PROF. CHESTER MARTIN MARRIED IN ENGLAND

The following account of an interesting ceremony celebrated at Fleet, England, will be of interest to the friends of one of the contracting parties, Professor Chester Martin, of the University of Manitoba, and formerly of this city.

Martin-Payne-Evans.

(Fleet News, England.)

At all Saints' church, Fleet, on July 24th, the wedding took place of Miss Dorothy Payne-Evans, youngest daughter of Mrs. C. J. Payne-Evans, late of Little Warley Rectory, and Professor Chester Martin, of the University of Manitoba, Winnipeg, Canada, eldest son of H. C. and Mrs. Martin, of St. John, N. B., Canada. The bride was given away by her brother-in-law, G. H. Reid, who was very dainty in a lovely gown of soft white satin draped with overskirt of very old family lace of Brussels net. The long bridal veil which was worn over a wreath of real orange blossoms, was also of very old Brussels lace. From the shoulders fell a court train of white crepe de chene, trimmed at either corner with sprays of orange blossoms and true lovers' knots of chiffon. The bride carried a beautiful bouquet of white roses, lilies and carnations, with trails of smilax and asparagus fern. Her only ornament was a gold chain necklace with pendants of pearls the gift of the bridegroom. Little Miss Dagmar Reid, the niece of the bride was the only bridesmaid. Her frock was of white French embroidery over pale pink silk, with hat of white Leghorn trimmed with pale pink chiffon and roses. She carried a shower basket of Dorothy Perkins roses, and wore a gold dog brooch, the gift of the bridegroom. Dr. Vincent, a colleague of the bridegroom was best man. After the ceremony, which was performed by the vicar, Rev. G. H. Preston, a reception was held at "Tremere," the residence of Lady Reid, only relatives and intimate friends being present. The bride went away in a costume of powder-blue linen, with large

ST. JOHN, N. B., SATURDAY, AUGUST 31, 1912.

THE INFLUENCE OF THE OVERSEAS DOMINIONS.

From the obvious fact that a statement made from personal knowledge must tend to carry greater weight than hearsay evidence, the views expressed by Mr. Hazen in his interview in The Standard yesterday will be accepted as an accurate summary of the opinion of the people of the Mother Country on Mr. Borden's proposals for co-operation in Naval Defence. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries has had unusual opportunities during the past two months to study the problem of Imperial Naval Defence at close range. Without trenching upon the question as to what course Canada will take, which will be decided only after mature consideration, Mr. Hazen emphasizes two important facts: That the German peril is no figment of the imagination, as we are expected in some quarters to believe; and that the Overseas Dominions, by a policy of active co-operation with the Home Authorities in Naval Defence, will have a world-wide influence in deciding the issues of peace and war.

It is instructive to recall Mr. Hazen's statements on these two points. He said:

By all parties in Great Britain the German menace is regarded as a very live question. There is practically a universal opinion that Germany is increasing her naval armaments and building Dreadnoughts for the purpose of contesting the supremacy of Great Britain, when it is thought the time is opportune for so doing.

A strong volume of public opinion is inclined to the view that if it is made apparent to the world that Great Britain's Overseas Dominions are prepared to stand by the Mother Country in case of war with Germany, such a course will have a most potent influence for peace, and in preventing a war now regarded as likely to occur in the future.

We need not enquire the sources from which Mr. Hazen gathered this information. It is only necessary to read the speeches of Mr. Asquith and the First Lord of the Admiralty to know that Germany's programme under the Navy Act, passed as recently as last May, is a direct challenge to the naval supremacy of the Empire. The challenge appears today in the words of the Navy Act. It will not be this year, nor next year that Germany will be ready, and war could be declared. Germany is not building up and developing her naval strength to protect imaginary Dominions Overseas. Looking to the future she will make her bid against Great Britain for naval supremacy, and all that it implies, only when she is fully prepared.

From the time of laying the keel to placing a Dreadnought in commission nearly two years must elapse, but that is not the only consideration. The gravity of the situation lies in the large number of armored ships which Germany will keep constantly in commission. The number is raised by the new law from 21 to 32—an increase of about 57 per cent. To meet this activity, with no desire for war but to maintain the 60 per cent. standard of superiority which now prevails, Great Britain is also increasing the number of battleships in commission—a course which has entailed a drastic reorganization of the Navy—and has added four more battleships to the programme of the next five years.

But this is not the end, nor the beginning of the end. With the naval situation as it exists, history will repeat itself. Germany's struggle for supremacy will continue. Great Britain will also continue—as Sir Wilfrid Laurier remarked recently, thinking all the time of armaments and spending half her revenue upon them. If supremacy is to be maintained Great Britain has no option.

And here the second important fact which Mr. Hazen emphasized comes up for consideration. A closer and more inter-dependent alliance between Great Britain and the Sister Dominions of the Empire for co-operation in Naval Defence is becoming a probability of the not distant future. This policy is advocated by the Prime Minister of Canada, "the first born of the Imperial family," at a conference with the British Government. Mr. Borden's announcement is received with enthusiasm and unanimous approval by the people of the Mother Country. Public men and the press of both parties welcome the offer of the Dominion to share the burden of defence and the duty of upholding the supremacy of the Empire upon the seas. And the reason is plain. In the words of Mr. Hazen "a strong volume of public opinion is inclined to the view that if it is made apparent to the world that Great Britain's Overseas Dominions are prepared to stand by the Mother Country in case of war with Germany, such a course will have a most potent influence for peace, and in preventing a war now regarded as likely to occur in the future."

An Empire Navy as a potent influence for peace and for the prevention of war is the end to be attained. The principle to be enforced is not aggression against a foreign nation but protection of the Empire's supremacy on the seas by an Imperial fleet in which all the Dominions participate. Apart from the duty of loyalty to the Motherland, in giving this problem favorable consideration, each Dominion would be influenced by the vital importance of providing a fleet that can protect the trade routes against any foreign combination. There is sound reasoning in the unanimous opinion expressed in Great Britain that the co-operation of the Overseas Dominions in providing additional battleships and cruisers to augment the Home Fleet, would prove an answer to the German menace. "Safety in numbers" may be a trite saying, but, in the Naval Defence of the Empire, it is a guarantee of peace.

CO-OPERATION IN IRELAND.

An instructive summary of the investigations of Prof. Graham, of the Poultry Department of the Ontario Agricultural College, who has been in England, Ireland and Denmark studying the working of agricultural co-operative systems, is given by the Toronto Mail and Empire. Professor Graham believes that within fifteen years Ireland will surpass Denmark in the success of its co-operative farming. By the aid of the co-operative societies that sprang into existence after the forming of the Irish Agricultural Organization Society in 1894, the reconstruction of Irish agriculture has been phenomenally rapid and extensive. Practically it has been a new Ireland in the making.

The settlement of the agrarian troubles on a basis that favored the acquisition of holdings by the peasantry was the foundation for the new order of things. The poverty of the Irish farmers made it necessary to supply them with working capital, yet the fierce salmesties of the days of eviction and repression survived in sufficient strength to make it advisable that the Government should not take the lead.

The magnificent labor of Sir Horace Plunkett in first organizing the central association and through it the many local co-operative societies supplied the key to the movement. Beginning with dairying and the marketing of butter, the co-operative principle has been extended to most other forms of farm production. The Department of Agriculture has been consistently promoting the education of the farmers, and the consequent general development has been extraordinary. From the depths of misery and wretchedness in the days when Ireland was said to need "twenty years of resolute government," the rural population has progressed so far that it is now threatening the supremacy of the famous Danish agricultural system.

Ireland illustrates in a peculiarly illuminating way, says the Mail and Empire, the extent to which co-operation can enter into the pores of rural life. The local societies have done much to heal political and religious feuds, to smooth over surviving remnants of passionate bitterness between neighbors. Only one society broke up through factious quarrel, the dispute in that case concerning Parnell. The societies have secured a reduction in railway rates, and have reorganized home industry sufficiently to stop the tide of emigration that for so many years threatened to settle the Irish question by depopulating the island. The progressiveness, the spirit and self-respect that have possessed the rural population following their success as producers for the English and Scotch markets is a remarkable tribute to the regenerative powers of the co-operative movement.

THE DISAPPEARANCE OF MONA LISA.

The Paris correspondent of Truth, London, gives an interesting explanation which he declares is "the truth at last," with reference to the mysterious disappearance of the celebrated painting, Mona Lisa, from the Louvre. The picture, he states, will never be seen again, because it was not stolen, but destroyed. He understands that it perished in the Louvre, a vengeful employee, smarting at dismissal, having poured sulphuric acid over the picture. This outrage was committed over a year or more before the reported theft of Gioconda. The custodians, it seemed, hoped that the original could be restored, and hung a copy in the galleries. But when it was certain that the acid had done its work too fatally, burning, vanishing and destroying the colors, and when experts began to whisper their doubts about the substitute, it was decided to let the painting be "stolen."

The police were allowed to work on that theory, although high officials from the first perceived its improbability. This was thought to be kinder to the public than frankly to admit that Mona Lisa was gone forever, while to let out the true story would have reflected even more severely than the report of the theft of the masterpiece upon the laxness of the Louvre staff. The Paris correspondent of Truth makes the statement that some parts of his revelation cannot be vouched for with "the same certainty" as others; but the explanation he gives is quite likely not to be far removed from the truth.

The Times expresses the opinion that Mr. Hazen owes the Liberal party in Canada an apology for insinuating that the party is disloyal in a speech delivered at a banquet given by the National Liberal Club in London. Mr. Hazen made no reference to disloyalty in any shape or form, and did not mention the Liberal party in Canada. Considering these facts and that Mr. Hazen's remarks, which the Times and Toronto Globe complain, were received with applause by a gathering of distinguished men, many of whom do not see eye to eye with him either on the subject of Reciprocity or Imperial Preference, these party organs appear to have wandered very far afield, and with poor success, in their search for ammunition.

The Smoking Habit.

(Tobacco Leaf.)
According to statistics there are consumed in the United States every day, 21,718,448 cigars and 23,736,190 cigarettes, without including those rolled by the smokers themselves. These figures are large. Taken alone, they seem to confirm the fears of those who go about dreading the ravages of the cigarette scourge. But measured against the population of the country they are seen to be small. They show a per capita consumption of less than a cigarette a day for the male voting population alone and considerably less than a cigar a day.

The Prey of Land Sharks.

(Montreal Gazette.)
Again comes the report from Quebec City that immigrants have been deceived by sharks employed at that doorway to Canada. This time definite charges have been made. They should lead to the punishment of the guilty. Robbing a newcomer unprepared for the sharp ways of men with easy jobs is even worse than robbing a native. The immigrant has enough to go through in securing entry without having to contend with evil doers the moment he steps from the ship.

Some Constituency.

(Winnipeg Free Press.)
The Eastern politician who finds it somewhat trying to have to make a round of the township fairs in order to keep in touch with his constituents may realize what an easy time he has of it, when he learns that J. L. Cote has just returned from a 2,600-mile journey in the constituency of Athabasca, which he represents in the Alberta Legislature. It is about as large as the three Maritime Provinces.

No Canadian Accent.

(Vancouver News-Advertiser.)
The Gentlewoman is a London publication which looks after society and other things. It has made the interesting discovery that Mrs. Borden "possesses all the great naturalness and restraint of the Englishwoman and has scarcely a trace of the Canadian accent." This is quite reassuring.

(Pike, N. Y., Gazette.)
Miss Mary Sowerby has resigned her position in Walcott's store, her many friends will be sorry to learn. She made an excellent clerk, and was always pleasant and agreeable. But it is said she has received a much better offer where, for the present, she will have but one customer to wait upon.

New forms of distinction are constantly arising, the latest being that of the American citizen who has not been arrested on suspicion of being "Oyp the Blood" or "Leftie Louis."

COUNTY COURT.

The case of Alfred Burley vs. Wm. McCollom was continued before Judge Forbes and a jury yesterday morning. This is an action for the recovery of $100 on a horse transaction. The plaintiff, who is manager of the Alfred Burley Company, general insurance agent, purchased a horse from the defendant and alleges that the latter represented the horse to be sound. The price paid was $175. The plaintiff claims that after he purchased the animal he discovered it to be lame and unsound. The horse was afterwards sold at auction for $75 and plaintiff is now suing for the $100 he is out on the transaction. The plaintiff's case was finished yesterday morning on the examination of Dr. T. Fred Johnson, veterinary surgeon, who testified as to the condition of the horse. The defendant, Mrs. McCollom, and two children, Fred and Lulu McCollom, gave evidence as to what was said regarding the horse when it was sold to Mr. Burley. After the address to the jury A. Wilson, K. C., for the defendant, and J. B. M. Baxter, K. C., for the plaintiff, and His Honor's charge, the jury retired at 1 o'clock and after being out about twenty minutes, returned a verdict for $100 in favor of the plaintiff.

IN CHAMBERS.

Further hearing in the claims of the Robert Ford Co. Ltd. vs. the Francis Kerr Co. Ltd. in liquidation, took place before Mr. Justice McKeown in Chambers yesterday morning. The evidence of Hammond Evans and Walter R. Miller for the plaintiff was taken and Francis Kerr gave evidence for the defendant. F. R. Taylor appeared for the claimants and J. King Kelley for the liquidator. His Honor deferred judgment in the matter.

An Uncomplimentary Statement.

Montreal, Aug. 30.—The Acadians are rejoicing all through New Brunswick because justice has been done in getting rid of Romo, in giving them Mgr. They expect renewed attacks from the Irish people, but they do not fear them." So writes Senator Polier of Shediac, N. B. in a letter today to Le Canada. Senator Polier is holidaying at Mantoulin. "I am at the end of the world among the Ojibways," he writes; "perhaps you believe that they are savages. Not at all. It is at St. John, N. B., that the real savages are found."

TYRUS RAYMOND COBB, WHO WANTS $15,000 A YEAR.

Wouldn't You Play Ball at That Price? Mr. Cobb wants $15,000 a year for playing baseball.

This is a story of Tyrus Raymond Cobb, frequently billed as the greatest player baseball has ever produced.

For the last three years Cobb has been playing for a salary reliably reported to be $9,000, probably the highest stipend paid to any mere player.

Cobb hasn't said what his salary will be next year, but you can brook that the figures in the contract will be very nearly what Cobb wants.

He has asked a few of his intimate friends if they thought that $15,000 would be enough for a one year's salary.

There will be two games every day next week with the exception of Saturday—morning and afternoon games will be played with Houlton on Monday (Labor Day) and Tuesday Woodstock comes Wednesday and Thursday.

BASEBALL GREEKS AGAIN A WINNER; HOULTON 10, WOODSTOCK 1

What is counted as the finest game of ball played in this city took place yesterday afternoon on the Marathon grounds when the Greeks defeated Fredrickson by the close score of two to one.

The weather was rather cold and there was considerable delay on account of the rain, but despite these bad conditions the game was fought from start to finish and was not a sure win for the Greeks until the last Fredrickson man was called out.

The Marathons played an errorless game, while their opponents had four errors but these four errors were in the scoring with the exception of one and that was in the second inning when Dutton reached first on a single.

Winkler was the pitcher for Fredrickson and his work was never better in addition to his good pitching his support was perfect there being some sensational fielding and the Greeks made the other three singles.

Only three Fredrickson men reached as far as the third base and only two others got as far as the second. It was real work for Winkler and he deserved all the congratulations that were heaped upon him.

Winkler made the other three singles and the latter was hit hard. O'Brien went out to center and Dutton was put out at O'Brien at short.

O'Brien went out third to first. Winkler pitched to him and Dutton scored. Duggan was put out trying to steal second. Winkler pitched to center and O'Donnell fielded out Duggan in center.

Hoyt went out second to first. Fitzgerald filed out to right field. Hoyt went out second to first. Fitzgerald filed out to right field.

TRAGIC CAREER OF DR. SUN IS TOLD IN BOOK FORM

Dr. James Cantlie, Dean of Hong Kong College of Medicine, Unfolds Story of Unobtrusive Chinese Who Rose to the Presidency Over Four Hundred Million People.

NEW YORK PLANS A COLONY FOR DRUNKS

How City Proposes to Deal With the Problem of Habitual Inebriates — Purchase of a Large Farm.

(New York Herald.)

Would you have a romance in real life—and in the life of your own day—now, wonderful and thrilling than that of any writer of fiction? And a romance which, according to the telegrams from Hong Kong, will be a tragedy at any moment? They say you have it in the story of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the first president of the Chinese republic.

Here is a man with a character remarkably like that of George Washington and with a life story in some respects more like that of Abraham Lincoln. Not from the ruling class of China has he come, but from obscure parentage in an out of the way Chinese village. The son of a poor farmer employed in the missionary service he became a student of medicine in Canton and Hong Kong and began to practice in the Portuguese colony of Macao, a day's journey from Canton. A career that began peacefully enough.

Now for 17 years this Chinese physician has been in constant danger of death from hired assassins of the Manchu government. More than once an assassin has actually entered the room where his intended victim lay, but he has always escaped. He has been offered a million dollars has been offered for his capture. Had it been accomplished at any time up to within the last few months Dr. Sun would have had his ankles crushed in a vise and smashed with a hammer, his eyelids cut off, and his body chopped into small pieces as the leader of a political agitation.

Not an Exaggerated Fear.

The best evidence of the fact that this was no exaggerated fear is found in the fate of Sun's associates. While he was practicing medicine in Macao he became identified with what was called the "Young China Party." Later he joined the movement in Canton and was one of eighteen prominent members who organized to overthrow the Manchu government. Very soon after the organization was formed seventeen of the leaders were put to death, Sun being the only one left to carry forward the work. "Neither in fact nor in fiction," says one of his European supporters, "is there in history nor in the ideals of romance, has any author dared to endow the heroes of his creation with perils so dire as those which have befallen Sun. He is safe; nor in the uttermost parts of the earth; for a period of nearly twenty years could he feel that a cruel death was not imminent."

For instance, he was kidnapped in London in broad daylight in 1887 and imprisoned in the Chinese Legation. He was on an alleged steamer when he was taken to Hong Kong, but he managed to escape. After having studied in the Anglo-American mission in Canton, Sun went to Hong Kong and entered Dr. Cantlie's new school of medicine. That was in 1887, and Sun obtained his diploma five years later, being the first graduate of the college.

Not American Born.

When I was in Honolulu a few months ago one of the newspapers there published a cablegram from Washington saying that the American government had officially certified Sun's birth as having occurred in Hawaii and that he was therefore entitled to American protection. Dr. Cantlie's book effectively upsets this claim. Sun's birth was in 1867 in the province of Kwangtung in a remote village situated between Canton and Macao. After having studied in the Anglo-American mission in Canton, Sun went to Hong Kong and entered Dr. Cantlie's new school of medicine. That was in 1887, and Sun obtained his diploma five years later, being the first graduate of the college.

From the date of Sun's active connection with the movement to overthrow the Manchus he has been on the wing, secretly preparing the Chinese for their revolution. He travelled on foot throughout a large part of China's 4,000,000 square miles, even to the borders of Tibet, constantly risking death in the most horrible form. He built up an organization that eventually accomplished its work. Not only in China but in every other part of the world where Chinese congregate, Sun continued his activity. In Honolulu particular Sun was most ardently welcomed by his fellow countrymen, who had been living under a republic long enough to appreciate its superiority. Dr. Cantlie tells an interesting story of his own visit to Honolulu.

He and Mrs. Cantlie were driving through the streets, in company with their young son and his Japanese nurse, when the vehicle was stopped by a trim, well dressed man who appeared to be a Chinese. He raised his hat, extended his hand and smiled. The Cantlies regarded him with astonishment and the nurse spoke to him in Japanese. He took his hat in reply and it gradually dawned on the physician that it was Dr. Sun. Sun, who had been in Honolulu for some time, had been in the city for some time, had been in the city for some time, had been in the city for some time.

How His Release Came About.

The release of Sun from the Chinese Embassy in London came about in this dramatic way.

There was an English servant in the Chinese Legation who knew of Sun's imprisonment and of the pitiful fate that awaited him. He told his wife about it, and she determined to save the poor wretch, not having the least idea of his importance. On a Saturday night, about half past eleven, Dr. Cantlie was awakened by the ringing of his doorbell. He went to the door, but no one was there. Looking down he saw a letter. It was from the servant's wife and read as follows:

"There is a friend of yours imprisoned in the Chinese Legation here since last Sunday. They intend sending him out to China, where it is certain they will hang him. It is very hard for the poor man, and unless something is done at once he will be taken away and no one will know it. I dare not sign my name, but this is the truth, so believe what I say. Whatever you do must be done at once, or it will be too late. His name is, I believe, Sun Yat Sen."

Though this was in the middle of the night, Dr. Cantlie moved with swift feet. He went first to the Marlybone police and thence to Scotland Yard but nobody would take any stock in the story. The officers told him he had done his duty in reporting the matter and had better get back to bed.

The next day he called on them again in company with Sir Patrick Manson and received practically the same indifferent answer.

Then he took the matter up with a subordinate at the Foreign Office, and was fortunate enough to have come to a man who was willing to take the initiative and move more swiftly than the diplomatic officials generally move. The immediate result was the release of Sun.

Two hours later Sun came in. Mrs. Cantlie handed him the copy of the telegram. He read it, smiled and put it in his pocket. The next day Mrs. Cantlie told him the story of the telegram, and Sun asked who had copied the Chinese characters. He was amazed beyond measure to learn that she had done it herself, though she knew not a word of Chinese. Sun replied, "Oh, no, didn't I tell you? It was asking me to be President of the new Republic."

The Durland Farm, according to an agricultural expert, is admirably adapted for the raising of diverse kinds of crops. It contains 840 acres, 200 of which are especially fit for producing those pungent, bulbous plants that cause the eyes to well up in the eyes of the most hardened and that have made Bermuda famous from kitchen to cafe. Excellent timber can be cut on the farm without unduly depleting the forest. Dairy stock will thrive and return handsome profits. The butter milk, cream and cheese from this source will be used on the patients' tables and the surplus turned over to the city for consumption under the direction of the Department of Charities and of Bellevue Hospital. The farm borders on Lake Wickham, which is fed from natural springs and will furnish an unending supply of pure water. The Durland Farm possesses unusual attractions in the way of alluring landscapes.

Dr. Morrison refers to the future inmates of the colony as patients. "The institution is not to be a home for heavy drinkers," he says. "It will be a hospital for the cure of inebriates. When the board fails to cure any of its charges it will refuse further custody. The method of treatment is to be that approved by medical science, and for this reason the colony will be under the care of a medical director. The aim of the institution is to change a man's taste for liquor and restore him to society as a useful factor in its progress."

"In all ordinary cases," the doctor continues, "a man must spend at least six months on a farm. A complete cure can hardly be expected within three years; but if the progress of the patient warrants, he may be allowed to live where he pleases for the remaining two years and a half. Of course such patients will be watched, and if their self-control proves weak they will be returned to the institution. Field officers who have been conditionally discharged will be in the hands of probation officers. Field officers will study the home environment of patients recommended for probation. They will make a report on each case, showing the man's home surroundings, his business or means of support, his social position and any other fact which may help him regain his stability while on probation."

2,000 WOMEN WISH TO WED POLICEMAN

New York, Aug. 30.—"Can women be so foolish?" remarked a policeman (Charles Marchant, of Westfield, N. J., yesterday as he started to open the sugar barrel full of letters from those who were asked to name the most perfect character they ever knew, I would not hesitatingly say Sun Yat Sen. Sun cannot be bought or sold; he cannot be driven from his purpose; he despises publicity and remains the same honest, simple, bewitching character, although he has tasted of the highest position it is possible to think of.

"Such a man is hopeless from a diplomatic point of view; to financiers he is impossible; he is the stumbling block of company promoters and an unnecessary expense to the would-be interviewer."

Chief, I never believed there were so many women in the world who would go crazy after a man," said Marchant.

Marchant says he will remain a member of the Westfield force for two years, at least. Mrs. Julia Harding, of Nome, Alaska, writes of her desire to share his joys and sorrows, as follows:—

"I am confident that I am just the young woman you want for a partner for life. I am not silly, nor am I a suitor. I am a fond of darning socks and doing all kinds of house work. So I hope to hear from you soon."

Marchant has only made a beginning on his pile of offers, which is still growing. Three of the letters came from women in England, who were willing to emigrate to the New World for a chance to marry a policeman with $100,000.

The Understudy of the Sun McClary's Sunshine Furnace

WHEN Old Sol swings low and far away he appoints an understudy for the purpose of keeping Jack Frost where he belongs—Outside.

The average furnace is a glut-ton for coal.—It literally burns up money. The "Sunshine" Furnace saves money—earns its cost in a very few years because it burns coal sparingly. Call on the McClary agent of your locality and ask him to prove that statement true. If he cannot convince you—show you that the "Sunshine" Furnace will cut your coal bills by a very pleasing margin we don't want your order. That's the fairest way we know of doing business—does it appeal to you?

Remember the past winter—the Frost King was very active—He battered us with a three months' siege of snow and ice—Almost conquered the thermometer by chasing the mercury out of sight. But he failed to penetrate thousands of homes, because the Understudy of the Sun—McClary's "Sunshine" Furnace—was on the job in the cellars of these homes.

It's easy to keep Jack Frost at a safe distance with the "Sunshine" Furnace. He may storm and rave outside, but there is no place for him within—because, the Understudy of the Sun has demonstrated its mastery in the home.

TRADE MARK

Insist on seeing this Trade Mark on every Toilet and Medicinal Preparation you buy. It is your assurance that you are getting the best.

In buying food, clothing or house furnishings you can judge their quality by their looks, feeling, taste or smell. But when you buy Toilet or Medicinal Preparations your senses give you no clue to quality—you must buy on faith. You take no chances, though, but are safe, if you always select preparations bearing on the package the Na-Dru-Co Trade Mark shown above. This Trade Mark is positive evidence that the article which bears it, whether Toilet or Medicinal, has been compounded by expert chemists, from the purest and best ingredients, according to formulae that have been tried out and proved safe and effective. We are prepared to furnish, on request, to any physician or druggist in Canada, a full list of the ingredients in any Na-Dru-Co Medicinal Preparation. Ask these men, in whom you place implicit confidence, all about the Na-Dru-Co Line.

When your physician gives you a prescription, you would not think of having it filled by any but a qualified and reliable druggist. Why then should you not know who compounds the household remedies which you and your family take? When you buy a preparation bearing the Na-Dru-Co Trade Mark you buy a product which has been compounded by properly qualified chemists, in the employ of the largest Drug Firm in the British Empire, the National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited.

We realize that the success of the whole Na-Dru-Co Line of over 100 articles depends on the highest quality being maintained in every one, and you can absolutely depend on getting, under the Na-Dru-Co Trade Mark, the best that brains and money can produce. So sure are we of the quality of Na-Dru-Co goods that we back up each and every package with the unconditional guarantee quoted in the inner circle.

GENTLEMEN ADVENTURERS AND THE ELEPHANT POACHING INDUSTRY OF THE AFRICAN JUNGLE

(New York Herald.)
Elephant poaching is an illicit industry of the African jungle around which these days the writers of fiction and of highly colored news reports delight to weave the web of fancy.
Here, for instance, is the weird tale of James Ward Rogers, sent out last week through the medium of the Associated Press. At a matter of fact, the gathering of tusks of the pachyderm against the law of the wild is pursued as a matter of cold blooded business. Those who pursue it are usually daring men and quickly become desperate. Cut off from the world and with different parts of the great continent forced to fall back upon their ingenuity to keep alive—much less to get together money enough to buy expensive steamship tickets back to civilization.
In the old days it was not necessary for an ivory hunter to poach. The jungle was practically free to any man who had the nerve to invade it and he had no restrictions upon his departure with the spoil—if he were lucky enough to get to the coast with it.
But things have changed in these late years since the great continent has been partitioned out among European nations, and the boundaries of each colony or "protectorate" clearly defined. To shoot elephants in any part of it without a proper authorization from the local government is a crime far more heinous than that of shooting deer or grouse on the estate of an English earl. A man may be a poacher on a small scale, seeking merely to dodge the payment of a license fee. This license varies in amount from $50 to $100, and is used to be about $30 in the Congo but is probably much more than that now. Then the hunter must also have an expensive license for carrying firearms.
But the license requirement is not the chief difficulty in the path of ivory hunters like Rogers. There are open and closed seasons for elephants just as there are for quail. In the eastern part of the Congo, in the days of Leopold, there could be no elephant hunting from the middle of May to the middle of October—and east of a certain parallel the killing of elephants was prohibited throughout the entire year. If the administrators of East African colonies were not so lenient as to allow the killing of elephants to become so rare as the ivory hunter is the Congo stamp regulation. For instance, an ivory trader goes out into the elephant district and trades a couple of imitation skin rugs (costing about $7) for a pair of tusks worth perhaps $500. Before he is allowed to leave the district he must march his caravan up to the government station and give up one of the tusks. Then the commandant places the stamp of his district on the other, and the trader may pass on.
Now, it must be obvious to any reader that a business yielding such handsome profits is greatly restricted by a regulation that takes away fifty per cent. of the gross at one blow. If the trader be a Greek or a Hindu, well and good; but if he be an American like Rogers, with initiative and daring will soon develop into an "ivory runner" on a large scale. The writer has seen an Englishman turn the same trade in a small scale, when he was stationed in non-British territory, and has also seen the same game the mahogany belt of the West Coast.
The method of "running" ivory on the East Coast is very simple. The trader gets back into the bush with his cloth, or his mules, or his gin, or whatever else that particular district demands. He has a small party of chiefs all know him and welcome him, for a travelling department stores great quantities of goods from the coast. The trader easily bargains for all the ivory he can collect through the forest, by night and escape from the district with all the tusks. But caravans must be ready to start at a moment's notice, for the trader and night travel is not popular with the African. The game is therefore organized in the following manner:
The trader splits his caravan into two parts. One of these (and generally the smaller) is escorted by him up to the post and the other is required to take the government's share of the ivory and affix his stamp to the tusks. While this inspection is in progress the remainder of the caravan in charge of a reliable headman, is piloted by a native along one of the secret trails that dodge the station and joins the main trail some miles beyond it. As a further precaution the tusks of this caravan are wrapped so that they cannot be detected without examination. This ruse has been as well as the rare ivory.
But of far greater significance to the ivory hunter is the Congo stamp regulation. For instance, an ivory

The Gillette is the ONLY Adjustable Razor

For a Close Shave
For a Light Shave

No two men have beards and faces just alike—and the same man wants sometimes a light, sometimes a close shave. The adjustable Gillette is the ONLY Razor which meets these varied needs.
The lower sketch shows the position of the blade when the handle of the Gillette is screwed up tight, gripping the blade close against the guard. This gives a light shave, and suits a soft beard or a tender skin perfectly.
In the upper sketch the screw handle has been loosened about a quarter turn. This, as you can see, allows the blade edge to spring away a little from the guard, and "take hold" more. In this position the wonderfully keen Gillette blade will shave the stiffest beard closer than the barber dare shave it.
Probably an adjustment between these two will suit you best. But whatever kind of shave you want, the adjustable Gillette will give it.

At your Druggist's, Hardware Dealer's or Jeweler's, buy a Gillette—you'll enjoy it. Standard Sets $5.00. Pocket Editions $5.00 to $6.00. Combination Sets $6.50.

ALLEN LAYS GRAFT TO "CODDLING THE COPS" New Use for Discarded Wedding Rings Found

Research Director Holds Administration of the Department Has Been Run by Rank and File.
New York, Aug. 29.—The blame for widespread graft in the Police Department and the evident contempt for superiors which led up to the murder of Rosenthal, is in the hands of the present city administration in "coddling the cops" in a statement given out yesterday by W. E. Allen, director of the Bureau of Municipal Research.
Mr. Allen issued this statement after a long and bitter investigation which would be of interest to the Aldermanic Investigating Committee.
He points out that since Commissioner Waldo took office nearly all demands made by the police have been granted. Twelve complaints were ordered abolished, men were reinstated after being out of the department for years, and ten lieutenants had their numbers removed from their shields, fines imposed by Commissioner Waldo were remitted, and one lieutenant was promoted to sergeant. The result has been that the police have become arrogant.
"Police all over the city openly express disrespect for their superiors," he says, "for their Commissioner, for the Mayor and for the public, and even outward order and decency. If the Aldermanic Investigators start with the cop they will get no explanation and preventive for this lack of respect."
"If they start at headquarters and with the record of the mayor's office they can find it. It is notorious in police work the world over that crime and vice take their toll of the superior officer who enforces the law."
"Coddling the cops is a result which has been charged against the present administration from the first."
Mr. Allen then points out a few instances in which the police have been coddled, which he thinks will interest the investigators.
"They want a number of additional captains and other officers in places where Commissioner Crosey said they were not needed," he continued, "they got them. Taxpayers pay the bill, and a degraded inspector who was publicly accused by name before a member of the mayor's cabinet of having conspired with evil forces to cripple the mayor and to perpetrate lawbreaking, is shortly reinstated in his former rank."
"A lot of backers want untried men in a detective bureau. They get them. Out go men who have proved their efficiency. Their loss is so obviously serious that they are gradually restored."
"A small minority of cops want to coddle well known crooks and for, or without, alleged big bribes get the pictures of these crooks out of the rosters gallery. It matters not what the reasons given by the mayor were, whether hundreds or thousands, should be ascertained by the Alderman. Who asked to have them destroyed, what record has been kept to show that only unconvicted persons, not crooks, had this favor extended to them should also be ascertained."
The board is said to have referred to which Mr. Allen refers was formed by Commissioner Waldo on July 24,

THE MAN BEHIND THE BLIND

Watches on slippers is the latest headline fad. Good idea. Got a stiff neck picking the time on church steeples.
Had clocks on their stockings for years. Some of them are alarm clocks.
Be interesting to watch the effect on the masculine shape. Stopped shoulders will supplant the upholstered kind. Tailors will have to cut coats with a circular saw.
Going to be embarrassing on Chicago girls. Nothing short of town clocks will do in their case.
Uneasy lies the head that wears a straw hat.

I am enjoying the best of health now, but I was suffering from female troubles and painful periods, and would have backache, headache and fainting spells. If any woman would like to write to me I will gladly answer her letter and tell her what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. MATTIE CAMPBELL, Tahomah, Okla.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Aug. 30.—The weather has been generally fair throughout Canada, but a few scattered showers have occurred chiefly in Quebec and over Lake Superior.

AROUND THE CITY

Will Observe Holiday. Monday, Labor Day, the City Market will be closed all day.

Black Knights to Meet. A special meeting of Queens R. B. P. No. 42 will be held in their hall, Market building, on Saturday evening, at 8 o'clock to arrange for turning out Monday, Sept. 2nd.

Investigation in Still Private. The police investigation was continued last evening. Com. McLellan had a number of officers before him. The investigation is being conducted in private.

Youngsters Asstay. Yesterday afternoon two boys named Stewart and Norris, aged two and three years, respectively, were found wandering about Union street and taken to the police station for protection where they were called for later by Samuel Scribner and taken to their homes.

Slight Blaze. Last evening about eight o'clock a slight fire was started by a lamp in a bedroom in William Golding's house on Brussels street and an alarm was sent in from box 14. The fire was extinguished without the aid of the department and the damage done was slight.

Jail-Breaker Caught. Deputy Sheriff Kelley, of Yarmouth, arrived in the city yesterday afternoon to take a prisoner named Adelbert Rogers back to Yarmouth with him. Rogers is wanted in Yarmouth for breaking jail. He was arrested on Charlotte street Thursday afternoon by Deputy Chief Jenkins and Detective Killen.

Violet Day. One of the most pleasing features of the exhibition will be Violet Day. On Monday, the big day of the fair, girl guides will sell handsome violets, under the auspices of the Girls' Club, which is doing a worthy work for the benefit of young girls in St. John whose homes are not in the city. Buy your violets early in the day, put them in your button hole and show that you have contributed to a most deserving cause.

The Booth Memorial Service. The arrangements for the public memorial service for the deceased father of the late Sir James, General Booth, have been completed, and the service is to be held tomorrow afternoon at half past three o'clock in the Opera House. Apart from the religious aspect of the service, addresses of appreciation of the worth and work of General Booth are to be delivered by prominent clergymen and representatives of the laity in the city. The different denominations will be represented, each by one speaker. The Church of England will have as spokesman, Ven. Archdeacon Raymond who has accepted the invitation extended him to deliver an address. For the Methodist church, Rev. W. W. Brewer will be the speaker. Rev. Gordon Dickie will speak for the Presbyterians. His Honor Judge Forbes will deliver the address on behalf of the general public. It is expected that the service will be largely attended by the public.

EXTENSION OF BREAKWATER IS NOT COMING YET

Hon. F. D. Monk writes Commissioner Schofield that it Cannot be Put in Estimates this Year.

Commissioner Schofield received a letter from Hon. Mr. Monk, Minister of Public Works, yesterday, in reference to the communication sent by the city authorities to the government asking that measures be taken to have the Negro Point Breakwater extended to Partridge Island.

The Minister's letter stated that the engineers of the department estimate that it would cost $700,000 to extend the breakwater to the island and that in view of the expenditures being made in St. John by the government at the present time it would be doubtful if an estimate for the extension would be submitted to parliament at the next session.

GREATER ST. JOHN EXHIBITION OFFICIALLY OPENED TONIGHT

Lieutenant Governor Wood will Press the Button to Start the Machinery in Motion --- Expected to be Best Fair in History of City.

With the exception of the arrangement of a few lesser details, all is in readiness for the official opening of the Greater St. John Exhibition this evening at 8 o'clock. The majority of the exhibits are in place; the decorative work in connection with the displays is almost finished; the live stock poultry, and other entries have arrived on the scene; the amusement features and entertainment portion of the fair are nearly ready, and when His Honor Lieut. Gov. Wood speaks the words which will officially mark the opening of the exhibition, another and bigger St. John fair will start.

The industrial display this year will no doubt attract more than passers by, and the visitors to the fair especially any who may have been sceptical as regards St. John's present status as a manufacturing centre will witness with surprise the number of articles manufactured here. The big "made in St. John" exhibit will claim particular attention.

The Inaugural Ceremonies. At eight o'clock the inaugural ceremonies are to take place and a number of prominent residents of the province have been invited to take part in the proceedings. Upon His Honor Lieut. Gov. Josiah Wood will devolve the honor of officially declaring the fair open. Preceding this interesting announcement, addresses are to be delivered by representatives of the provincial legislature, and other prominent in the public life of the city and province. Among those who have been invited to deliver addresses at the opening ceremonies are Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries; Hon. William Hughes, Hon. W. C. H. Grimmer, acting premier; Hon. J. W. Daniel, Hon. J. E. Wilson, W. W. Hubbard, His Worship Mayor Frink, and others in the absence of A. O. Skinner, president of the Exhibition Association, who is unable through illness to attend. Vice-President C. B. Allan will preside at the opening.

While it is expected the attendance at the opening of the Exhibition will be quite large, the management is preparing for an almost overwhelming attendance on Monday, which as Labor Day is a public holiday. The Labor Day crowds at St. John fairs are invariably immense and the very attractive bill of fare this season gives ample grounds for suspecting that records will be broken.

All the attractions will be on the grounds and fulfilling their various contracts. From 7 a. m. when the big doors will be swung open, a steady stream of holiday-makers is certain to file down to the South End grounds and a merry day. The children, who are always admitted for 15 cents, are expected in especially large numbers. The outside public is sure to take advantage of the holiday and the cheap rates on all lines of travel. Special fares are in force that day on the coast.

Work on the Elevator. The Metcalfe Construction Company which has the contract for putting up the new elevator is getting things in shape for starting operations on the foundation in a few days. It has erected an office, a store room, a cement room, and six or seven other small construction buildings near the site of the elevator. In addition to the construction of four large cranes, a large power house on the site of the Beattie rocks which are now being levelled off.

Contractor Charlson, who is building the new government piers on the West Side has already completed the construction of four large cranes, of them are afloat and will be hauled in position and sunk in a short time. Another job which will shortly be started on the West Side is that of repairing the trestle in front of No. 4 wharf, which was destroyed by the fire. This work will be undertaken by the city and will take some time to finish.

PRESIDENT OF PRINTERS UNION HERE

TO STUDY CONDITIONS Addressed: Mass Meeting of Local Printers and Spoke Interestingly of Work Being Accomplished for Good of Craft.

James M. Lynch, president of the International Typographical Union, arrived in the city on the Digby boat yesterday afternoon and proceeded to the local union's hall in the Opera House, where he addressed a meeting of the local printers.

The international president spoke at some length on the progress made by the printers' organization in other parts, and said he was not satisfied with the conditions prevailing in the Maritime Provinces. He said the local unions should be more active, and try to effect a better organization of the printers. He stated that the international union would at once take up the matter of placing an organizer in the field to organize the printers in the smaller towns throughout the provinces, and urged the local members to take a hand in the work as well.

Mr. Lynch is not only a big man in labor movement; he is a big man physically, weighing about 300 pounds or so. He has been president of the International Typographical Union for some years, but this is the first time he has visited the Maritime Provinces.

Studying Conditions. In conversation with a reporter of The Standard he said his visit here had no special significance, beyond a desire to visit the local members and acquire some first hand information in regard to conditions down here. He said he had not found the movement in eastern Canada as brisk as he expected, and that he hoped to do something to stir things up a bit in the printing industry.

Fighting the White Plague. Of recent years the International Typographical Union has been in the forefront of the fight against the white plague, which is now being waged for the elimination of this curse on the white race. The union maintains a branch office at Colorado Springs and through its official journal, which reaches sixty thousand printers each month, keeps its members advised of the progress that is being made in the prevention, treatment and cure of this disease.

President Lynch will leave today for Quebec. Bell boy wanted—Royal Hotel. About Fall Clothing.
