Assails High School Dance as Menace to Youth

PASTOR CLAIMS TERPSICHOEAN ART HARMFUL

Rev. S. Judson Kelly Declares It Ruins Youth "Morally and Physically."

OPINIONS ARE DIVIDED

Rev. W. R. McIntosh Declines To Feel "In Rage About It."

That dancing in high schools "not very far from London" has ruined many young people morally and physically, was the startling declaration of Rev. S. Judson Kelly of the Colborne Street Methodist Church at a meeting of the Ministerial Alliance on Monday morning.

However, the session proved to be a "house divided," as Rev. W. R. McIntosh, pastor of King Street Presbyterian Church, championed the terpsichorean art, stating that there are more things undermining the morals of civilization than "the rhythmic movement of young people."

The discussion emanated from the meeting, when a member of the Ministerial Alliance introduced a rumor that the new Great War Memorial High School is to be formally opened with a dance. Rev. S. Judson Kelly, Rev. W. R. McIntosh and Rev. A. E. M. Thomson were appointed to investigate this rumor.

Mr. Kelly did not "beat about the bush" on the subject of dancing in schools, very frankly placing his stamp of disapproval on such practice. At this point he exploded the startling statement that many young people have been ruined morally and physically, with their downfall attributed to dancing in high schools.

Questioned by Rev. T. S. Roy of Talbot Street Baptist Church as to whether he referred to dancing in high schools of London, Mr. Kelly countered, saying: "No. We haven't a high school in London, but the cases to which I do refer took place not far from London."

Not Excited About It. "I don't feel in a rage about it at all," said Rev. W. R. McIntosh, which statement somewhat dampened Mr. Kelly's assertion. "There are more things in London which are undermining the morals and honey-combing our civilization than the rhythmic movement of young people."

In my ministry in East London, I have seen no evil effects which could be attributed to the dance any more than to any other part of present every-day life."

Mr. McIntosh qualified his remarks by announcing that he is not opposed to reasonable social functions of any type.

"At any rate," he continued, "the higher institutions of learning are becoming the most successful sort of matrimonial bureaux. We are a little too inclined to conduct an indefinite sort of investigation which is easy to swing, rather than to attack specific individuals."

Committee Appointed. Rev. S. Judson Kelly, Rev. W. R. McIntosh, Rev. T. D. McCullough, Rev. John Agnew, Rev. L. W. Reid, and Rev. John Currie were appointed to act as a committee to divide the city into districts for relief purposes.

Rev. Mr. Phillip of the Hamilton Tabernacle, who refused a $20,000 appointment in Tremont Temple, the largest Baptist church in Boston, was the speaker of the morning.

"The greatest need of the ministry at the present time, Mr. Phillip began, is for men sent from God." A minister must never belittle his office, but rather magnify it and never lose sight of the fact that he is the mediator between man and God," Mr. Phillip pointed out that the great secret of Christ's ministry was contained in the words, "He touched him."

The minister who was in direct personal contact with his people, and was able to "touch them" in their adversity had discovered the secret of saving souls. This power to move men was not a human talent but a divine gift, and placed upon those to whom God gave it, the responsibility of the ministry.

Needs Definite Aim. A minister must have a definite objective, that of seeking the lost and saving souls. He must not separate Turn to Page 9, Column 1.

EXPECT DELAY IN TAKING VOTE IN GT. BRITAIN

Political Writers Believe the Election May Be Postponed Until May.

PREMIER FAVORS WAITING

Decides After Cabinet Conference February Would Be Unfavorable Time.

London, England, Jan. 16.—The British political system, especially the question as to when the government is going to call a general election, has again been brought into prominence through the return from France of Prime Minister Lloyd George and the removal from the foreground of the Irish situation.

There is a fairly general opinion among the political writers in this morning's newspapers that the election, which recently was foreshadowed for February, would not occur then, and probably would not be held before May at the earliest. It is said that Mr. Lloyd George discussed the matter informally with some of his colleagues last evening, when he became convinced that an early election was undesirable.

Among the reasons supposed to have brought about this decision are the strong opposition of the Unionists to such a step, and the collapse of the Cannes conference, from which Mr. Lloyd George brings nothing to offer the electorate except the decision to call an international economic conference at Genoa. The position of Ireland is also regarded as placing a great obstacle in the way of an early appeal to the country.

The possibility is being debated of an early convening of parliament for the special purpose of passing legislation necessary for complete establishment of the new government of Ireland, in which case the "Times" suggests the election immediately would follow. Other reports ignore this, assuming that parliament will not assemble until the time already arranged, Jan. 30, when it will take up the Irish legislation, which it is believed will be one of the first before an election could satisfactorily be held.

The current week will be one of great political activity, both the Unionists and the Liberals having important meetings scheduled. Mr. Lloyd George is to speak before the "Constitution" convention on Saturday, when it is supposed, if nothing previously transpires regarding the date of the election, he will make a definite announcement in this connection.

LONDON PASTOR RESIGNS TO GO TO EDMONTON

Rev. A. C. Bingham of Egerton Baptist Church Accepts Call.

REGRETS TO LEAVE CITY

Congregation Is Surprised To Receive Announcement At Sunday Morning Service.

The congregation of the Egerton Street Baptist Church were greatly surprised at the conclusion of the morning service Sunday when Rev. A. C. Bingham, pastor, announced that he had tendered his resignation to the deacons of the church, and that it had been accepted.

Rev. Bingham has accepted the call to the McDonald Memorial Church, at Edmonton, Alberta. For the past two years the members of that church have been very insistent that Rev. Mr. Bingham accept the charge. Rev. Mr. Bingham believed, however, that he was obliged to stay in London until the Egerton Street Baptist Church had been re-opened, after having been badly damaged by fire.

While Rev. Mr. Bingham was in Edmonton last April, a deputation from the McDonald church waited on him and again pressed him to accept the call.

Wires Acceptance. Rev. Bingham declined, but since members of the church have been in constant communication with him, and at last the call of the west has become too strong for him, and he has wired his acceptance.

Rev. Bingham has had charge of the Egerton Street Baptist Church for more than five years. That he was well liked by his congregation can easily be judged by the large congregation of which the church boasts. Rev. Bingham was always a willing worker. After the fire he organized a band of men from the congregation, and with himself as leader, they worked nights and holidays in cleaning up the debris, so that too much of the church funds would not be spent in having the church repaired.

Regrets To Leave. "I have become endeared to my congregation and I am sorry to leave them, but the call of the west has become too strong," stated Rev. Bingham, when interviewed Sunday. Rev. Bingham, prior to coming to London had charge of a church in Petrolia for more than four years. That was his first charge after leaving the McMaster University of Toronto, where he graduated. The McDonald Church at Edmonton, which Rev. Mr. Bingham has assumed charge, on February 20, has been without a pastor for the past two years.

START PRINCESS FUND IN LONDON

Subscriptions are beginning to drift in for the Princess Mary wedding fund, which is to be used to endow a room in the War Memorial Children's Hospital.

It was only the end of last week that announcement was made public that Britain's gracious princess, whose marriage to Viscount Lascelles takes place in February, had called her consent to the War Memorial Hospital, committed to have a room in the children's hospital endowed as a wedding gift to her.

Two young high school girls, who read about the gift and the purpose it will serve, promptly decided to give up their allowance for last week, $1 each, for the good cause.

While it is intended to give a chance to everyone interested to share in the Princess Mary wedding gift fund, evidently the Marys feel a special obligation devolves upon them to make it a success. In any case, they have gallantly taken the lead in starting the ball rolling. The following subscriptions are acknowledged to date by the committee: Mary Margaret Smith, London, $2; Alice Coffey, St. Thomas, $1; J. Mary Coffey, St. Thomas, $1; Mary Olive, St. Thomas, $1; M. T. Sherriden, London, 50 cents; Mary Smith, London, 25 cents; Mary McCallum, London, $1; C. Mary McCallum, London, $1; Mary Niven, $5; Mary Elizabeth, 25 cents; Mary Grant, $2; Mrs. Florence Letitia Mary, $1. Total, $18.

New York, Jan. 16.—The life of United States Postmaster-General W. H. Hayes will be insured for $2,000,000 when he resigns his cabinet post to head the National Moving concern. It was announced yesterday. The policy will be made payable in event of his death to the reorganized National Association of Motion Pictures. The amount will be distributed among several companies.

May Be Future Queen of England!

LADY RACHEL CAVENDISH.

LONDON, England, Jan. 16.—It was officially announced today that Princess Mary's bridesmaids will be Princess Mary and Lady Rachel Cavendish, Lady Mary Thynne, Lady Victoria Cambridge, Lady Doris Gordon-Lennox, Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, Lady Diana Bridgeman and Lady May Cambridge. Lady Rachel Cavendish is a daughter of the Duke of Devonshire, who not so long ago was governor-general of Canada. Her father is one of the largest landowners in England. She is an intimate friend of Princess Mary, and the king and queen seem very fond of her, and it is rumored that her engagement to the Prince of Wales will be announced on his return from India.

RAID SERGEANTS' MESS IN OTTAWA

Morality Squad Seize Liquor in Princess Louise Dragoon Guards' Canteen.

Ottawa, Jan. 16.—Descending suddenly on the sergeants' mess of the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards on the C. A. C. Building Saturday night, the city morality squad seized all the beer in stock and took the names of a number of N. C. O.'s drinking at the time. The raid was altogether unexpected, and the sergeants strongly resented the invasion, declaring that the city authorities had no jurisdiction over a military canteen.

The case is likely to be made a test case. Inspector Tom McLaughlin, who ordered the raid, stated that military canteens or other places were not allowed to sell liquor or real beer except by permission from the attorney-general. No permits had been granted in Ottawa. He stated that he had warned the P. L. D. G. authorities against continuing the canteen, but that his warnings had been ignored. He further stated that he had been informed that others besides members of the unit were allowed to use the canteen. Summonses will be issued against the offending parties, including, it is said, some of the officers of the regiment.

TROOPS PROTECT KENTUCKY COURT

Steve Martin, Alleged Feudist, Placed On Trial On Murder Charge.

Manchester, Ky., Jan. 16.—Armed with rifles and two machine guns, 50 state guards under command of Major James K. Dillon, this morning went on duty at the Clay County courthouse, where circuit court will convene for the trial of Steve Martin, alleged feudist, charged with the murder of Wood Burge.

Troops were ordered here following the circulation of reports that the Martins and Philipps, relatives of the defendant, were planning to march here a hundred strong to prevent the conviction of Steve Martin, "even if they have to blow up the courthouse." Members of the Burge clan also are planning to attend the trial in large numbers, it is said.

The Martin-Burge feud was revived on Christmas Day, when three men were killed and several injured in a battle in which the bodies of the slain were allowed to remain lying on the ground for hours because their kinsmen were afraid to attempt to move them.

JUDGE ORDERS WILSON TO PAY DOUGLAS COSTS

Ex-Alderman in Ward Two Informed of Ruling by Court.

COSTS MAY GO HIGHER

Alderman Douglas Declares He Will Take Further Action If Necessary.

Ex-Ald. W. A. Wilson apparently must pay the cost of Ald. L. Douglas's lawyer, who looked after the latter's interests at the recount of the votes, cast in the aldermanic contest in Ward 2, according to a ruling handed down by Judge Macbeth, Monday morning.

Dr. Douglas presented a copy of the order to City Clerk Baker and received the cheque, which Mr. Wilson had deposited with the clerk.

This cheque for $25 was given to the clerk with the application for a recount.

Immediately on receiving the cheque, Dr. Douglas went to the London Loan Company, on which it was drawn, and presented it for payment. It was refused. The Loan Company endorsed on the back of the cheque that payment was refused on the order of W. A. Wilson.

Mr. Douglas was entitled to have the cheque, as shown by the order of the judge, which directed the clerk to turn over to Dr. Douglas the $25 deposited.

"Mr. Wilson has got to pay that fee," said Ald. Douglas. "The recount was not of my seeking and there is no reason why I should have to foot the bill."

Asked what he intended to do, he said that he would go immediately to his lawyer and hand him the cheque, with instructions to take any action necessary.

It is claimed that Dr. Douglas's lawyer, Mr. F. Perrin, has already written to Mr. Wilson, informing him of the order of the judge, and suggesting that he comply.

Mr. Wilson pointed out some time ago that the cheque, when handed to the clerk, was marked to secure an election recount.

If Mr. Wilson has to pay the $25, in compliance with Judge Macbeth's order, the recount, which indicated he was defeated by 12, instead of nine votes, will have proven fairly costly.

Mr. Wilson's own bill of costs is believed to total $18.90, and this amount, plus $25, will make the total $43.90.

If there is further court action before the case is settled, the total will of course go higher.

STUDENTS LISTED IN NEW DIRECTORY

Western University Organizations Issue Publication.

Through the efforts of the Students' Council of the Art College, and the Hippocratic Society of the Medical School, the first directory of the faculty and students at Western University will make its appearance at that institution this week. This publication includes the name and address of every student and professor at Western University, with phone numbers, and the particular teaching or student activity of each respectively.

All officers, in student bodies and classes, are listed as such in the directory, which enables the student to readily obtain any desired information concerning his classmates, and to get in touch with them without the necessity of searching in vain through other directories or similar literature.

Considerable difficulty has been experienced in preparing this directory, owing to the fact that it is the first in the history of Western University, but the committee in charge announce that with the directory issued every year, that of 1923 and future issues will present comparatively few obstacles in their preparation.

The co-operation of students and faculty of Western was obtained in drafting the initial directory, and while a small charge is to be made for it, the Hippocratic Society of the Medical School has decided to provide every "Med" with a copy, funds for same being covered by a blanket fee assessed annually for such purposes.

Students at Western have been provided with the university colors of purple and gold by the Western University Athletic Association with the request that they wear them daily on hats or coats as a tribute to their alma mater.

RANEY PROBES SARNIA POLICE COURT TRIALS

Announces Browbeating of Crown Witnesses Will Not Be Permitted.

DECORUM TO BE KEPT

Attorney-General Intimates Magistrates Must Maintain Order or Quit.

Toronto, Jan. 16.—Investigation being made by Attorney-General W. E. Raney into police court procedure during the recent hearing of the Holling liquor case, in Sarnia, heralds a general checking up on police court decorum and of insistence on fair and courteous treatment to witnesses both for the crown and for the defence.

Very emphatically Attorney-General Raney stated the department's view-point on the subject last night. Inquiry as to the correct facts, he said, would be taken wherever the circumstances were deemed to warrant it. Newspaper reports of both cases under investigation indicated overcrowding of the courtrooms, browbeating of witnesses and disorder in court.

Must Protect Witnesses. "Magistrates must understand," said Hon. Mr. Raney last night, "that they have got to sit up and protect witnesses and preserve decorum in their courts. A magistrate who is not able to dominate his court is not fit to be a magistrate. On the other point, there has been too much of incessant bullying and browbeating in liquor cases. A rigid cross examination is quite within the proprieties, but calling a witness a criminal and endeavoring to terrorize him is not. The crown will not permit witnesses to be insulted and browbeaten beyond fair limits."

During the hearing of the Holling liquor case in Sarnia, Rev. Elmer Harding, of the Wilkesport Methodist Church, is alleged by the Sarnia press to have been taxed by defence counsel, with the assistance he gave the county constable, and in connection with an admission he made that in some previous circumstances he had carried a revolver.

Department Takes Stand. The department's position is that if it is seriously intended to accuse the clergyman of crime, the accused must be doing so openly, and he should not, without conviction, be referred to as a criminal in open court.

The case under investigation in eastern Ontario is said to present even more serious aspects. Information, for which confirmation is now being sought is that the crowded police court was so hostile to the crown witnesses that the crown attorney announced the withdrawal of several additional liquor cases on the calendar. It is alleged in this connection that there was an effort to terrorize the witnesses.

BULLOCK CASE TO BE HANDLED IN USUAL WAY

Liberal Premier Not To Be Influenced by Church's Representatives.

EXTRADITION IS ASKED

Alleged Carolina Murderer's Examination To Be Proceeded With Soon.

Special to London Advertiser. Ottawa, Jan. 16.—The Liberal government, in its dealings with Matthew Bullock, the negro held at Hamilton, will not be influenced by alleged threats received by Premier King personally, and by immigration department officials, from Thomas Church, Conservative M. P. for North Toronto, to the effect that if the detained man is deported and thereafter lynched in his own country, the United States, Mr. Church will hold Mr. King and his government responsible on the floor of the house.

A telegram similar to that sent the premier was also dispatched by the North Toronto member to Inspector David Reynolds, who has charge of the case.

The department will proceed in the usual time-honored method with regards to Bullock. A board of inquiry under Inspector Reynolds will meet at Hamilton to consider the legality of the presence of Bullock in Canada.

If Bullock is legally present as an immigrant he will remain, and it will be for the United States authorities, if they want the detained man, to move for his extradition.

If Bullock is found to be in the country in violation of the immigration laws he will be deported in the usual manner, though steps may be taken to see that he is handed over to the authorities on his arrival at the boundary.

Inquiry will be held at once, and in the meantime Bullock will be held in detention. There is a deep suspicion here that Mr. Church, in his championship of the detained man, is not oblivious of the fact that there are federal by-elections pending in Kent and Essex, where there is a heavy colored vote.

Nevertheless Bullock's case will be dealt with strictly on its merits without regard to political consequences.

Bullock is alleged to be charged with inciting race riots in United States.

Procedure in Case Not Yet Decided

Hamilton, Jan. 16.—Although until the arrival of the officers from Norlina, North Carolina, takes place, the exact procedure, which will be taken to get Matthew Bullock out of the country is not clear, there is every possibility the authorities from the United States will be compelled to depend on the Canadian immigration laws, and the fact that nine months ago Bullock entered the country illegally, which is apparently undisputed by those who are behind the negro. A circumstance which lends color to the theory that the immigration law will be invoked is the fact that on Saturday immigration inspector James Reynolds left for Ottawa to receive special instructions from the immigration department there with reference to the case.

Rev. J. D. Howell, pastor of the A. M. E. Church, John Street, north, has a copy of the Norlina Herald, which contains headlines giving the details of the race riots there on January 23, 1921; this paper gives a list of killed and wounded. The only killed was Plummer Bullock, brother of the prisoner held here, and a colored man, named Williams. Several whites were injured, one named Raby Taylor, being shot three times.

DISCUSS MANY PROBLEMS OF RURAL SCHOOL

Trustees of East Middlesex Hear Addresses by Leading Educators.

PLAN UNION CONVENTION

Will Meet With Other County Associations During February.

An unusually large attendance, at the annual meeting of the Trustees' Association of East Middlesex, in the court house building, London, Saturday afternoon, evinced, in the opinion of the executive officers, who commented on it at the gathering, a general stimulation of interest, prevailing in Middlesex County at the present time, in matters and problems of the rural school.

Both the president of the association, F. G. Wade, and the secretary, Miss Ethel Robson, took occasion to congratulate the association for the manner in which the trustees were arousing farmers to look more closely at the problems of the rural school. Each officer said that such interest gave a vision of great things in education, for the farming districts in the future.

Three speakers, Mr. Ferguson of Simcoe school; Professor Dearness, principal of the London Normal School, and Mr. McPherson, secretary of the Elgin County Trustees' Association, addressed the trustees.

Outlines Recent Act.

Mr. Ferguson outlined the principal clauses of the adolescent act, part of which is in effect now, and part of which will come into effect in September, 1922, and September, 1923, he said.

As the act affected rural schools, it would mean the making of provision either by continuation schools or otherwise, for the education of the children until they reached the age of 16. Mr. Ferguson explained home permits, however, could be obtained under certain conditions.

Mr. Ferguson submitted the stipulations under which the home permits could be obtained.

At the conclusion of each speech the meeting was thrown open for discussion, and each speaker answered questions from the trustees. The enthusiasm of the meeting was amply revealed at these points, each addressing being the provocation for many questions.

Prof. Dearness Speaks.

Professor Dearness' topic was "Education Through Self-Activity." By self-activity he meant, he said, the co-ordinating of home chores, such as were done on the farm, and school work. The generation, who had been educated in the little "red schoolhouse," some of whom were the great men and women of today, had rounded out their education by the work at home. Farm chores had been simplified, and children were often not required to chore on the modern farm, but "an ideal education must give something in the self-activity, which came of the necessities of former days," said Professor Dearness, and then urged the co-operation of the parents, trustees and teachers to this end.

Mr. McPherson told of his visit as a member of a party of five trustees, to three continued schools in Ontario, and urged for the carrying out of the adolescent act, the larger school unit, which gives the possibility of supervised play and secondary education.

New Officers Elected.

Officers selected for the coming year by the association are as follows: F. G. Wade, London, president; E. Robson, Denfield, secretary; directors, F. L. Scott and B. Powell, London Township; E. Rogers and George Hutchinson, Dorchester Township; J. Gurley and James Carruthers, Nissouri Township; John Crinklow and Thomas Nickleborough, Westminster Township; delegate to the Toronto convention, Miss Ethel Robson.

The Trustees' Association will hold a convention of the county, it was decided, some time in February.

WIFE OF LEADER OF ALBERTA DIES

EDMONTON, Jan. 15.—Mrs. Herbert Greenfield, wife of Premier Greenfield, died at the General Hospital yesterday morning, after a short illness. She failed to rally from the shock of an operation Friday.

When the end came, Mr. Greenfield and two sons, Arnold and Frank, were at the bedside, for they had remained at the hospital within call all night. It was at 8:30 o'clock Friday morning that it was found necessary to operate upon Mrs. Greenfield. At 10 o'clock she started to sink, and it was apparent that her condition was becoming extremely grave. A transfusion of blood was given at 5:30, and at midnight it was hoped that the patient might rally. She kept sinking despite physicians' efforts, although there were faint hopes at times that she would subjugate the effects of the operation.

Mrs. Greenfield was born in Adelaide Township, county of Middlesex, Ont., Dec. 29, 1871. She was the eldest daughter of the late Samuel Harris and Mary J. Harris of Strathroy, Ont. On February 28, 1900, she was married to Herbert Greenfield at the old home in Adelaide Township. The family moved to West Lock, Alta., in 1906.

LADY A. WHITNEY DIES IN TORONTO

TORONTO, Jan. 15.—Lady Whitney, widow of the late Sir James Whitney, died at her home, 113 St. George street, early Saturday morning after an illness of three weeks. She had suffered at first from erysipelas, but general septicemia set in and baffled the efforts of her medical attendants.

Lady Alice Whitney, who was 77 years of age, was the third daughter of the late William H. Park of Cornwall. After her marriage to Mr. Whitney she lived in Morrisburg until the call to the premiership of Ontario brought them to Toronto.

During the years her husband held the highest position in the gift of the people of the province, Lady Whitney led a quiet domestic existence, and though when occasion demanded she took part in formal functions, society activities had little charm for her. Since the death of Sir James, she continued at the family home on St. George street, with her daughter, Miss Nora Whitney, and her two grandchildren "Pat" and Susan Thompson. She is also survived by a son, Garnet Whitney, manager of the Molsons Bank at Morrisburg.

MANY TORONTO WIVES DESERTED

TORONTO, Jan. 15.—Officials at the House of Industry calculate that fully eleven per cent of the families seeking aid in obtaining relief are cases where the husband has deserted his wife.

"Of the 1,502 families aided last year," said Superintendent Arthur Laughlin, "there were 178 cases of wife desertion."

Of the 4,000 families on the roll this year the same ratio is found. Wife desertion is becoming more noticeable from year to year, all public departments are forced to admit.

In a list of 364 families under the care of the public welfare department of the city for medical attention, there are 41 that have been deserted by the father and only two by the mother.

WILL DECIDE ON KING OPPOSITION

TORONTO, Jan. 15.—The Conservative forces in North York have passed up J. A. M. Armstrong's proposition of deciding whether to enter the lists in the North York by-election against Premier W. L. Mackenzie King or not.

The committee appointed by the Conservative convention last Wednesday at Newmarket, held a three-hour session on Saturday afternoon without coming to a decision on the question of entering a candidate, and it was finally decided to leave the matter entirely to the late member. If he decides to run it is announced the Conservative party will give him full support.

Official nominations will be held on Thursday, Jan. 19, and the polling, if an election is necessary, will take place on Feb. 2. The Progressives have decided not to run a candidate.

CHARGES DENIED BY STEFANSON

BUFFALO, N.Y., Jan. 15.—Charges into which several members of Vilhjalmar Stefansson's 1913-14 expedition into the Arctic have demanded investigation by the Canadian government, which financed the expedition, were denied in a statement issued yesterday by Stefansson.

Mr. Stefansson said that he had been shown a dispatch relative to the Dominion government being asked to investigate charges regarding the 1913-14 Canadian Arctic expedition.

When he came south in 1918, said Mr. Stefansson, charges were being circulated, and he at that time suggested a formal investigation, and had since reiterated the suggestion. He denied that members of the expedition were forbidden to write letters. He knew nothing about the financial arrangements, he said.

Have Big Program Planned For Fourth Annual Meeting On Jan. 19.

Western Ontario Boards of Trade will hold their fourth annual meeting in the Yellow Lantern Tea Room, Dundas street, Woodstock, Jan. 19 and 20.

At the first session will be considered the resolution passed by the London Chamber of Commerce that a special committee appointed by the president wait upon the premier and the attorney-general of the province to urge that legislation for the protection of investors be enacted at the next session of the Legislature.

It was deemed necessary that a request for legislation regulating the sale of speculative corporation stock should be strongly backed by public opinion, and accompanied by evidence indicating the limitations of existing statutes.

A resolution of similar character passed by the Border City Chamber of Commerce, Windsor, will come under consideration.

In 41 out of 45 states of the Union legislation exists for the proper protection of investors against unscrupulous or otherwise undesirable stock selling propositions, and in the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta similar legislation is now operating to the great advantage of the public.

Would Amend Act.

The existing companies' act of the Dominion of Canada, it was stated, does not adequately provide for the fullest measure of reasonable protection of investors against stock-selling propositions of undesirable character.

The exigencies of these times, it was brought out, most urgently call for a stoppage of the dire economic leakage through these undesirable investments. That the leakage can be most materially reduced and even prevented altogether through the medium of the Legislature, will be emphasized.

Representatives of the Guelph Chamber of Commerce will introduce discussion regarding postal service between United States and Canada, with the purpose of improving service in the following matters: Reciprocal special delivery service; direct relations between postmasters in Canada and the United States in connection with registry tracers and general communications; increase in registry indemnity, the maximum is now $9.65; direct relations with paying offices in manner of handling the money order business; increase in the maximum weight for parcel post (it is now four pounds six ounces, as against 22 pounds to Mexico, and 20 pounds or over with most European countries); closer working agreement between railroad postal offices in the United States and Canada.

Would Bar Carnivals.

Regarding the weekly shows of the traveling carnival type shown throughout Canada, which bring in to the Dominion undesirable followers, the Brantford Chamber of Commerce will request that necessary action be taken by the Dominion government to forbid the showing in Canada of questionable amusement organs and carnivals of innuity and vice, of which the Dominion had a surfeit during the summer of 1921, and which made for weeks of immense pollution influence from the United States being focused upon and intensified in Canadian communities.

It is pointed out by the Brantford Chamber of Commerce that these undesirable shows emanating largely from the United States, take from the Dominion a large amount of money without giving a proper return, thereby having a serious influence on trade and generally necessitating in many instances, through citizens spending their money at these places of questionable amusement, the carrying by merchants of a vastly larger amount of credit than should be necessary.

A resolution passed by the Brantford Chamber of Commerce regarding unemployment will be considered. The general prevalence of unemployment makes it a national question which requires national treatment. The amelioration of the condition should be sought along lines of co-operation of all governments and classes of the people, including the Dominion government, provincial governments, municipal governments, employers of labor and labor itself.

Deplore Wide Discord.

Organization to achieve efficient and intelligent co-operation should be municipal, provincial and national—each separate body being in affiliation with the others, and all working in harmony, and together developing a national plan on a scale commensurate with the need.

At the afternoon session of Friday, Jan. 20, following luncheon in the yellow tea room, Mr. W. S. Armstrong of Toronto, secretary of the Ontario Town Planning and Housing Association, will address the meeting on "Provincial Legislation for Town Planning."

HAMILTON STREET CAR MEN THREATEN STRIKE

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 15.—The decision of the members of the Hamilton Street Railwaymen's Union, not to accept the wage cut announced by the company, raises the spectre of a street car strike before Hamilton citizens. The men held a meeting last night and unanimously decided they would not go to work on Feb. 15 at the wages then to come into effect.

It is understood that the men will have the support of the other unions locally concerned in the production-transmission of power employees.

NEW MINISTER OF LABOR GETS GREAT OVATION

Hon. James Murdock Welcomed by Throngs of Kent Electors.

FORESEES BRIGHTER ERA

Promises That Liberal Government Will Speed Relief For Unemployed.

[Special to London Advertiser.]

CHATHAM, Jan. 15.—Hon. James Murdock, minister of labor in the Liberal government, received an ovation from hundreds of Kent people, when he came to this city at noon Saturday. Greeted by Senator A. B. McColl and many of his old railway friends as he stepped from the train, the prospective member for Kent called many of them by their first names. In the afternoon the I. O. O. F. auditorium was filled to capacity, and hundreds were unable to gain admittance to hear him speak.

J. A. McNiven, acting president of the Kent Liberal Association, welcomed the returning son of Kent to his native county.

"We are proud of the results of his honest endeavor, and we extend him our most sincere greetings on his return to Kent," he declared amid applause.

"Life is certainly full of surprises," said Mr. Murdock on arising to speak. "Little did I think when going to school on concession 8, Tilbury East, or when I was a brakeman through Chatham as a brakeman on a C. P. R. freight train that one day I would address the citizens of Kent as a cabinet minister, and as an aspirant for the honored position of your representative at Ottawa."

The minister spoke of his entrance into public life, and of his defeat at the polls he made brief mention. Referring to the lately deceased board of commerce, he stated that he was appointed to that body as a representative of labor, and was given to understand that this was an opportunity "for real service on behalf of all classes."

"But it was all unadulterated camouflage," he hotly declared. "I resigned, although my appointment

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH FOR EIGHT YEARS

The cause of this trouble is the fermentation of food in the stomach, which generates a gas that is very frequently belched up. There is also a rumbling of the bowels and a discharge of gas therefrom, there is constant retching, and the mucus is frequently vomited. There is a burning pain in the stomach, the appetite is rickety, the tongue coated, the breath bad, constipation is generally present and the sufferer becomes weak, nervous, depressed and exceedingly miserable.

The blame lies with a sluggish liver, as it holds back the bile which is so necessary to promote the movement of the bowels, and when the bile gets into the blood a badly disturbed condition of the stomach, liver and bowels will surely follow.

Keep your liver active and you will always enjoy good health. Mrs. Agnes Gallant, Reserve Mines, N. S. writes: "I had been a sufferer for eight years, from catarrh of the stomach. I tried several, so-called, catarrh remedies without relief until a friend advised me to try Milburn's Laxative Liver Pills, which I did. Four vials completely relieved me. That was six years ago, and I have had no return of my old trouble."

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat If You Feel Backache or Have Bladder Trouble.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels, by moving all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or side headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush out the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Epsom Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Epsom Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

was good for ten years at a salary of $10,000 a year."

Explains Resignation.
The speaker referred briefly to the things which induced him to expose the lack of honest endeavor on the part of the board of commerce.

He referred to the wonderful possibilities of the labor department at Ottawa. "Wonderful things can be done for Canada's laboring classes, having all regard to the demands of the other classes," he declared.

Speaking about the 22,000 miles of railway owned by the people of Canada, he declared that they must be operated for the benefit of the people. "These railways should not be unfairly and unnecessarily taxed for deficits."

He declared that up to the present time the cabinet ministers have been learning of liabilities bequeathed to the country by the late government.

Referring to the unemployment problem, he declared that there should be work in plenty for all red-blooded Canadians so that they can support themselves and families.

"I will admit that between now and the end of March we will be at our wits' end to know what to do. But you can rest assured everything will be done to alleviate conditions," he declared.

Deserve Square Deal.

"The people of Canada are entitled to a square deal, and the new ministry intends to give them a square deal," he declared.

On the conclusion of his address, as at the start, he was given a remarkable ovation by the crowd.

Other speakers at the meeting were Senator A. B. McColl, Mayor E. G. Odette of Tilbury, and Mrs. Mead of this city.

Referring to Senator McColl, Mayor Odette of Tilbury expressed the hope that "Archie" would "wake up those old rattlebones of the senate to action."

The meeting closed with three hearty cheers for the minister of labor.

REPORT BENGAL RIOT OUTBREAKS

LONDON, Jan. 15.—A dispatch to the London Times from Calcutta says civil disobedience in the form of non-payment of taxes, already has commenced in some parts of Bengal, where it has been the cause of rioting. If the movement for the non-payment of taxes becomes extensive, the government's inland revenue bill will be seriously affected.

Owing to the permanent settlement of the country, the dispatch adds, disobedience of this type is more difficult to cope with in Bengal than in other parts of India, where rigorous legislation provides an effective safeguard.

For some time the Rangpur farmers have been hard pressed, owing to the failure of crops and trade depression. Consequently they are ready listeners to the non-co-operation, who are promising ultimate freedom from the payment of all taxes. A movement to start an anti-civil disobedience association is receiving support from all parts of India.

PASSAGES AT WELLAND CANAL INCREASE IN 1921

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Jan. 15.—During 1921 a total tonnage of 3,076,968 passed through the Welland Canal, an increase of 800,000 tons over 1920. The number of vessels passing through was 3,750, or 1,850 up, and 1,848 down. Fifteen new boats passed through on their way to the Atlantic.

The principal increases in tonnage were: Barley, 7,732; corn, 747,776; oats, 122,226; rye, 45,694; flax, 108; wheat, 502,939; agricultural implements, 4,422; iron and steel, 14,415; coke, 4,700; ore, 2,347.

Weather Prophet of Cargill Predicts Dry Summer For 1922

[Special to London Advertiser.]
CARBIDE, Jan. 15.—James B. Bowes of Chatsworth, formerly of Pinkerton, has issued his 1922 prognostications as to the weather, which might be worth preserving for reference during the coming months and seasons, as his predictions for the last few years have been notably accurate. Mr. Bowes says:

"My forecasts for 1920, when I predicted a very cold winter and the mild January of 1921, are so correct that they should demand for me a hearing."

The following are Mr. Bowes predictions for 1922:

January—Very mild until the last week, when it will turn decidedly stormy and cold.

February—First fifteen days cold with very strong winds, especially about the 9th. Balance of month very mild.

March—First week average temperature; second week high winds, rain and snow; last week, very high winds, rain, frost and snow.

April—Very cold, high winds, with snow for about ten days. Balance of month very mild.

May—First twenty days very warm and likely very dry; rain, frost and probably snow about the 23rd.

November—Very decidedly warm until about the 25th, then heavy rains, strong winds, snow and frost.

December—A record-breaker for being so warm.

Mr. Bowes also predicts that the winter of 1923, with the exception of a sharp storm in the first week of January, will be the mildest possible. The coming summer will be one of the driest of the three—'20, '21, '22—and the summer of '23 will also be dry.

WANT PROBE OF U. OF T. FACULTY

TORONTO, Jan. 15.—Complaints regarding the manner in which the faculty of medicine at the University of Toronto is conducted have been crystallized into a demand for an independent investigation of a number of matters which seem of sufficient importance to members of the medical profession to warrant such action.

Interviews given by Dr. Walter McKeown, a member of the faculty, who is not satisfied with the existing system, Dr. George Ross, a former member, Dr. P. W. Marlow, and others, draw attention to the autocratic way in which the faculty is conducted in regard to dismissals and appointments, and criticize the system of full-time professors, which, it is contended, savors too much of the German plan.

It is pointed out that the application of this system has meant the exclusion of many eminent men who are in a position to give valuable service to the university.

GIVES HISTORIC RELIC TO PROVINCE LIBRARY

LONDON, Jan. 15.—(By Canadian Press Cable.)—Sir Leicester Harcourt, who some time back purchased a number of General Wolfe's letters, has presented to Agent General F. C. The gift includes several other records of great historic interest.

Went Alter Policy.

That France stands alone in her viewpoint and policy towards Germany was reported as the outcome of the interview Saturday between Premier-designate Poincaré and Prime Minister Lloyd George of England.

Although no official announcement was made, it was learned from a member of the Belgian delegation returning from the Cannes conference of the Supreme Council that M. Poincaré opposed granting a moratorium to Germany, in favor of which Belgium, Great Britain and Italy were solidly united.

M. Poincaré, in his task of forming a French cabinet to succeed the Briand ministry, asked former Premier René Viviani to accept the post of minister of justice with the vice-presidency of the cabinet, but Mr. Viviani refused the portfolio, it was officially announced tonight.

M. Viviani, while expressing the closest sympathy with M. Poincaré, it was stated, explained that he preferred continuing his work as France's representative in the League of Nations.

Promises Belgium Aid.

Foreign Minister Jaspas of Belgium announced tonight a tentative agreement for a British-Belgium pact in which Great Britain promises her aid to the full against an attack upon Belgium or the violation of her territory.

The announcement came from M. Jaspas in an interview he and Premier Theunys gave to the correspondents on the train en route from Cannes to Paris.

M. Jaspas said the draft of the pact had been completed and that the terms agreed upon required the approval of the British and Belgian cabinets.

M. Jaspas said the pact also was dependent upon the consummation of the Franco-British agreement. "Geographically we are so close to France that her interests are ours," he said.

Under this treaty, the Belgian foreign minister said, "this will bring us the aid of Great Britain in all her power in case of aggression against Belgium or if her territory is invaded by a foreign power."

Rev. D. C. MacGregor Draws Vital Lessons From Life of King Saul

Declares No Man Can Frustrate God's Plans, Although He May Postpone One Them.

"An ideal system works out all right for an ideal people, but no change in a political system will effectively improve the conditions in a nation unless at the same time the people are raised to a higher mental and spiritual level. All betterment of conditions gets back to the change of heart of the individuals."

The foregoing was the comment of Rev. D. C. MacGregor, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, on Sunday morning, on the cry of the people of Israel at the time of Samuel for a king, when they became disobedient to God, suffered the consequences, and blamed their system of government.

Continuing his course of Sunday evening sermons on "The Books of the Bible," Mr. MacGregor preached this week on the First Book of Samuel, dealing especially with "Saul, a King Who Failed."

After graphically reciting the story of the book, from the disobedience of Eli's sons, the high priest, to the death of Saul by falling on his own sword when the battle went

STUDENTS HOLD SERVICES

The first of a series of sermons for Western University students of all faculties and affiliated colleges was held in Talbot Street Baptist Church Sunday afternoon. Rev. T. S. Roy, pastor of the church, addressed the students on "Life's Alternatives."

"This is the first of a series of meetings which I trust will be very beneficial to the students and the faculty of Western University," stated C. R. Somerville, of the board of governors, in an opening address.

In the course of his sermon, Rev. Roy declared that he considered it a great honor to have the distinction of initiating the series of sermons to the students of Western University. "Such services identify the university with the spiritual life of the student. The success of this movement shall not depend on the teachers, or leaders, but on the student body, which must co-operate with the leaders," stated the pastor.

Rev. Roy said that regardless of creed, the facts of life were essentially the same, that life was nothing

OUTLINES DUTIES OF WIFE AND HUSBAND

Marriage was the subject of an interesting and instructive sermon by Father O'Donnell at high mass at St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday morning.

The speaker said that it was appropriate that the sermon of the day should deal with the duties of husband and wife towards each other, as the sermon on the previous Sunday had dealt with the duties of children to their parents. The marriage feast in Cana of Galilee was the theme of the sermon. It was touched on quite fully, Christ, with his mother, attended this marriage. It was here that he performed his first miracle, changing water into wine, when it was found that there was no wine for the ceremony.

Father O'Donnell spoke at some length on the blessing which was conferred upon this union, predicting that the couple involved lived a happy wedded life. People of today had the same opportunity, if they had Christ present at their marriage. There were many graces heaped upon a couple, and these remained with them so long as they continued to merit the blessings of Christ.

Duties of Marriage. The speaker touched at some length on the duties of married life, touching first upon the mutual duties.

Marriage, he stated, was a union of hearts, and for this reason love had to be prominent; love of a high, lasting nature, real heart emotion. There must be a readiness to sacrifice, one for another. There should be forbearance with each other's defects. He also pointed out that they must not forget the primary object of marriage, which, as one author put it, was "the nursery of heaven." It was the duty of marriage to fill up the number of the elect, and anything done to frustrate this object would be visited by God with most severe punishment.

Married couples must strive to make one another happy, he said. He contended that a serious condition was indicated if the husband had to go off and leave his wife in search of pleasure and happiness. The same applied to the wife.

It was also pointed out that couples should conduct themselves in their homes as they did outside. They should be refined and courteous to each other at all times.

The speaker then outlined the duties of husband to wife, declaring that the primary duty of the wife house should not assert his authority ruthlessly. He should realize that his wife is an intelligent being, listen to her advice and act on her requests. He should provide decent and adequate support for his family.

Primary Duty of Wife. The wife, according to St. Paul, must be three things: gentle, careful of her home, and obedient to her husband. The speaker pointed out that the primary duty of the wife was to obey her husband. The word gentle, he did not think needed explanation. To be gentle should be diligent in her care of the home, and her full education of the children and their upbringing in fear and love of God.

Concluding, the speaker touched briefly on the lot of those who violated the law in regard to marriage, and then, to the happiness that comes to those who do not. Not only is their own life happy, but by their good example to their children they proved an inspiration that in after life would prevent many of them from falling into mortal sin.

CLAIMS CURE FOR DIABETES LOOMS

U. of T. Professor Elated Over Result of Research.

Toronto, Jan. 15.—Progress is reported to have been made in experiments toward a cure for diabetes, which Professor J. J. R. McLeod has been conducting at the Toronto University laboratory for several months. All through the summer and up to the present time the experimental work has been conducted with dogs. By the removal of the pancreas a condition which most closely simulates diabetes in man was obtained.

"Diabetes," said Professor McLeod, "is a condition in an animal which makes it incapable of oxidizing sugar so that sugar and the starches can no longer be utilized. It is by extracts to counteract this condition that a cure, if there is a cure, will come."

The research work now being pressed at the university, Professor McLeod declared, was not begun with the expectation of finding any cure for diabetes. "We are studying the effect of sugar in the animal body in the hope that we will land on something that will aid against the disease known as diabetes. It was only a day or two ago that the first injection of extracts was given to a human being. This is a boy of 13 in the general hospital. So acute is diabetes in young persons that very often hope of recovery is vain. It was as a last resort that permission was granted to the Toronto research men to experiment with this boy. So encouraging was the first treatment, it is said, that these will be continued every day."

FILES BILL TO FORCE CHURCH ATTENDANCE

Boston, Jan. 16.—A bill filed with the legislature seeks to require every inhabitant of the state to attend church each Sunday, unless unable to do so because of mental or physical condition.

Cities or towns would be required to provide machinery to enforce the law. R. P. Bennett of Saugus, former senator, is sponsor for the proposal.

Rev. T. S. Roy Outlines Benefits of Christian Faithfulness

Basing his remarks on the message of Christ, delivered by John, to the church at Smyrna, Rev. T. S. Roy, at Talbot Street Baptist Church on Sunday morning, drew present-day applications of the condition revealed at that time. It is always notable that the message of Christ has a distinct bearing on the day's events. He knew the bitter persecution that had been leveled against the church there—knew what was ahead of them, and, knowing this, he appears as a God of hope and strength. "Fear none of these things," I will give three a crown of life.

God sees the world today; sees men in the pinch of poverty; sees men in the grip of the industrial machine until they are merely a part of it; sees the injustice of the day, even if it is legal. Is it any wonder that the man who is hard pressed to support a family, who is persecuted, who hears the words of Christ about those who refuse to feed and clothe the needy and visit those imprisoned? Men whose hearts are stirred by the social injustice of the time, men who wonder if it is really any use trying to carry on, are led to see the Christ who was persecuted, and who passed through Gethsemane and Calvary, and they also get the picture of the glorified Christ and the stone rolled from the grave.

The world today, claimed Mr. Roy, instead of curing conditions that were bad, was simply dealing with the poverty issue. It was noticeable, too, that Christ promised no relief from tribulation to the church at Smyrna, but drew attention to the greater truth that their tribulation has made them rich in the Kingdom of God. These people were rich in the spirit of the Master.

Today, spiritual wealth does not come from the fact that a man believes or subscribes to certain creeds, but what a man has of the spirit of the Master is the determining factor. There is always the danger of a certain few getting the idea that on them is shed all of truth there is in the world, and that all others are heretics. To these the great warning should be that Christ was crucified because the people called him a heretic.

"Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life," does not promise freedom from persecution, but it does give grace when in persecution, that keeps us faithful in peace, faithful in war, faithful in youth, faithful in middle age, when we may find our careers crowned with success, and faithful when we find that we are slipping the moorings and starting again that fuller life where we shall receive the reward for our faithfulness.

Prior to his sermon, Mr. Roy referred at some length to the great need in the city for a spirit of helpfulness to be extended to those who are in need of assistance at the present time. He intimated that a special collection would probably be taken next Sunday for this purpose.

POET OF MANY NOTES LOSES SUNRISE AIM

Roberts Falls Short of Promise, Says Marquis.

"Greatest of Canadian poets, sharing much of the power of the masters, Tennyson, Shelley, Keats, at whose feet he sat; supreme in the interpretation of nature; possessing the faculty of vitalizing nature by the human touch; a master of diction, possessed of a greater variety of notes than any of the poets! Had Roberts kept to his sunrise aim, remained faithful to his earlier devotion to art, he might have been one of the greatest poets the British world has seen."

Such was the eloquent tribute paid to Charles G. D. Roberts by a former pupil and whole-hearted admirer, T. G. Marquis of Toronto, in a lecture which held the spell-bound attention of the members of the Women's Canadian Club for an hour and more in St. Andrew's Hall on Saturday afternoon.

While paying generous tribute to the genius of the poet, who "ushered in the Canadian renaissance," Mr. Marquis, himself a Canadian writer of wide reputation, revealed himself keenly analytical, just and fearless in criticism.

"Roberts lacks an ethical centre," he said. "He is only an interpreter of life in a limited way. Attempting to see the world as it is, he lent himself to the drudgery of novels and animal stories. His novels are weak, his 'Sister to Evangeline' colour de rose, but false to the times and lacking psychological strength. Animal stories and novels of this description are written by a man with the genius to transcribe nature as he has done."

Choose Ancestors Wisely. Art, to be fully understood, cannot be divorced from its creator. As a starting point in the lecture, the speaker briefly and vividly sketched for his audience the Canadian writer of wide reputation, revealed himself keenly analytical, just and fearless in criticism.

On his father's side of the family, he was a descendant of an eminent theologian of the Maritime Provinces, of people of mental power and excellent education. On his mother's side, he was related to Emerson, and numbered among his ancestors of the name of Bliss, distinguished jurists here in Massachusetts, previous to the republic, and in New Brunswick subsequent to the American War of Independence.

"If physical or mental strength shows wisdom in the choice of parents," said Mr. Marquis amid laughter, "then Roberts in this respect showed remarkable judgment."

Continuing, reference was made to the improvement of talents upon the part of the young poet-to-be, the fortunate influence of Sir George Parkin, which came into his life as a student in Fredericton Collegiate, with honors in mathematics, classics, political economy, philosophy; the publishing in 1880, at the age of 20, of a "thin book of verse," so far as bulk was concerned, but the herald of a great artistic awakening in Canada.

Concerning this first book of verse, "Orion and Other Poems," the lecturer said, "Few poets under 19 have written as excellent artistic verse. There was nothing provincial about it. The achievement was great, the promise greater. The atmosphere was that of Shelley, Keats, Tennyson. While he had not entered an original field, Roberts' verse was free from the crudities, the slipshod methods of earlier Canadian poets."

In 1881, Roberts went to Toronto to edit "The Week." "And even Philistine, dollar-chasing Toronto could not quench his poetic spirit," humorously commented the speaker.

Ranks With Great Elegies. With the exception of contributions to magazines, it was six years after the publication of "Ariadne," "reminding of Keats in its full, rich

HOLD PRAYER SERVICE

The congregation of St. Michael's Church, commenced the forty hours devotion Sunday morning. This special period of prayer is held at different times in every church, and is regulated in such a way that this service is going on in some Catholic church at all times.

At St. Michael's Church it opened with a high mass, at 10:30 Sunday morning, sung by Vicar-General O'Connor, at which there was a large attendance, the altar being beautifully decorated for the occasion. Mass was followed by a procession, headed by the Holy Name society. In the evening, solemn benediction was sung by Monsignor McKeon, and Father Mahoney spoke.

During the entire forty hours the blessed sacrament is exposed on the altar, and it is arranged that at all times some members of the congregation are present in the church. The devotion will be closed with solemn benediction and a procession.

ROBINSON MEMORIAL

Good congregations attended both services in Memorial Methodist Church Sunday. The educational anniversary of the church was held in the morning. Rev. (Capt.) Garbutt preached a strong sermon from Hosea iv-6, "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge," in which he pointed out that education and evangelism must ever go hand in hand.

In the evening Rev. W. H. Hiles preached from Zachariah xiii-6, and spoke of how Christ was wounded in the house of his friends by those who reject his salvation; by those who are inconsistent in their living; by those who "call him Master and Lord and do not the things that he says," and by those who are only lukewarm in their service.

A special feature of the evening service was the singing of the men's chorus and well rendered cornet solo by Mr. Telesky.

DELEGATES ATTEND INDIAN CONFERENCE

Bombay, Jan. 16.—The conference of representatives of all shades of public opinion, summoned by the Pundit Malaviya and a number of other non-party leaders, opened here yesterday under the chairmanship of Sir Chutur Sankaran Nayar, with two hundred delegates in attendance. As a result of the discussion, in which M. K. Gandhi, the non-co-operation leader, took part, the differences being the various parties, appear to be narrowing.

An attempt will be made to draft resolutions to which all the delegates will be able to subscribe, a sub-committee being appointed for this purpose. Following the appointment of the sub-committee the conference was adjourned until today.

BLENHEIM BEAUTIFIED BY HORTICULTURISTS

Blenheim, Jan. 15.—The annual meeting of Blenheim and Harwich Horticultural Society was held Friday evening in the council chamber.

One of the interesting features of the year's work, among many others, was the importation features from Holland of a consignment of roses, which arrived in excellent condition and were distributed.

The association is not yet satisfied with its past success, however good, and will launch out this year, hoping to exceed its reputation for the past. Blenheim has been made a brighter, happier spot to live because of the beautifying work of this institution since its organization.

The officers for the year, elected last night are:

President, James McVittie; vice-president, George Taylor; directors, two years, W. R. Fellows, R. J. Gosnell, J. H. Ferguson, Dr. A. J. McTavish and W. G. Thompson; directors, one year, Dr. C. B. Langford, F. H. Hacklin, A. W. Ross, A. G. Shillington, E. G. Thompson. The secretary-treasurer, will be appointed by the directors at a future meeting. W. G. Thompson has held this post during the past year.

Appeals For Increased Support of Parish and Missionary Funds

At the morning service in St. Paul's Cathedral on Sunday, Dean Tucker read a letter from Bishop Williams, in which the members of the congregation were urged to be more liberal in their contributions, both for the support of their own parish and the mission fund.

The bishop emphasized the necessity of having a definite plan from which to carry out the work of the church throughout the year. "With a plan you may fail; without a plan you are courting failure," the bishop wrote.

Dean Tucker augmented the bishop's appeal by enumerating the various demands for money which a large church was called upon to supply—the support of widows and orphans of deceased clergy; the fund for the support of supernumerary clergy; and the support which must be given to those parishes which are either too poor, too small, or too scattered to be self-supporting.

The dean referred to the necessity of using the duplex envelope system, and urged that for each dollar contributed toward work in the parish, a dollar be given to missions. He asked that parishioners give careful study to the yearly report of the church, a copy of which was placed in every pew.

Celebration of the Holy Communion took place at the morning service, as well as at 8:30 a.m.

TELLS SECRET OF VICTORY IN BRANT Stresses Value of Right Organization.

W. G. Raymond, M.P., for Brantford, was in London on Saturday afternoon for a few hours. The new member for the Telephone City wears his honors lightly, even after one of the outstanding wins of the whole contest.

"What helped me win?" repeated Mr. Raymond, in reply to a question from The Advertiser. "Well, several things, but most of all the organization that I had back of me right through the contest. No man could have wished for anything better. It was a pleasure all through, and they never let up until all the votes were cast."

Speaking of the new Dominion cabinet, Mr. Raymond expressed his confidence in the men selected, claiming they were able and thoroughly representative. "I cannot help appreciating the compliment," he said, "that was paid me by the petition of the postal clerks, started right here in London, asking that I be appointed postmaster-general. But you know I am a youngster in politics," laughed the Brantford member, "and shall have to wait my turn for such honors."

According to Mr. Raymond, right now is the time when Liberals should go ahead and perfect their organizations, so they will be prepared to see that all necessary and proper work is done when it comes time to get out the voters' list.

"Some of the best work is done at that time," he contended, "in seeing that all those who are entitled to vote are on the lists. Proper attention to that work is most important."

Accompanying Mr. Raymond was T. G. Marquis, who was in London on Saturday to address the Women's Canadian Club.

WINS SUIT IN TEXAS.

An important law suit dealing with an estate involving over a million dollars has been decided in San Antonio, Texas. The action was to set aside a will which gave $400,000 to universities and schools. The estate, which was upheld, gave the estate to the relatives, Harry P. Drought, grandson of the late Thomas Drought, who was for many years manager of the City Gas Company in London, acted in the interests of the successful relatives.

Liberal Clubs.

ORGANIZING Mackenzie King Liberal clubs, especially in Ontario, as a means of following up the recent victory, and preparing for future contests, is about as sane and practicable an idea as could be advanced to meet the needs of the present situation.

The premier himself has consented to become honorary president of any club so organized.

Toronto has made the first step toward such an organization, Norman C. McEachern being president of the association. The Advertiser asked Mr. McEachern for some details in connection with their method of organization and operation, believing the general distribution of such information to be especially desirable just now.

Mr. McEachern claims that the idea back of the Mackenzie King Liberal Club in Toronto is, first, to educate the voters by encouraging frequent discussions on public policies, and to bring the premier and the members of his cabinet to Toronto as frequently as possible to address the electors; secondly, to create an organization of workers, and organize each riding along the block system.

"We are inviting," says Mr. McEachern, "one active Liberal worker from each polling sub-division to become a charter member of the club, and he is to be appointed a captain of his polling sub-division, and he will bring into the club as members between five and ten active workers in his polling sub-division. This captain and his men will form a committee to assist the permanent secretary of the club to place on cards the names, addresses and particulars of every voter in that particular sub-division. We will then be able to put a campaign on in each polling sub-division, with the aim of converting as many as possible in that sub-division to Liberalism. In the event of an election campaign the captain of each sub-division may enlarge his committee, and they will have the cards of all the voters in their particular sub-division, and it will be their aim on election day to get out every Liberal in the riding and have him cast his or her vote. It is distinctly understood that the club organization depends entirely upon the captain of each polling sub-division and treats with him only, and he will be held responsible for bringing out his men for the meetings of the club, and also for getting out to vote all in his particular sub-division."

There is nothing mysterious or unworkable about Mr. McEachern's plan. It means something definite in the way of a plan, some real personal work on the part of the membership—but in the end it also means that one thing is most necessary, a live organization, acquainted with the district, and having a good knowledge of the political questions of the day.

The Mackenzie King Liberal Club idea could be put across in a big way right in Western Ontario.

A Titled Hen.

EVERY RESTAURANT and every eating place faces the problem of where to get fresh eggs this time of year. The housewife also has the same problem.

And while all this is going on it is highly interesting to read of one industrious little hen out at Invermere, B. C., having the sprightly title of "Lady Dot." For the year ending October 31, 1921, this titled hen had a record of 325 eggs for 365 days.

Taken by months, here is her record:

November	27
December	27
January	27
February	27
March	27
April	27
May	27
June	27
July	27
August	31
September	30
October	17
Total	325

During the four winter months "Lady Dot" produced 108 eggs, which is more than many pullets do in a year. From August 1 to October 17, she quit laying, she laid 78 eggs in 78 days. Commencing on May 18, and continuing until October 17, a period of 153 days, she produced 150 eggs. "Lady Dot" did not go broody during the year, but commenced to moult on October 11, and quit laying on the 17th. Unfortunately, there is no trap record of her eggs prior to November 1, 1920, otherwise her yearly record would have been more. As an individual she is, if anything, small for her breed, but is the most active bird in the flock.

This record does not come by chance. "Lady Dot" is the result of six years of careful breeding and selection.

Senator Newberry.

ELECTED as a Republican by the voters of Michigan in 1918, after defeating Henry Ford in a spectacular and dramatic contest; kept from taking his seat by charges of spending fabulous sums to secure election; and finally seated in the U. S. Senate on Jan. 12 by a vote of 46 to 41. Such, in brief, is the story of Senator Truman H. Newberry's experience in securing a seat in the United States Senate.

In the evidence brought out at the various sittings of courts of inquiry, it has been admitted by Senator Newberry's campaign manager that his expenditure was $200,000. This figure has been doubled and redoubled in the estimates presented by those who sought to keep him from taking his seat.

The senator, by way of extenuation, claimed that the expenditures were made without his consent and without his knowledge. The expenditures are given in lump sums only, as the law does not require that there shall be an itemized record of "where the money went."

Further, his friends claimed, the expenditure was justified, as his opponent, Henry Ford, was opposed at that time to the United States' participation in the European war.

The point that the average Canadian reader will wonder at comes in here: A seat in the United States Senate is worth $7,500 per year, and 20 cents per mile for traveling to and from Washington.

Why is it worth spending an admitted $200,000, let alone the alleged $800,000, to secure such a seat, unless there is something more to be gained than the simple occupancy of the seat and the salary attached to it?

It is also worthy of note that the crack of the party whip failed to bring the irreconcilables to the rescue of Senator Newberry, as such outstanding men as Borah, Kenyon and La Follette were numbered with the nine Republicans who voted dead against granting Senator Newberry the right to take his place in the Senate. That they almost made their point is shown by the final count, which shows: For seating Senator Newberry, 46; against, 41. A straight party vote would have shown 54 to 32 in favor.

According to law, the amount a candidate can spend on a senatorial campaign is $50,000, and opponents of Newberry made a point that it is hard to answer, viz., "If we sent a man who admits having spent $200,000, what is to hinder a man being seated in years to come who walks in here and presents documents showing that it cost him $50,000,000 to be elected?"

If the thing is allowed to run on in this way, it is hard to see how the U. S. Senate can hope to be looked upon as anything short of a highly commercialized branch of their system of national administration.

Managing a City.

FOR two years A. A. McIntyre was mayor of Peterboro. Here is the way he sums up part of his experience:

"I have not a doubt but that one man could do the city's administrative or managerial work more efficiently and successfully than it is done now by the ten men whom the people elect. If the ratepayers would consider the light of a manufacturing business, they might be able to see more clearly the advantages of commission or city manager systems. A lot of time is wasted in the council method of doing business. One alderman is thinking more of some little work in his district than of greater needs in another part of the city. These are only some of the weaknesses of the system we are clinging to. It is clumsy and inelastic, and every man who has seen it operate from the inside must be convinced that there is a great deal of room and need for improvement."

On the face of it, there is merit in what the Peterboro man has to say. One of the reasons why it is hard to get away from the present system is that we have been used to it for a long time.

Mr. McIntyre is quite right when he says that the city's business should be considered in the light of some manufacturing concern.

In London, for instance, this would represent a firm with $60,000,000 capital. It is hardly likely that such a concern would be operated by a body of men voted into office by the say-so of the ratepayers. No matter how successful they may have been in their own fields, the administration of civic affairs is a new field in which they must start to acquire experience.

The most hopeful sign is that a number of municipalities are doing splendid pioneer work in this direction, and in the next few years should show some worthwhile results.

LITTLE 'TISERS

An order is desired to wind up a string of cigar stores. Some of the shareholders want to see what they can get out of the smoking ruins.

The theory is still being tested as to whether two can live as cheaply as one. And it all depends on what scale the one has been living.

Over a month since the Meighen government was defeated, and we haven't heard of a shop yet being closed up by reason of European and German goods pouring into Canada.

London is said to be thinking of letting off a little of the restraint that is placed against shooting off firecrackers. How is a small boy going to celebrate properly if he can't firecrack a bit?

When a preacher cuts loose and strikes out straight from the shoulder the man in the pew who needs the drubbing always chuckles to think how the parson is swatting the chap across the aisle.

Christmas giving is over, but the same need that was met by this splendid spirit a few weeks ago still exists. There are many cases in London right now that merit practical and speedy help. On those who are able to help is placed a duty that they will be the richer for discharging in its entirety.

The man who can't afford a car, and who positively will not make the expenditure, and the chap who is going to drive the old gig for another two seasons at any rate—yes, they will both be around on Feb. 6 at the London Motor Show. The best prospect for a sale is the man who is dead certain he will not buy.

The fact that evening classes at the London Technical School are crowded is a splendid sign. Young men who go to night school do so because they are looking to the future. It would be almost safe to say that 75 per cent of the best shop executive came up from the ranks by the aid of night schools, correspondence classes and technical books and papers.

Lindsay Crawford is still busy on a campaign in Canada, the idea now being that Ireland had to sign that peace pact or fight. In other words, he would have us believe that, as far as Ireland is concerned, it was a case of sign on the dotted line or die. If the Irish delegates thought the pact good enough to sign, the chances are that there is no need for the self-styled Canadian liberators of Ireland offering their services.

NOAH'S POETRY

THE GOVERNOR! The governor of Middlesex County jail can feed his guests and keep them looking fit for less than 20 cents a day—News item.

Oh, Mister Jailer, when we read of how you feed that husky crew, we want to dedicate a line or two and wish the crazy thing on you.

For up around our humble shack we try to guard our little roll, and wonder how we next can carve to keep from slidin' in the hole.

And do you give them beef and stew and hash upon hot buttered toast, and place before 'em T-bone steaks, and line their ribs with sirloin roast?

And is there puddin' fat and brown, and cut in slabs 'bout two feet through, and do you use the hothouse greens and lettuce when she first gets grew?

Or do you feed baked hay and oats with Sunday treat made from bran mash, with turnips for dessert most days, with carrots turned into hash?

Yes, Mister Jailer, we would like to have you tell us all you know, just how you set about each day to navigate your thrifty show. Just how you fill each man's insides, and how you know just when to stop, and how you gather up the scraps, and how you run your country shop.

Oh, Mister Jailer, won't you come and in our humble dug-out stay, and show us how you feed your tribe on less than 20 cents a day? —NOAH.

READ YOUR CHARACTER

[By Digby Phillips.]

NO. 88—SUSPICIOUS HANDWRITING.

Look at the letter you have just written. Is the writing rather small, and has it the appearance of having been crowded on to the page?

If so, be warned. You have certain tendencies of character which may well be a handicap and a cause of unhappiness to you.

But so far as character analysts have been able to discover, there is virtually no character tendency which cannot be turned into either an asset or a liability, according to the manner in which the individual exercises the will and intelligence with which he is endowed. There are no perfect characters. Some are weak or strong in some ways, and some in others. Above your mental and physical equipment is your will, your soul. Men and women are good or evil, not according to their characters, but according to the way in which they use and control their characters, according to the ends they seek, and the moral control they exert over themselves.

If your handwriting is crowded, particularly toward the right side of the page, you are inclined to be overly suspicious. Train yourself against it.

For the rest you are strongly inclined toward thrift (among other things the crowded writing bespeaks an unconscious desire to save paper). Thrift is a virtue, but miserliness is not. If your writing is crowded you have enough natural thrift. Don't encourage it. Make an effort to be generous occasionally, both in business and personal ways. Keep a watch over yourself and make a conscious effort to avoid narrow-minded views. Make it a point to be generous to others in your thoughts. And above all, determine not to worry over trifles. Conscious effort along these lines should balance your characterists just enough to make them decided assets.

PREMIER'S HAPPIEST DAY

"This has been the happiest day of my life—an age-old problem is solved." Such are said to have been the first words of the prime minister when the Anglo-Irish agreement was signed. Mr. Lloyd George exerted almost superhuman power in negotiating the clauses one by one, and he was nobly supported by his colleagues.

It was just as the hand of the clock moved to 2:15 that the eagerly-awaited agreement was arrived at. Mr. Lloyd George had given an undertaking regarding a small adjustment in the terms, and Mr. Arthur Griffith replied, "With that, Mr. Lloyd George, we are satisfied. We will sign." Mr. Lloyd George signed the document, and passed it to his colleagues on the right. Lord Birkenhead. Then Mr. Winston Churchill signed. Mr. Griffith as head of the Sinn Fein delegation, added his signature, and afterwards Mr. Michael Collins and Mr. Barton.

It was a dramatic scene (says the Central News), when the premier stretched out his hands and clasped those of Mr. Griffith and Mr. Collins. "The dawn of a new era for Ireland and for Great Britain," said the premier as Big Ben chimed 2:30.

The Sinn Fein delegates left the prime minister's residence to wire the news to Mr. de Valera. When they had gone Mr. Lloyd George again took up the pen in order to send the glad tidings to the king at Sandringham, and the message was sent off at 3 a.m.

Meanwhile a special train had been standing in the station at Euston from 1:29 p.m. on Monday awaiting the arrival of Mr. Shakespeare, one of the premier's secretaries, who was to take a copy of the signed agreement to Sir James Craig in Belfast. At 2:55 a.m. the courier left Downing street with the document, and the special train commenced its historic journey at 3:15. At Heyhead H. M. S. Salmon, a fast destroyer, was awaiting with steam up, and in this craft Mr. Shakespeare crossed the Irish Channel, and reached port just as dawn was breaking.

The premier has been heartily congratulated upon his great triumph. Thousands of telegrams have reached him.

APPRECIATION

DR. CL. T. CAMPBELL of London, who recently brought out an interesting publication "Pioneer Days in London," has received the following interesting letter from Lindsay Bros. of this city:

London, Ont., Jan. 9, 1922.

Dear Mr. Campbell:—We have read your work, "Pioneer Days in London, Canada," with much interest and pleasure. As old residents of London, and printers, we appreciate the facts as set forth, many of which we have had personal experience. In the old days in London, we had British regimental bands, and in our streets nearly every day discoursing the highest-class music that any congregation of men could produce—every man an artist. No wonder we boys would get in front of the band, would grab up any old tin pan or anything that made a noise and run in front, and make our own music when they stopped. It is no wonder those British bandmen cracked their sides laughing. Their music simply set the boys crazy. Possibly this thing accounts for London being a musical center.

Apart from music, we have read your

WRIGLEY BUILDING
TORONTO CANADA

October Twenty Sixth, 1921.

Canadian Daily Newspapers Association,
902 Excelsior Life Building,
Toronto, Ont.

Gentlemen:

For over ten years we have used about two hundred million quarter-page advertisements, every year, in the newspapers of Canada, and this, doubtless, has constituted the greatest permanent newspaper campaign in the history of the country. Our advertising has appeared in approximately three hundred newspapers, farm papers, and a few magazines, with a total circulation of well over three million for each issue used.

We have built the Canadian WRIGLEY business on newspaper advertising, because, in the initial stage of our development, we felt that the Press was the great medium of general information. Long experience has not only substantiated that feeling, but we are convinced that without the newspapers of Canada it would have taken us a very much longer time to have made WRIGLEY'S Chewing Gums the greatest sellers in the land.

It is not my intention to belittle the importance of other forms of advertising -- perhaps for many businesses the well recognized mediums of street-car and bill-board publicity are logically the best -- but, for the development of the WRIGLEY business, there can be no question but that the daily and weekly Press of Canada has been our greatest asset in telling the people about what we had to sell.

Very truly yours,

J. A. Rogers
Managing Director.

The finest tribute that can be paid to Daily Newspaper advertising is contained in the second paragraph of this letter. The Daily Newspaper remains supreme as the advertising basis of business development, because its appeal is universal.

SOCIETY and NEWS of INTEREST to WOMEN

Seeing Week-End Market With Aunt Maria's Eyes

Poultry must have been living high during the holiday season. Such was the impression conveyed by the row of fair and fat birds displayed for sale in the Saturday market. Some, indeed, had lost their symmetrical figures entirely, and were given to bulging in unbecoming manner, no style about them at all.

"How did you feed them to get them so fat?" asked Aunt Maria of the country homemaker, with beautifully clean-plucked fowls, one of which was ticketed $2.25.

"Milk fed," was the reply, accompanied by an obligate chuckles from the next door neighbor to the right of the owner of the chickens. "What is funny about that?" demanded Aunt Maria of the mirthful one.

"She's not telling the whole truth," was the answer. "She does like I do, feeds 'em with a spoon on bread and milk." And then she went off into a gale of merriment everybody around her laughing.

"Oh," she said, "you newspaper folks are a funny lot, coming round finding out about everything, then writing up pieces to put in the paper. Better go and write that about the bread and milk. Nothing like a spoon for feeding chickens."

"Once lived in the country myself," said Aunt Maria.

"Then you DO know what you are talking about?"

But it didn't seem much complaint to "all - their - lives - city-dwellers."

When it came to "heft," however, the champion poultry in the market was offered by a kindly-looking farmer.

The question was put to him, "What do you do to fatten up your chickens?"

"Speak kindly to them every morning," was the unexpected reply. "When I go out to give them their feed, I always say good morning, and I take great care not to do anything that will upset their nerves. Never allow them to be worried." The voice was mild and the owner managed to look very guileless, as concealing his eyes, which were playing a joke on a poor urban ignoramus.

Shouldn't Worry Chickens.

But, after all, if worry is bad for humans and cows, why not for chickens?

Poultry and eggs were the "long suits" on the Saturday market, from tiny late autumn broilers at 75 cents each, to big, husky fowls, "not a mite less than eight pounds," costing all the way to $2.50. The great majority were retailing at figures between $1.25 and $1.75 each.

The capable saleswoman who always stands out for top-notch prices, had a dozen eggs left, all laid within the preceding few days. And she wanted 75 cents for them.

"But that is the highest price in the market," she was told.

"A number of people are selling eggs, all laid within the past week, for 50 cents a dozen, while others seem to think that 65 cents is a pretty good price."

"But, look at the way mine are all matched up! Did ever you see bigger, finer brown eggs in all your life, which were laid as two peas?"

They brought back the question that received considerable discussion during the war-thrift days. "Why not sell eggs by weight instead of number?"

But then, weight doesn't appear to enter into calculations very much at the week-end market, that is, weight in terms of an accurate number of pounds and ounces. The last remark has reference to the way poultry is sold.

"It is up to the buyer to get the best bargain she can, and for me to get the best price I can," said a country woman, a regular attendant at the Saturday market, when the subject was mentioned to her the other day. And no one could dispute that.

Membership in the new club is restricted to the members of the leading Paris salons, and 250 persons already have applied for membership. Indoor golf now is expected to become a popular sport among wealthy Parisians.

Can't Judge Fowl.

A study of the week-end market from the standpoint of the buyers would indicate that many housewives, even of long experience, haven't mastered the fine art of

HAD BAD COUGH AND SORE THROAT

Never neglect a cough or cold, however slight. If you do, it can have but one result: it leaves the throat or lungs, or both, affected. A single dose of will help to stop the cough, soothe the throat, and if the cough or cold has become settled on the lungs the healing virtues of the Norway pine tree, along with the soothing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs, roots and barks promptly eradicates the bad effects, and the persistent use cannot but help to bring about relief.

Mr. Albert Marsh, Lower L'Ardoise, N. S., writes: "About a year ago I contracted a cold, accompanied by a very bad cough and sore throat. I sent for the doctor, but what he prescribed did me so little good I began to get discouraged. A friend came to see me and asked me if I had ever used 'Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.' I told him I had not and sent him right away to get me a bottle. I started using it, and after a couple of days I found I was getting relief, and after taking two bottles the soreness in my throat seemed to be leaving me, so I resolved to continue its use, and after I had used five bottles both my sore throat and cough were gone. I would not be without 'Dr. Wood's' for any money."

choosing poultry to the best advantage.

"I always have been in the habit of letting my grocery pick my poultry for me," said a notable homemaker, as she wandered around the Saturday market quite bewildered. "Since I have been reading so much about the market, I thought I'd come and try to get something for myself here. But, really, I can't make a choice. Do you think that chicken would be tender?" A pressure of the breast-bone revealed the fact that the chicken in the case was well past the bloom of youth.

Another woman, who really should have known better, walked off with a pathetically scrawny bird that was pressed upon her by a capable vendor, who just had the one chicken left.

"It looks so nice and pink with the white tufts of feathers on the wings," she excused herself for paying $1.50.

"But that isn't the way to choose poultry. It isn't like ice cream or decorations for an afternoon tea-table," remarked a wet-blanket friend.

Beside the wagon which is always found in a certain section of the outside pavilion, a wagon where quality pork is sold, a basket stood, partially filled with what the owner called "pluck."

"Pluck," which was selling rapidly, included heart and liver, at 40 cents, and heart, liver and lights, for 40 cents.

"But what is done with the lights?" asked the curious newspaper person.

The woman in charge shrugged her shoulders. "Don't know," she said. "Don't use them myself, but there is a great sale for them, mostly among the foreigners. They call it 'white liver,' and they say they like it better, or just as well, as the other liver."

Vegetables were scarce, parsnips selling for 50 cents a peck; turnips, 20 cents a peck, or 5 cents each for medium-sized ones; cabbages, 10, 15 and 20 cents each. A few members of the squash family were still to be found. Lettuce kept its head under cover outdoors, afraid of the nip of the icy blasts.

And the blasts of wind were icy and no mistake, so penetrating that the outdoor vendors were obliged to hop about, as one girl remarked, to "keep from freezing solid."

And she just had a cloth coat on at that. A boy was kept busy making change, with nary a glove or mitt to protect his hands. But he kept cheerful and polite, even while asked over and over again the prices of vegetables by people who looked, then passed on. All the time city marketers struggled in fur coats, with only a few minutes of braving the sweep of chilly wind in the market square, exchanged condolences about the cold. Supposing they were obliged to drive into market in the grey of the early morning, stand outdoors for hours, then face a drive home again? Farming and market gardening aren't all poetry and fat prices.

CHILI SAUCE.

Chili sauce has innumerable uses. When you're baking beans if there happens to be no salt pork put quite a quantity of chili sauce over the beans. If you want to give roast, serve an unusual taste put some chili sauce in the pan while it roasts. If you'd give a delightful tang to the cold meat sandwich add chili sauce to the meat after you have put it through the food chopper.

WANTS "PRIVATE JACK MCCOY."

Dear Miss Grey,—I have been a reader of the women's page for some time, and enjoy it very much. I wonder if any of the Mail-Box members could send me the song "Private Jack McCoy." The last two lines of the chorus are:

You fairly take my fancy every time that you pass by; You're the finest Jack that ever crossed the border.

I hope some one will be kind enough to send me the words and music. I will return same.

HEATHER QUEEN.

I am sure, Heather Queen, if any of the Boxites have these words they will be only too pleased to send them to you.

WANTS A CORRESPONDENT.

Dear Miss Grey,—May I come for a few moments. I read the page every day, and find it very interesting. Would any of the Boxites like to correspond with me? I am 13, and live on a farm, and have five sisters and two brothers. We have a Chevrolet car, and I like it fine. I would like to see you as good to everyone this year as he was to me. I am leaving my address with Miss Grey. If any of the Boxites wish to correspond I will answer.

I hope you receive a nice interesting correspondent through the Mail-Box. Blue Bell, and we will be pleased to hear from you soon again.

WOULD LIKE NEW SONGS.

Dear Miss Grey,—I received your letter today, so thought I would write and thank you for sending me "Peggy O'Neill." It is not too much bother could I have "Margie." "Just Like a Gypsy," and "Whispering?" The songs I have are all old ones, that is why I have asked for more pieces. MISS A. B. V.

If anyone having the words of these songs send your request I am quite sure they will send them on to you. Of course, we very rarely receive the music of the songs—just the words.

Flowers and Fruit Feature Hats

BY MARIAN HALE.

London, Jan. 12.—Such a wealth of flowers and fruit and foliage as her spring hat must wear!

There's little of the sombre about the headgear being shown in smart shops. Verily, the chapeau one sees, already venturing the cold winds, are gardens, gaily colored and wondrously beautiful.

A great colorful cluster—rich in tone as wild fruits and flowers—hugs the crown of this Ponch hat and extends central note of a bunch of bright small fruits. Deep pink tan roses are poised among velvety peaches and their waxy foliage.

Color, lots of it everywhere seems to be the beautiful objective of the designers in their efforts on early hats. In a graceful vine to the edge of the wide brim.

Distinction between fruit and flowers seems to have been quite forgotten by the whole millinery world.

Cynthia Grey's Mail-Box

Dear Miss Grey,—I saw in yesterday's paper where Mary Jane wanted the recitation "Trouble in the Amen Corner." As I recited it this Christmas, I am forwarding it to you. I am 12 years old and in the fifth class in public school. I tried and passed the entrance last year.

I don't suppose I would have passed if it had not been easy. Well, I guess I better skip away.

LITTLE REDWING.

You must have known your work thoroughly when you considered the exams easy. It is when we don't know our work that we find it difficult. Thank you for copying the recitation for Mary Jane. I have forwarded it to her.

APRIL SHOWER JOINS CORNER.

Dear Miss Grey,—I have been an interested reader of your Mail-Box for some time, and I just decided I would like to become one of the many Boxites. Well, we will soon have good old spring here once more, and I am sure we will see come it. I will close now, wishing you and all the Boxites a very happy New Year. APRIL SHOWER.

We will be pleased to hear from you as often as you can write to April Shower, but next time please give us your name and address. You know, it is one of the rules of the Mail-Box that the real name and address must be given, in addition to the pen-name.

HAZEL, WHERE ART THOU?

Dear Cynthia and Boxites,—Just a line to wish you all a happy and prosperous New Year. Hazel, where are you for some time, home at you for so long. Mrs. Home at Times received your letter and request for recitations, and have mailed you a few selections. Will you send me "Fair Warning" and "So Was I."

I would like to correspond with a London girl, one who likes dancing and who is fond of sports in general and about 17. INEZ MARIE.

Why did you change your name, Inez? I think it more interesting to keep the same names. I hope you get an interesting correspondent.

ROXIE BRINGS HELP.

Dear Miss Grey,—I am coming to your cozy corner to help someone in need, as I noticed where Mary Jane wanted the poem, "Trouble in Amen Corner," and I am sending it to you to be forwarded to Mary Jane.

There does not seem to be very much room in the paper for the Mail-Box lately. I hope there will be more soon, as I enjoy reading the letters very much. Well, I guess I better stop by going before the W. P. B. returns. I will close, wishing the Mail-Box every success. Inclosed find time for kiddies.

ROXIE.

It is ever so long since we heard from you, Roxie, and I hope you won't stay away so long next time. Thanks for the hospital note, also for sending the recitation for Mary Jane.

RELATES HER EXPERIENCES IN OLD LONDON

Miss Bodley Tells London Teachers of Methods in English Schools.

LAUDS EXCHANGE PLAN

The Women Teachers' Guild of London held a very successful luncheon at the Teumess House Saturday.

When the speaker, Miss Bodley of Toronto, gave an interesting address on her teaching experiences while in London, England. Miss Bodley, who was one of the teachers who exchanged their services with the English teachers, told of the great advantage this exchange system is to the empire as a whole, and encouraged the teachers to recognize it as such.

"This exchange is carried on by the League of the Empire between Australia, India, New Zealand, Africa, England and Canada, and has a wonderful effect on the nation in general," stated Miss Bodley, who went on to say: "The schools of old London do not differ a great deal from our schools. There is no school there to correspond to our kindergartens, being the infant school, where children at the age of three may be sent, and remain until they reach the age of seven, women teachers only being employed in these schools, but the children are taught in the same manner as in our public schools."

Saw Few New Schools.

"I saw very few mixed schools, and the buildings are very similar to our own, except there are very few new ones, owing to the war."

"Little stress is laid on spelling. Script writing is taught, the freedom of the pen being an unknown thing in the schools."

"There are special schools; for example, there is one where children with defective eyes may be sent. There are also summer schools. Journey schools, where the pupils are taken on journeys for several weeks, and boarded in homes, and where hygiene, table manners, etc. are taught."

Miss Bodley informed the teachers, that if any of them offered their services in this way, that it would be a wonderful experience for them, as she had learned many things from her trip.

Visited Continent.

"The London County Council was very good to us," she stated, "and during mid-term holidays, we had wonderful trips, visiting the Canadian battlefields, Paris, Switzerland, Brussels, Ypres, Antwerp, Rome, Venice, Florence, Devonshire, and many other places of interest."

Mrs. H. B. Gahan, honorary president of the guild, presided at the banquet, giving a short address, expressing her appreciation at being invited to preside.

The tables were tastefully decorated with cyclamen and ferns, and among those noticed at the top table were: Mrs. V. K. Greer, Mrs. G. A. Wheable, Mrs. C. B. Edwards, Mrs. J. I. A. Hunt, Mrs. J. Ross, Mrs. Sherwood Fox, Miss Adkins, of St. Thomas, Mrs. F. E. Leonard, Mrs. Arthur Greenslade, Mrs. Alex. Calder, Miss Lackie and Miss Frances Cleveland.

EASY PRESSING.

An easy way to take the wrinkles out of a cloth skirt is to hang it up in the bathroom and turn on the hot water, closing the door so that the room fills with steam. Allowed to remain hanging a time the wrinkles disappear. Such treatment is good for crepe materials to which a hot iron could not be applied.

CUT OUTS.

Cut outs of brightly colored leather are being used much on frocks for small girls. They border the hem line, neck line and sleeves.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS.

THE STOVE ARRIVES

[By Olive Roberts Barton.]

A large cooking stove burst through the ground at their feet.

AS BEFORE, the little apple-tree elevator stopped when it had gone a certain distance up into the sky, high over the tree tops, and the three passengers got out.

"Here we are," said Buskins. "This is Emptyland, kiddies. Not much to see today, because we fairies cleaned it all out yesterday, but I thought that you'd like to come anyway. This is where all the things blow to when there is a big tornado down on the earth. You often hear how things are blown away and never heard of again, don't you? Well, this is the place they come to, sort of a storage house to keep them in until we fairies can return them to their owners."

"It doesn't look like a house," said Nick looking round. "It looks more like the country in my fairy-tale book, where the Giant lives, at the top of Jack's beanstalk."

"So it is," said Buskins. "It isn't a house at all, I should have said

"storeplace" or "storeland." My mistake! But, goodness me, what's that? Where's that great roaring coming from?" He had to shout it, for the sound had suddenly become so loud that it drowned every other noise.

Buskins put his ear to the ground. "Yes, sir, that's it," he shouted. "Old Whizzar Tornado is loose down on the earth again, and he's making things fly. Now watch out children, they'll be here soon," he warned, holding up a hand.

"Who?" shouted Nick.

"The things," answered the fairy-man. "There, didn't I tell you!" Suddenly there was a bang and a crash, and a large puff of black smoke, and then settled himself on the ground as though he'd never move again.

SHAPE UP PLANS FOR CONFERENCE

Starting with consideration of the subject "Pre-School Age," the educational conference of "The Campaign" which is being arranged for February, under the auspices of the London Union Mothers' Club, will be brought to a close with a discussion on "Post-School Education."

Between these two extremes all periods of education will be presented.

Under the convenship of Lieut.-Col. W. J. Brown, a second meeting of the program committee was held Saturday, at which the leading educational bodies were represented. It is proposed to leave ample time for discussion after every paper, as this is felt to be perhaps the most valuable feature of a conference. A musical demonstration will be a feature, and the question box will be given prominence both days.

Among the subjects to be included are: "What are the Western Livestock Is Doing for Western Ontario," "The Importance of Recreation in Education," "The School as a Community Centre," "Physical Care of the Child," "Public School Problems," "Collegiate Problems."

A supper the first day will afford opportunity for social intercourse, this to be followed by an illustrated university extension lecture. It is hoped to have a conducted tour of the new Collegiate Institute.

The finance committee, under the convenship of Chairman E. Smith of the school board, is meeting to make business arrangements.

The campaign has received the hearty indorsement of the Local Council of Women and Social Service Council. A letter has been sent to the city council, calling attention to the conference, which, it is expected, will bring to London a large representation of the parenthood and educators of Western Ontario.

PLEASANT WORK HELPS

SICK TO GET WELL

Toronto General Hospital was the first civilian institution of the equipment to introduce occupational therapy as an ally in restoring civilian sufferers to health, strength and a normal outlook on life.

Dr. Goldwin Howland, head of the neurological department of the hospital, on Monday evening will tell the wonderful story of this modern method of healing in the auditorium of the new medical college, under the auspices of the London Branch of the Society of Occupational Therapy, and the patronage of the Western Ontario Academy of Medicine and the Women's Canadian Club.

Occupational therapy so promptly commended itself in the Toronto General Hospital, not only as an ally in the treatment of nervous disorders, but also for chronic rheumatic affections, long surgical cases and protracted convalescence, that a second "ward aid" was speedily engaged to assist the supervisor, Mrs. Mabel L. Graham, who had the honor of introducing occupational therapy into civilian hospitals in Canada.

Improvements and cures that practically amount to miracles are being wrought through the alliance of "pleasant occupation" with scientific medical and surgical treatment. It is a story on this order which Dr. Howland will tell.

STEAMING.

Hot foods should never be put into a pantry or refrigerator. They create a steam which will ruin the other foods.

AWAIT ACTION OF KING CABINET ON U. S. ENVOY

Ottawa Observers Expect Geddes To Again Oppose Appointment.

BORDEN OFFERS TO QUIT

OTTAWA, Jan. 15.—What action the King government will take toward implementing the legislation providing for the appointment of a Canadian minister plenipotentiary at the U. S. capital is not yet known. In the meantime, however, it is interesting to note that Sir Auckland Geddes, British ambassador to Washington, proposes visiting Canada in the early future.

Three months after the Meighen government was formed Sir Auckland came to the capital, and it was rumored, offered objections to the proposed plenipotentiary on the ground that Canada's interests were not in his hands.

In his hands, no plenipotentiary was appointed, although an appropriation to cover the cost of the position was placed in the estimates. The Conservative government later declared that the appointment would be made as soon as a suitable appointment could be found.

The name of Sir Robert Borden, N. W. Rowell, Sir George Foster and others were frequently mentioned, but it is generally acknowledged today that the government was deterred by political expediency from making any appointment.

Await Irish Action. The creation of the new Irish Free State puts a new aspect on the situation. Ireland is to have the same status as the other dominions. Downing Street has offered no objection to the appointment to Washington of a minister plenipotentiary, and it is almost certain that the Irish Free State will take advantage of the fact.

While members of the present government while in the Opposition, admitted the need of Canadian representation in the United States, there was strong difference of opinion as to whether it was wise to give him diplomatic powers, and the proposal that he have charge of the British embassy in the absence of any time of the British ambassador, was strongly questioned.

Sir Robert Borden, it is stated, has tendered his resignation from the position of Canadian representative on the Imperial peace panel, but Premier W. L. Mackenzie King has requested him to remain until the conclusion of the arms conference.

EXPECT CHEAPER FRUIT CONTAINERS

London Branch of Ontario Vegetable Growers Hold Meeting.

Thirty-five members of the London Branch of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association were present at the meeting held Saturday night in the department of agricultural office.

The buying committee reported that the price of baskets and berry boxes would be somewhat lower this year, owing to keen competition among the basket factories. Last year the association handled seven carloads of baskets and boxes.

The attempt of some of the central organization executive committee to eliminate the fruit crop competition exhibits at the Western Fair and the exhibition at Kitchener and Ottawa, was thoroughly discussed and the London vegetable men will put up a strong fight in the matter at the annual convention in Toronto next month.

Celery, squash and radishes were first judged by some of the junior members, and after by the older men of the association.

An instructive talk by C. W. Baker of the Dominion Seeds Co. on "Seeds from the Seedman's Standpoint" was greatly appreciated and followed by a discussion.

President N. T. Sanderson occupied the chair.

ASSAULT DANCE AS MENACE TO YOUTH

the evangelist from the pastoral. Mr. Phillips asserted:

"I cannot help but think that a great deal of the preaching of the present day is without point and purpose. The time is wasted in going to church to hear the gospel and he will not continue to go if all he hears is a treatise on biblical history."

To save souls the preacher must constantly present the name of Jesus, by which alone men can be saved. Men must be constantly reminded of the crucifixion and the cross, the great medicine which God has provided for all the wants and woes which constantly afflict mankind.

The aim of the evangelist must be to save man and glorify Christ," was Mr. Phillips' conclusion.

Rev. T. S. Roy Speaks.

It being the occasion of Rev. Mr. Roy's last visit to a meeting of the Ministerial Alliance before his departure to West Newton, Mass., he was asked to speak.

"If a man is enabled to go straight through the week by means of a sermon he heard on Sunday, the work of the minister is not lost," said Mr. Roy. "To be saved, a man must be converted in a calm state of mind, and not swept by his emotions into a condition which he thinks is salvation. The type of conversion falls when a man comes to facing the battle of everyday life and its results are more for evil than for good."

Theatre Managers Face Task Pleasing All Kinds of Patrons

Varied Motives Impel Purchasers of Orchestra Seats, and Some Are Disappointed, But in the Topmost Gallery Everybody Thoroughly Enjoys the Program.

There once lived, if story-book lore may be believed, a certain gentleman who took great delight in passing over his domains, lifting roofs from houses when he desired, to see for himself in just what ways his subjects were enjoying themselves.

Were it possible for any person now to possess such power, it is almost a certainty among the first to file application for it would be two managers of London theatres.

Such an intimate insight into the likes and dislikes of those who make up their audiences, especially in the city of London would, if those mentioned before are to be believed, save thousands of dollars spent to put productions on their feet and save their lives after they are given birth.

Suppose, for the sake of proving a point, a visit to the Grand or Majestic theatres. Of course it will not be possible to lift the roofs from the heads of those who pack the seats from orchestra to gallery, but it is possible to watch the barometers of expression on the face, the hands, the feet. By these shall the modern visitor get insight, into the ways of his subjects.

The musicians are taking their places. Interest everywhere is evident. Some of it is born of curiosity, the remainder of appreciation. The overture starts.

The young man on the aisle next to you dives into his program. He wishes, if his harmonica is speaking correctly, that he had not come. He frowns, twitches, keeps time after a fashion with the drumbeats of the orchestra. He reads, smiles to himself, and suddenly awakes as mild applause marks the close of the number.

She is Restless, Too. Beside him a young woman, she, too, is restless. There is written plainly over her face the regret that she had not mentioned to her friend her desire to see a certain show. The music sounds strange to her. She does not realize he bought tickets because he wanted to impress her, that he, too, preferred amusement.

A few seats away, her face in smiles, the colors of her costume crying out

MACHINIST FALLS DEAD AT HIS WORK

James Jackson, Wellington Street, Victim of Heart Attack.

James Jackson of 239 Wellington street, a machinist, fell dead while repairing some machinery at the butcher shop owned by Charles Elliott, 251 Wellington street, at 10:30 o'clock Monday morning.

When one of the employees of the butcher shop went to the rear of the store, he found Mr. Jackson lying beside the machine. Edward Elliott, 251 Wellington street, called and pronounced that death was due to heart disease.

Mr. Jackson, who was 63 years old, had been proprietor of a machine shop at 239 Wellington street for a number of years.

Besides a widow, he is survived by three sons—Samuel of London, John of Galt and David of Detroit, Michigan.

The funeral services will be conducted by Rev. T. S. Roy Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Interment will be made at Mount Forest Thursday.

Obituaries

MISS LAURA PHOENIX.

The death took place Sunday of Miss Laura Phoenix, daughter of William Phoenix of 236 Egerton street. Miss Phoenix was taken suddenly ill Tuesday morning, and underwent an operation in St. Joseph's Hospital. For a few days hopes of her recovery were entertained, but she became worse, and death resulted.

Miss Phoenix was well-known among the teaching profession in this city, having taught for many years in Rectory Street School, and the last few years at Ealing School, East London.

She was a member of the Hyatt Avenue Methodist Church, but lately became a member of Dundas Street Methodist Church, where she was also a member of the choir.

Besides her father, Miss Phoenix is survived by one sister, Mrs. Frank Skinner of Georgia, and two brothers, Ernest of Wilton Grove and Edward, who is practicing medicine in Toronto.

The funeral, which will be of a private nature, will be held from the home of her father, 236 Egerton street, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

MRS. WILLIAM EVANS.

The funeral of Mrs. William Evans, who died in St. Joseph's Hospital on Wednesday, was held from her residence, 34 Weston street, on Saturday morning at 8:30 o'clock. Requiem high mass was sung by Rev. Father Forster at St. Martin's Church, South London, at 9 o'clock. Interment was made at St. Peter's cemetery.

The pall-bearers were Raymond Evans, Edward Evans, Michael Catter, W. H. McGarvey, Harry Brett and Peter McGarvey.

CONDEMN LIQUOR SHOP FOR WOMEN

Regarding a dispatch from Minting to the effect that a liquor shop would be opened in that city for the purpose of catering solely to women customers, Mrs. May R. Thornley, of the local Y. C. T. U., expressed the opinion that an enterprise of this nature would meet with the entire disapproval of the temperance body which she represents.

Rev. George Dewey, of Empress Avenue Methodist Church, also speaking on the subject, pointedly remarked that the announcement was but more evidence of the growing degradation of women in the twentieth century.

"Fortunately, we have had prohibition in this province in time to forestall such a condition," was the statement made by the Rev. Judson Kelly.

as if in pain because of their lack of harmony and proximity, is a third "subject," one of those, who since the war has found much to be thankful for.

Her hand, still bearing the marks of toll of other years, are restless. Dislike is written over her face, but she does not know it. She is pleased with herself because she came, it is a step upward, she is convinced.

To the right a bit, there sits a man, his hands and face showing effects of hard outdoor labor. He is of foreign blood, an Italian perhaps. Eerily slightly forward in his seat he heeds every note, drinks in every message of the sobbing violins or the droning basses. He is satisfying his thirst for those things of which circumstances robbed him of his youth.

There's Meek Husband. There are hundreds of others. The husband who came because his wife knew Mrs. Smith was coming and he wanted to see her new dress. The daughter, with her parents, who would rather have gone out with John and is not altogether pleased because she did not get to the couple who came in because some one told them it is quite dark when the picture is showing.

There is the old woman who can only come now and then because of the cost. In her shabby coat frock, she sits humped into her seat, her whole mind bent upon the vaudeville act. Perhaps, the observer could not help but guess she, too, has been deprived through the years of that which she loved.

But it is into the gallery the visitor must go if he would see with what great relief some drink in the entertainment. There sit many types of man and woman, those who know the stings of poverty, and whose purse cannot be made to stand the strain of the orchestra seats, and students who must make their finances stretch as far as possible.

Hundreds of these great into the gallery, and suddenly awakes as mild applause marks the close of the number.

As soon as Shantung is out of the way and perhaps sooner, the Far East committee will resume its consideration of other problems in the Orient with all the delegates in a position to present their views quickly so that the negotiations here will not be excessively prolonged.

On most of the remaining issues the delegations already have informed themselves thoroughly regarding the views of other groups and the prospect for an agreement.

The naval negotiations also appear to be settling down. The treaty text agreed to by the "big five" being regarded as virtually certain to meet the approval, successively, of the full naval committee, and of the conference itself, sitting in plenary session.

Both groups, however, probably will be held during the coming week, leaders planning to set the conference machinery in motion for final approval of the treaty as soon as Tokyo sends formal approval of the article dealing with Pacific fortifications.

Settlement of the Shantung question still rests largely in the hands of Arthur J. Balfour and Secretary Hughes, in the opinion of Chinese spokesmen.

Public utilities inaugural meeting, public utilities office, 3:30 o'clock.

Board of health meets at city hall, 4 o'clock.

The first real business session of the 1922 city council will be held at the City Hall tonight. There is quite a lot of grist for the mill and the meeting will be interesting.

It may be that Major T. J. Murphy's refusal to accept the council appointment to the senate of the Western University may be dealt with. There is a rule of the council that all matters must go before a committee before reaching the council, but as the appointment was made by the council, sitting as a body, it may waive the rule and discuss the matter in open council.

Mayor Wilson and several of the aldermen had a conference in the mayor's office after the meeting of the Railway Board this morning and it may be that the Murphy resignation was informally discussed then.

THE 1922 Board of Health will hold its inaugural meeting on Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The main item of business will be the election of a chairman. It may be that the matter of having the herds supplying the city with milk, tested for tuberculosis, will be gone into. This matter was on tap at the time the old board went out of office.

REPORTS OF THE findings, concerning the foundations of the new Lloyd George Hotel to be erected shortly in London, resulting from the digging of the test pits last week, are now in the hands of the engineers, according to those in charge of the big work. Either the last of the present week or the beginning of next week, the company in whose hands the construction of the hotel rests, is expected to begin driving piles electrically on the proposed site.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE Children's Aid Society will be held Tuesday afternoon in the courthouses. The reports to be presented to the members of the society will be most interesting, inasmuch as the number of children placed in foster homes this year has been perhaps the largest in years. The society had quite a number of boys at the shelter, and so a drive was made to find foster homes for them. The results exceeded expectations. Many extra beds were found for a large number of small boys.

A SPECIAL TRAIN will be run by the Grand Trunk to Ingersoll to carry the Alert hockey team and the fans. The train will leave the downtown depot at 7 o'clock Monday night, just after the regular train. The special will stop at East London and Dorchester. It is the request of the officials of the railroad that all going to the game should avail themselves of the special train, not proceed on the regular. If this is done, ample accommodation will be provided for the return trip; otherwise space will only be allowed for the number actually known to be at the game from London.

HOSPITAL PATIENT SUICIDES. BROCKVILLE, Jan. 15.—John Donovan, aged 36, a patient at the Ontario Hospital for the Insane, committed suicide at noon today in the hospital by hanging himself from his bed, which he had turned on its end.

SURE SHANTUNG TANGLE IS NEAR FINAL SOLUTION

Arms Conference Delegates Speed Negotiations To Clear Up Oriental Problem.

NAVAL DATA COMPLETED

Committee Confident of Acceptance of Phraseology of "Big Five" Treaty.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 15.—If the Shantung conversations make progress hoped for by conference leaders during the next two or three days the end of the coming week may see all the issues raised in the Washington negotiations well on the way toward solution.

Confidence that the Shantung problem of reaching a settlement was apparent in most quarters tonight, the delegates feeling that with the other Far Eastern questions in abeyance the separate exchanges between the Chinese and Japanese over the former German leasehold were pressed forward rapidly.

Neither the United States nor interested was prepared to say that an agreement was in sight, but they evidenced a hope that fresh instructions from Tokyo and Peking, expected hourly, might help materially to clear up the situation.

As soon as Shantung is out of the way and perhaps sooner, the Far East committee will resume its consideration of other problems in the Orient with all the delegates in a position to present their views quickly so that the negotiations here will not be excessively prolonged.

On most of the remaining issues the delegations already have informed themselves thoroughly regarding the views of other groups and the prospect for an agreement.

The naval negotiations also appear to be settling down. The treaty text agreed to by the "big five" being regarded as virtually certain to meet the approval, successively, of the full naval committee, and of the conference itself, sitting in plenary session.

Both groups, however, probably will be held during the coming week, leaders planning to set the conference machinery in motion for final approval of the treaty as soon as Tokyo sends formal approval of the article dealing with Pacific fortifications.

Settlement of the Shantung question still rests largely in the hands of Arthur J. Balfour and Secretary Hughes, in the opinion of Chinese spokesmen.

KING TO ABIDE BY LAW, NOT THREATS

in the abdomen. He is the only white seriously injured, and the report indicates definitely that this man was shot by one, Jerome Hunter. Taylor is the storekeeper who refused to give the colored boy his change, which incident precipitated the fatal race riot.

Claims Extradition Not Possible. "They can't extradite him for shooting a white man," said Mr. Howell, who has been shown the paper. "They could extradite him for killing a white man but not for just wounding him. And there is no evidence, according to that paper, that Bullock ever had a revolver."

The paper, while naming many others who took a prominent part in the riot, did not give Matthew Bullock any share in the shooting.

Local colored people are alarmed over a new development in the case. Since Matthew Bullock's arrest his father, Rev. James Bullock of Washington, D. C., had occasion to go to Norfolk on business, and now he cannot be located. In view of the feeling in the district against the Bullock family fears are entertained for his safety.

Bullock was first arrested on a vagrancy charge, but is now being held on suspicion at the request of a foreign power. Formal application for his removal from the country may be made by the officers from Norfolk, who are now on their way to the city.

If extradition proceedings are used for this purpose application will have to be made to Judge Snider, who is extradition judge for this area. So far no such application has been made. The telegram which was received by the local police from the chief of police at Norfolk, asks for the detention of Bullock, who is charged with leading a race riot in which white men were killed. Apparently there is no direct charge that Bullock did any of the shooting.

Procedure Not Settled. The procedure in the case has not been settled. If the United States authorities press for extradition, then the case will go before Judge Snider, and Police Magistrate Jelfs will have nothing to do with it. If the Canadian immigration authorities proceed against the prisoner on the charge of violating the immigration act, the prisoner will be brought before the police magistrate. Meanwhile Immigration Inspector Reynolds has served a warrant on Governor Ogilvie to hold Bullock until further instructions. His case is entered to come before the police magistrate next Friday, and the prisoner will ask that he be sentenced to a term in jail for violating the immigration act, so that he will be kept out of the clutches of the United States officers. The defence claims that the charge against Bullock, inciting race riots, is not extraditable.

W. Cook, a citizen of Norfolk, has written Chief Whitley, asking him to assure the prisoner that if he is sentenced to extradition he will get a fair trial at Norfolk. The case is being taken up by the colored people of the whole continent. Messages from all parts are being received offering Bullock aid in his fight against extradition.

[Special to London Advertiser.]
 SARNIA, Jan. 15.—Some 300 residents of Sarnia who work in Port Huron are, according to an announcement made here, subject to the new ruling of the alien income tax change.

In a statement issued, Clarence Neely, chief officer in the internal revenue department, announces that employers in Port Huron who hire Canadians from Sarnia and other parts of Lambton County, are directly responsible for withholding the amount of income tax due the United States government. Every Sarnia resident working in Port Huron now have to pay income tax on all wages over $1,000, regardless whether he is single or married.

Canadians will now have to pay 8 per cent income tax on all amounts over $1,000, and warnings are already being issued to persons who have worked in United States and have failed to pay their income tax, and have now reported to the proper authorities.

It was stated here that this United States income tax ruling is the result of the Canadian officials taxing residents of the United States who are employed in Sarnia. A number of Port Huron residents employed here have received notices to pay their Canadian income taxes.

Women To Have Bar In Montreal Safe From Motley Male Herd

[Special to London Advertiser.]

MONTREAL, Jan. 15.—It is understood that despite the emphatic disapproval of the clergy of this city the Quebec Liquor Commission plan to open at an early date a wine shop for women, which will be managed entirely by female employees.

This novel establishment is to be situated on St. Catherine street, between Mountain and Drummond streets, in the centre of Montreal's uptown district, and in the immediate vicinity of the principal stores in which women are wont to do their daily shopping.

Wine, it is said, will be the only beverage sold. The purpose of this store is to make it possible for women to purchase wine without being compelled to "rub shoulders" with the motley throng of males, who frequent the ordinary liquor depots.

For Elgin County Judgeship

OTTAWA, Jan. 15.—(By Canadian Press).—The week-end witnessed the exit from the capital of cabinet ministers who are sufficiently near to their ridings to pay them a flying visit over Saturday and Sunday.

With nomination day for ministerial by-elections in fourteen constituencies next Thursday, members of the cabinet are naturally anxious to keep in touch with the political situation at home. A number of them have been suggested as possible nominees for the coming election.

Indications are that there will be a number of acclamations, especially in Quebec, but it is expected some of the Ontario ministers will meet with opposition. Speculation continues as to where Hon. Charles Stewart will find a seat. If he is to appear in the House of Commons.

Haney has already entered an appeal. In the case of Frank Holling, Police Magistrate J. J. Jarvis reserved judgment for a week.

Rev. Mr. Harding of the Wilketport Methodist Church was a witness, and testified that Attorney Haney had again admitted he had carried a gun, and had aided County Constable Scott.

The courtroom was crowded beyond capacity, and scores were unable to gain admittance.

NEWSPAPER SUPPORTERS WIN.
 THORNDALE, Jan. 15.—A debate entitled "Resolved that newspapers are of more benefit than books" was held at Wycliffe School on Friday.

The affirmative was supported by Arnold Gee and Verna Barber, and the negative by Kenneth Walters and Madeline Brown. It was decided in favor of the affirmative.

Following the telegram received from Attorney-General Haney, Rev. J. R. Hall was a visitor in police court Saturday during the trial of James Holling, who was fined $500 and costs for a breach of the O. T. A. and in whose case Attorney W. A. D. was present.

In making a romance of historic material Griffith has pivoted his action about Lillian Gish as Henriette. Dorothy Gish, the comedian, plays with finesse the part of Louise, the blind sister.

Joseph Schildkraut, the roughneck hero of "Lilium," is a revelation as the romantic Chevalier De Vaudrey. This is his first film appearance, but he is a better pantomimist than many of the slick-haired heroes who have he forth before the camera for years.

Others of the cast who did intensive work were Frank Losee, M. Wallace, Sheldon Lewis, Frank P. Creighton, Hale and Adolphe Lee. There were unnamed players in mob who in small moments also showed they were something more than extras.

the me. This scene is cut in a out of scenes of Danton rushing with the reprieve at the head of a cavalcade. It is prolonged until it loses its realism its thrill.

And in the end Danton is not guttured as he was in history, but triumphs over Robespierre and restores peace and contentment so that the fade-out may show the lovers in happy reunion. That was the work of Griffith, the showman. What an unforgettable tragedy he could have made of the film!

But in the last reel Griffith, the showman, got the upper hand of his artist self. Henriette is fastened in the guillotine. The trigger that holds up impending cleaver slips a bit. The hand that holds the release is up on a rope. This scene is cut in a number of scenes of Danton rushing with the reprieve at the head of a cavalcade. It is prolonged until it loses its realism and its thrill.

At the end Danton is not guillotined as he was in history, but triumphs over Robespierre and restores peace and contentment so that the fade-out may show the lovers in happy possession of their freedom and of life, the showman. What an unforgettable tragedy he could have made of the film!
