It is not often that a 239 lb. man gets swung around in the air; but St. George has a winsome young lass who has accomplished this feat.

Canada is to have a National Press Association. At last week's gathering of newspaper men at Toronto the various provincial associations sent representatives and a Dominion constitution was drafted based on that of the Institute of Journalists of Great Britain. This is to be submitted to the various provincial associations and upon their sanction the Dominion Press Association will come into existence.
Two old cronies went into a drug store in the downtown part of New York City, and addressing the proprietor by his first name, one of them said:
"Dr. Charley, we have made a bet of the ice cream sodas. We will have them now, and when the bet is decided the loser will drop in and pay for them."
As the two old fellows were departing after enjoying their temperance beverage, the druggist asked them what the wager was.
"Well," said one of them, "our friend George bets that when the tower of the Singer Building falls, it will topple over toward the North River, and I bet that it won't."
We often wonder why it is so many young men can be seen loafing upon our streets until a late hour of night. Many of them are from our best homes. The fathers of these young men, many of them at least, are numbered among our best citizens. If their cow or horse or even their favorite dog was away from home after dark they would be out on a search, but their own children can roam the town all night with apparently no effort being made to find them. The boy seems to be turned loose at a tender age to wander at will into the paths of sin and vice and then wonder where all our tramps and worthless specimens of humanity come from. It is a regrettable fact that too many of them came from seed germinated in good homes and then sown in a careless manner upon our streets. Is your boy wasting his time upon our streets? If so, had you better, not at least, look after him at nightfall as you would your horse and cow. We did not intimate that this evil exists to a greater extent in this community than in our sister towns, but the evil seems universal and increases in magnitude as the years roll by.

Intercollegiate Track Meet

In spite of the uncertain weather, about 300 sports turned out to witness Acadia walk over U. N. B. and Mt. Allison in track sports, on Friday afternoon at the St. Stephen Park. One record was broken, viz. the one mile run, which event was won handily by Corey of Acadia, in the fast time of 4 min. 51-2-5 sec. For Mt. Allison, Ryan started, winning the 100 yd. dash in 10-2-5 sec's, which equals the intercollegiate record. For Acadia Porter, Robinson, Roy, Page and Howe were the principal point winners, Robinson winning first in the 220 and 440 yds. dashes. U. N. B. won all their points on ties, second and third places. By winning the meet Acadia comes into permanent possession of the Intercollegiate trophy, having won it in five different occasions. Following is a summary of the events and winners:-- 100 yd. dash--1st Ryan, Mt. Allison 2nd, Roy, Acadia; 3rd, Binny U. N. B. Time 10-2-5 sec.
Running High Jump--Porter, Acadia; 2nd, Cochrane, Mt. Allison; 3rd, Johnson N. N. B.; 4th, Page, Acadia; Distance, 35 ft. 9-1-2 in.
Running Broad Jump--Porter, Acadia; 2nd, Roy, Acadia; 3rd, Dickinson, Mt. Allison. Distance 20 ft. 3-1-2 in.
220 Yard Dash--1st, Robinson, Acadia; 2nd, Camp, Acadia; 3rd, Ryan, Mt. Allison. Time 23-4-5 sec.
Shot Put--1st, Fitch Acadia; 2nd, Lank U. N. B.; 3rd, Page, Acadia; Distance, 35 ft. 9-1-2 in.
440 yd. Dash--1st, Robinson, Acadia; 2nd, Cochrane, Mt. Allison; 3rd, Johnson N. N. B.; Time 51-3-4 sec.
Hammer Throw--1st, Page, Acadia; 2nd, Lank, U. N. B.; 3rd, Cochrane, Mt. Allison. Distant 105 ft. 5 in.
Pole Vault--1st, Howe, Acadia; 2nd, Spicer, U. N. B.; tie, 3rd, Kahring, U. N. B. Height, 9 ft. 9-1-2 in.
Mile Run--1st, Corey, Acadia; 2nd, March, Acadia; 3rd, Dickinson, Mt. Allison. Time 4 min. 51-2-5 sec.
220 Hurdle--1st, Armstrong, U. N. B. 2nd, Kahring, U. N. B.; 3rd, Pickup, Mt. Allison. Time 18 seconds.
Thus counting first, second and third places as five, three and one points, respectively, Acadia scores 53 points, U. N. B. 25-1-2 and Mt. Allison 11-1-2. Acadia did not compete in the hurdle race as they were compelled to leave in time to catch their train.
The track was in bad condition, but the events, which were under the management of the Thistle A. A. A., were run off with the greatest of satisfaction to the three colleges.
ite dog was away from home after dark they would be out on a search, but their own children can roam the town all night with apparently no effort being made to find them. The boy seems to be turned loose at a tender age to wander at will into the paths of sin and vice and then wonder where all our tramps and worthless specimens of humanity come from. It is a regrettable fact that too many of them came from seed germinated in good homes and then sown in a careless manner upon our streets. Is your boy wasting his time upon our streets? If so, had you better, not at least, look after him at nightfall as you would your horse and cow. We did not intimate that this evil exists to a greater extent in this community than in our sister towns, but the evil seems universal and increases in magnitude as the years roll by.

GAS ON THE STOMACH

Relieved at Once by Father
Morrisey's No. 11 Tablets.

Many people find that no matter how carefully they watch their diet and deny themselves this, that or the other favorite dish, still after every meal gas forms in the stomach and everything seems to turn sour.

Besides causing great discomfort, this condition makes it impossible to get the full benefit from the food eaten, and the body is continually starving with a full stomach.

Father Morrisey's No. 11 Tablets promptly relieve this and other stomach disorders. Each Tablet has the power of digesting a pound and three-quarters of food, so that even though the stomach may be in a very bad or weakened condition one tablet taken after each meal will insure proper digestion and prevent sourness, gas in the stomach, pain or discomfort.

The case of Miss Maggie Leaby, of West Franklin, Ont., is a sample of what Father Morrisey's No. 11 Tablets can do. Writing on Jan. 5th, 1910, she says:

"Your No. 11 Stomach Tablets suit my case exactly, as I am ever so much better since using them than I had been for the last seven years. I could hardly eat anything that would not turn sour on my stomach, or cause gas. My Doctor said it was Catarrh of the Stomach. I had no pain, but gas after eating. The first tablet I took gave me relief, and I am still continuing their use."

If you happen to eat a little too much for dinner, or something that does not agree with your Stomach, just take a No. 11 Tablet and you will feel all right in a few minutes.

If you have been troubled with Indigestion or Dyspepsia a course of Father Morrisey's No. 11 Tablets will soon put your stomach into a healthy condition again.

None for Him.
Nellie L. McClung, the western author, whose book, "Sowing Seeds in Danny," has been so well received, and a small boy, is the hero and the wicked woman in a good story that is being told in a small Manitoba town. Mrs. McClung recently gave a series of readings from her book, in a number of places in Manitoba. On her tour she did not know just where she would be entertaining in each town, so she directed that her mail be sent in care of the Methodist minister.

One morning while staying in a small town, she saw the minister's small son toddling toward the house where she was staying. He had a letter in his hand, so she went to the door expecting it was for her.

The small boy stopped a few feet from her and said: "Are you Nellie L. McClung?"

"Yes," said Mrs. McClung, "have you something for me?"

The child threw the letter at her, and then ran as hard as he could, until he apparently thought he was at a safe distance. Then he shouted back: "You can sow seeds in Danny if you like, but you're not going to sow any in mine."

Then he ran as fast as his little legs could carry him, until he was safe in his own yard. -Saturday Sunset.

If your Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover a cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor drug the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes quickly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must necessarily fail. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successfully. Its success is leading drug gists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

Canada and Uncle Sam.

Now that the wave of sanity on tariff matters is spreading over the republic to the south, Canadians may hope to see the day when it will not cost more to get goods through the United States than it does to carry them around the world.

Canada is in the fortunate position that it does not need to beg anything from Uncle Sam, but any time the republic is prepared to trade with Canada on a sane and fair basis, there is no reason why Canada should not accept the situation.

He Died of Kidney Disease.

How often we hear of these sad cases. The back-pains and headaches were noticed—but not treated. Dizzy spells, frequent falls and languid position appeared, but nothing was done until the disease was far advanced. Cure invariably results from Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They restore perfectly health, destroy every symptom of the diseased kidneys, build up constitutions that defy further outbreaks. Because purely vegetable and free from injurious materials, no remedy equals Dr. Hamilton's Pills for Kidney and Liver complaint. Sold in 25c. boxes by all dealers.

King George the Sailor.

It will be remembered that King George V when Prince of Wales—two years ago on his voyage home from the Tercentenary in the Indomitable, went below in the stoke-hole and shovelled coal under a boiler till he sweated like a navvy. King George will not be likely to shovel coal on a man-of-war.

There will be a number of princely diversions which public opinion will lead him to eliminate. But he can never lose interest in the navy; and he will probably know even better than his father the minutiae of the developments in man-of-war.

For it is some years since King Edward was on the sea. He crossed the ocean in a dawdling old tub that must have taken three weeks to make the trip. And when King Edward was last on the open sea the biggest man-of-war was a thing that not even an outpost colony would buy now as the nucleus of a fleet. King George had been at sea in some of the best. When he stood the Indomitable she made 25 knots an hour going home. Part of that record speed of course was due to the fact that the Atlantic was rotating towards the bow. But the Indomitable and the Prince were the talk of the country then—even though since that time the Indomitable has been outclassed by such ships as the Colossus, the first of the eight Dreadnought laid down in last year's estimates.

Never to be forgotten either is the manner in which the Indomitable and the future King George glided out of Quebec before the break of day; completely befooiling the thousands who got up early to see her steam out; far out the St. Lawrence out of sight of Cape Diamond when the Tercentenary folk had breakfast. If the King remains as artful a tactician on the throne he will yet keep principalities, powers and diplomats guessing. He is said to be something of an anti-militarist.

He was not over-pleased at the redundancy of soldiers on the streets of Quebec during the Tercentenary.

Pity This Poor Girl.

Growing fast—yes, into weakness, "but without strength." Tired of course she is—pale and thin too. She doesn't eat enough and digests far too little. This condition is so common, but how seldom noticed even by fond parents. Give her Ferronze—then watch her appetite improve—see her lips and cheeks grow rosy—watch her spirits. This gain is simply the result of eating and digesting enough, and thereby nourishing blood, brain and nerves. To a woman Ferronze restores strength she has lost—to a girl it brings strength perhaps she never knew. You'll try Ferronze, 50c. at all dealers.

British Delegates Defend Negroes

Washington, May 22.—Delegates from Great Britain to the sixth convention of the World's Sunday School Association, now in session here, declared in addresses delivered by them today at several church services that the action of the local committee in barring negroes from the Men's Bible Class parade of Friday last was an unchristian action. They said that such a thing would not have happened in England where the negro can occupy positions on an equality with his white brother. Dr. John Reid Shannon, pastor of the Metropolitan M. E. Church also criticized the action of the local Negro Ministers to the delegates attending the convention, fully exonerating the General Committee of the association of race prejudice, and placing the blame entirely on the local committee which had charge of the arrangements for the meetings.

Communion consecration and conquest were the three watch words of the observance of World's Sunday School, morning, afternoon and evening, each having one of the topics.

Pains of women, head pains, or any pain stooped in 20 minutes sure with Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets. See full formulae on 25c. Box. Sold by all dealers.

"Here, you," said the conductor, angrily, "you rang up a fare. Do that again and I'll put you off."

The small man standing in the middle of the crowded car promptly rang up another fare. Thereupon the conductor projected him through the crowd and to the edge of the platform.

"Thanks," said the little man. "I did not see any other way to get out. Here's your time."

Keep the Boys at School

One of the difficulties connected with the successful working of our otherwise splendid civic school system is the difficulty of keeping the boys especially in school until they have completed the ordinary courses prescribed. Boys are taken from school either to go to work or to loaf about the streets at the age of twelve or thirteen when they have not yet learned enough to give them anything like a fair chance in life against better equipped competitors. Of course it must be recognized that there are a number of parents so extremely poor that the very possibility of substance depend upon the children getting out to work at the earliest possible moment. Under such circumstances either the city or the state should interfere to make provisions to meet the difficulty in order that the very poor child may get the same advantages at least up to a certain age, of education which children of the better off class enjoy. But there are other boys taken from school at an untimely age whose parents are not in such desperate circumstances as those mentioned. The trouble in their case is the want of true solitude for the welfare of their offspring and willingness to sacrifice a little of their own comfort and pleasure in order to give the young a better chance. A working man earning regular though not high wages said to the writer a short time ago: "Am I supposed to dig and delve rake and scrape go lilled and underfed, without a trip to any places of entertainment or go without any fun at all for the sake of keeping my two boys at school till they are fifteen or sixteen? To this meant to be crushing interrogation he replied. "Yes sir most emphatically yes! You brought those boys into the world and you are under an obligation to give them the best possible chance, even though you have to go without new clothes eat two meals a day, dig and delve, rake and scrape, and never have a quarter to spend at a vaudeville show from one year's end to another just as long as your breath permits. You owe all this to your boys, and in the payment thereof would have no right to pose as a martyr." Our reply was only a literal truth. The parent who, though under some difficulties is able to give his boys a fair common school education, but who takes him from school while in the fifth or sixth grade, in order that he may sell his entire chances in life for the present paltry earnings of a dollar or two a week is his own child's worst enemy and is deserving of general reprobation. A boy who remains in school until he has completed the work of the ninth or tenth grades has a hundred times over a better chance to succeed in life than the one who leaves at the end of the fifth or sixth grades. Keep the boys at school till they finish their course even though the sacrifice to do so may be heavy at the time. The present is a time of strenuous competition and in no other age have the unfit been so ruthlessly pushed to the wall. Give the boy the best possible chance to rise.

"What's a pun, father?"
"A pun, my son, is a play upon words. There are two kinds of puns: Good ones, which you take no notice of, and bad ones, which make you throw something at the punster."
"Can't you make a pun, father?"
"Of course my son! Now you're thinking about your supper, aren't you?"
"Yes, father."
"Well, that's supper-most in your mind at the present time. That you see is a play on—Here you young rascal, what did you throw that book at me for."

How to Remove Warts.

It's really a simple matter to remove warts and calluses if you apply Putnam's Corn and Wart Extractor. Care is certain, failure impossible if you use Putnam's.

A Cough Medicine

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is a regular cough medicine, a strong medicine, a doctor's medicine. Good for easy coughs, hard coughs, desperate coughs. If your doctor endorses it for your case, take it. If not, don't take it. Never go contrary to his advice.

The dose of Ayer's Pills is small, only one at bedtime. As a rule, laxative doses are better than cathartic doses. For constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, sick-headaches, they cannot be excelled. Ask your doctor about this.

Vindicated.

The suburban customer shook the bill in the plumber's face. "I'll never pay it!" he yelled. "The idea of that little job in my kitchen taking your man ten hours; it's an outrage!"

"Now, please don't put all the blame on the man," the plumber said, conciliatorily. "He would have got through in one-tenth of the time if you had chosen a more advantageous day."

"What was wrong with the day I selected?" the customer, from the suburbs, asked.

"Several things," replied the plumber quietly. "In the first place, it was not your cook's day off, she was present and did all she could to make the man feel at home; secondly your wife's society held a musicale in the parlor and my man who is passionately fond of music, could not help hearing the strains of harmony; lastly, there was a football game played in the empty lot next door to your place and my man; who usually plays at Yale, naturally glanced at the game from time to time. With all those attractions to fascinate him can you censure the man for lingering a little?"

The demeanor of the suburban customer changed. "No, I cannot," he confessed honestly; "recept your bill and give this to the man I have been wronging so unjustly, and he flung down on the plumber's desk a ten dollar bill.—Chicago News.

When the pains gather round the hips and lodge in the small of the back—when to stoop or bend seems impossible, when dizzy spells and bearing down pains are ever present,—that's the time to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Irregularities disappear, vital energy is restored, back trouble is forgotten. The ailing sick woman gains strength, improves in looks, increases in spirit by using Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They cure the conditions that rob her of health and vigor. No medicine so helpful as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c. at all dealers.

THE USE.

It is hard to shout when things go wrong.
And the world seems a heartless place; It is hard, indeed, to whistle a song, Or go with a smiling face; It is hard, I know, to endure, ah, me! When we feel the javelin; But if all things were right, there would be No victory to win.

And so, I think, 'twere better to take The bitter, as well as the sweet, And bravely bear, though the heart must ache, And sore must be the feet; For, were life all felicity, With never a cross for men, Oh, where would be the victory, Or need of heaven then?

Most Professional.

One of the best stories told about Mr. Birrell concerns a poor client whose case he took up for nothing. When the case had been won, the client gratefully sent him the $5., which he accepted in order not to give offense.

A colleague reproached him, however, for this "unprofessional conduct" in taking less than gold.
"But I took all the beggar had, said Mr. Birrell, and I consider that is not unprofessional."

Wonderful Praise Accorded Peruna the Household Remedy

Mrs. Maria Goetz, Ontario, Ontario, writes: "My husband, children and myself have used your medicine, and we all keep them in the house in case of necessity. I was restored to health by your medicine, and Dr. Hartman's advice and books. People ask me how I got well, and I tell them that I can do all of my housework, and that I was cured by the use of Peruna. My husband had chronic catarrh of the bladder, and I had chronic catarrh of the stomach, and chronic catarrh of the throat. When I weighed 100 pounds, now I weigh 140 pounds. When I was cured, I regained my health again, and I thank you enough for your medicine. My God gave you a long life and made you work."

MODERN CATTLE ACCOMMODATIONS.

The "Last Word" at the Dominion Exhibition at St. John.

The Dominion Exhibition at St. John, N. B., September 8th to 15th, will demonstrate the best stock breeders, and for that matter, the world at large, what may be rightly considered to be the "last word" in up-to-date live stock accommodations. The new facilities will represent a composite materialization of the best features of all other fairs and new suggestions submitted by experts. One of the principal features of these accommodations will be their cover, protected from wind and weather. A great fault with exhibiting cattle at most fairs is the rough and exposed conditions to which animals are subjected. Visitors to the St. John Fair will be enabled to view the immense acreage of cattle at a glance from a comfortable seat, as well as to see the animals in detail from elevated positions. The surrounding area will be enclosed with each stall, the animals will be housed in a comfortable and airy enclosure. A patient litter carrier suspended over a rail-track in the center will be allowed to remove all accumulations, whilst the drainage will be perfect, because of the familiar showing location of the stall upon which the animals are shown. Sheep will be accommodated in keeping with most modern ideas. From central elevated stands spectators will be afforded an excellent view of the little animals—the wanderers around their six-foot pens. The live and the stock are to be shown at agricultural Hall where much more space is available and a comprehensive display is planned.

Epigram of an Indian

The recent visit of the Crow Indian chiefs to the White House to see President Taft concerning the disposition of their lands has recalled a good story of Old Shal-lah-skong, head chief of the Millie Lac, the memory of whom is still preserved in the interior department. The chief took all his warriors to defend Fort Ripley in 1862, and for this act of bravery the secretary of the Interior, the governor and the legislature of Minnesota promised the Indians that they should have the special care of the government and never be compelled to move from their lands. A few years later a special agent was sent from Washington to look the Ojibways to cede their lands and remove to a country north of Leech Lake. The agent called the Indians in council and said: "My red brethren, your great father has heard how you have been wronged. He said: 'I will send them an honest man. He looked in the north, the south, the east and the west. When he saw me he said: 'This is the honest man whom I will send to my red brethren to look at me! The winds of 55 years have blown over my head and silvered with grey, and in all that time I have never done wrong to any man. As your friend, I ask you to sun this treaty.' Old Shal-lah-skong sprang to his feet and said: 'My friend, look at me! The winds of more than 50 winters have blown over my head and silvered it over with grey, but they have not blown my bones away.'"

A good illustration is printed on each copy of Dr. Shoop's Pink Eye Tablets. It is a picture of a man who has been blind for many years, but who has been cured by the use of Dr. Shoop's Pink Eye Tablets. Send for a free copy.

Jokers' Column

"Do you ever propose to a woman?"
"Ah! I single!"
"Taking anything for your cold?"
"Yes."
"What?"
"Advice."
"Are you fond of work?"
"Very. It gives me much pleasure to lend it out to the poor fellows that are looking for it."

Man:—Are you engaged to Jack for good?
Ethel:—It looks so. I don't think he'll ever be in a position to marry me.

How is the water on your place?
"Very fine."
"Pure and sweet."
"It ought to be. It was raised by hand."

A Swede entered a postoffice in the Northwest and inquired:
"Can any letters for me today?"
"What name, please?"
"Ay tank de name is on de letter."

"What makes the trust magnate look so worried?"
"He has just read that the American farmer is very prosperous, and he feels that he must have overlooked something."

"Butin seems rather sore on you, old man."
"Yes, he annoyed me yesterday and I told him to go and take a back seat."
"And he took affront, eh?"

"What was the hardest question the teacher asked you today?" said the serious-minded pupil.
"Whether I preferred a licking or a note home," answered the scapegoat.

Smith—Why did your pretty cook leave you?
Jones—Got mad.
Smith—At what?
Jones—She caught me kissing my wife.

Hub (with irritation)—Why is it that you women insist upon having the last word?
Wife (calmly)—We don't. The only reason we get it because we always have a dozen arguments left when you stupid men are all run out.

"A stranger rode up to a farmer's house," says a western Kansas paper, and said: "I understand you have a fine cow. What will you take for her?"
"Look here, answered the farmer, are you a tax assessor or has that cow been killed on the railroad?"

Crusty Patron (as crusty waiter brings him a sandwich) Take it away! I did not order no sandwich; I said I wanted 'roast beef, medium.'
Crusty Waiter Well, doesn't medium mean between, an' ain't that where your beef is? What more'd you want?"

"Your store is no good sir! I asked for lace curtains last week and I couldn't get 'em."
"Indeed?"
"Yes. And I asked for silk socks yesterday and I couldn't get 'em."
"That's strange."
"And to-day I asked for credit and can't even get that. Is this a regular store or what?"

"Let's see," observed the smart boarder, seating himself at the table, "how is the proverb runs."
"You refer to the saying that one man's meat is another man's hash," put in one.
"Or," said another, "Don't cry over 'kimmel-milk.'"
"Or, possibly," said a third, "in batter there is strength."
"No," returned the smart boarder, "the particular proverb I had in mind is: 'One hot the brave can face the fire.'"

Cricket in Canada.

The annual spring effort to revive cricket in Canada is under way. It will probably last till warm weather covers the cultivators away to the shade of the grand stand, there to watch baseball or lacrosse matches. The cricket to some respects resembles billiards. And what was the great man who said: "A fair knowledge of billiards is a mark of good education and expert knowledge tells a man's spirit youth."
Cricket is a scientific game—so often so, in fact, that a man who becomes an expert must practically be born with a bat in his hand. He must spend his boyhood, most of his youth and a large part of the balance of his time practicing the game. He must be prepared at all times to spend three or four days over a match. In fact, he must be in a position to do little else.

In England, where cricket flourishes there is a class who do not work. In Canada there is a similar class but the humorist has remarked, it is in cricket the goal yards are not big enough for cricket cruses. Neither does it lighten government proceeds but and balls.

To sum it all up, the sport is immune from the cricket germ and through the preparatory colleges of Canada have done their best to emulate the big English schools and make cricket their principal summer sport, they have found that it appeals only to those pupils who enter the lower forms. Those who have entered the colleges for the couple of years simply to finish off do not take kindly to the game. In fact most of them absolutely refuse to play it.

Thus cricket has little or no foundation in Canada. It depends for its players largely on men who have moved in from across the ocean. As a consequence it is placed intermittently on poor creases and does not approach that perfection which excites the admiration and emulation of the masses.

Sensationalism

The excitement that has been felt by many people over the advent of the comet, causing not a few suicides and some commitments to mental asylums, is an indication the so-called "freedom of the press" may go down pretty far at times.

The astronomer, who apparently has known very little about Halley's comet, gave out a few interesting tidbits in the daily papers, some of which, seeing "good copy," proceeded to magnify and distort legitimate information into mass of sensational prophecies of death and disaster to mankind. In this way such men as Lowell and Pickering were left in the light of having misinformed the people.

Publicity of facts is a good thing but the spreading broadcast of things purely speculative and imaginary so as to cause fear to the ignorant and credulous ought to be prohibited by the law.—Lubeck Herald.

Down East Grange Story

The Eastern Star grange of Hampden, Maine is the oldest subordinate grange in the state. Years ago, when the grange was not as well known as it is today, the members of this grange had a picnic party about Bangor, and they went in a hayrack. Swinging aloft were the cabalistic characters 'P' of 'H' so well known to all true and loyal Patrons. While passing through the streets of Bangor, the outfit attracted great attention, but the banner was the enigma. At last one of the most prominent citizens of the city came along and interpreted that 'P' of 'H' meant that the 'poor of Hampden' were out for a hayrack ride. This was accepted as the true version of the matter and was so published in the papers the next day.—Lewiston Journal.

Surmounting a Difficulty

A man of tact always manages to get out of a difficulty. The clerk of a parish in England whose business it was to read the first lesson in the church came across the chapter in David in which the names Shaddai, Melech and Adonai, occur twelve times.
Finding it extremely difficult to pronounce these names, he went through the chapter referring to them as "the foresaid gentlemen."

Aeroplane Records and Their Makers

The first flight in the history of the man made flying machine, in any sense, was that of a hot air balloon, which, by the assistance of wind currents, was able to rise and descend, and to drift about in any direction. It was, however, a very slow and unsteady mode of flying, and it was not until the invention of the aeroplane that the man made flying machine was able to rise and descend, and to drift about in any direction, and to fly with the speed and steadiness of a bird.

It is now the theatre of some of the most remarkable of these performances. Almost every day seems an old record broken by a new hero rising. A month ago Leslie Colvett was almost unknown as a flying man. Then, one Sunday afternoon, he suddenly appeared over Paris in a new type of aeroplane. At a moment when he sailed over the Avenue des Champs Elysees, and for half an hour manoeuvred over the most central part of the city. He traversed 17 miles, and on the 15th of his machine as easily and confidently as though it had been a motor car. A feature of this flight and of most recent flights in the past few weeks is the perfect handling at the end of them. Apparently it is no commoner for an aviator to alight on a field without injury than to alight in a field for a sailor to get his ship safely to port after a race.

Paulhan's flight from London to Manchester was followed by two days' flying in France, in the course of which he broke two cross-country records. The first of these covered 150 miles. The second was 40 miles, which brought him to his destination. Probably he could have made the journey in one flight had not a shortage of petrol caused him to alight. The day before Paulhan made this flight, Farman carried a passenger in the same machine and covered 50 miles. The actual time consumed in the three flights was five hours, in which 220 miles were covered. The record for carrying passengers was broken about the same time by Sommer. With four persons aboard, including himself, he flew five miles, carrying a total weight of more than 500 lbs. This is perhaps one of the most remarkable of aeroplane exploits, and indicates that the dirigible balloon will soon lose its sole remaining feature of supremacy—namely ability to carry passengers.

At the Nice aviation meet several fine performances were made. An English aviator named Rollis made a record by flying 50 miles over the sea, 32 miles being without a break. A Belgian flying man, carrying a passenger, flew twelve and half miles out to sea and back again in 20 minutes. At this meet the high flying record was beaten by Chavez, who, by successive upward circles, attained a height of 2,113 feet. A few minutes later it was topped by Latham, who beat it by 39 feet. Another feature of the meet, and one that illustrates the fact that either aeroplanes are considered almost as safe as spirited horses, or that Grand Dutchesses do not place so much value on their lives as formerly, was the flight of a Russian aviator, who carried the Grand Dutchess of Meiklenburg with him on one trip.

At present the record for a single flight is 144 miles; the speed record is 25 miles an hour, and the duration record is 4 hours 17 minutes. These figures, however, are not worth clipping out and preserving, since they are likely to be surpassed any day. What interests aeroplane experts most at present, however, is the battle of supremacy between the two distinctive types of flying machines—the monoplane and the biplane. For the moment the biplane seems to lead, for it is in a biplane that Paulhan and Farman make their flights. But it was in a monoplane that Bleriot crossed the English Channel, and that Latham made his high flying record in. It is said that Toronto is to have an aviation meeting in July, and if so, citizens will have an opportunity of studying the differences between rival designs, and also, no doubt of seeing some world's records broken.

Vox Populi!

The voice of the people is recognized even in Great Britain.—Even in the House of Lords. The people said the Budget must pass—and it has passed, even though it be as some declare it, "A Budget of plunder and revenge." Yet it does appeal to the people. What are its proposals? In the main they aim to dip more deeply into the purses of the rich for the building of the new Navy and the payment of old-age pensions for the poor. In the past the British Government has been accused of favoring the great landed proprietors at the expense of the poor and middle class, but this budget marks a revolution in this respect. As we look into it we find its main features to be the direct taxation of land, the increased taxation of incomes and legacies, of machinery and mining property, and a tax on automobiles and gasoline, and an increased tax on intoxicating liquors and tobacco. It aims at luxuries and necessities. It simply means an increase in the burdens of the rich—and a decrease in the burdens of the poor. And who will say the principal is not right? Only those who may be made to feel it and who are ready to cry "a partisan budget." It is the principle of the old economists, that the subjects of every state ought to contribute to the support of the Government as nearly as possible in proportion to the revenue which they respectively enjoy under the protection of the state and that it is just to exempt from taxation the minimum amount necessary to supply the physical wants of men and their families. All honor to the name of Lloyd-George,—the man with the budget.

The Pulpwood Question.

The great desire to get our pulpwood is the principal reason which is driving the United States to enter into reciprocity negotiations with Canada. The situation is a curious one in that even if the United States should offer a "quid pro quo," the Dominion Government cannot guarantee that our pulpwood shall be freely exported. The provinces own their pulpwood and it is up to them to say whether their pulpwood shall be exported as pulpwood or be made into paper before it is taken across the line. In the cases of Ontario and Quebec, their own provincial governments have had their say as to the state in which their pulpwood shall be exported, and the Dominion Government cannot force these two provincial governments to withdraw their present prohibitory laws. The case would be the same in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick if these provinces took a notion not to allow any more pulpwood from their crown lands to be exported from the provinces until manufactured into paper. We claim then that it is useless for our friends across the border to "insist" on the free export of pulpwood from Canada, as the Dominion Government has not the power to give such a guarantee. In spite of all the treaties that may be made at Ottawa and Washington, our provinces, which own the pulpwood, will make such regulations as they desire as to the form in which it shall be shipped. It is quite possible that the United States Government may offer to remove all its duties on paper if the provinces

Band Concert

On Friday evening last a large audience crowded Court's Hall, for the purpose of hearing the entertainment which had been in preparation for some time, by the members of the St. George band class, and a number of friends who were assisting them. At 7.30 the Band paraded down Main Street played a number of pretty marches, and halted in front of the Hall, where several selections were rendered so successfully that the crowd were compelled to "follow the band" inside, filled with happy expectancy. At sharp 8 o'clock the curtain was raised and the Band Orchestra commenced the following program:—
1—Overture, "Admiration."
2—Song, "Put on Your Old Gray Bonnet."
Miss Laura Meating
3—Piano Solo—"Moonlight On The Hudson." (Var.) G. D. Wilson.
Miss Jennie Meating.
4—Song—"Just Some One."
Mr. T. C. Choineau.
5—Band Selection, Double Number, Serenade, "Fringing Stars." Characteristic Sketch, "Mamma's Birthday."
6—Duet—"When We're Together."
Emmerson.
Misses O'Brien and Gilmour.
7—Piano Solo—"Romanze." (Left hand only) Spinnler.
Miss Jennie Meating.
8—Step Dancing by Mr. Warren Nesbitt.
9—Band Selection, Double number, "Superior" Overture, "Winner" March.

PART II.
CHARACTER SKETCH.
Betsy Baker, The Girl From St. George.
Cast of Characters:
Mr. Marmaduke Mouser, T. S. McAdam
Mrs. Anastasia Mouser,
Mrs. T. C. Choineau.
Mr. Crummy, H. C. Stuart.
Betsy Baker, Miss Blanche McKay.

The hearty applause given to each number in Part I. called forth "repeats" from the performers, which greatly pleased the audience. Miss Meating's piano solo "Romanze," played with the left hand only, was a decided novelty in its way, and was rendered in a charming manner, which called forth many remarks of admiration for this rising young musician. Part II. Betsy Baker, the girl from St. George, was a catchy little piece full of laughs from start to finish, and showed careful preparation. St. George is certainly favored in possessing histrionic talent of so high an order. The work of the band class was excellent and reflects great credit on Mr. George McCallum, their instructor, and St. George is justly proud of her sons of music. At the conclusion of the program the hall was cleared of its seats and the floor underwent a magic change, preparatory for the dance which was to follow. A large number remained and "tripped the light fantastic," to the stirring music of the orchestra, until the "wee sma' hours." Not least in the nights numbers, was the delicious repast which was served at midnight, by the ladies who were assisting the committee. A good sum was realized, and the unanimous wish is, that it all might occur again in the near future.

THE BIG LAUGH SHOW
ALONG THE KENNEBEC
COURTS OPERA HOUSE ONE NIGHT ONLY, Friday June 3rd.
"Along the Kennebec," a New England comedy, with a fine band, comes to St. George Friday June 3rd. The piece is now in its third successful season and has met with popular approval wherever presented, and has been used as a text by two ministers in their sermons. The play is full of comedy hits. It is comedy that a girl or woman can laugh at and not blush at the same time. The burlesque duel scene in the third act between Zeke Dasher and Bunlick Tubbs is said to be one scream from start to finish and five other comedy characters keep the audience in a happy frame of mind. All special scenery is carried for the production, and it is said to be strictly a scenic production from first act to last. Some pleasing singing and character specialties are introduced during the action of the piece, and "Along the Kennebec" sends its audience home feeling pleased and satisfied that "Along the Kennebec" had been in town. Watch for the Band Parade—Hear our free open air band concert. Seats on sale at hall on night of show.

Home Reading Column.

If anything pleased your eye or palate or adds to your enjoyment, of life in any way, say so. It is not fair to expect anyone to work for your pleasure and then take it for granted that you are pleased, when perhaps neither words, looks or actions express any thing of the kind.

It is bad enough to expect grown people to understand your feelings, but in mercy to the children do give them the word of praise which their efforts to help or please you deserves.

It is not only right but good policy as well to do this. You have only to watch the face of a child when it has tried to help you; give it the word of praise or thanks which it deserves and watch the lighting up of the little face then take note of its actions and very soon you will see that it is watching for an opportunity to do something else for you; and if you ask the favor how willingly the little feet and hands do the bidding.

On the other hand take their efforts as a matter of course and see the face show how keenly the neglect is felt. While human nature remains what it is, a word of appreciation will never be lost on old or young and is one of the best paying investments which can be made. Some say, "I don't care whether they like it or not," but that is all nonsense for man, woman or child we every one of us feel our heart grow warm under merited praise, and if we get a little more of it than we deserve, which rarely happens in this world we try to deserve more next time.

Did you ever stop to think that it was one thing to talk about people and another thing to have people talk about you? If those of us who use our tongues a little too freely about our neighbors would stop and reflect about the matter and know the great evil that comes from too much talk and tattling, we are sure we would call a halt and gossip no more forever.

Yesterday we were asked if we ever saw a baldheaded woman. We answered "No," we never did, nor did we ever see a woman walking around town in her shirt sleeves with a cigar in her teeth and running into every saloon she saw. We have never seen a woman go fishing with a bottle in her pocket, sit on the damp ground all day and come home drunk at night. Nor have we ever seen a woman yank off her coat and say she could lick any man in town. God bless her she's not built that way.

Give the young and struggling a word of encouragement now and then. You would not leave those plants in your window boxes without water nor refuse to open the shutters that the sunlight may fall upon them, but you would leave some human flower to suffer from want of appreciation or the sunlight of encouragement. There are a few hardy souls that can struggle along on stony soil—shrubs that can wait for the dew and sunbeams, vines that climb without kindly training—but only a few. Utter the kind word when you can see it is deserved.

That the churches in any community exercise a most potent influence for good is conceded by all except the most rabid or blatant infidel whose egotism and self-conceit blind his mind to the inestimable value of Christianity. But to what extent are the churches valuable in this community? The Galilean teacher said of His disciples: "Ye are the light of the world: 'Ye are the salt of the earth. Hence, if all His disciples are the light of the world and the salt of the earth, the logical as well as the scriptural conclusion is that they are the light of the community in which they live. These declarations, however, do not preclude the possibility of the light going out—being hid under a bushel—or the salt losing its saltiness. But certainly no reasonable or fair-minded persons would accuse the churches of being wholly composed of united bands of hypocrites. For it matters not to what extent sin, in its many forms, may pervade the ranks of any church, you will find within its membership, consecrated men and women. And it should be borne in mind that it only requires a few of the above-mentioned class to become the light of the community.

Praise your wife, man for pity's sake give her a little encouragement it won't hurt her. She doesn't expect it; it will make her eyes open wider than they have for the last ten years; but it will do her good for all that and you too. There are many women today thirsty for a word of praise and encouragement.

COINS THAT ARE BASE

Metals and Methods Used in Making Counterfeits.

HOW THEY MAY BE DETECTED

Spurious Coins Cannot Stand the Three Tests of Weight, Diameter and Thickness—Gold Pieces That Are Sweated, Plugged or Filled.

The most dangerous counterfeit is struck from a die and are usually imitations of gold coins. Molds of various kinds are extensively used, but counterfeit silver coins are much lighter than the genuine and if of required weight differ in diameter or thickness.

In counterfeit made from a mold lettering, milling and reeding are usually poor and weight defective. The coins lack the sharp and clear cut appearance of genuine coin. Most counterfeit silver coins are much lighter than the genuine and if of required weight differ in diameter or thickness. Various metals are used by counterfeiters, principally platinum, silver, copper, brass, antimony, aluminium, zinc, type metal, lead and their numerous compositions.

Among the most dangerous counterfeit of gold coin are those of a composition of gold, silver and copper. They are a low grade gold, and the acid test shows they lack the fineness of standard gold used by the United States mint, which is 900 fine, or 21.9 carats. These counterfeiters average from 400 to 800 fine. Platinum counterfeiters are dangerous, as the metal used gives required weight, and they are heavily gold plated. When they have been in circulation for a time the plating wears off, especially on the edges.

The most dangerous counterfeit of silver coin is made of a composition of antimony and lead, the former metal predominating. These counterfeiters are of the dollar, have a fine appearance, are heavily silver plated, with fair ring, and some are only slightly below the standard weight. Some pieces among the smaller coins are made of brass, struck from a die, and when heavily plated are fair imitations. They lack required weight, except in a few instances. Counterfeits of type metal, lead and other compositions are much lighter than genuine. Those having required weight are much too thick.

Genuine coins of all kinds, for the sake of gain, are tampered with in various ways. These operations are confined almost exclusively to gold coins, which are sweated, plugged and filled. Sweating is removing a portion of the gold from surface of coin. The process does not interfere with the ring, and as the portion removed is generally slight the coin is left with a very fair appearance, weight only being defective. The principal methods of sweating are the acid bath, filling the edges or reeding, the operator finding a profit in the small quantities of gold removed from numerous pieces. The average reduction in value of coins subjected to these processes is from one-twentieth to one-tenth.

Plugging is done by boring holes in the coin, extracting the gold and filling the cavity with a cheaper material. The larger coins—double eagles and eagles (twenty and ten dollar pieces)—are used for this purpose. The small surface of the plugging material, where it shows on the edge of the coin, is covered with gold and the reeding retouched with file or machine. The average loss in value to coins treated in this way is from one-eighth to one-sixth. Coins of this kind are very dangerous, as they are perfect in appearance, only the edges having been tampered with.

Filling is most commonly done by sawing the coin through from the edge or reeding, removing the interior portion and replacing it with a cheap metal. Coins of all denominations from quarter eagle to double eagle are subjected to this process. When platinum is used to replace gold extracted the coin has same weight as genuine. By this process coins lose four-fifths of their value, as the original surfaces are left only of paper thickness.

When edges have been covered with gold and reeding restored the coin has the appearance of being genuine, having correct size and weight and a fair ring. Sometimes the covering of gold on edges is so thin that filling can be distinctly seen. When other and less costly filling than platinum is used coins are of light weight and have a bad ring. If of correct weight they are too thick.

Another method of filling is sawing the coin partly in two, from edge of reeding, on one side, leaving a thin and thick portion. The thin side of the coin is turned back and the gold extracted from center of thicker portion. The cavity is filled with base metal and sides pressed back into original position and soldered or brazed together. It is difficult to give average loss to coins treated in this manner, as hardly any two seen have the same amount of gold taken from them.

For detecting counterfeit coin compare impress, size, weight, ring and general appearance with genuine coin of same period and coinage. The three tests of weight, diameter and thickness should be applied, for it is almost impossible for the counterfeit to comply with these three tests without using genuine metal.

Rheumatism
I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism, and a remedy that will strengthen the distorted limbs of chronic cripples and turn them back to their normal state. That is impossible, but I can show you all the pains and aches of this deplorable disease.
In Gloucester, I was in the city of Dartmouth—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfect, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient I successfully treated many cases of Rheumatism but now, at last, it is fully and completely cured. I have seen many cases of Rheumatism that were hopeless and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as dew from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need to actual exposure to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

The Stuff Of Heroes

By Donal Hamilton Haines

Above the steady grinding of wheels through sand, and the straining creak of harness taxed almost to the breaking point, rose the voice of Ezra Butters, teamster of the first blue-bodied wagon of the long train:

Oh, Beulah Land, sweet Beulah Land As on thy highest mount I stand!

There was no variation in Butters' selections. Two members of the cavalry escort, who had been relegated by fate to positions in wagons two hundred yards distant from Butters' estimated that Ezra had sung that particular gospel hymn every quarter of a mile for thirty miles. They were tired of the racket, and had it not been for the fact that an army needs teamsters for various purposes, they would probably have shot Ezra while he sang, both of them being short of ethical scruples.

Even Lieutenant Cadman, in the advance party, could hear the hoarse voice, and was annoyed. "Why is it," he asked of Stevens, his second in command, "that there is always something offensive about a teamster? They invariably sing or do something equally bad."

"Probably," suggested Stevens sagely, "because the teamsters as a rule are such an exquisitely run lot of beings."

"I know it," agreed Cadman. "They are a worthless lot. They can drive horses, grease axles, and that sort of thing. As long as you keep them far enough from the firing line, they're all very well; but let one bullet whistle overhead, and they're cutting the traces and getting away, leaving the wagons where they stand."

"Never yet," supplemented Stevens, "have I known one to be equal to an emergency—outside the four sides of his wagon."

Butters did not look like a man who would deliberately sing gospel hymns, nor did his attitude express any degree of devoutness. He lolled at ease on the hard seat of the wagon, his long legs hanging over the low dashboard, his feet pasted on to the back of his head.

The sweat rolled down his cheeks and matted his long, unkempt mustache. From time to time he struck the plodding horses mercilessly with his long whip, accompanying the act with much profanity. The horses, worn by long miles of plodding, almost crazed by the steady, burning heat, were incapable of any greater efforts and only quivered under the strokes of the lash.

On every side of him stretched interminable reaches of yellow sand, with the little blue dots of the cavalry escort pricked out against the yellow skyline. Behind Butters' wagon the others extended across the waste in a long line, like a gigantic snake. Sprawled out in an effort at ease on the blue boxes of ammunition in the wagon, back of Butters, lay a trooper whose horse had gone hopelessly lame earlier in the day. Ezra had attempted to engage this man in conversation, but he had proved tactless. Wearily the teamster's eye roved about the hideously monotonous landscape; not a feature of it changed. The cavalry escort was always just as far away the next wagon just as far behind. The chances of the speech which Butters craved were as remote as ever.

"Oh, Beulah Land!" he commenced. The trooper behind him rolled over on the boxes with a groan of misery. "If you start that again," he warned, "I'm going to throw you into the desert!"

Butters stared at him weakly. "All right," he said. "I won't but if you was to whistle a bit, I damn'd I'd mind." "Why in blazes should I whistle?" demanded the trooper angrily. "There's no reason for it!"

"Well," explained Butters, "I've heard the same sounds now for three days, an' I'd like a change."

The trooper grunted and rolled back on to the boxes. Butters looked at him longingly, but the man seemed to have passed again into the state of absolute quiet which he had maintained for hours. Again Butters' eye wheeled around the glaring circle of the horizon in search of something different—and failed to find it. He was on the point of singing again when he recalled the trooper's threat.

A glance at the angles of the man's chin did away with any thought of the possible emptiness of the words. Ezra considered calling out in his lonely misery to the man on the next wagon—only to remember that he was deaf as a post. He looked appealingly at the prostrate cavalryman. The man's eyes were open. Butters whipped his horses, swore forcibly, relapsed into silence for five interminable minutes, and then said over his shoulder:

"Was you ever in Three Rivers, Michigan?"

"No," answered the man drowsily.

"Why?"

To Butters that single interrogation was worth everything. It meant a break in the monotony—a chance for speech. He crossed his legs and thrust an empty pipe between his teeth to increase his feeling of comfort.

"Well, sir," he said importantly, "I lived there. The finest little town you ever saw."

He waited breathlessly for the trooper to answer. He did not, but he neither closed his eyes nor ordered silence, and Ezra took heart.

"Used to drive a truck for the beef-field people," he went on. "Drove that truck every day for five years. Yes, sir, never missed a day in five years! Them Sheffield people is a great bunch; always give us Saturday afternoon off! An' you've never been there?"

Just the shadow of a smile crept around the trooper's mouth, and he answered, imitating Butters' sober tone: "No, sir, I never have!"

"Well, well," commented Ezra, and then he launched with his full powers upon a description of his native heath, and of the thirty odd years of his colorless life. The trooper lay stretched out at full length under the rain of trivialities and tried to sleep, but Butters' nasal tones were not soothing. Now and then he drowsed away, but Ezra's voice would rise and the unhappy trooper would awake into the glare of the sand and the sky with a start. Finally he sat bolt upright and faced his tormentor.

"For Heaven's sake!" he ejaculated, sing Beulah Land or anything else! There may be two people in the world that care about hearing that; but who in blazes cares about whether your boss gave you five or six dollars a week? I don't!"

The trooper slid abruptly over the tail-piece, and Butters saw him climb into the next wagon.

"Now I wonder," he mused, what's the matter with him. Heat, I guess. I was just trying to 'muse him!"

He relapsed again into uncomfortable silence, and a case of his horses. The line of wagons crawled on across the plain, following only the shifting, shallow ruts which had been cut by other trains before them. Butters drooped his head and silently regretted the moment in which he had thrown away a job and the proximity of Dolans free lunches because the government offered him more than he had been getting.

At the head of the column, Lieutenants Cadman and Stevens began consulting their watches and assuming expressions of care and thoughtfulness. It happened that it was Cadman's first independent command, and his responsibilities rested heavily upon him.

"It's time we came in sight of timber," said Stevens.

In reply Cadman held up a hand for silence, and both checked their horses and listened. The creaking of axles sounded loud behind them in the hot silence, but far in front there throbbed another sound—a sound that they both knew.

"They're at it!" shouted Cadman. And the Lord knows how long they've been at it!"

Stevens scratched his head in perplexity. "Now I wonder what we ought to do," he mused. "Run our wagons right smash into the fighting and risk getting in the way or even losing them? Or just sit right here and wait for something to happen?"

In the inmost recesses of his being, First Lieutenant Cadman was perplexed by the same question; but he had no intention that Second Lieutenant Stevens should guess it. Indeed, he welcomed the manifest perplexity of his subordinate. "My orders," he said, with a certain amount of stiffness, "are perfectly explicit. I am to bring up this ammunition with all possible speed—and that's what I shall do. Lieutenant Stevens, will you order the rear guard to close in, and decrease the intervals between your flankers?"

Stevens saluted and rode away, while the wagon-train, men and beasts pricking up their ears at the sound of the distant firing, ploughed steadily on through the sand.

As Stevens passed the first wagon Butters shouted at him:

"Say, we ain't 'goin' up where all that racket is, are we?"

At the moment Steven's contempt for teamsters was intensified by a certain irritation at the sudden stiffening of his superior's discipline. Butters' question hit him across the grain.

"You'll go where you're ordered," he snapped.

The wagon-train assumed a more compact form. The members of the escort closed up on the flanks and at the rear, while a few troopers scouted still farther out on the plain. Stevens and Cadman endeavored to be everywhere at once, searching zealously for some danger to be met and avoided, but they encountered nothing save the increasing sounds of firing ahead. To increase the compactness of his column, Cadman drew his wagons into two lines, and Butters found himself driving beside the deaf teamster. This was an added grievance but he remembered the trooper in the back of the wagon.

"They won't make us get into this, will they?" he called across anxiously.

The trooper stuck his head above the side of the wagon and glowered at him. "This battle," he growled, "was designed and is being carried out solely for the torture and destruction of teamsters."

Butters stared at him vacantly and shook his head. "I hired out to drive my team," he objected. "I ain't no soldier."

The sandy nature of the ground changed somewhat, and a thin growth of stunted trees appeared. The ground commenced to slope, and the surface grew rockier. Gradually the glare of the sun decreased, and men and horses gasped their relief.

Butters took the empty pipe from his mouth and gazed into the bowl despairingly.

"Ain't got any 'baccy, have ye?" he called across to the cavalryman.

The other shook his head. "There's plenty of it up where they're fighting, he added with a grin.

Butters appeared to consider the matter deeply. "I guess they can keep it," he said finally.

Mingling with the distant roar and crackle of the firing came a new sound—a deeper, steadier roar. Cadman heard it and scowled.

"The river's higher!" he muttered.

The column hurried forward, spurred on by Cadman's nervous orders. A trooper from the advance party came riding back to where the two lieutenants were holding a hurried consultation.

"The bridge is gone, sir," he announced.

Cadman stared at him incredulously. "Gone?" he demanded. The trooper nodded. Cadman and Stevens looked at each other and then at the trooper, as though he were the cause of the disaster.

"We'll have to wait, that's all," Stevens said.

"There's a signal corps man on the other side of the river," the trooper went on, "but there's none of us up there that can read wigwag."

With a muttered exclamation, Cadman spurred forward his horse and rode toward the point where the little knot of horsemen had gathered on the edge of the river. He took a private's carbine, tied a handkerchief to it, and held mute converse with a figure on the other side of the stream.

The cavalrymen and the distant wagon train watched them in uncomprehending interest. Cadman's face grew more and more serious as the signals fluttered back and forth. Finally he lowered his improvised flag and turned to Stevens with a helpless expression.

"We're licked if we can't get these wagons across the river," he announced in a dull voice. "They've been fighting here for fourteen hours, and the ammunition's nearly gone. They can't hold out more than an hour longer. This freshet came along two days ago and washed out the old bridge and the pontoons."

The men looked at the river. It roared past them brimming from bank to bank—a hundred and fifty yards wide. The signal man on the other bank leaped on his flag and watched them curiously. Through the rush of the waters they heard the rattle of firing that would die out in defeat unless they could get the blue boxes across.

"How about foris?" Cadman asked.

The troopers shook their heads.

"We've been five miles up and down stream," explained one of the team whose trousers were wet to the waist and whose bay horses were black with water, "and there ain't a place better'n this!"

Cadman pushed his horse to the bank, but the beast refused to enter the water. He used the spur and the flat of his sabre—and was nearly unseated for his pains.

"Did you try the depth here?" he demanded of the drenched soldier.

"I couldn't get ten feet from shore," answered the man.

Mr. Penn: "They say the streets in Boston are frightfully crooked?"

Mr. Hub: "They are. Why, do you know, when I first went there I could hardly find my way around."

"That must be embarrassing!"

"It is. The first week I was there I wanted to get rid of an old cat we had, and my wife got me to take it to the river a mile away."

"And you lost the cat all right?"

"Lost nothing! I never would have found my way home if I hadn't followed the cat!"

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the North West Provinces, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person the sole head of a family, or male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section, of 160 acres, more or less. Application for homestead entry or inspection must be made in person by the applicant at the office of the local Agent or Sub-Agent.

An Application for entry or inspection made personally at any Sub-Agent's office may be wired to the local Agent by the Sub-Agent, at the expense of the applicant, and if the land applied for a vacant receipt of the telegram such application is to have priority and the land will be held until the necessary papers to complete the transaction are received by mail.

In case of "personation" the entry and only one application for inspection will be received from an individual until that application has been disposed of.

A homesteader whose entry is in good standing and not liable to cancellation, may, subject to approval of Department, relinquish it in favour of father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister, if eligible, but to no one else, on filing declaration of abandonment.

When an entry is summarily cancelled or voluntarily abandoned, subsequent institution of cancellation proceedings, the applicant will lose any prior right of re-entry, should the land become vacant, or if entry has been granted it may be summarily cancelled.

A settler is required to perform the conditions under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year during the term of three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for by such homesteader, the requirement as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirement may be satisfied by residence upon such land. Before making application for patent the settler must give six months' notice in writing to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of his intention to do so.

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heart-burn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at these will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of native American medicinal forest plants. PAINT PAINT

INVESTIGATE BEFORE YOU BUY!

In these days of sharp competition, it is well to know that you get what you pay for. There are so many brands of house paints on the market, now-a-days, advertised as "pure" but little better than "dope", that a man ought to investigate what he intends to buy. We suggest to those about to paint, to make a practical test and convince themselves. Buy a small can of

The Martin-Senour 100 Per Cent Pure Paint.

and one of any other brand with which you may have been favorably impressed, measure the paint, so that you use no more of one than you do of the other. Thus, with the conditions the same, you can determine for yourself which paint has the better body or covering capacity, which is the easier brushing out and has the better finish. If you do not decide in favor of The Martin-Senour 100 Per Cent Pure Paint, we will return the money paid for the can of the Pure Paint used in making the experiment. We have no doubt as to your decision, and are prepared to supply you with the BEST PAINT on the market.
