YOUTHFUL THIEVES GET LONG TERMS IN THE REFORMATORY

Reynolds and Halligan, Who Went Through John Peters' Trunk, are Given Four Years Each.

Three boys, John Henry Reynolds, James Henry Halligan, aged 15 years each, and Michael John Griffin, aged 11 years, were before the court this morning charged with stealing two watches, two water chains, one ring, one electric lamp, a revolver, box of cartridges, one ring and chain, the property of John Peters, 1444 street. Mr. Peters testified that he had adopted young Henry Reynolds, whose mother is dead. He has a father who drinks and would not look after the boy. The boy was lazy and would not work or go to school. Last evening he brought young Halligan to the house and said he, Halligan, had no place to go. The young fellow was given his supper, after which Mr. and Mrs. Peters went out. On their return, nearly eleven o'clock, Mr. Peters discovered that his trunk had been robbed and the articles mentioned above had been stolen. He accused Henry Reynolds of the theft, and on being threatened with arrest Henry handed over the watches and rings. Young Griffin was then found hiding in a coal cupboard, and the revolver and a box of cartridges were found on him. Halligan was arrested at home, but had no stolen property on him.

Reynolds, to the court, admitted the theft, and told him there was a hundred dollars in the house. Griffin, in answer to the court, admitted hiding and having stolen articles, also that two years ago he had been before the court for stealing beer.

Reynolds had never gone to school, and could not read or write, while Halligan went to school for two years and could not write his name.

Griffin could write his name but the magistrate had him in his mind and brought out of his answers that showed he was a very bad boy.

The magistrate in speaking of the large number of bad boys about the city said that the police must surely see them. The council violated the law by allowing policemen 75 cents for every hour they worked in the city without a license, and he felt that he would be willing to imitate the council and give policemen 75 cents a head for looking after the boys.

Mrs. Griffin said it was too bad that her boy would steal out of the house. The magistrate said he had no patience with a mother who would talk that way. The parents were mostly responsible for the boys' actions.

Reynolds and Halligan were sentenced to four years in the Industrial Home, and as Griffin could write the magistrate said his sentence would be lighter.

There were eight other prisoners on the police bench this morning. John Dyce and James Irvine, both youths from Scotland, charged by Captain Board the steamer Prince Rupert, were remanded.

Dennis Sullivan, John McGloone and Arthur Howe were fined $8 or two months jail for being drunk and indecent was fined $10 or four months jail. Edgar McEachern, a small boy, was fined $8 or two months jail for striking another boy, Myers Lavigne, with a policeman.

Policeman Finley reported John McManus, Arthur Love, Wm. McCarthy, Harry Barry and Henry Short, for violating the hackmen's rules at the Eastern Steamship wharf. They were fined $5 each this morning by the magistrate.

THE RODNEY WHARF SLIDE SEEMS TO BE COMING. The Crack in the Mud is Wider Today—Street Railway Will Await Developments.

While some persons claim that the dredging will not cause the Rodney wharf to slide, there are many who have viewed the situation who are looking for a disaster. This morning the opening in the mud was much greater than yesterday and the fissure along the front of the wharf leaves the logs bare and is over two feet wide. The mud within a few feet of the wharf has settled about four or five feet from the level, and it is said that the Street Railway Co. will await developments before they risk running their tracks down the wharf.

A CHIMNEY SWEEP WHEN HE WAS YOUNG

Commissioner Cadman Tells the Story of His Life.

He Knows What it is to Live in the Slums—How He Has Risen to His Present Position.

MONTRÉAL, July 6.—For over two hours Commissioner Cadman kept a large audience interested with the story of his life, which he told in the Citadel, 25 University street, last night.

The story was a thrilling one—full of humor and pathos and containing not a few foreshadowing incidents and shortcomings of present day sinners.

Brigadier Turner introduced the commissioner, a man who had made his name by his heroic and gallant deeds in the field of the militia, and who had been a member of the House of Commons.

At the age of six years little Ellah, the commissioner's mother, died, leaving her living as a chimney sweep—joined the labor party, became a British subject, and then a Canadian citizen.

At the age of seven he went to work in a mill, and after a few weeks he was always playing tricks in the "hobbies." Once when nearly caught he escaped up a tall chimney. On another occasion he got stuck in a small flue, and would have died there if the bricks had not been torn away in effecting his rescue.

At the age of seventeen he went to Rugby. Here he became the ring-leader of a band of eighty roughs who, on such occasions as Guy Fawkes' day, "ran the town," setting bonfires in the honor of the police at the risk of burning the town to the ground.

The first religious impression made on young Cadman's mind was experienced as he listened to a "rafter" preaching on the streets of Rugby. He was there, with some converts, for the express purpose of tipping the preacher off his chair and breaking up the meeting. But a power, which never left before gripped him, and made him weep as he had not done since his mother died. He was a heathen, without the least knowledge of God or the Bible. But gradually the light came, and after a few weeks he became soundly converted.

By this time Cadman had become a prize fighter, and kept a boxing school for scientific purposes, and a saloon for pleasure, and to occupy his leisure time. All these things were abandoned on the day he became converted, and he immediately began to preach. How he got married, learned to read, and introduced to the Rev. William Booth, founder of the Christian Mission Army—joined this organization, and did pioneer work in its ranks.

SUBURBANITES INCONVENIENCED BY NEW I. C. R. REGULATION.

No More Parcels, Excepting Certain Articles of Food, May be Sent Out Free on the Trains—Merchants are Also Losing Business.

The new regulations governing the carrying of parcels on the I. C. R. is causing quite a lot of discussion among storekeepers and shoppers and an effort is being made, it is understood, to have the rules somewhat modified. According to this recent decision of the railway management only perishable foods, laundry, tobacco, etc., are handled in the baggage rooms and cars free of charge. The regulations read as follows:

THE CITY GETS BACK MOST OF THE MONEY A Dispute Over W. C. R. Allan's Tax Bill Arose Yesterday

And Finally Mr. Allan Paid $347 of the Amount He Was to Receive in Settlement of the Recent Suit.

As the result of a difficulty over a tax bill W. C. Rudman Allan, of the West Side, was yesterday morning visited by a constable for $347 taxes due to the city.

Mr. Allan claimed that he was assessed too much and should not pay so much for taxes. He tried on Wednesday last to have a meeting of the appeal committee hear him so that he could state his case, and have his tax bill reduced, but this committee failed to meet, and nothing was done to relieve Mr. Allan of his, as he claimed, exorbitant tax bill. Yesterday morning Dr. A. Curry acting for Mr. Allan, appeared at the Chamberlain's office and demanded that the $350, which was the amount Mr. Allan was to get from the city in settlement of his suit be paid to him, and he would give the chamberlain $100 in payment of Mr. Allan's taxes.

Mr. Sandall, however, said it would be impossible for him to take any less than $347, the amount of taxes due on 1894, and 1895, and if Mr. Allan did not pay this amount he would be compelled to force him to do so.

Mr. Curry then left the office, and the chamberlain had a constable go out and locate Mr. Allan. The latter came to city hall and again endeavored to pay only the one hundred dollars until the appeals committee could finally settle the matter, but Mr. Sandall was a position to agree to this. Mr. Allan then paid the full amount.

DREDGING ON THE RIVER. The dredge New Brunswick is still at work in deepening the shallow parts of the main river, particularly the approaches to wharves. At present it is proceeding slowly but surely, and what work has been done has been thoroughly accomplished.

The other day in the House of Commons Oswald Crockett, M. P., of York County, asked why the dredging was not being done more rapidly, and it was explained by Minister Hyman that a great many difficulties were being met, which have slightly retarded the work.

THE MURPHY'S ARE SECOND. The city directory of this year shows an increase of 28 names over last year. The name of Smith takes the lead in the directory, as it has done for years past. There are 188 of that name in the city. Next in order are the Murphys, who are 148 in number. Then come the Browns, 129; Wilsons, 124; Campbells, 111; Clark, 92; Belyes, 91, and Armstrong, 69. The publisher of the directory, L. A. McAlpine, says there are 18,801 names in the list, and reckoning on a basis of three souls for each name entered in the directory, he puts the population of the city at 56,403.

Rev. Samuel Howard will preach his farewell sermon in Portland street Methodist church tomorrow evening.

The new street railway branch through Carleton is presenting St. John as a new light to American tourists. Side views of the Falls, the city, harbor, Fort Dufferin, outer harbor, Red Head, the bay, etc., are now obtainable, and Martello Tower with its historic relics is being visited by many.

An addition has been made to the pretty little Anglican chapel (St. John's) at Benfirth, which amplifies the seating accommodations, which was much needed. Rev. G. A. Kurling of the city, re-opened the office last Sunday in the absence of Rev. A. W. Daniel, the rector of that parish.

Citizens are complaining that the ferry accommodations are wretched during this tourist season—an old dilapidated boat—when the new Ludlow is quietly docked. About the only good thing the new craft is doing nowadays is to adorn postal picture cards. Therefore, theoretically, she is a success.

THE MOST AWB-INSPIRING PUBLIC CALAMITY SINCE POMPEII. To be three thousand miles away from the scene of an awful disaster yet seemingly brought within eyesight of the same is a feat which, thanks to the moving picture machine, has been realized here in St. John. Those who have read with impressive interest every item of news coming from San Francisco since the destruction will be glad of an opportunity of seeing the terrible sights depicted through life. This will be done at the Opera House for three nights and Saturday matinee, commencing next Thursday. Leonard J. Mack, an accomplished lecturer, will describe the pictures and point out the many places of interest in the stricken city. Additional pictures of sensation and comedy form part of the programme. The pictures were made by Miles Bros. of San Francisco and New York, and the tour is under the direction of Meyer Cohen. The ferry steamer Ludlow will have her bottom painted. This will only take a couple of days and the boat is expected to go on the route the last of the week. One feature of the repairs is a large pane of clear glass which looks very much out of place among the colored windows. The economy shown is very noticeable.

CONCERNING THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

(Brooklyn Eagle.) The war was a heroic war, but the revolution was not a heroic revolution. There was nothing to revolt against. The colonies were more independent than the union is today. They made their own laws and owned their own territory. The revolution was not a revolution against the alien governors by retaining the salary right. The governors were their employers, paid to obtain such laws as the colonies required; like the lobbyists of modern industrial combines. The revolution was not a revolution against tyranny but a typical American determination to hold fast to privileges unlawfully acquired. Unlawfully because by general law a colony owes allegiance to the mother country that protects it. In our case the mother country was too busy fighting France to claim its rights. When France was finally beaten out of Canada, England tried to reclaim its rights. That was where we stepped up. We sought, not to get independence, but to regain what we had already got by taking advantage of England's external weakness. We were right; so was England. We won out. We got worse government, and have worse to come, but we became a nation. We should probably have become a nation just the same without revolution, as Australia and Canada have practically become, we should have avoided civil war, (England suppressed slavery in 1833). We should have had honest government and been a genuine republic, as England has been and is today. All that, however, was well lost in exchange for the spirit of self-reliance, enterprise and aggressiveness which were forced on us by independence. Cause and effect are not more closely connected than the reader and the advertiser—W. Homsyard, of Morning Leader, London, England.

HOKE NO SCRUB.

(From the Corvete Rambler.) Hoke Smith ain't begun to get tired yet. Oh, no, gentlemen of the State convention; it is only the scrub that loses his wind on the long track. Hoke is a thoroughbred and will run right over the scrubs, donkeys and bull yarlings that get in his way and try to tire him out. Hoke will be in to the finish, with head erect and tail over the dashboard. No, he ain't beginning to tire even a little bit. These long races draw out the mettle in a thoroughbred and give him a chance to show what he can do. It is the scrub stock that always lays down in water on a hot day.

"Your challenging is all over? We can now go on," said, with a smile, the attorney for the prosecution.

ST. JOHN, N. B., JULY 7, 1906.

RACE SUICIDE.

The provincial board of health of Ontario has discovered that race suicide is an existing evil in that province. Is it only now that the board has found this out? Is there any province or any city in Canada to which the same statement does not apply? New Brunswick is no more free than is Ontario, the only difference being that here no one has said much about it. The birth rate is low in this province, and the deaths of infants are numerous, so far as can be learned by the incomplete records which are kept. Yet conditions are perhaps not so bad here as in Ontario, nor in Ontario as in the United States. Social life is not as strenuous, and women do not find it absolutely necessary to devote all their time to social duties.

THE HALF HOLIDAY.

To-day is the first general half holiday of the year, and on each Saturday afternoon during the next two months some thousands of clerks employed in the larger establishments of the city will enjoy brief freedom. That they will derive not only pleasure but material benefit from these holidays is true, and it is equally true that the employers will not, eventually, be any poorer because their places are closed on what would be busy afternoons.

This holiday movement has been assisted by the willingness with which owners of manufacturing establishments have arranged to pay their hands on days other than Saturdays, and thus make it possible for shopping to be done during the week. It seems a pity that the same could not be arranged in the North End. There are thousands of clerks there and in Carleton who would hail with pleasure the extension of the holiday movement, but it is difficult to bring about this desirable end until the millmen and other large employers arrange to pay day to suit the merchants. The class of trade in the North End is different from that in the city. There every man pays his household bills on Saturday night, while in the South End accounts are settled at any time.

It will scarcely be possible to include Portland in the holiday this year, but if the clerks over there got together they might be able next year to enjoy Saturday afternoons in the same way as do their friends in the city.

SENATOR ELLIS AND JUDGE TUCK.

Senator Ellis poses at Ottawa as the champion of Chief Justice Tuck, and denounces the new Judiciary act as an attempt to legislate the Chief Justice out of his position. The bill was not prepared with any such motive. The need of a re-organization of the courts and procedure in this province had long been felt, and the Judiciary act is the remedy decided on. One of the effects of this act will be to make vacant the judicial positions, including, of course, that held by Chief Justice Tuck. It would scarcely be proper to make an exception in his case, and the fact that he would give up his office along with the other judges is no good ground for the assertion that the bill is an attempt to remove him. But Senator Ellis is right in saying there is a feeling here that the Chief Justice may not be re-appointed, and while this is not the motive of the bill it is certainly one point which has been taken into account.

SCOTLAND HAS IT TOO.

Scotland, like Canada, is in the midst of an agitation over Sabbath observance, and in that country much of the blame for the looseness now existing is placed on the Italian residents. A recent report shows that in the city of Dundee alone where Italians introduced Sunday ice-cream shops in 1878 the number of these places has increased until now there are six hundred of them practically all of which do business on the Sabbath. This is the evil about which the greatest complaint is made, for such shops are found not in Dundee alone but in every city in the land. They are crowded with young people who should be in Sunday school, and the churches which are leading in the agitation are now complaining of a falling off in their revenue.

The sketched of the career of Commissioner Cadman, of the Salvation Army, given by himself, makes an interesting reading. From chimney sweep to his present office is a long step.

THE SHEEP HERDER.

(From the Denver Republican.) Unshorn, unkempt and with his hat laid bare to winds that sweep the plain, He stalks into the frontier town And quickly shambles forth again, The voices of his fellow men Strike all discordant, and his breast Leaps not with longings for a friend— His all is yonder in the West.

The friend he loves is Solitude— That volucious creature of the west, Whose presence mankind shall enthrall The while a smiling world shall last.

And so the herder turns from men, And with his panting dog at heel, Flods to that life which all his kind Cannot interpret, yet can feel.

SATURDAY SERMONETTE.

MOSQUITOES.

"Mosquitoes are furnished with a proboscis adapted for piercing the flesh, and at the same time forming a kind of siphon through which the blood flows. This instrument injects into the wound which it makes a poison that causes inflammation. The male mosquito differs considerably from the female being smaller and of a darker color, seldom annoying man, and restricting itself to damp and foetid places. The mosquito is a very troublesome insect of the genus culicid; a kind of gnat."

That is what Webster says about the little pest that "murders sleep" out in the country, and in Boston, too, but in Boston they call her by her scientific name, and called by that she don't seem to hurt as much as when called mosquito. Her husband, Webster tells us, don't sting or bite or annoy, and herein he differs from most husbands. If the mosquito would only take her "pound of flesh" without talking so much about it; but who has not been awakened by that most exasperating of all songs of the night, the song of the mosquito? But the mosquito is short lived and his reign is soon over. The winter knows them not.

But there are mosquitoes that flourish the year round and their whispers and their biting cease not.

Life would be pleasant if it were not for the human mosquitoes who prey upon society. There is no way of fighting them. If they were larger we would not worry about them for we could destroy them. But we have to endure them even though they worry many people into the grave.

The parallel is a close one between the mosquito and a gossip. Sometimes the mosquito reminds you of a man, sometimes of a woman, sometimes of a lawyer, of a doctor—at times—when they send in their bills, and their bills are the biggest part of them.

I don't doubt but that mosquitoes have worried people to death. I don't doubt but what men and women mosquitoes have slain their thousands.

Don't be a mosquito. Be if a man, or a woman if you don't want to be a man. THADDEUS.

HE USED HIS BRAIN.

The manager of a manufacturing firm was watching a carman tugging at a heavy case one day. The man's face was red, and the muscles of his neck were standing out. The manager thought it was the right moment to offer practical assistance. "Wait a minute there," he said. "Let me show you how easy things become when you use a little brain. My brain told me that, and I didn't use it."

A SCIENTIFIC EXPERIMENT.

Nerve specialists, it is said, are now recommending a "silence cure" for women who suffer from nerves. The patients have to set apart a certain number of hours in which no word is spoken. A woman we know tried this treatment, with a curious result. She herself came out in a rash, but her husband, who suffered from headaches, recovered.

ALL HE COULD DO.

"Out of a job, eh?" "Yeh, de boss said he was losin' money on de 'tings I was makin'." "Mistakes."

THE NEW ARRIVAL.

"Hurry, now, get into bed. You've said your prayers," urged Elsie's mamma. "No, no! I ain't through yet," protested the little girl, and she added: "God bless Bridget, and make her a good girl, so she'll stay awhile."

TAKES A BOY TO SEE THINGS.

The people in the house had lived there three years and didn't know they owned any live stock except the horse in the stable and the dog. The boy has been there just one week. He is ten years old, and has the seeing eyes that belong to the masculine nature of that age.

In the first ten minutes he was there he discovered a garter snake leisurely crawling into his home beside the big brick house chimney.

After calmly watching the last wriggle of its tail down the hole, the boy turned around, lifted a board by the drain pipe, and brought to light a flourishing family, of six or eight loads.

Lifting his eyes to the vines over the summer house, he joyously pointed out an interesting family of iron robins, justly stretching their scrawny necks for food.

Before the day was over the boy informed the family that they owned at least half a dozen families of young robins and thrushes, eight healthy loads, a snake, a pair of cotton-tails, who reside in the wild underbrush back of the orchard, a nest of hornets, and an immense bull-frog in the tub of water back of the barn.

Furthermore, he has looked up golden "bummers" from a muddy little stream that nobody ever thought contained a fish, been chased even through the woods by a black snake he swears was ten feet long, and otherwise investigated the prosaic neighborhood with interesting objects.

It takes the eyes of a boy to see things.

BERTHA'S HUSBAND MAY GET A TITLE

Anarchist Epidemic of Bomb Throwing Was Ferred by the Police.

In the Past These Outrages Have Come in Bunches—A Reign of Terror in Paris.

PARIS, July 7.—It begins to appear as though the romance of Gustav Van Bohlen, the young German diplomat, future husband of Miss Bertha Krupp, daughter of the late iron master, of Essen, is an international romance. For the diplomat who is probably entitled to be called a cosmopolitan has many relatives in France, in England and in the United States.

About a century ago Miss Caroline Oswald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Oswald, of New York, married a German of consequence, Herr Bohlen, and from this early international marriage is descended direct by the name of Miss Krupp, proprietress of the most extensive iron works in the world.

The grandmother of Mrs. Bohlen Oswald was a daughter of Philip Hone of New York. The Bohlens have been nobles from the beginning of German history. The marriage of Miss Krupp and Herr Von Bohlen, relatives here says, will not occur for a year at least, as Herr Von Bohlen is about to leave for Pekin on an important diplomatic mission for Emperor William, which will occupy his attention for fully ten months. At the end of that time the Emperor will have a good pretext for conferring increased rank on him. It is believed in Paris that when Miss Krupp does wed she will become the wife of a baron.

The French criminal authorities view with great satisfaction the fact that the recent bomb outrage in Madrid has not led to an Anarchist epidemic. There is no doubt that Anarchism has of late years become more extensive, but at the same time it has become less intensive. The greater the number of Anarchists the easier it is for the police to keep trace of their plans, as among the number there are always one or two in the pay of the police.

The Anarchists who hold meetings, write in newspapers, etc., are much less dangerous, as on occasions like the wedding festivities in Madrid they can be kept under observation or else looked up on some excuse till the danger is over. Formerly these outrages rarely came singly. Paris some years ago went through an absolute reign of terror. First there were outrages committed by Ravachol; then came the terrible explosion in the police station in the Rue des Bons Enfants, which was followed by the throwing of the bomb in the Chamber by Vaillant. About a couple of weeks later the Belgian Anarchist, Palvys, blew up a hotel in the Rue St. Jacques, and was himself killed ten days later at the entrance to the Madeleine church by a bomb which he was endeavoring to place behind the swing door giving on the Place de la Madeleine. Then came the outrage at the Cafe Terminus, when Emile Henry threw his bomb among the peaceful citizens who were listening to the orchestra.

It was only natural that a series of outrages should spread a terror in a city like Paris. These went so far

ARE YOU TIRED OF PAYING BLUNDER TAXES?

Many a business man pays as much money for the luxury of blundering as a steam yacht or private touring car would cost.

"Blunder Taxes" cannot be evaded—whatever else waits, these must be paid. If a business man gets into the habit of making the same blunders more than once, the taxes will soon amount to a considerable sum.

"Blunder Taxes" are levied with amazing frequency upon store advertisers. Among the blunders which are assessed at "full value" in advertising are these:—

Selection of poor mediums; Using too little space in good mediums; Devoting less attention to preparing the daily store-advertisement than to the storing of some empty boxes in the basement;

Slipping the ad. altogether for one or more days now and then;

Figuring the advertising appropriation on the basis of what you can "afford" after all other expenses are provided for;

Use of "programmes," schemes, circulars, posters, fence-signs, placards and jim-cracks, under the impression that you are securing real publicity, and that somehow, somewhere, sometime someone will be influenced by some of these things to come to your store and buy something.

THE ST. JOHN STAR.

The Problem of Making Chemisettes Fit

SO MANY of the prettiest dresses this summer are cut low to display filmy lace or embroidery that chemisettes of every sort have gained a rare new importance. Even collarless styles, which threatened to do away with chemisettes entirely, have inspired a style which includes a chemisette so shallow that it is scarcely more than a deep collar, yet is the prettiest sheer compromise with the collarless fashions that the woman who finds these latter styles over-severe can find.

Those exquisitely simple chemisettes, with fine hand embroidery done in tiny patterns all over their small surface, are as good as when they first came out—a matter of two years now—the style of the embroidery, of course, changing a little from time to time.

Instead of the rather severe styles, a lot of the newest chemisettes are trimmed with the narrowest frills of lace, some of them finished at the throat with a bow of the sheer material, trimmed in its turn with lace, set in front like the lingerie tie that is worn with shirtwaists and even with the simpler sort of blouses this summer.

Often this isn't really a bow at all, but is a wide bit of the material, edged on both sides with lace and insertion and pleated in the middle to fall out like a bow. A tiny strap buttons down flat and holds the separate pretended bow in place. As often the bow is made with two loops and two ends, but, instead of being attached permanently, is made so that it unties and can be ironed out straight, and either, when it is tied, held by one of those little straps, or pinned on by one of the long pins—plain or jeweled—which come in so great variety and are one of the year's novelties in the jewelry line.

A Buttonhole Fastens Over the Corset Hook

A box pleat down the front, with a ruffle each side, either of lace or of the material, is one style that is becoming to the thin type of faces, which need an extra little puff about the throat to soften their rather severe lines.

Lace chemisettes are more popular than ever, the newest being those of princess lace in its finest, most delicate form, and plenty of Irish crochet—principally the lighter, finer kind known as baby Irish—is used as chemisettes for some stunning gowns.

As a rule, however, with summer dresses, chemisettes are of the sheerest of linen or batiste or lawn, inset with valenciennes insertion—so much of the insertion used, often, that the material itself is very much of a minor consideration.

Fine hand-run tucks may alternate with the insertion, and French knots and the finest of braid-stitching are added by way of a last dainty touch. Like lingerie blouses and dresses, heading pays an important part, being used at the only visible seam—where the collar joins the yoke, as a matter of course—and some whole chemisettes are made entirely of rows of lace insertion and of heading.

All-over embroidery makes some simple but very stunning ones. Japanese embroidery makes the most unusual ones, but some of the cyclot ones seem almost richer for so small a thing as a chemisette is, and the blind embroideries, with bits of lace set in the heart of the single great rose which makes the design, lend themselves successfully to a dozen treatments.

And not only the all-over embroidery, but the sheer edgings are used, either with the edges fitted together or joined by a tiny vestee of tucks, or of a narrow insertion to match, or of tucks and lace insertion, the scallops of the embroidery perhaps edged, French fashion, with a very full frill of the narrowest possible valenciennes lace.

With pongee gowns—the natural color pongee, of course—the prettiest chemisettes are made of batiste embroidery in a creamy tint of the same shade, carrying the dress out in a single tone, a bit of color set in the girle or outlining the neck where it is cut low for the chemisette.

How to make the chemisette lie smoothly when it is no part of the dress is the problem which confronts many a home dressmaker, and one which has been successfully solved in a score of ways, the two most satisfactory shown in the accompanying sketches.

The long tuck with strongly worked buttonhole is the simplest arrangement of all. The chemisette buttons down the back, and that buttonhole in front is deftly slipped over the corset hook.

The other arrangement is of staying tapes, two in front and two in back, brought into another which runs around the waist and hooks securely in place.

By either arrangement the chemisette is kept from riding up in ugly creases.

Long cuffs—the kind that reach to the elbow—are an accompaniment of fully half the chemisettes you see, although some very attractive short cuffs come to turn back on the elbow sleeve, and are made to match the chemisette.

And there are plenty of dresses made for chemisettes which dispense with the extra cuff entirely. But the prettier idea is to have a touch of white end the sleeves, echoing the treatment of yoke and collar.

Of course, both chemisette and cuffs should be made on paper—the size and style decided upon, and an exact pattern cut on those lines—then the lace eased in place by means of the tiny threads which can be used, if carefully handled, as gathering strings, the embroidery fitted and both of them basted firmly to the paper. If you are making it by machine, stitch through paper and all, tearing the paper away after you have taken out the basting.

But, if you possibly can, make your chemisette by hand; there's an indescribable something about handwork which is wonderfully appealing.

Gloves have scarcely ever attained so great an importance before—not since the days when they were lavishly trimmed with ruffles of lace and perfumed as carefully as a French woman does her tresses. Embroidery wanders over them, one of the favorite forms of fancywork being the decorating of gloves—either suede or the silk and linen kinds, so much cooler and, consequently, so much in use.

Long Cuffs Are Popular

Polka Dots in Vogue in Attractive Forms

EVER since last March polka dots have been struggling for recognition, in spite of the almost automatic rule of checks and broken plaids, and of the determined advance of stripes. This summer they have succeeded.

All sorts of polka dots are worn, from the embroidered muslins and linens down to the least expensive batiste; and all sizes as well, from the big, strikingly effective ones to infinitesimal dots which are almost too small to be seen, and which, when set close together, lighten a dark color without showing, to a casual glance, how they do it.

Single polka dots are the rule, but some unusual effects got by combining several are seen; one stunning silk, for instance, in black and white, with its white ground literally covered with big and little polka dots, overlapping and with the tiniest of all tucked in to fill up corners. All the design was printed in a sort of shadowy black, which kept it from being startling.

Another attractive dress was of dotted swiss, each of the big black dots which made its style accompanied by two wee ones set just below it.

An unusual version of the skeleton dress, which is one of the most attractive and at the same time useful styles of the season, was of blue, in that strong, yet dull, shade like the blue of a Chinese mandarin's coat. The blouse worn with it was white, with big polka dots of blue—the same pretty shade that characterized the dress. Yet it was sheer and fluffy enough to "be a real blouse," instead of reverting to a shirtwaist type, which would have utterly spoiled the dress.

A stunning little silk dress of dark blue had big polka dots, pretty widely spaced, of blue so pale that at first glance they seemed white. It was made for a chemisette, the sleeves and waist and skirt all trimmed a good deal, but only with the material, the one bit of contrast the chemisette, which, by the way, was wider and deeper than you often see them—as large as the usual gumps, although without showing at the back as a guimpe does.

PRETTY TYPES OF THE NEW POLKA DOT GOWNS

Notes of the Fashions

LITTLE bags (to hold the handkerchief) and parasol are the adjuncts of some very ultra bathing suits. But you wonder as you look at them just where the fun of a good plunge or a swim comes in with such unnecessary luxuries.

Both parasol and hat are made to match the suit, the bag lined with rubber for the protection of the pretty handkerchief it holds.

A much more sensible luxury is a loose wrap to be slipped into if you've a distance to go from bath house to beach, when the wind strikes chill. These are made in a number of ways, the plainest of all slightly suggestive of bathrobes, in that they are made of the self-same Turkish toweling, trimmed effectively with color, while the more elaborate ones are of silk, interlined with rubber.

The new low necks—which, after all, are anything but low—have hosts of followers. Round necks are trying to all but very young faces, or to those rare women who have short necks which keep a certain babyishness of line.

Square necks are very popular—really no lower than collarless. And V necks are even more popular; they are the least trying of them all.

Hints From Paris

SMOKE GRAY is one of the fashionable shades of the moment. It is really an outcome of last year's mole gray, and is at its prettiest in voile. Often it is worn with the single touch of strong color taking the form of a great crimson rose.

Some tiny toques seem composed entirely of loops of ribbon and are worn back from the face, as though simply a part of the exquisitely arranged coiffure.

Pleated tulle ruffles are even more popular than feather stoles or boas. Elephant and smoke gray, cinnamon brown and chestnut are the tints best liked.

A touch of orange is considered extremely good.

Long tulle scarfs are rivaling the popular lace veils.

The latest belt idea for linen gowns is one made of Scotch plaid, the colors so slightly crossed and combined that there is no tendency to make the waist look lavre.

Soft, wide silk is used to make them of, although a few are of patent leather. Blue and green effects are best liked.

An occasional woman wears plaid stockings to match, with patent leather pumps.

RENEWING THE SEARCH FOR THE HEART OF BRUCE

The Ruins of Culross Abbey Now Being Ransacked—Duke of Devonshire Foresees Political Difficulties.

GLASGOW, July 7.—The story of a buried heart—brought back by sorrowing friends from Holland, when the body itself could not be conveyed to the family vault—has been recalled from the mists of tradition by the search for the relic among the ruins of Culross Abbey.

In a vault in the Abbey is a small brass plate, which tells the story of the buried heart. The inscription is as follows:

"Near this spot is deposited the heart of Edward, Lord Bruce of Kinloss, who was slain in a bloody duel fought in 1313 with Sir Edward Sackville, afterwards Earl of Dorset, at Bergen-on-Zoom, Holland. The heart is embalmed in a silver casket of foreign workmanship, secured between two flat and excavated stones clasped with iron."

Lord Elgin and the present Lord Bruce recently visited the Abbey—which is being restored—and in the presence only of the master of works and the foreman mason searched the family vault of the Bruces.

The search proved that the vault was empty, but about a foot below the pavement a large stone was discovered. It is believed that beneath it the heart will be found.

The story of the duel is a tradition in the neighborhood. Insulted by Sir Edward Sackville in a public place, Lord Bruce challenged his detestable and the two gentlemen repaired to the Low Countries to fight out the quarrel. The conflict was fierce, and Bruce was mortally wounded. He was buried in the great church of Bergen, but ere he expired he begged his comrades to take his heart back to Scotland, and lay it in the old Abbey at Culross.

After the speech which the Duke of Devonshire delivered at the meeting of the Unionist Free Trade Club, it ought not to be very difficult to indicate the part which, if he lives, he will fill in the politics of the country during the ascendancy of the present Liberal Administration. Some time ago the Duke was spoken of as likely to be the suitable head of a new party composed of Liberal Unionists and Moderate Liberals, and it is possible that the prophecy then hazarded may yet be fulfilled. From what is said in some quarters one might fancy that the Cabinet of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman is already on its last legs. Mr. Chamberlain talks of the possibility of a general election next spring. The Duke takes a widely different view. He admits that there exist in the Liberal party differences of opinion, especially on colonial questions, so serious as to cause dissensions in the present, and to lead to a political reaction in the future. But he does not anticipate a break-up at once. Moreover, he thinks that the progress of decay in Liberalism may be retarded if Mr. Chamberlain has his way, and at every moment tariff reform is presented to the country as the truly important issue before it.

THIS SPIRIT DID NOT GET AWAY QUICK ENOUGH

How a Ghost in London Was Caught by an Officer Who Had No Belief in Spiritualism.

LONDON, July 7.—How a ghost was seized as described at the Edgeware police court recently when Frederick Foster Craddock, of Galnaville, Grove Terrace, Hinner, answered three summonses accusing him of:

"Unlawfully using certain subtle craft, means, or device, by palmistry or otherwise, to deceive Lieut.-Colonel Mayhew."

W. Turner, for the prosecution explained that the summonses were taken out under the act of George the Fourth, which laid down that a person guilty of these practices was a rogue and a vagabond.

The defendant, he said, acted as a medium, and professed to call down the spirit of the prosecutor's child, who was not dead, then his "Uncle George," who was non-existent, and his mother, who was alive and well.

The defendant, Lieut.-Colonel Mayhew, accompanied by Captain Carlton, attended a seance when the medium was asked to communicate with a brother officer, said to be dead. When the supposed apparition of the officer appeared the prosecutor asked it, Captain Carlton turned on an electric light, with which he had provided himself, and discovered that Craddock was acting as medium and apparition.

Counsel added that the seances were opened with prayer, the hymns "Lead Kindly Light" and "Nearer My God, to Thee" being sung. The seance was an orgie of blasphemy.

THE REBEL CHIEF BAMBAATA OF THE ZULUS WHO LED HIS TRIBE IN THE RECENT REBELLION.

LONDON, July 6.—The cut shows a photograph of the late rebel chief, Bambaata, with his warriors, who caused the British so much trouble before his death. He was a born general of the De Wet type, and was conquered only after half of his men had turned traitors and deserted him. If he had not been killed it is more than likely that England would have had to face a general uprising in Zululand.

LONDON, July 7.—Professor Enoch has evolved a new idea in science which is attracting considerable attention. While showing some lantern projections of color photography at the Society of Arts recently he warned the ladies present—their blouses were unbuttoned in the darkness—that when being photographed with the color system they should not wink, as they might be of orange color, whereas the innocent one would have its natural hue.

The "Sangard Sheppard" system of color photography, which the picture showed, has yielded some excellent results. Pictures of the inside and outside of a greenhouse, and of a woodland scene with red fungus in the foreground, were most effective.

EVIDENCE OF AN EYE WITNESS IS NOT RELIABLE.

Experiments Show That Very Few People Can Remember Accurately What They See.

GENEVA, July 7.—Professor Claparède, of the Geneva University, has been making some interesting experiments to prove the unreliability of eye-witnesses of an event, and also to prove the great deterioration in the powers of observation due to the high pressure of modern life.

Recently in one of his classes the professor brought in a man who was masked and his body hidden by white shrouds. The "unknown" stayed ten seconds in the class room, made some signs, and then walked out.

A few days later the professor asked his pupils to pick out the unknown's mask, which was placed with only one of twenty-four other right masks, although it differed in color and size from the others. Ten pupils chose the wrong mask, and eight confessed that they were unable to decide.

"You see," said Professor Claparède to his class, "how unreliable is the evidence of an eye witness to an event, even in a law court and on his oath."

During further experiments the Swiss savant came to the conclusion that not one person in nine can give a correct description of a man whom they have looked at for ten seconds. Women, he believes, are much closer observers than men.

NO IRISH NEED APPLY.

Member of Parliament Says Irish Representatives Don't Get Anything Like a Fair Show.

DUBLIN, July 7.—It begins to appear as though the British Parliament does not move more rapidly in this matter of Home Rule than the Irish party leaders, such as the Home Rule measure—such as it is—no matter what it is—must go over until next year on account of the fight on the Education Bill this year. If the Education Bill satisfied anyone it might be different, but I have yet to find the first person in Ireland who has a good word for the measure, though under the party whip probably most of the Irish members will support it with the idea that the English advocates of the bill will support Home Rule next year. Indeed, as one of the leaders of the Irish party, a former member of parliament, said a few days ago: "It is the same old story no matter whether the Liberals or Conservatives are in power. The Home Ruler comes in at the tail end of the political line. The friends of the ministry are saying, 'You support our bills and we will support yours.' But they never do. The Liberal and Conservative members—those interested in colonial matters—everybody—can get in before the Irish. I am beginning to think that there is no hope for Ireland in either of the old parties. Not the friends of the Liberal and the Liberals have passed away and a new party like the Labor party which have left the Irish shores since the temporary check to emigration which was exhibited in the return for February and March has been succeeded by a big increase in the number of emigrants. The returns for April and May show that 8,651 emigrants left during the former month, and 6,119 during the latter, an increase of 2,531 and 1,734 respectively over the corresponding figures for 1905. A total of 292,516 have left the Irish shores since the first of January, of whom 15,044 went to the United States and 1,742 to Canada.

Father Dinneen's Aleithe Gaeilte is coming rapidly into favor as a source of pieces for recitation at the different Festsanna and Aeridheachta through the country. In addition to four numbers which were so successfully recited at the Dublin Fests, the book has been drawn upon by competitors at the Kilkenny, Westford, Mayo and other festivals. Its material for recitation is almost inexhaustible, and furnishes every variety of subject.

TO PROTECT WILD ANIMALS ALL OVER THE EMPIRE.

Lord Elgin Hears a Deputation Asking Certain Restrictions to Prevent the Extinction of Game.

LONDON, July 7.—A plea for the protection of wild animals has just been made by a deputation which waited on Lord Elgin at the Colonial Office on behalf of the Society for the Preservation of the Wild Fauna of the Empire. The deputation was headed by Lord Curzon of Kedleston. It pointed out to Lord Elgin that many of the most interesting species of wild animals in the various colonies and African protectorates were in danger of extinction by pot-hunters and sportsmen, and submitted the following recommendations to him:

That the returns of all game animals killed should continue to be included in the annual reports of each protectorate or colony.

That a map should be prepared showing the present game reserves in Africa.

That the sale of hides, horns, etc., of game animals in the British dominions in Africa and at Aden should be prohibited.

That the sale of elephant tusks weighing less than 25 pounds should be prohibited.

That no shooting whatsoever, except for administrative reasons, should be permitted in a reserve.

That a strict return of all game killed should be made annually by every license holder.

HIS BONES WON'T STOP GROWING

Patient in an English Hospital is Deformed by Excessive Development of His Hands and Feet.

LONDON, July 7.—Among the outpatients of the Manchester Royal Infirmary is a man who after attaining normal development cannot stop growing. He is suffering from a disease known as acromegaly, which means an enlargement of the bones, and most obviously of the bones of the skull, hands and feet.

The man is forty-two years of age, and the disease was diagnosed about seven years ago, during which time he has developed enormously.

He has enormous hands in comparison with an ordinary man. The fingers are not growing in length, but thickening, and the palm is getting wider. He cannot well spread out his fingers, and the tendency is to cause the hand to resemble a rounded spade. The upper parts of the arms are shrunken, as are the upper parts of his legs. So thick have his feet become that walking is a difficulty.

BALLET GIRLS SCARED BY A MAD CAT

PARIS, July 7.—A mad cat appeared on the stage of the Ambassadeurs Theatre the other day, and created a panic among the ballet girls. It was eventually dispatched by a policeman's sabre.

The animal was one of about twenty that had been bitten by an Angora cat that went mad. The twenty cats, which gathered in a thicket near the Champs Elysees, were hunted by a large crowd of residents, and nineteen were killed.

A MONUMENT IN PARIS TO THE MEMORY OF ZOLA

PARIS, July 7.—It is proposed to erect a monument to Emile Zola in the garden of the Tuileries. The memorial will be not far from that which is to be erected to Waldeck-Rousseau. The organizing committee of the Zola monument, including M. De Pressensé, Colonel Picquet, and M. Yves Guyot, have been received by M. Briand, minister of public instruction, who expressed his willingness to co-operate in the work.

DOES NOT WANT ENGLISH WOMEN NEAR HIS HAREM

PESHAWAR, July 7.—The following semi-official statement has just been made public here: "Nasrullah Khan is opposed to the engagement of English lady doctors for the royal harem. The Amer disagrees with his brother, but the weight of opinion is with Nasrullah, and it is hoped that the services of the newly-arrived lady doctors will before long be dispensed with."

RUSSIA'S EMPEROR VISITING MILITARY BARRACKS TO GAIN POPULARITY WITH YOUNG RECRUITS

ST. PETERSBURG, July 6.—Thoroughly alarmed at the many signs that the army in which he had placed all his faith has become imbued with the revolutionary spirit, the Czar is doing everything to gain the love of the young recruits entering the army. Like the Kaiser, he often visits the barracks. In this cut he is shown in the act of reviewing a squad of awkward, untrained young men, who have just been put in uniform, and encouraging them in every possible way.

MUST SHOW RESPECT TO THE DEAD RULERS.

BERLIN, July 7.—The Supreme Court of Appeal has ruled that less majesty can be committed by criticizing the ancestors of a living monarch.

The editor of the "Volkszeitung" of Leipzig was recently sentenced to six months' imprisonment for writing an article disrespectful to the ancestors of the King of Saxony. The Supreme Court has established an amazing precedent by confirming the sentence.

VACCINATE CATTLE AGAINST TUBERCULOSIS

Paris Surgeon Thinks This Treatment Will Also Eventually be Applied to Human Beings.

PARIS, July 7.—Doctors Calmette and Guérin have aroused keen interest in the medical world by the announcement of their successful experiments in immunizing cattle against tuberculosis, and of their hypothesis that the method of prevention may eventually be extended to human beings.

Prof. Cornil, of the Paris Faculty of Medicine, says:

"Tuberculosis vaccination for human beings would, of course, be too dangerous to be attempted at present. However, I for my own part believe that it will eventually be done. M. Calmette's experiments, confirmed by M. Roux and M. Vallee, of the Alfort Veterinary College, are such as to give us fresh confidence."

MUST NOT BLOW UP ANY ANIMAL FOOD

LONDON, July 7.—Powers are being sought by the Newport Corporation in a bill before parliament to make it an offense to inflate by means of the human breath of a mechanical process the carcasses of any animal or fowl sold for food in the borough.

The sanitary authority is said to have evidence that it is a common practice in the district for calves immediately after slaughter to have pipes placed in the veins of the neck, which are inflated mostly by the breath of the slaughtermen. Poultry is treated in the same way the lips being in contact with the fowl's flesh. The object is to give a fat and plump appearance.

The bill has passed the committee stage of the House of Lords, but the National Butchers' Association has blocked it in the House of Commons. The association states that it is willing to accept an amendment that the inflation shall be done only by mechanical means.

SELLING ABSINTHE IN CANDY CASES

BERNE, July 7.—Recently the cantonal Government of Vaud passed a law prohibiting the sale of absinthe. As the people of Vaud were the best customers of the Neuchâtel distillers, these were badly hit by the law, and set about out-manoeuvring it.

The result is "absinthe bonbons," which are now being placed on the market. Four of them will make a drink when broken into a glass, and a special law will be required to prevent their sale.

FLIES ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR MANY EPIDEMICS.

LONDON, July 7.—Dr. Louis Lambon at the Institute of Public Health recently denounced flies as the arch sinners against society of the vermin world.

Flies are the great scourge, he says, being the bearers of the germs of almost every disease, including cholera, enteric, and anthrax. Dr. Lambon showed how plague was conveyed from the rat by means of rat flies, which take up their quarters on the domestic cat and dog, bringing the plague germ with them.

A PORTRAIT OF EMPEROR WILLIAM WHICH IS ATTRACTING MUCH ATTENTION

PARIS, July 6.—This is the portrait painting of the Kaiser which has attracted more attention than any other picture in the Salon. Mr. Borchardt, one of the foremost of German impressionists, has represented the Kaiser most unconventionally in a green tunic uniformly standing on a heather hill.

STUDYING MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP IN BRITAIN.

Americans Would Rather be Robbed Than Give Time to Civic Affairs.

LONDON, July 7.—Mr. Melville E. Engalle, the leader of the deputation from the American Civic Federation which is now studying municipal enterprise in this country, interviewed at Birmingham a declared that America had a population of 80,000,000, nearly all of whom were thinkers and workers. If, however, you endeavored to list the average American in civic government he would say that he was too busy.

The result was that the government of the various states had fallen into the hands of men who lived by their wits. The taxes were, however, so light that the people would rather submit to being robbed a little than give time to civic government. This system, however, had gone so far that at least there was a desire for reform, and in one way municipal ownership was regarded as likely to bring the greatest relief.

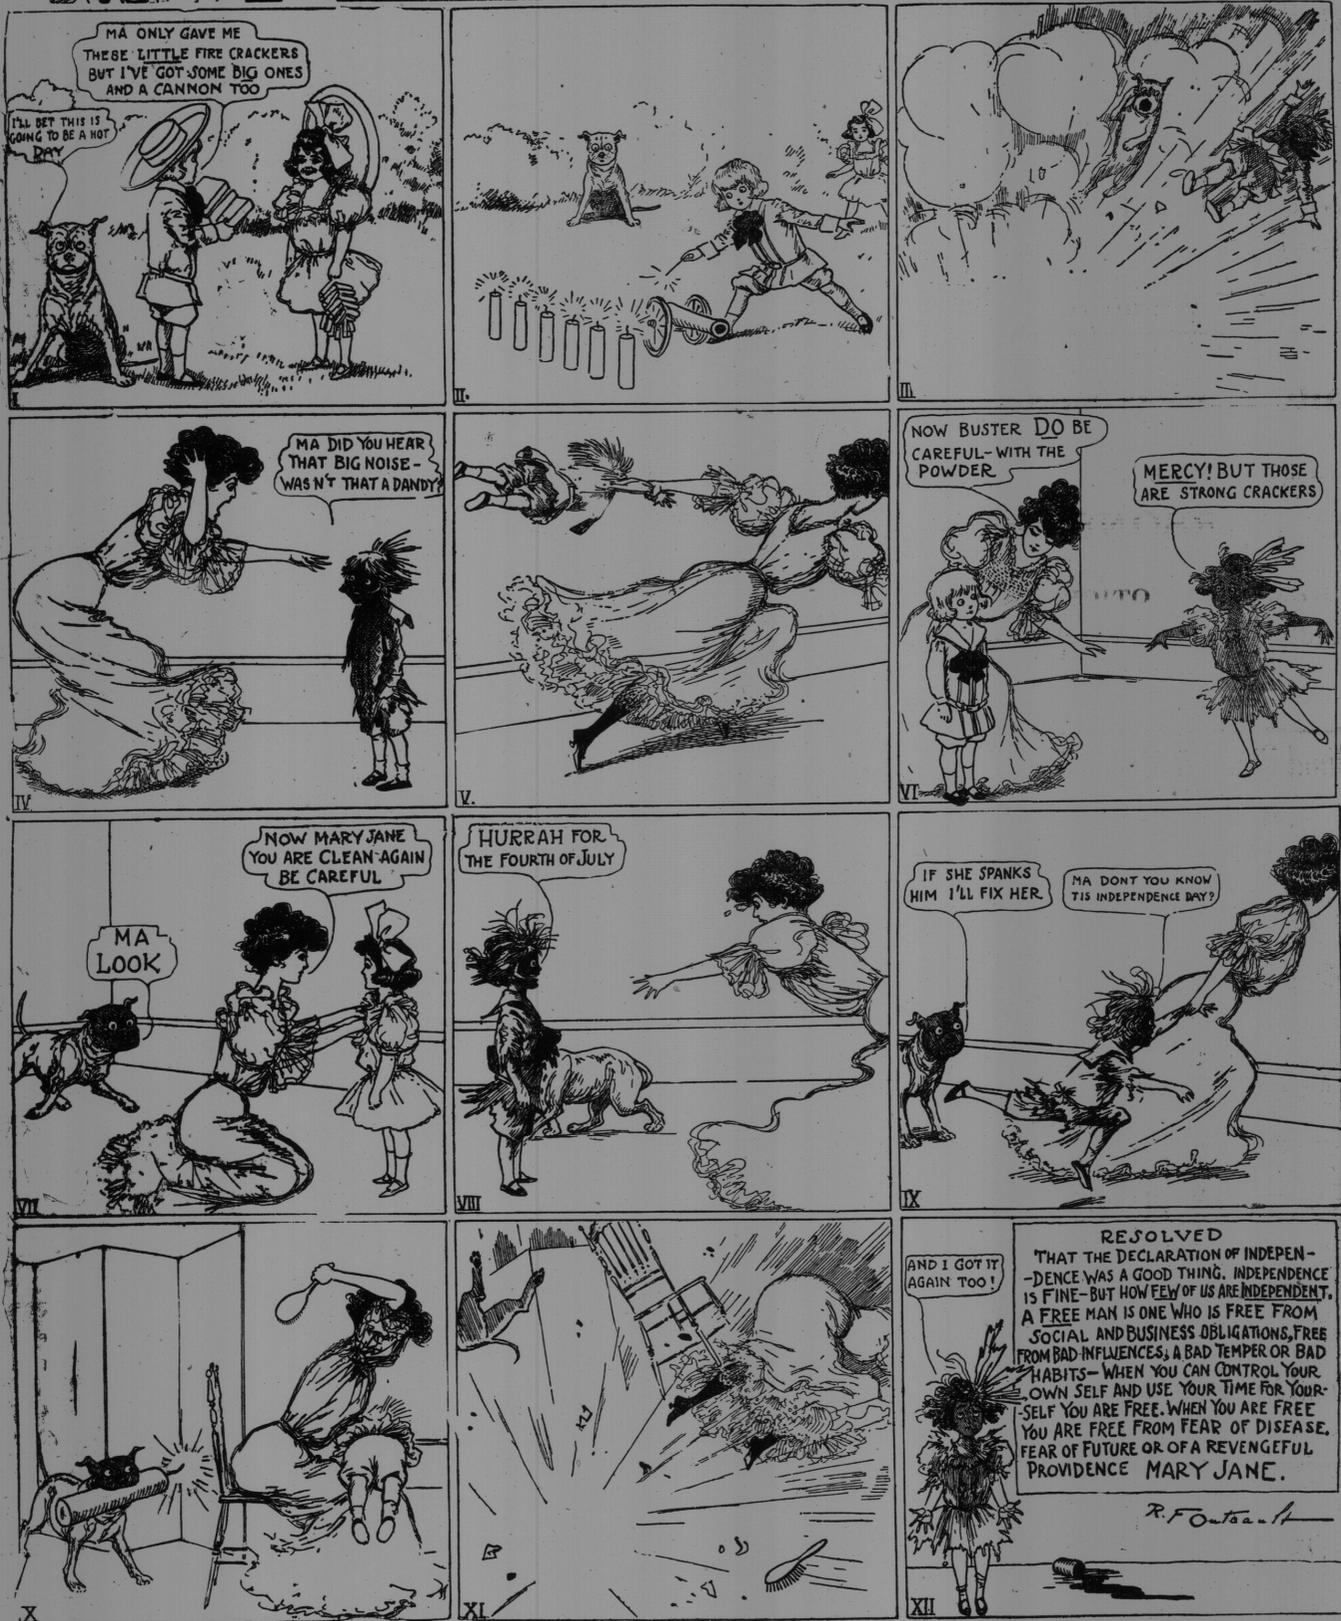

A SCARCITY OF BRIDES.

LONDON, July 7.—In his parish magazine the Rev. A. M. Mitchell, vicar of Burton Wood, a populous village near Warrington, states that from October 18, 1896, to the present time no marriages were celebrated at his church. This fact does not imply a dearth of eligible bachelors or would-be brides, and the vicar suggests that the modern reluctance to marry may indicate a degeneracy in morals.

BIG INCREASE IN REVENUE

Financial Statement for Last Fiscal Year

OTTAWA, Ont., July 6.—The financial statement for the last fiscal year shows Canada's revenue to have been $78,000,000, an increase over the year before of $8,500,000. The returns of the expenditure for July 1 were $54,000,000.

The revenue from customs for the year was $45,000,000, an increase of $4,750,000. Excise collections amounted to $12,911,187, an increase of $1,450,074. Post office collections amounted to $8,766,025, an increase of $783,922. Public works and railways yielded $8,207,539, an increase of $1,170,000. Miscellaneous amounts to $4,891,988, an increase of $800,569.

Expenditure on capital account $7,441,853 was spent on railways and canals, an increase of $1,146,007. Expenditure on public works was a little more than a half million dollars, a decrease of a hundred and fifty thousand.

The expenditure on militia on capital account was $1,003,642, a decrease of $25,555. Payments on railway subsidies amounted to $1,837,574, an increase of $423,278. Bounty payments amounted to $1,109,359, an increase of $42,565.

There is a remarkable article in a recent number of "La Citta Cattolica," of Rome, in which the writer notes the decadence of the anti-clerical spirit in Italy. He gives the following as the causes of the change: "The anti-clerical agitation which preceded the unification of Italy has naturally died away on the completion of that unification, and in public life a very natural instinct and feeling has arisen that the church and state should be welded together by a sort of moral cohesion. The sacerdotal propaganda of socialism with its revolutionary and anti-militaristic way of thinking, and the advanced and pacific minds of the Italians to band together the conservative forces of the country, in order to prevent a reaction against the subversive tendencies of these destructive movements. Public opinion has also been affected by the sight of anti-clerical France and her decadence, while the progress of Anglo-Saxon civilization, as well as the prosperity of Catholic Germany have resulted in delivering official and lay Italy from that miserable bondage under which for more than a century Italians were led to believe that they could not follow their own religious instincts, but must adopt the extravagant theories of France. Among other things it is stated that the grandson of Garibaldi is studying for the priesthood.

A medieval ditch, which was reopened by Signor Boni, lying under the foundation of the Column of Trajan, was found to be filled with skeletons. The bones laid here showed marks of weapons in many places, and it is supposed that the skeletons were slaughtered after some dreadful battle, which is held occurred in the wild times of the 17th or 18th century. The authorities in Rome had a care for the ancient monuments, and the exhibition was under the direction of control of the Italian Minister of Public Instruction. Hence, Signor Venturi, Professor of Art and writer on the history of art, represented the Minister on the occasion of its closing.

Signor Venturi described the characteristics of Byzantine art and its importance as a source and rich field of later and freer art. He praised Abbot Pellegrini, who had converted what was but a desire, and secretly a hope, into a reality by the tenacity of his will.

The treasures brought here together are now about to be dispersed to their original places: Venice, Bologna, Romano in Calabria, the Vatican Museum of Christian Art, and many other places. The memory of the exhibition will, however, remain as an enduring delight.

COMMERCIAL

EXPORTS KEEP STILL IN ADVANCE

(Montreal Star)

Those who have seen the returns carefully are well satisfied with the export business of Canada, as compared with former years. Trade returns as compiled by the Montreal Board of Trade indicate that from the opening of navigation to the present season the exports for the first two months, the exports are as a whole ahead of a corresponding period in 1905.

The export of wheat shows a large increase, being over double what it was a year ago, while the export of other four grains has been very large indeed, the figures being 90,000 barrels for May and 100,000 for June, compared with 54,000 barrels for a corresponding period the present season. The four trade items, ham and bacon all show a large increase, as compared with the corresponding period in 1905. The largest increase is shown by the exports of Great Britain. Other goods which show a large increase are cheese, cattle and hay. The latter product shows the largest increase on the list, the figures being 118,000 bales for the two months, as compared with 90,000 bales for a corresponding period last year.

PACKINGHOUSE EXPOSURE IN FLUENCE

Whether the Chicago slaughter house investigation is to blame or not, the fact remains that the export trade in pork, canned meats, ham and bacon all show a decrease, as compared with a year ago, and as a great deal of Chicago's produce its way across the Atlantic via the port of Montreal, it is more than likely that the result will be a decrease in the export of these goods. The local Canadian packers claim, however, that their trade does not indicate a reduction of any appreciable extent.

Among the products which show a decrease are corn, exclusively an American product, so far as export business is concerned; oats, barley and butter. The latter item shows a very small decrease, less than two thousand packages, as compared with a year ago.

COMPARISON IN DETAIL

Following is a list of the chief exports from the port of Montreal for the months of May and June, with the corresponding figures for 1905:

PEPPERBOK, Ont., July 6.—At the inquest into the death of Duncan McArthur, the Kirkfield man who killed his wife and then committed suicide, a letter was produced which was found tacked to the door in the house explaining the motive for the deed.

Following was the letter: "To Dan Fraser, goes all the property, real estate and personal, and pay all legal debts, for there is no living heir for man or beast with the woman, for she kills all the offspring she has. So ends this life. (Signed) Duncan McArthur. "I will follow later, 815. Woman died July 7.40. Pay High Logan $9 balance on note."

The 10th field battery, with four 10 lb. breech loading guns, sixty-two horses, 100 men and eight officers passed through the city last night on their return from Sussex. The 6th and 7th regiments came later on special trains.

INCREASE WAS $1,691,500.

Like the C. P. R.'s, the fiscal year of the Canadian Northern Railway ends June 30th, and also like the C. P. R., the Mackenzie & Mann road has made a fine showing, the earnings for the year amounting to $5,563,100, against $3,871,800 the preceding year, an increase of $1,691,500.

Orders have just been placed by the Canadian Northern Railway for 550 new box cars to be delivered in time for use in moving this season's wheat crop in western Canada. These cars are in addition to 1,500 ordered earlier in the season. The whole outlay will represent about $4,000,000.

PLAYGROUND STEADILY GROWING IN POPULARITY

Six Hundred Little Ones Listened Quietly Yesterday to a Fine Programme of Music—A Quaint Gift

One has only to visit the playground at the Centennial school to know that the movement is rapidly gaining in popularity. About three o'clock yesterday afternoon a concert was given by several ladies of the city, which was immensely enjoyed by more than six hundred children. Such an audience was probably never before seen in St. John. It took Miss Miller, the supervisor, about twenty minutes to get them quietly arranged so that a beginning could be made towards carrying out the programme. But she finally succeeded and thereafter the little tots were all attention and greatly enjoyed the music.

Miss Miller has completely won the affection of the children who have visited the grounds, and all seem to vie with one another in their endeavors to carry out her wishes.

Yesterday's concert was arranged by Mrs. McLellan, president of the Woman's Council. Young solos were rendered by Mrs. Frank Godson, Mrs. Fred McNeil, Miss Dorothy White, and Master Fred McNeil. Mr. George E. White presided at the piano.

Miss Peters yesterday received a letter from a mother in the north asking if something could not be done to secure a play ground in that section of the city. It was suggested that the members of the committee on the baseball games are played, might be secured every place in the north and which could possibly be considered adequate for such an undertaking, but a suitable place is hard to find. Those in charge of St. Peter's grounds expressed sympathy in the movement and if such a suitable place could be secured, a large number of north end people would be delighted.

Miss Fowles yesterday instructed the children in clay modelling, and it is altogether likely that she will be present each day. As an example of the interest the children take in the work, the little tot yesterday made a mud bracelet and in a proud manner presented it to one of the teachers, who wore it for a time, much to the delight of the donor.

ROJESTVENSKY THOUGH TO BE OUT OF HIS HEAD

CRONSTADT, July 6.—At the court martial trial of Admiral Rojestvensky for the surrender of the torpedo boat Edoval in the battle of the Sea of Japan, the surgeon of the Redov testified today that Admiral Rojestvensky, owing to his wounds, was partly out of his head, irresponsible and incapable of passing orders to surrender.

Lieut. Vorem testified relative to the white flag incident, saying he was ordered by Captain De Colongue, chief of Admiral Rojestvensky's staff, to procure a sheet to be used in case of the appearance of a Japanese ship, but that when he came on deck with the sheet, Captain Calmelet indignantly threw it into the sea.

AMERICAN TEAM LEAVES FOR HOME

LONDON, July 6.—R. D. Little, Keshig Collins and Paul C. Wright, London today for New York. Mr. Little, in the course of an interview, said that the American team were pleased with their enthusiastic reception in England. With regard to the English players, they were most impressed by Mr. Rixley's fine display against the Doherty brothers, and would like to get him out to the United States, where he would be sure of such a reception as would last him his time.

"Mr. Wright's absence from the championship contest," Mr. Little added, "was our great misfortune, but our time will come. The Americans will not rest till they have captured the International championship, and fortunately we are not so badly put players as England is."

PARIS, July 6.—President and Madame Fallieres at the Elvess Palace today received Congressman Nicholas Longworth and Mrs. Longworth, who were accompanied by Ambassador and Mrs. McCormick. LEAP INTO CRATER

TOKIO, July 6.—Yamada Nakuma, grandson of Baron Yamada, who committed suicide by throwing himself into the Aso volcano, left behind a remarkable letter, which was found in his pocketbook on the edge of the crater.

He wrote: "The strongest will is his who can go down to a death that makes men shudder even to hear. That cowardly to be vehemently denounced and suffering throughout life men are as hungry demons fed on torturing skepticism. Alas for the infidelity of it all! The tall mountain peaks pierce the sky, the broad ocean spreads out its undulating azure, but human life is as the dew of morning, as the flash of the lightning.

"It waxes but to wane, increases but to decline. All are plunged in darkness, and know not what to look for. Mercy and benevolence are as the fleeting sentiments of a dream.

"Why should man torment himself with limitless painful thoughts? Why should he wander in the paths of contaminating sin?

"Is it not the most blessed ending of human life to be received into the bosom of pure nature, and forever to quit the dust of existence?"

"Thinking these things, I pass into the smoke of Aso's crater."

A Story of France in the days of Louis XV., and how the work of a traitor was foiled by the energy of Madame Pompadour.

"Throw your handkerchief," came the soft command. Completely puzzled Andre obeyed as if in a dream. His partner caught the handkerchief dexterously on her fan and was rewarded by a ripple of delighted laughter from the spectators.

"And you believe," said the Countess, "that we will permit her to be forced on us. You are as mad as she is."

the Faubourg St. Germain, to the galleries of Versailles. "Yes," she continued, "when a woman is not content to be a wife and a mother she deserves to be treated only as the idol of an hour, the pastime of a fleeting passion."

THE WONDERFUL DEVELOPMENT OF EGYPT UNDER BRITISH RULE

British Correspondent Tells of the Remarkable Progress Made During the Past Eight Years—The Natives are Hard to Manage.

(Correspondent of London Telegraph.) It is my belief that whenever the history of Egypt during the British occupation is written by an impartial historian, the commencement of an era of material prosperity, hitherto unknown in the Valley of the Nile, will be dated from the year 1882. In that year an agreement was come to between the Egyptian government and a British syndicate, by which the latter engaged to construct the Assouan Dam. Even this great work had proved a signal failure, as the result has shown.
