TAKE THE PAPERS. hy don't you take the papers?
They're the life of my delight;
xcept about election time,
And then I read for spite.

Subscribe, you cannot loose a cent-Why should you be afraid For cash thus paid is money lent On interest four-fold paid;

Go, then, and take the papers,
And pay to-day, nor pay deley,
And my word it is inferred.
You'll live till you are gray:

An old newspaper friend of mine, While dying from a cough, Desired to hear the latest news, While he was dying off.

I took the paper and I read
Of some new pills in force;
He bought a box—and is he dead?
No—hearty as a horse. Tknew a printer's debtor once,
Racked with a scorching fever,
Who swore to pay her debt next day
If her distress would leave her.

Next morning she was at her work, Divested of her pain, But did forget to pay her debt, Till taken down again.

And pay the printer now !"
She slept and slept, and then awoke,
With health upon her brow.

As e'er you saw two stumps; And no phrenologist could find A difference in their bumps,

One takes the paper, and his life Is happier than a king's; His children all can read and write, And talk of men and things.

The other took no paper, and While strolling through the wood,
A tree fell down, and broke his crown,
And killed him, "very good."

flad he been reading of the news At home like neighbor Jim, I'll bet a cent that accident Would not have happened him.

Why don't you take the papers?
Nor from the printer sueak,
Because you borrow of his boy
A paper every week.

For he who takes the papers,
And pays his bills when due,
Can live in peace with God and man,
And with the printer too.

The Portage County (Ohio) Democra oin's of a citizen of that county, a Mr. Perkins now forty five years of age, which certainly is one of the most extraordinary cases we ever heard of. The Democrat says: Until he was eleven years old he enjoyed

In June of the year he was eleven, he was thrown from a horse and hurt one knee he was thrown from a horse and hurt one kneed and then going into the river to bathe, he took cold in the injured part; inflammation ensued, and the cartiages and ligaments were destroyed, and ossification took place. After this had transpired, the uninjured knee was attacked with inflammation, and finally became completely ossified. Then joint after joint passed through the ordeal until he is now in the condition mentioned. The same disease commenced at the roots of his finger and toenaits. The nails came off, and a new substance resembling nails grew out at right angles for his fingers and toes, full half an inch.

An English writer, "a Cambridge Master of Arts has recently published a work on the "Bible History of Satap," in which he main tains the eternity of Satap, attempting to addice both negative and positive proof from the Bible. We mention it here merely to show in this age of light and boasted improvement of knowledge, the errors and cast off heresies of earlier times are called back and vamped over to suit the skeptical philosophy of these times. The Dualistic doctrine of the ancient Gnostics and Manichees, furnished the germ of this modern book on Satan. Many of the modern errors which startle the world as new, may be traced to their root in the exploded notions of Oriental and Greek heathen philosopy, which the Church has long since grappled with and overcome, and are now picked up and garnished as new discoveries.

It is supposed, as rats are known to carry off coins or pieces of silver or gold, that the ring had been taken to the rat's nest, where it had gone over the neck of one of the young ones, and remained there till the animal had advanced in growth, and, curiously enough, been captured by the cat. A truthful year. third, the hewer, who is an arrist in his way,

A truthful yet poetic description of the difficulties encountered by the practical Lumberer has been given by Mr. T. C. Keefer, C. E., in one of his entertaining lectures which we append.

It may be said that one third part of the best of the timber is lost by squaring, which, under present circumstances, cannot be avoided. But in the event of the Ottawa and Huron Canal being completed great charges must take place in the lumber trade. There will then be a direct communication with the great and boundless prairies of the West, where there is such an immense demand for awed lumber, the effect of which upon this trade will be, that only such square timber of large average and red pine spars and masts as shall command very remunerative prices in the Quebec Market, will be taken there. down, as at present. Some will, doubtless, ridicate this prognostication; but time will tell; we shall refer to this important question

"The first step necessary for a lumberman is to secure his lumits, which is done by an application for a license to cut timber on rown lands at a certain stumpage. The next is a more common but less easy one in other matters, viz:—"raising the wind." If other matters, viz:—"raising the wind." If you have a little property, you will find a class of gentlemen known among lumbermen as the big bourgeois, (which is the synonyme of boss,) who will advance you, at least to the value of your property, what are called supplies, in order that you may indulge in your propensities for speculation. Your supplier gives you provisions and clothing for your men, are, ropes, augers, anchers, and cables and a little cash, for which he charges a sort of premium of insurance over ordinary profits. of premium of insurance over ordinary profi's.

When the grove is selected, the shanty is commenced, this is built of logs, nearly square, the fire being on a raised hearth, formed of clay enclosed in a single frame of logs, and placed in the middle; a longitudinal opening in the roof, over the fire, forms what serves for a chimney; a double tier of berths all round the interior gives sleeping accommodations; a wooden crane renewed when burnt through, swings over the fire and suspends the family pot, tea and bake kettle. The fire, like that of a smelting furuace, is oever allowed to go out, and the tea kettle swings perpetually over it.

Everything being prepared, the work of felling the trees is commenced. White pine is found in groves, many of the trees of which are unsound, although none but a connoreur would detect this failing; the lumbermen, however, know the imposters by certain suspicious knots, as readily as a detective discovers a member of the swell mob, and are careful not to waste their strength on such gay deceivers. The best white pine is obtained on undulating ground, from isolated trees intermixed with other tumber. Red pine, on the contrary, grows in unmixed groves, on level plains of great extent; and I know of no more majestic or impressive spectacles in nature than one of those interminable groves of what is often, but improperly called to Norway" pine. A level sandy, rocky plain, clean as a well kept park, stretches out before, belind and around you, out of which stousands of smooth, straight, reddish, column shoot up forty to fifty feet in height, before a leaf or branch is seen.

as if planed.

In equaring large trees much of the finest timber is blocked off by the scorer and last.

As a track cannot be made to each tree which has been cut, the streks of timber are drawn to the main road; this is called straightening out,"—and as horses are too restive for such work it is done by oxen.—

These patient, useful brut s will wind between the trees up to their shoulders in snow, almost twisting their tai's and necks off in obedience to the yells of their drivers.

The timber is drawn out upon the ice, the melting of which with that of the surrounding snow, in March and April, swells the volume of the stream sufficiently to float it into the Ottawa, provided the tide be taken at the flood. On the breaking up of the ice great activity is displayed, and additional force is required for the start and the drive. If the stream in which the timber is hauled out is not navigable for cribs, "driving" is reserted not navigable for cribs, "driving" is resorted to—the loose sticks with the 'floats' and traverses' for rafting it are allowed to float traverses' for rafting it are allowed to float down, followed by the lumbermen in canors and along the shore—whose duty it is to bring up the stragglers which may be laivering in an eddy, grounded on a shool, or have been caught by an overhapping branch.—When crib navigation is reached, a boom is rapidly thrown across the stream, by whi hall the tumber is a opped and formed into cribs containing about twenty pieces each. These containing about twenty pieces each. These are formed by placing two round logs, called 'floats,' about twenty four feet apart, and bringing the squared tumber between them; across the whole, four or five rather large sized poles called 'traverses" are laid and puned at each end to the floats. The square timat each end to the floats. The square timbers are thus enclosed and prevented from aprending, without being depreciated by auger holes or tree-nails. They are not, however, prevented from moving backward or forward and thus escaping. To secure this, four heavy stacks called loading timbers—generally those which are too crooked to fit well between the floats—are dragged on top of the traverses and by their weight sink the floating timbers lower in the water; the friction thus cleated against the under side of the traverses (arising from the floating of the timbers which are in the water) effectually prevents the latter from moving backward or forward, while the loading timbers are fairly forward, while the loading timbers are fairly shipped high and dry and have no tendency to move. In this simple manner, without any injury being done to the manufactured article corry all the provisions and many men in safety down any pavigable rapid or crib slide.

On many of the tributaries large lakes many miles in length and width must be passed.

where this occur all the timber must be formed into a raft containing generally about fity cribs. The cribs are lasted together by neans of 'withe;' these are formed by taking means of 'withs;' these are formed by taking young birchen trees about the size of whip talks and festening their builts firmly, by means of wedges, into an auger hole bored into a stump or fallen tree, then commencing at the points (just as a batcher makes a screw propeller of an ox's tail, when urging him into the slaughter house) until the whole of the fibre is separated and the twig becomes as liant as a rope. These withs possess great plant as a rope. These withs possess great strength—are easily replaced—and save the cost and transport of ropes or chains. The raft being ready, all bands, with provisions, cook and cookery, are embarked—the anchor and cable are shipped, and if the wind is fair, sail is set. If the wind is foul, patience and ork are required; if it be calm, ways some current through every lake and this wall bring the raft through; but if a head or side windisprings up when fairly out in the lake, the anchor must be thrown, else the raft would be blown ashore, or into some bay where it would be imprisoned for weeks.—
When the lake is crossed, perhaps the character of its outlet is such that the raft must be before an into small sticks and the deliver. be broken up into single sticks, and the 'drive' be again resorted to, until other points are reached where the boom, the floats, and traverses, withs, sails, and anchors are successively required. The Ottawa, from Lake Temiskeemang to its mouth, is a crib pavigation, but in this distance it is necessary to dissolve the ratt into cribs about a dozen times in order to rait into cribs about a dozen times in order to run the different rapids and slides.

If the spring is cold and backward the snows melt gradually, and the water steals away without filling the streams sufficiently o bring out the timber, "sticking" as it is called, unless heavy raise come to the rescue; but even these may not occur un'il after the timber has been abandoned, and their effect may be over before it can again be reached. Additional force is required to bring out the timber—over and above those engaged in making it—and if this is not on the ground when the streams open, the golden opportu-nity is lost; and if brought on too early, the pork and tea must suffer. The price in Quemarket. The consequences is there is very little sympathy among lumbermen, although necessity compels them often to "drive" together. It is the interest of each that all other timber but his own should be left behind, other timber but his own should be left behind, 'n "driving," the greenhorms, as at a Court Martial, are first put forward; from sheer poiteness, it is to be presumed, they are allowed to 'put through' the booms first,—their timber consequently leads the van, it goes down, fil's all the eddies, occupies all the shoals, and the next timber, belonging to the old birds, having no place to lotter in, keeps the channel through, and though last to start comes out the first.

One of the disasters to which lumbermen are subjected in driving their timber, and one which induces them to go to great expense a forming a crib navigation where at can be obtained, is what is called a figure." [1 supbecause it is made with corrents and rery sticky. J When the 'driving' cannot be

THE HOUSE. For several days the House has been chiefy occupied in the war of words which is usually waged during the debate on the answer to the speech from the throne. The ministry are, no doubt, employing every means in their power to influence cess will best appear in the sequel. Although avowedly anxious to maintain the Queen's decision, the cloven foot of selfishness is evident under the mask of loyalty; and it is but to evident, from the history of this question, that any course which would be most likely to perpetuate their tenure of office would be the one which would meet their approbation. On the other hand, what shall we say of the motives which actuate the Upper Canadian portion of a ministry which would fix the Seat of government at Montreal instead of at Ottawa,-as any person who has carefully observed the position assumed by the Brown Dorion administration, will be satisfied wa and is the course they are pledged to pursue Are they wholly disinterested in their desire to drive the seat of government out of the Up per Province. "CLAYTON WAREHOUSE." the proprietor has been induced to order a FRESH SUPPLY of New and Seasonable Goods to meet the wants of his numerous customers, and which are now being opened up for sale, consisting of Dry Goods, Fresh Teas, Tobaccoes, Salt, Sugars and all kinds of chince Family Groceries of the very best

As regards his prices, sufficient evidence adduced from the amount of Goods which he has sold during the last two months to prove that his prices are as low if not lower than any other establishment in this locality, and is therefore an object for all who wish to purchase economically to give him a call.

In order to keep his establishment in working order, he would politely suggest to those of his customers who have, either those of his customers who have, either through negligence or procrastination, omitted "paying up" their accounts, that unless immediately attended to, they will be handed over to proper authorities for collection, as the profits he has on his Goods do not afford to paya collector. Parties who neglect this, need not be surprised at being refused Goods until their old accounts are "squared up."

a plain Exposition of the principles and Practice of Public Debate. By J. McEligott, L. L. D. This book presents, within the compass of 325 pages, a mass of information respecting debates and debators, not to be found between the covers of any other single volume. It cerefully, comprehensively, and yet briefly marks out the qualificatious essential to a good debate, and points out the best mode of acquiring them.

It indicates the conditions on which skill to the extemporaneous use of language is to be gained, and proved it to be mainly the result of judicious study and practice.

It furnishes a full course of instruction in the rules of Parliamentary practice, grounded on the best authorities, and suited admirably to the use of unpractised debaters.

It shows the advantage of well-conducted Debating Societies, and the mode of managing debateable questions in them; thereby discovering to the young debater the true end of logical disputation, and the true mode of ecuring it.

It illustrates the practical working of an orderly debate, by giving debates in full on interesting questions, and so making the ransaction to assume a sort of dramatic form It furnishes Debates in Outline, to be filled

The unprecedented success which has crowned the efforts of this Company from the commencement, and the unlimited confidence accorded in by the public in the vicinity of its head quarters, induce the Directors to extend its operations to all parts of Canada, confident of like results in proportion as the equitable plans of this institution may become known.

Support a home Office—Build up your own Institutions: Canada is old, rich, and extensive enough to support its own Insurance Companies, and thus keep within the Province a large amount of Capital which otherwise aids in building up Foreign Offices usually conducted under a system of expensive management, and yet paying their stockholders large dividends.

The following Rules may be taken as the basis of the Company's operations:—

By Act of Parliament—18 Vic., cap. 120—no member of the Company is table for any sum beyond the amount of his premium.

Any difference arising between the assured and the Company shall be settled by arbitration in the County where the loss shall have occurred. County where the loss shall have occurred.

On insurance on any contiguous property liable to be burned by one and the same fire will be taken to a larger amount than two thousand five hundred dollars, unless at the discretion of the Directors.

City, Town, Village, and Personal Property will be insured for a term not longer than one year, nor less than one month, and the whole premium in such cases must be paid in cash.

Insurers for three consecutive years, who shall not themselves have mide a claim, shall be entitled to a share of the profits which may have accrued, after first providing a saitable reserve fund. Their shares of profits to be deducted from the next subsequent premiums.

Farm preperty and isolated dwellings will be insured for a term not longer than three years. The premium will be paid by note, one third only of which will be required in cash as part Payment thereof; the balance, or any part thereof, to be paid only when required to meet losses.

and health.

In cases of Scrofula, Ulcera, Scurvey or Eraptions of the skin, the operation of the Lafe Medicines is truly astonishing, often removing in a few days every vestige of these loathesome diseases by their puritying effects on the blood. Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Piles and in short most all diseases, soon yield to their curative properties. No family should be without them, as by their timely use much suffering and expense may be saved. fering and expense may be saved.
