

BI-LINGUALISM BARRED BY VOTE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL

German Forces on Somme Front Evacuate Stronghold of Fort Vaux

APPEAL FOR BILINGUALISM IS DISMISSED BY PRIVY COUNCIL

Doubt Still Exists as to Whether Decision Will Settle the Debate, Many Claiming That French Will Not Observe the Decree

By Courier Leased Wire. Montreal, Nov. 2.—The Herald edition to-day publishes the following cabled summary of the decision of the Privy Council on the appeal of the board of trustees of the Roman Catholic Separate school of Ottawa versus Mackell et al.

The Privy Council allowed the second appeal by the same parties in which the corporation of Ottawa and others were respondents. Briefly, the first judgment holds that the regulations complained of are not ultra vires. The second finding holds that the act by which the powers of school trustees were vested in a commission is ultra vires.

The Ottawa Separate school board and French-Canadians in general have no desire or intention to create any unnecessary trouble in connection with the bilingual school situation and regulation 17. If the atmosphere can be cleared without further litigation or any other action which would tend to create bad feeling between the English and French-speaking Roman Catholics, we will do our part.

This was the opinion expressed by S. M. Genest, chairman of the Separate school board this morning. The prevailing opinion seems to be that further fighting over the school question will be useless and unwise, and that regulation 17 will be obeyed.

The situation is thus practically as it stood prior to the appointment of the commission, and when the board was openly refusing to carry out regulation 17. But though the board is restored to power, it is realized that it will have to obey the school law, and it is probable that it will bow to the decision of the highest tribunal in the empire.

The German chancellor's expected statement has been foreshadowed as an appeal to reason and humanity on the ground that prolongation of the war could not materially alter the military position and would only increase useless carnage.

RECURRENCE OF GERMAN SUB CAMPAIGN FIERCER THAN EVER

Is Probably Prompted by Agitation in Reichstag For Increased Frightfulness at Sea - Instances of Particularly Atrocious Sinkings

By Courier Leased Wire. London, Nov. 2.—In the opinion of the Daily Chronicle it looks as if the recurrence of the submarine campaign bore some relation to the agitation conducted in Germany by the Conservatives and National Liberals on behalf of more frightfulness at sea.

Norwegians have been the principal neutral sufferers, but by no means the only ones. Spanish sailors have been drowned on Norwegian vessels. "In the Mediterranean, the sinking without notice of the Greek steamer Angeliki, which carried some Venizelist volunteers, has been followed by the sinking also without notice of another Greek steamer, which carried no volunteers. These crimes have caused considerable resentment in Athens and the outcome remains to be seen, but the fact which for the moment rivets attention is that of the large British steamer Marina, sunk last Saturday afternoon off the south of Ireland.

PEACE PROPOSALS OF GERMANY WILL NOT BE CONSIDERED AT PRESENT

Lord Rosebery in Speech at Edinburg Scores Those Who Look For Immediate Settlement of War Now That Allies Have Gained Control - With Britain Defeated, U. S. Would be the Next to Suffer

London, Nov. 2.—(New York Times cable) — "In some irresponsible quarters," said Lord Rosebery in a speech at Edinburgh last night, "I hear some babble of immediate peace." Lord Rosebery's reference was presumably to rumors which had been current in London recently of a movement in favor of the consideration of proposals which, according to reports emanating from Germany, Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg intended making public in the Reichstag.

Lord Rosebery vehemently denounced "a sort of 'as you were' peace" which would enable the Prussians to remain much as they are, ready and prepared with the experience they had gained and with resources not much impaired to begin the earliest opportunity their mendacious antagonism against civilians. "It is really supposed," he asked, "that we have shed our dearest blood by hundreds of thousands, that we have been paying over £5,000,000 a day and shall continue to do so as long as it is necessary in order to leave Prussia the devilish power she has been in the past?"

ambled to conclude a peace of that kind, I am afraid our dominions and our Britons beyond the seas would say that 'a country, so governed, is not a country to adhere to, we had better find some better statesmen of our own.' "Look at Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, five small kingdoms, everyone of them outraged by the German power. We are fighting for them, for Norway, greatly outraged at this moment by the massacre of her merchant seamen on the high seas. We are fighting for Sweden, who at any moment may find herself in the same position. We are fighting for every neutral nation. We are fighting for one that is not weak. We are fighting for one that we were vanquished, which Heaven forbid, the United States would be the next to suffer from the aggressive and unscrupulous power of Prussia."

SERVICE HELD FOR HERO DEAD

Special Memorial Service At Grace Church Last Evening.

Of the most solemn and impressive nature was the memorial service conducted last evening in Grace Church, commemorative of the Empire's hero dead in the course of the present war, and in particular of those gone forth from Brantford and Brant county, who have made the supreme sacrifice for King and country at the front of war. Attended by a very large number of the members of the municipal boards, the cadets of the Collegiate Institute, and the girls of the Mohawk Institute, as well as by an unusually large number of the regular congregation, the service was one of the utmost devotion and solemnity, and safe to state that no one present during the evening could fail to be impressed with the spirit of the occasion.

GOOD WORK

At the voters' list court held in Paris on Monday last, 169 names were added by the Conservatives, and 43 by the Liberals. Of the latter list, 23 names were also on the Conservative appeals.

Luke's Church, and Rev. C. Paterson-Smith, Venerable Archdeacon MacKenzie being the officiating clergyman. A most inspiring and stirring address, upon the subject of the immortality of the soul was delivered in the course of the evening by the Rev. C. M. Turnbull, of the Mohawk Church, who, after pointing out the particular appropriateness of such a service upon the feast of All Saints' Day this year, with such a war in progress, went on to make an appeal for the prayers of the congregation for those who had laid down their lives upon the field of battle.

Blenheim, Nov. 2.—The Masons of town and vicinity entertained their departing brother, Rev. E. C. Jennings, rector of the Anglican church here, to luncheon in the lodge apartments. Addresses were given by Bros. R. L. Gosnell, P. E. Shillington and a visiting brother, Stretcher, of Kilchener. During the evening Bro. Jennings was presented with a purse of gold from his brethren. He is fittingly being associated with them during the years he has been in town. He will leave shortly for Brantford, where he has been appointed rector

GERMANY IS SLOW TO APPLAUD SAFE ARRIVAL OF DEUTSCHLAND

Fears Entertained That Report of its Landing May be Another False Alarm as Was the Case With the Bremen - Activities of the Sub in Port

Berlin, Nov. 2.—via London, 12.25 p.m.—The German Ocean Navigation Company of Bremen has up to now been unable to confirm the news of the arrival of the merchant submarine Deutschland at New London. While the newspapers all display prominently the British news agency messages, announcing the arrival, they are inclined to question the authenticity of the news. Their readers are asked to remember the source from which the telegram originates and not to indulge in jubilation until a direct message from Capt. Koenig, commander of the undersea trader, relieves them of all doubt.

The skeptical attitude of the press is easily explained when it is recalled that an erroneous story of the arrival of the commercial submarine Bremen at an American port some time ago caused extensive space in the columns of the press to be devoted to laudatory comment and culminated at Bremen in a celebration of the event.

New London, Conn., Nov. 2.—Activities of a varied nature centered about the German undersea merchantman Deutschland to-day. While the crew busied themselves behind the barriers which hide the submarine from public view in preparing to dispose of the 700 tons of cargo which the Deutschland brought from Bremen, custom officials and naval officers prepared for the inquiry to determine the status of the craft.

The Deutschland has been entered as a commercial vessel, but to make certain that every neutrality provision has been observed, an inspection by both naval and customs officials was decided upon at Washington. Commander Stirling, who is head of the naval station here, arranged to go aboard with his aides in conjunction with Collector of Customs McGovern of this district. The announcement of the Deutschland's manifest was awaited with some curiosity. Captain Koenig, estimating the cargo to total $10,000,000 in value, said it consisted largely of drugs and dye stuffs, but said there were possibly securities and jewels among the consignments. As the Deutschland on her trip to Baltimore, carried only $1,500,000 worth of freight which bulked as large as her present shipments, it was considered probable that most of the $10,000,000 valuation was represented by securities or stones.

Henry G. Hilken, of Baltimore, President of the Eastern Forwarding Company, which is the agent for the submarine freight service here, said to-day he was without exact information on this subject. The Deutschland's captain refused a plea that he allow the public to view his craft. None but government or city officials might enter the enclosure, he said, and the restrictions that prevailed in Baltimore were placed in effect again.

of a prominent church in that city. On his arrival in this city, Rev. Mr. Jennings will assume the pastorate of St. John's church, vacated recently by Rev. C. W. Saunders.

GERMANS LEAVE Fort Vaux

Berlin, Nov. 2.—(By wireless to Sayville)—The British attempted to advance on the Somme front north of Courcellette yesterday, but were repulsed, the war office announced to-day. The French gained small advantages in the sectors of Les Boeufs and Rancourt. Fort Vaux, on the Verdun front, has been evacuated by the Germans.

CASH ALL PROMISES BY SATURDAY NIGHT, YOUR SUCCESS OR FAILURE DEPENDS ON THIS WEEK'S RESULTS

Are You in the Race? If so, Then You are Getting Results This Week While Votes are Big

Yesterday was a great day in the contest department. Many candidates were in with new subscribers, and said that it was much easier to secure subscriptions now than it was before, which goes to show that there is plenty of territory that has not been canvassed. Candidates must remember that they must be active and turn in subscriptions every week in order that they remain in the contest. You will notice from time to time that names are taken out of the list, the reason for this is that they have not been active, so if you wish your name to stay in the list, you must get subscribers. This week's results will tell whether you are to be in the race or not, as the votes will be much smaller next week, and will continue to grow smaller each week of the contest. So you had better get in all your promises now while you derive the most benefit from them.

If you have not been making the best of your time these last four days you had better get busy right now, and not wait another minute for you can rest assured that your opponents are out hustling and getting subscriptions, which means big votes now, and not waiting until later on when the votes are small. Keeping everlastingly at it spells success. Continued on Page Four

SENCE CONVICTS TO THE FRONT

Dissatisfaction Is Felt In France That Criminals Bear No Part in the War.

Paris, Nov. 1.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—The protection from German shells enjoyed by convicts through their own misdeeds, while the law-abiding men of France able to bear arms are making such heavy sacrifices, has raised a discussion as to the propriety of sending to the front of all able-bodied men now in prison.

"Fall-bird slackers" is the name given to men sentenced in 1914 or previously to periods of confinement that have carried them over the first two years of the war. A law recently introduced in the Chamber of Deputies by Pierre Ramel and Andre Hesse contemplates the incorporation of certain categories of these men. The proposition was received with considerable satisfaction until a study of the question developed forcible objections. A great many people held that it would be according too much honor to allow convicts to fight at the front alongside the gallant soldier of the republic. Others held that the results would scarcely justify the experiment, while the number of recruits that could be obtained this way, estimated at the Ministry of Justice between 3,000 and 4,000, would furnish too small an effort to justify the risk. It would be necessary to provide an organization absolutely separate and distinct from any other arm of the service to prevent contact between convicts and

A great many prisoners have been led for the privilege of a suspension of their sentence to permit them to go to the front, and have thus appealed with some force to the sentiment of charitably minded people. There are precedents, however, showing that the men who have gone to the front to clear themselves of stains upon their record have not in every case justified the hope that was entertained.

THE SITUATION

The news with regard to Roumania is six of one and half a dozen of the other. Falkenhayn took two villages to the South and also captured some Roumanian positions beyond Kronstadt.

On the Macedonian front the British have re-opened the offensive in a marked manner. Pushing forward on the Struma they seized three villages and took over three hundred prisoners.

Despite continued bad weather, the Allies continue to make some progress north of the Somme. Sir Douglas Haig in reviewing the work of the last fortnight points out that during that period in the whole of the Regina and Stuff redoubts were taken together with eleven hundred prisoners, and that advance posts have been pushed well to the north and northeast of the Schwaben redoubt.

The Canadians and troops of the new army, who conducted the operations, deserve great credit for a signal and most economical victory.

Details are lacking with regard to the great struggle in progress in Galicia and Volhynia. Von Hindenburg recently made the boast that Germany will continue the war until a final issue is reached.

THE BRITISH RED CROSS APPEAL

To-morrow and Saturday the citizens of Brantford will have the opportunity to do their "bit" towards the British Red Cross funds. The amount aimed at in this community is $20,000, and towards this sum the City Council has voted $7,500, so $12,500 is the sum to be collected.

It should be done and more than done. It is the pride of this splendid institution that in every crisis in the campaigns of Great Britain and her Allies, the organization has been able to bring prompt and efficient aid to supplement the untiring work of the official services.

The work may be divided into three broad divisions:— 1.—The transportation of the sick and wounded. 2.—Hospitals, rest and convalescent homes. 3.—The provision of countless hospital and medical supplies, clothing and other comforts.

Under the first head, the Society has provided over 2,000 motor ambulances and 600 other vehicles for use abroad and at home. There are between 700 and 800 paid drivers and over 600 volunteer drivers. In addition, in London, the transporting of the sick and wounded from the trains to the various hospitals has been done by the Red Cross through volunteers, who have lent or given a fleet of motor ambulances and cars.

Under the second head, there are thirteen British Red Cross hospitals in France with 2,214 beds; ten in Egypt with 1,971 beds, 1050 in Great Britain with 41,000 beds. In addition there is the splendidly equipped King George Hospital (1,550 beds) a great favorite of the Canadians and Anzacs, the Royal Victoria at Netley (750 beds) and numerous officers and nurses convalescent homes.

Under the third head there are various supply depots, and over $2,000,000 has been spent in purchasing medical and general stores. Bales by the thousand and garments by the million, have also been issued.

On top of all this, the missing are located, letters are written to anxious relatives and a thousand other things looked after.

The British Red Cross is in every essential, taking a glorious part in the struggle for freedom and every cent received by them is spent on behalf of mitigating the sufferings of the heroes at the front.

Most assuredly every Brantfordite should deem it to be a solemn duty to give to the utmost of his, or her ability.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The Presidential election comes to an end next week, but not the note writing.

The counties continue to do splendidly on behalf of the British Red Cross fund. Norfolk County has just voted half a mill on the dollar for that purpose.

A cow is the only occupant of the jail at Rowena, South Dakota. Strange to say, however, she is not alone, for there are udders.

An Oregon woman dropped a valuable pearl in a yard and one of her chickens swallowed it. Judging from the price of eggs hereabouts, diamonds must be the average chicken feed.

The name of Germany's new war minister is Stein. He'll be under the table when the European rough house reaches an end.

There's an "elephant" table at the rummage sale in progress at Victoria Hall. What's the matter with putting the City Hall on it?

HOSPITAL STATEMENT

The statement of the hospital for the month of October, submitted to the city for the patients which have been treated there for which the city is liable. Twenty-five patients were admitted and received care for times varying from two days to the full month, the total number of days for which the city is owing, being four hundred and thirty-two, which at 70 cents per day amounts to $302.40.

NIGHT FIRE

A blaze in a frame structure adjoining a brick building at the corner of Police and Superior streets, used as a butcher shop, by Mr. J. Cammell, necessitated a trip by the firemen last night shortly after 10 o'clock. The East Ward department and the motor truck from the Central Station arrived at the scene before the fire had assumed serious proportions and were able to extinguish it by the use of chemicals. The blaze originated in some wood-work adjacent to a portable metal smoke house, and as far as is known, was caused by a spark escaping and lighting in the wood. The loss will be slight.

Rally Recital by Methodist Choirs

A special rally service under the auspices of the Methodist Church Union was given last evening in Wellington street church by the choir of the eight Methodist churches of the city, under the leadership of Messrs. Clifford Heggin and George White, with Prof. Darwin presiding at the organ. The attendance was of the largest possible, the church being filled to its utmost capacity. A most instructive and helpful address was delivered by the Rev. W. E. Baker of Colborne street church upon the life of Bishop Ashbury, the founder of the Methodist church in Canada. The choir was occupied most acceptably during the evening by Mr. George Wedlake. Vocal numbers were rendered by Mrs. Leeming and Mr. H. E. Ayliffe. The evening is well recognized as being the event of the year in Methodist church circles, and all concerned in the affair, the heartiest congratulations for its thorough success are due.

Our forebears, whose bright shades are soaring where noble anthems swell, while here on earth did little roaring about H. C. of L. Of simple manners, they went plunging around the mundane scene; they had no wish to go chug-chugging, or burn up gasoline. ALLIED FIGHT SEEMS REALITY

Terrific Battle for Victory is Seen in Battle of So mme Film.

INTEREST INTENSE Spectators Watch Pictures With Bated Breath and Silent Horror.

The silent fascination in which an audience views the official motion pictures of "The Battle of the Somme," was witnessed at noon today.

The struggle on the western front became a reality to scores to-day. "If we had had something like this in the old recruiting days" we should not have wanted conscription," said a member of the 215th staff when the show at the Colonial was over.

To the regular picture theatre patrons the attitude of the audience was a surprise. Once, for a whole quarter of an hour, not a sound could be heard. The reality is so terrible, the war seems so close that one feels there is no time to breathe. Silently the audiences watched the troops move up to the firing line, from which many would never return. Silently they watched the grim preparations, the fixing of bayonets and wire-cutters, the last hitch to the belt, the last look toward the officer in command.

When the last dash over the top, surely the most wonderful motion picture, that will ever be taken was watched in silence. But it was a silence so tense that it was startling. It was only when the Lancashire Fusiliers and the Royal Fusiliers came marching back with smiling faces that the tension was broken and there was time and inclination to cheer.

There have been many questions raised in the past few days as to whether the film was "fit" for any women and children to see. Let it be said that it was a harrowing spectacle, but let it be said also that there is a positive duty to see it, for it shows better than all description in the world just what the men who are doing and bearing for Britain.

Mayor Spoke at Toronto

The question of allowing the municipalities to retain the full amount of the Police Court fines collected by them, was discussed yesterday at a conference held in the Parliament building. A committee of five had been previously chosen to present the matter to the Provincial authorities, of which Mayor Bowby of this city was a member. The conference took place in the west wing of the building and commenced at about eleven o'clock and continued in one session until the conclusion.

During the course of the proceedings, in an address, Mayor Bowby opposed the collection of a portion of the fines by the Government, on the basis that as the officials, policemen, and the general upkeep of the organization necessary to enforce justice were supported out of the city funds, that it was only just that the city should turn benefit from the results of the expenditure. Not only were these expenses borne by the municipality, but also the keep of the prisoners after they had been committed to goal.

In reply, Attorney General Lucas stated that previous administrations—under the Mowat, Hardy, Ross and Whitney regimes—had not taken any action in the matter, as the system had then been considered suitable, and on a fair and equitable basis, as some expense involved in the administration of justice also devolved on the Government, and under these circumstances some portion of the fines were due to that body.

In the end nothing definite resulted, as no assurance of the attitude of the Government could be given, but the local representative was of the opinion that the request would be granted at the next session of the Provincial Parliament.

SPECIAL ORCHESTRA

RECURRENCE OF

Continued from Page One under circumstances when it was unlikely that any American citizens would be aboard them. Similarly she has gone to the extreme of atrocity in setting crews adrift in open boats on dangerous and inclement seas, but as long as her victims are only British or Dutch or Scandinavian subjects and not American citizens, President Wilson is officially indifferent. His policy throughout has been not to make any protest against illegal barbarities as such, but solely to protest against their being inflicted on Americans.

Now that there are once more American victims, it will be interesting to see how the immediate presence of the Presidential election will probably delay his action till those few days are over, but the challenge to him from Germany, whether or not it was intended by the German Government, is clear, unmistakable, and any failure on his part to treat it as such could only be construed in one way at Berlin.

Medals Commemorate Frightfulness of Huns

Decoration Issued to Celebrate Sinking of Lusitania and Other Deeds of Germany—Tirpitz and Zeppelin Are Among Heroes Distinguished.

In a recent issue the London Times says:

The British Museum has recently acquired, for the most part as a gift from a friend of the National Collections, a small but representative series of medals made in Germany since the outbreak of the war. Although these medals bear no signs of being issued by official authority, the impression they give is that they constitute part of the semi-official propaganda which Germany has developed to so remarkable a degree. But whatever their origin, there can be no doubt that they provide a singularly interesting index to the state of mind of the Germans, and it is fortunate that a number of these records have been secured for the National Collections, although, as the galleries are closed, they will not be visible to the public until after the war.

There are, it would appear, many Englishmen who are reluctant to believe that a medal was actually issued to glorify the sinking of the Lusitania; but here is a specimen of this very piece. On one side is a crowd of Americans taking tickets at the Cunard office; the clerk who deals them out is a grisly skeleton. The motto is Geschaft über Alles: "Business above everything." On the other side we see the Lusitania going down, and the inscription tells us that the liner was sunk by a German submarine on May 5, 1915 (the actual date was May 7). Above the vessel we read the motto, "No compromise," and the justification is provided by the munitions of war (including a fully-rigged aeroplane!) with which her decks are piled. A final touch of verisimilitude is seen in her stem, which has a ram like that of a warship. This medal, which has fitly been compared with the medal issued by Gregory XIII. to commemorate the massacre of St. Bartholomew—is by a person of the name of Goetz, who appears to be by far the most prolific among the medalists who are satisfying the present demand for stuff of this kind.

Arrests of Settle
The satirical medal, which was in the 18th century so popular as an expression of political feeling, has once more been revived but clumsiness of conception and execution usually robs the satire of half its pungency. Much more could have been made of the arrival of the Indian troops in France as if they were a circus. But the Indian who is carrying a placard announcing (with five mistakes in the French) the grand attraction, and the Highlander, presented as usual about 15 feet high, who is showing the Indian elephant on to the theatre of war, are not funny, and are certainly vulgar. The only really humorous designs are unaccountably so. Bismarck—in the pose of the famous statue—pronouncing over the waves an adaption to Britain of Cato's denunciation of Carthage, looks for all the world as if he had taken refuge in an armchair from the tide which is rising to overwhelm him. Still more amusing, in its production of an effort exactly the opposite of what was intended, is one of the "Gott Strafe England" medals of Admiral von Tirpitz. It is impossible not to feel sorry for the artist who is asked to do anything with this hero's features except in the way of caricature. But the reverse design surpasses all expectations. Neptune is seen seated on a submarine and shaking his fist at British shipping. Something in the way in which the subject is treated irresistibly suggests that he has been marooned and is venting his impotent rage at the ship that has deserted him.

Von Tirpitz is naturally one of the chief heroes of this series of medals, but few of the names that have become familiar to us are missing from the gallery. The reverse of von Kluck's portrait represents a Fury riding "To Paris, 1914," an intelligent anticipation which reminded us of the "To Paris, 1914" at London with which Napoleon commemorated that invasion. Dashed which was never to take place. Count von Zeppelin has a view of London in the neighborhood of the Tower Bridge going up in flames under an attack by airships on August 17-18, 1915. The reverse of the Crown Prince Wilhelm's medal represents him as a young Siegfried, in heroic attitude, attacking with his sword the many-headed monster of the allies. The fact that the monster, in spite of the hero's efforts, shows no trace of injury, and the suggestion of sublimity and malicious caricature in the Prince's portrait, must be understood, we suppose, as the artist's intentional homage to truth.

Taken as a whole, the medals illustrate the difficulty of gathering the facts of history from records which are made at the time under the influence of political passion. But they are of historical value, as showing the psychological condition of the nation that produces them. It occurred to our medalists, the British spirit could surely be equally expressed in the same way without the brutality which so often is necessary to the German camp.

DENTAL CORPS OFFICERS HERE

For Purpose of Making Arrangements For Service to 215th Battalion.

In accordance with orders issued recently in reference to the scrubbing of the bunks and floor of the barracks of the 215th battalion, men were busy engaged this morning in cleaning up. The batonade musketry officer, Lieut. James, visited the battalion yesterday and expressed pleasure at the efficient state in which he found this department of the battalion.

Major Thompson and Capt. Danson of the Dental Corps were in the city to-day for the purpose of securing quarters in which to start their branch to the service. It is likely that they will obtain quarters either in the Armouries or the Y.M.C.A.

On Saturday afternoon the soccer enthusiasts of the city will be treated to an exhibition of that sport by the Tiger battalion team of Hamilton and the 215th. The Tigers are the champion team of the "Tiger" district and a good game is assured. Seven hundred tickets have been printed and already five hundred of these have been sold. The game will commence at 2.30 sharp and will be refereed by Mr. P. Farnsworth of Brantford.

$173,000,000 OUTPUT.

(Associated Press)

Washington, Nov. 1.—Four hundred and seventy-three million dollars worth of women's clothes was the output of American manufacturers in 1914 the Census Bureau announces in its latest summary. That does not include the output of dressmakers. The census bureau engaged in their manufacture employed 193,683 persons. Capital invested was $352,549,966 in 5,564 establishments.

Lieut. Gastic, a famous war photographer, is now the official photographer with the Canadian forces, and an official cinematographer is engaged in securing films of the Canadian troops in France.

E. Desbarats, of Desbarats Advertising Agency, told the Dominion Royal Commission at Montreal that American magazines and periodicals appealed to Canadians more than British publications, because of their appearance, style and price.

LADY'S FIVE GORE PLAITED SKIRT.

By Anabel Worthington.

The feeling of pride that it is quite natural enough for one to have in the possession of something "charmingly fashionable" is bound to be the outcome of making a skirt like that shown in this illustration.

In this box pleated model a fascinating effect is given by passing a trimming band of silk through lengthwise openings in the side and back gores, at sole depth and underneath the box pleats. Three of these pleats are made in each half. A raised waistline is used and the entire upper edge of the skirt gathered.

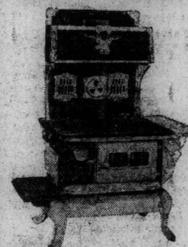

Silk covered buttons to match the trimming band in tone ornament at the front ends, marking a broad panel to the garment. For wear with an afternoon blouse this is an exceptionally pretty model.

It is difficult to determine which of these fabrics has the most ardent followers for fall and winter skirts—Satin, gabardine, velour, suede or fine broadcloth. Even to one who is inexperienced in the use of patterns the development of this design is easily possible.

The skirt pattern No. 7981 is cut in sizes 24 to 30 waist measure. To make in size 24 will require 7 1/2 yards of 36 inch material and 3/4 yard silk.

To obtain the pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

Music and Drama

There has been an exceptionally large demand for seats for the bout at the Grand and it looks as though a bumper house will greet the mitt-wielders when the gong calls them to the center of the ring. A large number of fight fans from outside points have written in for seats, the biggest outside demand being from Hamilton, the crowd from there having arranged to come up in special cars to cheer for their idol, Peter Scott. Jimmie Conway is expected in from Scranton to-night and will do a little light training here to-morrow morning. He sends word that he is already down to weight and that he expects to take the Indian's measure. Scott arrived back in Hamilton this morning from Buffalo where he did his training and he claims that if he does not defeat Conway he will quit the ring forever. He is down to the slimmed weight and will have experienced men in his corner. The first preliminary will start at 8.30 and no time will be lost between bouts as there are 23 rounds of boxing carded altogether. Brantford will have a worthy representative in the main preliminary when Clare Bets will hook up with Young Aitor of Hamilton. The later established reputation by defeating Soldier McCracken in Hamilton recently, but he will meet tough opposition in Bets and is liable to go home a beaten man. The second preliminary will be between Eddie Carroll, of Toronto, and Neville, of Hamilton, while Jack Miller and Young Galloway two Hamilton boys will meet in the curtain-raiser.

Barrie's total givings to the British Red cross canvass on Trafalgar Day was over $3,500.

SISTERS THREE

So readily the atmosphere was changing. People were ready to see that it had been hard on young Gaston to credit him with his father's acts, although by the harshness of his outward aspect and the sly defiance of his mien he had rather courted than conquered this false impression.

Now his appearance at this small and very friendly gathering seemed to mark an epoch in his life: old friends met him with smiles, and he did not repulse their overtures. Madame Lebreton appeared to have come forth from that shell of silent reserve which had made her somewhat unapproachable to outsiders; by tacit consent the dead past was suffered to bury its dead. Here in the glow of the summer's afternoon, mellowing towards sunset upon Sunset Crags, there was to be nothing but cordiality and the healing of the old-time wounds.

Gipsy was in her element, making laughter and fun for all, showing off her dog, telling wonderful stories of his superhuman intelligence, which stores Gaston would bring toppling down to earth by some prosaic suggestion of mundane motive on the part of the dog which quite overrode her lofty theories. So they sparred together amid laughter and mirth, Mrs. Lebreton watching them with quiet smiles and an attention which presently arrested Audrey's notice, and she drew near to Gipsy's mother, who welcomed her with a smile of appreciative understanding.

"Somebody has achieved a triumph," she said.
"What do you mean?"
"I never thought to get my big, unsootable boy here. He said, when I asked him, that it was 'out of the question.' But to-day he appeared to escort me. Who has worked the miracle?"

"I think Gipsy did for one; perhaps Jim Kildare for another; but I know Gipsy met him in the plantation and bullied him into coming."
Then they looked at each other and smiled, and Audrey, glancing towards her sister, whose bright face was the centre of a little ring of laughing listeners, Gaston being one of an odd little throng at heart. Of Allardyce and Jim Kildare she could see nothing. Suddenly it seemed to Audrey as though the old world were spinning very fast about her at this moment.

She crossed the lawn in the direction of Doctor Kingscote, who was examining some of his old friend's cherished rose-trees. He and Mr.

Rickard had both been rose-fanciers, and had vied with each other as to who could grow the most beautiful of this queen of flowers. The riot of June was over; but even though July there were many splendid flowers to be found. Audrey stood beside him and laid a hand on his arm.

"Doctor Kingscote, I want to ask you a question. You know that letter our uncle wrote us? The charge he left us?"
"Yes, my dear. You have kept the charge. The old right of way remains as it was."
"Yes; but behind that definite charge lay something else. Uncle Rickard did not want us to be friends with the Lebretons. Was that not so?"

"That is putting the matter crudely; but there is a 'yes' in your words. Your Uncle had a check; we all of us had that. He was General Kildare's friend. He felt very much. He had a bitter interview with Mr. Lebreton, and then they met no more; and in his heart there lurked the fear that a certain old proverb might prove true—like father, like son."
"Well what would he say to-day?"
"There he looked around into Audrey's inquiring face, catching something of the meaning of that shrewd half-whimsical, half-inquiring glance."

"My dear, I think and believe that if my old friend were here to-day he would be one of the first to say, 'Let the past be wiped out and forgotten; let the happy future drown all its bitter memories!' No man was less prone to cherish a grudge or bear ill-will without cause than my old friend Richard Rickard."

"Then I need not feel that we are doing wrong to our benefactor in our friendship with the Lebretons?"
"My dear, I am sure that you need not; Time the great healer, has done his beneficent work. We are all beginning to see that Gaston Lebreton is his mother's son as well as his father's—and a very loyal and good son has he been to both. Though he hated the thing his father did, he has born the obliquity of it courageously and without a murmur. Not graciously perhaps; the boy is very human; but he has been staunch and loyal all through. I am not entirely sorry for this ordeal through which he has passed, for a life without storm and stress is also a life without achievement."

Audrey drew a long breath, as though of relief.
"Thank's," she said; "that is just what I feel. But I wanted to know how it struck an impartial observer. I have friends. I like to live at peace with my neighbors. And when you began to see—well there is no knowing what it is going to turn into—you want to be sure that you are not being disloyal in giving it an approving push forward. We owe so much to our uncle. Doctor Kingscote's face lighted up abruptly."

"My dear, nothing could possibly be better than that your young territorial magnate at Gaston's Keep should find himself under that very wholesome regime which is commonly known as 'petticoat government.' What a young man of the temperment, wants beyond all else is a wife to keep him in order."
"But that does not quite fit in with my idea, am I looking out for a husband for my wilful and very dear sister who will keep her in order."
"Exactly; and on the principle of

FELT LIKE A NEW PERSON

After Taking Only One Box Of "Fruit-a-lives"

Fast SUIR HARBOUR, N. S.
"It is with great pleasure that I write to tell you of the wonderful benefits I have received from taking 'Fruit-a-lives'. For years, I was a dreadful sufferer from Constipation and Headaches, and I was miserable in every way. Nothing in the way of medicine seemed to help me. Then I finally tried 'Fruit-a-lives' and the effect was splendid. After taking one box, I feel like a new person, to have relief from those sickening Headaches."
Mrs. MARTHA DEWOLFE.
50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa.

"Set a thief to catch a thief! It will be a most improving arrangement to set these two strong natures to act and react upon each other."
"You don't consider it too much risk?"—and in Audrey's eyes was a touch of anxiety.

"My dear, these two young people are not likely to ask any third person to settle their affairs for them. But if you ask me, I don't think the risks too great at their ages. He is but a strong boy and she is a very charming girl with a sound sweetness of nature that will carry her through a great many worse troubles than she is likely to encounter at the hands of Gaston Lebreton. Her brightness will react on him, and he will keep her vivaciously from running away with her common sense."

Audrey smiled.
"Doctor Kingscote, you see and understand almost too much. But I am so glad for what you have said. As you say, I do not think what any third person thinks or says will make much difference with that pair. But I was reading uncle Richard's letter over again last night, and I wondered if I should show it again to Gipsy or should I—"

"Put it behind the fire? Well my dear, if my old friend were to be here to-day I believe that is what he would say. Never was a less bitter or hostile soul than he. It was his care for and love towards his sister's children that dictated it when a fear partly bred of illness came to harass him. That fear would have been in his heart to-day, of that I am very sure."

Audrey drew the letter from her pocket. Then Doctor Kingscote frowned in his furrowed brows.
"But he has been staunch and loyal all through. I am not entirely sorry for this ordeal through which he has passed, for a life without storm and stress is also a life without achievement."

Audrey drew a long breath, as though of relief.

SIDE TALKS

STEALING FROM ONE'S SELF

"How I envy you going off on that lovely trip!" one neighbor of mine said to another the other day.
"I know it's a lovely trip," said the other, with a worried expression, "but I almost wish we weren't going, it's so expensive. You know we decided to do it partly for the sake of business interests. We shouldn't be spending too much money anyway. I know it will worry me all the time."
Isn't that a healthy state of mind with which to start on a pleasure trip?
She was going to spend money and Refuse to Take Value
She was going to take the trip, she was going to spend the money, and yet she was going to refuse to take the equivalent in pleasure and mental refreshment.

That's what I call stealing from one's self. Stealing happiness, stealing peace, stealing health.
Every one who does not know how to put his misgivings behind him to accept philosophically all the drawbacks which any course he has determined upon involves, steals from himself.

Your Ploughing Will Not Be A Success

If you put your hand to the plough and then walk backward, your ploughing will never be a success. I know two business men who have both had to gamble in buying their supplies for the coming year. Prices of raw goods were high in both their lines of manufacture. If they didn't buy they ran the risk of losing no supplies at all. If they did, they ran the risk of prices dropping and competitors getting ahead of them.

Both thought. One is making himself half sick, wondering whether he wouldn't have done better to wait. The other is using his energy in finding ways to cut down manufacturing costs.

Decisions Are Too Ready To Be Daylight Ghosts.
If you turn them, decisions are always in your mind every time you go to the door open for a minute. Go firm with them. Exercise them by turning your face to the future and pronouncing this magic incantation, "I have done what seemed to me best. I will not permit myself to waste my energy in worry."
