

UTILITIES PAY; MAYOR DIDN'T SIGN CHECKS

Celebrated Explorer In City, Guest of London Kiwanians

UTILITY PAY CHECKS NOT SIGNED BY MAYOR SO 'GHOST WALKS' LATE

Office Help in Public Utilities Department Did Not Receive Pay Envelopes as Usual—Mayor Absent From City Hall and Acting Mayor Would Not Sign Checks.

ANOTHER PHASE OF "PAY LIST" DISPUTE

It's "pay-day on the old plantation," but employees in the public utilities office went home at noon without the customary envelope.

Whether Mayor Wenige intends to play out his hand or not, it is acknowledged at the city hall that he has "tied things up." Public utilities officials instituted a search at noon today for their departmental checks, but failed to locate them.

"I have them up a tree, I believe," was the flat announcement from the mayor this afternoon, indicating that he was in the fight to the finish—for better or for worse.

The mayor left the hall early on "personal business," leaving Ald. P. J. Watt as acting mayor in his indefinite absence. The latter, regretted point-blank to affix his signature to the necessary documents unless he was furnished with vouchers "to indicate what he was signing."

"Will we have our pay today?" is the timely query in the public utilities circles, but Oliver Ellwood, secretary-treasurer, announced, "There will be no pay this noon at any rate."

It was explained to The Advertiser at noon that it was long past the pay hour, but that elusive bi-monthly allowance had not been forthcoming.

Mayor Wenige declined to discuss the question except briefly. The fight has not been dropped, he said, explaining again that "it is 1923."

He related that he was in receipt of an official communication from the commissioners or their officials. "They tell me that they are holding the pay list back because I have been too persistent," he stated. "But this is not the end."

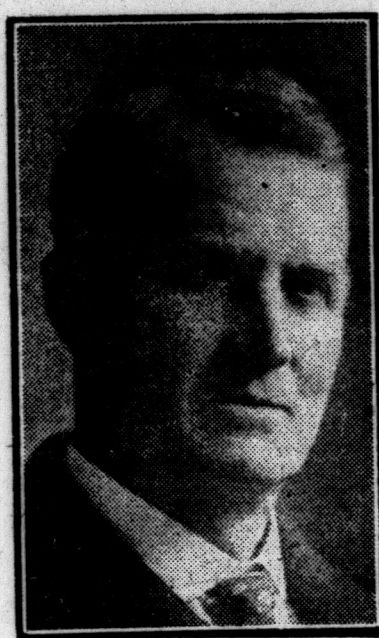

"Something Doing."

"There will be something doing tomorrow," promised his worship, and the indications are that there will be "something doing" before that—as early as 5 p.m. this afternoon, possibly—if the checks are not forthcoming in the meanwhile.

Along about that time the "boys" come in to the city hall from the hydro stations, and from off the telephone poles, and city hall officials shudder as they think what may happen if there is nothing for them to sign.

There seems to be some question as to where the coveted checks are at this moment. They are not in the public utilities commission office. They were not on the mayor's desk and when utilities officials called on city Auditor Ashplant, he failed to learn of their whereabouts.

"The mayor may have them in his pocket," vouchsafed one official, or "he may have them over in his safe."

U. S. HOUSEWIVES BOYCOTT SUGAR TO LOWER PRICE

The Women's Organizations Throughout the Country Urge Drastic Action.

ALL CURTAIL BUYING

Trend Is Against Purchase of Sugar, Even Where There Is No Organized Boycott.

Special to The Advertiser.
Washington, D. C., April 26.—A boycott movement against sugar profiteers is under way in several cities of the country and contemplated by housewives' organizations in other cities. Women in eleven large centers are taking action to lower the cost. Their activities are shown in the following summary today:

Baltimore.—The State Federation of Women's Clubs adopted a resolution urging a boycott until the price of sugar and sweets returns to normal. Petitions were circulated for the boycott.

Sandiego.—Housewives league announced a boycott.

Lincoln, Neb.—Women's Club passed a resolution urging conservative use until high prices are passed.

Indianapolis.—Housewives' league members are buying only enough sugar to last from day to day, though no official action has been taken or contemplated.

San Francisco.—Sugar strike is discussed by housewives league, but not yet put into effect.

Dallas.—Mrs. E. R. Ballard, acting president Mothers' Council, announced that they will start a movement to stop sugar buying here.

Chicago.—Mayor Dever endorsed boycott though there is no organized movement yet.

New York.—Mrs. Julian Heath, chairman of home economics committee and members of two hundred women's organizations decided to seek official aid from the state and federal governments.

Boston.—Florence H. Luscomb, head of the league of women voters, declared a boycott was a good way to stop "absolute and unjustified profiteering."

DRURY BELIEVES U. F. O. IS UNITED ON BIG MATTERS

Expresses Gratification Over Resolution Issued Yesterday by Executive.

DIFFERENCES EXIST

Declares Mr. Morrison Has Never Sought To Dictate Policy of Government.

Special to The Advertiser.
Toronto, April 27.—Premier Drury this afternoon issued the following statement in regard to the agreement reached between himself and the U. F. O. executive:

"The resolution passed by the executive of the U. F. O. yesterday, expressing their intention to lend support to the election of United Farmer candidates upholding the platform and principles of the organization, is exceedingly gratifying to me. Though in minor, and unimportant points, there may have been differences of opinion, I have believed all along that in broad matters of policy and administration, there was substantial agreement."

"Reports to the contrary have no better basis than statements that have been circulated that Mr. Morrison has sought to dictate the policy of the government. Though Mr. Morrison and I have differed on some questions, he has never sought to dictate the policy of the government. In a proper and fitting manner, as he has a perfect right to do."

STATES TO PROBE FIRING ON SHIP BY CANADIAN PATROL

U. S. Consul at Vancouver Is Instructed To Proceed With Investigation.

DENY CREW TAKEN

Canadian Fisheries Officers Did Not Arrest American Captain and Crew.

Associated Press Despatch.
Washington, April 27.—Frederick M. Ryder, U. S. consul at Vancouver, was instructed by Secretary of State Hughes today to investigate the firing on the U. S. schooner Sileam by a Canadian fisheries patrol, which resulted in the death of J. M. York, a member of the Sileam's crew.

CAPTAIN NOT ARRESTED.
Associated Press Despatch.
Vancouver, B. C., April 27.—Denial of the report that Captain Courage and three members of the crew of the Seattle fishing boat Sileam, who escaped when their boat was seized by the Canadian fisheries patrol, had been arrested is contained in late reports from Victoria last night.

It is said the report of the capture was sent to fisheries headquarters in Vancouver through a misunderstanding. "Reports to the contrary have been construed to mean that the men had been captured. It is believed in some quarters that the four men wanted by Canadian authorities on a charge of poaching in Canadian waters, are still aboard the Seattle fish carrier Jennie, and that the Jennie was somewhere off the west coast of Vancouver Island last night."

STEFANSSON SEES NEW MEAT SUPPLY IN FRIENDLY OVIBOS IN FAR NORTH

Noted Explorer in London Today, Expects Domesticated Musk Ox to Solve Many Problems.

NOT BARREN ARCTIC

Canada's Greatest Far North Voyager Says Region Is Really Fertile.

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, famous Canadian explorer of the Arctic, arrived in London at noon today, for a series of lectures this afternoon. In an interview with The Advertiser, Mr. Stefansson painted a graphic word-picture of the "friendly" Arctic, showing how its development was one of the vital factors in Canadian prosperity.

Rugged, keen-eyed, full of enthusiasm, the noted explorer, in vivid detail took his interviewees to the waste lands of the north. But he showed that Northern Canada should not be known as waste land. It grows more than 300 different kinds of plants. It is the home of the greatest potential source of animal food in the world—the reindeer and musk-ox.

"Vilhjalmur Stefansson can narrate an adventure in a tense, economical way that would not shame Defoe. He can state a scientific truth in a manner that would be no disagree to Huxley. And he can put into cautious, well-reasoned discourses a zeal for the future and a spirit of prophecy that do not fall short of imaginative poetry."

New Source of Food.
In addition to his writing and lecturing, the great thing demanding his time nowadays is educating the people to the tremendous possibilities of providing Canada with meat from the musk-ox, or ovibos. His efforts are being devoted to a system of domesticating these animals. And when he is successful, as he confidently hopes to be, it will be the first time since prehistoric times that any wild animals had been domesticated.

"The newest development," said Stefansson, replying to a question relating to his experiences, "is that reindeer was served for the first time in Toronto restaurants two weeks ago. They are using the meat in New York, and the only impediment to its general consumption is lack of cold storage facilities on the steamers."

"But I do not want to talk of the reindeer. That's all old to the public. It's the musk-ox which is interesting. We have renamed this animal the 'friendly' reindeer. It has been introduced to Europe by Columbus."

"I would rather call it the ovibos," he continued, "because it is not a reindeer. It is a prejudice against it. Many people will eat caribou but will not eat musk-melons."

Stefansson does not waste words defending the Arctic. He says that often ideas which the average person has of the north, are wrong.

Stefansson is the Canadian of the pathless Arctic. He is the man who, first of men, white and Eskimo, plunged into the drifting, frozen wilderness of the Polar Sea, and after his companions had abandoned his reckless audacity, and given him up for dead, returned years later to mock their little faith. Stefansson did this thing that others deemed impossible. Armed with only his own wit and ingenuity, he lived for years off the seemingly sterile ice. That is his unique and incomparable achievement. He has shown that there are

GIRL SACRIFICES LIFE TO SAVE BABY BROTHER

Hazel Perry, Thirteen Years Old, Throws Child From Stalled Car.

Associated Press Despatch.
Union town, Pa., April 27.—Miss Hazel Perry, aged 13, yesterday sacrificed her life to save that of her 3-year-old brother Herbert.

An automobile, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Perry and five children, stalled on a crossing of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Oliver, near here, as a speeding passenger train approached. All leaped from the car except Herbert, too young to realize the impending danger. Glancing back, Hazel saw her brother still in the car. She ran to the machine, grabbed Herbert and threw him to safety, just as the train struck the automobile, killing her instantly.

FEEL SIR ADAM BECK SHOULD BE SELECTED

St. Catharines Conservatives May Nominate Hydro Chief in Riding.

Canadian Press Despatch.
St. Catharines, April 27.—Conservatives for the riding of St. Catharines will meet tomorrow to name a provincial candidate. Several prospective candidates have declined to stand for business reasons. Ex-Mayor Graves, who was defeated last January because of his failure to support the cause of hydro radicals, is understood to have practically a clear way to the nomination unless a strong hydro candidate looms up at the convention.

There is a growing feeling among hydro radical Conservatives, that the nomination should be tendered to Sir Adam Beck.

ASKS BRITAIN TO HELP CHECK LIQUOR ABUSE

America Sends Friendly Note to Britain on Smuggling Trade.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, April 27.—Lloyd George has sent another note to Great Britain with reference to liquor smuggling, the Daily Telegraph's diplomatic correspondent learns. The note, he says, is of the friendliest character, and invites Great Britain to consider how it could co-operate with the United States in checking the abuse.

PRINCE OF WALES LEAVES FOR BRUSSELS UNVEILING

Associated Press Despatch.
London, April 27.—The Prince of Wales left this morning for Brussels, as a representative of the British government, he is to attend the unveiling of a memorial to commemorate Belgium's kindness to Britain's troops in the great war. The prince's itinerary includes a visit to Zeebrugge, and some of the battlefields.

200 Best Spellers Remain For Next Week's Semi-Final In Advertiser's Big Match

Spelling Contest Reaches Half-Way Mark Today—Next Two Weeks Will Pick Champions From 4,000 Contestants.

The Advertiser's big spelling match reached the half-way mark today, and the next two weeks will see the champion spellers of the whole city emerge from the 4,000 boys and girls of 25 London schools who entered the contest last week.

All five groups have now completed the second round, in which each group of schools has picked its ten best spellers in grades 5, 6, 7 and 8—a total of 200 winners.

The winners in the Northeast and Southeast groups have already been published. The lists from the Central, Northwest and Southwest groups will be given in The Advertiser tomorrow.

Arrangements for the semi-finals of the big match next week are now complete and will be explained in detail in tomorrow's Advertiser. The semi-finals will choose from the 200 group champions the city's ten best spellers in each of the four grades, 5, 6, 7 and 8.

To the forty winners in the semi-finals The Advertiser is offering as prizes gold watches and strings of pearls. To the 160 eliminated will go other watches and jeweled bracelets.

Watch The Advertiser tomorrow for the remainder of this week's winners and arrangements for the semi-finals.

THREE BOATS FOUND OF WRECKED VESSEL

Search Still Continues for the Passengers of Portuguese Steamer Mossamedes.

Associated Press Despatch.
Walvis Bay, Southwest Africa, April 27.—Three boats belonging to the wrecked Portuguese steamer Mossamedes have arrived at Port Alexander, Angola.

Despatches from Capetown Thursday said the Portuguese mail steamer Mossamedes, which grounded several days ago at Cape Frio, Southwest Africa, had been found abandoned, with no sign of the 237 passengers she carried. Grave anxiety was felt for the safety of the steamer's boats, owing to the lack of good landing places and the fact that a heavy sea was running. The passengers included 29 women and 25 children, nearly all Portuguese. The Capetown message said the British steamer Port Victor, which had heard the S. O. S. calls when 280 miles away from the disabled vessel, ran to her assistance, but found her abandoned about midnight on Tuesday. The Port Victor continued searching for the boats.

REVEALS HAREM LIFE IN THE HOUSE OF DAVID

Benjamin Hill Tells Startling Details of Midnight Religious Rites of Colony.

Special to The Advertiser.
St. Joseph, Mich., April 27.—The House of David was a House of Bondage, witnesses today told investigators into the religious cult.

Stories of harem life in the supposed virgin house of Shifol, home of "King" Benjamin Purnell, ruler of the colony, were revealed.

The claim for celibacy and virginity, made for followers of King Benjamin was regarded as a joke within the colony, a former "pillar" declared.

Benjamin Hill, the chief witness to testify in the probe so far, who was caught while fleeing with Lillian Hannaford, revealed new and startling details of the midnight religious rites, in the colony.

DELOME CASE LAWYER NAMED FOR JUDGESHIP

Special to The Advertiser.
Quebec, April 27.—From semi-official sources it was learned here this morning that the appointment of J. C. Welch, K.C., one of the Montreal crown prosecutors, to the superior court bench will be made within a few days.

This appointment has been favored by the Quebec Bar Association and endorsed by officials in charge of the administration of justice. It is understood that Sir Lomer Gouin, minister of justice, will announce the nomination within a few days. Mr. Welch has been in the limelight in many cases, but more so in the famous Delorme case last year, when he acted for the crown.

YOUTHS ARE SENTENCED ON CHARGES OF THEFT

Guelph and Preston Boys Will Be Sent to Reformatory.

Although but 20 years old, Frank Haliko of Guelph, who has pleaded guilty to breaking, entering and stealing from an Elfrid Township home, has served terms in the industrial school and Kingston penitentiary for theft and robbery. Today Magistrate Graydon, in the hope that the boy might reform, did not send him back to the penitentiary, but sentenced him to an indeterminate period of not less than three months and not more than two years less one day in the Ontario reformatory.

His partners-in-crime, George Watson of Preston and Edward Sinkalovich of Guelph, also were dealt with today. Watson being sent to the reformatory for the same indeterminate period and Sinkalovich being granted suspension of sentence. As the latter is but 17 years old, and has never been in trouble before, leniency was shown him. He will be held in jail until relatives call to take him back to Guelph.

Watson has been convicted of theft in other courts. He is 19, when sentence was passed on him, he grinned.

Ann Grant, an aged vagrant, picked up on the streets by police yesterday, is being held pending an examination as to her sanity.

GOVERNMENT MAJORITY REDUCED ON LABOR BILL

Defeats "Prevention of Unemployment" Measure by But 24 Votes.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, April 27.—The government's majority in the House of Commons was again reduced to 24 today when the second reading of the Laborite measure for the "prevention of unemployment" was defeated by 166 to 142. The Government opposed the bill, but did not make the vote a question of confidence.

ONE STUDENT KILLED, 6 HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Fatality Near Chicago Blamed on Varsity "Class War."

Special to The Advertiser.
Chicago, Ill., April 27.—One Northwestern University freshman was killed and six other persons injured, one seriously, in an automobile wreck which was blamed on a Varsity "class war" today.

Louis Aubre, Chicago, was killed, another freshman, Ralph Williams, Harlan, Ky., is unconscious in Evanston Hospital with a fractured skull, and possible internal injuries.

The machine was wrecked when it collided with a car driven by Mrs. Arthur Winslow. Mrs. Winslow and Mrs. I. W. Jordan, returning from a theatre party, were also slightly injured. The freshman car was declared to have been attempting to evade a carload of sophomores, who were trying to thwart the search for the kidnapped lower classman.

HEARST AND ROWELL DENY HICKS CHARGES

Declare They Knew of No Movement to Bring Them Into Ontario Cabinet.

Special to The Advertiser.
Toronto, April 27.—Sir William Hearst and Hon. N. W. Rowell today denied all knowledge of a movement to bring them into the Ontario cabinet, as charged by Andrew Hicks of South Huron, yesterday.

"So far as I am concerned such a thing was never mentioned," said Sir William Hearst. "Nor did such a thing ever occur to me in any shape, manner or form. I was never approached or spoken to. You may add that I am out of politics."

"The first I heard of it was the statement appearing in the paper," said Hon. N. W. Rowell. "I have no knowledge of it in any shape or form."

WHAT IS FERGUSONS O. T. A. STAND?

LOCAL KIWANIS HEAR STEFFANSON ON NORTH CANADA

Explorer Is Anxious To See Reindeer Bred in That Territory.

GRASS INTO MEAT

Believes That Twenty Years Will See Musk Ox Meat in Our Markets.

An unusually large number of Kiwanians, as well as many visitors, met at the Tecumseh House at noon today to hear V. Steffansson, the noted Canadian explorer, who was the speaker at the regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club.

"There could be for me no greater honor," he said, in commencement, "than to have my name associated with the development of Northern Canada."

"The terror which was once associated with the tropical regions has gradually been abolished by exploration and educational enlightenment, but we are just commencing the abolishment of the terrors of the north country."

"Educated with you in Canadian schools," he continued somewhat dryly, "I shared the common ignorance of the Canadian concerning his own land. The public school text books are much to blame for this state of affairs."

"I can cite particularly one paragraph which refers to the country around Great Bear Lake, as 'a bleak and desolate region, where trees take four hundred years to grow to a height of six feet.'"

Knows Country. "I know that country better than any other white man, with the exception of the Hudson Bay traders, and I have seen spruce, two hundred miles north of the lake, growing tall and straight, to a height of ninety feet and more. And the impenetrable forests near the shores of the great lake itself are a wealth of pulp wood."

"Since this is forestry week, I would speak particularly of the need of conserving our own forests."

"The rest of Mr. Steffansson's address was in a humorous vein. He spoke of the newspapers as the great consuming agency of pulp wood, and then pictured an arrangement of radio by which all the family could dispense with the morning newspaper, and by merely pushing a button receive themselves with the particular sort of news they fancied."

"Think of the amiable discussions it would start at breakfast time, when father and mother would dispute, father anxious to push the button and hear the stock brokers reports and mother anxious to find out what was good in the bargain sales."

Trend Northward.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Mr. Steffansson's address was so greatly enjoyed that he was pressed to speak further, and he gave a brief talk on the gradual trend of civilization northward, making reference to the early days of Rome when it was believed impossible that any race, except barbarians, could live north of the Alps.

"Now," he said, "there are a great many people living in Paris by choice." "I am anxious to see reindeer bred in the north country in order that the grass there can be turned into meat," he said. "It will be twenty years or so before

MAYOR REFUSES AID TO C. W. AND L. E. LINE

Chatham Council Head Predicts Radicals Will Not Last Long.

Special to The Advertiser.

Chatham, April 27.—The city of Chatham is not likely to extend any assistance to the C. W. and L. E. electric railway company so that it can place its tracks in the centre of Queen street, according to a rumor current in the city hall this morning.

Opinions voiced by Mayor Harrington, Alderman Fitzsimmons, chairman of the board of works, and City Manager Fuller, are to the effect that it would be foolish to give consideration to any proposals of the railway which might involve the city to any great extent. Mayor Harrington expressed the opinion that any aid extended to the radial company "would be bad business. Radicals will go out of business in a few years anyway, so why tie up a lot of money in this one."

WILL PURCHASE NEW CARS FOR TORONTO STREET RY.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, April 27.—The Toronto Transportation Company will purchase cars to the value of $1,650,000 this year, according to the program approved, subject to certain adjustments, by the board of control at a private meeting yesterday afternoon. It will also purchase snow-fighting equipment and buses to the value of $90,000, a total for rolling stock of $1,750,000.

The entire program for the year, including trackage, to be spent by the T. T. C. is estimated at $5,000,000. Before we can see muskox meat on our markets, but it will come eventually. "It is no use trying to get a government to help with anything of this sort. One government takes delight in calling the policies of the government which preceded it visionary instead of far-sighted, and so to make headway with any enterprise requiring years to see its culmination, it is necessary to obtain private, philanthropic or educational capital."

WONDER AT STAND OF CONSERVATIVE ON O. T. A. QUESTION

Political Riddle Still Remains Unsolved in London Circles.

"BROADENING OUT"

E. R. Dennis Suggests Matter Be Left to Leader of Party.

One of the political riddles now being propounded locally is where is G. Howard Ferguson, leader of the Ontario Conservatives, when the Ontario temperance act is under the gun? People are beginning to wonder whether he stands for its fulfilment to the letter for all time to come or is he more inclined toward tolerance and favorably to a "broadening out" program? Some are even asking whether the Conservative chiefs propose to "double-cross" the rank and file with a "broadening out" program before the election, and a flat refusal to tamper with the legislation, after the smoke of battle has cleared.

The "beer and light wine" suggestion has aroused more than a little interest, particularly among the conservatives, who already seem to be impressed with the rumor—one will admit responsibility for its origin—that once in power, G. Howard Ferguson and his followers would be willing to consider a "modified" form of the O. T. A.

No Statement.

There has been no official declaration to this effect, however. No definite proposal has yet been emanated from the provincial headquarters. Everything is "hear-say," and the masses are clamoring for some official statement from G. Howard Ferguson.

The other evening, in an address before the Stratford Conservative Association, E. R. Dennis, retiring president of the local body, and one of the prospective standard-bearers in London, was challenged on this very point.

"Where do we stand on the O. T. A.?" he was asked in effect by one of the assembly.

"Leave that question to the leader," shot back Mr. Dennis. "The Advertiser today asked Mr. Dennis just what he meant by that reply—'leave it to the leader.'"

"Just what I said—leave it to our leader," replied Mr. Dennis. "I think that such would be the best solution, especially when we have such a good leader."

Not Political Issue. "Personally, I do not care to discuss the relative merits of the O. T. A.," he continued. "I do not consider that it is a political issue."

This indicates, in a fair measure, the general feeling at local headquarters among the "chiefs." They do not care to discuss the O. T. A. in any manner, preferring to leave it apparently, to be considered after the election.

This attitude is far from pleasing to the greater proportion of the followers, after the insinuations of the "misericord" attitude, and they want to know before the election starts just what prizes are extended.

In certain districts the Conservatives are not content to wait for G. Howard Ferguson to raise his hand. Down Essex way they have incorporated a "mild" clause in their platform, and they are going to carry it into the fray. It should be a popular slogan in the Border Cities and district.

Complicates Matters. Incidentally the spectacular entry into the local arena of a full-fledged opponent to the O. T. A. has certainly complicated matters for the Conservatives and created quite a little flurry among the stalwarts.

To The Advertiser today J. M. Donahue gave ample assurance that he would not retire from the field. "I will be in the race, unless some one of the parties will openly take up my platform," he declared, most emphatically.

In the meanwhile, following closely upon last night's "round-up" comes the report from behind the Conservative battlements that all "petty jealousies have been eliminated, discord gives way to harmony, and the party will now present a united front to the common enemy."

That this will mean another "Beck crusade" is the intelligence to be derived today from the younger members of the association, who proclaim that all differences have been forgotten—temporarily at least—members of the different factions uniting after a realization that a split in the party would likely lead to defeat.

Lending strength to this impression is the significant fact that the greater number of the officers elected at last night's session of the association are supposed "dyed-in-the-wool" supporters of the "hydro knight."

The only difficulty now would be, it is further explained, that Sir Adam might decline the nomination, thereby throwing the party again into chaos at the last moment.

HENSALL

Hensall, April 26.—Leslie Kerr spent the week-end with his parents in Seaford.

Mr. W. T. A. Bell of Toronto is home spending a few days with his mother, Mrs. Bertha Bell, prior to his departure for Montreal.

The dance held in the town hall last Friday night under the auspices of the Hensall Hockey Club, was a decided success. The following were the prize-winners, Mrs. Geo. Smale, Miss Ruby Churchill, Joe Burnie, and Robert Robinson.

Mrs. W. Kerr of Seaford spent the week-end with her sister, Maude Porter.

Mrs. G. V. Laughton and son Van of Toronto are spending a few weeks with Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McDonnell, Mrs. Laughton's parents.

Mrs. Mervyn Johnson of Windsor is visiting with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Johnson of Hay.

Mrs. Simms and children who have been visiting Mrs. Jas. Sangster, returned this week to their home at Colborne.

A number of Oddfellows of Hensall Lodge motored to Exeter Sunday last to attend divine anniversary services with their Exeter brethren in James Street Methodist Church.

KIWANIS PRESENT COURTESY PRIZES

Most Courteous Officials in the City Honored at Kiwanis Luncheon.

"The fact that both these prizes go to officials of the street railway company puts it up to Kiwanian Sam Baker to find out what's the matter with the city hall," commented Rev. Dr. William Beattie, amid much laughter, as he presented the Kiwanis Courtesy Week prizes to the two winners, Alex. Fitzsimmons and Jacob Stielhof, officials of the London Street Railway, at the regular Kiwanis Club meeting today.

"Anyhow," he continued, "I'm glad to see the prizes going to men who belong to an institution which has received as many hard knocks as our street railway company."

Frank Hain, a Kiwanis boy, was presented with a nest-egg of five dollars from the Kiwanis Club, he being voted the most courteous boy in London by his associates at the Y. M. C. A.

Kiwanian Harry Muir, representing The London Advertiser, presented to Frank Gray, the Advertiser prize for the man who first nominated the winner.

TWELVE ARE BURNED TO DEATH IN NEW YORK FIRE

TWELVE KILLED AS FIRE SWEEPS N. Y. TENEMENT

Tenants Flee Down the Fire Escape, Dropping to Roof of a Taxicab Below.

ORIGIN IS UNKNOWN

Several Firemen and Policemen Are Badly Burned in Effecting Rescues.

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, April 27.—Twelve persons were believed to have died in a fire which swept through a tenement building in East 10th street early today. A family of five were among the victims, perishing in a fifth-floor apartment. Scores fled the flame-filled structure by way of the fire escapes, while a dozen others were rescued by the police and firemen.

Twenty persons were injured, many of them seriously. Several firemen and policemen were burned in effecting rescues. Ten of the dead perished in the building. The other two had been removed to a hospital, where they died of shock and burns. Many of the tenants, clad only in their night clothes, fled down a rear fire escape, which ended at the first floor, 25 feet above the ground. A taxicab driver drove his car beneath the safety platform, the fire victims dropping to the roof of the car and from there to the ground. Many of the injured were taken to hospitals at the same time.

The fire was in a five-story tenement house within three blocks of a six-floor structure at Lexington avenue and 10th street, in which fifteen persons died in a fire last Oct. 21. The Lexington avenue fire was said to have been of incendiary origin. The origin of today's fire has not been determined.

Find Charred Bodies.

When firemen were able to enter the shell of the burned building an hour and a half after the fire started, they found ten charred bodies on the top floors, those of two women, two girls, three men and three boys. All were removed to the city morgue which was soon thronged with hysterical men and women trying to identify them.

Two of the injured died at Beth David Hospital, Benj. Mandelbaum, 8 years old, and an unidentified woman. Seven of the dead were members of the family of David Mandelbaum, a painter, who had planned to move today to a little farm upstate which he recently purchased. They were Mrs. Mandelbaum, and her children, Alexander 4, Benjamin 8, Morris 10, Michael 12, Minnie 16, and a year-old baby.

The other dead were Aaron Kuskis, his wife, their daughter Bertha 21, their son David 15, and a relative, Mrs. Isaac Brownstein, who was visiting them for the night. Many more persons would have been trapped by the flames, according to the police, had it not been for Michael Kaufman, a city employee, living across from the burned tenement, who discovered the fire. Seeing smoke and flames shooting from a fourth floor window, Kaufman telephoned a fire alarm, and immediately rushed across the street into the burning building and ran through the halls of the five floors blowing a police whistle between shouts of "Fire!" He fled from the building the rapidly spreading flames enveloped the wooden stairway driving the forty or more tenants, still in the building.

to seek safety through the windows or on the fire escapes.

Sounds Alarm.

Arriving at the street Kaufman continued to blow his police whistle until he had attracted the attention of Angelo Mugatta, a taxi driver, who drove his car beneath the fire escape landing at the first floor, from which the terror-stricken tenants dropped to the cab's roof. With the arrival of the fire department, which had been called by three alarms, a half dozen men and women were found to be hanging from window sills, and were brought to safety after thrilling rescues.

A number of persons who stood at windows, their forms silhouetted against the flames behind them, were only prevented from jumping from the fourth and fifth floors by the encouraging shouts of firemen, who hastily ran up aerial ladders and carried them to the street. In addition to the family of five, believed to have perished in a top floor apartment, another family of three died in a fourth floor apartment. All were burned beyond recognition. Of those taken to the hospitals, several were believed to have been fatally burned or injured. Firemen said later that the fire was believed to have originated in some garbage under the stairway on the

Laity of Church Approves New Anglican Prayer Book

Lord Phillimore Expects the Revision Will Lead to Stopping Extreme Practices.

By HENRY SOMERVILLE. Special Cable to The Advertiser. Copyright.

London, April 27.—The house of laity of the national assembly of the Church of England gave general approval, following example of the house of bishops last week, to prayer book revision. General approval is equivalent to a second parliamentary reading, but what corresponds to the parliamentary committee stage has still to come and changes in detail can be introduced. It was only the possibility of future amendments that induced opponents to allow the general approval. The secretary of the assembly said each of the proposals of revision can be separated from the measure as a whole.

"The difference is between an egg and a basket of eggs. If you've an egg bad in parts, you can reject the whole of it. If you've a basket of eggs, some of which appear bad, throw out the bad ones, but don't throw away the whole basket." He said, by way of explanation: "As the measure contains some proposals which all parties want, the revision is approved. But there will be still fighting over particular eggs." Lord Phillimore argued that the bishops would have a stronger hand in stopping extreme practices. If the revision is allowed, he said, "we don't want the clergy, as some are doing today, murmuring to themselves private prayers from the Roman canon."

Lord Hugh Cecil said he quite expected that, even after revision, some of the clergy would exceed their new liberty, and it would be necessary to have a measure of church discipline, but he did not want to mix up disciplinary methods with the prayer book revision machinery, for discipline was an extremely complicated matter. Disregard by clergy of lawful authority of bishops had gone so far it was difficult to get it back, but he had great hopes from the proposed revision.

The executive is seeking new thrills and sensations for the week, in an effort to get away from the old-fashioned program usually featured by a road carnival. With this in view, the members are getting in touch with every club this week. It has been decided to invite the ministers of the city to hold a go-to-church Sunday to start the week. As far as possible, the usual place of the Market Square, the usual place of the celebration for the most part will likely be held in Queen's Park. At the present time, no side-shows have been secured, but it is expected that several contracts will be signed within a few weeks.

CONSUL FOR U. S. LEAVING RUSSIA; WARNS CITIZENS

Report Tuck To Return From Vladivostok With Staff on May 1.

BRITISH MAY FOLLOW

Withdrawal Is Said To Be in Accordance With Policy Toward Soviets.

Associated Press Despatch. Harbin, Manchuria, April 27.—S. Pinckney Tuck, United States consul at Vladivostok, has announced he is leaving the Soviet far eastern capital with his staff May 1, and has advised all United States citizens in the country to do likewise, according to advices received today. It was also stated that Vice-Consul Edward B. Thomas, stationed at Chita, is leaving on the same date.

BRITISH MAY LEAVE

Tokio, April 27.—The United States and British consulates at Vladivostok are to be closed in the near future, according to reports received here. Then vernacular press prints special despatches from Vladivostok, evidently inspired in Soviet quarters, wherein it is said that the United States consul has decided to close his consulate, because of a "deportation order" issued by the Soviet authorities, following "the sale of some arms to whites." (The "whites" are anti-Bolshevik forces.) The withdrawal of the British consul is said to be in accordance with the recently adopted policy towards Soviet administration.

STEFANSSON SEES NEW MEAT SUPPLY

no ice barriers to man's complete and final conquest of this globe.

Dreams of an Empire.

In spite of this, he is the most simple and unassuming of men. He will talk of his own accomplishments, but his main concern is to further the interests of Canada in the far north. He dreams of adding a huge northern empire to Canada, and it can only be done by the reindeer and the musk ox, or ovibos, as he prefers to call it. In Alaska there are 250,000 reindeer. He is anxious to see the so-called barren lands of the Arctic circle covered with them.

"The ovibos tastes exactly like beef. It produces the finest wool in the world. The University of Toronto, which maintains the greatest textile laboratory in the world, analyzed it and pronounced it the best they had seen. About 40 pounds is taken from each ovibos. It can be made up into every variety of cloth from women's wear to heavy socks and blankets. It wears as well as wool, and is as Merino, as soft as cashmere, will not shrink, and takes all dyes readily. The wool per animal is greater than sheep."

Stefansson added that the ovibos was the same size as Highland cattle. Its meat was identical in flavor, appearance and texture to beef.

Canada's Own.

"It is Canada's distinctive animal. In historic times it was found as far south as Kentucky. Stefansson went on: "I intend to carry out the development of the musk-ox independently of government support. I need a private enterprise. The reindeer proposition is a going concern, and needs no more encouragement. It is a reality, and interest is now with the musk-ox. I expect the first musk-ox meat to be put on the market 30 years from now. If my plans materialize it will become Canada's national meat."

"The grazing areas for these animals are too far north for cattle, but are fitted for ovibos by nature. These areas are twice as large as Canada itself, and included 250,000 square miles in Alaska, two million square miles in Canada, and the northern islands, and three million square miles in Siberia. These areas are either sparsely forested or are barrens. Even in a wild state the ovibos never moves on an average of less than five miles in a month. They can also protect themselves from wolves."

These facts, Stefansson declares, prove that the musk-ox can become readily domesticated. The Blonde Eskimo. During the interview the famous "Blonde Eskimo" story was mentioned with the great explorer so long was cleared up. At Victoria Island he discovered a group of Eskimos with certain European characteristics. The racial mark of the real Eskimo is black, oily hair and olive skin, but these at Victoria Island looked exactly like Europeans, although they were not blonde. The supposition is that they are descendants from ancient exploring Vikings, such as Leif Ericson, who came over to Greenland and Iceland in the eleventh century. Another theory is that they are descendants of members of the ill-fated Franklin expedition which was lost 75 years ago up north with 119 men.

Mr. Stefansson took occasion also to explain the arrows of criticism aimed at him by some misinformed Canadians because he was supposed to have sold his writings to the New York Times. The fact was that he sold them to the London Chronicle, which, in turn, syndicated it to the American Journal.

A Great Canadian. In Stefansson one sees the indomitable viking spirit of a man who is always on the qui vive for fresh conquests. Even a Polar kingdom is for him too small a bound, and one is not uttering a platitude or committing an error to name him one of the greatest Canadians.

Stefansson, in his initial interview in London, did not care to review adventures and Arctic matters previously published. Wrangle Island, the area annexed by him for Canada, and which, only for his efforts would have been owned by Japan, is, of course, close to his heart. He has only been back in warm climates for a month, but the change is all the same to him.

"I can pass from one type of life to the other with no great sense of change," he said. "I like large cities, have no sense of solitude when I

LAST HOUSE IS SOLD IN PINE LAWN SECTION

Tallant States Sixty Vacant Lots To Be Sold Immediately.

The London Housing Commission have sold their last house in Pine Lawn and on Garfield avenue. D. J. Tallant, chairman, reported today. The last was disposed of two days ago he states, and the people are now moving in.

"We have still 60 vacant lots to dispose of, however," he explained, "and we are putting these on the market immediately at a reasonable figure."

The chairman reports that Hayman & Willis, the contractors responsible for the city houses at Pine Lawn, are again busy re-roofing these residences. "They started two or three days ago," he reports, "and will now continue without delay until the job is completed. They are undertaking all work in pursuance with the award handed down by the board of arbitration last fall."

SALVATION ARMY PLANS SELF-DENIAL CAMPAIGN

Special to The Advertiser. St. Thomas, April 27.—Arrangements for the annual self-denial appeal of the Salvation Army are now complete, and a campaign will be staged next week. The Kiwanis Club is putting teams into the field and will solicit the business section.

The house-to-house canvass, which will commence Thursday, will be done by the local corps. It is expected in the early part of the week the entire city will be distributed by the Scouts and Guides.

Reverting to the subject of musk-ox, he stated that there were 20,000 of the animals left. The government had passed laws protecting them, but the only chance of propagating them in commercial quantities was domestication.

BOARD MAY OPEN EXTRA CLASSES IN CITY SCHOOLS

Will Suggest Continuation Work Be Carried On If Collegiate Crowded.

EXPECT OVERFLOW

Trustee Smith Believes Next September Will See Influx of Pupils.

If, as school officials say, there will be an overflow of students in the collegiate institutes of this city next September, Trustee Edwin Smith will ask the board to open continuation classes in five public schools located in various parts of London. Mr. Smith advocates teaching first year high school work in public schools rather than in secondary schools. He thinks that compulsory education should stop at fifth form work.

Some such course as this will be necessary this year he is convinced. With the new collegiate institute detached from the building program some provision will have to be made for children who will be unable to find accommodation in the existing classrooms.

Principals of the secondary schools have placed the number of children who will be unable to find admission in the neighborhood of 200. Some temporary quarters will have to be provided by the board in a first class certificate would be in charge. He points out that with the building of the new Trafalgar street school a room will be provided in the east end. One of the four new rooms to be added to the Boyle Memorial school could be pressed into use, a spare room at St. George's in the north and Tecumseh school in the south could be used.

At the present time a continuation class is being operated by way of experiment in the Victoria school. Mr. Smith claims it has proven a decided success.

REMOVE CARDINAL'S BODY TO TOMB OF HIS PUPIL

Associated Press Despatch. Rome, April 27.—The body of Cardinal Bellarmine was removed yesterday from the church of the Gesù, where it has been buried for more than 300 years, and taken to the Church of St. Ignatius, according to a wish expressed in his will for interment next to the tomb of his pupil, St. Louis Gonzaga.

The coffin was opened in the presence of a number of prominent prelates and doctors for the purpose of identifying its contents. The body, which had been embalmed, was found to be in a good state of preservation.

At the Movies Last Night

"Daddy."
Jackie Coogan shows what a really wonderful youngster he is in "Daddy," the new picture now at the Allen.

The story has had a thousand renderings; this version has it that Jackie is a scruffy little boy from Whittington, who leaves a poor farm for the city, to win fame for himself and fortune for his benefactors. And he accomplishes this by a chain of circumstances, which seems perfectly at home in an idyllic romance of this sort.

"Oliver Twist" seemed a disappointing venture for Jackie. In this, however, he is hampered by no Dickens-like shadows, but scampers gaily, with a child-like readiness to react from sorrow through his somewhat "fairy tale" adventures. It is a picture all the kiddies should see, and, as well, it's a delight for the grown-ups.

Jackie's bewildered sorrow at the death of the old music master is a wonderful bit of acting, a credit to any amount of experience.

"Bella Donna."
"Bella Donna," commencing at Loew's, should serve as a tonic to many a jaded movie fan.

After seeing Pola Negri in it, we are quite ready to join her throng of admirers who understand Charlie Chaplin's wife when she says that the beautiful European is the only woman who could hold him. We remark with someone else, that we don't wonder.

Actually, Pola Negri is simply stunning. No one else of the movie world is in the same class with her. She is uniquely beautiful with a continental air of distinction which is infinitely becoming.

The only trouble with "Bella Donna" is that the novel has been somewhat twisted to portray the beautiful Ruby Chepstowe as a being endowed with a nature of conflicting good and evil.

The author himself was not as accommodating. Quida Bergere is responsible for the move which may have been wise since one is constantly on the look-out for signs of redemption in Bella Donna. And one feels eager for an excuse to blame the evident waywardness of her nature on her early misfortune. She is someone, indeed, for whom might have been borrowed P. Scott Fitzgerald's striking title, "The Beautiful and the Damned."

Humor is conspicuous by its absence. There is a gruesomeness about the entire picture, which together with its beauty, makes it fascinating. Pola Negri, herself, they say, comes from Austria, and one is tempted to ask the famous Floradora question, "Are there any more at home like you?"

The vaudeville supplies the laughs; it includes what we are prepared to call the best tumbling act ever seen here.

"Boss of the Camp."
"He-man" pictures were the vogue many years ago and movie devotees have never quite lost their love for them. In the "Boss of Camp Four" now showing at the Patricia, Charles Jones assumes the appropriate role of a real "he" gentleman and man-ages to make something good out of a floundering plot.

Political conspirators, railroads and western stuff are liberally seasoned through "Boss of Camp Four." A wealthy contractor hires the hero to complete his railroad. The hero is one of those 100 per cent American efficiency experts and just naturally fights with all and sundry who fall down on the job.

He is further handicapped by the machinations of a gang of political tricksters. The railroad must be built before a certain date, and the villains do everything short of sinking the North American continent to prevent it. Finally the young contracting foreman finishes the road, marries his employer's attractive daughter and presumably inherits a lot of money he is not entitled to. It's a good picture.

"THE NEGLECTED WIFE" IS REFRESHING DRAMA

Gladke Players Win Acclaim By Presentation At the Majestic Theatre.

"The Neglected Wife," the production demanding the efforts of Marie Gladke players, at the Majestic the latter part of the week, is another one of those entertaining melodramas which cannot without custom stale.

The plot, primitive though it is, always makes an appeal to persons unfamiliar with the stage trappings of bygone days. It portrays a rich artist, who becomes infatuated with the charming simplicity of an innocent country rustic. After the marriage the refreshing illiteracy of the farm, however, becomes an embarrassing liability in the city. The city, of course, is the proverbial kind where hypocrisy, pomp and simulation stalk arm in arm.

Pat Saunders as the wealthy husband, who neglects his well meaning wife, is well cast. Miss Gladke and Mr. Secord are also deserving of eulogy.

The story ends happily when the wife returns a full blown lady and the husband poises lovingly over her creamy shoulder.

EMPLOYMENT BUREAU MOVING.
The government employment bureau are moving from their quarters on the corner of Dundas and Talbot streets to new and more commodious offices in the old Kingsmill building on Carling street. The old office was always too small for the work of the department, especially in the winter time, and the new rooms will add to the comfort of the staff and of the applicants. The bureau will be transferred to their new home on May 1.

Your Backyard Garden

Rock Garden or Rockery a Pleasing Feature of Any Garden.

Rock gardens are uncommon in most Canadian gardens. This is possibly on account of the fact that many of the plants suitable for such planting are not proof against our rigorous winters, and it has never occurred to gardeners that it is feasible to substitute native wild plants. However, it is none the less true that when properly planted and looked after the rock garden or rockery is an immensely pleasing addition to the informal garden as well as the more pretentious formal or Italian garden.

It is only fair to make a distinction between the rock garden and the rockery proper. In the rock garden, it is possible to plant almost any perennials and quite a few annuals, depending on the taste of the gardener. For the rock garden believes its appearance in that it is nothing more than a raised bed which is surrounded by a sloping rock wall, and it is quite as easy to grow the plants in this bed as in any other. If you have any doubts as to your ability to grow rare alpina or rock plants in a rock rockery, the rock garden just described will prove a good substitute.

The rockery proper is merely a large heap of stones, preferably colored granites in the rough and so arranged as to hold only small quantities of soil in the cavities between the pieces of rock. It will be seen that the common plants of the flower garden would not live under these circumstances, and unless the gardener is prepared to go to some trouble in purchasing the proper alpina or rock plants and ascertain just which ones will survive our winter he will do well to confine his efforts to the easier rock garden rather than attempt the rockery proper.

The construction of a rock garden is comparatively simple, but there are one or two points that should be understood before starting to build. It is important to build it of a size that will not dry out too quickly, as the evaporation from all raised beds is very rapid and when made too small they dry right out and, of course, have a rejected and neglected appearance. Try and get sufficient stone to make your rock garden at least six feet in diameter, and if possible eight feet. This will not only give practically normal conditions in regard to moisture, but will give a very much better display of flowers when well filled.

There are few features in the garden which offer greater expression of individual taste than a rock garden, and the possibilities in planning the layout are countless. The rock garden can be made an outstanding single feature at the juncture of two or more paths, or it may take the form of a raised bed along one side of a house or stone fence. In either case it is advisable to wait it up two or three feet from the ground as it gives more scope in the planting of creeping plants which are a decided feature in themselves when grown down over the rocks.

If the rest of the garden proper contains plenty of color contrast, it might be well to make the rock garden so as to give a simple green effect by training a creeping plant over the wall and filling the bed itself with a liberal planting of ferns. If this is decided on, use only such ferns as are found growing wild and make sure of keeping some of the forest soil about the roots in transplanting. If you decide to plant color contrast in your rock garden be sure to select colors that will contrast in a striking way and at the same time blend in such a way as to be rather than vulgar. Proceed as described in the article on window boxes, taking care to plant your creeping plants around the edge of the wall and work to the center of the bed, increasing the height of the varieties until the center is reached. The center is an excellent place to set a tall Cannas, preferably of the copper-colored sort.

If the bed is to be filled with plants of one kind such as ferns, it is necessary to raise the center slightly as ferns tend toward a uniform height and will be better displayed in a bed with a raised center. Watering daily is necessary to the successful growth of a rock garden.

WHO FIRST FELT "LIKE A FIGHTING COCK"?

COCK-FIGHTING was born with the cocks.

But it is only 80 years ago that the first man felt "like a fighting cock!"

Now he has brothers, sisters, nephews, nieces, all over the world—all feeling "like a fighting cock!"

It happens this way: A person half sick with bad stomach, dull and heavy headache, takes Beecham's Pills just before going to bed. Immediately the Pills begin to harmonize the digestive and eliminative organs.

Consequently, this person has a good night's sleep and arises in the morning with clear brain, bright eye, keen appetite, and full of energy for work and play.

It is now just 80 years since Beecham's Pills first began correcting disordered stomachs and stirring sluggish livers and bowels to natural activity—and feeling "like a fighting cock" is associated as inseparably with Beecham's Pills, as the pills are with good health.

London Advertiser

FRIDAY, APRIL 27, 1923.

Says Mr. Drury is a Liberal.

Mr. Andrew Hicks, the man who has on several occasions brought such a rumpus on himself and those around him, visited London on his way to Crediton. In an interview he made certain other charges against Premier Drury. The word "charges" is used because Mr. Hicks probably intended that they should be so regarded.

Mr. Drury, he says, planned to go to Ottawa to enter the King government. As a matter of fact, there is nothing new in that piece of news. When Mr. King started to call together the men he wanted with him at Ottawa he was anxious that the agricultural interests should be strongly represented in his cabinet. Both Mr. Drury and Mr. Crerar could have had places at Ottawa in the ministry had it been possible for them to accept. There is good reason to believe that they could have brought strength and good counsel to the Liberal cabinet had they entered. Mr. Drury placed the matter before his colleagues at Toronto, and it was their desire that he should remain at the head of the U. F. O. in Ontario. There was nothing mysterious or hidden about Mr. Drury's connection with Ottawa. Mr. Hicks is not telling anything that was not known before.

Mr. Hicks makes the further charge that Mr. Drury has "always been a Liberal, not a U. F. O. at heart."

It is well that he should bring up this point, but it would have been better for him to go right ahead and show where the difference was, or is, or can be. That is exactly what so many people find hard to understand right now.

Real Liberalism is more than acknowledgment of the fact that one owes allegiance to certain printed platforms: it is more than a show of hands, or the drafting of resolutions. The one big issue on which Liberalism divides with some of the spirit of the U. F. O. is that a Liberal government, in the real sense of the term, cannot be drawn from any one particular class of people. It must go outside the boundaries of class limitations; it must speak and act for all the people who are trying to make an honest living; it must not give privileges to one that it would hold back from others. If Mr. Drury is in that class he is indeed at heart a Liberal.

The Veterans Who Are Living.

A veteran of the Great War, writing to The Advertiser about the parade in London on Sunday, when the returned men were out with their medals and decorations, makes the charge that if these men wore these same medals when they were around looking for work they would starve to death.

This may seem rather an extreme way of stating the case, but the same statement has been made before by returned men. They say that the wearing even of a service button is not by any means an assistance to them in securing work. In several cases they will go to the other extreme and tell you that the wearing of their service button hinders them from securing employment.

We hope that this feeling has very little latitude in which to work. The possession of a button of service neither makes a man a poorer or a better workman. There was a time when it might have made him a poorer workman, because there were many of these men who, on their return from service overseas, were in no shape to go to work. They had gone through too much, and even if they looked fit enough, were in no shape to get down to the grind of hard work every day.

It is not a nice charge to have made against any people, that the wearing of a service button makes it harder to secure employment in their midst. If that charge could be substantiated it would place us as a nation and as a people on a very low plane. No returned man wants to trade on his service button. He simply asks a fair chance with others, and if there is any preference to be shown that it should be turned his way. That is a very modest request.

Better Rates for Small Centers.

When the Liberals gathered in Toronto to discuss election matters they did well to give heed to hydro-power development and urge that municipalities have representation on the commission. It is also a part of Liberal belief that some steps should be taken to give the advantages of better hydro rates to some of the smaller centers, and also to extend the advantages to the country.

The money of the whole province is staked to back hydro developments, but the advantage has been largely for the big centers in the matter of cheap rates. That is because there is greater consumption in these places, and of course the costs of distribution are less. On that basis there is good ground to claim that the larger centers, being the greater users, should have the advantages of quantity production.

There is a larger side to it, though. Ontario wants a fair, all-round development. It does not want to create conditions that will make it advisable for the cities to grow larger at the expense of the smaller towns and villages or the rural sections. For this reason, Mr. Hay, Liberal leader, urged in the legislature some time ago that more consideration be given to securing a better figure for the smaller centers, even at the risk of making the larger places carry some of the load.

Essentials and Non-Essentials.

The publication or the non-publication of the pay lists of several of the city's departments still occupies too great a space in the civic arena.

The threat that the pay checks of these departments will not be signed unless the management hands over the pay lists for purposes of publication is not as serious as it might sound. It is simply the pay list of the department heads that is aimed at by the mayor. It would be unfair that employees of any of these departments should be kept waiting ten minutes for their money. They have had nothing to do with making the dispute, and it would be decidedly unfair to bring them into it.

There is other business that needs attention. When the citizens come to pay their tax bills they will find that they have not been altered to the extent of a five-cent piece by the publication or the non-publication of the pay list of civic departments.

The Bushman Gets One In Twenty.

The department of the interior has asked The Advertiser to make reference to "Save the Forests" week. If there is anything that this paper can say about the folly of burning up our woods, and still keep within the decent limits of strong language, we'll gladly say it.

The forest fire is awful, but the man who starts it is worse.

Forest fires, little ones or big ones, are started. Spontaneous combustion only starts to act when we defy the laws of nature, and the laws of nature are not violated in our forests—the forests observe them.

The forest fire is the greatest tax collector in Canada. It takes its levy by the millions of dollars, and its receipts are written in charred ruins and smoking waste.

The man who has had a chance to see the foothills and the mountain slopes of the southern part of British Columbia, for instance, needs no tutor to point out to him what forest fires can do. There they stand, those slopes once rich in wealth and waiting to add their full quota to the progress of the nation—now black, brown, lifeless: great, gaunt trees waiting for the forces to complete their work, waiting for the strong wind to sweep up the pass and bring them crashing to the burned and desolate area around them. They have no right to stand up straight, no reason to proudly toss their lofty heads and fight back the wind and the storm. They are burned, dead, lifeless things, and their place is down among the ruins at their sapless roots.

But what is to stop these forest fires? Words have failed; literature and speeches have not turned the tide. The law must work more vigorously. The starter of a bush fire is a criminal, a dangerous criminal, because these fires mean not only burned trees, but dead men and dead women and children in many cases.

Where the bushman with his axe has taken one tree, fires in Canada have taken twenty. It has been a mad, insane orgy of destruction. Together, with the musket of the law on our shoulder, we can stop this thing.

An Expensive Way of Cleaning.

Owing to poor cleaning done in the west, a large amount of wheat is stopped when it goes through the elevators at Fort William. It is taken out and sold as screenings. In some seasons this has run as high as 50,000 bushels.

Most of this used to be shipped to United States points, but it now makes its way back to western Canada centers where feed happens to be needed. This is too expensive a method, as it costs $6 per ton to haul that stuff back west, and more than that to bring it from the west in the first place in order to have it sifted out and rejected. It is an expensive way to do business.

What Do These Figures Mean?

According to figures, less than one-half of one per cent of the people in Canada claim no religious belief or denomination. All the rest, 8,572,516, are classified as belonging to some denomination.

The first question is: "Where do they go on Sunday?"

If all these people who nodded the head in the affirmative when asked if they had any religious persuasion were to attend service they would have to be taken in relays.

There are surely many of them who may have some religious preference, but who are not seriously working at it.

It may sound well to have the figures read this way; we may even go so far as to proclaim the fact that we are a religious nation.

Religion, though, is a combination of faith and works that is very hard to compile in figures or estimate on an adding machine.

Note and Comment.

One of the greatest things coming off this month is the heavy underwear.

They have let the editor of the Axe out of jail in Quebec. Does this mean they intend to bury the hatchet?

One marathon dancer has gone crazy—at least the matter has now been brought to the attention of the authorities.

Sounds funny to hear a bookmaker arguing that horse-racing is just the thing to keep up the standard of horses bred in this country.

Army officers in United States have been ordered to reduce their waistline. The fastest way to do this would be to get a new set of officers.

One old sea dog who spent years looking for the North Pole, but would never go again. Not even to find out if Doctor Cook carved his initials on it.

This is the weather when a stout team of horses, with the assistance of a half-dozen rails, brings not a few dollars to the family purse, pulling mired cars out of the mud.

There is a chance of telephone conversation being restricted to five minutes. That's hardly long enough for the usual "Don't you know who's speaking?" "No, I don't." "Well, guess, you should know." "I think I know." "Well, who is it, then?" etc., etc. Surely the phone company will not shut off this delightful form of insanity.

Words come as people find use for them. A number of weekly papers make use of one that is unique: "Mr. and Mrs. Blank Sundayed with relatives here." That one appears in a Bruce County paper this week. Or it might have been made to read "week-ended here." Thus, if a man comes to London on a business trip, shall we say he "businessed" here?

IN THE INTERESTS OF OUR HEALTH.

(From the Manitoba Free Press.)

According to statements made in a debate in the House of Commons at Ottawa on Oriental immigration, Chinese and Japanese are going into business at the Pacific coast using Anglo-Saxon names for their firms. Mr. McQuarrie, one of the B. C. members, said that you would find Chinese and Japanese firms going under the name of Wilson or MacLean or some other name that made it impossible to realize on the outside that the business was being done by Orientals.

Bret Harte once pointed out that the heathen Chinese was peculiar in some respects, which statement appears to have a good deal of force in it. We imagine that, despite the number of laws we already have, someone will be asking for a law to make it impossible for an Ah Ling to go by the name of John MacLean.

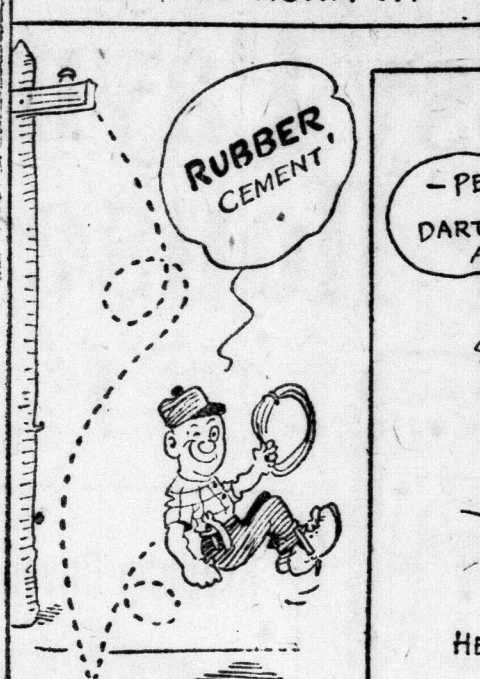

Perhaps it is carrying the thing a little too far. It might be all right for the Oriental to use such names as Smith or Jones or Brown or Black or White or Green, but to see the name, "The Alexander McTavish Trading Company" on a door and to walk in and find behind the counter a bland Oriental citizen with his shirt out might be too much for some of our citizens. The government no doubt has the right to protect its citizens against heart failure.

HOW TO AVOID THE DANGER OF CANCER OF THE STOMACH.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Today I want to tell you about a condition which becomes serious if not given early attention. Like all other forms of malignant disease, it is unpleasant to talk about. I refer to cancer of the stomach.

It will be a great thing for this world when the cause of cancer is discovered. We know little about it at present, but fortunately there are great laboratories and devoted experts working on cancer. Some day we will wake up to read in the morning paper that the problem of cancer has been solved.

Until Pasteur's epoch-making discovery, there were many horrible deaths from hydrophobia. Until the successful development of anti-toxin there were endless numbers of deaths from diphtheria. Smallpox has lost its horror since vaccination became universal.

The time will come when cancer will be swept away by the discovery of the cause and the capture of the agent. That will be a great day in this world!

There are a few rules which are worth while to bear in mind. Anything which lowers the bodily resistance creates a condition favorable to the onset and ravages of disease.

The blood must circulate freely. The organs of elimination must function perfectly, carrying away the poisonous wastes of the body. The lungs must be filled day and night by life-giving oxygen. There must be no centres of pus development. No form of chronic irritation or interference with local circulation should be permitted to exist.

Living a normal, temperate well-directed life will go far toward making cancer and all the other diseases unlikely to occur. Such a life from earliest childhood will make less common the cases of cancer of the stomach which now appear between the ages of 40 and 60.

The statistics gathered by the great surgeons indicate that at least three-quarters of the cases of cancer of the stomach can be traced back to neglected ulcers of that organ. Loss of appetite, frequent vomiting and progressive loss of weight are suspicious symptoms. Perhaps the victim has been very well before, and suddenly develops the digestive trouble.

My advice is to find out exactly why there is failure of health, and then proceed to build up. Don't wait to have cancer develop. Get rid of the ulcer in the stomach before malignancy begins.

Answers To Health Questions.
R. M. C. Q.—My daughter, 12 years old, is suffering from rheumatic endocarditis. I have been advised to have her tonsils removed, but I am afraid to have this done. What would you advise me to do?

A—If her tonsils are diseased, you should have them removed. Take the child to a throat specialist or to a hospital clinic for an examination and treatment. For the heart condition, rest is important. She should avoid fatigue, and excitement, and hurry. With good care she may outgrow this trouble in time.

M. S. F. Q.—I use honey to sweeten my coffee in the morning. Is this harmful?

A—No, this is not harmful, provided it does not disturb your digestion.

M. L. V. Q.—The top and sides of my head become very sore at times. Will you please tell me what to do for this?

A—You should have your eyes and nasal sinuses examined by your physician, and see if either shows the cause of your trouble. Until the cause has been determined treatment cannot be prescribed.

TO THE EDITOR.

FARM ACCOUNTING.

Mr. Edwin S. Allen, Ingersoll, writes to The Advertiser in reference to cost finding and the work of Prof. Leitch of the O. A. C. His letter arrived too late to be included in the article devoted to this, which appeared in Tuesday's paper.

Editor of The Advertiser:
Sir—In the first place I cannot speak too highly of Prof. Leitch and staff, under the head of farm economics. I found them to be a fine lot of fellows, willing to give all the information desired, which is a great help to those who are taking up the work, and will certainly help those who are interested in farm accounts.

I started my first year's work of cost accounting on May 6, by taking an inventory of farm, stock, implements, feed, etc., and the same at the beginning of each year, and the time spent each day for work, whatever it might be, in order to charge the time taken up to the various crops, stock, poultry, fruit, etc.; other transactions, stock bought and sold, and general expenditure, repairs, etc., which gives a person a complete knowledge of the profit or loss of each crop grown, and all other farm transactions.

This is only a very brief acknowledgment. Thanking you for the inquiry:
EDWIN S. ALLEN.

Editor of The Advertiser:
Sir—Allow me a little space in your paper, as I want to get this off my chest.

An Old Man

By ANNE CAMPBELL.

At Linden Corners, on a lovely hill An old tree grows; I know it stands there still.

I watched it when a sapling green it stood.

Far from its brothers in the leafy wood,

And saw it grow until it reared its arms

So high it could be seen from other

Its roots imbedded firmly in the ground;

Its graceful beauty falling all around.

'Twould be as tragic to uproot that tree

As this mad business of transplanting me.

They fell such trees as that in city lots.

They interfere with urban garden plots.

They force the sidewalks up, and plumbing, too,

Is ruined when their vibrant roots push through.

They are not needed here; no more am I.

We both crave roomy earth, and spreading sky.

But when she died, and all the children came,

They said to live alone would be a shame.

And so I'm here, and breathe the smoky air,

When far across the miles the fields are fair.

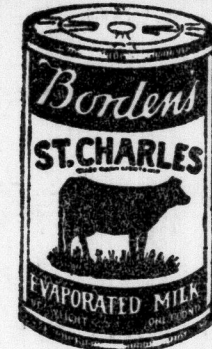

I'm stifling in the narrow city street,

When on the farm the smell of clover's sweet.

Close to the earth I love, I long to be,

Beneath the friendly shade of my old tree!

FISTIC COMBAT AVERTED IN ONTARIO HOUSE

HOT WORDS EXCHANGED
AS COLONELS "BATTLE" IN THE ONTARIO HOUSE

Fistic Encounter Probably Averted by Interference of Hon. Harry Mills—Carmichael-Currie "Riot" in the Early Morning Finally Quelled When Members Agree to Withdraw Remarks.

DRURY AND FERGUSON "GO ONE ROUND"

Special to The Advertiser.
Toronto, April 27.—There were tense moments in the legislature at 2 o'clock this morning, when Colonel Carmichael, enraged at the attitude and remarks of Col. J. A. Currie, left his seat, stepped on the carpet of the floor of the house, and headed in the direction of the Toronto member.

His face turned ashen white. High words between the minister and Col. Currie preceded the unusual incident. But for the intervention of Hon. Harry Mills, who jumped from his seat, caught hold of Col. Carmichael and prevented him from approaching nearer to Col. Currie's desk, a scene unprecedented in the house might have been witnessed.

The matter arose during the consideration of supplementary estimates for game and fisheries in the department of Hon. Harry Mills. Col. Currie had for a considerable time bombarded Mr. Mills with questions concerning certain items, and in particular, the purchase of a boat. He declared he would insist on all questions being answered before he would allow any item to pass.

Speaks to Mills.
Colonel Carmichael at last leaped over to Mr. Mills and spoke to him. Colonel Currie suspected that Col. Carmichael knew something about the matter, and wanted to know where he got his information.

"I know Captain Hopps, and have known him for a long time," said Col. Carmichael. (Captain Hopps was the man who made the valuation of $25,000 for the boat for the government.) "Perhaps the minister of power can give us some information," said Col. Currie in an insinuating tone of voice.

"Don't you take that line with me," replied Col. Carmichael.

"Don't talk to me like that—you're an officer—you will get a court-martial," fired back Col. Currie.

Col. Carmichael protested, and Col. Currie, with some heat, exclaimed, "Don't think you can put it over me, and you cannot lick me either."

"You dirty scoundrel," said Col. Carmichael, and he left his seat, intending the evident intention of reaching that of the local member.

After Mr. Mills had intervened, Col. Currie, thinking he had been called "a dirty skunk," called out to Col. Carmichael, "He's a double skunk."

Call for Order.
"Order! Order!" came from members. The excitement had increased by this time. Col. Currie, who explained he had not used the word "skunk," but "Scoundrel," and Col. Carmichael demanded he withdraw the word.

F. G. Sandor, chairman in committee of supply, requested both members to withdraw the offensive remarks, but, thinking the government benches he added, "I think these gentlemen are under tremendous provocation from him."

"I withdraw," said Col. Carmichael, smiling.

"Then I will," declared Col. Currie. The house adjourned at 4:10 a.m. after spending the evening on supplementary estimates in committee of supply.

Howard Ferguson and Col. Currie occupied such a lengthy time in asking questions of the government on the various items that at one stage the premier clashed with both.

The hon. member promised to assist in expediting the business. Does he think he is keeping his promise?" asked the premier of Mr. Ferguson.

"Yes," replied the Conservative leader, in charging that Mr. Drury had promised to see himself and the Liberal leader again as to whether certain bills should come up, but had not done so.

Obstruction Policy.
"Do you mean the policy of obstruction is to go through?" asked the premier.

Mr. Ferguson: "No one is talking

BRITAIN TO ADMINISTER AFFAIRS OF METTULA

Associated Press Despatch.
Jerusalem, April 27.—Incorporation of the Mettula district in the Palestine territory administered by Great Britain will be officially announced this week, it is stated.

Mettula is a Jewish colony in the northernmost part of Upper Galilee, and clustering around it are a number of similar co-operative Jewish holdings. Cession of this territory to France as part of Syria was disputed by the British, a mixed boundary commission deciding finally that it is properly of Palestine.

WOMEN FAINT WAITING FOR WEDDING PROCESSION

Special to The Advertiser.
London, April 27.—Three casualties, mostly fainting women, were handled in London emergency hospitals during the wedding procession of the Duke of York and Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon.

The duke and his bride, now the Princess Elizabeth, are honeymooning in Surrey today.

The Prince of Wales has left for Belgium, where he will remain until Wednesday. He will unveil a British war memorial at Brussels.

LONDON NORMAL SCHOOL STAFF.

The Advertiser photographer presents the staff of the London Normal School, whose work it is to turn young men and women just out of high school into teachers of primary schools. Attending the school are pupils from all parts of Western Ontario, and so it serves as the keystone of the educational system of many counties. Reading from left to right, the members of the staff are:

Front row—A Stevenson (science of education), S. Pickles (manual training), W. Pendergast (principal), J. McEachern (history and grammar), W. J. O'Brien (writing).

Second row—G. W. Hoffer (science), Miss Emery (art), Miss Neville (household science), Miss Graham (Librarian), Miss Heffernan (secretary).

Back row—Dr. White (school management, arithmetic), T. Clark (composition, nature study), C. E. Percy (music), Sergt. Slater (physical training).

Demand Fifty-Year-Old Guard To Hand Over His Keys.

Associated Press Despatch.
St. Louis, April 27.—Six prisoners were shot and several others beaten severely when guards frustrated a wholesale escape at the city workhouse here early today.

About 15 prisoners sawed through the bars in the cells room and let themselves into the prison yard by means of a rope, according to the guards, who said one of the prisoners with a clever imitation of a pistol carved out of wood attempted to hold up Fred Giese, 50-year-old guard, and obtain his keys.

Instead of complying with the demand of the prisoner, Giese opened fire and two of the prisoners fell. The shots attracted five other guards, who sent volleys into the crowd of prisoners, wounding four more. A police riot call was sent in, but no time the officers arrived the guards had subdued the prisoners.

All of the wounded men were shot in the legs. They were taken to the city hospital, where it was said their condition was not serious.

Gas Jet Burning Under Percolator Causes Blaze—Family Has Narrow Escape.

Special to The Advertiser.
Toronto, April 27.—A gas jet left burning under a coffee percolator on the counter of the restaurant owned and managed by A. Nodelman at 445 Spadina avenue, resulted in a fire which broke out at 4:19 this morning, and thoroughly gutted the store premises before the flames were put out by the rapid and energetic work of the fire section from College street and Queen street fire halls.

A family sleeping in the rear of the store were forced to leave by the back door while only partly dressed.

ATTEMPT MADE TO WRECK
DUBLIN THEATRE WITH MINE

Associated Press Despatch.
Dublin, April 27.—Three men and a woman drove up to the Central Cinema Theatre on Sackville street this morning, placed a mine outside the building and then hastened away.

The explosion that followed only damaged the front of the theatre, but wrecked the nearby drug store, and seriously damaged shops on the other side of the street.

One of the miscreants is believed to have been injured. No other casualties are reported.

Special to The Advertiser.
Moscow, April 27.—The two most isolated countries in the world are the United States of America and the United States of the Soviets, Leon Trotsky, Russian minister of war, said in a speech.

Trotsky spoke at the meeting of the Voluntary Air Fleet Society, urging expansion of the government air force.

"There is a difference between our positions in isolation," he said. "The isolation of the United States is voluntary, but we are isolated because the capitalistic countries hate us. But

PUBLISHERS COMPLETE
NEW YORK CONVENTION

Re-elect All Old Officers For Ensuing Year at Annual Gathering.

Associated Press Despatch.
New York, April 27.—The 27th convention of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association adjourned after taking two important steps in connection with its labor policy and re-electing all the old officers for the ensuing year.

The first labor measure adopted was a resolution refusing to negotiate with the International Typographical union under the terms of an amendment to the union constitution which provided that printers and mailers employed in the same plants should negotiate jointly.

All agreements so reached should expire concurrently, and that a strike or lockout in one department should terminate the agreement affecting the other.

The other labor measure adopted was a resolution to broaden the association's support of printing trades schools.

The resolution provided for the establishment of regional schools in several sections of the United States and Canada, the schools to be supported primarily by newspapers in the various regions.

Appointment of a committee to take up the question of establishing a bureau of audit was reported to the committee receiving power to establish such a bureau if it was found advisable.

F. J. Burd, Vancouver, B. C., Daily Province, was newly elected to the board of directors.

ITALIAN VETERAN ADMITS TRYING TO CUT THROAT

Morro States Sickness Brought On by Alps Campaign Caused Action.

HAD LITTLE MONEY

Authorities Will Consult Physician and May Release Prisoner.

Body and soul tortured by a hacking cough due to service in Italy's army, his wife and three-year-old boy ill back in the homeland, John Morro, 31, an Italian, tried to take his life by cutting his throat, he admitted to Magistrate Graydon in police court at noon today.

Morro was told he had no more right to attempt to take his own life than he had to attempt the life of another. The offence he had committed on New Year's Day was regarded as serious by the state, and a term of two years' imprisonment had been provided as the penalty.

"Why did you try to kill yourself?" the court inquired.

"I was sick. I cough. My chest feel sore. My mother and father sick. My wife and my boy sick. I cannot save money," Morro explained.

Sent Morro to Italy.
From early morn until midnight each day this veteran of the world war shined shoes that he might send money to his wife and little bambino in Italy.

"Every bit I save I send to them," he said. "I get sick. One day I cannot send much," he remarked.

But kind treatment from doctors and nurses in Victoria Hospital has convinced Morro life is not so drear. He is willing to go back to work and states he will not again attempt to end his life.

His dusky little bambino, whom he never saw, his wife and son need his aid. He has promised that if sentence is suspended he will go his way and sin no more.

Brother Promises Aid.
Morro's brother promised that he would care for the prisoner and assured the court that he would never allow John to become depressed again.

"How do you want to be tried?" the magistrate asked.

"Just as you please," said Morro, shrugging his shoulders, after the manner of his countrymen.

"It's not as I please; it's as you please," he was told.

Morro consented to summary trial and pleaded guilty.

Authorities will communicate with his attending physician, Dr. J. Cameron Wilson, and determine whether the prisoner is fit to be released.

If so, Morro will be given into his brother's care.

His chest is still sore, he said, but he is full of hope and expects he will be able to throw off the malady brought on by a winter campaign in the Alps.

Aberdeen Students Have Fun With New Official.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Aberdeen, April 27.—Lively scenes were witnessed at Aberdeen University yesterday, when Sir Robert Horne was installed as lord rector.

After delivering his address Sir Robert was captured by the students and placed in an Egyptian chariot, a yellow-painted milk cart, converted in a golden chariot, and drawn by a pantomime camel consisting of four students. Sir Robert's hat was taken from his head and a yellow head-dress, to represent King Tut, was put over his shoulders.

The former chancellor of the exchequer was accompanied by a grotesquely-attired retinue of old "Egyptians," and drawn through the streets of the city.

Coroner Finds Farmer Near Kingston Died Natural Death.

Special to The Advertiser.
Kingston, Ont., April 27.—Quite a stir was caused at Napanee following word received from the village of Flinton that Reuben Gonyou, aged 75 years, had been murdered. Provincial Constable Thompson and Coroner Dr. Cowan went to the scene, and Coroner Cowan reported that after making a careful examination he was satisfied that Gonyou had not been murdered, but that he had died a natural death.

It was found that the deceased, who lived with his wife and son on the farm about one mile back of Flinton, had stumbled while in the yard near his home on April 23, and in falling, injured the back of his head. After the fall he had regained consciousness and lived until this morning of April 23.

Coroner Cowan stated that the deceased had suffered for some time from an ailment and had received the best of attention from his son and wife. Mr. Gonyou had lived near Flinton for about twenty years and due to advanced years, was somewhat feeble. It is thought that he must have stumbled and in so doing struck his head when he fell. Dr. Tindie, who attended the deceased shortly after the accident, made a careful examination and was satisfied that nothing other than the fall was the cause of the death, the coroner so decided.

QUEBEC MINE OUTBREAK IS BELIEVED SETTLED

Staff of Special Constables Has Returned to Montreal.

Special to The Advertiser.
Montreal, April 27.—All quiet at the Theford Mines in the report from the head office of the Asbestos Corporation of Canada today.

The staff of special constables held in readiness for emergencies at Sherbrooke has been withdrawn and the men have returned to Montreal.

W. G. Ross, president of the corporation, proceeded to Sherbrooke today to take part in a conference between the miners and the company's directors. Mr. Ross is expected back in town tomorrow. Meanwhile developments depend entirely on the outcome of today's meeting, as the corporation is determined only to reopen the mines on the understanding that Col. MacNutt returns to his duties as assistant manager, although they are willing to meet the men in any reasonable request they may have to put forward.

WEST ELGIN U.F.O.
TO MEET TONIGHT FOR NOMINATION

P. G. Cameron, Present Representative, Thought To Be Likely Choice.

ORGANIZER AT WORK

Meeting at Dutton Expected To Be Fully Representative of Riding.

Special to The Advertiser.
Dutton, April 27.—Members of the West Elgin branch of the United Farmers of Ontario congregated here this evening at 8 o'clock to choose a candidate who will carry the Farmers' standard during the provincial election.

Several dozen followers of Premier Drury came into town this afternoon. They will meet at the local Memorial Hall.

P. G. Cameron, M.P.P., present representative for this constituency, will address the gathering. Hon. D. Carmichael, minister without portfolio in the Drury cabinet and a member of the hydro commission, will also speak, along with C. F. Swayze, M.P.P. of Niagara Falls.

Opinion in this riding is to the effect that Mr. Cameron will again be the unanimous choice of his constituents. In fact, no other names have been mentioned, or unless something unforeseen happens, such as a point-blank refusal from Mr. Cameron to be appointed the riding, he will be appointed the candidate.

For the past week, organization has been carried on, and it is expected that West Elgin will have been thoroughly gone over by the end of this week, thus saving Mr. Cameron from the responsibility of organization.

D. H. McCallum, president of the West Elgin U.F.O. in West Lorne today, but will be on hand this evening to open the meeting. John A. Mathewson, secretary, is also expected, and addresses from both are on the program.

SIR MICHAEL SADLER
GETS POST AT OXFORD

Appointed Master of University College and Will Leave Leeds.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, April 27.—Sir Michael Sadler, vice-chancellor of Leeds University, has been appointed master of University College, Oxford, and is leaving Leeds. Generous references to his work have been made in the newspapers, more particularly in the Yorkshire papers.

Sir Michael Sadler is leaving one of Britain's newest universities to become master of what is reputed to be the oldest college in the oldest university in England, the college founded, according to tradition, by Alfred the Great in 872.

"He will arrive at Oxford to find the atmosphere more modern than when he graduated," says the Yorkshire Post. "It is true a school of brewing or printing has not yet been established there, but women have been admitted to degrees, and fresh outbursts of the modernist spirit follows every effort of Dr. Farnell, rector of Exeter College, Oxford, and vice-chancellor of the university, to assert any part of his rightful authority in the city which had a university long before it became a town."

The latter reference of the Post to Vice-Chancellor Lewis F. Farnell is a reference to the fact that he has been persuaded to remove his ban on arrangements made by J. B. Fagan, a well-known dramatic producer, to give a series of operetta plays at Oxford, although he makes the condition that no under-graduates shall take part in the performance.

Quite recently Dr. Farnell made a "rag regatta" in aid of a charity. One of his critics remarked that Dr. Farnell appeared determined to do his best to establish a school of which Oxford University might have at the end of his term of office.

BOMB RUHR RAILROADS
DISORGANIZING TRAFFIC

Explosions Cause Most Serious Charge Since Beginning of Occupation.

Associated Press Despatch.
Düsseldorf, April 27.—Five separate bomb explosions on the Ruhr railroads during the night cut railway telegraph and telephone communications, temporarily disorganizing traffic. French headquarters said the explosions had caused the most serious damage since the beginning of the occupation.

During the confusion, the German made a series of efforts to run the customs barrier into interior Germany, but large quantities of goods which the Germans were trying to get through were seized by the French.

The explosions tore up sections of track and blew down the wires along side in each instance. One case near Bonn a French troop train heavily loaded had a narrow escape. The explosion was cut the line from the eastern Ruhr to Düsseldorf which is much used for troop movements and the carriage of supplies. Four other lines were cut in the vicinity of Hattingsen.

London Leads Big Track Championships of Old Boys' Week

L. A. A.'s ENERGETIC EFFORT TO GET BIG MEET, SUCCESS

A. T. Taylor, Representing L. A. A. At Toronto Meeting, Gets Promise of Meet For August 4th—Is First Trip To London.

Representing the L. A. A. in connection with having the Ontario Track and Field Championships in London on Saturday, August 4th, the first day of the Old Boys' Reunion, a meeting was held in Toronto with the secretary, A. W. Steele, and R. G. Fry, supervisor of track and field athletics.

These gentlemen, explained that Napanee Athletic Club and Toronto Athletic Club, and another club (of which I do not wish to give the name) were after this meet. After giving the committee assurance that we would provide a proper track and field to run these events off, and also guarantee competent officials, they agreed to allow the L. A. A. the championship for this year.

Mr. Fry and Mr. Steele also promised their personal co-operation, and guaranteed that the association would assist in any way they possibly could in making this meet a success.

A. T. TAYLOR.

WILL ARRANGE DETAILS.

The London Amateur Athletic Association, which some time ago, decided to make every effort to bring the big track meet to London, and after decided to co-operate with the London Old Boys' Association in bringing every effort to bear on getting it for their week, will hold a special meeting within a few days to take up the matter of appointing a committee to look after the meet and to start right in arranging all the necessary details.

The Ontario championships will bring those athletes of the province who will go into the Dominion eliminations for the Canadian Olympic team. It is the first time in the city's history that the big event has been held here.

Already the fair board has given permission for alterations to be made at Queen's Park, which will make it almost an ideal place for a track meet. This makes six track meets which will be staged at the East End plant this summer, starting with the "Wossie" championships on May 19.

New stars are appearing in the big league firmament every day. Some may twinkle but a week or two and then drop, hurrying through space to oblivion. The other may shine for the day, while Cleveland hit Faber opposite before an opening crowd of 30,000.

Two of the birds breaking into print these days are "Cy" Williams, Philly outfielder, and Dan Boone, Indian pitcher. That one is a veteran of twelve years and the other a rookie, comparatively, indicates what fickle hand is picking the new astral bodies.

Boone's pinch pitching has brought him attention. The first two times he was called upon to apply the brakes to the opposing batters he pitched a total of only two complete innings. This

Down the Line In All Sports

Landing the Ontario track championships for London during Old Boys' Week goes right to the credit side of the London Amateur Athletic Association's account with the city right pronto.

Thistle supporters claim that the Shamrocks did not win by 11-4 Wednesday night. They won by a personal foul which was not a foul by any means, but which put Rene Curnoe, Thistle's captain, off the floor after she had been one of the sharpest throwers in the Shamrock side all evening. Miss Curnoe's last foul no one questions, apparently, but her second last was very questionable. Thistle supporters further point out that if all personal fouls made against the diminutive but highly bothersome Frances Talbot had been called, the lead might still have been held by Thistles.

Thistles will be under the same handicap Saturday night that they were Wednesday night—a reputation for strenuous play. It places a referee, who is only human after all, in an awkward position, because unconsciously he will naturally be more on the lookout for Thistles than their supposed gentle opponents. A deaf and dumb referee who could be dropped out of a plane here about five minutes before the game would take away the handicap to some extent.

Shamrock's victory, however, can't be altogether harked to pieces on this count. Thistles undoubtedly made most of the fouls called against them, except the outstanding and important one to which attention has been called. One thing is certain. Thistles knew of their handicap when they started, and went on the floor resolved to tone down their style of play. Whether they did succeed, or Shamrocks were experienced enough and coached enough to take an obvious advantage of a Thistle weakness, only a very neutral fan could say, and apparently there are few of those about.

Those who deplore anything strenuous when it comes to a game of this sort, however, are unreasonable. Shamrocks when they played with Edmonton, for using a strenuous style similar to Thistles received the plaudits of London's basketball following.

It is human nature for even table tennis to become quite heated if rivalry in this pastime could be intensified to the degree it is in the local girls' series.

Hitting like he's heard the last two days is Lee Mackey's sure cure for insomnia.

Refusing to be plastered according to his usual custom, Frederick Fulton almost gave Floyd Johnson a chance to cry over spilled milk. It must be said on behalf of Johnson that Fulton can fight when the spirit moves him. Owing perhaps to the presence of a noted English spiritualist in this country the spirit of battle seems to have visited Fulton in the New Jersey ring. The truth of the matter would seem to be that Johnson still has one thing to develop—the old wallop.

lit of work, however, netted him his victories in the official averages. His pitching was the kind demanded of pinch fingers. In both cases his effectiveness in halting the barrage of base hits gave his teammates new heart and they responded with enough runs to pull the game out of the fire and put it on ice to cool.

Williams' fielding as well as his batting have been the outstanding features of the early games of the hopeless Pirates. This is Williams' twelfth season in the big show. He should be slipping, but he doesn't give any indication of needing a cane and easy chair for a few weeks.

Among the others who are hogging the limelight these days are Willie Kamm, rookie third baseman of the White Sox, Bill Wambans, second baseman of the Indians; Heinie Groh of the Giants; Dutch subbing for George Sisler at first for the Browns; Larry Woodall, young catcher with the Tigers. Judging by these early games the season ought to furnish the corner stone with regards to a plenty and keep the statistical wizards scratching their heads bald.

M'TIGUE WATCHES TITLE CAREFULLY

Signs For Three Easy No-Decision Bouts Before Big Scrap With Carp.

By FAIR PLAY. Copyright. New York, April 26.—Mike M'Tigue does not figure to run many chances of losing his title before his July scrap with Carpenter, even granting that he has signed for three no-decision bouts in May and June. The opponents are young Bob Fitzsimmons, Tommy Loughran and Roddy McDonald, all of them good boys but distinctly not in the championship light heavy class. Any one of these fighters could deprive Mike of his title by sending him to sleep, but only in this way could it be done, and the chances of any such calamity deflating the Mike world's champion are so slight as to be negligible.

Jack Kearns sent word to us all today that Jack Dempsey is on his way east prepared to engage any opponents who may be selected for him. Kearns, keen business man as he is, did not neglect to drag in some references to Dempsey's company. Some day, maybe, we will all be asked to get in on the ground floor via the stock and bond route. Well, we haven't stood in propositions that looked a great deal worse than this coal scheme of Jack's.

But if the Dempsey coal prospect isn't any more reassuring than the photographs that Kearns sent of his meal ticket, not a great deal of stock is likely to be sold. Dempsey in the rough and ready mining tops of the movie actor, is depicted squaring off against some old fellow similarly garbed. And Jack looks as though he weighed two hundred and twenty pounds. He surely has taken on a bunch of avoirdupois and is beginning to carry weight for age. Look out, Jack.

Cubs Create Sensation In Early Season Games

The Dope Said Chicago Wasn't Ready, But They Have Been Winning With Ease—Giants, Too, Have Been Taking Easy Ones.

By JOHN B. FOSTER.

New York, April 26.—The Chicago Cubs are today a greater sensation in the National League than are the Giants. New York leads the league, but everybody thought that would happen with nothing to play against in the east excepting Boston and Brooklyn, the former ambitious but not ready perhaps for year or two, and the latter like a ship lying idle at dock and dropping to pieces.

The Cubs are almost duplicating their spring of 1922. Indeed, they are so near to a like affair that it is almost uncanny. They have not taken it out on Cincinnati as they did last season, because they have played a series of games with the Yankees in the big town. In their first eight games the Pirates, who they have won seven of, have made Pittsburgh look drab in the first series. St. Louis does not appear more handsome by contrast with the Cubs than they have won seven of. This year they have won seven of the first eight. It is not merely the fact that they have won that is so astonishing, however. That's what a team is hired to do. It is the fact that they have won with ease that is the thing. They were not ready to begin, and not ready enough to win. Some of the boys who came back from the coast and had been practicing practice, in other words, were not better than a second division team, and there was little enthusiasm.

Hit 13 Homers. Yet they have been the top notchers of the western half of the National League circuit. Since the season started the Cubs have made thirteen home runs. Harnett, Cub catcher, has four to his credit. Aldridge has pitched a two-hit game for them, and Alexander breezed through his first game without effort.

The Giants might have opened their season on their own grounds on Wednesday, and there has been much anxiety as to why they didn't. They were put over a day, that they might rest after four days in Brooklyn, catch up with one Sunday date, of which they are vastly more considerate than any others in their schedule and have New York to themselves, and still permit the Washingtons to play a four-game series with the Yankees in the big town. With only one defeat, however, they otherwise shining escutcheon, the Giants start their home season visibly in the lead—while the Chicago Cubs, who they will finish in October. The prize of the first eight, it is not merely the fact that they have won that is so astonishing, however. That's what a team is hired to do. Thistles-Samrock Game On For Saturday Night

Thistles Sure They Can Overcome Shamrock Lead

Shamrocks Believe That They'll Add To Lead, Which Leaves Divergence of Opinion—Expect a Record Crowd.

Shamrocks, who made a reservation in their agreement for the series with Thistles that if Favorite-Knits could come here Saturday night the second game of the local series would be postponed until Tuesday, received word yesterday that the Clevelanders were not coming. So local fans will therefore see the local controversy fought out. The Shamrock camp is in a state of jubilation over the win of Wednesday night, and believe they'll add to their seven-point lead. They realize, however, that it will be just as speedy a journey as they have made, and are ready, no matter how fast the pace goes.

Thistles are not a bit downcast over their defeat. They point to the fact that it was only after they had lost two of their strongest players that Shamrocks were able to overtake them. The Thistles have not attempted any

DRURY'S RECORD WINS APPROVAL OF LONDON LABOR

Members of Local Party Willing To Back U. F. O. Organization.

PUT UP CANDIDATE

Harry B. Archer and J. Shaw Mentioned For Ward Four Contest.

The members of the London Labor party believe that the U. F. O. Labor administration at Toronto has been more or less satisfactory—at least the great majority of them placed themselves on record to that effect at a special session last night.

Open advocates of a clean break with Premier Drury and his agrarian followers were few, but aggressive, and the resolution of commendation was passed only after Delegate D. J. Tallant abandoned his blockade tactics.

During the evening the preliminary for the coming year and local campaigns were outlined and the party nomination day was set for May 31. It was resolved to place a candidate in the field in ward 4 for the approaching election, and the names of two prospective candidates were submitted.

Henry B. Archer and John Shaw. It was hoped that either of these two would be able to carry the Labor banner in the north-east of the city.

The record of the Drury government was unfolded and narrowly scrutinized, there being one or two "insurgents," notably D. J. Tallant, who did not appear to view the prospect as philosophically as did Arthur Mould, presiding officer, who lauded the U. F. O. Labor combine and proceeded at intervals throughout the proceedings.

Delegate Donald Wright's suggestion that the Labor force go forth to battle under their own standard, forth a tussle of no mean proportions, although Delegate Tallant's sweeping denunciation of the Drury government cleared the way for a general debate.

Delegate Mould warned his associates that while there might be a risk of the past four years, Labor must stand by the discredited Drury as the good deeds, the fair and honest would judge them upon their past record and the future would take care of itself. Time enough after the election he believed, to consider alliances or working agreements, about their record.

Defends Drury Government. It was his contention that Delegate Wright's move to stand alone was unnecessary as any agreement with the U. F. O. would automatically terminate with the dissolution of the House. He expected that they should go to the country without "quibbling" about their record.

The speaker warmly defended the Drury government for what legislation had been enacted favorable to the workers, contrasting it with the attitude of the old-line parties in power in former years.

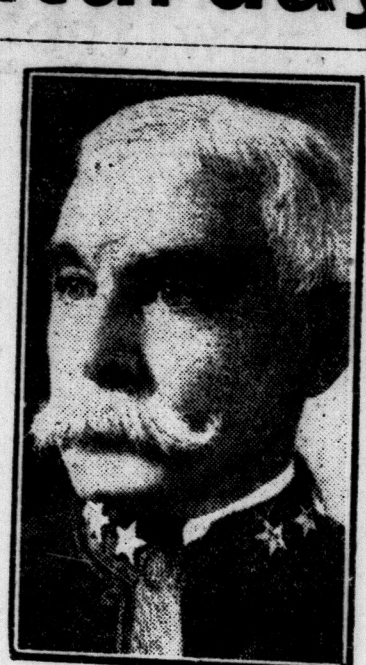

Delegate J. F. Thompson took the stump, first moving that the party place itself on record officially as considering that the U. F. O. Labor party had, "in the main," been satisfactory.

Delegate Thompson followed up his resolution with a spirited explanation of the reasons for the party's position. He stated that the party should be maintained in the city and that the farmers had not done justice to the party who had sponsored the bills that had placed the city in the position it is today. He referred particularly to the street railway increased fares and the city bill.

"Direct action by the U. F. O. was not responsible for this legislation," Delegate Thompson declared. "It was the Drury government who were responsible for the many good laws constructed during the past four years."

Delegate Mould made it quite clear that while Labor was bound to stand with the government upon its record, as Labor had co-operated with the Drury forces, it did not necessarily follow that Labor would feel impelled to undertake a similar stand after the next election.

Conclusions may be such that Labor might again co-operate with the Druryites or even stand alone. He discounted as "propaganda" the gas bill, but Premier Drury and his members voted in the negative.

Delegate Wright had certain charges against the government which created not a little stir, and he voiced exception to the Thompson resolution, submitting that "it was not a resolution, but merely a bouquet."

Then Delegate Tallant tossed in his sharp-edged missile, expressing his indignation to support the motion if Delegate Thompson would withdraw the word "satisfactory." He evidently failed to see where the Drury government had been at all satisfactory.

Delegate R. Hessel vouchsafed the opinion that the resolution adopted more the nature of a bouquet-checking enterprise when it was non-essential. He acknowledged that some good legislation had been enacted at Toronto by those who had been sent there for that purpose, but there was room for vast improvement.

"There has been some pretty severe criticism hurled at this government," he reminded, "particularly affecting labor legislation. And there have been matters brought to the attention of the house when we could not receive and defeat them."

He had been to the House as a member of the Ontario executive and have encountered that experience. Delegate Hessel referred to the fair wage clause, and contended that this question had not been dealt with to the satisfaction of the Labor rank and file, and while H. H. Walter Rollo had addressed them here his remarks had not been as satisfactory as he could have wished.

Passes Resolution. Delegate Frank McKay lauded the Drury government, and credited the Labor men with striving earnestly and consistently for the cause. He pictured the records of previous governments and upheld the present House as the best in the history of the province.

After a lengthy and exhaustive debate the motion of commendation was passed with a large majority. Delegate Tallant leading the small group of "rebels."

No direct mention was made relative to a candidate coming last night's gathering, but Dr. Stevenson, who was praised by Delegate Thompson and others, "It was the member for London," declared the latter, "who, when the members of the legislature sat perplexed, suggested the taxation of automobiles, the proceeds from which were to be used to build a new bridge over the river."

WILL SEEK ABOLITION OF LEVEL CROSSINGS

London Citizens To Put Issue Up To President of C. N. R.

London will take steps to secure the abolition of all level crossings in this city as far as the Canadian National Railway is concerned when Sir Henry Thornton, president of the road, visits this city on Tuesday next.

This question along with that of a new station will be taken up with Sir Henry and his staff by officials of the city and representatives of various organizations. This was decided at a meeting of various officials in the Chamber of Commerce rooms last evening.

Sir Henry, accompanied by Vice-President J. S. Hungerford, General Manager C. G. Bowker, General Superintendent R. H. Fish, will arrive in the city at 11:30 o'clock in the morning. They will meet C. Forrester, superintendent of the local district, and other local officials at a luncheon at the Tecumseh House.

Representatives of various organizations will attend as guests. Following the luncheon a meeting will be held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms where a deputation from the Chamber of Commerce and the Ontario Travelers' Association will make representations for an improved train service out of London, particularly to the north.

Recommendations that special rates should be given on Alberta coal shipped into Ontario will also be made.

A tour of the city will be made in automobiles during the afternoon and the carshops, the C. N. R. roundhouse, the industrial area and other points of interest will be visited.

At 4:15 the party will make a trip to Port Stanley over the London and Port Stanley line, returning to the city in time for a dinner at the Tecumseh House which will be given at 6:15 o'clock.

Sir Henry will leave the city later in the evening. The arrangements for the visit were made by Mayor Weniger, Frank Harley and A. E. Richards of the London Port Stanley, James Gray of the Chamber of Commerce, chairman, and C. Forrester at a conference yesterday.

CITY CONSERVATIVES ELECT 1923 OFFICERS

Plan Meeting Soon For Appointment of Ward Chairmen.

The annual gathering of the Conservative Club last night in the club rooms over the Grand Opera House, resolved itself into an organization meeting at which resolutions were made for the approaching campaign. This at least was the statement of some of the officers of the club, as the press was excluded from the conference.

The officers elected for 1923 were: President, Dr. Cameron Wilson; first vice-president, Dr. George McKel; second vice-president, H. J. Child; third vice-president, Albert Judson; treasurer, Fred Lawson; secretary, Niven Judd, and auditor, F. E. Weir.

A meeting will be called in the near future for the purpose of appointing ward chairmen.

USUAL SPRING CLEAN-UP REDUCES CATTLE PRICE

Large Number of Unfinished Animals Make Clearance Difficult.

Special to The Advertiser.

Toronto, April 27.—The usual spring cleaning up of cattle on the farms, to make way for the harrowing and the sowing, has resulted this week in an overloaded and badly congested cattle market. Too many rough unfinished cattle have been marketed, making it difficult for the commission men to effect the usual clearance of the week-end. About five or six hundred cattle were left unsold at the close of Thurs-

The market opened on Monday with 5,000 cattle on sale. These included 1,000 head of Western Canada cattle from Winnipeg. The cattle are mostly of the feeder class and are consigned to the H. P. Keeney Co., of Winnipeg. The cattle are bled through which means they are saving to the Ontario purchaser. There being no local freights to pay for the cattle.

Sales are made on a basis of Winnipeg weights and freight and premium market price on the day of shipment.

This means that the Ontario farmer buys a load of western feeder cattle at a price which will finish and weight at Winnipeg. It is stated that the pool shipments coming from the west are finding great demand. The pool shipments of cattle sold were on the basis of $5.50 to $6.50, Winnipeg weights and freight. Following the decline during the week the price was $5.25 to $6 in the closing market.

In Monday's market there was a demand for heavy export cattle, with the price purchased from the previous week and ranging from $7.75 to $8.25.

also filled in the opening market, so that for the balance of the week there was no export demand, except for a few odd steers to fill up a car. Owing to the general lateness of the season and the consequent deferred opening of the port of Montreal, the trade in store cattle for export purposes has been quiet, and is practically suspended during this week, and probably for next week, as it does not seem likely that Montreal will open before about May 8.

and feeders for Ontario institutions has been active in effect, relieving to a considerable extent the congestion of the market in the general

For stockers and feeders, prices for the butcher class declined about 20¢ to $1.00 on the best butcher, and 50¢ to $1.00 on the rough and unfinished cattle.

For cows held exceptionally strong. Fat cows are finding it difficult to get on Monday's market. Heavy ruins of poor-quality calves forced the market down. Sheep and lambs held fairly steady with a slight gain, but weaker in the closing market. Hogs strong in the opening market, but with a moderate advance to 10.40 c. f. o. and probabilities lower or next week.

WESTERN DEPOSITORS LOSE BULK OF SAVINGS

Many Winnipeg People Ruined
by Crash of Banking Concern.

Special to The Advertiser.
Winnipeg, April 26.—Depositors of the Dominion Ticket and Financial Agency, which crashed here in February, will lose the aggregate more than $750,000. An official note to the depositors and creditors will be sent out on Thursday announcing that checks will be mailed within a month for 75 per cent of their deposits at the Dominion Ticket and Financial Agency, totaling $750,000. The amount to be paid out will be in the neighborhood of $50,000, thereby representing a loss of more than $700,000.

The crash of the Dominion Ticket Corporation, an institution carrying on a banking business under the name of private bankers, came late in February, and caused a sensation in Winnipeg and financial circles, which is even yet being echoed in the present sitting on the revision of the bank clearing in the city. Some 1,300 depositors were affected by the crash to the extent, in a number of cases, of some thousands of dollars. Most of them were "new Canadians," attracted by the high rate of interest offered on savings accounts and by the attractive personality of the president, R. G. Dun & Co., who could speak several European languages.

with proficiency. Mr. Schimowski is at present awaiting preliminary trial.
The largest sum on deposit with the Dominion Ticket was the property of the Parish of St. Joseph, amounting to $27,034.83. Under a settlement of 75 cents on the dollar, the parish is to receive about $20,276.12, but its loss would be over $7,000.
J. J. Dyck of Plum Coulee was the largest individual depositor. Under the settlement he will receive about $1,550, but his loss will be about $16,000.
In numerous cases, according to statements made at meetings of creditors held shortly after the firm went into liquidation, the people had their entire savings of a life time deposited with this company.

CANADIAN EGG REVIEW

Ottawa, April 26.—Ontario egg shippers are now reported to be asking 23c to 23½c f.o.b. for candled eggs. Manitoba dealers are offering extras 28c, firsts 27c, seconds 25c, f.o.b. shipping point. One car is reported rolling to Toronto from Moose Jaw and one to Quebec from Winnipeg.

It is interesting to note that the tentative standards for eggs proposed by the United States department of agriculture include for fresh four grades, but for candled eggs, the standard grades in the country, namely, specials, extras, firsts and seconds. They have an additional class for culls, which covers all the heavily shrunken, salted, chilled and small eggs.
Toronto.—Unchanged.
Montreal.—Local situation unchanged. Dealers report paying 23c. Ontario points unchanged.
Quebec.—Unchanged; receipts little heavier; dealers quoting delivered 24c to 24½c, jobbing, extras 31c to 32c, firsts 29c, seconds 27c.
Southern Saskatchewan.—Lower; dealers quoting country shippers, delivered, extras 22c, firsts 20c, seconds 18c. Northern Saskatchewan.—Dealers quoting 22c, loss off.
Alberta and British Columbia markets unchanged.

Alice Is Sure Parliament Needs to go to the Country

Thinks Nothing Could Be More Restful for the Members, After Their Recent Non-Stop Talking Contest.

Alice's girl friend wanted very much to go to "Souls at Auction," but Alice said, "No, it would be much more fun to go to parliament; that afternoon, because she heard that they were putting on a perfectly wonderful filibuster."
"What's a filibuster?" asked Alice's girl friend, doubtfully.
"Why, it's a non-stop talking contest," said Alice, enthusiastically; "and it's open to the public."
"What do they talk about?" the girl friend inquired.

"That was the interesting part—they could talk about anything they liked—proportional representation, or prohibition, or long skirts, or the Argentine vango and higher. They could, or they could read out of the encyclopedia, or The Telegram, or the telephone directory, or anything. The main thing was to keep on talking. Why, my grandma, Colonel Currie talked for ten hours," cried Alice.
"Right straight ahead?" said the girl friend, incredulously.
"I'm not so sure about that," answered Alice. "I read in the paper that Premier Drury passed supplies."

"What's the filibuster for?" asked the girl friend.
"Oh, it's just a sort of entertainment," answered Alice, carelessly. "Just a sort of benefit performance that the opposition was putting on for the government."
"But this time Alice and her girl friend had arrived at the Parliament Buildings, and Alice stopped to ask the man in the hall where she could get tickets for the filibuster."
"Filibuster? What's that?" asked the man in the hall.
"Why, that was over last week," Alice and her girl friend were terribly disappointed, but Alice said they might as well go upstairs and see what was happening, anyway.

"Because you can never tell," she said, "they might start calling each other pirates or jelly fish any minute."

But they didn't. Indeed, Alice and her girl friend had never seen the house quite so spiritless as it was that afternoon. The reaction after the filibuster had set in. Most of the seats were empty and the members who were present sat about

NIGHTINGALE CLUB PRESENTS A COMEDY

"The Turning of the Lane"
Proves Delightfully Clever Entertainment.

"The Turning of the Lane" was the title of a clever comedy sketch presented last evening by the Nightingale Club of the Y. W. C. A. in the Central College auditorium. The parts were well taken by the various members of the cast, including Wallace Hutson and Ada Minniley, as Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Brandon, whose home the story is in. Clarence Donaldson cleverly filled the role of Jasper Fernley, a millionaire. The other parts were: Laura Fernley (Jean McVittie), the physician, Dr. Roger Austin (William Wylie), Blashington Ingleby (Vincent Watson), Mrs. T. A. Smythe (Ruth Lucas), the baroness, Mrs. Algernon (Master Siddle Reid), Vincent Graf (a second Paul Satch), Speedmore Gasaway (Albert Oltum), the Chamber of Commerce Club and other public-spirited organizations.

Mayor Wenige wants a new Grand Trunk station and other C. N. R. improvements for London, and to the Advertiser today he announced his determination to bring this question to the attention of Sir Henry Thornton, who is expected in the city on Tuesday.

"We want a new station in London as badly as we need a new city hall," his worship stated, "and that is what we are going after."

The mayor proposes that the entire city council shall interview the railroad president in this connection when he comes to the city, in company with a strong deputation of representative citizens from the Chamber of Commerce Club and other public-spirited organizations.

To remove the element of danger from the York street hill, steps will be taken by the city to widen the street.

At the present time there is insufficient space between the car tracks and the curb on the south side to pass each other in safety, so it is proposed to remove the curb and gutter. The road will then extend to the sidewalk.

There are 34 poles between the sidewalk and the curb within the block at the present time, and the city engineer has asked the public utilities commission to investigate the possibility of moving them.

With this in view, E. V. Buchanan has had plans drawn up for placing the poles inside the sidewalk. He will hold a conference with the managers of the two telephone companies, the Bell Telephone Company and the Street Railway Company to discuss placing of the poles.

If the companies are willing, the utilities commission, and each company will bear a share of the cost.

News From the Churches

RECITAL AT ST. JAMES'.
A delightful recital was given by the Sunday School Orchestra of New St. James Church last evening, under the direction of Mrs. Grant Harris, assisted by Mrs. Macbray, Mrs. W. Self, Miss Elsie Orr and Miss Leon Wood, reader.

One of the most enjoyable numbers was the string trio, of violins and cello, played by Mrs. Grant Harris, Miss Cahill and Miss Cooke. Other artistic numbers were a violin duo by Mrs. Grant Harris and Miss Cahill; a song, "The Love Song," by Miss Elsie Orr; "The Blessing of the Deaf," by Mrs. Leon Adams, was greatly enjoyed; also "Your Voice," by Mrs. Macbray, and "The Cradle Song," by Mrs. Self.

The orchestra presented a charming group of selections, which reflected great credit on the director, Mrs. Frank Smith acted as accompanist.

ASKIN STREET MISSION CIRCLE.
Mrs. Herbert Childs was re-elected president of the Senior Mission Circle of Askin Street Methodist Church at the annual meeting held yesterday at the home of Mrs. Edward Parnell.

DECLARE SHOE FIRMS FIGHTING TO CUT COST

Deny the Manufacturers Are Mulcting Public Through the Tariff.

Special to The Advertiser.
Montreal, April 27.—Instead of a combine operating to keep shoe prices at the maximum level allowed by a high tariff, Canadian shoe manufacturers are engaged in an intense and unrestrained competition that is bringing an unusually high mortality among them, according to the representations telegraphed from Montreal and Ottawa today.

Evidence given before the special agricultural committee of the House of Commons this week charged shoe manufacturers with mulcting the public through the tariff. The Shoe Manufacturers' Association of Canada have telegraphed a general denial of the charge.

GOMPERS WILL SEEK TO ORGANIZE WOMEN

Unions Will Endeavor To Combat Decision Invalidating Minimum Wage.

Associated Press Despatch.
Washington, April 27.—Trade unions will endeavor to combat the effect of the recent supreme court decision invalidating the minimum wage law for women in the district of Columbia by extending union organization.

President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, yesterday called a conference of women workers to be held at the federation's headquarters today to consider plans "to organize the women wage-earners of Washington thoroughly and effectively."

WILL NOT USE FUNDS TO ELEVATE NAVY GUNS

Associated Press Despatch.
Washington, April 27.—The appropriation made by Congress at the last session for elevating the guns of the United States fleet will not be used for that purpose, Secretary of the Navy Denby announced yesterday, because of the "unintended erroneous statements" made by U. S. navy representatives in recommending the application.

Had Constipation for Six Months Was Relieved by Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills

A free motion of the bowels daily should be the rule of everyone, then there will be no constipation, sick or bilious spells, heartburn, foul breath, sour stomach, etc.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will regulate the flow of bile to act properly on the bowels, thus making them active and regular, removing the constipation and all its allied troubles.

Mrs. R. C. Hunt, Port George, N. S. writes: "I have been troubled by being constipated for the last six months. My tongue has been terribly coated, so much so that it made my breath bad. I was talking to a friend about it and she advised me to use Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills which I did, and now I am perfectly well. My tongue is as smooth as it was before I got that way, and I owe it all to your Pills, of which I only used two vials."

Price 50c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price to The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.—Advt.

Don't Spoil Your Child's Hair By Washing It

When you wash your child's hair, be careful what you use. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Milled coconut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Milled in a cup of water with a little warm water, then moisten the hair with water and rub the Milled in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh-looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust and dandruff.

You can get Milled Coconut Oil Shampoo at any drug store and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure you get Milled. Look for the name Watkins on the package.—Advt.

DON'T SQUEEZE BLACK- HEADS—DISSOLVE THEM

Squeezing and pinching out blackheads make the pores large and cause irritation. Blackheads are caused by accumulations of dirt and oil and secretions from the skin, and are not only a safe and sure way and one that never fails to get rid of them—a simple way, but every blackhead is a little sore. Just get from any drug store about two ounces of peroxide powder—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet face—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—wash off, and you'll be surprised to see that every blackhead has disappeared, and the skin will be left soft and the pores in their natural condition.—Advt.

TRY SULPHUR ON AN ECZEMA SKIN

Costs Little and Overcomes Trouble Almost Overnight.

Any breaking out of the skin, even if it is itching, can be quickly overcome by applying Mentho-Sulphur. Because of its germ-destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema, fights up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment without other treatment. Eczema skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.—Advt.

BOARD CONSIDERS THREE LOCATIONS FOR NEW SCHOOL

Discuss Merits and Demerits of Proposed Sites in West London.

OFFERS LAND GRATIS

Dr. H. T. Reason Would Donate Property For Erection of Structure.

It is almost certain that the new West London public school will be erected on one of three sites selected yesterday by the building and property committee of the board of education during a tour of inspection in that part of the city.

The three properties visited and listed are, the Dr. H. T. Reason estate, Bottrill's field, and the site of the present school, including some additional property. Options will be secured on the land and the final choice left to a meeting of the board as a whole.

The first property visited was one offered to the board gratis by Dr. H. T. Reason who wishes in return that the school be known as the "Catherine Reason Memorial School."

The site consists of any portion of 35 acres which comprise the estate road between Charles and Oxford streets. The land is somewhat lower than either Oxford street or Wharncliffe road and it is feared that it could be utilized.

Bottrill's field consists of three or four acres of level ground situated between Oxford street and the C. P. Wharncliffe road. At the present time it is being used as a playground by the Public Utilities Commission.

The land is high and dry and is of the proper size. There is some objection to its location, however, for it is feared that it is located too near the railway tracks and too far from the center of the district, although it is only two short blocks from the present school.

The present site is highly satisfactory in every way except for size. To enlarge the site additional property would have to be purchased on two sides and perhaps a street closed.

DELIGHTS WITH SONG AT INSTITUTE RECITAL

Carrie Fitchett Reveals Much Talent at Concert, Assisted by Miss E. James.

By A. MINOR.
Striking and pleasing personality, combined with ease and grace, are invaluable assets for the student of singing, ambitious to become an artist, or even just to give pleasure from time to time to the public with her music.

These are possessed in abundance by Miss Carrie Fitchett, contralto, in the London Institute of Music, Art, and Music, who last evening attracted an audience which filled the hall to its capacity. Doubtless, a measure of the interest due to the prestige, as a teacher, of Miss Dorinda Abbott, of whom she is a pupil, and also to the popularity of the talented young assisting artist, Miss Edith James, violinist.

Miss Fitchett revealed a voice of unusual depth, power and warmth, especially apparent in the more substantial work, such as "One Fleeting Hour" (Laurance), "The Legend of the Dawn" (Brahms), and "My Peace is Gone" (Graben-Hoffmann). Several test numbers for a student.

Her interesting and varied program included "The Waters of Wines" (Laurance), "May Night" (George), "Down Here" (Brahms), "Sappho Ode" (Brahms), "Bonjour Monsieur" (Pessard), and "The Salvation of the Dawn" (Kurtistener). With further training to harness her undoubted talent, give to her voice even quality throughout, make her vocal art a medium of expression for what she most obviously feels and understands, the concert platform would have genuine acquisition in her.

Miss James, who has a most pleasing tone, good intonation and musical feeling, gave much pleasure with her vocal art in "The Zingari Dance" (Drda), "Hungarian Dance" (Laurance), and "Hungarian Dance" (Laurance). Miss Fitchett was assisted by Misses Verna Dobson and Laura Kirkwood played sympathetic and finished accompaniments.

Will Ask King to Omit
Titles in South Africa

Col. Creswell Gives Notice of Presentation of Address.

Associated Press Despatch.
Cape Town, S. A., April 27.—In the House of Assembly Wednesday, Col. Creswell, leader of the Labor party, gave notice of motion for the presentation of an address to the king, praying that his majesty refrain from conferring titles on his subjects domiciled in the Union of South Africa.

The Assembly gave third reading to a bill providing for the payment of export bounties on livestock and beef. The chief opposition to the bill came from the labor members, who contended that the proposed bounties would benefit the storage companies without benefiting the producers or consumers.

Solemn Beauty Reigns As Duke of York Marries

Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon Becomes Bride of Member of British Royalty, While Nation Rejoices In Romance.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, April 27.—The Duke of York and Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon joined hands and hearts before the golden altar of Westminster yesterday, while Britain poured out its blessing.

The magnificent church service that elevated the modest Scotch girl from the common ranks to a place in the crown of the empire would have excited a king or queen.

Hallowed Walls Enshrine.
The great edifice in parliament square, which enshrines within its hallowed walls the mortal remains of kings, queens, martyrs, saints and heroes, has been the scene of a transcending interest, but it has witnessed few that surpassed in beauty and solemnity today's romantic event.

All the members of the royal family and a brilliant array of foreign princes, nobles, ambassadors and ministers, with their ladies, were there.

The entire service was conducted with the traditional precision of British royal events. Only when the bride was called upon by the archbishop of Canterbury to repeat the solemn ritual beginning:

"I take thee to be my wedded husband," did her manner betoken a sign of nervousness. Her voice was scarcely audible to the vast congregation.

The bridegroom gave the impression of a man at happy ease. Queen Mary wore a solemn, severely dignified expression, and kept her eyes upon the bride couple throughout.

The venerable dowager, Queen Alexandra, gave the royal ceremony a human touch by moving out of her place and bestowing kisses upon the members of the party as they came within the chancel.

Next to the bride and groom, Princess Mary and the Prince of Wales were the objects of the most intense attention. Wales appeared to be the calmest man in the abbey, and he stood with the thumb of his right hand in his breast pocket during the ceremony.

At one point Alexandra leaned toward him and whispered in his ear what some in the audience declared must have been good advice to a bachelor.

The wedding ceremony began promptly at 11:30 o'clock. After the King and Queen, the other royals and clergy had taken their places, the soft, melodious tones of the invisible male choir, accompanied by the sonorous booming of the great organ flowed over the gathering, filling the vast abbey with moving cadences.

The bride in the simplest and daintiest gown probably ever made for a royal marriage, then moved slowly to the steps of the altar, the arm of her tall, courtly father, the Earl of Strathmore. She carried no bridal bouquet, having deposited it on the tomb of the unknown soldier.

She was joined soon afterward by the bridegroom, who presented a striking figure in his blue uniform of the Royal Air Force, with the blue ribbon of the garter across his shoulder and a golden sword at his side. The six bridesmaids, two of whom are soon to become brides themselves, stood behind the couple, the ensemble presenting a delightful picture.

As the Duke and his bride joined hands, the sun, which had not revealed itself for several days, suddenly emerged from the mist, and its light, coming through the high, vaulted windows of the abbey, cast an effulgence upon the gallant Duke and his lovely bride and brought into bold relief the touches of gold, crimson and silver in the costumes of the brilliant assemblage of spectators.

The Duke stood fully a head taller than Lady Elizabeth, his erect, muscular frame and the ruddy glow of his countenance contrasting strongly with the delicate figure of his bride, whose robe of unrelieved white seemed to accentuate the paleness of her features.

After the archbishop of Canterbury had recited the usual ritual, the Duke placed the ring on the fourth finger of his bride's left hand, and in a reverent voice said: "With this ring I thee wed, with my body I thee worship and with all my worldly goods I thee endow." The archbishop then offered prayer, pronounced the couple man and wife and proclaimed to the vast congregation:

"Those whom God hath joined together, let no man put asunder." A Knelt at the Altar.

He added his blessing and the newly-married pair advanced inside the sanctuary and knelt at the altar while the choir sang Wesley's Chant. The service was concluded with a short prayer and benediction as the congregation knelt in silent devotion. The royal couple then repaired to the chapel of St. Edward and the confessor, where they signed the marriage register.

After signing the register, the Duke and Duchess were escorted by the clergy through the nave to the familiar accompaniment of Men-odors wedding march, and passed out to receive the plaudits of the waiting multitudes. Their return to Buckingham Palace through miles of cheering humanity was like a procession of triumph.

A wedding breakfast, presided over by the King and Queen, was served in the state dining-room, and shortly after four o'clock the happy couple left for their honeymoon in Surrey.

By LADY DIANA MANNERS.
Special Cable to The Advertiser.
LADY MANNERS STORY.

London, April 26.—We are seated. We need and pass this word and that. Outside, all the world and his wife is looking this way. At hand, not even an ambassador but is duly impressed, not a field marshal but who wonders if all the plans will go as they should. And, but let us begin at the beginning.

This April day in London was true to the best traditions. All the day before it had rained steadily, and the falling spirits the lugubrious sight of men engaged in putting up flags and bunting and every form of gay decoration under the depressing atmosphere of continuous drizzle and a bleak wind. Long before dawn the streets surrounding the abbey were half thronged.

Made Effort to Improve.
When the important hours of the day approached, the weather, as though aware of what was expected of it, seemed to be making a conscientious effort to improve, but it was not until Lady Elizabeth left her house in Bruton street that the first ray of sunshine lighted up the town. More than an hour before she left her home the abbey was nearly full.

It is an impressive experience to be there on an occasion of the kind. One sits in a corner surrounded by the statues of the great dead and watches the arrival of the living great. One looks up and sees above one the outstretched arms of Chatham, the falcon eyes of Gladstone or the recumbent figure of Wolfe. Each looks round and sees Mr. Bonar Law, with a hair a little ruffled by the unwelcome use of a cooked hat; Mr. Winston Churchill, looking younger and thinner after a holiday on the Riviera; or Admiral Beatty, with his breast graining under the weight of the medals that it bears.

Then there are the ambassadors, sitting in a row of separate stalls, with their wives in a rather humiliating position beneath the great dead statues of the great dead. Each stall is divided from its neighbor by a few wooden bars, and one couldn't but wonder whether the wasn't fortunate in the case of the French and German ambassadors, who by the accident of precedence sit side by side. On high court occasions such as this it has hitherto been the privilege—the particular chic, if one may use the word—of the American ambassador to be the only person present in evening dress, for Englishmen who are not entitled to wear any uniform wear court dress—a velvet coat and lace jabot round the neck.

The Privilege of Democracy.
But all privileges are disappearing, and even this, the privilege of democracy, is no longer unique, for the German ambassador also wears ordinary evening clothes today. In the past the German ambassador surpassed all his colleagues in the glory of his uniform and the glitter of his innumerable medals and stars. He is now reduced to the full dress uniform of the head waiter in a good hotel.

That is what we mean by progress. New the time approaches. The royal family arrives—the King, the Queen, Queen Alexandra and her sister, the Empress Marie Frederica. The last, clothed in deep purple, bears herself with true majesty. She seems herself to represent in her single person all the Russia once stood for in the eyes of the world.

Then come the king's sons, sons of the king and queen, the other royals and clergy had taken their places, the soft, melodious tones of the invisible male choir, accompanied by the sonorous booming of the great organ flowed over the gathering, filling the vast abbey with moving cadences.

that impulsive humanity that has so long endeared her to the hearts of the British public, cannot resist taking the young bridegroom's hand in her hands and kissing him upon both cheeks, and, of course, having done it to him, she had to do the same to the Prince of Wales.

The marriage service is just the ordinary marriage service. Nothing put in, nothing left out.

There is an address from the archbishop, which is not easy to hear in parts of the church, and then the side and bridegroom pass into the vestry to sign the register, accompanied by the King and Queen and the very few of the nearest relations.

Presently the radiant couple reappear, the familiar strains of the wedding march fill the church and they walk down the aisle followed by the King and Queen and the rest of the royal family, the Prince of Wales tenderly escorting Queen Alexandra. The procession has hardly passed before we slip out of the north door near which we are seated, and are in time to see the bride and bridegroom who have left by the west door, driving away.

We catch one last glimpse of their two happy faces and in our hearts we hear the great roar of welcome from London which has been waiting for hours to give them the greeting that they deserve.

"Up From the Death Cell" The Story of a Man Who Won a Fight Against Big Odds

BY JOHN W. KANE

Kane Escapes Lynching by a Clever Police Ruse and Spends His First Night in the Cells.

SYNOPSIS.

This is a story from life—a recital of facts, not a piece of fiction. Only the names have been changed to shield the author from recognition. No. 1666 is now a free man, with a family, and a place in the world. He has made good through his own efforts. He won redemption while he was in prison for killing two carmen in an attempted hold-up in a Western State.

The action so far follows:

John W. Kane—Curly, a youth of 25—takes to his dingy bedroom a newspaper describing how a few hours before he killed the carmen. His partner, waiting in the room, has had no part in the affair. The paper mentions the finding of the bandit's hat at the scene of the crime. The two discuss flight; they are in the Rocky Mountain country, with mountains on one side and desert on the other—and they have no money. The next day Curly, reading posters which offer $2,000 for his arrest, sees the partner approach. Behind him are police. Curly, betrayed, is booked; the partner is detained. A mob surrounds the jail; its leaders enter.

CHAPTER III.

The noise from the mob had subsided into a murmur; through it there came an occasional yell, and sometimes an answer. I knew they were waiting outside to see the vanguard lead me out. The trample of feet along the opposite corridor from where I was told me there were half a dozen or more men approaching. I heard them turning the corner of the cell-block. I waited, every nerve drawn tight.

Had an Awful Cold and Cough

Was Confined to Bed

Some coughs and colds seem hard to shake off—stick right to you in spite of all you do to get rid of them. These are the kind that are dangerous—the kind that weaken the lungs so that the germ of consumption finds a ready foothold.

Obtainable coughs and colds yield to the grateful soothing properties of

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

It soothes and heals the irritated lungs and bronchial tubes, cuts the phlegm, and aids nature clear away the morbid accumulations.

Mrs. Geo. D. Langdale, Barton, N. S., writes: "In the year of 1920 I was taken with an awful cold and cough, and was confined to my bed for some time. I thought I was going into consumption. I commenced to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and found it to be an excellent remedy. I can highly recommend it to every sufferer from coughs and colds." Price 35c and 60c; put up only by bottle. TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Attractiveness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.—Adv.

doors from the other end of my corridor and the light inside of my cell was switched on.

The first man of those approaching was standing in front of my cell. The lever was shot back, my door swung open.

I arose. "Here," said he, throwing what appeared to be a suit of clothes on the cot. "Take these and get into them as quick as you can. Leave your coat, vest and hat here—you can get them later."

I hesitated. The man was in plain clothes, and by his side stood a small fellow expectantly watching me. Could these be members of the mob? If so, why were they asking me to change clothes?

"Don't lose any time," the larger man urged. "The chief is palavering with some of them out in the office. He told 'em you had already been taken away. This is our only chance."

I glanced down at the clothes and caught sight of a large, bright button. Then quickly came an understanding. I was to don a police uniform.

I slipped out of my own coat and vest. "You fold these up," the plain-clothes officer instructed that smaller man—a trusty prisoner. "Take them and his hat to the office after we're gone."

I Am Told To Use My Wits.

A moment later I was walking along that corridor in the uniform of a "harness bull." While in front and behind walked several detectives.

"Listen now," one of them addressed me just before we entered the corridor leading to the outer offices. "If you act with good sense and follow along after the man in front of you, we'll pass out right by that crowd without any trouble; but if you get excited and think of making a getaway, that will only attract attention to you, and that gang might get you then in spite of all we can do."

"I'd rather take my chances with the law than with them," I returned. "Which man am I to follow?"

"This man right here." He pointed to the same rough-spoken fellow that had tried to scare me into answering questions. "Just walk along in an unconcerned manner."

I had been handed a regulation patrolman's hat, and with the full rig on I was perhaps the very last person the lynchers would suspect as the desired victim. We filed out and down the corridor, passing close by where members of the mob were waiting.

"Step back a bit, you fellows," the man in front of me said to the crowd. "We've got to get out of here on duty."

The crowd began giving way to one side. "Better stay and see the fun!" one of them called out.

"No, go ahead to your duty some place else," interposed another, looking me squarely in the face; "there'll be enough here to watch the show."

"What are they doing in there?" inquired a third.

The man next behind me answered: "Your committee is talking it over with the chief—you fellows weren't fast enough: The two men you want were taken away a half-hour ago."

"We're Goin' To Get Them!"

The answer came from the street: "They're right in there now!—and we're goin' to get them, too!"

By that time we were out on the sidewalk and turning to the right. I glanced back at the mass that reached entirely across the street, but the policeman behind me spoke low and bade me look straight ahead.

A half-block from the station entrance we turned a corner, and a moment later walked diagonally across that street, then up an alley for a distance, and there three of the officers and I entered a carriage and were driven swiftly away.

As we drove in silence I was thinking of that mob. At that day I scarcely knew there was such a word as psychology. Now I know there is a mob psychology just the same as there is a psychology of the individual. A mob bent upon killing is devoid of reasoning power. It has an aggregate emotional condition. One mind plays upon another until there is a tension that nothing but blood will relax.

Five years prior to that day I had sat upon a horse on the outskirts of a mounted mob that hanged two cattle thieves to an elm limb in Oklahoma. That, however, was not a noisy mob looking for "the fun" or "the show." But, after it was over, those lynchers of the cattle thieves were for the most part sorry. They found that one of the victims had taken no part in the thievery.

For my part I was there like the schoolboy who had joined in the plan to help rob an orchard, yet all the time pitied the man who was to be robbed. Be that as it may, five years' time had shifted the scenery in various ways, and there I was, the desired victim.

My Partner Breaks Down.

The voice of one of the officers broke my train of thought. "You stood it better than your partner did."

"How so?" I questioned. "He broke down when he found they wanted to lynch him. We had to carry him out through a basement and tear off a couple of bars over a window."

"He caused you quite a bit of trouble, then?"

"Yes, but trouble's a part of our work. I reckon—'snt it, Bill?" He turned to another of my conductors.

"It's nearly all trouble," that one replied. And then, true to the tactics of the police when they want a concession, he went on: "But that other chap's got a big streak of yellow in him. The thing I'm sorry about is, this man is just goin' to fool around and let his partner get in on the safe side—while he will have to take the worst of it. Of course, you know your own business, old man!"

I knew he meant me, but if I were in your place I'd do a little bit of talking myself. Everybody knows you're guilty, but we know, too, there might be circumstances about the matter that, if brought out, would make it a lot easier for you."

I made no answer.

I had begun to wonder where we were going, but decided to wait and see. For ten minutes more our carriage wheels creaked over the frozen snow; then we came to a stop. One of the officers got out and talked with someone; a moment later the door was opened and I stepped out in front of a large, well-lighted building that had a high stone wall joining it on the right and the left.

Inside the front office I came face to face with my partner again. He had arrived a few minutes ahead of us. He would not look at me. The handcuffs that had been placed on my wrists as soon as we were away from the mob were removed and I was told to occupy a certain seat.

The officers on duty there seemed to accept it as a matter of course that we were brought to the penitentiary.

S. K. Put After Name.

"Let's see—your name is Kane?" The man at the desk by which I was sitting addressed me. "What is your first name, please?"

"John W. Kane," I answered, surprised at his manner. I had heard that state prison officials were always gruff.

"And your age, Mr. Kane?" he went on, writing in a ledger as he spoke.

I gave him my age.

"We'll have to take a full description of you tomorrow," he explained, "but I'll enter this much now." And out at the end of that descriptive line I saw him write two letters, "S. K."

"May I ask what the 'S. K.' means?" I questioned.

"Safe keeping," he replied promptly. "And no doubt you'll be safe up here." This smilingly.

"No doubt," I returned. Then my city police escorts prepared to take their leave.

"We'll see you tomorrow, Kane," one of them turned back to tell me. "In the meantime you think it over carefully—and look to your own interests."

I knew what he meant by that: It was but another way of urging me to come clean, as the chief of detectives had said. I merely nodded to him. The large outer door was swung to and locked.

"Now you boys want to sleep, I suppose," observed the man at the desk, rising, "and we'll go through the formalities of taking you inside. Our duty to make sure you haven't anything contraband on you. Mr. West!" and he nodded toward an officer present.

Mr. West searched us carefully. There was nothing left in my pockets, however, not even a handkerchief—the city police had taken care of that part—and the searching process did not take long.

"This way, boys."

"They've Got It in for Me."

"Now just a word," said my partner; "am I to be locked up, too?"

"You certainly are. The desk man frowned at him.

"I'm not even accused of any crime," my partner pleaded, and I knew he was merely making an ass of himself. "If I have to go inside there, those prisoners will have it in for me, and—"

"Why will they have it in for you?" questioned one of the officers.

"Well," returned he, showing in every line of his face the fear that squealers have of convicts in the aggregate, "they might think that I'm a witness against him, and I'm not."

"You will be though," I interposed, "and you'd just as well begin now to take your medicine."

Almost with the words, however, I felt I had blundered. I knew that while those officials were treating me considerably, they were watching my every move and anything incriminating would be duly reported. I had been quite a newspaper reader and remembered well how the papers, in their desire to give the public all the news, were always wont to set forth each little item of news bearing in any manner upon the character of an accused of a crime. I knew that my words to my partner savored indirectly of a threat. Then and there I decided that in the future I would be on my guard against impulsive statements.

"So far as we are informed," said the man who had made those ledger entries, "neither of you men stands accused officially of any crime. But this record here shows"—he turned, facing my partner—"that you, too, are to be held by the state prison authorities in safe keeping for the city police; and that means actual safety. You'll have to go inside."

Behind Six Doors.

That settled it, yet I could see that my partner was undergoing a bit of agony. As we passed inside the prison inclosure, I counted gates and barred doors. And, including the door between the prison offices and the court in front, we were, after being finally locked in separate cells on the same tier, behind six barred and combination-locked steel doors. Truly, all indications were that we were then, so far as any escape was concerned, perfectly safe.

"Say," the cellhouse custodian addressed me through the bars of my narrow steel-walled cell, "you'll have five minutes more in which to undress and get settled on your cot; then I'll switch the lights off."

"All right," I answered. And in five minutes more I was lying, for the first night, in the darkness of a penitentiary cell.

COLLEGE GIRLS, FACTORY GIRLS ARE ALL SISTERS

Similar In Temperament, Ambitions, Says National Y.W.C.A. Industrial Secretary.

KNOWS BOTH WELL

Warmly Approves Working Women's College Courses Which "Give Background."

From Y. W. C. A. students' secretary, with colleges and schools under her jurisdiction, and a territory extending from Kingston to Halifax, a charming young visitor in the city has switched all-of-a-sudden to the role of industrial extension secretary for the national council, Y. W. C. A. That's why she's here, Miss Berta Hamilton, whose nationality is betrayed by just a hint of Scottish accent. London has made quite a name for itself in connection with Y. W. C. A. industrial extension activities, and especially the advanced system of girls' club organizations as co-ordinated in the "federation."

The new Dominion office is here to see what has been done, how it has been accomplished, and to give in turn the benefit of her experience to the "Y" workers and members.

"Official," however, seems entirely too severe a term for the slender girl with the delicately-moulded, sensitive features, the vivid and delicate coloring that is a happy heritage from the Old Land.

But there is decision when she speaks, and a fund of experience on which to draw when the subject under consideration is "girls."

As far back as war days in New-castle she had under her charge a women's club of 700 members, munition workers, business girls, house workers.

In 1919 she came to Canada to accept the office of students' secretary, a position for which the need has been largely removed through the student Christian movement in the universities.

"The thing that has struck me more than anything else," said Miss Hamilton to The Advertiser last evening, "is that girls are so much alike, so similar in ideas, ambitions, feelings, whatever they may be doing, wherever they are placed in life. The college girl and the industrial girl are not divided into separate spheres by temperament. More and more they are coming together, learning from one another, exchanging ideas, giving to one another broader vision, deeper sympathies. Clubs, classes and special courses are bringing this about, the gymnasiums and swimming pools and competitions of the Y. W. C. A."

"I've been especially interested in the working women's college courses, such as have been afforded in Bryn Mawr. Just recently in Detroit I saw a couple of girls who had enjoyed their college year and returned to their industrial positions.

Added interest. "No, it had not unnerved them for manual work. On the contrary, it had given to their occupation more interest, because they brought to it a new background of experience. They saw features and possibilities in it they had overlooked before, and they had so much more to make life worth while, something within themselves."

A similar experiment has been tried in a college near London in England. Not all girls go back to mechanical work, though the understanding is that they will. Some find themselves better fitted for other things. But in the great majority cases where they do, the result is found to be all that has been desired. The more knowledge and mental training a girl has, the more she gets out of her Left, Lady Starleton, who has been selected as the most beautiful of the titled women of Britain. Top center, Lady Eleanor Smith, daughter of Lord and Lady Birkenhead. She had all arrangements made to enter the movies when her parents stepped in with an emphatic "No!" Bottom center, the new Countess of Carnarvon, until last June Miss Katherine Wendell of New York.

Elimination Number Merry Feature Of University Convocation Dance

Youth and beauty, with music and mirth, held sway in the Winter Garden last night, banishing for one glorious evening such shadows even as apprehension with regard to approaching examinations. The 1923 classes in both medicine and arts of the Western University were hosts and hostesses of the annual convocation dance, a college event in the most real sense of the word, attended by almost four hundred young people.

Twenty-three Meds, forty-three arts students, and 12 in the public health course who are hoping to obtain their degrees this year, were the guests of honor, the girls distinguished from the other women students by their white frocks.

Thanks to the members of the decoration committee, Misses Alice McLean and Lillian Hill, James Jarrott, and Harvey Geddes, the University colors, purple and white, were used in decoration with artistic effect, twining pillars and draping the gallery where the Lombardo orchestra was stationed. In addition to the graduates' and balloon dances, a mirth-provoking surprise was sprung in the "elimination dance." One by one the couples were "deleted" until only one remained. Very ceremoniously the man in the case was presented with a silk hat, and the fair partner with an orange wreath. At that point the musicians struck up "Here Comes the Bride," and to the familiar strains the pair were obliged to march to the platform, where a bouquet of roses was compensation for the "unwilling bride."

Each of the graduates received as a favor a university pennant, those for the arts students bearing the letters "W. U." and the date, "23." On the pennants for the public health class, a small "P. H." was added, while the medical pennants had skull and cross-bones.

Patrons and patronesses in the receiving line were Dean Sherwood Fox and Mrs. Fox, the latter wearing a handsome gown of mauve georgette and brocade velvet and pearls. Dr. H. W. Hill and his sister, Miss Hill, who was gowned in a graceful creation of black crepe Romaine, with satin garniture. Extending a cordial welcome also were the members of the committee, to whom credit for the success of the dance was largely due: Misses Alice McLean and Lillian Hill, and Messrs. Allan Talbot, James Jarrott, Clare Sanborn, Harry Geddes and James Humphries. Miss McLean, in the "elimination" creation, wore an orchid and silver, and Miss Lillian Hill a becoming frock of Betty blue, with oriental drapery caught with an old gold buckle.

Social and Personal

Mr. Frank Oliver of this city will spend the week-end with his sister, Mrs. William G. Smith of Chatham.

Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Coulter and daughter, Ruth, of Toledo, O., are motoring to London to spend a few days with Mrs. W. Courtis, 385 Wootley road.

The Girls' Canadian Club has announced a musical and tea, to be held on Saturday afternoon from four to seven o'clock, at the home of Miss Frances Roe, 291 Horton street.

Ruth Chapter, O. E. S., announces that Mrs. E. Bray Lovatt street, who held the number "37" was fortunate in capturing the handsome bridge lamp for which drawing took place recently.

A "kitchen shower" tea was the very practical one held this week by Miss Kathleen Cowan, "Birkhill," in honor of Miss Isabel Muir. Mrs. George Grange presided over the tea cups at a pretty table, centered with pink snapdragons.

A treat is assured those who are fortunate enough to obtain invitations for the social to be given a week from Monday evening in St. Andrew's Hall by Miss Mervyn Pococke, mezzo soprano, and Edward Wilmet, violinist, a young artist of exceptional promise.

The Pleasant Times Club wound up the season Wednesday evening with a theatre party, followed by a supper at Wong's. Pink carnations adorned the table, laid for fourteen. These present included Messdames F. Argcott, H. Bonar, W. Newman, D. Kershaw, G. Barr, F. Copp, R. Culvert, G. Parkinson, E. Sutherland, A. Webb, E. Thomas, A. Wootton, James Percy and Miss Ena Argcott.

A dance arranged by Senator Coffey Chapter, O. D. E., this week, was much enjoyed by the patients of Westminster Hospital, the house orchestra furnishing the music. In addition, cigarettes and candy from the chapter were distributed to each of the patients. The committee arranging for the evening included Mrs. E. H. Nelles, regent, Messdames W. C. Chisholm, McLaughlin, Charles Wilson, R. C. Barkle and Miss Kathleen Drummond.

Miss Gladys McEvoy, convener, Messdames Mabel Dexter, Cecil Mulgrew and Carrie Fitchett, are the members of the committee in charge of arrangements for the sacred concert to be held Sunday evening in the Allen Theatre by the Janey Canuck Chapter, I. O. O. F., in aid of the War Memorial Children's Hospital. The artists taking part will be Mrs. Schofield, Misses Myrtle Rouson, Morlie Jackson, Harry Carson and F. W. Chadwick. When Ben came along all this time, the executive entertained the members of the mothers' club, at afternoon tea, from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock. Messdames H. B. White, president, Westcott, Carruthers, A. H. Cross, Bert Wood, Spearin, Yorkick and Leigh, Calger, were most gracious hosts. A guessing contest, near the executive table, and music from the victrola, were enjoyable features of the program.

The cosy library of the new Victoria school was doubly inviting yesterday afternoon with flowering plants and a radial tea table. The executive entertained the members of the mothers' club, at afternoon tea, from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock. Messdames H. B. White, president, Westcott, Carruthers, A. H. Cross, Bert Wood, Spearin, Yorkick and Leigh, Calger, were most gracious hosts. A guessing contest, near the executive table, and music from the victrola, were enjoyable features of the program.

The bride wore an exquisite Parisian gown of sand-colored crepe Romaine, with Grecian girdle, and large orchid motif hair with bows of ribbon in contrasting shades. Her corsage bouquet was of Opelia roses and orchids.

The bridesmaid, Miss Bridget Kirwin, sister of the bride, wore a three-piece suit of navy blue pique tulle, a Gainsborough hat in two tones of brown, and corsage of violets and mauve tulips. Mr. Robert H. Murphy of London was best man, and the ushers were Messrs. Leo Kirwin and Harold Trudell.

Following the nuptial service, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, King and Albert streets. The bride's mother received, wearing a gown of navy blue crepe, richly beaded, and brightened by a corsage of sweet peas and violets.

The young couple left to spend a honeymoon in Colgan, Ont., Buffalo and Niagara Falls, after which they will take up their residence at 25 Bedford place, London South. They will be at home to their friends after June 1st. The bride traveled in a small Gainsborough hat in shades of blue and gray, and a cloak of cocoa shade broadcloth over her gown.

Guests, outside the immediate relatives of the family, were: Mr. Joseph Gibson, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Lamburn, Toronto; Miss Lorna MacGillivray, London; Dr. and Mrs. P. L. Pound, Wyandham; the Rev. H. Bentley officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Laurie will reside on the 5th concession of Raleigh.

BOXES BRING $35. The box social held at Union Hall, Tuesday evening, under the auspices of Union Hall U. F. W. O., was a great success. Mr. Thomas Clark auctioned off the boxes, from which the sum of $35 was realized. A well-rendered program was given, consisting of solos by Miss Margaret O'Connor, Miss Myrtle Boley, Charles Baker, duets by the Misses Boley, and readings by Miss O'Connor and Miss Rhynke. Mr. Forsythe of Chatham Township was the chairman. Refreshments were followed by dancing.

Previous to the convocation dance in the Winter Gardens last evening, Miss Kathleen Cowan gave a charming little dinner at her home, "Birkhill," in compliment to three of the members of the graduating class.

Mrs. George Wainwright, Mr. Jack Dochstader, and Mr. W. Cowley. Pink snapdragons formed a most artistic decoration for the table, at which covers were laid for ten, including the young hostess, her mother, Mrs. David Cowan, the three honor guests, and Mr. George Wainwright, Miss Ruth Grange and Mr. and Mrs. George Grange.

Outstanding among the many delightful events arranged this week in compliment to the charming debutante of Saturday, Miss Isabel Muir, was a luncheon given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Charles Hyman at her home, "Idylwild," Grand avenue. Covers were laid for sixteen, the long table decked in glowing rose tones. From the chandeliers, streamers of pink satin ribbon were caught to the sides of the table, and down the length vases of pink roses were arranged at intervals. The guests, who stayed on afterwards for bridge, were: Miss Muir, Mrs. J. Lancaster (Chatham), Misses Gladys Elliot, Doris Massey, Doris Belton, Louise Buffin, Misses Margaret Marjory Dawson, Kathleen Cowan, Trece White, Jean Jarvis, Markaret Johnston, Mona Wilson, Dorothy Durand and Gwen Soundrott.

A wealth of valuable articles for the Chesley Avenue Mothers' Club bazaar tomorrow evening was received at the shower held yesterday at the home of Mrs. E. Dowell, 24 Chesley avenue. There were aprons, handkerchiefs, dresses, garments of every description, dainty bits of fancy work, canned fruit and other goodies. Generosity for those who attended was repaid by an opportunity to chat with friends, tempting tea, sandwiches and cakes, and a most interesting program. Mrs. Dowell was assisted in receiving by Mrs. James Mills, president of the club, Mrs. E. S. Little, inviting to the afternoon tea, and Mrs. Charles McTague. There's a broad span between picking on a child and having a brotherly dignity that comes through watching over the growth of a little brother is not to be lightly brushed aside. It means much to both boys.

"I'll attend to him all through dinner. He's kicked me all through the table until they are a sight. He ought to have on his slippers, and he won't put them on. He's torn Nell's library of Greek and Latin books, and he's been looking after, and a lot of it."

Now the father was angry in his turn. "Never you mind what he does. I'll attend to him all through dinner. He's kicked me all through the table until they are a sight. WHEN BABY IS CUTTING TEETH.

I had been warned not to give my baby the insatiable teething ring, so I let him have only a silver teaspoon to bite on while he was cutting his teeth. I washed it frequently to avoid danger of contamination.

I HAD BILIOUS ATTACKS and Stomach Weakness

Mr. Wm. Robinson, York, Pa., writes:

"I suffered from stomach and liver trouble, and used to have bilious attacks so bad that I could do nothing for weeks at a time. My stomach would be so weak that I could not even drink a glass of water without it hurting me. On my sister's advice, I began to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and must say that they have made me feel like a new woman."

SEEK TO HASTEN CONFAB ON GRANTS AT THE CONFERENCE

Allies Exact Promise From Ismet Pasha To Speed the Negotiations.

TRY TO AVOID CLASH

Lausanne Members Endeavor To Keep Chester Project Out of Parley.

Associated Press Despatch.
Lausanne, April 27.—In the absence of a plenary session of the near-east conference, the various sub-committees dealt yesterday chiefly with the relationships between the Turkish government and companies operating in Turkey; the negotiations, according to some of the allied observers, showed some progress.

Under pressure from the allies Ismet Pasha agreed to urge the Ankara government to hasten direct negotiations involving concessions, in order to avoid having them brought before the conference. Ismet reiterated Turkey's determination never to permit the relations between the Ottoman government and Ottoman nationals to be fixed in the Lausanne treaty, holding that this question was one purely for Turkey.

The allies, the other hand, contended that most of the companies holding concessions may have Turkish names, but in reality are controlled by foreigners. This diversion of the discussion of concessions to Constantinople and Ankara it is hoped by the conference leaders may serve to keep discussion of the Chester agreement away from Lausanne, although the indications are that Turkey would like to see it form part of the treaty.

The tendency of the allies, however, is to avoid any question likely to develop a clash of interests between France and the United States over Turkish economic problems and the open door.

Liquidation of German property in Turkey was also discussed, involving the famous Berlin-Bagdad railroad project, although its name was not mentioned. The Turks said they did not object to liquidation but could not carry it out without foreign assistance. Experts have been charged with drafting a liquidation plan whereby Turkey will surrender all the proceeds to the reparation commission when the property is governmental, and to private owners when it is private property.

COURT ORDERS EMPLOYER TO PAY 50 CENTS AN HOUR

Special to The Advertiser.
Windsor, April 27.—Offered $150 for working 82½ hours for "Barker the Mover" of Windsor. Hattie, 27 years of age, of Windsor, and Vernon Trevelyan of Walkersville, asked Magistrate Gundy in police court today to name a reasonable amount for the services rendered. Leblanc told the court that he had charge of a load of furniture, which Barker contracted to transport to Hamilton. The trip, he said, was completed in a little over 82 hours. The court ordered Barker to pay the men 50 cents an hour.

BRITISH LABOR LEADER PREVENTS WALKOUTS

Ramsay MacDonald Gaining Fame For Success As a Mediator.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, April 27.—Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Labor opposition in the House of Commons is rapidly acquiring fame as a mediator in industrial disputes. His recent achievements have been his intervention in preventing a strike in the building trades and the settlement of the farm laborers' strike in Norfolk county through his mediation at a midnight conference a week ago.

The quarrel in the shipbuilding trades has now entered a critical phase and there appears to be little hope that a complete cessation of work may be avoided. The boiler-makers called on Sir David Shackleton, chief labor adviser, at the ministry of labor today and offered to let the men remain at work until a ballot could be taken, but the federation rejected the offer on the ground that there was no guarantee that the promise would be carried out generally by the men.

The House of Commons then went to the House of Commons and placed the whole facts of the case in the hands of the leader of the labor opposition, Mr. MacDonald, who is now using his good offices in trying to bring about a possible settlement of the dispute.

Michigan Central Reduces the Schedule of Flyer By 25 Minutes.

Special to The Advertiser.
St. Thomas, April 27.—Starting next Sunday the new Michigan timetable reduces the former scheduled time of the Wolverine about 25 minutes from Detroit to Buffalo. After next Sunday, this train will make the distance from Windsor to Bridgeburg, a distance of 230 miles, in 232 minutes.

The Wolverine will leave Detroit at 2:20 p.m. and arrive in St. Thomas at 7:30 p.m., reaching Buffalo at 10:10 p.m.

LONDON BRIDGE WORKS HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

The first annual meeting of the shareholders of the London Bridge Works took place at the Company's office this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Although the company only commenced operations about Aug. 15 of last year, the earnings to Dec. 31, 1922, were satisfactory and the directors decided to pay a dividend of 2 per cent on the preferred stock, for the first quarter of this year.

The directors for this year are: T. J. Dillon, Wexford; Geo. M. Reid, London; Philip Pocock, London; E. S. Little, London; Col. E. Ibbotson Leonard, D.S.O., London; H. C. Barker, Jr., Wexford; C. J. Madgett, London.

The officers are: T. J. Dillon, president; Geo. M. Reid, vice-president; C. J. Madgett, manager; J. J. Breen, secretary; Gordon Philip, treasurer.

U. S. GOVERNMENT INSTITUTES SUIT AGAINST COMPANY

Takes Action Before Privy Council In Case of Brantford Motor Firm.

CLAIM CERTAIN LANDS

Plaintiffs Assert They Are Legal Trustees of Disputed Property.

Special to The Advertiser.
Brantford, April 27.—The announcement which appeared recently in a despatch from London, England, to the effect that J. M. Beck, formerly assistant attorney-general of the United States, had made application to be made an honorary barrister of England, has again focused the Canadian legal spotlight on the now famous case of the United States Ordnance Department against The Brantford Motor Trucks Limited. If his application is successful Mr. Beck will plead for the plaintiffs in this case which will come before the privy council the first week in July.

This case has dragged on for four years. It deals with the claim of the Brantford company, for certain lands acquired by the defendants while performing a war-time contract. The case was first heard before Mr. Justice Kelly, who rendered a decision in favor of the plaintiffs. Favored Reversal.

There followed an appeal by the defendants and the case was taken to the supreme court of Ontario, appellate division, where four judges were in favor of reversing the decision though the chief justice upheld it. After it became known that it would eventually be heard before the privy council, by mutual consent lawyers for both parties agreed not to take it before the supreme court of Canada.

The outcome of the case will be watched here and throughout Canada with much interest. W. N. Tilley, K.C., Toronto, and W. T. Henderson, Brantford, will act for the defendants in London, and Mr. Beck for the claimants. Mr. Beck made a reputation in England by his outspoken pro-British sentiments expressed on the public platform.

Plaintiff's Claim.

The plaintiffs claim that when a final settlement was made at the termination of the contract the disputed lands were held under the additional facilities clause and that therefore the Motor Trucks company are trustees of the land, situated in Brantford.

The Brantford Company claims that when a settlement was affected there was no mention in the agreements of any land acquired. The land was purchased by the company and registered in its name and there had never been a change in the registration and as it was not mentioned in the settlement, the United States has no claim to it, and that only additional facilities with respect to buildings and machinery were settled.

FIND KITCHENER NURSE ACCIDENTALLY KILLED

Jury Recommends Gates For Crossing Where Fatality Occurred.

Special to The Advertiser.
Kitchener, April 27.—That Ada Leyburn, nurse girl in the employ of Mr. and Mrs. George Lang, junr., came to her death as a result of an accident when she was killed by a Grand Trunk train at the Lancaster street crossing on April 20, was the verdict of the coroner's jury that heard evidence in the case here yesterday afternoon.

The verdict carried several recommendations. They were that the Lancaster street crossing, where the fatality occurred, should be protected by gates, and that all intervening crossings as far as King street should have adequate protection. It was also urged that until gates are placed at the Lancaster street crossing trains should be slowed down to a minimum speed.

Evidence of witnesses showed that the nurse was so absorbed in the care of the baby as she approached the crossing that she did not see the approaching train. When shouted at she looked in the wrong direction, with the result that she walked onto the track in front of the engine.

The same verdict also covered the death of the little child, Eleanor Lang.

CLUB NEWS

ASKIN ST. M.C.

Mrs. H. Childs gave an inspiring little talk, and Miss Edith Copp a Bible reading, at the meeting held this week of Askin Street Methodist Junior Mission Circle. Miss Verna Dobson was the hostess, and Miss Marjorie Courts presided. In the absence of the president, Miss Edith Copp was appointed a delegate to the annual meeting of the London Conference Branch Methodist W. M. S., to be held in London May 21, 22 and 23. Miss Annie Banner delighted with piano numbers. Refreshments were served at the close.

KEEP DECORATION DAY

Decorations Day will be held in the near future by the Chatham war veterans and the Women's Auxiliary of the U. W. V. A., according to plans made at the meeting of the auxiliary on Tuesday evening. Mrs. Turnbull presided over the well-attended meeting. A vote of appreciation was extended Mr. and Mrs. Roy Young for the sum of $25 towards the war memorial, and for the use of their confectionery store last Saturday. Plans were made for a cooking sale at Clements' store the first Saturday in May.

KENT BRIDGE W. I.

Rev. Mr. Sweetman gave an address on "Prohibition" at the monthly meeting of the Kent Bridge Women's Institute on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Gordon Merritt. The roll call was answered with "Suggestions for Spring." Tea was served at the close. At the May meeting, at the home of Mrs. Harry Crow, officers for the new year will be elected.

SO STORY ENDS.

The story hours, which have been so much enjoyed by the Chatham school children during the winter months, were brought to a close yesterday. A very large number gathered in the public library auditorium and listened to "The Tadpole" and nursery rhymes on the victrola, which were given by Miss McIsaac.

SODALITY ENTERTAINS.

To raise funds for carrying on their work, the members of Blessed Sacrament Young Ladies' Sodality, Chatham, gave a most successful card party and dance this week. The prizes for euchre, played at fifteen tables, were won by Mrs. Mann and Mr. Trudell. Dancing was enjoyed by the younger crowd.

Fashions by Wire

Special to The Advertiser.

Paris, April 26.—Silver lace today is being used extensively on lingerie, which, of course, must go to the cleaner rather than to the laundress. A favorite combination is very pale heliotrope or bright turquoise blue georgette with ruffles of silver lace wherever ruffles are possible.

BLACK AND BLOND.

Paris, April 26.—Black trimmed with "blond" is in fashion today with the people who create hats. Black piot straws will have an edge and high bow of blond ribbon. A very wide hat of black piot is trimmed with two huge dahlias of very finely plaited ribbon in the chic blond shade.

USE OSTRICH BRACELET.

London, April 26.—The most fanciful of bracelets today adorn the upper arms or the wrists of the younger set. They are merely circles of uncurled ostrich in some vivid shade, contrasting with that of the gown. The circle is held in place by a narrow black ribbon.

BRIEF, INDEED.

London, April 26.—The little veil which today comes down just below the eyes, adding depth to them and piquancy to the nose—it's that kind of a nose—is sewn under the brim now instead of on its edge. It hangs like a little curtain or valance from beneath the hat.

CARVED IN JADE.

New York, April 26.—A pendant of unusual charm shown here today is a single leaf, beautifully carved, and copied from one made centuries ago by a Chinese with a braid as artistic as his fingers. It is a lovely bit of jade on the end of a silk cord.

EDGED WITH BLACK.

New York, April 26.—A bit of black lace is an edging used on both lingerie and handkerchiefs just now, white lingerie, whether of silk or linen is likely to have black lace at its edge, and a tiny white linen handkerchief with a black lace edging peeps from the pocket of any smart suit.

New McLaughlin-Buick Flat-Rate System Begins Tomorrow, April 28

TOMORROW, THE NEW BUICK FLAT RATE LABOR CHARGES SYSTEM FOR ALL REPAIR WORK WILL GO INTO EFFECT IN THE LONDON McLAUGHLIN-BUICK BRANCH.

It is a system of standard repair charges for McLaughlin-Buick Branch Service Stations throughout the country—each charge determined by the McLaughlin Motor Car Co., Limited, after two years of experimenting to find a minimum average time required for each service operation under ideal working conditions.

Under this new system, a McLaughlin-Buick owner will be quoted the exact amount for the labor charge on the work he wants done, plus the cost of required parts. The cost of each operation has been brought down to the lowest limit, and it will stand, no matter how much more time may have been given the job. THIS NEW FLAT RATE SERVICE IS NOT PLANNED FOR PROFIT. It is another step forward in our desire to give satisfactory service at the lowest possible cost, that when a McLaughlin-Buick owner is again in the market for a new car, he will always come back for another McLaughlin-Buick.

Stop at our Service Station and let us explain just what this system means to you.

GILLET'S LYE

Comparatively few people realize to what extent Gillett's Lye can be used to advantage in every home. For instance, with one can of Gillett's Lye and five and a half pounds of lard or grease, ten pounds of good hard soap can be made. Use one tablespoon Gillett's Lye in gallon of water for cleaning and disinfecting refrigerators, sinks, garbage cans, tiled floors, baths and toilets.

Useful for over 500 purposes.

WILL EXTEND TIME.

Ottawa, April 26. Hon. G. P. Graham, acting minister of railways, has given notice of a motion in the House to extend for a further two years the time within which the various provinces may earn and be paid the sums allotted to them under the federal highways act.

ADVISES PERMITS FOR AMERICANS FISHING IN CANADA

W. Smith, Honorary Head of Game Protective Association, Asks License System.

ATTACKS MONOPOLY Says Society Instrumental In Abolishing Nets From Inland Streams.

During the last quarter of a century the Western Ontario Fish and Game Protective Association has worked wonders to safeguard against extermination the inhabitants of the water and forests. This fact is not generally realized by the people in the province, but the three or four hundred citizens who gathered in the Catholic Club Auditorium last night for the free educational entertainment by the association were convinced of it before the evening was far advanced.

Four motion pictures, showing various Canadian industries and beauty spots of the Dominion were presented, and these, together with a variety of vocal and musical selections made up a program well worth attending. Mayor Wenige, who was chairman of the evening, received a great ovation when he mounted the platform, and he commended the association for the splendid work it has accomplished during its existence. The mayor had to leave early, and his remarks that things were extremely busy in civic circles during the past two weeks brought forth a rippling laugh from here and there in the audience.

Accounts History. William Smith, honorary president of the Western Ontario Fish and Game Association, reviewed the history of the club since its inception 25 years ago. To illustrate the good the organization has done to protect fish and game in this province, he stated that at present no nets are allowed on inland streams. The monopoly of fishing by a few through the use of nets was one of the greatest evils the association had to deal with, he asserted, but after years of efforts they were rewarded by having this form of being curtailed.

He stated, however, that he thought it all right for farmers to use dip nets on streams running through their own property, saying that the average farmer was not the kind to abuse this privilege. "The fish and streams in Ontario belong to the people," he declared at one time in his address. "The government might think they own them, but they do not. They think a lot of things, sometimes, when they get down to Toronto."

Favors License System. The speaker also declared himself in favor of American tourists coming into Canada to fish having to pay for a license, pointing out that the American authorities are vigilant in this regard, and it is not very long when a Canadian begins to fish in United States waters before he is made buy a license. Other speakers of the evening were President William Nutkins, and Messrs. Dickenson, Myers and Holmes. Vocal selections from the Harmonic and Silvertones Quartets were greatly appreciated and the singers forced to respond to encores. The Vita Orchestra also delighted with several selections.

YOUNG GALT CHINAMAN IN COURT FOR ASSAULT

Special to The Advertiser. Galt, April 27.—George Wong, a 15-year chinaman was found guilty by Magistrate Blake at Preston of assault causing actual bodily harm to Edward McEneaney, of Preston, and only his age saved him from a jail term. He was made a ward of the Children's Aid Society and will be removed from Preston and probably deported.

The assault took place in a Preston cafe Good Friday night in the course of which McEneaney received a nasty gash in the wrist from a knife, as a result of which he was forced to go to the Galt Hospital.

MAKES BITTER ATTACK ON CATHOLIC CHURCH

J. J. Maloney Delivers Address To Large Audience Last Night.

J. J. Maloney, who claims himself a one-time Roman Catholic priest, delivered a scathing address against the Church of Rome in the Masonic Temple here last night. He spoke in no uncertain terms concerning the tenets and catechism of Rome and claimed that the Roman Catholic interpretation of the scriptures is both warped and inconsistent.

He claimed among other things that the "Ne temere" decree of the Pope can be taken as absolute proof of the fact that in their hearts Catholics admit of no sovereign save the Pope and it was largely on the grounds that this stand of the Catholic Church would, if allowed, undermine our empire, that he claimed the right to expose the policy of Rome as opposed to our rights as citizens. In speaking of the purgatory which figures in the Catholic faith he said that it was invented in the twelfth century and was not part of the original doctrine of the Roman church. He was merely an added feature in the policy of fear, superstition and terrorism which the church used to extort funds from its adherents, he declared.

Obituaries

MRS. ANNIE DOHERTY. The funeral was held yesterday of Mrs. Annie Doherty, who died at her home, 665 Elias street, on Monday morning after a long illness. The service which was held in her late residence, was conducted by the Rev. W. R. McIntosh, assisted by the Rev. J. Hsieh, and the interment was made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Mrs. Doherty, who was in her 69th year, is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Ballantyne and Jean, both of this city, and three sons, Charlie, Stewart and Harry, also of London. The pallbearers were George Barnaby, E. Black, W. Rider, H. Alexander, F. Tullett and D. Murray.

J. ERNEST AMOS. The funeral of the late J. Ernest Amos, a prominent citizen of Ailsa Craig who died in St. Joseph's Hospital Saturday, April 21, after a short illness was held from the home of his father, J. H. Amos, Con. 12, McGillivray township, on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Amos had a wide circle of friends in the province and floral tributes were sent from Brantford, Detroit, Toronto, Ailsa Craig and other cities and towns. The services at the house and the grave were conducted by the Rev. R. A. Brooks of the Brinsley Methodist Church and the Rev. Charles P. Wells of London. Cousins of the deceased acted as pallbearers. Interment took place at Mars Hill cemetery.

The late Mr. Amos was a valued member of the Brinsley Church choir and his funeral was one of the largest that McGillivray township has ever seen.

Mrs. M. J. MORRISON. Ingersoll, April 27.—Announcement today of the death of Mrs. M. J. Morrison which occurred at the family residence, King street east, occasioned profound regret among a wide circle of friends. She was in her 74th year and a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sherlock of this town. With the exception of six or seven years spent in New York City following her marriage, she had been a lifelong resident of Ingersoll. She was a member of the church of the Sacred Heart, and besides the husband she is survived by two sons and one daughter.

MRS. GRACE PRICE DIES. Chatham, April 27.—The funeral of Mrs. Grace Price who passed away in the general hospital Wednesday afternoon is being held this afternoon from her residence in Chatham township to the A. W. M. P. Church on King street east. The Rev. Mr. Scott will conduct the services and interment will be made in the Maple Leaf Cemetery.

MRS. J. ROBERTSON. Chatham, April 27.—Mrs. Jane Robertson, 135 Houston street, passed away yesterday after a comparatively brief illness. She was 79 years of age and had lived in the city for many years. Her husband predeceased her 28 years ago. She leaves three daughters and three sons. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon with interment in Maple Leaf Cemetery.

MRS. JOHN DOYLE. Chatham, April 27.—Mrs. John J. Doyle, relict of J. J. Doyle, of Raleigh township, died in St. Joseph's Hospital late last night following a long illness. Mrs. Doyle was born in Ireland 87 years ago and came to Canada at the age of ten the family settling in Chatham township where they lived for a number of years before moving to Raleigh. She leaves one daughter and three sons. The funeral will be held Saturday morning to St. Joseph's Church of this city and interment will take place in St. Anthony's Cemetery.

The Joy of Living Finds Charming Expression In Lovely Spring Apparel

What a delightful world this is when the new Spring apparel begins its spectacular procession on our streets and avenues! And every suit, and frock, and wrap, expresses the character and temperament of the wearer—some gay and youthful—some mature and reserved—but all refined and tasteful, when well chosen. We have never had better collections—never more artistic models, or more admirable fabrics—never wider variety of selection than now. Tomorrow will be a good day to view the attractive displays.

The Egyptian Influence Is Seen In These Frocks

With the recent activities in Egypt, the frock of Egyptian descent takes on real importance.
