Happiness Secured AT A Heavy Cost!

CHAPTER V. A MAN WITH A HISTORY.

"No," she replied, smiling at me with those clear gray eyes. "I don't think there is much danger of any such calamity as that, Lesley. As a physician, I like and trust him; as a...

"Lover or husband, you would prefer a man of whom you stood a trifle less in awe, I should think," I rejoined, with a laugh.

But for many days after this, during which poor Len's life seemed literally to hang in the balance, we had so many cares and troubles of our own that I quite forgot my shyness of the 'pinkie' as I still called him in the privacy of my own mind, and learned to wait as anxiously for his coming as my sister; and, oh! the comfort of that slow, firm tread on the stairs—that strong, grave face in the room—though never once, either to Addie or myself, did the sternness of his manner relax.

At last came a change for the better, followed by a peaceful slumber, a tranquil waking to rationality; and the doctor smiled for the first time as he came in one morning and told us that the dear life over which we had watched so long and so anxiously was out of danger.

From that hour my brother's recovery, though slow, was steady; but Doctor Fuller, who, to Len's satisfaction, had got into the habit of dropping into his study occasionally, where the two—shut up in a thick haze of tobacco smoke—indulged in long gossips on art, politics, and science, began to talk about the necessity for that change of air that first gave rise to the Deepdene project.

"And of all the advantages to be derived from a sojourn at the family estate, we have omitted to mention the chief," I remarked one day, as we were busy preparing for our departure into Devonshire. "If we leave London I shall get away from Doctor Fuller's terrible black eyes; and what I've suffered, wondering what that man must have thought of me, would fill a second book of martyrs. Did Addie ever tell you, Len, how he came in that night you were so ill and overheard me describing him?" I asked, taking a precarious seat on a rickety little chair, which instantly proceeded to indulge in one of its ugly old tricks of folding up suddenly and landing me in the most unexpected manner on the floor.

"She did; but what of that?" he asked, as I picked myself up from the floor of the studio with a bruise on my elbow for which the very liberal amount of dust contracted by my dress seemed hardly to compensate. "Hope you haven't been laying the flattering unction to your soul that a man like Fuller cares in the least what an imminent child like you may think of him!" was Len's very brotherly response. "Don't suppose," he heard anything about it; and if he did, he'd doubtless set you down for a brainless little simpleton, and think no more about you!"

"Oh, well," I replied, failing to find as much consolation in the assurance as Len seemed to expect; "he's used to simpletons, or if he isn't he ought to be! I'm sorry if I hurt his feelings. Ill-favored people are so sensitive, they say."

"Do you suppose everyone sees with your eyes, Lesley?" Addie inquired, a shade impatiently. "Some people might consider Doctor Fuller quite an attractive man. His wife does, I suppose, or she would hardly have married him!"

"His wife?" repeated Len, in a tone of amazement. "Upon my word, girls, it strikes me that you are making a slight mistake. Our friend the doctor isn't married! Doesn't care for women—I believe he never did! Shows his sense; and looks upon the fairer half of creation as a mistake, except as a mere anatomical study, perhaps."

"You don't say so!" I laughed. "Why, I quite thought he was an appropriate blessing. Oh, come, Addie, there's a chance for you after all, it seems! You like remarkable people, you know you do! and, goodness knows, the doctor is remarkable enough to suit the most exacting taste in that way! Upon second thoughts, I'm not certain I shouldn't like him a little bit myself, if only he wouldn't put on that 'quarter-deck' court-martial style of manner whenever he finds himself in my distinguished presence."

"Come now, girls, none of that, if you please," said Len, with a majestic air. "None of your tricks with the doctor. He's too good and genuine a fellow to be criticised at a woman's whim, and I give you fair warning that I won't have it!" he added, with as much gravity as if Addie and I were a couple of the most arrant coquettes, and Doctor Fuller the most susceptible of mortals.

"He is a man with a history," Addie replied, evidently considering the possibility of working him up as a highly effective character in some present or future story. "There's a romance of some kind, and not a happy one, I'm afraid, in the doctor's past!"

"Very likely," Len agreed. "He certainly does strike me as a man who has somehow contrived to miss his aim in life. He has no business, a man of his talents, to be plodding away as a poor doctor in an obscure part of London at his time of life. Been knocking about in the world a good bit, I fancy. Served as army surgeon in India. But if there's any 'romance,' as you call it, in Fuller's life, your curiosity on the subject is not likely to be gratified. He's not the man to let the world into the secret of his private heartaches. Whatever his hurts, he'll take them in silence, asking pity and sympathy of no man living, 'nor woman, either,' as my lord Hamlet hath it. Especially, the women."

"But for all that I've a presentiment that I shall some day know the story of Doctor Fuller's past, and it is somehow destined to affect my future," Adelaide returned.

"Poor little Addie! how little we thought, Len and I, as we laughed at the quiet air of conviction with which she said it, how sadly her prophecy was to be verified in the sorrowful days to come!"

On the morning of our departure from London, Len, looking like a haggard ghost of his former good-looking self, was preparing to accompany us to the station, when the doctor, dropping in unexpectedly, vetoed the plan on the score of the weather.

"Stay where you are, Kendrick," he said, in his quiet, authoritative way. "I'll see you sisters off for you with pleasure; this piercing northeaster is hardly the thing for you to be out in."

"But my dear doctor, I can't go on being treated as an invalid forever," Len began; but in spite of his remonstrances it was the doctor who took our tickets, settled us in our cars with a liberal supply of grave and comic literature, and then held out his hand to say good-by.

With a gay little smile Adelaide put hers into it; but when my turn came, something in the rugged face, that struck me as it had never struck me before, seemed to tie my tongue and hold me silent; and it certainly was strange how sorry I suddenly felt to part with him.

"Good-by, and a pleasant journey," he said, shaking hands. "Enjoy your country life all you can; but don't quite forget old friends," he added, a little hesitatingly.

"We shall never forget you at all events, doctor," I replied, betrayed by the unusual softening of his manner into one of my impulsive little outbursts, in which the words seem somehow to slip out before I have time to think. "And, oh! Doctor Fuller," I added, with a rush of miserable guilty tears dimming my sight as I thought of the poor-return I had made him for all his patient kindness, "do forgive me, please! If you only knew how bitterly I have regretted those foolish remarks you overheard me making about you that night, I really think you would! Indeed I am sorry! sorry from the very bottom of my heart."

"You need not be, indeed!" he returned, in a tone of surprise, as, taking my hand in a warm, close clasp, he smiled good-humoredly down into my pleading eyes, evidently astonished for once, quite out of his usual stolid sternness by my unexpected little outburst. "Believe me, Miss Kendrick, my want of loveliness was a tolerably well-established fact in my mind long before I ever saw you," he added, with an amused little smile that softened the stern, dark face into something that was better than beauty.

"Ah! but I don't think so now—that is, it was just a foolish first impression. People look so different when you get to 'know them better.' I stammered, by no means clear in my own mind what I wished to say; "and if I only thought you would forgive me, I should be quite happy."

"Then be happy; you are quite forgiven, believe me," he returned, in his coldest tones, the gentleness that marked his manner a moment ago disappearing, leaving him colder, stiffer, more frigidly stern than ever, if possible; and the final good-bys were spoken, the train was in motion, and all the bustle and confusion of London Bridge Station, with the doctor standing tall and grave on the platform, were left behind, and we were en route for Devon.

"Well, on the whole I'm rather glad to think that I had it out with him," I remarked, in a tone of pique.

"Had it out with whom, dear?" Addie inquired, with provoking indifference.

"The doctor, of course," I replied impatiently. "It makes me wretched to feel that I have behaved ungratefully to any one; but I don't think he need have gone and stiffened up like that, though, immediately after I had begged his pardon. I believe I might just as well have held my tongue. I suppose he never gave way to a sudden impulse in his life, and thinks me a greater simpleton now than he did before; and I don't care if he does—so there!"

"Which means that you do care very much indeed," Addie replied, with a smile that seemed to rasp on my nerves. "Poor little Fire and Fury! Always in one extreme or another. Oh, well, never mind, Lesley. Why need you care what Doctor Fuller thinks of you?"

"Why, indeed? That is the very question that puzzles me, though I am vaguely, miserably conscious that for some mysterious reason I do care. Not in consequence of any particular liking that I entertain for him, certainly, but rather in spite of it, as it seems to me; and perhaps a little because of a natural propensity in the human heart to covet, the unattainable; and Doctor Fuller's approbation is a very unattainable prize, so far as I am concerned, I believe."

The Back Aches

Possibly you do not realize that this indicates derangement of the kidneys. Neglect usually means the development of Bright's disease. You know how dreadfully painful and fatal that is.

There is quick relief for the kidneys in the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This medicine is known in the great majority of homes as the greatest of regulators.

Unique Service.

Representatives of allied nations attended the solemn celebration of the Serbian national day in London, Eng., on June 28th. For the first time in history, priests of the Eastern Orthodox, the Greek Church, officiated at a service in an English Episcopal Church. The service was held in the Church of St. Maryle-Bow, Chispe-side, one of the most ancient shrines of the Church of England. Three Serbian priests of the Greek Church, in full robes, wearing mitres and accompanied by incense bearers, officiated with the assistance of a Bishop of the Church of England. The Eastern Orthodox Liturgy of St. Chrysostom was celebrated, for the repose of the souls of the warriors who fell for the cause of freedom on the field of Kolovo, and for all the Slav and allied soldiers in this war who have together laid down their lives for liberty and mankind.

The Lord Mayor and sheriffs of London attended the service. Canadian Churchman.

General Swift Predicts Knockout Blow by U.S.

Headquarters of the Italian Army, July 29. (Associated Press.)—"Victory of the Allies is a certainty, in my opinion, and I am sure the American Army will be the one to deal the knockout blow," said Major General Eben Swift to the correspondent of the Associated Press, last year's charge of Camp Gordon, Ga., and now commanding the American military mission to Italy. "I tell you we will win so soon as we get enough men over here and these men get hold of the fighting ideas peculiar to this war as they are rapidly doing now through association with the French, English and Italian troops."

I do not believe in bragging, prefer to admit all the claims the enemy makes for himself. But giving a credit due the Germans for the gains, I maintain we are going to smash them. I know the American man, what kind of a soldier he makes, and I insist that he is going to turn out a most formidable fighter, standing comparison with any soldier in Europe. I have visited the armies of the Allies and have seen the kind of men they have, and I am sure we are going to be proud of our soldiers when they have had the advantage of learning from our Allies and at the same time doing some fighting with the enemy himself. The Germans are no fools and I believe they already fear us."

"One of the big factors in making our army great is that of discipline. This men commanding our army are said to be merciless in matters affecting discipline, in questions of putting the right officer in the right place, of eliminating favoritism and unfit men, and this is as it should be. By merciless discipline, however, I do not mean ill-treatment of soldiers or anybody. This army of ours that we are building up will lead to the final defeat of the Germans for somewhat the same reason, perhaps, that Napoleon was defeated in Europe after fifteen years of victory, or that the Confederate Army was defeated in our civil war. Time is working in favor of the Allies. The Germans have not succeeded in obtaining any overwhelming decision in this war, and the day will come when the Allies, backed up by the great American manpower, will themselves demand and obtain the decision that we call victory. I do not believe in paying compliments to ourselves or our Allies unless deserved, but this is a situation as I see it in its purely military aspect."

Rumor Mongering.

(From the New York Herald.)

The U-boat sneaking under the sea that she may destroy helpless women and children is not an implement of war but of cowardly assassination, and as such is justly abhorred by all decent peoples. There are said to be even a few Germans who are ashamed to take part in the jubulations with which their nation celebrates every wholesale murder of the innocents. In the various clandestine rumors that now and then appear above the current of our national life we have the equivalent of these criminals of the sea, distinguished from the other in that they attack the reputations instead of the lives of the innocent and scuttles fair names instead of ships. Like the U-boats, their favorite victims are women, and, like death, they leave a shining mark. If they have been successful in many of their assaults on Red Cross workers, on the unselfish women who are serving in the canteens and hospitals, and even on Sisters of Charity and soldiers of the Salvation Army, it is due to our credulity and love of evil speaking. Rumor has only to show its sinister periscope above the war-tossed waves of popular discussion to be taken up by a thousand eager tongues and spread broadcast through the land. No need for our country's enemies to aid in this cowardly work. We have a sufficient number of thoughtless and malevolent persons to make effective this cruel and filthy undermining of that which should be held sacred by everyone not a German. Those who have ears to hear cannot avoid catching these foul rumors as they fly, but who can tell whence they come? It is for the Secret service, aided by all good citizens, to locate the rumor base and destroy it.

Fulton Knocked Out.

By Jack Dempsey, the Fight Only Lasting Twenty-Three Seconds.—Big Free-for-all at Columbus Opening To-Morrow.

Newark, July 27.—Jack Dempsey, who claims California as his residential State, won a surprisingly quick victory over Fred Fulton, the Rochester, Minn., heavyweight, in 23 seconds at the Harrison baseball park here this evening. Some of Dempsey's friends who heard him say before he entered the ring, "he would knock out the big Rochester man in short order," thought Dempsey was over-confident, but he made good almost as soon as the two men squared off.

Fulton towered over his opponent when Referee John P. Eckhardt, of Atlantic City, was giving them final instructions. Fulton's face wore a cynical grin, while Dempsey scowled a bit, but looked the more confident of the pair.

The moment the bell called the men from their corners Dempsey rushed at Fulton and took the big fellow by surprise, landing a hard right swing under the heart and poking his left to the stomach. These blows made Fulton wince, and the bigger man was unable to defend himself with Dempsey at such close quarters.

Fulton's long arms swung helplessly over Dempsey's head, but Dempsey sent in two short-arm body blows. Then Jack stepped back about a foot and hooked his left to the Rochester giant's head and swung his right to a point of Fulton's jaw. The big man tottered and fell sideways to the floor, his head resting on his right arm, which pinned down the lower rope of the three which encircled the ring.

There was scarcely a sound from the big crowd of spectators when the referee began counting the seconds over the prostrate man. Fulton tried ineffectually to raise his head and body with his right arm as a lever, but as the count progressed his head fell back again almost over the side of the ring floor. There he lay until Eckhardt tolled the ten seconds, after which Fulton's seconds actually dragged their man to his corner.

Dempsey turned the scales at 188 pounds and Fulton 208. Dempsey is going West next week to resume his trade at shipbuilding, and will not fight in the ring again until the war is ended. Moving pictures of the contest will be presented to the government for the amusement of the United States soldiers and sailors.

A despatch from Lawrence, Kansas, says Willard commented: "I am not surprised at the result. All you have to do is to hit Fulton to have him down. Just as soon as the war is over I am going to 'ake on Dempsey or any other claimant."

Gun Vandalism.

London, July 29. (British Wireless Service).—Evidence accumulated that during their brief stay in the Marne salient the Germans have been again indulging in wholesale acts of vandalism. In a message sent from French Army Headquarters, Reuter's correspondent gives details of their conduct while in possession of Chateau Thierry.

The Germans were in the town for some time, and apparently thought they would remain there indefinitely. When they found they would have to give it up they apparently determined to take the only vengeance in their power. The injuries which have been inflicted on the town are such as could not be the result of shelling, the correspondent points out, as those houses which suffered most were entirely uninjured by shell, shrapnel or bullet.

"These houses," he said, "were magnificently furnished, the walls hung with costly tapestries and admirable pictures. The furniture is of exceptional elegance, and impressive mirrors and charming statuettes were numerous.

"To-day there is nothing that has not been destroyed."

Blind and Futile Fury.

(New York Tribune.)

There was laughter for the gods in the news from the Cape Cod front, surely the immortal joke of the war: Even the brutality, the wanton viciousness of the attack, fade before its absurdity, the ridiculous futility of the thing. The Imperial German Navy engages in a terrific combat with four scows. "We have met the enemy and they are ours—one Lehigh Valley tug, four scows!" It is enough to make a grand admiral tear out his beard.

Terrorization? Ask the automobile loads of Cape Codders who watched the show from the dunes! Ask Jack Ainslie, the eleven-year-old son of Captain Ainslie of the barge Lansford, waving his American flag at the U-boat as the shells went skipping by! Guarantee a few such movie scenes to any beach, and its fortune would be made.

A child with a "mad" on is the nearest thing to this U-boat's tactics; say, a child locked up in a room for punishment who vents his wrath on the only enemy available by upsetting the chairs and pulling the covers off the crib. Sent out to get transports, sent out to get supply ships, this submarine, like its predecessors, failed of its goal and had to vent its wrath on something, anything, that could be shelled by very angry German gunners and, in time, sink.

Hun Humanity.

One characteristic German Army order has fallen into British hands. It reads as follows:

"Henceforth the enemy is not to be allowed to recover the dead and wounded, except behind his own positions, even under the Red Cross flag. If stretcher parties go out a warning shot is to be fired. If no attention is paid to the shot the enemy must be thoroughly engaged at once."

This is to say that stretcher parties under the Red Cross flag are to be shot down. The reason given is that the dead are needed for identification of units. Allowing the Allies to recover their wounded only serves to

With the Rod.

Frank Bagg caught a 3 lb. trout at Hughes Brook a few days ago. A 40 lb. salmon was taken from Highland river recently by John Hall.

Thos. Kennedy, who was in Curling on Monday, reports good trout fishing in the brooks at Penguin Arm.

The Lower Humber is now in good condition for fishing, and some large salmon are said to be in the numerous pools of that famous fishing resort.

The Stewart and McLean party who were to Serpentine River on a two weeks trip secured 15 fish, averaging 8½ lbs. each; the heaviest weighed 18 lbs., and they secured three that weight. Ed. P. Brake, of Humbermouth, was with them as guide.

Four salmon weighing in all 98 pounds were landed at Hard Scrabble, Lower Humber, by G. W. Stewart, of Truro, N.S., on Friday and Saturday of last week. The fish weighed respectively 36, 26, 20, and 14 pounds. Mr. Stewart reports plenty of fish in

The End of the Fourth Year. The fourth year of the great war, now comes to a close, and to-morrow, the 4th anniversary of the British Empire's declaration of hostilities against the Teutonic powers...

Falling any satisfactory solution on the peace terms basis, war preparations on a large scale proceeded apace on the part of the enemy. All his available men were called up and inspired reports were circulated that he had at his command never and more powerful engines of war than had been ever known.

The principal event of the year was America's full participation into the conflict. When we come to think that the United States becoming a belligerent involved the transportation of all her men, their equipment and supplies, overseas, through submarine-infested waters, we must regard the success which has been attained in the carriage of over a million troops acrossing the Atlantic as the great outstanding feature of the war's fourth year.

Russia by this time was completely out of it. On November 8th Alexander Kerensky, the provisional president, was deposed by the Bolsheviks and on the last day of that month, that controlling position announced that Russia had withdrawn from the war, following with a proposal that the Allies join them in negotiating an armistice...

Incorrect Report. In connection with the report of the Police Court proceedings yesterday, in this morning's "News", we might state that it is altogether erroneous. The case was heard before McCarthy, J.P. and not Judge Morris, and further, no mention of the prisoner, Matthew Ryer, writing the Governor, and stating that he would not fight, unless by direct command by the King, was made in the court. Further still, there was no mention of there being any disturbance in Bonaville, or at the parade on Sunday, Capt. "Pat" distinctly stating that there was none, the parade being orderly. The Work of the Community Nurse. The Community Nurse, Miss Rogers, has now been at work in the city for one month. During that period she has paid 387 visits and has had 114 interviews with parents, doctor and nurses. The most interesting of these visits and probably the most productive of results have been paid to the newly arrived babies, of whom there have been over 80. Miss Rogers reports that these babies are with one exception as fine and healthy a lot as can be found anywhere. Every one of them has a right to live, but if the record of mortality of past years is maintained, ten or twelve of them will die within the year. Which of these will die and which will live? Miss Rogers says it depends largely upon the mothers, and appended to this report is a special letter of advice addressed to them. But her advice is our factors, which make the lives of the children precarious matters in which the community nurse is concerned and for which the community nurse is responsible. Miss Rogers has made a house to house visit in a certain central section of the city, taking note of the conditions in which her babies are reared, and she is commended to live. She expresses herself frankly, as appalled at the unsanitary and miserable conditions in which our babies are reared, and she is commended to live. The Work of the Community Nurse.
The Community Nurse, Miss Rogers, has now been at work in the city for one month. During that period she has paid 387 visits and has had 114 interviews with parents, doctors and nurses. The most interesting of these visits and probably the most productive of results have been paid to the newly arrived babies, of whom there have been over 30. Miss Rogers reports that these babies are withdrawn from the mothers and healthy as can be found anywhere. Every one of them had a right to live, but if the record of mortality of past years is maintained, ten or twelve of them will die within the year.
Which of these will die and which will live? Miss Rogers says it depends largely upon the mothers, and appended to this report is a special letter of advice addressed to them.
But there are other factors which have the lives of the children practically in their hands, and it is these which the community nurse is concerned and for which the community is responsible. Miss Rogers has made a house to house visit in a certain central section of the city, taking note of the conditions in which so many of our poorer classes are condemned to live. She expresses herself frankly, as appalled at the insanitary and miserable homes. The lack of water and sewerage connections should alone condemn them as unfit for habitation, but added to this many of them are leaky, dark, crowded, old and decayed. The children have nowhere to play except in the street, and the streets and drains are often filthy, because the people will not use the hoppers which have been provided, but empty their slops into the street. Miss Rogers has been cordially received almost invariably, and numbers of mothers have sent to her to call, and seem anxious to follow her advice.
A number of children inspected by her have sore and inflamed eyes requiring attention; teeth are almost invariably bad; quite a few are suffering from enlarged tonsils, which should be removed, and in several instances the whole family is rickety as a result of improper feeding. It is in these matters that the visits of the community nurse produce such beneficial results. Mothers require to be taught how to take care of children, just as everybody else should be taught to do at a profession, trade or the commonest employment. Mothers cannot rely upon finding out by experience, as their children might be in the meanwhile, and thousands of children have died because the mothers have followed the advice of a neighbour, or better, than their own. It is not possible immediately and entirely to change the housing conditions of such a large number of the people. It is a pipelike tank and can only proceed slowly. It has been delayed for over two years by the Legislature failing to pass the Charter which is essential for the betterment of the town. Whole streets of houses will have to be pulled down, and hundreds of houses will have to be built before all our people are properly housed.
But a great deal can be done for the mothers and children by the community nurse. The services of Miss Rogers have been secured for three months to organize the work, and funds have been provided to pay the salary of one nurse. Miss Kendall, who has had special training along the required lines, has been engaged to work with Miss Rogers, and to succeed her. At least two other nurses are required, in order to cover the town properly, and to visit and inspect school children periodically. This cost will be say $2,000 per annum. I intend to appeal to the public to help Mr. John's for a guarantee of this sum for a period of two years, by which time I hope that the city's finances will be able to bear the whole burden.
W. G. GOSLING.
TO MOTHERS.
No baby can thrive in a dark, insanitary house, living in the kitchen with its cradle close to the stove. A baby needs a clean bed, pure fresh air, and quiet, and should be out of doors in the daytime whenever the weather permits.
Improper and irregular feedings can harm the baby.
Every baby should be breast-fed, and most mothers can nurse their babies if they earnestly try to do so. It is by far less expensive to nurse a baby as well as a breast-fed baby has ten times the chance to live and thrive than a bottle-fed baby has.

"Everybody should be breast fed."—Nurse Rogers.
"Air—'Bonnie Dundee'."
(By JAMES MURPHY.)
Miss Rogers, a lady of kindness and worth, She is doing all that she can on this earth For infants, whose mothers are too poor to feed Their dear little babies, when they are in need; She tells us they're better when fed on the breast. As for us, we believe that the bottle is best.
We have Creme de Menthe, Sherry and Brandy and Glin, For to make babies fat, nose, no matter how thin, Though breast "feeding babies" are "free from the taint" called the "summer complaint"; Yet they won't thrive as splendid if put to the test. On the breast 'cause 'tis proven the bottle is best.
Not alone will the babies grow fat and get strong, For ain't it recorded in story and song How Noah, of old, after squeezing the grapes Found himself, so 'tis said, in a "jolly fine shape." Didn't Timothy say when he gave birth to a child, toward the close of the year, In Toronto's fair city, the "Queen of the West" The people all say that the bottle is best.

To-Day's Messages.
1.30 P.M.
REVIEW OF OPERATIONS.
(By the A. P.)—The crisis in the allied offensive on the Solosons-Rheims salient apparently has been reached. French troops have entered the town of Solosons, the western anchor point of what remains of the thirty-six miles of all along the thirty-six miles of curving battle line from Solosons to Thiellois, which lies about three miles south of Rheims. French, American and British troops have pushed in the centre enemy front and sent the Germans backward everywhere in the vicinity of the Salient. Over the battlefront the allies by quick and forcible methods of onslaught have deeply indented the German defence line for splendid gains, which assembly rose tomorrow the necessity of the eventual retirement of the forces of the German Crown Prince to more tenable ground in the north. The plans behind and the northern western portion of the battlefront now are entirely dominated by the allied big guns. In the south the French and Americans have negotiated almost all of the hill and forest country and are encroaching perceptibly towards the Flines railway, which runs on the east of the British and French are almost astride the Rheims-Solosons railway, and have their guns now so placed that the enemy is sure to be sorely tried as he endeavours to press back and gain a haven of refuge along the Vesle River. Just how far the retreat of the Germans will go cannot at present be forecasted, but with the southern line swinging northward in conjunction with that on the east, toward the Vesle, and with the French dominating the Aisne eastward from Solosons, it is not improbable that the Germans may be compelled to take refuge north of the Aisne.
Numerous towns and hamlets have been captured by the Allied troops during the later fighting and at some points they have advanced from two to three miles.
South of Solosons, the entire Crise River has been forced by the Allied troops. Northeast of Fere-en-Tardenois, the Allied line has been pushed on to the west of the region of Grand Rozoy and the town of Sapanoy has been taken.
In the center the Neules Wood is being swept clean of Germans by the French cavalry, and American and French troops are pressing the Germans hard north of Segry and the Forest of Neules.
Farther eastward almost to the gates of Rheims, combined forces of British and French everywhere are sorely harassing the enemy.
In this region in addition to Thiellois the village of Ville-en-Tardenois is in Allied hands, and the French now are on the heels of the Germans two and a half miles north of the Dormans-Rheims high road, over a front of nearly four miles.
Although viewed from the war maps, the situation for the Allied troops at present is most promising for complete success in riding out the Solosons-Rheims salient entirely of the enemy.
Throughout the latter phases of the battle the Germans have not shown their stamina of previous days, and at some points the Allied troops, particularly the Americans, are enabled to make their way to German positions with virtually no opposition being imposed. All behind the battle line the smoke of burning towns is visible, which seemingly would give weight to the prevailing belief in the Allied capitals that the Germans at present are nowhere near the end of their retreat.
Aside from the Solosons-Rheims salient there has been little fighting in any of the war theatres.
The British are continuing their raids on the German front in France and Flanders, and the Germans at last accounts were heavily bombarding the British south of the Somme and near Ypres.

The Skin-Out-of-It Lie.

By RUTH CAMERON.

There are many kinds of lies. There are lies that are comparatively harmless,—for instance there is the untrue statement we make simply because we don't stop to think. This, and the lie protective,—the lie which we tell to protect someone else,—are surely the least blameworthy of all lies. Told by a person who dislikes lying, who would not lie in this instance because he thinks more of others than of himself, they may even take on a tinge of virtue.

The Meanest of All Lies.

But at exactly the other end of the scale to my mind, stands the skin-out-of-it lie.

Of course you know what the skin-out-of-it lie is,—the lie one tells to get oneself out of a scrape or free oneself from blame.

The skin-out-of-it lie is not only commonest deceit, but meanest and cowardice. It is deceit uncolored and unredeemed by any decency of purpose. One tells it simply for the selfish, unworthy purpose of escaping blame.

The Half Dozen Things I am Most Ashamed Of.

Among the half dozen things in my life that I am most ashamed of is such a lie. One day when I was about fifteen I had been kept after school and the teacher left the room for a few minutes, leaving me alone with a boy who was very fond of teasing me. Of course he seized something which made me particularly angry. Whereupon I picked up the big blackboard eraser and threw it across the room at him. At that moment the teacher chose to return. She heard the noise, and immediately asked the cause. And then my tormentor with my everlasting admiration for saying that he had thrown it. And I—I lied by not denying it. I had one explanation in my mind,—whereas as a boy he might be excused, I, as a young ladyhood, would have been deemed unforgivable. Moreover he was one of her favorites and I emphatically, was not. As a matter of fact he was not reprimanded. But I should like myself so much better if I had not told that skin-out-of-it lie.

What A Splendid Record that Would Be.

I don't mean to imply that it is the only one I ever told. But somehow it sticks out. I can forgive myself things technically worse, far more easily than I can forgive that.

Happy indeed is the man or woman who can look back over his life and say "I never told a skin-out-of-it lie."

Seems to me that would be a pretty fine ideal for any young person who chances to be reading this to set before himself or herself.

Arithmetic: Past and Present.

(Life.)

The father of the large and expensive family was showing us his literary treasures, his author-autographed volumes, his extra-illustrated copies of the classics, his books bound in vellum and gold, and we worshipped with him, for we, too, were devotees of the cult, members of the mysterious brotherhood of bibliomania.

And now he came to the last glass case, and with reverent hands took down an old, torn, dog-eared arithmetic, the covers soiled from much usage.

"Yes," he was saying, "it is in this little book that I find rest and mental refreshment after I have performed the arduous ordeal of checking up the household bills for the month. Just listen to this:

"If twenty-one pounds of sugar can be bought for a dollar, what is the price per pound?"

"And here is another choice bit:

"John goes to the grocery-store with a one-dollar bill. He buys two pounds of butter at twenty cents a pound and a dozen eggs for eighteen cents. How much change should he receive?"

"Mrs Smith pays five cents a quart for milk. How much is her milk-bill for four weeks if she used two quarts a day?"

"Yes," he concluded, "when I have checked up the family expenses for the month I am a pessimist of the deepest dye. Then I take down this good old comforting arithmetic with its charming chapters on the cost of groceries in 1898, and I get so absorbed in the plot that my troubles vanish."

AS IT LOOKS TO A BOY OF SIX.

I've never dreamed the joy untold That really lies in growing old; I used to grieve that age was mine And thought that only youth was fun. But now I've learned from one who knows The real source of human woes And human blisses—that a man Must age as swiftly as he can.

I've read in eyes that never lie That boyhood's days must travel by. And years must come for one to smile And find the joys that are worth while.

And I have heard a splendid sage Explain the glorious thrill of age And learned how happy I should be Since Time has been so good to me.

I should be glad I'm getting old. That nearly all my tale is told; I should not mind the weight of years, Nor feel the headdress and the tears That now more frequently return.

As lower down life's candles burn; I should not sigh for years long fled. But only see the joys ahead.

But yesterday I learned from him That Age is laden to the brim With happiness and splendid things. And every year more gladness brings. That youth is very dull and cold And he is glad he's growing old. Time was perhaps I thought the same As he, when my sixth birthday came.

Fighting With Pirates.

Captains of British Merchantmen Act Like Heroes.

In the weekly returns showing the number of British merchant vessels attacked by submarines, the phrase "British merchant vessels unsuccessfully attacked." The Admiralty records show that hidden away in that phrase is many a story of gallant seamanship.

During the month from March 15 to April 15 of this year, sixty-four British vessels were attacked unsuccessfully by U-boats.

The submarine which attacks a defensively armed merchantman has no longer a "sure thing." During the past month there were several cases in which even two U-boats were unsuccessful in an attack on a single steamer. There are several cases, also, in which the steamer completely turned the tables on the German, and sent him to the bottom instead.

Even sailing ships frequently give a good account of themselves against the submarine, although in the nature of things they are much less easy to manoeuvre than a ship with steam power. The following is one such case reported to the Admiralty:

"A sailing ship was proceeding leisurely on her course when the look-out sighted a submarine on the starboard quarter. She lay quiet until the U-boat came within range, and then opened fire. The gun crew knew their business, for they soon found the target, and out of thirteen shots, eight direct hits were scored. The U-boat, which had been vainly twisting and turning to get out of range, suddenly went down by the bows, and her stern stood clear of the water for nearly half a minute. Then she dived perpendicularly, and came up again at an angle of thirty degrees above the water. For a short space of time she remained in this position, and then disappeared like a stone."

Early one afternoon the captain of a steamer in ballast saw the track of a torpedo coming direct for his ship. By a quick swing he succeeded in avoiding it. Then the U-boat came out of the water and opened fire, one of his shells piercing the deck and wrecking the second cook's cabin. The steamer replied valiantly and the encounter continued for four hours, the steamer going at top speed all the time and keeping the submarine dead astern. A shot from the steamer struck the submarine amidships but failed to do sufficient injury to force the German to discontinue the action. But after four hours, the steamer got the submarine into a smoke cloud, and a shell appeared to burst close to the U-boat's bow, after which the enemy quit the chase.

In another attack, which was successfully beaten off, the merchantman's gunners were handicapped owing to the deck giving way under the gun early in the action. Every time the gun kicked the platform under it jumped. The man who was sighting it was injured, but the crew continued firing and eventually forced the submarine to discontinue the action. One of the first shots from the submarine broke the wireless aerials of the steamer, but the wireless operator repaired the damage under fire and got a message through to the nearest British destroyers.

Milady's Boudoir.

THE MORNING AFTER.

We are often caused to wonder how so many women manage to look young all the time, and yet they attend all the social affairs of the season just as you and I, and the daytime habits are conducive of no rest, than that nightly gaiety.

The whole secret revolves on a very tiny and well defined pinnacle—that of taking good care of themselves the morning after the ball.

When you awaken and you observe in the mirror that your eyes are encased in rather a baggy network of wrinkles, you feel a bit of resentment for the previous evening which have robbed you of your beauty. Don't regret what is over and done, simply go about a method to rectify matters.

The best way to freshen up the face is to go into the bathroom turn on the hot water faucet and the cold water faucet. Dip two towels into the hot, wring them out, and hold them to your face for a minute. Now take two more and do the same with the cold water. Then the hot again and finish with the cold.

You will feel refreshed and your nerve lines will have disappeared. This little treatment is simple and not injurious.

It is always best to plan ahead for any evening which will require an immaculate toilette and poise. Begin to dress long before the guests arrive. When you have glanced for the last time in your mirror and are satisfied with the image which smiles back at you, sit quietly by the window and relax. Gain control of your thoughts. Think of the pleasant evening before you. You will be surprised at the easy grace with which you will receive your visitors.

THE FLIES.

The pesky flies, in endless herds, have put me on the blink; I cannot find the proper words to tell just what I think of the swat crusade has thinned them at all; I wonder if they really held to smash them on the wall?

For long sad years we've fought the flies in every way we know; we've soaked the brutes between the eyes, and poisoned quite a few. We've blown for swatters hard earned monies that should have gone for pies, and now that all the toil is done, have we thinned out the flies? We've caught them in a patent cage, we've crushed them in their tracks, and often, in a seething rage, we've slain them with an ax. We've stung them on the cellar stairs and on the pantry shelves; we punished them with clubs and chairs until we sprained ourselves. We have beset the paths they trod, with pitfalls and with gin, and spread our tangle-foot abroad to rope the blamed things in. And was our labor thrown away, our anguish all in vain? The flies seem just as thick to-day, as hopelessly insane. Around me countless legions rise, and buzz and scort and hum; I counted nineteen million flies, and still new legions come. And I suppose they'll still be thick until there comes a frost. For sale: A brand new swatting stick, at less than half its cost.

GENERAL RETIREMENT OF THE ENEMY.

ON THE FRENCH FRONT IN FRANCE, Aug. 3. (By the A.P.)—The battle on the front north of the Marne resolved itself during the night and this morning into almost a general retirement of the enemy north of the Ourcq with the Allies pursuing the Germans with the greatest zeal and success. The town of Hortennes-Settaux was occupied by the Allies, who also seized the wood lying to the south of this most important place. The French and British in this sector took Centremain and then crossed the Chateau-Thierry-Semois road.

AMERICAN LINE MOVES FORWARD WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE AISNE-MARNE FRONT, Aug. 2. (By the A.P.)—The whole American line moved forward to-day, while the armies along the flank from Soissons to Rheims pressed hard against the sides of the German salient. Their gains were almost without resistance. Emerged, as they have been for days, the enemy withdrew during the night so that when the Americans, who were supported on their right and left by the French, started early this morning they did not encounter the usual machine gun fire. In open order the men ploughed their way through the heavy rain soaked fields for almost a mile. Indications are that the Germans will not make a stand until they reach the water shed north of the Noyes forest.

GENERAL RETIREMENT OF THE ENEMY.

ON THE FRENCH FRONT IN FRANCE, Aug. 2. (By the A.P.)—The battle on the front north of the Marne resolved itself during the night and this morning into almost a general retirement of the enemy north of the Ourcq with the Allies pursuing the Germans with the greatest zeal and success. The town of Hortennes-et-Saizay was occupied by the Allies, who also seized the wood lying to the south of this most important place. The French and British in this sector took Centremain and then crossed the Chateau-Thierry-Soissons road.

AMERICAN LINE MOVES FORWARD.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE AISNE-MARNE FRONT, Aug. 2. (By the A.P.)—The whole American line moved forward to-day, while the British pressed hard against the side of the German salient. Their gains were almost without resistance. Hammered, as they have been for days, the enemy withdrew during the night so that when the Americans, who were supported on their right and left by the French, started early this morning they did not encounter the usual machine gun fire. In open order the men ploughed their way through the heavy rain soaked fields for almost a mile. Indications are that the Germans will not make a stand until they reach the water shed south of the Nesles forest.

THE SCOTTISH DIVISION.

FRENCH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 1. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—An outstanding feature has been the work of a Scottish division in General Mangin's army between the Aisne and the Ourcq, by the heroic courage and endurance shown. The division had been in the arrears sector for some seven months before it was sent to the Marne. It had to make a night march of ten miles to the front in an unknown country to relieve the Americans. Arriving at midnight the order was given to attack at dawn. The Germans were waiting the attack and their guns, especially heavy, were more numerous in this sector than anywhere else on the battlefield. At midnight the division was in line on the Chateau plateau, facing the Soissons-Chateau-Thierry road. The plateau is flat and without shelter except for a few small woods, and was already strewn with dead Germans and Americans. A French division attacked at dawn and met the strongest resistance. German machine guns took them in the flank. The Scots advanced a considerable distance and consolidated their new front, despite the most vigorous opposition. Men of the American artillery, seeing the British were unable to move up their guns in time, volunteered to remain in the sector to help the division. The offer was accepted, and the American gunners rendered excellent service. This attack was made on the morning of July 23rd, and for three days the division held the line under terrible fire, and on July 28th attacked the village, park, and Chateau of Busancy. The first wave swept through the village and captured the heights and beyond. The remaining waves had to clear up the village. Experienced warriors who participated in the fighting described it as one of the hardest fights of the war. The village was stuffed with machine guns, surrounded by deep caves, which were veritable fortresses, where the Germans fought to the last most determinedly.

PIERCE FIGHTING.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY, Aug. 1. (By the A.P.)—General Mangin, with the French and British troops at his command, is fighting a severe battle north of the Ourcq River and is making considerable progress. After taking the village of Grand Rozoy, northwest of Fere-en-Tardenois, the Allied troops advanced to the Plessiere Wood, where the combatants are in extraordinarily fierce. The heights north of Grand Rozoy have fallen into the hands of the Allies, and at several points the Allied troops have approached within five miles of the railroad leading to Bazoches, which is the only railroad that can be used by the Germans for maintaining communication.

CELEBRATE FOURTH ANNIVERSARY.

PARIS, Aug. 2. Allied troops celebrated the fourth anniversary of the war by a victorious resumption of the offensive to the surprise of a great many who had believed the battle had entered into one of its periodical lulls. Incidentally the official statement on the total number of prisoners, more than 33,000, brings out forcibly the extraordinary change in the situation a short month had effected. On the 1st of July the Allies, to reverse Walpole's famous phrase, were almost wringing their hands. Now they would be justified in ringing bells. The ground won yesterday north of the Ourcq has considerable value. It is a long spur, about six hundred feet high, forming the watershed between the Oise and the Ourcq, and is a valuable observation point. From it the Germans prevented the Allies from seeing the Oise while the overlooking ground was won from them on the Ourcq. The Allies stormed not only the summit, but the northern slopes of this terrain, and as a consequence they can now manoeuvre safely in the Ourcq region. In addition they have in view behind them the great Hartennes Plateau, where the enemy still clings along the Soissons-Chateau-Thierry road, and that strong position, which is difficult of attack frontally, can now be turned from the north through Ville Montoire and from the south by way of Hill 205. The Allies also gained an important advantage on the left in the capture of Montiere wood by the Americans, giving them a position which, according to Henri Bidon, is the key-stone of the whole German line in their control.

GERMANS PRESSED BACK.

PARIS, Aug. 2. On the battlefield north of the Marne the French continued to press back the Germans further towards the Vesle, says the official statement from the war office to-day.

GERMANS BURNING VILLAGES.

ON THE FRENCH FRONT IN FRANCE, Aug. 2.—The Germans are burning villages as they retire and destroying everything they come across. The entire battlefield is dotted with conflagrations, some of them of large proportions. Along the centre of the front, as well as on the western side, the German resistance seemed greatly diminished. The Allies pressed through a series of thickets in the north of the road leading from Goussancourt to Coulouges and reached the southern part of the Vesilly Wood. Further east on the line the Allies are within 5,000 yards of Villere Agron, and along the line towards Rhinns, they captured a wood situated 1,500 yards east of Romigny. Allied patrols have attained a position three-fifths of a mile north of Ville-en-Tardenois, and have occupied a height 1,500 yards north of Romigny.

ALLIED PROGRESS RAPID.

LONDON, Aug. 2. The latest news from the battlefield received up to 1.30 o'clock this afternoon, shows that the progress the Allies have made has been more and more rapid to-day, the troops having made an advance of from two to three miles on the whole line between the Ardre river, southwest of Rheims to the hamlet of Taux about 5 1/2 miles south of Soissons. The Germans are burning villages east of the Ourcq behind their lines. The Allied line now runs one mile north of Ville-en-Tardenois to Romigny, thence to Saugny and Volzilly south of Coulouges by Fere Chateau to Ourcq and Droizy, and thence to Taux.

ECONOMIC POLICY.

LONDON, Aug. 2. Fear that the adoption of economic weapons after the war might endanger the proposed League of Nations, was expressed by James H. Thomas, Labor member for Derby, in the House of Commons yesterday, during a discussion on such a League raised by Liberal members. Foreign Secretary Balfour explained, in reply, that he had heard no really practical suggestions from members for the attainment of the objects they all had in view, nor any indication where an international police force to enforce contracts between nations could be found. Unquestionably, he continued, a League of nations could not afford to deprive its armory of economic weapons. It is perfectly true that the economic weapon is capable of misuse, as witness Germany's policy in Russia, in a manner destructive of liberty. But the Foreign Secretary saw no sign of any country consenting to abandon the Empire or the tariffs if it considered them necessary. He believed that Mr. Thomas would find that Labor would not abandon this method of dealing with economic problems. Mr. Balfour also contended that universal disarmament only was possible if it could be proved that the new international arrangement was effective, and if it had machinery for keeping the world's peace successfully. The last four years, continued Mr. Balfour, have convinced the nations that war is a very costly, bloody and brutal thing, but not that it is a thing to be thrust aside. Frankly, looking around on the world, I see the greatest of nations quite as ready to quarrel with each other as the most ambitious of their predecessors. Lord Robert Cecil, Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, urged that the conditions of peace ought to be made more favorable to those nations prepared to enter a League. He thought the question should be considered fully in all its aspects, and a scheme prepared to be put into practice immediately after the war, if there was any prospect of its adoption, because a few years' delay would, with the shortness of people's memories, result in the cooling off of present enthusiasm. The difficulties in the way of establishing and running with a League here were so serious, he added, that only by the united efforts of all men of goodwill could it be possible to put it into execution.

Why Not.

"In any town or settlement in this Colony, the Governor in Council may appoint a Board of five members to be known as a Public Library Board. Every such Board when appointed shall be a body corporate and politic under the name of 'The Public Library Board for (the town or settlement for which it is appointed), and shall have power to acquire and hold lands for the purposes for which it is appointed, and to receive bequests and donations of money and to invest such moneys, and generally to have all necessary powers for the management and control of Public Libraries in their respective towns and settlements."

We wish to draw the attention of some well meaning philanthropist to the above, and to remind him of the great need for a Public Library in this city. It is generally known that we have no such institution, but that we should have one is believed by all. There is only one way to do away with the evil of a certain class of literature now sold openly in the city, and of the obscene foreign post cards, and that is by establishing a Public Library. A law could be passed, compelling all importers of books, and other literature to deposit one copy of each in the Library, and contributions could be made by all lovers of books, so that it would not be long before we would have a nucleus. Another good plan would be to combine the Public Library and the National Art Gallery in the same building, having one on the top and one on the downstairs flats. What have the Social Service Council, and Hon. John Anderson to say to this proposition?

For All We Have And Are.

(Kipling.) For all we have and are. For all our children's fate. Stand up and meet the war. The Hun is at the gate! Our world has passed away In wantonness of overthrow. There is nothing left to-day But steel and fire and stone! Though all we know depart. The old commandments stand: "In courage keep your heart. In strength lift up your hand."

Comfort, content, delight. The ages slow-bought gain. They shrivelled in a night. Only ourselves remain. To live in the naked day. In silent fortitude Through perils and dismay Renewed and renewed. Though all we made depart. The old commandments stand: "In patience keep your heart. In strength lift up your hand."

No easy hopes or lies Shall bring us to our goal. But our sacrifice, Of body, will, and soul. There is one task for all—For each one left to give. Who stands it freedom, fair? Who dies if England live?

THE NEAREST THING to the "real thing" about that high priced substitute of Marsh's "Far Excellence" Perfume, soon to be placed on the market, is the price. Ask anybody who tried it. —11/20, 1m.co

Cleaning Up Bagdad.

Paved streets, electric street lights, municipal sprinkling carts, a modern fire department; these are all in old Bagdad now. Or, rather, they are in new Bagdad, for the glamorous city on the Tigris has assumed a new aspect since the British drove out the Turks sixteen months ago. Nothing now remains of the silt and squalor of the Turkish regime. The place is still Oriental, but the Oriental atmosphere is less odoriferous. Dead cats are not left to decompose in the middle of the narrow streets. England has a wonderful way of leaving Orientalism unspoiled while making it reasonably clean. The British soldier cannot abide filth. His sanitary squads penetrate the remotest nooks and the most deeply hidden cesspools, and the mews and cess-pools cease to offend. The natives soon discover that cleanliness is not a horror. The Arab is not naturally vile, but he has fallen into the ways of his Turkish masters.

Germans Tried To Deceive Allies.

The Americans found some large boats and foats held down and submerged by rocks, but so arranged that they could be made accessible for use by the Germans in short order for crossing from the south to the north bank of the river. In instances these boats spanned the river and were held by cables, and it only required a short time to float them. The Germans did not get a chance to use their impromptu bridges, having been kept away from them by the fire of the Allied guns. The French and Americans, however, made use of the foats when they came along in hot pursuit of the enemy.

The A. S. C's Work.

M. de Maratray, a French war correspondent well known on the British front, publishes some remarkable figures concerning the supply services of the British Armies in France. According to his statistics, a single division requires every day approximately 300 tons of material, requiring 450 tons of shipping space. One goods train every two days is employed for its conveyance, a part from horse and molor transport. This is in "quiet" times. When intense fighting is in progress, every mile of front absorbs something like 2,000 tons of supplies a day, so that a big battle on a fifty-mile front necessitates the daily transport of 100,000 tons. The transportation of a division of troops calls for the employment of thirty-five trains; the rail traffic involved in the simultaneous moving of several divisions is therefore something to rouse the imagination.

Death of Foundress of G. F. S.

Another link with the past is broken by the death on June 14th of Mrs. Elizabeth Townsend, foundress of the Girls' Friendly Society. It was in 1874 that a historic gathering took place at Lambeth Palace, when Mrs. Townsend, with Mrs. Fair, Mrs. Harold Brown, Mrs. Nassau Senior and the Rev. T. V. Fosbery (Vicar of St. Giles), Reading, outlined a scheme for the G. F. S., which was actually started on January 1st, 1875. The society quickly spread to Scotland, Ireland, America and the overseas dominions, and now comprises upwards of 200,000 women and girls. In all developments of the society Mrs. Townsend took the deepest interest to the end of her long life—Canadian Churches.

"CANTON"
Account Registers!

Merchants everywhere realize that to be successful, and to get best results from their business, they must do the largest possible volume of business with the least help. This is the reason why so many Computing Scales, Cash Registers, Oil Tanks, Meat Slicers, Cheese Cutters, etc., are being sold. All these specialties are expensive and it pays to buy the best made. Bookkeeping in any business is an expensive proposition. Any system which will make bookkeeping easier and avoid mistakes is of great value. Many Account Registers of various styles have been placed on the market, they have proven very valuable in saving time and avoiding mistakes. It was found however that in order to be of real value, any account register must be kept in a fireproof cabinet.

At present the market is flooded with so-called "fireproof" cabinets containing Account Registers. The walls of most of these cabinets are so thin, they cannot possibly resist an ordinary fire. Some of them have glass covers which are easily broken. Some have different compartments requiring transfer of accounts from one compartment to the other, all of which takes time.

The "Canton" Register has recently been placed on the market which overcomes most of these difficulties. It consists of a strong, well-made metal cabinet. The walls are made of special heat-resisting material, and are doubly with one inch air space between; this gives much better fire protection. It contains receptacles in which may be filed account slips or in which a separate book may be kept for each customer. No index is required and only one writing is necessary. These cabinets are made in different sizes. For instance: our one hundred account cabinet contains space for one hundred steady customers, also for an equal number of transient or occasional customers. The cabinet occupies a counter space of 18 1/2 by 20 inches and is 24 inches high. They are built in six sizes at following prices delivered to your store:

100 account	24 inches	$157.00
200 "	36 "	$188.00
300 "	36 "	$222.00
400 "	36 "	$235.00
500 "	36 "	$248.00
600 "	36 "	$298.00

To give an idea of the substantial construction of these registers we might state that our 200 Account Register weighs about 265 lbs. This Register was patented November 21st, 1916, and is the last word in fireproof cabinet construction. Any standard pads or sale book can be used.

If you are interested in the simplest and safest Account Register on the market, write or wire

Forty Years in the Public Service—The Evening Telegram

CABLE NEWS.

SOISSONS ENTERED.

PARIS, Aug. 2. French troops have entered Soissons, according to the French official communication issued this evening. Over the vicinity of Rheims the Germans have been compelled to give up important positions and their retreat precipitated. The communication also adds: The Oise River has been crossed along the whole of its front. Further progress has been made in the center of the fighting line and on the east the Allied line has been pushed more than three miles north of the Dormans-Rheims road.

GENERAL MANGIN'S ADVANCE.

LONDON, Aug. 2. The advance on the front of General Mangin's army continues, according to a despatch of Reuters' correspondent at French headquarters. In the Marne battle sector between Hartennes and Taux on the Soissons-Chateau-Thierry road and Fere-en-Tardenois, we pushed forward along the whole line of ten miles. We occupied Hartennes itself and the wood to the south and brought the line up to Crémilly and Saponay, making an almost straight front from Hartennes to Fere-en-Tardenois.

VILLE-EN-TARDENOIS ENCIRCLED.

ON THE FRENCH FRONT IN FRANCE, Aug. 2. (By the A.P.)—The important town of Ville-en-Tardenois on the easterly side of the Marne salient has been encircled by the Allied forces.

EXTREMELY IMPORTANT.

LONDON, Aug. 2. Yesterday's Franco-British attack on the westerly side of the Marne salient was on a front of five miles and penetrated to a maximum depth of three miles, according to news received to-day. It resulted in the capture of the entire ridge which forms the watershed between the Ourcq and the Aisne. The advance indicated the French also captured the entire Mouniers Wood on the line to the north of Goussancourt, about the centre of the salient. The advance by the Allies along the western side of the salient is described as extremely important, possibly the most important thing the Allies have accomplished since the Germans retired from the Marne. The importance of the victory, it is explained, lies in the fact that the new Allied positions command the whole area to the northward and takes in the flank and rear, the entire western gate through which the Germans have to retire. This area is a nest of German reserves and field artillery. Goussancourt itself has been taken by the French. The advance says: The capture of the important ground on the heights to the westerly side of the line also means that the Germans will not be able to retire in an ordinarily leisurely way and that they probably will have to go beyond the River Vesle in their retreat. The situation is considered as extraordinarily good, being described in the press as the turning point of the summer campaign and possibly of the whole war.

SUCCESSFUL BRITISH RAIDS.

LONDON, Aug. 2. The British have carried out raids at Pustubert, northwest of Lens, and at Albert in the Picardy sector, and have captured several prisoners, according to a statement issued by the war office to-day. The German artillery, the statement says, has shown increased activity south of the Somme and south of Ypres, while it has been active north of Bethune and east of Hazebroucke in the Lys sector.

THE EVENING MAIL.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.

Federal indictments were returned here to-day against Dr. Edward A. Rumely, former Vice-President and Secretary of the New York Mail and Express Company, and Walter Kaufmann, former Counsel for the German Embassy in the United States, as illegal participants in the purchase of the Evening Mail for the German Government. The indictments charge that Dr. Rumely purchased the Evening Mail on behalf of former Ambassador Bernstorff and Dr. Heinrich Albert, former Commercial Attaché of the German Embassy, in June, 1916. It is further alleged that on December 4, 1917, Rumely and Kaufmann filed statements with the alien property custodian, in which no mention was made of the German Government's ownership of any part of the Evening Mail.

THE STRANDED LINER.

VICTORIA, B.C., Aug. 2.

The stranded Alaska liner still is in a precarious condition, and unless the weather remains good, there is small prospect of saving the vessel. One carload of freight was taken off yesterday and despatched to Seattle.

DEMANDS STERN MEASURES.

LONDON, Aug. 2.

Dr. Karl Helfferich, who was recently appointed German Ambassador to Russia, has sent a note to Foreign Minister Trotsky, calling upon the Soviet Government to adopt stern measures in their research and punishment of the persons guilty of the murder of Field Marshal Von Eichorn, the German Military Commander in the Ukraine, according to advices transmitted by the Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Zurich. Dr. Helfferich demanded likewise the destruction of the hotbeds of anti-German intrigue in Moscow and Petrograd. The inspiration for the Von Eichhorn assassination has been declared in German reports to have come from Russian sources.

ENEMY PROPERTY.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.

The money and property which formerly was German-owned, taken over by A. Mitchell Palmer, enemy property custodian, has reached the $500,000,000 mark. It was announced here to-day.

AMERICANS ADVANCE.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.

American troops occupied Clergues and advanced beyond the village in Thursday's fighting. General Pershing reported in his communication for yesterday, received to-night by the War Department. Vigorous local actions along the Ourcq were carried out by the American forces.

FRENCH TAKE MORE TOWNS.

ON THE FRENCH FRONT IN FRANCE, Aug. 2. (By the A.P.)—The French are continuing to advance and have taken additional towns of the front between Soissons and Rheims. The enemy is retreating desperately and losing in prisoners.

NOT THEIR FAULT.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 2.

King Ludwig of Bavaria, in a proclamation on the opening of the fifth year of the war published in the Zeitung of Frankfurt, refers to the exemplary bravery and achievements of the German armies. It is not our fault that we are entering the fifth year of the war. He adds, our opponents still regard the crushing of Germany as their aim. No German, however, thinks of a shameful peace. We must therefore continue to struggle to the shoulder all troubles and hardships in confidence that God will lead our just cause to victory.

MORE INTRIGUE.

LONDON, Aug. 2.

As a sop for the establishment of a monarchy, Germany has offered Finland to use its offices to obtain the secession by Russia of Eastern Karelia on the principle of self-determination. The Lantias which has been summoned to meet August 8th, must decide immediately, according to a despatch to the Times from Stockholm. Every effort, the despatch adds, is being made to win over the eighteen members of the Lantias, who oppose the monarchical plan and thus prevent it from getting the necessary two-thirds majority.

GERMANS RENOVATE COUNTER ATTACKS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.

Counter attacks were renewed by the German forces on American lines along the Ourcq River, during the night of Tuesday, but were repulsed, according to a statement issued by the war office to-day. The necessary reinforcements, the statement says, were sent from the American lines near Seringes-et-Nesle being cut off by machine gun fire and their members were killed, wounded or captured. General Pershing's report in his communique for Wednesday, received late last night by the war department, said: Southwest of the Robie-Mouniers, American troops, after severe hand-to-hand fighting, drove the Germans before them into the woods. The communique says the Bois was occupied and American forces reached the village of Clergues. Hostile raids in Lorraine and Alsace were repulsed.

VOTE OF CREDIT.

LONDON, Aug. 2.

The House of Commons adopted the vote of credit introduced yesterday, by a unanimous vote.

GORKY ARRESTED.

LONDON, Aug. 2.

The arrest of Maxim Gorky, the Russian author and revolutionary, has been ordered by the investigating committee of the Soviet Government, says an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Copenhagen. The Petrograd correspondent of the Daily Express reports that Gorky's paper has been suppressed permanently.

DAYTON Money Weight Scales!

After deciding to locate in Newfoundland, we wished to obtain agency for the best computing scale made. We visited all the leading cities of the United States and Canada as far west as Chicago. We visited three computing scale factories, all of which offered us their agency. We talked with hundreds of users of various types of computing scales. The result of our investigation showed us that the Dayton Money Weight Scale was absolutely the best computing scale made, and that it would outwear any two computing scales of the swinging pendulum type.

We therefore closed the contract for the sale of Dayton Scales and have sold a number of them in St. John's and the various outports. Every scale sold is giving perfect satisfaction.

We are also agents for the Dayton Silent Meat Slicer and Dayton Cheese Cutter.

Electric Lighting For Outports!

For a number of years there has been a growing demand for a satisfactory electric lighting system for use in the outports. There are dozens of so-called "farm lighting systems" on the market. Almost without exception they are unable to produce a steady flickerless current, without first charging storage batteries and then taking the lighting current from the batteries. In using this system they are up against many difficulties:—The capacity of the current is wasteful; they require constant attention. When they are new, about 15 per cent. of the current is lost when passed through batteries; after one or two years this proportion rapidly increases; this means that a large proportion of the current is wasted; batteries that will produce 110 volt current are very expensive, therefore the manufacturers of most battery systems use what is known as low-voltage. A low-voltage current will only give a satisfactory light when used close to the battery. If the current is carried by wires to other buildings a short distance away, a great deal of energy is lost and it gives a poor light.

Low-voltage systems cannot use standard lighting equipment such as lamps, electric fans, electric irons, electric toasters, etc., but require special low-voltage apparatus from the factory.

After comparing the various lighting systems on the market, we found one that overcomes all these difficulties. It is known as the Unielectric Lighting Machine, which is the only machine of its kind made. It consists of an engine specially designed for electric lighting purposes, directly attached to a special dynamo and electric governor. This outfit will produce a steady flickerless 110 volt current without having to depend on batteries; it will use all standard equipment in common use. Wires can be run from the engine in any direction up to two thousand feet without change.

Three of these lighting machines have been in use in Newfoundland from one to two years and are giving perfect satisfaction. Monsignor Reardon, Placentia, lights Church and Presbytery; Rev. Father Maher, St. Lawrence, lights Church, Presbytery, Convent and School; G. C. Fearn & Son, Placentia, light their shop, office, fish stores, saw mill, blacksmith's shop and ship yard. We have also ordered for them an electric boring machine to be run by current from Unielectric machine and to be used in shipbuilding.

We are now installing the Unielectric Lighting System for Mr. Fred Ayre in his country residence. The Unielectric Corporation of Detroit are doing their best to supply the demand for these machines, but do not expect to be able to furnish them at present prices except for a very short time. They have promised us three more machines at present prices if orders are sent in promptly.

Anyone interested in the best country lighting system ever made will receive one of our catalogues and full information by writing us.

The Unielectric Engine is built for continuous service. The engine is equipped with the sliding sleeve valve and is guaranteed for five years.

A small inexpensive battery can be attached to wires to allow the use of a few lights when machine is not in operation.
