain to many persons. Happily disease now holds less sway. Science is continually bringing forward new remedies which successfully combat disease. Polson's Nerviline—nerve pain cure—has proved the most successfull pain relieving remedy known. Its application is wide, for it is equally efficient in all forms of pain, whether internal or external. Ten and 25 cents a bottle, at druggists.
