Stella Mordant; The Cruise of the "Kingfisher."

CHAPTER XI.
The crowd cheered, Lord Hatherley clapped his hands in genuine admiration of the speech; he had listened to many a worse one. The crowd cheered, every man of it excepting one.

He was a small, undersized man, who bore a strong resemblance to the Mr. Workley who had been introduced to Mr. Bannister at the Columbine in Drury Lane. He did not cheer, but, with a short pipe stuck in the corner of his mouth, eyed the new earl curiously and with a cynical expression in his keen and bird-like eyes.

CHAPTER XII.
Lord Ratton did not notice among the crowd the little man who had been introduced to him at the Columbine; indeed, if he had seen him, he would, in this moment of excitement, have failed to recognize him; and ten minutes afterwards Workley walked off with his brother-in-law, a boot-maker in Market Ratton, merely remarking to him:

"Lucky young beggar, that! Shouldn't wonder if he became popular. Rum word, this!" and his keen, bird-like eyes twinkled.

The earl watched the crowd streaming off to drink beer and dance in the marquee, with his heart swelling proudly, then he turned to receive the congratulations of his friends.

"A capital little speech; splendid!" said Lord Hatherley. "Just what was wanted! My dear Ratton, I prophesy that you will make your mark in the Lords."

"Very good, very suitable," said Mr. Bulpit, who was also pleased—and surprised.

But Ralph's eyes were fixed expectantly and anxiously on Lady Mary's face, and, feeling his gaze, she added her word of praise.

"I think you did it very well, Lord Ratton," she said, smilingly.

His face flushed with gratification. "Do you?" he responded. "Then I'm satisfied. It's the first speech I ever made"—he ought to have added, "off the stage"—and I was afraid that I should make a mess of it. But, then, you are all so kind, you see, that a fellow couldn't help doing his best. Shall we go back to the house?"

They went into the drawing-room—the magnificent room in which generations of stately Ratton ladies had held their social courts, and he would have had Lady Mary go to the piano and play; but Mary declined. She had been conscious all the evening,

My Corns

Were Ended This Way

Countless women have told other women about Blue-jay plasters. Now a million corners a month are ended in this scientific way.

Women who know Blue-jay do not suffer corns. When one appears, they put a Blue-jay plaster on it. That ends the pain. In 48 hours the corn is gone forever, with no soreness left.

If you can't believe it, ask your friends. Half of them have probably ended corns with Blue-jay. If you still doubt it, ask us for samples. Try them on corns of your own.

Don't coddle corns. Don't pare and keep them. Don't use old-time treatments. A famous chemist has made corns utterly unnecessary. That sort of torture is a thing of the past.

Mother Is Child's Stomach Sour, Sick.

If tongue is coated or if cross, feverish, constipated give "California Syrup of Figs."

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with "sour" waste.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeiters sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

that she was the only lady present, and she felt, if not embarrassed, rather shy; so they sat and talked, and, naturally enough, they talked of the young man's future.

Leaning against the mantel-piece of carved white marble, his eyes shining with suppressed excitement and delight in his newly found possessions and position, Ralph expressed himself very well, with that specious kind of candour and mock humility which imposes upon so many persons, which impressed the honest, simple-minded Hatherley at any rate.

"Of course I want to do my duty," said Ralph. "I want to do the right thing by—the title and the place. The difficulty is that I don't know my part—er—I mean, what my duty is. You see, I haven't had the advantage of being brought up to—the business; and the life is all new to me."

"Judging by the admirable way in which you played your part this evening, I should say you will not find very great difficulty, Ratton," remarked Lord Hatherley, beamingly.

"Well, I mean to do my best; and I think I shall get through very well, if you will be kind enough to help me. It's very kind of you to be here to-night, very kind, and I can't tell you how thankful I am." He glanced at Lady Mary, who sat with her hands folded on her lap, her eyes downcast, trying at that very moment to think the best of this modest young man, and half angry with herself because, somehow or other, she could not.

"I should have felt fearfully lonely and—and out of it, if you had not come to my aid; and I'm hoping, Lord Hatherley—for the life of him he could not omit the "lord," and he wondered if he ever should be able to do so. How easily Lord Hatherley addressed him as "Ratton"—"that you will give me your advice, you and Mr. Bulpit, who has proved such a good friend."

Mr. Bulpit bowed and blew his nose in a grim kind of way. "Of course, I know there is an immense amount of responsibility attaching to my—er—position, and I don't want to shirk it."

"Of course not—of course not," murmured Lord Hatherley, with a nod of approval at the others. "I should like to do something for my—er—people—the people on the estate." He glanced at Lady Mary, whose downcast eyes rather discouraged him. "There must be some improvements to be made in the cottages and—er—schools, and that kind of thing—" He paused, as he tried to recollect some passages in some of the novels he had read, some of the "benevolent squire" business. "Perhaps the church wants rebuilding?"

Lord Hatherley laughed. "The church is all right, Ratton," he said, "but we want some new schools, and some of the cottages might be rebuilt; but," he added, gravely, "I am poaching on Mr. Greyfold's preserves. He'll know what wants doing. And I daresay Lady Mary will not object to joining the committee; she's always making attacks on my purse for similar reforms."

Lady Mary flushed up quickly and almost reproachfully at her father, but she said nothing.

"If Lady Mary would be so good and kind," murmured Ralph, with fervent gratitude. "And I should like to encourage—er—sport. I suppose there is something I could do in that direction?"

"Certainly—certainly," assented Hatherley. "There is the cricket club and the hounds," he added, eagerly. "By the way, you ride, or course?"

Ralph coloured and looked down. "Er—not very well, I'm afraid," he said. "I have not had many opportunities. But, of course, I am fond of horses, and I—er—know a little about them." How often he had, hidden behind a bush, watched the horses making their secret trials on the Heath. "And I shall hunt."

"Of course—of course," said Lord Hatherley, a little less enthusiastically, for "I'm fond of horses," didn't sound very hopeful; a sportsman would have felt that such an assertion was superfluous. "Oh, rest assured that we shall find plenty for you to do. There's the cricket club, as I said—you play, of course?"

"I haven't played for years," said Ralph; which was true, as he had never had a bat or ball in his hand. "I shall be happy to subscribe."

"Ah, well, you will soon pick it up again; and the subscription will carry you until you do," laughed Lord Hatherley. "But you need not fear you will want occupation, my dear Ratton. You will have the whole county down upon you presently, and you'll be busy enough receiving and returning calls. I hope you mean to stay here—at the Hall—for a time at any rate?"

"Certainly!" said Ralph, emphatically.

"Quite so; well, you will be entertained and have to entertain, you know. It will be rather hard work for a bachelor; but you must make haste and present us with a lady chataleine."

The earl dropped his eyes, and the smile fled from his face for a moment as he laughed uneasily. It was a strange and unattractive remark for a man with a charming and marriageable daughter seated beside him; but Lord Hatherley made it in perfect innocence. In his eyes his beloved Mary was a child still, and he would have regarded as an enemy any man who proposed to rob him of her. Mr. Bulpit knew this; but Ralph glanced at Lady Mary out of the corner of his eyes.

"Perhaps I may, some day," he said. "In the meantime, I shall hope you will come to my assistance and help a poor bachelor over his trying duties."

"Delighted!" said Lord Hatherley. "Not that I think you will need much assistance. You will find us not at all difficult people to get on with, eh, Bulpit? And we shall all be very glad to welcome you amongst us."

Lady Mary rose. "I think we should be going, father," she said, quietly.

Ralph saw that, for some reason she said, with the swift, sweet smile which was reserved for him alone.

"Dear, you must not expect me to feel as you feel towards him. I neither expected nor feared, and I must decline to fall down and worship the new Earl of Ratton."

Her father laughed. "I can't imagine you falling down and worshipping anyone, Molly mine," he said.

Soon after the Hatherleys had gone, Mr. Bulpit took his departure, and the earl very graciously accompanied him to the hall door. He was very gracious indeed to the old lawyer, and shook hands with him with a mixture of condensation and familiarity which amused that gentleman.

"I'm very much obliged to you, Bulpit," said the earl, omitting the "Mr." where, of course, he ought to have used it. "You have done the right thing by me, and, by George, I thank you for it, as you'll find. You and Mr. Greyfold won't find me difficult to get on with—eh, Greyfold?" and he as graciously shook hands with the steward.

"Well?" said Mr. Greyfold, interrogatively, as they climbed into Mr. Bulpit's modest phaeton. "What do you think of him?"

Mr. Bulpit was silent for a moment or two, then she said:

"I don't fancy he is quite such a fool as I once thought him."

"Did you notice how cleverly he—well, played Lord Hatherley—and Lady Mary?" asked Greyfold.

If your stomach is in a continuous revolt—if you can't get it regulated, please, for your sake, try Pape's Diapepsin. she did not share her father's enthusiasm, and he was too clever to press them to remain. He went with them to their carriage, standing beside it with a grateful smile on his handsome face as he murmured again and again his thanks for their kindness.

"Well, I am agreeably surprised!" exclaimed Lord Hatherley, as they drove off. "From what I know of poor Ralph Percival, I certainly did not expect his son to turn out so good a specimen. A really nice, manly young fellow! And so modest and unassuming! That was a capital speech of his, wasn't it?"

"Very," said Mary, quietly.

"And we must help him, Molly, eh? Really, one can't help sympathizing with him in his novel and rather trying position. To come amongst us, quite a stranger, and with not the best of antecedents—trying, very trying; and I think he plays his part very well; don't you?"

"Yes, indeed," she responded, and truthfully; for she had a vague suspicion that the new earl had indeed been "playing a part."

Lord Hatherley looked at her with a kind of perplexity and doubt.

"I've got an idea that you don't—well, quite like the young man," he said.

She was silent for a moment, then she said:

"I neither like nor dislike Lord Ratton, father. You forget that I've seen so very little of him."

"You have seen as much of him as I have, dear," he said. "But there! I think I understand how it is. You see, I expected to find him so very different that I am agreeably surprised."

"And swing to the other extreme," she said, with the swift, sweet smile which was reserved for him alone.

"Dear, you must not expect me to feel as you feel towards him. I neither expected nor feared, and I must decline to fall down and worship the new Earl of Ratton."

Her father laughed. "I can't imagine you falling down and worshipping anyone, Molly mine," he said.

At yesterday afternoon's meeting of the Importers' Association, it was decided that the stores will not open after 6 p.m. during the Spring and Summer holidays, and the day for the whole holidays was fixed for Wednesday instead of Monday. In connection with the Spring closing, it is understood that some of the employees may be called upon in turn to assist in the work of the wholesale trade after the usual closing time, but the work will be so arranged that the same employees will not be working on successive nights. The election of officers for the current year resulted in the return of the same board as last year, viz.:

R. A. TEMPLETON,
Hon. Secretary.
April 29th, 1915.

At the House.

THURSDAY, April 29, 1915.

Mr. Kent again asked the Department of Public Works and Marine and Fisheries if answers were yet ready to questions asked by him some time ago. He got the usual reply that they were being prepared.

Mr. Morine presented a petition from Alexander Bay asking that a Board be established there.

The House then resolved itself into Committee of the Whole on Supply.

The Opposition offered some strong criticisms on some salaries to be voted.

Mr. Lloyd asked a few questions regarding the Agriculture and Mines Department.

In discussing the Estimates in connection with the Marine and Fisheries Department Mr. Kent referred to the sunken steamers Stella Maris and Desola, which, he pointed out, were an obstruction. He hoped that the Government through the Marine and Fisheries Department would have the harbour of St. John's regulated by a Statutory Board, the same as in every other port in the world. He asked that powers be given the Harbour Master to remove the shipping menaces to trade.

The Premier said a proper Harbour Board might be instituted and the matter will be taken up for consideration after the present session closes.

Mr. Lloyd George and Lord Rothschild

ADVICE ON NEW WAR TAXES.

Reynold's Newspaper recently published the following tribute from the Chancellor of the Exchequer to the memory of the late Lord Rothschild:—

"Lord Rothschild had a high sense of duty to the State, and although his interpretation of what was best for his country did not always coincide with mine, when the war fell upon us he readily and cheerfully forgot all past differences and encounters, and gave me the benefit of his wide experience and knowledge of finance; but he never confined help merely to good advice. He was prepared to make sacrifices for what he genuinely believed in. It will therefore surprise no one who knew him to learn that he was one of those who recommended the double income-tax, with a heavier surtax, for the war expenditure. He was essentially public-spirited. We need such men in this crisis, especially when they are men who have won dominating influence. His death before our troubles are over is a sad loss to the nation."

CIVIC COMMISSION.—The regular weekly meeting of the Civic Commission takes place at 8 o'clock this evening.

ment came in something would be done in that direction.

Mr. Lloyd then spoke congratulating Minister Piccott on his vigorous speech and particularly on the determined and manly stand he took in defense of the officials of his department. It manifested an esprit de corps which was a good example to other departments and institutions. But while fostering esprit de corps in his department, the Minister's strong feelings had vented indignation at the inactivity of the Government in the matter of fishery reform and he had made it clear that he had given up all hope of improvement in the Executive Government and was turning an eye to the Opposition side of the House as a means of obtaining fishery reforms he so ardently desired. He had noted that Mr. Piccott said he used some $200 of vote of $400 for Secretary to the Department was needed, the other $200 was not used and fell into a drop balance. The Minister had said he was willing to save when he could. Was the Minister willing to economize to that extent? On the Minister expressing assent, Mr. Lloyd said he would test him and moved that the vote be reduced by $200. The Chairman then directed those for the amendment to say "Aye"; and those against it to say "Nay." Opposition members called out aye and so did Mr. Piccott. Only a few Government members said Nay. But the Chairman declared the amendment lost and on Mr. Lloyd asking for a division, Mr. Piccott voted against the amendment he had previously voted for and the Government escaped defeat by one vote.

Mr. Coaker inferred from the speech of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries that there was something in his mind of cutting clear of the men he is associated with. The Logging Bill went through Committee with amendment. The Seal Fishery Bill and Stamp Duties Resolutions were deferred. The Bill respecting the Administration of Local Affairs was partly read. The Committee then rose and after notices of some questions the House adjourned until this afternoon.

FRIDAY, April 30th, 1915.

What is Now Admitted.

If there was any doubt in the minds of anyone as to the meaning of what it is intended to give the Newfoundland Products Company in the great area on the East Coast and centre of the Island, it was removed by the views of the Government, published in the Evening Herald last night.

The article has the sub-head "For the Contract," and is headed "The Government Views," and is introduced by the statement:—

"We have obtained from Government sources the following comments on the criticism offered by the Opposition speakers in the Assembly yesterday afternoon on the 'new Contract.'"

The point to which we direct attention is contained in the paragraph which follows:—

"With regard to the East Coast areas, the Company gets no rights whatever. All the contract undertakes is that, if, within twenty-one years the Company acquires, that is, purchases or leases, or otherwise obtains any water powers in that area, the rights which the Company 'enjoyed on the West Coast as to 'damming and developing such water powers with a view to the creation of a second industry of this kind, 'apply.'"

Now, what are the rights given on the West Coast? They are stated as follows:—

"And for the purpose of its works and operations to divert, stop or dam up any stream, lake or water course within the drainage area of the Humber River, and to make, construct or maintain any dam, water-course, culverts and reservoir on said area."

"These rights applied to water powers on the South of the East Coast area would give the Company a means of controlling not only water powers so obtained within an area of 4,000 square miles on the East Coast but an area of greater mileage to the south of it. In other words the Company obtain a means of controlling the water-power of almost the whole country, except such water as may flow into Bonavista Bay, Trinity Bay, Conception Bay and the Southern Bays, which are comparatively small as compared with the far greater water powers they may thus control. Moreover these water powers control the most important mineralogical belt in the island.

A WAR BUDGET.

LONDON, To-day.
With the battle of Flanders seemingly at an end except for the attack which the Allies are making to recover the rest of the ground which they lost last week, the interest of the public has turned to the Dardanelles where French and British forces have been landed and with the co-operation of the fleet are making attempts to force the Straits and open the way to Constantinople. How far these operations have progressed, only those on the spot and the highest authorities at home know. The British have landed at three points on the Gallipoli Peninsula and have thrown a line across the outer point of the Peninsula. Other British troops are threatening the Bulair line of forts and the French are looking after the Turks on the Asiatic side of the Straits. The Turks report that all landing parties have been repulsed, but the British reports, which are very brief, content themselves with the statement that progress is being made and ignore entirely the Turkish claims of victories. Along the Western front of France there is much activity, but no big battle is in progress, although there are reports that the British have begun an offensive in the neighborhood of Arras. The Germans apparently do not contemplate a movement in force on the Western end of the line, as they re-opened to-day the Belgian-Dutch frontier which is always closed when the Germans are on the move. Heavy fighting continues in the Carpathians for Uszok Pass and in the direction of Stry where the Austrians are threatening the Russian communications. The report comes from Berlin that the Austrians have again invaded Bessarabia, but there is no confirmation of this from Austrian official news received to-night. The Russians on their part have again taken the offensive against the Turks in Persia and have driven them from the border town of Kotur. The despatches from neutral countries report that a great concentration of Austrian troops is taking place on the Italian frontier as a measure against the possibility of Italy joining the Allies and that troops are being conveyed by sea to every coast town of Dalmatia and Italia.

LLOYD GEORGE'S RESOLUTIONS ABOUT ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES.

LONDON, To-day.
The proposals introduced in the Commons this afternoon by David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, double the duty on spirits and quadruple the duties on wines and institute an increase by a graduated tax on beer to encourage the use of lighter beers. They were strongly opposed and it is generally believed that the new taxes will have to be moderated before Parliament will accept them. O'Brienites as protest against an additional tax on Irish whiskies and beers brought about the first division of the House since the outbreak of war by taking the unusual course of voting against the provisional resolutions bringing the taxes into force at once, to prevent withdrawals from bond while Parliament is dealing with the matter. The resolution relating to spirits was passed by a vote of 89 to 5, the minority being composed of O'Brienites. The Nationalists also protested against the measure but did not vote. The Unionists, who withheld criticism until all the facts could be placed before them, also abstained from voting. Usually these provisional resolutions are carried without division, for should Parliament refuse to sanction the taxes they are refunded to those who may have paid. The Laborites promised to reply to the Chancellor's charge that a minority of workmen was lured away by drink and were not putting their best efforts into the work of producing the materials which is so badly needed by soldiers at the front. The extra charges will be included in a Budget which Chancellor Lloyd George will introduce into the Commons on Tuesday next. A Bill which is an amendment of the Defense of the Realm Act will be proposed for second reading at a later date, when the debate on it will take place. Before that time the Chancellor has promised to place in the hands of members a series of reports of independent investigators on whose findings the Government has decided to take action. Besides the Irish opposition to the Spirit Bill, many members opposed the new wine taxes on the ground that they strike at France, Australia and South Africa. The proposed appointment of a Board of Control to take over for canteen purposes the saloons in the munitions of war areas and compensate all interests are generally approved by members. Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, reserved until later his criticism of Lloyd George's plan. John Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, and Wm. O'Brien, leader of the Independent Nationalists, condemned the Chancellor's proposals as prejudicial to the trade of Ireland. O'Brien declared the Chancellor was killing the trade of Ireland by inches. If he succeeded in his new taxes the result would be as horrible for Cork as if that city was bombarded and

A large draft of reinforcements for Canadians which embarked at Folkestone last evening, has been safely landed in France.

RUSSIAN SUCCESS.

PETROGRAD, To-day.
The Russian occupation of Loutani, a small village to the northwest of Uszok Pass, was a decided achievement in the Carpathian campaign for the reason that it seriously endangered an important railroad line between the town of Uszok and Berezna line which made possible an extended Austrian operation in this region.

A despatch to Lloyds from Stornaway, Scotland, says it is reported there that a British steamer has been sunk by a submarine off the Isle of Lewis. The crew landed at Carloway in small boats.

GERMANS ISSUE MISLEADING STATEMENTS.

PARIS, To-day.
An official note issued by the War Office gives details designed to show that the Germans continually are giving out misleading facts in their communications regarding recent battles. Assertions in regard to occupied territory made in French official reports are said to have been absolutely exact. In several places, notably between Henamont and Ancerville the advance of approximately three or four kilometers is reported. It is contended in the note that the French are making continual progress in this region even now and are not far distant from the Lorraine boundary.

SERIOUS RIOTING AT TRIESTE.

LONDON, To-day.
Serious rioting has occurred during the past few days at Trieste, and Austrian seacoast towns, according to Mail advices from Budapest. Disturbances have been largely due to a further increase in the food prices.

GERMAN ATTACK HAS CEASED.

LONDON, To-day.
The German attack on the Yser has ceased, says the Times correspondent in Northern France, writing under date of Thursday. The enemy has fallen back on the defensive, says the correspondent, and is struggling to defend the small territory gained.

Poiled in an attempt to cross the Canal, the enemy made an equally vain attempt to force the passage of the Yser at Dixmude. Belgian shells and bombs destroyed pontoon bridges as soon as they were in position, and the gallant Belgian army still holds its lines intact.

FRENCH SUCCESS IN DARDANELLES.

LONDON, To-day.
It is reported from Mytilene, says the Exchange Telegraphs Athens correspondent under date of Thursday, that the French on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles, where there has been sanguinary battles at various points, have captured 5,000 Turks and continue their advance successfully.

OFFICERS KILLED AT THE FRONT.

LONDON, To-day.
Included in the latest list of officers killed at the front are the names of Brigadier General Riddell, Commander of the Northumberland Fusiliers Brigade; Second Lieutenant Darwin, grandson of Charles R. Darwin, the famous Naturalist, and Second Lieut. Rhodes Moorehouse died of wounds received while dropping bombs on Courtrai the previous day.

TAXATION OF WAR PROFITS.

LONDON, To-day.
The central feature of the Budget, the Chronicle's Parliamentary correspondent believes, will be a scheme for taxation on war profits. He is of opinion that the Government intends to appropriate two-thirds of the surplus profits made by all firms engaged directly or indirectly in the production of goods used in war operations.

GALLIPOLI OCCUPIED BY ALLIES.

LONDON, To-day.
The following despatch was received by the Express from its Athens correspondent: "I learn from Tenedos, that the Allies occupied the town of Gallipoli after heavy fighting. The Allied forces disembarked at Enos and advanced nearly twenty miles and occupied several villages. Three British warships bombarded the Turkish position in the Gulf of Smyrna, and it is stated that allied troops also landed in the neighborhood of Smyrna. Five points on the line between Enos and Saros were selected by the Allies for disembarkation of troops. Another force was landed on the Bulair line. A demonstration by a landing party on the Plains of Troy, which led to the capture of 8,000 prisoners of Turkish troops still continues.

MACEDONIA RECAPTURED.

PARIS, To-day.
A despatch from Algiers says that the Hamburg American line steamer Macedonia, which escaped from Las Palmas, where she was interned since November 13th, has been recaptured and is being taken to Gibraltar with another captured German steamer.

AN APPEAL TO POPE BENEDICT.

ROME, To-day.
The Belgian and French Cardinals, Archbishops and Bishops have united in an appeal to Pope Benedict for the Vatican to abandon the attitude of neutrality it has maintained since the beginning of the war. They say they cannot understand how the Head of the Church, which is founded on principles of right and justice, can remain neutral without protesting at the same time against those who violate the written or unwritten law. The Pontiff is urged to assume an attitude which would be epoch-making in the history of Papacy.

THE GERMAN THREAT.

Berlin, March 17.

According to notices appearing in the British Press the British Admiralty is said to have made known its intention not to accord to officers and crews of German submarines who have become prisoners the treatment due to them as prisoners of war, especially not to concede to the officers the advantage of their rank.

The German Government is of the opinion that these reports are not correct, as the crews of the submarines acted in the execution of orders given to them, and in doing this have solely fulfilled their military duties. At any rate, the reports in question have become so numerous in the neutral Press that an immediate explanation of the true facts appears to be of most urgent importance, if for no other reasons than consideration of public opinion in Germany.

The Imperial Foreign Office, therefore, requests the American Embassy to have inquiry of the British Government made by telegraph through the medium of the American Embassy at London, as to whether and in what way they intend to treat officers and crews of German submarine boats who have been made prisoners in any respect worse than other prisoners of war. Should this prove to be the case, the request is added that, in the name of the German Government, sharpest protest be lodged with the British Government against such proceedings, and that no doubt be left that for each member of the crew of a submarine made prisoner a British Army officer is held prisoner in Germany will receive corresponding harsher treatment. The Imperial Foreign Office would be grateful for information at the earliest convenience regarding the result of the steps taken.

BRITISH REPLY.

Foreign Office, April 1.

The Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs presents his compliments to the United States Ambassador, and with reference to his Excellency's Note of the 29th ultimo respecting reports in the Press upon the treatment of prisoners from German submarines, has the honour to state that he learns from the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty that the officers and men who were rescued from the German submarines U-8 and U-12 have been placed in the Naval Detention Barracks in view of the necessity of their segregation from other prisoners of war. In these quarters they are treated with humanity, given opportunities for exercise, and are forced labour, and are better fed and clothed than British prisoners of equal rank now in Germany.

As, however, the crews of the two German submarines in question, before being rescued from the sea, were engaged in sinking innocent British and neutral merchant ships and wantonly killing non-combatants, they cannot be regarded as honourable opponents, but rather as persons who at the orders of their Government have committed acts which are offences against the law of nations and contrary to common humanity.

His Majesty's Government would also bring to the notice of the United States Government that during the present war more than 1,000 officers and men of the German Navy have been rescued from the sea, sometimes in spite of danger to the rescuers and sometimes to the prejudice of British naval operations. No case has, however, occurred of any officer or man of the Royal Navy being rescued by the Germans.

ADMIRALTY STATEMENT.

The Board of Admiralty in a statement dated 8th stated that it did not feel justified in extending honourable treatment to the twenty-nine officers and men rescued from submarine U-8 who were probably guilty of sinking unarmed merchantmen. This, however, did not mean that the men would be starved or kept under inhuman conditions, but that they would be "subject to special restrictions" and cannot be accorded the distinctions of their rank or be allowed to mingle with other prisoners of war.

Ian Hamilton, The Seasoned LEADS AT DARDANELLES.

London, April 22.—A Cairo letter to the Times, describing the big camp of the Allies' expeditionary force for the Dardanelles, now at Alexandria, reveals incidentally the fact that General Sir Ian Hamilton is the commander-in-chief of that expedition. During a review of the forces, the letter says, General D'Amade, commander of the French section, referred to General Hamilton as "my chief."

General Sir Ian Hamilton, G.C.B., D.S.O., has long been regarded as one of the most efficient officers in the British Army. His full name is Ian Standish Monteith Hamilton, and he is a Scot, though born at Corfu sixty-two years ago. He entered the army in 1873, and before this war was commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean and inspector-general of the overseas forces, a billet that carried him into many out-of-the-way corners of the Empire. It was in this capacity that he passed through New York in 1911 after visiting Barbados, Trinidad, Jamaica and Bermuda. At that time he made a special trip to the Panama Canal, which he called "one of the great feats of the century."

General Hamilton has spent practically all his life in the field. He first saw service in the Afghan War of 1878-80. He was with the expedition which, after the assassination in Kabul of the British agent, Lieutenant Colonel Cavagnari, and his companions, invaded Afghanistan, through the Khyber and Shatardagan passes successfully, assaulted heights that the Afghans deemed to be impregnable, and finally captured Kabul, with the result that the ruling emir abdicated and fled, and Abdur Rahman, for many years thereafter chief ruler of the "Buffer State," was installed.

An Enthusiast in Rifle Shooting. Lord Roberts gives an interesting glimpse of Hamilton in his "Forty-one Years in India." As he was about to return to England, he felt that the system of musketry training in India might be improved, and put the work in charge of "an enthusiast in the matter of rifle shooting, an officer of exceptional energy and intelligence, Lieutenant Colonel Ian Hamilton," and directed him, as assistant adjutant general of musketry, to arrange a course of instruction. Lord Roberts adds: "He was most successful in carrying out my wishes, and the results from the first year's trial of the new system were infinitely better than even I had anticipated."

Hamilton served in the Boer War of 1881 and in the Nile expedition of 1884-85, being breveted major, and receiving a medal with two clasps and the Khedive's star. In the Burmese expedition of 1886-87, another brevet, that of lieutenant colonel, and another medal with a clasp were added to his list of honors. He became colonel in 1891, and then, in the Chitral expedition of 1895, won a medal and clasp and the coveted C. B. Still another medal and clasp were added when he commanded the Third Brigade in the Tirah campaign, 1897-98. From 1899 to 1901 he served in South Africa. He was in action at Elandslaagte, and in the defence of Ladysmith, including Wagon Hill and Diamond Hill, and was promoted to the rank of major-general. He was chief of staff to Lord Kitchener from 1901-02, and from that time to the end of the war was in command of the mobile columns in western Transvaal. He was severely wounded at Majuba Hill and here had his desire to have the army shot better intensified. As usual, he was mentioned in despatches, and this time was promoted to lieutenant general.

In 1898 he was appointed commander of the School of Musketry at Hyth. He introduced many valuable improvements into the drill and methods of instruction work in India and England.

With Kuroki in Manchuria. In 1904-5 he served as military representative of India with the Japanese army, under Kuroki, in Manchuria, and his observations were recorded in a "Staff Officer's Scrap-Book," two big volumes, adorned with many illustrations, maps, sketches and battle plans, by which the reader can trace the progress of the Japanese from the crossing of the Yalu until they faced the Russians just before the final battle of Mukden. In Manchuria General Hamilton was at the head of a corps of observation, his subordinates being highly trained British officers. In this Manchurian campaign General Hamilton saw Russians only as prisoners. His opinion of the rank and file was high.

Everyday Etiquette.
"I expect to give a birthday party. If I receive the gifts before the day of the party, should I wait until the guests arrive before I thank the givers?" inquired Gladys.
"You should send a note of thanks to the donors as soon as you receive the gifts," was her mother's advice.

 LONDON, April 29.
 The Governor, Newfoundland:
 Our troops, despite continual opposition, are now established across the end of the Gallipoli Peninsula, from southeast of Aski Hisarlik to the mouth of the stream on the opposite side. They have also beaten off all attacks at Sari Bair, and are advancing steadily. Turkish preparations to hamper landings, including wire entanglements under the sea and on land, and there were also deep pits with spikes at the bottom. General French reports fighting northeast of Ypres continued through out Tuesday, and the German attack definitely stopped. There are no Germans west of the Canal except at a small bridge at the head of Steenstraat. In resisting counter-attacks the Germans again used asphyxiating gases and shells contravening the Hague Convention.
 The French Government reports the armoured cruiser Leon Gambetta torpedoed at the entrance of Otranto Straits (mouth of the Adriatic Sea); all officers perished at their posts. Four enemy aeroplanes have been captured or destroyed. The dirigible shed at Friedrichshafen has been bombed by French airmen.
 The Russian Government report increased activity on the Niemen front (East Prussia); enemy attacks in the Uszok Pass have been repelled with heavy losses. Desperate engagements are in progress near Strij.

Five German Airships Destroyed.
 Twice attacked within thirty-six hours by French aerial squadrons, the Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen were badly damaged. Two of the main buildings are in flames. A despatch from Bregenz said that the damage, amounting to fully a million dollars, has been suffered by the plant which has been working night and day, to turn out airships for a grand attack upon England. Five airships are said to be destroyed or set on fire by bombs thrown by the French aviators, who made their first attack on Tuesday and their second on Wednesday. They succeeded in flying directly over the plant, though under heavy fire from anti-air craft guns, mounted at several places in Friedrichshafen.

TURKISH BATTALION REPORTED CAPTURED.
 LONDON, April 29.
 The capture of an entire battalion of Turkish troops on the Peninsula of Gallipoli, after a violent battle, is reported in despatches received here to-day from Athens. Both British and French troops participated in the engagement, which took place on Wednesday. All despatches indicate that the second great attempt to force the Dardanelles is now in full swing, with Anglo-French forces attacking extensive operations are reported from the coast of Asia Minor, where three warships have penetrated the Gulf of Smyrna, and on Tuesday bombarded the Turkish forts defending the city. Official advice to the Admiralty from Vice-Admiral Rookebeck show that the Allies have at last gained solid foothold upon the Peninsula of Gallipoli.

 LERWICK, Scotland, April 29.
 Finding to-day near the south end of this island a life buoy marked "Kolberg," is believed here to confirm the report made at the time that the German cruiser Kolberg was sunk in the battle in the North Sea on Jan. 24th. In his report of the battle in the North Sea, last January, Admiral Beatty after mentioning the destruction of the armoured cruiser Blucher, said the German light cruiser Kiltberg, also was sunk. The German Government later declared Beatty's report concerning the Kolberg, to be false.

Ten British officers, prisoners of the Germans, have been taken from the Halle-on-the-Salle camp of prisoners of war and placed in solitary confinement in Magdeburg. This is a measure of reprisal for the treatment by Great Britain of the crews of German submarines held prisoners in England. The ten officers include the son of a former British Ambassador in Berlin.

Baron Herbert De Reuter, aged 63 years, managing director of the Reuter Telegram Company, took his life by shooting at his home near Reigate, Surrey, on April 18th, grief over the death of his wife a few days previously having prostrated him.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS
 Somewhere in a convenient corner of the sewing-room table or other stated place should be kept a small notebook, with a page devoted to each of the various members of the family. Such a list is invaluable to any mother of a numerous family. A glance at the little book shows that Bobby's last shoes were No. 3, width E, and it needs only a telephone or a note to the shoe shop to order and dispense with the necessity for dragging Bobby to town.
 Maria wears a No. 5 nightgown and father wears a 16 collar—all discovered by a glance at the useful little volume without a vain hunt over garments and a tiresome juggling of the memory, followed, nine times out of ten, by a long wait at the exchange desk next day.
 The general measurements needed are for underwear, length of skirts, sizes of gloves, stockings, shoes, dress measurements, and, in the case of the boys, size of hat band and length of coat and trousers.

Francis X. Bushman
 Big Number at Rossley's.
 If you want the treat of your lives see the contest to-night. There are lots of names and there will be lots of fun. Last Friday night the competition was very fine but there will be several novelty acts this time, and a big night's fun is assured. See Ballard Brown and Miss Madge Locke in all their various turns. Miss Locke, as Juliet, last night, brought her fresh laurels, her military number was another delightful treat. Miss Locke can make up a song as she goes along, and last night gave several verses that pulled the house down. Her Scotch dance, her soldier dance and the Russian dance delighted all, while both have glorious voices and were encored again and again. Don't miss the contest. By the s.e. Durango, Mr. Rossley got a great shipment of films, and the Keystone comedy shown last night had the house in roars. The best in town.

Vigorol
 If you want to feel well, bright and cheery, full of ambition; be able to move about quick and smartly—VIGOROL, the Great French Tonic, will brace you up—it cleanses the whole system. If the manufacturers could only impress this upon every one who does not feel as they ought to, the world would owe them a great gratitude; but all we can do is to ask you to try one bottle and see for yourself. The change will be wonderful. You need a spring medicine—then take VIGOROL. Sold at all drug stores.

"The Third Degree"
 Was the leading one of the two great pictures shown at the "Casino" last night to packed houses. The audiences were held spell-bound as the plot was being worked out. It fully justifies everything good which has been said regarding it. The other photo-play "The Lily of the Valley" was also greatly appreciated, consisting of three reels intensely interesting. The public are advised to be on time as the performances commence promptly.

The Wage Question.
 In view of the adoption of the new scale of wages by the Longshoremen's Union and approval by the mercantile firms, some time ago, the laborers of the Municipal Council are asking that their wages be increased from $1.40 to $1.60 a day. The matter has already been placed before the Civic Commission, who upon deliberation have decided if the increase be granted the work undertaken must necessarily be curtailed, as the increase would involve some $10,000 for which no provision has been made. We understand that before any final decision is reached, the case of the city will be laid before the laborers.

Salvia Hair Tonic Makes The Hair Beautiful.

 SALVIA will kill the dandruff germs and remove dandruff in ten days, or money back.
 It will stop itching scalp, falling hair, and make the hair thick and abundant. It prevents hair from turning gray; adds life and lustre.
 SALVIA is a hair dressing that has become the favorite with women of taste and culture, who know the social value of beautiful hair. Only 50c. at leading druggists.

"OURS" IN THE WEST END.
 Crowded to the doors was the ever popular little theatre last night, and all were charmed with the fine pictures and the dainty little singers who sang a charming new song in quaint Japanese costume. Mr. Rossley has just received the largest consignment of films direct from the Old Country ever received here, the pick of the market; nothing like these pictures have ever been seen here and patrons of both East and West End Theatres have a rare treat in store. Don't forget the big contest to-night at Rossley's East End Theatre. A large number of names have been given in and a fine night's entertainment is assured.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS
 Somewhere in a convenient corner of the sewing-room table or other stated place should be kept a small notebook, with a page devoted to each of the various members of the family. Such a list is invaluable to any mother of a numerous family. A glance at the little book shows that Bobby's last shoes were No. 3, width E, and it needs only a telephone or a note to the shoe shop to order and dispense with the necessity for dragging Bobby to town.
 Maria wears a No. 5 nightgown and father wears a 16 collar—all discovered by a glance at the useful little volume without a vain hunt over garments and a tiresome juggling of the memory, followed, nine times out of ten, by a long wait at the exchange desk next day.
 The general measurements needed are for underwear, length of skirts, sizes of gloves, stockings, shoes, dress measurements, and, in the case of the boys, size of hat band and length of coat and trousers.
