Lick Observatory, Nov. 3.—The bright star Sirius has a small companion which was discovered by Alvin Clark, jr., in 1862. It is especially interesting because its existence was predicted in 1844 by Bessel from a consideration of the irregular motion of the larger star. The small star moved about Sirius in an orbit whose circuit is completed in about fifty years. The mass of the small stars is about one-half the mass of Sirius, though it has only one tenthousandth part of its light. The mass of the companion is substantially the

A CANDID TORY.

The Conseravtives had a grand "wawa" at Toronto, the avowed object being to organize the party in Ontario. Perhaps it would be more correct to use the word "galvanize" in this connection; at all events that word would fit in better with the speeches made at the gathering, from that of Sir Charles Tupper downwards. The most pithy observations seem to have been made by Edward Coehrane, M.P. for East Northumberland, who became famous a few years ago on account of the practice of start up on the 1st of November, and auctioning off federal offices which ob will run full blast during the winter again united in heart and affection to

Mr. Edward Bluett, a mining man whose name is familiar in many of the Western states, recently visited Camp Fairview, where he is interested in the Silver Crown and Joe Dandy mines. Speaking of the district Mr. Bluett said: "I just want to say one thing and that is that though I have been interested in mining in every mineral producing state seen any country that begins to 'size up' along with this." Fairview is situated in Osoyoos division of Yale district, and is remarkably easy of access. Port Townsend, Nov. 4.-The United States steamer Bear arrived early this morning direct from Unalaska. The Bear has been patrolling the northern sea. Upon the breaking up of the patrol the Bear proceeded north, taking up sup plies and equipments to Point Barrow and other whaling stations. It is thought here that the Bear will headquarter at Port Townsend, and be used in case of accidents which occur to shipping every winter off Cape Flattery, she being about the only vessel in the revenue service which is in a fit condition to withstand the fierce winds and seas which prevail. BRITISH STEEL MAKING.

During the last week the British Iron Trade Association has collected and published the statistics of the production | which, as the record of scenes like the of steel in the United Kingdom for the St. Bartholomew murders or the mur first half of the present year. The fig- ders recently committed in Constantiures show an almost unprecedentel increase of output, which is a specially has shed much blood. Many, perhaps a interesting fact in view of the discus- majority, do not feel it, but the ferosion that has been going on for the last year or more as to the alleged superiority of German methods and the success of Continental competition. It appears the hunter combined, and unless con that the total production of steel for the first six months of the present year was as much as 1,969,320 tons, or at the tell discovered. A separate passion of rate of 3,938,640 tons a year, which is blood shedding arises in them, and tigby far the largest output of steel, hitherto arrived at in a single year by any on a commercial scale 20 years ago, now yields over 2,100,000 tons per annum. This is an advantage which is without parallel in any other branch of British iron making, and is perhaps, unique in the history of British industry. The north of England, where only a few hundred tons of open hearth steel were produced fifteen years ago, is now proin Pinar del Rio, gives a very alleged dynamiter under remand for ducing the material at the rate of over further examination in Bow street police 800,000 tons a year. As far as the Bessemer steel industry is concerned, it appears that there has ben an augmentation of 103,662 tons during the first half of the present year on the output of the corresponding half of 1895. But the most striking feature of this branch of the steel industry is that it has fallen behind the open hearth manufacture, instead of having a large lead as it had a few years ago. Indeed, to go no further back than 1887, the output of Bessemer steel was then at least twice as much as the make of Siemans, or open hearth steel, whereas it has now fallen more than 300,000 tons a year behind it. This fact is not alone due to a preference for open hearth steel. It is also a function of the diminished demand for steel for railway purposes, to which Bessemer metal has hitherto been chiefly applied, and to the increased demand for steel for shipbuilding, and kindred purposes, to which open hearth' steel was particularly suited. It is the great demand for new shipping, both in Great Britain and in other countries, that has chiefly stimulated the demand for metal of this latter description, while the increase

The Bondholder people have just finished an excellent rawhide trail from their property to the Enterprise wagon road, connecting just below the Neepawa cabins. The Silver Band was stocked in Victoria a few weeks ago at $250,000 in one million 25 cent shares. A small block of treasury stock was offered fo sale at ten cents, and was immediately taken up. Follow this line to the Tennessee border and draw west, leaving Tennesse below the line and Kentucky above, then follow up the Mississippi river to the lower edge of Iowa and turn the corner of Iowa and trace along the south line of the lower Dakotas and thence north to the Canadian boundary. You will have described the new line of demarcation between the gold standard forces of the east and silver element of the west and south. Every state north and east of the line lescribed, is for McKinley. Every state west and south of it went for Bryan. with the exception of California and Oregon on the Pacific coast. The states in which the result of the election was losest, line along this frontier line, Delaware, the Virginias, Kentucky, Missouri, South Dakota and Wyoming, thus showing where the battle raged fiercest. The line is doubly interesting because does not follow the course of the historical Mason and Dixon line, and for the first time in the last thirty years the phrase "Solid South" has no particusignificance. Late arriving returns rom points remote, which have been received during the past twenty-four hours give conviction to the approximate tables of the day before. Nebraska, Washington and Kansas may now be added to the Bryan table and Oregon to the Mc-Kinley table. The totals of the electoral vote are: For McKinley, 277; for Bryan, 170. In Wyoming, however, the latest dispatches say one Republican elector has at least been elected, and the result on the other two are very close. This may give Bryan one or two less electoral votes and McKinley one or two more. Later returns from Kentucky, North Carolina and South Dakota indicate that the pluralities estimated yesterday in those states may be reduced, and that the result is close in each of them.

Any of these three states may possibly, but not probably, be transferred to the opposite column. Kansas makes the fourth close state, but is generally conceded to the Bryan columns. In no event will McKinley's total reach 300 or Bryan's total reach 200, but in any vent the majority in favor of Mc-Kinley will be about 100 electoral votes. There is a story of Sir Henry Irvcharacteristic modesty, he kept himself so well in the background that not rejected a by-law providing $444,00 for many members were aware of his presence. A gentleman was on his feet eloquently deploring the improvements in spelling which had resulted in so many new pronunciations that there was grave apprehension of the Elizabethans turning in their graves. "If Shakespeare were to rise from the dead now," said the orator, "I make bold to say he would hardly comprehend his own words as they are spoken at this time by our representative actors. He would be shocked were he to hear Irving." From a seat in the remote corner there rose a slender figure, and from a pair of thin lips that twitched with mirth issued the words, "Or see him!"

> One of the most remarkable cases was that of Bishop Williams, who had been lord keeper of the seal, a popular prelate, a man of learning and spirit and at one time a special favorite of James'. While enjoying his patronage he exerted his influence on behalf of Laud, afterward archbishop, who owed his first promotion to his good offices. Some disagreement arose between them. Nothing would satisfy Laud but the ruin of the man that had befriended

On some slight pretext the bishop was brought before the star chamber and fined £10,000, committed to the tower during the King's pleasure, and suspended from office. His furniture and books were levied upon to pay the fine. Among some refuse papers were found some letters from Obaldiston, a school-master, directed to the bishop. In these letters the writer spoke of a "little great man," and in one place of a "little urchin." As Laud was small of stature, it was conjectured that these terms referred to him. They were both tried, one for receiving such scandalous letters, and the other for writing them. Williams paid a fine of £8,000 and Obaldison £5,000, and had his ears nailed to the pillory in sight of his own school.

Prynne, a barrister-at-law of Lincoln's inn, a Puritan of the strictest sect, published his famous Histrio-Mastrix, a huge volume of 1,000 quarto pages, aimed at stage plays, music, dancing, public festivals, Christmas sports, bonfires and May poles. For this alleged libellous volume he was arraigned before the star chamber. The trial occupied three days, and the fourth was consumed in

The railway interest in the United Kingdom may be regarded as affording one of the earliest and surest tests of for its cause some trouble, either local or general, which the reduced recepits serve as a guide to measure, and, if possible, to devise a remedy for it; while increase of traffic above the average is the first and most reliable evidence of commercial prosperity. Viewed in this light the financial record of the railways of the United Kingdom gives reasons to believe that business was in a more satisfactory condition in the country last year than in 1894.

The paid-up capital of the railways of the United Kingdom reached the enormous total of one thousand millions in up capital of the railways was £985,378,-000, so that a substantial increase has for a year or two the round number of a thousand millions of money will serve very well to represent the capital invested in British railways. Divided out by the number of miles of railway open. this represents an average of, as nearly as possible, £47,200 per mile as the prime cost of the railways. And it must be admitted that, in proportion to other countries, the railways of the construct them and more money to work them that the railways elsewhere. The increase of expenditure arises partly from the initial expenses, caused by the high claims of landowners, the legal expenses before parliament in the case of railways that are opposed, and the reways in order to ensure the greater He was fined £8,000 for such a public. Still, in spite of all restrictions and of all additions to the expenses of the companies, the average dividend over all the lines in 1895 comes up to a very minute fraction over four per cent., while the money actually distributed to shareholders of all clasess exceeded that distributed in 1894 by £900,000. As regards the sources from which the revenue of the railways comes, there is in 1895, for the first time in several years, a distinct increase in the money received from first-class passengers. £69,000 is the increase under this head as compared with 1894. and as 1894 decreased by almost exactly the same sum first-class pasengers in 1895 stand just where they stood in 1893. But the secend-class continues to decrease, being £37,000 less than in 1894; and little wonder, for railway managers themselves seem now to have accepted the idea that the second-class is doomed to die. In Scotland it is not used at all, and in more conservative England several lines have abandoned it. But the third-class traffic has increased by £520,-000, the receipts from this class of traffic being now equal to about three-fifths of the whole money derived from passengers. Were it not that some of the English lines still decline to give thirdclass season tickets, and thus drive daily travellers into higher classes for the sake of reduction in fares, the third-class traffic would show better still.

General merchandise, as contrasted with mineral traffic, shows an increase in 1895; and, while in Scotland the mineral traffic shows an increase when compared with the strike period in 1894, there is no advance in the English mineral traffic. But, viewed as a whole, there is every reason for the investor to have confidence in British railways, considered as the source of a safe and staple dividend. The management may be often conservative enough, and the fear of yielding too much to the thirdclass passenger seems to be still before the eyes of the railway manager; but, if he is somewhat slow, he is certainly sure, and people who entrust their money to him will seldom be disappointed of

Before proceeding with the regular business Ald. Marchant and Macmillan pointed out the necessity for an electric light on Alpha street. The electric light committee will inquire into the matter. A vote of thanks was tendered to Captain Smith for a deer and Mr. Joseph Levy for a magpie presented to the city

A. C. Ewart, architect for the new Leiser building notified the council that a 12 foot cement sidewalk was about to be laid and asked for the usual payment granted in such cases. The city engineer will deal with the matter.

A communication from the city bar-rister asking for more definite informa-tion regarding the McTavish property damage controversy was referred to the city barrister to secure the necessary information from the solicitors for Mrs.

J. G. Elliott, secretary of the Victoria board of fire underwriters, forwarded the following resolution unanimously adopted by the board at the annual meeting held on the 21 ult.: "That the council be requested to appoint Mr. Hutchison, chief engineer of the city electric light department, inspector of electric wire installations in all dwellings and buildings in the city of Victoria and that the council be further requested to introduce a by-law regulating the same as a measure of public safety.

"2. That the secretary be instructed to write the city council stating that this association is greatly in favor of the recommendation made from time to time by the chief ergineer of the fire department as to the advisibility of having a fully paid fire department instead of the present call system. In the opinion of this board it would be more in touch with modern ideas and of greater expediency in coping with fires. They therefore, strongly urge that this system be adopted inasmuch as it can be effectually accomplished at a minimum cost of even less than the amount at end to the incoming council. Ald. Marchant pointed out that the work of building the Point Ellice bridge was progressing but slowly. He could not see how this came about in the face of a resolution giving the city engineer the necessary power to employ men night and day to ensure a speedy

Ald. Macmillan, as a member of the street committee, said as far as he was concerned the committee would in no way interfere with the city engineer in the matter. In all his experience he never saw such a slow job. Each member of the city council could as easily see where the blame lay as the street

Ald. Partridge and Williams also spoke strongly along the same lines, the latter alderman suggesting that the trouble was with the head of the de-

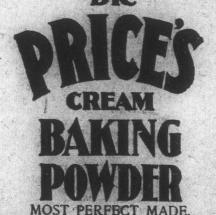

Ald. Marchant said that he felt so vexed about the whole matter that before 24 hours passed he would post a resolution pointing to the dismissal of the city engineer. If that gentleman could show that he was not to blame Ald. Marchant would acknowledge his error and withdraw the resolution, but he was determined that the blame in the matter should be placed where it rightly belongs. No official was ever granted a freer hand than that given to the city engineer by the council. Market Superintendent Johnston reported that the receipts for the past month amounted to $117.

Chief of Police Shepphard recommended the purchase of top coats helmets for the men, also that dark lanterns of the improved kind be secured. The chief also invited the members of the council to be present at the review of the police force in their new uniforms. The portion of the letter asking for supplies was referred to the police

He was informed by Mr. West there. He was informed by Mr. West that the city engineer had instructed him not to obstruct pedestrians by the erection of the truss. Mr. Wilmot afterwards denied having done so. Ald. Ald. Marchant's second resolution asking that the city solicitor enter into ne-gotiations with Messrs. Davies, Mar-shall & McNeill, solicitors for the bondholders with the object of purchase, was then withdrawn and the committee rose. Aid. Macmillan then moved his resolution that the provincial government be urged to build the railway to Koo-tenay and retain it as public property. The resolution was carried unanimously. Copies of the resolution will be forvincial cities with the request that they

Ald. Tiarks' Point Ellice bridge bylaws was discussed in committee of the whole. Ald. Tiarks explained that the city engineer had not all the data necessary, but the by-law could be passed the committee stage and any amendments regarding the amount required for building the bridge or otherwise could be made on the third reading. The gist of the by-law as it passed the committee stage was that $150,000 bearing interest at 4 per cent. be borrowed on the credit of the city for the purpose of erecting a permanent bridge at Point Ellice. The debentures are for a term of 50 years, but may be redeemed in 25 years.

The committee reported progress and asked leave to sit again. Ald. Marchant moved that the ward re-division by-law be reconsidered and finally passed Ald. Partridge moved in amendment: "That the wards by-law, 1896, be not further proceeded with by the council until after a vote of the electors entitled to vote on a by-law for raising money upon the credit of the municipality has been taken and the by-law has received the assent of a majority of the votes polled by such electors."

This was seconded by Ald Williams.

Ald. Partridge held that Ald. Marchant's figures were based on land valu s only and did not include improvements. Such a course was manifestly unfair. The figures were based on the single tax

Ald. Marchant said he had nothing whatever to do with framing the bylaw. He accepted the figures of the city assessor and repudiated the charge of unfairness. He characterized

The first resolution was referred to when he wished to refer the by-law to also be brought to the attention of the those holding land only. Ald. Partridge's object was not to introduce the principle of referring legislation to the people but rather to defeat a by-law which would give all the voters equal > Ald. Cameron maintained the by law did no one an injustice and was worthy of better treatment than the opposition which it encountered.

> Eleven o'clock then struck, but the council decided to remain until the matter was finally settled. Ald. Glover admired Ald. Partridge for his persistency, but his conduct was simply an outrage. If his resolution was to refer the by-law to all the electors it would not be quite so objectionable. Ald. Macmillan said he would like to move an amendment to the effect that all the electors entitled to vote for mayor be allowed to vote on the by-law. If the by-law was going to be referred to the people at all it should be referred to all the electors. The Mayor-Such an amendment can be introduced if the resolution carries. Ald. Partridge's resolution was then put and the following was the division: Ayes-Ald Wilson, Williams, Partridge and Tiarks. Noes-Ald. Macmillan, Cameron, Mar-

The Mayor-But you are going to introduce an amendment to include all the electors.

Ald. Williams-Yes. I would like the by-law to be referred to all the electors. Ald. Macmillan remarked that the mayor and the adlermen who voted for the resolution had pursued a course that they knew was exceedingly distasteful to the majority of the electors and now they wanted to use him for the purpose of introducing an amendment that would mitigate their offence. As far as he was concerned he would do nothing of the kind.

Ald. Glover-No; let them refer the by-law to the landowners.

Salvage Amounting to $46,700 Given Miowera and Mineola

Seattle, Wn., Nov. 3 .- Judge C. H. The opinion is an exhaustive one and fully covers the case, giving a graphic description of the efforts of the Mr. Lenman is to have full two steamers to tow the stranded vessel to a place of safety. It will be remembered that the Miowera while towing the Strathnevis to Destruction Island parted the hawser and on the following morning could not get sight of the stranded steamer anywhere. Instead of steaming to Tatoosh island and telegraphing the news that he had towed the Strathnevis to where the hawser parted, Capt. Stott continued ou his way to China. For this the court criticises the master and states that the salvage would have been double the size had he taken this precaution. In arriving at his decision Judge Hanford cites a number of authorities touching on simliar cases. The decision is considered a fair one in this city and gives satisfaction to all parties concerned.
