Russian Battleship Sevastopol Struck a Mine.

Japo Continue Their Terrible Pounding of Port Arthur and Capture Several Forts ber Unable to Fight-Port Arthur Ma All But Fallen, and Japs Are Preparing

Tokio, Aug. 24.—Admiral Kataoka reports that as the Russian battle-ship Sevastopol was emerging from Port Arthur yesterday, she struck a mine, after which she was seen to be listed to starboard. She was towed back into the harbor.

The battleship Sevastopol was built in 1896 in Russia. Tonnage, 10,960; 17.5 knots; crew, 700; armament, four 12-inch, twelve 5.9-inch guns.

London, Aug. 24.—The Evening News yesterday afternoon published a despatch from Che Foo, under yes-terday's date, announcing Japanese captured "Clair Fort," of the Port Arthur defences, Monday, tremendous attack.

The Town Hall, which was used as a magazine, has been destroyed. Four large warships, unable to fight, are at Port Arthur. Only one ship, a vessel with two masts and two funnels, has guns on board.

Preparing to Celebrate. Preparing to Celebrate.

Che Foo, Aug. 24.—According to advices brought here from Port Arthur by a junk, the Japanese were hotly pressing the Russian centralong the railway and the Russian right in the vicinity of Golden Hill. These advices are brought by Chinese who departed from Taipangtse, which is one mile from the city and Golden Hill between the city and which is one mile from the city near Golden Hill, between the city and the forts of the Russian right wing. The Chinese declare that the Japanese occupied Taipangtse and penetrated along the railway to Gen. Stoessel's residence on Aug. 21.

As this report would indicate that Port Arthur had all but fallen, the Japanese expert attached to the local consulate received the information with great reserve. The in-

The information is accepted, however, as a confirmation of previous reports that the Russians have been driven from Itzshan, and that the Japanese are very close to the southern forts and the eastern defences. The local Japanese, under the leadership of their consul are subscribing money and preparing to celebrate the expected fall of the fortress.

CHINA'S NEUTRALITY.

Shanghai Situation Critical—Time Is Up

London, Aug. 24.-The Standard this morning, unable to conceal its disappointment that the United States Government is not prepared to protect the neutrality of China at Shanghai, editorially contends that the United States could have taken the lead in the matter without arousing the the icalousies and suspicions ing the jealousies and suspicions which must follow intervention by any European power.

The Daily Chronicle's Che Foo correspondent says: "The entire Chinese squadron has left here, doubtless in order that it shall not be mixed up in further incidents of the Ryeshitelni kind."

A meeting of the Consuls was held yesterday afternoon, but the Russian Consul-General, M. Kleinmenoff, was absent and no definite course of action was decided upon.

CASE OF IDENTITY.

Not Sure That It Was Russia

Durban, Natal, Aug. 24.—The cap-ain of the British steamer Cometain of the British steamer Comedian has lodged a protest against the action of the Russiam auxiliary eruiser Smolensk in stopping the steamer and examining her papers on Sunday last, off the southeast coast of Cape Colony.

Liverpool, Aug. 24.—The owners here of the Comedian (now at Durban, Natal), have no confirmation from the captain of the steamer of the statement that it was the Russian auxiliary cruiser Smolensk which stopped the vessel of the coast South Africa.

Complete Report Wanted

London, Aug. 24.—The Foreign Of-fice has ordered the British officials at Durban, Natal, to make a complete report of the circumstances connected with the reported examination of the papers of the British steamer Comedian by a Russian auxilairy cruiser off the South African coast. If the Smolensk actually examined the Comedian's papers she according to the British officials violated the assurances given by the Russian Government that neither she nor the St. Petersburg would be used again as mea-of-war.

The other newspapers show less excitement, because it has not yet been established that the vessel that stopped the Comedian was the auxiliary cruiser Smolensk.

Hamilton, Aug. 24.—Last evening an unfortunate young woman about 24 years of age was found just inside the gates of Dundurn Park. P. C. Reynolds stumbled across her about 10 o'clock. He tried to rouse her, but without success. When he tried to lift her up off the bench and stand her on her feet a bottle labeled "Opium" fell on the ground. No one appears to know her name. The only clue the police have is a handkerchief bearing the initials "H. I." At midnight the whole staff of doctors at the hospital were working over her, but did not succeed in bringing her around so that she could tell her name.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 24.

UNHAPPY RUSSIA.

If Japan had not had the courage to engage Russia in conflict, the world might have gone on for years with an exaggerated idea of the might of the Czar's empire, the extent of its resources, and the power of its army and navy. Now that the veil has been torn aside so ruthlessly, all can see clearly how even the very size which made it appear so formidable is an element of weakness. Compelled to carry on a war thousands of miles from the center of government, and without the means of transporting thither a sufficient number of troops or the supplies to maintain them, it is practically at the mercy of a nation greatly inferior in numbers, but with all of its military and naval forces in a position to be employed effectively. Britain during the South African war was not so handicapped by the distance of the scene of operations as is Russia in the present struggle. The former had the great ocean highway over which to send a constant stream of soldiers and stores, while the latter is limited to a single-track line of railway, poorly constructed and imperfectly equipped. If Russia could have delayed the war for five or ten years, she might have made a better showing, but even then her energetic opponent would have had many ad-

The inherent weakness of the apparently powerful empire of the Czar was recognized by some shrewd observers even before the "little brown nen" undertook to blazon it forth to the world. In a book entitled, ia. Her Strength and Weakness, tten before hostilities commenced, but not published until the war was under way, Wolf Von Schierbrand undertook to show that the colossus which dominates all of eastern Europe and northern Asia has little else but vast extent to entitle it to consideration as a really great power. Leaving out of the account the factors which go to make up the nation's military strength, the author dealt more particularly with the failure of the Czars and their advisers, from the days of Peter the Great to the present, to raise their country out of semi-barbarism, to set it firmly in the path of industrial and commercial progress, or to give its people anything approaching real liberty or enlightenment. He showed how even the incorporation in the empire of nations such as the Poles and the Finns, superior in all the elements of civilization to the Russians themselves, had no effect in raising the level of the mass because oof the mistaken policy that prevails of applying the same system of government to all nations, no matter how out of harmony that system may be with the traditions or sentiments of the governed. His conclusion was that nothing short of a complete reversal of the methods approved by the real rulers of the empire-who at the time the book was written were Von Plehve and Pobyedonostseff,, the latter the procurator of the holy synod-could prevent a national disaster, either from within or without. Seldom has a modern prophet had his prediction verified so speedily.

Very different was the case of another recent writer on the same subject, Albert J. Beveridge, United States senator, whose book is entitled. The Russian Advance. M Beveridge made a voyage about three years ago to the far east, visiting the locality now being fought over by the opposing armies, and returning to St. Petersburg by way of the trans-Siberian railway. Russian officials and military men appear to have done everything possible to show the distinguished American the bright side of things, and he seems to have seen only what they wished him to see. The result was a book in which there was nothing but praise for the men who were engaged in the congenial task of extending the czar's authority into Manchuria and establishing on the shores of the Pacific the longsought outlet to the sea. The senator was evidently but a superficial observer, for he could see no flaw in the Russian plans, and he utterly failed to note the defects which must have been so patent to the Japanese statesmen and strategists who are taking advantage of them. If Mr. Beveridge could rewrite his book with the history of the past six months to guide him, it is fair to assume he would choose a very different line.

The outlook for Russia certainly appears dark, but it may be, as Von Schierbrand intimated, that a decided check to its policy such as the Japanese are administering will lead to the introduction of real refrms which will usher in the dawn of a brighter day.

SUNDAY WORK MUST STOP

Rev. G. B. Brown, on Behalf of Lord's Day Alliance. Takes Action.

Must Suspend Sunday Operations at Erieau-Railroad Supt. Endorses This Position.

Rev. G. B. Brown, who has made a reputation for himself in preventing the sale of liquor in Blenheim and Harwich, is now undertaking to reform the county in another wayby getting after the men in the employ of the Pere Marquette, who work on the coal hoists at Erieau on Sunday. He went down to the Eau last evening and secured the names of a number of the men who, he claims, are guilty, and it is now his intention to prosecute them. He is encouraged in this by the Lord's Day Alliance.

In conversation with The Planet Mr. Brown said :- " " " " " . "I have got a letter from Mr. Woollatt, in which he says it is not through his orders that the men work on Sunday, and promising his help in the stronge of all offenders. from which the excerpt is taken—that his advice about the Union Jack is "silly" and that it would be charitable to say that "adulation had turnhis head." You also say that "Lord Dundonald said a foolish thing, and a thing befitting only a reckless demagogue." But perhaps these things are not looked upon, in the Globe office, as being "harsh."

Work on Sunday, and promising his work of Sunday, and promising his his pin in the stopping of all offenders. "I gave the men down here fair warning. I told them that their saked them to stop before I was forced to take action. They have not done so, and now I will have to prosecute them. I don't want to be unjust with the men, but they must not work on Sunday."

OLD WORLD ROMANCE.

Lady Constance Stuart Richardson, Nee Lady Constance McKenzie, Startles Even the Unconventional.

In the little town of Tain just now "Our Lady Constance" is the one engrossing theme of conversation. The "Our Lady Constance" is the one engrossing theme of conversation. The villagers never tire of talking of her, whether to speak of her zebra driving, her shooting in Somaliland, or of her adventures in the hills of Norway, where she captured a young but exceedingly bad-tempered bear. The beast, its temper still vindictive except when Lady Constance is at hand, is now in the London Zoo. But they want that bear at Tain.

Lady Constance Stuart Richardson—nee Lady Constance McKenzie—is called the Flora Macdonald of the twentieth century, and not without some reason. She harbors in her vigorous and graceful personality an unconventionality that startles even the unconventional. There is about her a strong savor of old-world romance and Scottish feudalism that greatly delights the dour Highlander.

Up in Ross the solemn people are still waiting for the House of Lords to decide whether there is any hope for the future welfare of babes who are not of the "elect." But at the same time they take a fascinated pleasure in the many exploits of the laughing Lady Constance.

Her unconventional wedding, a wedding not altogether unreminiscent of Lochinvar and similar romantic tales, has been followed by a somewhat unconventional honeymoon. One might almost say, indeed, that tales, has been followed by a somewhat unconventional honoymoon. One might almost say, indeed, that her honeymoon has just begun, when Lady Constance and her husband started upon a wedding tour that embraces half the earth.

Lady Constance would not leave until she had taken an adequate farewell of all her loved and loving people, the tenantry and retainers of the Cromartie estate. So to begin with, she gave them, as she herself put it, "A right good time of it," and there were rejoicings on a big scale. On the night of her wedding day twenty guests sat down to dinday twenty guests sat down to din-ner, and were entertained with medi-aeval lavishness within the walls of her old home. And two nights afterher old home. And two nights afterwards close upon a thousand guests thronged the stately mansion by the Moray Firth and sang and danced and feasted till dawn dispersed them. Then there was a great farewell at midday to all the children of the district, and Lady Constance with her streaming hair was the blithest and the most light-hearted child of

Her passion for athletics was given full play. She marshalled all the girls and made them romp as they had never romped before. There was tremendous tug-of-war with Lady a tremendous tug-of-war with Lady Constance with her sleeves rolled up as the captain of the other. And Lady Constance, pulling with all her heart, stugged her team to victory. But these rejoicings over, the bridegroom had to suppress his gaiety of heart and go away to preside solemnly over the induction dinner of the new minister of his native parish. Lady Constance went another way, and while her husband was attending to his ecclesiastical duties she spent the time in fishing and shooting. Two days later they both returned to Tarbet House amid still she spent. Two days later they both returned to Tarbet House amid still more rejoicings.

The next morning Lady Constance was seen doing battle royal with a horse that is the terror of her stables. She brought her mount to order, and then was off across coun-try over fences, over walls and over try over fences, over walls and over streams to fetch, medicine from a nearby town for a sick old clansman, and when she came back she brought with her a Gaelic Bible, printed in type of a particularly large size, for "Old Maggie," whose eyes are growing dim and whose spectacles are not quite strong enough. It is such acts as these, springing spontaneously from a generous heart, that make "Our Lady Constance" so beloved, and bring forgiveness even for her bagpipe-playing and her cross-sword dancing in a land where both dancing and bagland where both dancing and bagpipe-playing have both been banned as institutions of the devil.

Within a few days of her marriage.
Lady Constance was seen with her hair streaming out behind her, and the tartan of her clan flapping round ther knees, speeding like a mountain deer across the grounds of Tarbet House.

In her run she came across a high stone wall, which proved to be no impediment. She placed her hands upon the coping stone and lightly vaulted over, somewhat to the astonishment of an ancient lady on the further side. Following the swiftly-receding apparition, the old crone shook her head, and chuckled with enchanted disapproval. "Ay, ay," she said, "she's as wild as ever; but, Lord bless her, she's a good, kind soul."

And there you have a summary so In her run she came across a high

And there you have a summary so brief and yet complete as to be almost epigrammatic of the character of Lady Constance and the way in which the folk of Ross regard her.

. Englishwomen and Their Clothes.

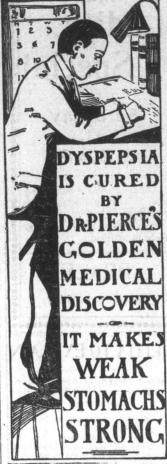

We cannot, says The London Globe, share the views expressed by a correspondent of The New York Herald, who resuscitated the now obsolete idea that Englishwomen combine a visit to France with bad taste in clothes. To suggest that "a society be started for the improvement of dress among Englishwomen," and to say that "it is pathetic to think what the artistic and long-suffering French must endure year after year seeing such hordes of them in their buns' and bats and coats of a style to give one the nightmare" shows a We cannot, says The London Globe to give one the nightmare" shows a perverted power of observation. The criticism would have been true a few years ago. To-day Englishwomen are among the best-dressed women in Paris.

DUTCH FISHER FOLK.

An Interesting People Who Are Fond of Jewelry and Finery-Never Marry Out of Their Own Village.

The presence of any foreigner, Dutch or otherwise, trading or living the life of the people, would not be tolerated for a day in most of the butch fishing villages. No person from the mainland has for years taken up his abode on the Island of Marken. They interparry with each other; the priest forbids their marrying within the third degree, and rying within the third degree, and they implicitly obey him. They never marry out of their own village, and this accounts for the extraordinary marry out of their own vinage, and this accounts for the extraordinary similarity in their faces. They might all have been cast in the same mould. To those who approach them in a friendly manner the men are as interesting and attractive as the women. Both sexes are singularly goodlooking, with regular features and blue eyes. The women have beautiful complexions; the men are bronzed by the sun or the sea. At first the latter appear somewhat surly and defiant, but that is generally due to shyness, and they soon become kindly and courteous. They are nearly all teetotalers, their drink being weak tea or coffee, which they take several times a day and on which they seem to thrive, for they are a splendid race. They are very moral they seem to thrive, for they are a splendid race. They are very moral and religious. At 6 o'clock every evening, in the Roman Catholic villages, the angelus rings, and then both the men and women "rise from their sitting postures by the doors, the men doff their caps and the women lay down their knitting, all bend their heads, cross themselves and remain a few minutes in prayer. Religion is no mere name to these Religion is no mere name to these simple fishing folk.

Both men and women are very fond of jewelry, and most of the cottages contain a good many gold and silver ornaments, necklaces of coral beads with large gold clasps of curious designs and solid gold head bands, called helmets, with rosettes of gold filigree on each side. In of gold filigree on each side. In Friesland there are a number of gold-smiths' shops. When in holiday dress the men almost outshine the women in their love of self-adornment. Their shirts are fastened with gold button links and are embroidered with black lines; they wear velvet knee breeches and silver buckles to knee breeches and silver buckles to their shoes, which are richly chased. In most of the fishing villages the men, when in full dress, wear four great silver buttons. These are often decorated with Scriptural subjects in repousse. They are enormously proud of their buttons, which are heirlooms of their buttons, which are heirlooms from father to son. Most of the butch fisher folk are very well-to-do. They are thrifty and economical, and their wants are few. They have no desire for luxuries. They rarely touch meat, are total abstainers, and this is probably the reason for the high standard of morality which obtains among them.

some Bad British-Canadian Bargains the Past Hundred Years.

British treaty gifts of Canadian territory commenced with the Treaty of Independence, 1782-3, when the Chio and Mississippi valley of the Canada ceded by France in 1763—now comprising the States of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois (with its Chicago), Wisconsin and Minnesota—which had formed no part of the revolted colonies, was gratuitously —which had formed no part of the revolted colonies, was gratuitously ceded to the United States. conquests of Maine and Massachusetts to Penobscot, on the Atlantic coast, and of Michigan and the western territory to Prairie du Chien, on the Mississippi, during the war of 1812, were restored to the United States—without insisting upon the territorial boundaries obtained by the war, and rightly claimable under the international doctrine of uti pos-

In 1818 another large territory of the French Canada of 1763, extending from Lake Superior west, and including the district about the uping from Lake Superior west, and including the district about the upper waters of the Mississippi, which the American Plenipotentiaries of 1782 reported to Congress "was then possessed by Great Britain," and also including the Red River Valley, which the Hudson's Bay Company had granted to Lord Selkirk in 1814, and further west to the head waters of the Missouri River (now Dakota and adjoining territory), "went," as a Canadian writer once said, "to satisfy the thrifty appetite of the Rethe thrifty appetite of the Re-

The map had been discovered by Dr. Sparks, of Harvard University, in 1842, and forwarded by him to Mr. Webster. In his report to the Senate he stated that the red boundary line throughout the United States 'is exactly the line now contended for by Great Britain.' And Greville's Memoirs record—"Our successive Governments are much to blame in not having ransacked the archives at Paris, for they could certended for by Great Britain. In 1846 Oregon, with its splendid harbors on the Pacific coast—owing to the British yielding to the threat, "54 deg, 40 min. or fight," and apparently agreeing with Lord Ashburton that Britain's right to the territory was "a mere question of honor"—was also ceded.

Mr. Magee was born in Liverpool, England, and was doubtless inspired by his proximity to the starting point of the great ocean steamers to try his fortunes on the far side of the Atlantic. He came to Canada about the year 1855, and settled in London, thus having spent nearly half a century in this city. He studied at the old Union School, then in charge of Principal Boyle, and Mr. Nicholas Wilson was his teacher nearly all the time he attended there. Mr. Magee became a law student in the office of Harris Brothers, in 1862, and was admitted a solicitor and called to the Bar in 1867. He began to practice the same years, and called to the Bar in 1867. He began to practice the same years, being admitted into partnership with Messrs. Harris. He was afterwards scalor partner, successively, in the firms of Magee & Thomas, Magee, Greenless & Thomas, and Magee, Mc-Killop & Murphy, the present firm, which was formed in 1893. In a brief interview with The Planet Mr. Clancy spoke most brightly of the prospects of the Liberal-Conservative party in the coming campaign. Many things have contributed to the present weakness of the Administration, not the least of which were the Fisher scandal, exposed by Lord Dundonald, and the posed by Lora Dunaonald, and the notorious Jackson appointment. "Such things are steadily estranging the old guard of honest Liberalism," was Mr. Clancy's comment. "What of election prospects?" he was asked.

The member smiled. "I do not think the Government itself yet knows. The whole matter is veiled in uncertainty. My own counsel, however, would be to be ready. I am strongly convinced that the ultimate results will vindicate that course."

Mr. Clancy said he was much pleased to hear the gratifying reports of the campaign of Mr. Clements in West Kent. He was much encouraged to look for a handsome redemption of the constituency.

REMOVED THE LOCK

Alderman Edmondson has been investigating the difficulty in connection with the placing of a lock upon the gate across Elizabeth St., north of the second concession road leading to the city dumping ground for cans, paper, and other refuse of an offensive character. Some persons have been depositing offensive matter (such as decayed fish and meats, etc.) on these grounds, much to the annoyance of people living in the locality and one of the parties owning property immediately adjoining and living upon it had taken the law into his own hands and put a lock upon the gate. Ald. Edmondson went out yesterday and inspected the locality and made arrangements to have the lock removed and states that some of the merchants have been abusing the privilege granted them by the city of dumping tins and paper upon this property by taking out and depositing on these grounds decaying and offensive matter for which a separate and special dumping ground is provided by the city, and the difficulty has been brought about in this way, and says that if there are any new grounds of complaint some one will be prosecuted to the limit of the law.

ROAD IMPROVEMENT.

GOOD HIGHWAYS AND METHODS OF BUILDING THEM.

Construction of Brick Track Roads Recommended-Their Cost and Du-rability-Employment of Convicts In Highway Building.

The present general movement for better roads and the prospect of national aid in road building have greatly stimulated the study of the best methods of road building.

While to the general public the idea of building permanent roads is to use broken stone, after the system first employed by John Macadam about the year 1785, other methods should be carefully studied in order to build the best and most durable roads at the lowest cost.

It seems a remarkable fact, in view of the great improvements in everything connected with modern life, that we are still building our roads the same way they were built over 100 years ago, says the Waynesboro (Pa.) Herald. This resulted from the uniwersal introduction of the railroad, which caused the improvement of our common roads to be sadly neglected as well as advancement in the art of building them.

A great obstacle in the way of building durable roads of crushed stone is found in the lack of suitable stone in most localities where good road stone is found. In New York state, for instance, where road building has been stance, where road building has been very active in recent years, stone has been shipped over 300 miles in some instances in order to obtain stone of good quality.

The lack of good road material has caused careful study of various methods of road building by experts, with the result that for general use a mod-ification of the old stone wheel track or tramway roads, which have been in constant use for over a hundred years without material wear or cost, has been highly recommended. tramway roads could only be built at reasonable cost in a few localities having suitable stone, but by substituting paving brick for the stone slabs this superior form of road can be cheaply built in every locality.

In fact, even in the favored localities where good road stone is abundant the use of these brick wheel tracks considerably decreases the first cost of roads, while they practically do away with all repair expenses as well as the dust and mud and at the same time enable three to four times the load to be hauled with the same team force.

This improved method of road building has been adopted in a number of localities and the cost has been found to be from $1,200 to $2,500 a mile, according to the relative cost of materials, labor, etc., while the average cost of crushed stone roads has been $9.000 a mile in New York, where the greatest amount of road building has recently been done.

A section of this brick track road in the United States department of agriculture grounds during the last four seasons shows no material wear and has been uniformly free from dust, mud and ruts during that time, while an adjacent section of crushed stone road has been nearly ruined during the same time, partly by the washing

For hilly roads these brick wheel tracks are especially adapted, as by depressing the tracks below the adjacent road surface the water is successfully carried down the hills on them without washing the roadway and without the use of the objection able water breaks, besides enabling three times the grade to be used without disadvantage

Government road officials recommend that long term convicts be employed in penitentiaries in making the brick, ce-ment, etc., for these roads, and short term convicts be used in making the roads, to the moral and physical betterment of the convicts, and claim that in this way the building of these superior and most durable of roads should cost but $800 to $1,200 a mile in many localities. This makes an interesting comparison with the cost of $9,000 a mile in New York state for crushed stone roads, some of which have been nearly ruined by two or three years of use, while wheel tracks similar to the brick tracks, built of stone, near Albany, N. Y., in 1833, at a cost of $1,500 a mile, show very little wear in more than seventy years of constant and heavy traffic.

If convicts were thus employed in such penitentiaries as Sing Sing, New York, for instance, where the best of brick clays could be delivered at very low cost by boat, and from which the brick, etc., could be cheaply shipped by boat to nearly every point along the proposed New York and Chicago road, that road could probably be built for less than one-fifth of the cost of build-ing it of crushed stone, have three times the smoothness and more than ten times the durability of a crushed stone road and at the same time be nearly dustless and mudless.

Brick made at Sing Sing could also be cheaply delivered at all points in New York state and also be shipped to all points along Lake Erie by thus enabling the greater part of the proposed New York and Chicago road to be built by this superior system and at a cost so low as to be insignificant when compared with its. substantial and lasting benefits.

When We Have Good Roads.

As an illustration of what may be expected when we have good roads this incident is interesting. A farmer near Hartford, Mich., having baled hay to deliver, loaded four wagons with two tons each, made the wagons up into a train, hitched on the farm engine and rant the assertion that man is not the only animal subject to dreams. Horses and rear upon their hind feet while fast asleep; dogs bark and grow and in many other ways exhibit all their characteristic passions. It is highly probable that at such times the remembrance of the chase or of a combat is passing through the dogs' minds. Besides the above signs of fleeting pain, anger and excitement these no ble creatures often manifest signs ci kindness, playfulness and of almost every other passion. Ruminant animals, such as the sheep and the cow, are believed to be less affected with dreams than those of higher passions which spend their waking hours in scenes of greater excitement.

Philosophers and investigators tell us that if we trace the dream faculty still lower in the scale of animal life we shall probably find that the same phenomena exist, and judging from analogy it is only reasonable to reckon dreaming as one of the universal laws-almost as universal as sleep it

Lion Signs In England

In the middle ages the country houses of the nobility owners were absent were used as hos tels for travelers. The family arms always hung in front of the house, and gave it a popular name among travelers, who called a lion "gules" or azure simply "red" or "blue." As these were intimations of good cheer and entertainment, innkeepers adopted the idea.

Lions have always been, and are now, very favorite signs in England; lions white, black, red, brown, golden, yellow—red being the most common. Probably the Red Lion originated with the badge of John of Gaunt, duke of Lancaster, who married the daughter of Don Pedro, king of Leon and Castile, and who adopted the lien rampant gules of Leon to represent his claim to the throne. Under Richard and John lions became the settled arms of England, and were generally used by those who could find any

To determine definitely the amount of filth that gets into milk during the process of milking and how much this can be lessened by washing the udders the following was done:

It was determined after several trials with three different milkers on thirty cows that it requires an average of four and one-half minutes to milk a cow. A glazed dish eleven inches in diameter, the size of an ordinary mill pail, was placed in the top of a pa and held under the cow's udder in th same position as when milking. For four and one-half minutes the milker then went through motions similar to those made in milking, but without drawing any milk. The amount of dirt which fell into the dish during the operation was of course approximately the same as would have gone into the milk during the milking process. The dirt caught in the dish was then brushed into a small glass weighing tube. the udder washed and the process repeated. The dirt which fell from the washed udder was also carefully brushed into a weighing tube. Both tubes were then placed in a desiccator and after drying twenty-four hours were accurately weighed on a chemlcal balance.

Sixty trials were made at different seasons of the year. With udders that were apparently clean it was found that an average of three and one-half times as much dirt fell from the unwashed udders as from the same udders after they were washed. With soiled udders the average was twenty-two and with muddy udders the average was ninety-four times as much firt from the unwashed as from the ame udders after washing. - Illinois Bulletin.

The Reading Dairyman Wins

I have seen one dairyman with beautiful home, large and well venti-lated stables, all the product of a herd of milk cows, and another farmer with the same old house he built ten years before, dilapidated stables, gates broken, fences down, all the product of another herd of cows, equal in number to the first. Why this difference with the same conditions?

If you go into the home of the first class of men you will find agricultural papers; you will find a reader, a man who has a thinker and is using it. He may not be a graduate of any agricultural college, but he is a self educated man, who received a large part of his education from the agricultural papers. How much more dvanced he would have been if he is a learned the rudiments at the agricultural college! But greater honor is due to self education than to a college educated man. Still, if progress was to depend on self education we would resemble the snail instead of the ant.

I am a firm believer that the duty of every state is to place a premium on agricultural pursuits. The most imortant branch of agriculture is dairy The growth or cereals depends on dairying to return its elements to the soil of which the soil has been robbed by their growth. Dairying enriches the soil, while the growth of cereals impoverishes it. Therefore no anch of agriculture should be fosred and encouraged as much as the drying industry .- E. A. McDonald, askington State Dairy and Food Commissioner.

The dairy and food department of Minnesota has recently issued several important circulars. One is entitled "Butter Is King," and is being placed in the hands of the farmers of that tate. It treats the subject of dairying briefly, simply and thoroughly. It shows that it is not necessary for one to buy a lot of thoroughbred stock to start in the business, but that the proper way is to gradually grade up one's herd. The matter of feeds is taken up and instructions given for the planting of soiling crops and the building of silos. There are ample directions for the care and handling of milk, and the circular concludes with the dairy laws of the state. A second circular on "Preparation and Propaga-tion of Pure Commercial Cultures" has been sent out to the butter makers in the state. It treats the subject clearly and fully.

The "Dairy Shark." J. A. Crokett, dairyman, Utah Agricultural college, has recently sent out warning to the butter makers of his state against a "dairy shark" who is disposing of a process where he claims the yield of butter is increased from 50 to 100 per cent in excess of that made in the ordinary manner. Same old fraud that bobs up now and agree in All formers and dairymen again. All farmers and dairymen should leave all sur' fellows and their "process" alone.—Lary and Creamery. A Cash Illustration.

The Arizona experiment station has recorded the results of a cold rain on the milk flow of the station herd. The cows were exposed three days to a cold rain. During this time they decreased 37 per cent in milk yield and continued until it reached 50 per cent, and it wa a month until they gave as much milk as before the storm. Hoard's Dairy-man says this is what might be called a cash illustration of the value of sheltering cows from cold rains.

Neglected Subjects.
Professor Haceker, the dairy expert of the Minnesota station, says that "too much has been said about balanced rations and too little about kind-anced rations and little about kind-anced rations and little about kind-anced rat ness and regularity, too much about dairy bred cows and too little about tairy bred men."

DOES ILL-GOTTEN GAIN PROS-

The weakest part of mankind have the saying that ill-gotten gain never prospers commonest in their mouths. It is the trite consolation administered to the easy dupc when he has been tricked out of his money or estate, that the acquisition of it will do the towner no good. But the rogues of this world—the prudenter part of them at least—know better, and if the observation had been as true as it is old, would not have failed by time to have discovered it. They have pretty sharp distinctions of the fluctuating and the permanent. "Lightly come, lightly go," is a proverb which they can very well afford to leave when they leave little else to the losers. They do not always find manners, got by ranine or chicanery insensible to melt away, as the poets will have it, or that all gold glides, like the thawing snow, from the thief's hand that grasps it. ANUTHER VOICE ON THE PRAIRIES

Tells of Diabetes Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

V. G. Bartleman Could Get No Re-lief Till He Tried the Great Cana-dian Kidney Remedy.

dian Kidney Remedy.

Wapella, Assa., N. W. T., Aug. 22.

(Special).—This thriving town furnishes one of the most remarkable cures of Kidney Disease that has ever been reported on the prairies. Mr. Wm. G. Bartleman, a well-known farmer, is the man cured, and he makes the following statement:

"I had Kidney Trouble and it developed into Diabetes. I went to the doctor but his treatment was of no use whatever to me. I began to take Dodd's Kidney Pills in December, 1902. I took them all winter and summer while I was unable to work my farm. I took twelve boxes in all and in August I was able to work.

"Now I am quite strong. I worked all winter without pains in my back or any part of my body. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me."
