Through the Fields to Putnam Manor

By the way, Madge, shall we get some sandwiches and fruit before we start? There's a little shop across from the station. You wait here and I'll go back for them."

"Nonsense, Dicky," I retorted. "We ate such a heavy breakfast that I know I shouldn't want anything to eat until late in the afternoon. Are you hungry?"

"I shouldn't say that, now. But I was afraid you might want something before we get back to Putnam Manor."

"What is Putnam Manor?"

"The old inn I told you about, where they serve the best meals in the country. It dates back to revolutionary times. I believe George Washington watered his horse there."

"Oh, Dicky, how absurd you are!"

"I don't see that as much claim to distinction as some of those old places have," demanded Dicky. "But, really, this is a great old place, big house with a stately, windowed tower on top, set in a grove of beautiful pines. There are immense fireplaces in most of the rooms, and now that the summer has begun we can have our dinner on a table drawn up in front of the log fire in the great hall."

"What a wonderful picture, Dicky. Are you sure the place is open now?"

"Of course. The old landlady, Forsman, is a fixture there. He has run the place for years. Bully old chap, regular 'mine host of the inn' sort of fellow. Lots of the men I know come here and stay with him during the summer. He has his walls covered with drawings the fellows have done for him. There are two or three of mine there, I guess. He never takes anything down."

"Dicky! How prettily thrilling!" I now shall enjoy this day better than any we have ever had."

"It's quite a judge of antiques, old man, regular antique himself, by the way. He spends all his spare cash fitting up the place in keeping with an old-fashioned, but very comfortable, style. In the dining room he paid $500 for, in the barroom, which is exactly like an old tavern of revolutionary times, he has all sorts of old swords and flintlocks and other colonial junk. It's as good as a museum to see, his collection is."

"How long since you have been there?"

"Oh, early last summer, just before I met you. I have been so busy since then I haven't had time to do any of the things I used to do. He grined mischievously. "I don't know why I didn't bring you out here last summer at the time you were quite sure how you'd like it, I guess."

"Shut Your Eyes."

"You might have known I would enjoy anything like that," I returned. "But Dicky, I really think you ought to go back to the station and inquire whether the place is open or not. Anything might have happened in this time."

"If that isn't just like a woman," Dicky exclaimed with every evidence of cooperation. "Spill everything with demands to look it up. I'll be right back. I tell you the place is open, has been for years. Come along through this stile and forget your troubles for a while."

Dicky was evidently bent upon surprising me with some picturesque fact or other. "My papa says you've got more questions until he revealed it to me."

We went down the path into the woods which, bare as the trees were, looked like the forest in winter in the summer time, I said.

"It is," Dicky returned. "Now shut your eyes and follow me. Don't open them until I tell you."

I obeyed his whim, and he led me a few feet down the path, then he made an abrupt turn, and he placed his shoulders placed me in the position he wanted.

"Now look," he said proudly.

I opened my eyes, gave one glance, and exclaimed in wonder: "Dicky! I never saw anything so beautiful in my life!"

At my feet was a brook, with water clear that I could see every clean pebble in its bed. There was not a weed, a leaf, or stick on its surface to mar its clearness. In its rapid flow upon its rippling gave them the effect of dancing, and as I watched the stream I felt again that I had seen the most beautiful bit of nature in my experience.

"Well! I guess Tennyson's brook had nothing on this, Eh, Madge?"

Dicky's voice broke in on my silent admiration.

"Let us walk up as far as we can," I said enthusiastically.

"That's just what I want to do," Dicky returned. "I know every bend and curve of it. Many a sketch I've made here. It's fine now, but you simply must see it in summer, when the wild flowers are thick along its banks and the woods are green."

"It must be wonderful," I agreed heartily, and we wandered along the bank of the stream, with its numberless twists and turns, but enjoying every beauty of it.

At Kissing Bridge.

At one point the stream widened and ran under a rustic bridge over which another road wound.

"This is known as the Kissing bridge," said Dicky solemnly, and followed the traditional custom.

"Dicky!" I reproved. "Suppose anybody should see us!"

"But they won't," he retorted saucily. "But they did!" I gasped, looking across the road to the grove beyond where the boys were.

An immense tree with spreading limbs so low to the ground that a child could climb to its branches commanded a full view of the bridge. Along the low branches sat four red-capped, over-coated youngsters, three boys and a tiny girl, the four ranging in age from 10 to 4. They were looking straight at us, their eyes round as saucers. At first I thought there was no grown person with them, but in another moment I saw a woman, evidently a nurse, walking slowly along the stream. Her back was toward us.

How She Discovered the Best Ways to Make Doughnuts.

FOR the past week or so Bob has teased several times for doughnuts—"homey doughnuts like grandma used to make"—and I promised faithfully to make some for him. And a few days ago I actually did get my utensils together, and even had a nice old-fashioned stone crock into which to put my doughnut store.

When Bob came home that night he sniffed around a bit, and finally burst out, "Where, oh, where are the doughnuts, for I surely smell and smell as many doughnuts? Out with them!"

"I fished brazenly, and declared that he couldn't possibly get a doughnut out of there wasn't a doughnut on the premises. Literally, that was true. But down, down into the depths of my garbage pail were two dozen doughnuts—or near-doughnuts—utterly spoiled. It was bad enough for me to be utterly disgusted with a dismal failure, and I didn't intend to pass on the disappointment to Bob.

Why on earth those doughnuts were so impossible raw and soggy only the little imp that clung into the stove can tell. Perhaps I didn't have enough baking powder; perhaps I didn't beat eggs or butter and sugar sufficiently; perhaps—and this seems to be the most probable of all—the fat was not hot enough.

Of course, I know that crullers are supposed to be fried in hot fat, but I didn't realize until after my mistake, when I consulted a dozen other recipes, that the most important thing is to have the fat piping hot—extraordinarily hot—so that when a slice of bread is dropped into it the bread turns brown. Then, but I did follow, using a different recipe, and the result is a most beautiful batch of doughnuts. This is a different recipe from the ordinary ones, but I have it on the authority of my neighbor, who has a most marvelous cook, that yeast doughnuts usually are the best for lightness and fineness.

Sour Milk Doughnuts.
1 cupful of sugar.
1 cupful of butter.
2 eggs.
1/4 cupful of sour milk.
1 teaspoonful of saleratus, cinnamon, nutmeg, salt, flour.

Butter and sugar are creamed together, then eggs well beaten, sour milk, cinnamon, nutmeg and salt are added. The saleratus must be dissolved in a little water, then added to the other ingredients and enough flour is mixed in to make a dough one can roll. It is then cut into shapes and placed in the frying basket and immersed in deep, hot fat.

Yeast Doughnuts.
1 cup scalded milk.
1/4 cake of yeast dissolved in 1/4 cupful of lukewarm water.
1/2 cupful of melted butter.
1/2 cupful of sugar.
4 cupfuls of flour.
2 eggs.
1 teaspoonful of salt.
1/2 teaspoonful of nutmeg.

In the evening yeast and flour are mixed to make a dough; then the other ingredients are mixed with it, and the whole is kneaded 15 minutes, when it is covered and left in a fairly warm corner of the kitchen until morning. Then the dough is rolled to about one-half inch thickness and cut into strips, fastening the ends together in circular shape; then the doughnuts are set on a floured tin and left to rise. When they are quite light they are placed in the frying basket and cooked slowly until brown.

These yeast doughnuts are supposed to take a longer time in cooking than those made with baking powder, but they are more wholesome also.

Advice to Girls

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

My chum and I have been going with two boys, who are cousins, for about two months. One day a couple of weeks ago we met them when we were going out and would not let them come with us, but would give no reason why. We have written to them since, asking them to come to a picnic with us, but have never heard from them nor seen them since. They said that day that they might go away soon. Do you think that we should write to them again or wait until they come to see us of their own accord?

Our mothers do not like us to go with them, but we know that they are good boys, because they often deny themselves so as to give more to their mothers, both of their fathers being dead.

Now, dear Annie Laurie, what do you think we should do?

SORROW.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl only 15 years old. I met a young boy at a picnic in our town, and ever since he has been calling me up on the phone, and lately he has been asking me to go for drives, baseball matches and things like that. I have never gone, and it annoys me. I told mother, and she told me not to talk to him any more, but it doesn't make a bit of difference. I told him once that I hadn't time to talk to him.

I don't and mother doesn't consider me old enough to keep company with young boys. I do not like to offend him, but I do hate to have him calling every minute in the day. He is a nice boy, and works in a bank, but I'm far too young and I do not like him calling up so much. Please tell me what to do.

SORROW.

TWO CHUMS.

TWO CHUMS:

My mother does not want me to have them as friends, don't you think you are very wrong in encouraging their attentions? You see, mothers have the happiness of their children at heart, and usually they know best what they should do. Why don't you follow their advice, knowing that you should, as it is for the very best, filled with their love for you?

ODD FACTS

Over a third of the population of Dublin consists of families living in a single room.

On dark nights a white light can be seen farther than any other color; on bright nights red takes the other place.

According to the laws of war, any civilian who is found with arms in his possession is liable to be shot without mercy.

The candlepower of the sun is represented by a string of figures beginning with 18, and followed by no less than 77 noughts.

The collection includes a teneaculum, or sharp hook, similar to those in modern use; a number of callipers of beautiful workmanship, shaped like modern instruments of the same type; a cattery for burning wounds; a couple of probes exactly like the modern ones; a couple of spatulas, or spoons; a needle-holder, and a bronze box, evidently an instrument case. In addition, there are a slab of Egyptian porphyry, upon which ornaments were mixed, and a pair of scales, still in excellent equipage.

Why Even Slight Physical Defects Handicap Children

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSBERG

A. B. M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins University)

SUPPOSE some one should cripple the telephone exchange. They might do so in various ways. The receivers and mouthpieces of all the telephones could be damaged or pieces with false two-way switches could be made to replace those in use.

The vandal could sever the wires or switch them into wrong paths; the central station itself could be injured, altered or otherwise diverted from its usual connections. It is evident that the procedure could be varied in many ways, any of which could produce an interference with a deviation from the normal modes of communication.

When a child is backward or mentally deficient, the diagnosis of the precise origin of her trouble depends in considering her skin, sense organs and other tissues, as the telephone mouthpieces and receivers, and her nerves are merely the wires, while the brain is the central exchange station. Injury to the brain is no more necessary to explain the backwardness of a child, its imbecility, feeble-mindedness, idocy, and the like, than disease or damage to the distant structure of the nerve tendril. Even fatigue, absent glands, poor nutrition and starvation may substitute some of these.

Helen Keller, juggled in by writers too often it is true, was mentally deficient, an imbecile. Despite her wonderful intellect, her French, Greek and Latin, and her college education, she still is mentally backward. It is due to her permanent loss of vision and hearing. Sordid and color are unknown to her.

Unused sensations can never be developed. Whether they are so by birth, accident or deliberate isolation from society, the result is feeble-mindedness of low or high degree. Kaspar Hauser, a child who was very young when he was confined in a dungeon deep underground.

Correct Diagnosis First.

At the age of 17, according to Prof. Arthur Holmes, he was found wandering about the city gates of Nuremberg, Germany. He knew his name and one childish sentence, "I will be a trooper as my father was."

Prof. Daumen found him with a marvellous craving for knowledge. He learned with speed. His memory was wonderful. The strain, however, soon broke him down and his training ceased. His perception of smell and seeing in the dark was unimpaired. The latter is explained by his former life. He could never be educated beyond a certain point.

The autopsy upon his body performed after he was stabbed to death by a stranger—who had met his mysterious birth and confinement in a dungeon—revealed that his physical structures, such as the tongue, muscles, brain and other parts, were not fully developed.

Retardation in a child, either before or after birth, or at school, may be due to defective or diminished size of the thyroid, pituitary, pineal and other glands. It is traceable to being born infected with disease or with alcohol, instrumental or congenital deafness and summer complaint.

Physical causes may be so minute as to escape physical diagnosis. Chemistry, biology, ancestry and all other available means must be used to arrive at the possible cause of backward mental life of children.

The most apparent trivial physical disorders, such as decaying or irregular teeth, frayed tonsils, poor eyesight, running ears, adenoids, enlarged joints and "kinky" hair, if not corrected, may be the source of its seeming imbecility. If these are not or cannot be corrected, the retarded mental backwardness will remain throughout life.

The Healthy Child.

Neglect, carelessness with regard to the child's food, tuberculosis, emaciation, fatty overgrowth, nasal obstruction, anemia and most maladies play havoc with the intellects of youngsters. Those who may doubt this may observe the faintly collected by various school commissions throughout the country. Healthy children stand higher in their school work than the so-called "average child."

Those with even slight physical defects, such as tooth decay, enlarged tonsils, broken noses, thin tongues, hare lips, tonsils and adenoids, who need glasses or attention to sore ears, taken as a

DR. HIRSBERG diagnosis of the precise origin of her trouble depends in considering her skin, sense organs and other tissues, as the telephone mouthpieces and receivers, and her nerves are merely the wires, while the brain is the central exchange station.

Answers to Health Questions

G. S. Q.—I am a victim of constipation, am a stenographer, and hence sit a great deal of the time. I eat vegetables and drink a fair share of water. What will you suggest my doing in a case of this kind?

A.—Learn to swim, row and dance, and exercise in the open air. Take half a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda before one or two meals a day, and half a dozen bone charcoal tablets after meals.

H. H. Q.—I am a young girl and always constipated; nothing seems to help me. Will you kindly suggest some good remedy?

A.—It is expedient that you eat more nourishing foods, fresh vegetables, carrots, young peas, asparagus, corn on the cob, steamed Irish potatoes, rice, cereals, fruits, distilled water, whole milk and cream. Obtain lots of outdoor exercise, use your muscles more, take a half an hour before meals, and a wide-spread of olive oil about half an hour after meals.

M. P. J. Q.—Kindly advise me if I will increase my weight by appointing—

2—What will increase my weight if I do not?

A.—I do not discuss advertised remedies.

3—Eat lots of oily, hot, greasy, rich, starchy and highly seasoned foods, sweets, pastries, chocolate, soups and gravies. Sleep 10 hours in the 24, do not exercise too vigorously, but take sufficient exercise to keep the muscles from becoming stiff. Eat carrots, young peas, asparagus, lima beans, corn on the cob, boiled potatoes and rice, cereals, oatmeal, shredded wheat and fruits. Drink lots of distilled water, milk and cream. Take a wineglassful of olive oil about half an hour after meals, and keep the bowels open, especially at night.

Lampshade Dance Frock of Pink Chiffon and White Tulle.

THE lampshade dance frock with its over-drapery of sheer material is commanding much attention at present.

This dainty model has a foundation of pink chiffon trimmed with narrow flounces. The tulle is of white tulle, scalloped and edged with pearl beads.

A garland of tiny pink and blue silk are on the road to unpopularity if you start your life deceiving some one. Therefore make up your mind today and stick to it, my dear.

LOSS OF SUBMARINE ADMITTED BY FRENCH

German Version of Fate of Turquoise Has Been Accepted.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—The German announcement of the sinking of the French submarine Turquoise is authentic by the marine ministry, which issued the following:

"According to news from German sources the French submarine Turquoise was sunk in the Sea of Marmara, and two officers and 24 men were made prisoners. The vice admiral in command of the French submarine force, without news of the Turquoise, the report of its loss is considered authentic."

A Berlin despatch last night said the Turquoise and her crew were nearly intact by the Turks, who probably would utilize the vessel themselves.

Toronto Women Might Tell Hair Secret

A great many Toronto women, who have an abundance of beautiful hair, know about a remarkable hair formula which every woman ought to know about. For a number of years Toronto druggists have been continually called upon to mix this formula. Undoubtedly the use of this formula is largely responsible for the beauty and luxuriance of the hair of many Toronto women—and men, too. The formula consists of six ingredients which run down two ounces lavender de compose, and one-half drachm of menthol crystals. Some people have been misled by the name of a New York physician and a New York chemist were recently consulted regarding the efficacy of this mixture, and they both say they know of nothing better to destroy dandruff, stimulate hair growth, cleanse the scalp, remove the scalp itching, hair, and to make the hair drop and give it lustre. Any druggist can furnish you the ingredients which you can mix at home, or will mix them for you. Apply to the scalp night and morning and rub in with the finger tips.

FRENCH GAINING FRESH SUCCESS IN KAMERUN

German Post Was Captured With Heavy Loss to Enemy.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Additional victories for the French in their campaign in Kamerun in the German colony in western equatorial Africa, are announced in an official statement today which reads as follows:

A French column in Kamerun captured on Oct. 25 the post of Sendou on the Durba-Yaunde Road. The enemy loss was heavy. The French lost among the Europeans was light, while 26 natives were killed and 79 wounded.

Continuing their forward march, the French next took Esaka on Oct. 26. The railroad, which had been partially destroyed by the enemy, has been completely repaired.

NO DECISION YET WITH HYDRO MEN

Several Sessions Were Held Thruout Yesterday Without Definite Conclusion.

CANADIAN ORGANIZER

John Flett Arrived From Hamilton and Attended the Meetings.

Several sessions were held yesterday in the Labor Temple by the Hydro men who are on strike, but nothing was definitely decided on, and the press committee had nothing to report at the conclusion of last night's meeting.

John Flett, Canadian organizer of the American Federation of Labor, arrived in Toronto from Hamilton, and attended the meetings.

Refused to Strike. Twenty of the 232 hydro-electric men who were called out on strike by their union on Tuesday morning refused to strike and reported for duty at the hydro yesterday morning.

General Manager Couzens of the hydro stated that everything was running all right. A few street lights burned but were fixed by a temporary staff of repair men. Mr. Couzens also stated that after the men went on strike a 1400 foot service was installed in the old General Hospital, which is to be used by the soldiers.

"The hydro," he said, "is prepared to install new service despite the strike, but it was not probable that the strike had been fomented by agents anxious to cripple the work of turning out munitions of war."

The alleged statement that R. L. Mackay, superintendent of construction and operation, had been around to the men, telling them that they must resign for their positions was denied yesterday by Mr. Couzens.

He said the commission was prepared to re-engage such men as they were prepared to accept on or before the usual hour, at which the system's men of their grade ordinarily start work, on or before next Thursday.

Reply of the Men. Yesterday morning the local union sent the following reply to the statement presented to the union by Chairman F. W. Ellis and Commissioner Mackay of the hydro commission:

"We, the Hydro Men, in consequence of certain conditions contained in an existing award, not having been fixed by the hydro commission, notified the hydro-electric system of their dissatisfaction with the award on May 1, 1915, and became necessary for them to give 30 days' notice to the system of any intended change."

"This was done and a committee was appointed to see the manager, Mr. Couzens. After several interviews a reply was handed to the men by him, dated May 11, 1915. Some six weeks after our first request had been presented him, in part as follows:

"The wages on the system at present make it very difficult to maintain the scale of wages which have obtained in the past, apart altogether from the fact that nearly all commercial capacity quartermaster-general at Havre, was celebrated in London last week."

"With this as a basis, the hydro commission is anxious that the wages on the system be reduced to a scale so good as to attract the best and most efficient men."

"We continue the scale. The existing scale of wages will be continued for the present, with the exception of the following modification applicable to the apprenticeship period for the mechanics in the station construction department, as suggested by the men: Some six weeks' effect. The wages will then become as follows:

First year 27 cents per hour
Second year 32 cents per hour
Third year 35 cents per hour
Fourth year 38 cents per hour
Fifth year 42 cents per hour

"In order to clear away any ambiguity that exists in connection with the award of the arbitrators, dated June 15, 1914, and to bring the same into harmony with the modification applicable to the apprenticeship period for the mechanics in the station construction department, as suggested by the men, the following modification will be applied to the award from the date of its completion, the BILL CLYMER SIGNS TWO-YEAR CONTRACT

Louisville Pays Him Big Price to Lead the Colonels—Hates to Leave Us.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 3.—William Clymer, who back in 1902 and 1903 successfully managed the Louisville A.A. Baseball Club, returned to his old love yesterday, when he signed a two-year contract, at a large figure, to manage the Colonels. He arrived in Louisville yesterday afternoon, and after a long conference with Owner Wachen, affixed his signature to a contract. It is said to be the best contract held by any manager in the American Association. Clymer came here from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., for the conference. He was loath to leave the Toronto Club, with which he had finished second last season, but the contract offered him proved too alluring, and he returned to his old, familiar haunts.

London, Ont., Guessing As to Baseball Circuits

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 3.—The announcement that Bill (Derby Day) Clymer has signed to manage the Louisville American Association club would indicate that Frank Shaughnessy of the four-time champion Ottawas will succeed Clymer as manager of the Toronto team of the International League.

HUGHES UNAWARE WHY RYAN WAS DISMISSED

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—The minister of militia today stated that he had no official details of the court-martialing of Lieut.-Col. Ryan of the 6th Mounted Rifles, but that he had heard that on one occasion in France the officer had over-indulged. The minister paid a tribute to his services in South Africa, particularly Lilliefontein.

Guelph Tankard Skips Mahoney and Crowe

GUELPH, Nov. 3.—The Royal City Curling Club held their annual meeting in the Victoria rink clubrooms this evening. The secretary's report showed that the club played eighteen games, on which it split even, the best showing being made by the playing for the Hamburg Challenge Cup, of which the club won five and lost one.

Played in 61 League Games, 67 Years Old.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 3.—George Arambiger, 67 years old, a wealthy store dealer, has closed his playing season with the team of W. J. Hunter, a suburb of Pittsburgh, the strongest amateur team in Allegheny county. During the season he played sixty-one full games. His official batting average is .326. In the field his mark was 370. Arambiger plays outfield positions equally well. In a game Aug. 30 he made five hits, scored four runs, and stole two bases. He claims to be the oldest active ball player in the world, and declares that he can run bases, hit and throw as well as he could when he was forty years younger.

WAR SHARES TAKE SUDDEN TUMBLE

Nervousness and London Liquidation Exercise Depressing Influence.

C. P. R. ALSO DROPPED

N. Y. Stock Exchange Pessimistic After Holidays—Utilities Strong.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Unfavorable foreign developments over the holiday were chiefly responsible for today's nervous and unsettled market.

War shares exercised a depressing influence from the outset. Bethlehem Steel opened with a four point gain at 45 1/2, but fell violently to 42 1/2, and closed at 43.

PRICES ARE INFLUENCED BY PROFIT-TAKING

N. S. Steel and Steel of Canada Easier, But Steel Corporation Shares Are Steadily Strong

Trading slackened somewhat on the Toronto Stock Exchange, and sentiment was less bullish owing to the weakness in the New York market.

IRREGULAR MARKET BUSINESS ERRATIC

Cement Continued Remarkably Lively Feature of Montreal Stock Exchange.

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—Local stocks were under the conflicting influences of heavy profits in some directions, and new buying in others.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET. WINNIPEG, Nov. 3.—Wheat closed 3/4 to 1 1/2 down; oats, 1/2 to 3/4 up.

WHEAT SENT DOWN BY HEAVY SALES

Large Increase in World's Available Supply Depressing at Chicago.

CLEAR FALL OF CENT

Corn and Oats Lost Fraction—Provisions Down Ten Points.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Announcement of a large increase of the world's available supply of wheat, and a sales movement that more than offset an early bulge today in the price of wheat.

Nineteen million bushels increase of the world's available stock was of considerable significance in view of the fact the European viable supply is now about 5,000,000 bushels larger than at the corresponding time last year.

MINTYRE IS BOUGHT FOR A LONG HOLD

Shares Regarded as Most Promising of Non-Dividend Payers—Other Stocks Firm.

A steady strong market was in evidence yesterday on the Standard Exchange. There was little speculative enthusiasm visible, but the same class of investment buying which has been going on for some time was in evidence.

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Easier conditions prevailed in the money and discount markets today.

LONDON METAL MARKET.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Spot copper, 27 1/2 up, 58. Futures, 27 1/2 to 76.

SILVER PRICES.

In London yesterday bar silver closed 1-16 higher than Tuesday at 24 1/2 pounce.

CANADA'S WAR LOAN. OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—Hon. W. T. White announced today that the amount of terms of the Canadian war loan, to be offered only in Canada, would be made heavy during the last week of the month.
