

COURAGEOUS BATTLE WON BY CANADIANS

In This Third Battle of Ypres They Lost 133 Officers and 700 Rank and File--Swept Through Germans, Bayonet in Hand

British Headquarters in France, June 4, via London, June 5--The Canadians and Germans are fighting in the region of Ypres, where last Saturday the Canadians, in hand-to-hand encounters, and with the aid of bombs, recaptured most of the trenches the Germans had previously taken from them in the sector from the Ypres-Comines Canal to Hooge Point. In the face of repeated attacks the Canadians have been unable to retain the bulk of the recaptured ground, but are still fighting strenuously to keep what they have and to recapture what they have lost.

London, June 5--The British official communication, issued early this morning, says: "There is no material change at Zillebeke. The night (Sunday) passed quietly, but today (Monday) there has been a good deal of shelling by both sides. The enemy made a small night attack in this locality, but was easily repulsed. On the other parts of the line, several minor enterprises were carried out by both sides. The enemy made a raid near Boeselle after a heavy bombardment. Some few casualties were caused to our troops before the enemy retired, leaving his dead.

"A second hostile raid was attempted after a mine explosion northeast of Arras, but it was unsuccessful. The enemy was driven back and we occupied the crater. "Our infantry entered German trenches in five different places between Culinchy and Fauspillart. Two of our parties were particularly successful in causing loss to the hostile garrison, killing forty of the enemy.

"Military warfare continues actively in the sector from Hulluch to Ginchy. Five mines have been sprung by us and one by the enemy during the past twenty-four hours."

London, June 5--The real action commenced a fortnight ago, since when the bombardment had been kept up unceasingly. The Germans were entrenched on a ridge to the northeast from which a fierce bombardment proceeded, the heavy artillery pouring down upon the lower level held by the Canadians, until the trenches were so badly pounded up that they gave little or no shelter. Notwithstanding serious losses, the Canadians patiently endured all this, and then early on Friday resorted to a mode of attack for which they have gained fame among British troops.

Stealing back to the trenches which had been evacuated, under an intolerable fire, our men, mostly newcomers of the third division, dashed over No Man's Land, hurling bombs and grenades while our artillery from behind supported the attack with the result that at least part of the post ground was retaken.

This attack on Ypres, Canadian believe, is an expression of the enemy's chagrin over Verdun. The evening Standard, commenting:

Arthur Robinson Sued for Divorce

Well Known Sportsman, at Present in England, Charged With Unfaithfulness.

(New York Herald.) Friends of Arthur Robinson, wealthy sportsman of New York, learned yesterday that his recent trip to Europe without his wife, Mrs. Andrea Patton Robinson, was the forerunner of a divorce action. Instead of leaving on a business trip, Mrs. Robinson says in a complaint filed in the Supreme Court, he went with a "Mrs. Arthur Robinson" on board the Rotterdam from New York to Falmouth, England. Basing her action on that allegation and on the accusation that he committed acts of misconduct with the same Mrs. Robinson at the Vanderbilt Hotel from March 6 to 11 of this year, she asks a divorce. Both Mr. and Mrs. Robinson were fond of the out of doors and spent much of their time together in the Miramichi woods. He became one of the most widely known sportsmen of New Brunswick. They often returned to New York, where they kept a home and were seen together in society.

British Navy Still Controls The Seas

Fierce Battle in North Sea May 31st and June 1st Inflicts Huge Losses on British but Punishes the Germans Severely and Drives Them Back to Port

Picking its way from its base in the Kiel Canal, the German high sea fleet, emerged into the North Sea, and off the coast of Jutland engaged a British fleet throughout the afternoon and night in what probably was the greatest naval battle in the world's history so far as tonnage en-

"There remains, nevertheless, a dark page in our naval history insofar as the loss of splendid ships and splendid lives are concerned. It is blumined, however, by glorious fighting against vastly superior weight of metal, but the blow remains and it is because of the arrival of Vice-Admiral Jellicoe's battle fleet arrived to destroy the Germans. Vice-Admiral Beatty achieved a brilliant success, but it was because of the arrival of Vice-Admiral Jellicoe the Germans fled. We atgaged and tonnage destroyed was concerned. "It is clear that we have suffered the heaviest blow at sea that we have met with during the war. "Our Admiralty has taken the wise course of making no effort to understate the gravity of the British losses. We engaged, perhaps with overconfidence, in a long running fight against ships which were more numerous, stronger and more heavily armed than our cruiser fleet and we suffered heavily. But the event will not impair the effectiveness of our blockade or our ability to uphold the freedom of the seas, nor will it disperse the Germans to encounter their main part of the British fleet, in avoidance of which they have shown so much diligence and cleverness. "The Germans doubtless hope that the battle will impress credulous neutrals and even cause some discouragement among the Allies. As to the British people, the result of the fight will sting them to fresh exertion and will dispel much idle and harmful optimism. It will instil that unalterable resolution to win or perish, that has ever been the consequence of untoward fortune of our race, when they are entered upon a quarrel which they know to be just."

Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, retired, speaking Sunday of the fight off Jutland between the British and German fleets, said: "Though a hard earned sea fight, it was a British victory. There was no mistake in strategy made. The British objective was to sink the German fleet, or compel it to return to its base. In the absence of Zepplins for scouting purposes the British navy was obliged to send out heavy cruisers as outside scouts, because light cruisers would have been driven in without securing the needed information.

When the battle ended Great Britain had lost the battle cruisers Queen Mary, Indefatigable and Invincible, the cruisers Defence, Black Prince and Warrior and eight torpedo boat destroyers. The German losses are believed to have been about the same number of ships, and about the same aggregate of tonnage.

Great Britain's admitted loss in tonnage was 104,050 for the six battleships and cruisers, and counting the smaller craft, about 116,000. That of Germany may reach 150,000 tons. The tonnage of the capital ships sunk by the Japanese in their fight with the Russians in the battle of Tsushima, in May, 1905, aggregated 93,000. Twenty-one Russian craft were destroyed in this fight, including six battleships and four cruisers. The remainder of the sunken craft comprised coast defence and special service vessels and torpedo boats.

Casualties Were Heavy That the casualties in the fighting off Jutland were heavy is indicated by the fact that of the crew of some 900 on board the Indefatigable only two men are known to have been saved.

Held Up German Fleet (The Daily Graphic's naval expert says: "It is quite clear that the main German fleet was trying to come out and that our battle cruisers intercepted them and held them up, and that they finally were forced to return to port. In other words, Admiral Jellicoe's fleet came up after our battle cruisers had held the enemy and the enemy retired. The German fleet admitted its inability to meet our Grand Fleet and is as securely locked up as despite its success, as it was before.

Former Noble Officer Drowned Ottawa, June 5--One former officer of the Canadian navy, Lieut. De Quetteville, went down in the North Sea fight. He was a native of the Isle of Jersey, and came out to Canada with the Niobe, but left when the war broke out, sailing through Ottawa. Mr. De Quetteville was on the Indefatigable.

700 Men in Casualty List Ottawa, June 5--Evidence of the toll paid by the Canadians in the recent fighting about Ypres is shown in the casualties being received at the militia department. About seven hundred names of the rank and file have been received and will be made public as soon as the next of kin is notified. The list is steadily growing, and the casualty and record of service staff has already inaugurated an all-night tour of duty to promptly notify relatives. The casualties among the officers is 123.

ENGLAND'S WAR LORD AND STAFF DROWNED

Earl Kitchener, With Entire Staff Was Lost When Cruiser Hampshire was Sunk in North Sea

LORD KITCHENER

London, June 6--Earl Kitchener, Minister of War, with his entire staff, was lost when the cruiser Hampshire was sunk north of Scotland. The announcement of the loss of Kitchener and his staff was officially announced by the Admiralty today.

Four boats were seen to leave the Hampshire, but a heavy sea was running. Only a capsized boat and some bodies have been found. Earl Kitchener was on his way to Russia. Admiral Jellicoe reports that there is little hope that there were any survivors.

Accompanying Earl Kitchener as his staff were Hugh James O'Beirne, former Counsel of the British Embassy at Petrograd and former minister at Sofia; O. A. Fitzgerald, Earl Kitchener's private military secretary; Brigadier-General Ellershaw and Sir Frederick Donaldson.

Report From Admiral Jellicoe London, June 6--Admiral Jellicoe's report to the Admiralty follows: "I have to report, with deep regret, that His Majesty's ship Hampshire, Capt. Herbert J. Saville, R. N., with Lord Kitchener and his staff on board, was sunk last night at about 8 p. m. to the west of the Orkneys, either by a mine or a torpedo. "Four boats were seen by observers on shore to leave the ship. The wind was north-northwest, and heavy seas were running.

"Patrol vessels and destroyers at once proceeded to the spot, and a party was sent along the coast to search, but only some bodies and a capsized boat have been found up to the present. As the whole shore has been searched from the seaward, I greatly fear that there is little hope of there being any survivors. "No report has yet been received from the search party on shore. H. M. S. Hampshire was on her way to Russia."

London, June 6--The loss of Earl Kitchener, Secretary of State for War, England's greatest military organizer and the conqueror of the Sudan with his entire staff, when the cruiser Hampshire was sunk off the Orkney Islands by a mine or torpedo, was officially announced by the Admiralty today. The news of England's greatest personal loss since the war, which has stunned London, already hardened to shocks, was issued in a formal bulletin.

The Orkney Islands, off which the Hampshire went down, are off the north coast of Scotland. The Hampshire was on her way into the Atlantic and around the northern end of the Scandinavian peninsula into the White sea, Earl Kitchener probably intended to embark at Archangel. The Hampshire of 10,850 tons; Carried 650 men

The Hampshire was one of the Devonshire class of six cruisers. She was built in 1903, and normally carried 658 men. She displaced 10,850 tons, was 450 feet long, 68 1/2 foot beam, and drew 25 1/2 feet. She was armed with four 7.5-inch, six 6-inch, two 12-pound and twenty 3-pound and two torpedo tubes. She cost $4,250,000. The Hampshire has been in use as a scout boat and for carrying officials on various missions, having ample accommodations for the latter purpose.

During all the years in which the British people had looked on Kitchener's silent, but effective work, they had never been able to fathom his personality. A Cockney non-commissioned officer, who had seen much service under him summed up the general opinion when he said of Kitchener: "E's no talker, Not 'im. 'E's all steel and 'lce."

His face was that of a man who neither asked for sympathy, nor wanted it. He had steady, blue gray passionate eyes, and a heavy moustache covered a mouth that shut close and firm as a wolf trap. He believed with all his might, in the gospel of work. He had formidable self-confidence. For bungling and faint-heartedness, he was incapable of feeling sympathy or showing mercy; an officer who failed him once, got no second chance. He had a grim laconic humor.

"What is your taste in hairpins?" for instance, is said to have been the query with which he annihilated a dandified officer. He was indifferent to popularity, particularly among women, and though feted all over the world in social circles, he never married. Earl Kitchener was appointed secretary of state for war on August 3, 1914, a few days after Great Britain's declaration of war on Germany. He was regarded as England's greatest soldier and the decision of the government to entrust him with supreme direction of the war was received with unanimous approval.

Tax Reform League Asks Help of Churches

Invites Them to Pass Resolution Favoring Larger Proportion of Taxation on Land and Encourage Industry

To the churches--address from the Tax Reform League of Eastern Canada: "The injustice of land speculation is so widespread, its effects on our social development are so baneful, and its methods are so contrary to the Golden Rule and the Law of Love, that we feel that we have a right to appeal to the churches for their help to arouse the public conscience to this monstrous iniquity. While the men of industry are devoting their time and energy to flood the markets with the greatest abundance at the lowest possible price, while they toil through long hours to maintain the prosperity of the country, most unfortunately our methods of taxation are such that they lead other people to secure possession of the most valuable sites, not to use them for the public weal, but that they may gain the abundance of prosperity, without the labor of producing, and thus leave to the toilers only a meagre share of what they have produced."

Instead of bearing one another's burdens and so fulfilling the law of Christ, instead of rendering to every man his due, we so adjust our taxation that the men who produce the abundance get only scarcely, while others, who toil not, neither do they spin, can revel in lordly fortune. While we permit one part of humanity to charge their fellows for the opportunity to live on the face of the earth and for access to its bounty, do we not practically deny that this world is the heritage furnished for the equal enjoyment of every member of God's family, and do we not take from the expression, dearly beloved brethren, all its hallowed vitality?

So long as we proclaim the doctrine of brotherhood, and then split society into millionaires and tramps, so long as we crowd industry towards the sun and lift extortion to the palace, so long as we divide society into oppressors and oppressed, so long as we administer this earth, not as the heritage furnished by the Creator for the equal enjoyment of all His children, but as a manufactured article made for bargain and sale, so long as we maintain the terrible iniquity which enables one part of society to say to the rest: "God made no land for you; if you wish to live here you must say that privilege from us," so long as we thus contr-

ST. VITUS DANCE

A Trouble Cured Through The Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

St. Vitus dance is a disease that usually attacks young children—chiefly of a school age—though older persons may be afflicted with it. Its most common symptoms are a twitching of the muscles of the face and limbs. As the disease progresses this twitching takes the form of spasms in which the jerking motion may be confined to the head, or all the limbs may be affected. The patient is frequently unable to hold anything in his hands or to walk steadily, and in severe cases even the speech may be affected.

Education For Workers

The movement in the United Kingdom in the extension of vocational education during the last eight or ten years, has been an educational reformation. If one would venture a prediction it would be of this sort—that the far-seeing, deep-seated historian will put a milestone to mark a stage of England's greatness between 1900 and 1913. It will mark the recognized starting place of the effort in England to give the toiling masses a chance for natural, normal, organic development; a chance to be educated for their job, to get satisfaction out of their work, to make good homes for themselves and to leave their children with still better opportunities for further development.

A Letter From A Soldier

Jos. D. Braynon of The 36th Battalion Writes an Interesting Letter

Pte. J. D. Braynon, 12th Brigade M. G. Base, 36th Battalion, C. E. F., West Sandring, Kent, England, May 18th, 1916.

Dear Mother and Father,

It has been some time since I wrote you but I wrote two letters since I heard from you last. I received some papers you sent today. I also received a letter from Abbie a couple of days ago. I was very glad to hear from her. The reason I did not write before is that I was down to Ashford for about fifteen days on guard. We had a fine time. We were billeted in private houses. It was quite a change from the camp. We probably will be quite a while in England yet. I met Beaumont at Folkestone the other night, he looked fine. He expects to go to France any time soon. We are having fine weather here now. I had some pictures taken and if they turn out good I will send you some. I expect a lot of mail for me has gone astray, as the rest of the 55th is in France, but if the letters I send go home it won't be so bad. I was out with Colin Logie last night. We went down to Hythe. We hired a boat and had a row on the canal.

I hope you are all well. I have never been sick since we left Canada. Well, I guess I have said about all for this time, so I will close. Love to all.

diet, outside the pulpit, the doctrines that we emphasize in the pulpit, how can we possibly look for an answer to the prayer: "Thy Kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven?"

Only on a foundation of justice can we establish the Kingdom of God on earth. Justice and judgment are the habitation of Thy throne.

In order therefore to aid in this reform, we ask you to pass and publish the enclosed resolution.

THE TAX REFORM LEAGUE OF EASTERN CANADA.

S. THOMPSON,
 Assistant Secretary.

The Resolution
 Be it resolved that we make the following declaration of principles: We believe that this earth is the heritage furnished by the Creator for the equal enjoyment of all His children, also that the land was intended for the production of those commodities that are necessary for the sustenance and welfare of humanity, and never for speculation.

We further believe, that the use of the land by speculators, to despoil industry of its proper reward, is contrary to the Divine will, and that any method of taxation which encourages the use of the land for extortion, is a serious mistake and should be rectified;

Therefore, we strongly urge that the method of taxation now in vogue, be amended so that every man will be encouraged to put his opportunities to the best use for the welfare of humanity, and that the temptation to use land for speculation will be removed.

The Great Actress Ethel Barrymore at Happy Hour

"The Final Judgment", starring Ethel Barrymore, the brilliant dramatic actress which will be shown at the Happy Hour on Thursday, in a powerful five part photo drama by George Scarborough, author of "The Lure", and other successful plays, and is a rare combination of star, dramatist and producing company. This picture is the latest release on the Metro program.

Throughout the picture's five acts it carries a gripping and engrossing story of the love of three men for the same woman in which the versatile dramatist has treated the theme with unusual cleverness. It is especially the best and most vigorous work of Mr. Scarborough and Miss Barrymore has unlimited opportunities to give free rein to her wonderful gifts and consummate art. The star is supported by a cast of exceptional ability.
