"Flowers of the Valley,"

OR MABEL HOWARD, OF THE LYRIC.

CHAPTER XXVIII.
THE NEW SINGER.

The boy's face grew sad, and a strange look came into his eyes. "I wish you were," he said, softly. "But, Mabel, about the songs. What will you sing besides mine? How good of you to think of singing it! And he has bought it, too! Ah! he would not have done so, or thought it worth anything if he had not heard you sing it, Mabel. Your voice would make any 'trash' sound good."

"And your voice will make me vain, if you don't take care," said Iris. "Depend upon it, Paul, that your song will prove a success to-morrow, and the people will think more of that than my poor voice. But I must run away now and see about my dress."

"Ah!" he said. "I suppose you will want an evening dress? Shall you make—"

Iris shook her head.

"No, Paul, it is an afternoon 'at home,' and ladies wear morning dresses and bonnets."

"Ah, you know; you have been to them!" he said, gently, but shrewdly. Iris colored.

"I know that is right!" she said. "You must look me out a song; I will sing anything you choose," and she turned off to her own room.

The dress was a more difficult matter, indeed, than the song, for Paul had plenty of the latter from which she could choose, while of the former she had only two—the one she had worn when she fled from Knighton, and another of plain black meringe she had bought. She had never made a bonnet, or, in fact, done anything in the way of millinery in her life, but she had often watched Felice at work, and she thought that she could, with the aid of some lace and some fresh ribbons, re-trim the bonnet and dress, and make them, at any rate, presentable. She changed the five-pound note in buying the lace and ribbon, and a pair of lavender gloves, and spent the evening in Paul's room at work, and practicing the songs.

Long into the night she lay awake, thinking of the strange chance which had befallen her; at one time regarding it as a pretty good fortune, at another shuddering from the ordeal, and half resolved to send word to the manager in the morning she could not go. But at a few minutes before five o'clock she and Paul stood in the vast hall of Ormonde House, and delivered Mr. Stapleton's card to a footman in so gorgeous and overpowering a livery that Paul, accustomed to brilliant costumes as he was, could not take his eyes off him.

The footman glanced at the card, and then at Iris. She had drawn a veil over her face, and still kept it down, but the experienced eyes of the footman detected the lady in her figure and manner, and he said, respectfully:

"Quite right, miss; come this way, please."

They followed him up the great stairs into a small ante-room to the drawing-room or saloon, and, indicating a lounge, he asked them to be seated.

"I will tell her grace you have come," he said. "Shall I bring you some wine or coffee?"

Iris declined with thanks, but Paul was too overwhelmed by the magnificence of the place to utter a word. At last he crept a little nearer Iris, and whispered:

"What a splendid place, Mabel! I—I didn't think there were such rooms as this in a house. Why, it is as large as a theatre! And all this velvet and plush and gold fringe. Mabel, I feel half afraid."

Iris' own heart beating wildly, but from a very different cause, and she pressed his hand encouragingly.

"You will forget all the grandeur and fiery directly you begin to play, Paul," she said, in a low voice. "Try and think that you are in your place in the orchestra at the theatre, or, better still, sitting on the hearth rug at home and playing to me!"

"Yes, that would be better!" he murmured.

The adjoining saloon had been empty until now, excepting for the footman, who were noisily giving orders about, arranging the tables and chairs; but, as Iris spoke, one of the servants threw open a door, and a tall lady, of little more than middle age, swept in to the room, with a quick yet graceful step. She was plainly, but handsomely dressed, and, even if Iris had not remembered seeing her photograph, she would have known her to be the Duchess of Rosedale.

The lounge upon which they sat was placed near the opening between the two rooms, and Paul, in his timidity, had gradually got nearer and nearer the heavy plush curtains, so that he was almost hidden.

The duchess stood in the centre of the saloon, and looked round; then came toward the ante-chamber. As she approached Iris raised her veil and stood up. The duchess looked surprised for a moment; then came forward and held out her hand.

"Oh, I did not know that any one had come yet!" she said, with a charming smile.

Iris saw that she was mistaken for one of the visitors, and bowed. As she did so, a footman hurried up and presented Mr. Stapleton's card to the duchess.

She looked at it, and from it to Iris, with a slight elevation of her eyebrows.

"Oh, Mr. Stapleton's people. Of course you," she said. "Le me see—Miss Alfred, I think?"

Iris was about to correct her, but the duchess went on:

"It is very kind of you to come and sing for us, Miss Alfred. I hope the people won't talk too much. It is very stupid, but they always will chatter, won't they? And this is—"

She named and looked at Paul, with a kindly smile, as he slipped off the lounge and bowed.

"Paul Foster, your grace," said Iris. As she spoke the duchess looked at her quickly; the refined tones of the voice had evidently surprised her.

"Oh, yes, Paul Foster," she said, still looking at Iris. "He plays the violin, does he not? Well, if we talk while you are playing, you must play loudly—and then I suppose we shall stop, for we all dearly love to hear our own voices," and she laughed.

Raising her hand, she brought a footman to her side.

"Bring some coffee, please," she said; then, with a gracious bow, she glided into the next room.

"Mabel, a duchess is not so very awful, after all!" whispered Paul. "Why, she spoke to us as simply as if she were—Mrs. Barker!"

Iris smiled. She could have told Paul that the higher the rank the simpler the manner, but the visitors were entering the saloon, and she drew back behind the curtains and watched in silence and with an anxiety that made her heart beat wildly. Would there be anybody among the throng who would recognize in "Mr. Stapleton's singer" the Iris Knighton who had been the belle of many a reception such as this? If she had dared, she would have kept her veil down, but she arranged it on her bonnet so that it shadowed her face as much as possible. Every now and then she heard names which were well known to the world, and Paul's blue eyes grew as large as saucers as people so famous that even he had heard of them were seen moving about the saloon and chatting and laughing just like ordinary mortals.

Presently two ladies—one middle-aged, the other a young girl—crossed the room and seated themselves on a lounge so close to the opening into the ante-chamber and the curtains which concealed Iris that she could hear every word of their conversation.

"The duchess has quite a crowd this afternoon," said one of them. "Everybody seems here! Isn't that Mrs. Vavasour? I thought she had run away with Captain Harding?"

"Not yet," responded the other, with a laugh. "Look! the duchess has only given her one finger. There is Lord Fordingbridge; doesn't look as if he could have done all those wonderful things in Egypt, does he? I wonder why all the great generals are such small men?"

"I like small men myself," said the young lady, bowing and smiling across the room to the great little military hero. "Here comes Lady Miltons; do fill up the seat, or she will join us. I do hate that woman! Ah, dear, Lady Blount!" she went on in the same breath, but with the most affectionate of tones. "Won't you come and sit down? No! Has Julia come with you? I don't see her! No! I am so sorry! I had looked forward to meeting her here so much! Then, before her ladyship had got scarcely out of hearing—"

"What a relief! Really, I don't think I am more intolerant and disagreeable than other people, but I cannot stand that woman and her red-headed daughter! Have you heard the latest about the new beauty?"

Here the two heads went close together and Iris was, fortunately, deprived of the latest delicate scandal.

"We are to have some music, are we not, duchess?" said the first lady, as her grace passed them.

The duchess nodded and smiled.

"Yes, I have got some music for you—Miss Alfred, from the Lyric. But there is something better than that. He is coming—at least, he promised me!"

"Not—"

Iris lost the name, for several people were talking rather loudly near her, and coffee cups were clinking.

The duchess nodded an assent and passed on, and the young lady turned to her friend with an exclamation of interest, and even excitement.

"Do you really think it is true?" she said. "Do you really think he is coming? I should doubt it; it seems too good to be true."

"I don't know why he shouldn't; indeed, I don't know anything about him. Who is he?"

Healthy Mother Merry Children Happy Home

TO maintain a happy home the housewife must keep in good health. Her duties are many and various, and it seems as if every other member of the family depended very much on her.

"Where is my hat?" cries the boy.

"What did you do with my coat?" asks the daughter.

"I can't find any handkerchiefs," yells the husband.

The housewife is usually the advisor and general manager of the family.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps women to maintain a happy home by keeping them in good health.

Toronto, Ont.—"I suffered for ten years with female organic trouble, neuralgia and indigestion, and was weak and had such back-pains I could hardly walk or stand up at times. The last doctor I had told me he never expected me to be on my feet again or able to do a day's work. One day one of your little books was left at my door and my husband said I should try a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I thank God I did, for it relieved me, and I am now well and strong. I think there is no remedy like the Vegetable Compound for anyone who has my troubles, and have recommended it to my neighbors."—Mrs. HENRY A. MITCHELL, 1767 7th Ave. East, Owen Sound, Ont.

SOCIAL SERVICE ANYONE COULD DO.

The handwriting of a certain well-known woman whom I am happy to call my friend, a very fine specimen of the art, passed under my eye without giving me a pleasant impression in my subconscious mind.

And the reason is this: At the end of my first week as a newspaper woman, on a day, as it happened, of great discouragement because I had failed to get something I had been sent for and had received a call-down from my city editor, a letter came to my editor from that woman praising my work in reporting a city picnic for some thousands of children, of which she had been in charge.

It was a perfectly delightful letter. It said gracious things about both the story and the writer. I think I read it over at least 100 times that day.

She Has Written Hundreds.

And, as I now know, that letter was typical of hundreds of letters that woman has found time to write in the course of a very full and busy life.

What a lovely gift to humanity a custom like that represents!

How often we are touched by a story, helped by a poem, thrilled by reading of a deed of heroism, pleased by a good bit of work by some co-worker on a committee and feel the impulse to tell him or her about it.

And how seldom we convert that impulse into writing!

We haven't the time, we think. If that is the woman of whom I speak.

They Only Take Her a Moment to Write.

Her notes are always short. The one I speak of had only three pages in her very large writing. Often the notes are shorter than that. But they are not written at the moment when she feels the emotion and they have the grace and facility of expression that we all achieve if we strive when the iron is hot.

It is told of Richard Harding Davis that when he read a story by a new writer which pleased him he always wrote him a letter, and when especially pleased, he telegraphed. I

23 THE PROPHET

There is a whole philosophy of happiness given in that sentence for it does not need to apply to love alone. Admire me and appreciate me and tell me so sometimes, is one of the possible extensions of its meaning.

Anyone who would make up his mind to try to express his moments of admiration and affection either orally or by letter as often as possible, would be making up his mind to do a very fine kind of social service.

GOOD TIMES COMING.

"He better times for which we bankers will come this way ere long." It was the good old village banker that gave this advice and song. He sized up every sign and taken, this safest of all men, before the cheerful words were spoken that made me young again. While other people may be driven to tramping logic by the village banker isn't given to talking through his hat. Perchance the tailor or the plumber or other thoughtless loon may think one swallow makes a summer, and whoop around too soon; how different the village banker! he backs no empty boom; he is more apt to see the canker than mark the gaudy bloom. So when he says good times are coming, it feels that they'll arrive, and take my lyre and do more thrumming than any bard alive. The banker's done a lot of dopping, and welshed the pros and cons, and says the night in which we're groping will have the best of dawn. Conditions have been growing ranker than voters well could bear, but you behold, the village banker sees good signs everywhere. And who are we to grouch and grumble when he who wields the dough predicts a great and early tumble in every kind of woe?

"It was the Virus saved her Life."

40, Java Street, Ottawa, 21/9/20.

Dear Sir,

I want to tell about my baby Doris Mabel. She weighed 5 1/2 lbs. when born and appeared healthy then, but began to waste away, and was so poorly that she had to be carried about on a pillow and no food would agree with her.

At the age of two months the nurse advised VIROL added to the feeding; she then weighed 8 lbs., and after a few days she began to improve. The VIROL was continued, and she steadily gained until at nine months she weighed 17 lbs. The nurse at the Health Station said she had very little hope of the baby living, and we're sure it was the VIROL that saved her life. I am enclosing her photo taken at the age of one year and eight months, and you can see if you wish as I am so grateful to your VIROL.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) (Mrs.) W. J. BOOLEY.

Britain and Japan Will Accept Principle.

U. S. Plans For Disarmament Agreeable to Both--Naval Experts Urge Caution--Ulster Proposals Not Acceptable to Government--Thousands Will Starve in Western Canada.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The United States proposals for limitation of naval armaments were today forecasted to-day in a statement on behalf of the British delegation. Japan's acceptance "in principle" at least, has been forecast by statements by Baron Kato and others of the Japanese delegation.

NO DELAY LIKELY.
LONDON, Nov. 14.—A statement issued by a high Government authority to-night declared that the British Government and people would respond in the same generous spirit to President Harding's move, and there would be no delay in giving a searching examination to the proposals for a naval holiday.

A JAPANESE COMMENT.
TOKYO, Japan, Nov. 14.—Satisfaction and admiration comprised the keynote of the first Japanese newspaper comment to-day on the United States proposals for a naval holiday.

BRITISH OPINION.
LONDON, Nov. 14.—The American plan for a ten year naval holiday and scrapping of all but limited number of warships calls for much less sacrifice on the part of Great Britain than by the United States and Japan, is the view of the naval correspondent of the Daily Mail. "The proposed sacrifice," he says, "would be a heavy one for Japan and the United States, but comparatively trifling for Great Britain, as the latter has not incurred any great outlay on the last new ships just ordered. In plain fact the British navy to-day is third in post war ships, and ocean going submarines, the two factors which will probably count for most in future naval warfare. The real question is whether Japan will be content to accept conditions which place her navy in a position of permanent inferiority." Other correspondents point out that Great Britain has already taken the lead in reduction of naval armaments.

Anaemia
Thin, watery blood is no more nourishing than thin, watery milk—skim milk.

But you can soon enrich thin blood, overcome the anaemic condition and build up the whole system by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. F. G. Simmons, 42 Curtis St., Brantford, Ont., writes:

"For about eight years I suffered from anaemia. My circulation was poor, my gums and lips were pale, and my hands and feet were always cold. I was nervous and unable to sleep well. I had frequent headaches, seemed restless and easily worried or irritated. There was a buzzing sound in my ears. Indigestion was also one of my complaints, and I often was attacked by weak spells. I went to all doctors, who told me I was anaemic, but as I did not get any better I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after the first box I felt brighter and my headaches completely disappeared. I continued using the Nerve Food for quite a while. I am quite well now, and I heartily and gratefully recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to people suffering as I did before I used this splendid medicine."

her progressive scrapping of warships since the Armistice having amounted up to last April to more than 500 vessels, of which these hundred were destroyers. Most of the naval writers are obviously taking time to digest and consider the proposals outlined by Secretary Hughes and that fat little expert, as distinct from editorial news was published here.

NEXT SESSIONS PROGRAMME.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—With the next general session of conference on limitation of armaments, scheduled for to-morrow, the heads of various delegations hoped to agree to-day on at least a tentative programme for procedure. While spokesmen of Japan and Great Britain confined themselves to guarded comments on Secretary Hughes' naval reduction proposals, the United States delegation was encouraged by attitude of representatives of the other two powers affected, and were confident there was at least no possibility of flat rejection of the plan, and that it would form the basis of whatever agreement is reached. Naval officers in discussion of the proposal emphasized as the outstanding feature, the fact that the United States would be left without battle cruisers while Japan and Great Britain would each retain four of these ships, the newest addition to capital fighting craft.

COMMITTEE WORK NOW.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The work of armament negotiations was transferred to-day from open conference to committee rooms after a debate which revealed divergent views on the advisability of giving publicity to the negotiations. One Committee, whose membership will be identical with that of the full conference, was assigned the task of working out a solution of the Far Eastern question. Another, composed of all delegates of the five great powers, America, Britain, Japan, France and Italy was created to take over negotiations on the main topic of armament limitations.

COUNTER-PROPOSALS.
LONDON, Nov. 14.—Informing the Ulster Cabinet that their proposals adopted last week were not acceptable, the British Government to-day forwarded counter-proposals for an Irish settlement to the Ulsterites. Messrs. Sinn Fein sit tight on the side lines. Austin Chamberlain and other Unionist leaders affirm their adherence to promises not to parties to the coercion of Ulster. Chamberlain in a letter to-day says: "It is peace to be secured all parties to this ancient and bitter controversy must show a measure of good will and be prepared for some concessions to the feelings of others." This sentence is typical of appeals for compromise coming from many English papers, which some Ulster papers complain are trying to create an atmosphere of moral coercion.

MONTHS OF NEGOTIATIONS.
LONDON, Nov. 14.—Negotiations among Sinn Fein and Ulster officials regarding the future of Ireland have now entered on a stage in which negotiators are talking of conferences extending over months. This will make it impossible, it is said, for Lloyd George to attend the Washington Conference, which has now attained proportions in British eyes of an event of tremendous and absorbing significance.

RESTORING ORDER.
LONDON, Nov. 14.—Steady progress is being made towards the restoration of order in the disturbed areas of Malabar, the Indian Ocean announced to-day. British Indian forces have undertaken numerous raids, disposing of rebel bands and capturing their supplies, sixty-one rebels have been killed and a large number wounded.

A NEW PARTY AND A NEW LEADER.
Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—It is well known to every voter that everything connected with the Government is done on a supposedly denominational basis. That is each of the three big denominations are represented in all branches of the Government pro rata. Such a parceling out has been going on ever since responsible administration was granted this colony. At any rate that is the theory. The practice, however, does not bear out the assumed hypothesis. Years ago, perhaps, when the Premier and leader of the Government was an Anglican, this equality of denominations may have been more observed than it is to-day, for he it remembered it is over twenty years ago since the Church of England had one of its adherents occupying the position of Prime Minister and leader of the Government. For this reason we will be charitable enough to suppose that is why to-day one-third of the population comprising the members of the Anglican body, have less than their proportional denominational representation in all departments of the Government. Take the House of Assembly to start with. The personnel of that branch of the Legislature is made up of ten Church of England, twelve Roman Catholic and fourteen Methodist, including Salvation Army. The Legislative Council contains four Anglicans, ten Roman Catholics and seven Methodists, with two Anglican vacancies to be filled. Not so very long ago vacant seats in the Council rightly belonging to this denomination were filled by gentlemen of other denominations to suit the political expediency of the moment. In the Executive (Cabinet) there are three (professionally) Anglicans; three Roman Catholics and three Methodists. Conducting the Departments of the Government are three Anglicans, two Roman Catholics, five Methodists (considering that the Prime Minister is also Colonial Secretary) included in the five being two at least who give allegiance to the Salvation Army. And so the tale may be carried on if one were to detail the staffs of each department. Hopelessly outnumbered and kept back from their rightful share of positions under the Government, the Church of England people are beginning to show signs of resentment. In other words they are waking up to the true state of affairs, and ere long they will seek a remedy. If the ecclesiastical authorities will not take the initiative, then the laity in justice to their denominational rights will move, and move to some purpose. The figures we have given are based on the names appearing in the Year Book, and are as accurate as can be arrived at from that not always correct source. It will be seen that in every principal case the Church people have not been given their due. Their rights have been ignored time and again. But now the hour has struck when a change must be wrought. Too long have the Anglicans borne being shut out from their just and equitable rights, and the cry is now arising in this district for an Anglican to lead a party at the polls. That is what Churchmen all around are demanding, and they intend to exercise their claims in the selection of a leader before many moons have passed. Too long have they accepted whatever was handed them without murmuring. Patience has ceased to be a virtue and they no longer will request as a favor, but demand as a right. In 1919, Mr. A. B. Morine, K.C., who for so long and faithfully represented this district was, by the insidious influence of the Fishermen's Protective Union, aided and abetted by the President thereof, beaten at the polls. Yet in his defeat he won a greater victory than those who overcame him. Mr. Morine possesses all the ability, experience and knowledge to make a successful leader. He is, moreover, an Anglican, and has all the courage necessary to control governmental appointments without giving undue favoritism to either denomination. With a new political alignment, a new leader is naturally required. He is, it is believed, ready to hand, and numbers in this Bay are beginning to regret their political antagonism to him and it is quite possible that not many days may elapse ere a largely signed requisition will be forwarded Mr. Morine asking him to make a decision.

Dear Sir,—In your issue of Saturday's date there appeared an article under the heading of "Prohibition in U.S.A." and signed by Mr. Warwick Smith, wherein he states that he has not yet seen in any report of the Wesley Church Literary Association's debate on Prohibition, as to whether the members decided on the respective merits of the Swedish Law and our present Prohibition Law.

In reply, Sir, I wish to state for the information of Mr. Smith, that the decision of the members was that our present Prohibition Law is preferable to the Swedish License Law, which Law, by the way, was found not unsatisfactory even in Sweden, and was abolished, and a bone dry law adopted in its stead.

With reference to our asking for a bone dry law, I may further state that the points at issue were not evaded, as Mr. Smith suggests, but that it was the unanimous decision of the meeting on a resolution introduced after the close of the debate for the evening, a copy of which was published in the "Advocate" the following evening.

Thanking you for space, Mr. Editor, I remain,

Girls, Don't Wash Your Face

Use Liska cold cream instead of any you have never used anything like it. Just try it once, and you will never be without it. Soap and water has a tendency to make the skin rough, and does not cleanse the skin as thoroughly as Liska cold cream. To prove it make this test: Wash your face with soap and water, dry thoroughly, then apply Liska cold cream, massage it well into the skin, then wipe off the superfluous cream with a soft white cloth; examine the skin as you see how much dirt has accumulated thereon. Liska cold cream cleanses, softens and beautifies the skin. For sunburn or after a dusty auto trip there is nothing like it. Its fine after shaving too. Let hubby or brother try it. Just compare Liska cold cream with any other you have ever used, and you will need no further argument to convince you that it's the best. It's put up in tubes, the only sanitary way. Try it tonight. You will be delighted. At toilet counters everywhere including M. Connors, A. W. Kennedy.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—In your issue of last evening, my friend, C.A.E., asks me the question, "If it was not Capt. Edward White Sr., who succeeded Capt. Bert Snelgrove in command of the steamer Hawk, Capt. Wm. Jackman taking command next Spring?"

In answer to my old friend, I emphatically state—"No," and this is the explanation:—

It was in the year 1867, and Capt. Snelgrove arrived in the Hawk on April 9th with 400 seals. Capt. Jackman was in the brigantine Sarah Ann, and arrived with something like 3000 seals, and then took charge of the Hawk on the 2nd trip, arriving in St. John's on 18th of May with 1500 seals.

The next year, 1868, Capt. Jackman was in the Hawk again—the 1st trip he landed 8,500 and on the 2nd trip 2,200. The next Spring (1869) he was first in, arriving on 25th March, 1st trip, with 9,000; the 2nd trip, on April 17th with 4,000, and the 3rd trip on May 18th with 500. As I said before, his success followed him to the end of his career. I thank your correspondent for his kind reference to myself.

How fine cooks make cream soups to-day

Let Your Grocer Be Your Milkman

After eating a rich cream soup somewhere, do you sigh and say to yourself "if I could only afford to use real cream, I could serve soup like that, too!"

The chances are that the soup you would like to duplicate was not made with cream at all. For many fine cooks have learned a culinary secret that makes of cream soups a banquet dish at every day cost.

The secret is—make them with Libby's Evaporated Milk.

For twenty years Libby has worked to give a finer and richer milk to consumers. Their plans were far-reaching. First they sought out the finest pasture lands in America. There they encouraged the breeding of splendid milk herds and the use of all the appliances and practices of scientific dairying. And there they established their milk condenseries so equipped as to assure absolute purity and cleanliness.

At those condenseries the whole milk from the fine herds, with the cream left in, is canned for you. Half the moisture is taken from it by evaporation. Nothing is added to it. So you have in this milk just the rich, pure product of the finest cows, but with twice the food value, twice the butter fat, of ordinary milk.

This milk makes cream soups so smooth, so rich, so mellow that they taste like the soups made by extravagant cooks.

Used in coffee, this milk gives a creamy richness at half the cost of cream.

Try it in your favorite recipe where cream or milk is called for.

Your grocer has it or can get it for you.

Time to Be Up and Doing.

We freely yield this column to-day to an esteemed contributor, who discusses the present situation in a manner that should prompt the Government to get immediately busy in working out plans for the relief of those who suffered so severely during the October storm. The article itself needs no comment, and we commend it to our readers in the same good faith with which the author indites it. Covering the whole existing situation, the writer puts it squarely up to the Government to redeem past errors and prove to the country that the best interests of the population will be considered and solidified by such methods as will commend themselves to the whole colony. It is within the power of the administration to perform good service. Let them see that no form of political expediency will militate against their future arrangements for the public weal, and let them further remember and cultivate the sentiment expressed in every issue of that one-time organ of the Fishermen's Union—but now no longer so—The Evening Advocate, "To every man his own."

It is now high time for serious consideration to be given to the conditions at present prevailing throughout the country and also to the very serious problems which we shall be compelled to face during the coming winter. I have no intention, when briefly discussing the situation in this article, of writing in a pessimistic strain, but I cannot see what there is to be gained by avoiding the truth. It is an unfortunate fact, and a well known one at that, that the economic status of our country is in a bad way. I am not one of those who are of the opinion that we can never completely recover from our financial distress, but I do think that recovery will be slow and probably painful. The cause of our present precarious condition has been put down to various sources. Some think that the Coaker Fish Regulations are responsible, others that it is merely the reaction and slump which we, in common with the rest of the world, have inherited from the war. Either of these reasons, when given without the other, is merely the expression of opinion of one whose mind is politically biased. I cannot agree with either of them individually, but I think that if there be an equal division of responsibility placed on both, then we shall have found the true solution. Now, it is only logical to conclude that when one is faced with a difficulty, it is necessary to trace its origin before it can be combated. Unfortunately, however, whilst we are aware of the cause of our economic distress, we are not in a position to use this knowledge to avert further disaster or to relieve the present state of affairs at once. Other means will have to be found and the best brains of the country will have to be concentrated on the problem.

EXISTENT CONDITIONS. While this year, those merchants who were in a position to purchase fish will find themselves in a sounder state financially than they were last year, the lot of the individual fisherman has in many settlements become considerably worse. This particularly applies to those districts where no fish were obtained, or which were visited by the recent storm. The "fishery" this year was below the average. That this should have happened at this time was most unfortunate. But if the catch in every settlement had been merely an average one, things would not be so bad. The trouble was that, whilst some settlements did well, others did not see a sign of fish for the season. And now distress is abroad in some places whilst in others, the people are in fairly comfortable circumstances. As if conditions were not bad enough, the storm which raged on October 28th, made matters infinitely worse, and settlements which otherwise would have been all right, were devastated and many of the inhabitants were ruined. In many cases immediate relief is necessary, but there again there is a difficulty. Not so much because the money spent for relief purposes can ill be spared as because of the impracticability of reaching some of the outlying settlements. But there is a still more delicate question to be handled. As I have said, the lot of the fishermen is in some cases good, in others very bad. But what is to be done during the winter to provide relief for those men who have been doing relief work all the summer on the Bedge and other roads? A plan to provide work for these men is now under consideration by the Government, but it is going to be a by no means easy problem to find a solution. Logging at Grand Falls has been cut down to a minimum; the mines at Bell Island can only employ a few men, and there seems nothing else to be done but to have more Government pit props cut. That may be all very well, but it must be realized that this practically amounts to charity for the reason that those pit props cut last year for relief purposes, are still unused.

And now, as to affairs in St. John's itself. The number of men lacking employment in the city to-day is enormous, but would not be so bad were it not for the fact that men are constantly pouring in from the outports in search of work. A fair amount of fish is being handled along the waterfront at present and this is providing a certain amount of employment but not enough. Factories are still closed, every business is being run with a minimum staff, and consequently hundreds are left to walk the streets. How these people are going to exist during the winter is a question to which an answer must soon be found. One thing is certain, and that is that we cannot have a repetition of the disturbances which occurred last year. There must be no necessity for parades of unemployed. Steps must be taken to obviate another siege of the Municipal Council. How this is to be accomplished is a problem which will not be decided in a moment, but the lessons learned last year should prove of value in solving it. If arrangements are made for relief work, then it must be seen that full value is obtained for all monies expended. We are not so wealthy that we can afford to give something for nothing.

A SERIOUS SITUATION. Now it is useless to blind ourselves to the seriousness of the situation. I have merely given a brief sketch of existent conditions but they are too well known to require further elaboration. In painting this picture of affairs as they are at present, I have not, so far as I know, been guilty of any exaggeration. I am not a blue ruinist. I do not wish to be thought one, and what I have written has been done with sincerity of purpose. No matter what may be said to the contrary, the fact remains that conditions have in no way improved over those of last year. We are still facing a crisis. When, however, these problems are dealt with this year, different measures will have to be adopted to see us through.

There has been too much politics. The Government sat silent last year under a storm of hostile criticism and showed the weakness of their position by maintaining a story silence. On the other hand, the Opposition criticised the actions of the Government, in the majority of cases justly, but although they talked of all they would have done if they had been in power, they did not offer one valuable suggestion. This is not a time for party politics, and the quietest action is realized, one quicker will we get on the road to financial recovery.

Of all the many mistakes made by the Government, probably the most serious was that in connection with the Badger Road. The road may or may not be of value, but it is very doubtful if more than ten per cent. of the three hundred and fifty thousand dollars expended, was actually worked out. The men who worked on the road seemed to have the idea that because they were in the employ of the Government they need not work. Be that as it may, the fact to be faced now is that whilst these men earned enough to keep them for the time being, they were unable to save anything against the winter. If the Government had spent an equal sum of money in helping these men out for the fishery, the situation would not be so serious. Out of all the large amount expended, practically no benefit was derived.

professional community should be formed and they could give their attention to the matters in hand and possibly evolve a plan which would see us through the crisis. All hope of recovery is not gone. There is no need for any to take the extreme pessimistic view. The one thing that is necessary, however, is that a start should be immediately made towards defining some programme which will tide us over the winter and place us firmly on the highway which will lead to an improvement in our economic status.

Dr. Grenfell and the C. L. B.

It has recently transpired that the organizer of the C. L. B. in Newfoundland was Dr. W. T. Grenfell. In 1920 Dr. Grenfell was discussing at the home of Mr. W. C. Job the C. L. B. which had just been organized in England, and he recommended the starting of a branch here. Mr. Job was so impressed that he arranged for Dr. Grenfell to meet the Rev. Mr. Thompson and Captain Melville, so that the matter could be further discussed. As a result of this meeting, Dr. Grenfell wrote to England for particulars concerning the organization and these he handed to Mr. Thompson. It was shortly after this that the Newfoundland Regiment of the C. L. B. was established.

List Growing.

The list of candidates for Councillors in the forthcoming Municipal Election is growing daily. Already some twelve men, not including those of the present Commission, are seeking the votes of the municipality. The latest to offer himself is Mr. Edward Spurrill, Tailor.

Department Besieged.

Ever since the Department of Public Works announced that it required 1800 barrels of potatoes and 1000 barrels of turnips for the various public institutions, it has been besieged by farmers looking for orders. There has been a good crop of these vegetables this year and there seems to be considerable anxiety on the part of farmers to dispose of them. Nearly every minute of the day the Minister of Public Works has to deal with the many who apply for orders.

Civil Court.

Several civil cases occupied the attention of Judge Morris in the Central District Court to-day. The case of a captain of a vessel who is suing his owners for board money came up for hearing, but had not been concluded up to adjournment. The case in which two motorists are concerned will be heard this afternoon and will likely be productive of considerable interest.

Relieving Districts.

The various representatives of districts ravaged by the storm of October 28th, are authorizing the rebuilding of roads so as to make them passable. In the district of Twillingate, only five or six settlements have reported and news is still awaited from other places in the district. The same applies to several other districts visited by the storm. The reason for this lack of news is unaccountable, but every settlement will report before long if at all damaged.

Candidate for Mayor.

HON. TASKER COOK. The large number of influential citizens who have been requesting Hon. Tasker Cook to offer himself as a candidate for Mayor in the forthcoming elections, have been successful and Mr. Cook has consented to their request. He has been promised the support of a strong committee which is now at work organizing for the campaign, and an announcement of a policy will be made public within a few days.

Trouble at Placentia.

MERCHANTS LOOKING FOR MONEY. From reports recently received, Placentia merchants are putting in retainers against the money due men working on the Colinet Road. These retainers are being put in against old debts. Legally, this can be done under private contract although, under government contract, it would be illegal. Morally, this action is most unfair, as the men working on the Colinet Road are doing relief work. The Department of Public Works has asked for a list of the names of those tradesmen responsible for these retainers, and if they continue this practice, their names and the circumstances under which the money was collected, will be published. The work on the Colinet Road is progressing favourably.

The Road-de-Luxe.

MAY NOT PUBLISH REPORT. "There is a probability of certain grave charges being brought, and I question the advisability of publishing the report of the commission of enquiry into the Road-de-Luxe, if legal proceedings are to be taken," said Mr. W. B. Jennings, Minister of Public Works, to the Telegram this morning. Mr. Jennings said he had not received any communication from the Municipal Council calling his attention to the report. This communication, when received, might have some bearing on the matter of publication. Up to the present he had not had a chance to read the report, but would do so during the day and would then confer with the Justice Department concerning it. Mr. Jennings said that if, in opinion, the charges warranted legal proceedings, his department would ask that they should be taken.

Closing Branch Lines.

RESIDENTS PROTEST. The Reid N.D. Co. are closing down the Bonavista, Trepassay and Bay de Verde branch lines on January 8th, 1922. Mr. R. C. Morgan, General Manager, told the Telegram this morning that this decision was final and was necessitated by the Bury report, adopted in its entirety in the Railway Bill passed at the last session of the House.

Rumours were current that complaints had been made to the Railway Company, protesting against the closing down of these branch lines, as owing to the stringencies of the times, few people could afford to lay in winter supplies. Mr. Morgan said that no complaints or protests had been received by him, but that he had heard that an indignation meeting was likely to be held at Bonavista. It appears that no matter how fine the weather conditions remain along the line, and despite the fact that there may be no impediment to operating these branch lines on schedule, the Railway Act must be adhered to and the branch lines must close down on the date fixed. Some method of helping those unable to obtain supplies through lack of means will have to be found or serious consequences may result.

Own Your Own Home for Less Than You are Paying Rent.

For $600 cash down we build a nice plain 6 room $1,800 house and give 10 years to pay the $1,200 balance. Payments in principal and interest will average $14.40 per month for the 10 years, when payments cease and buyers own their own homes.

We build up to $3,500 house on this plan. We accept $900 on a $2,700 house; the monthly payments for 10 years to own this averages $21.60 per month. The actual rent on the $1,800 house is $4.40 per month, as $10.00 per month or $120 per year applies to paying the principal.

On the $2,700 house, payments on principal is $15.00 per month or $180 per year, rent therefore only $6.60 per month. See the $2,500 bungalow we are now erecting on Mount Royal Avenue—$800 down and $20.37 per month for 10 years is the price to own this beautiful home. We are in a position to give good service and value; we operate our own saw mills on the West Coast, also our own factory on Plank Road. We have one million feet of splendid sound, clear lumber of all kinds now in the city, including clear Fir Clapboard.

To parties wishing to build their own home, we supply lumber on 10 years' credit, taking first lien on the building. Purchasers of lumber of all kinds will find our retail prices low. THE AIMS OF CHINA.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15. China's delegation to the Washington Conference will present proposals looking to a settlement of Far Eastern problems as far as China is concerned, based on the following general principles: Dr. Wellington Koo, Ambassador to Great Britain, and a member of the delegation said yesterday, "on the rehabilitation of China depends the peace of the Far East. China must be enabled to work its economic salvation through the development of the country's immense natural resources. China's territorial integrity must be guaranteed and safeguarded against aggression from other nations, and further inroads through foreign concessions put an end to. China's needs are so many that it would be unreasonable to expect to accomplish everything at this conference.

ULSTER STANDS ALONE!

LONDON, Nov. 15. Initiative in Irish Conference peace negotiations is again in the hands of Mr. Lloyd George. Counter proposals made by Ulster cabinet ministers were rejected last night by British delegates. Negotiations have entered upon a stage, which, it is thought, will lead to extended conferences covering probably several months time.

GENERAL SATISFACTION.

LONDON, Nov. 15. General satisfaction is expressed in newspapers this morning at reports from Washington that British and Japanese delegation to Disarmament Conference are prepared to accept, in principle, Hughes proposal for a ten year naval holiday, and scrapping of all but a limited number of warships. It is freely recognized that United States offers to make sacrifices both in money and aspirations which are greater than she asks the other two nations.

At the same time it is remarked that Great Britain, as a far scattered empire, is in quite a different position than the self-contained United States, and circumstances are conceivable in which Great Britain might be called upon to defend the British Isles, and at the same time to protect outlying parts of the empire, as well as guard trade and food routes. There are some indications of reluctance among the naval experts to agree to the proposal that Great Britain scrap four post-war battleships of the Hood type, contracts for which were recently placed. These, it is contended, are superior to any so far projected by United States and cancellation of contracts would immediately place Great Britain in an inferior position to the United States as regards battleship strength. The point is also made that any arrangement made in Washington should permit Dominions to build cruisers in addition to those Great Britain possesses.

Famous Novelist's Happy Memories.

In "Memoirs of a Clubman" (Hutchinson) Mr. G. B. Burgin, the famous novelist, tells many good stories about authors, editors, playwrights, actors, and others whom he has met during his varied life.

"Biting Rocks." He says that on one occasion Lord Tennyson took a young girl into dinner who had written a few novels. "Well, my dear, what do you do for a living?" asked the great man. The girl was so embarrassed by this unexpected inquiry that she murmured, "I bite rocks."

Valentine Pasha. Soon after he left school Mr. Burgin went to Canada, and later went out to Constantinople as secretary to Valentine Baker Pasha. Baker Pasha was an extraordinarily brave man. On one occasion a Turkish officer had quarrelled with him, and said as much as he dared about Englishmen's bravery, or the lack of it. Baker Pasha thought for a moment, then took up a copper pot and poured out two cups of coffee.

"Dare you drink one?" he said to the Turk, and drank of his own. The Turk drank the other cup, and asked how drinking this particular coffee was a test of bravery.

"Simply this," said Baker Pasha. "I have just learned that the magnificent carpet made of pure silk, and very old. I would have brought you a carpet," he said. "I would have brought it before, but I could not steal one good enough for you after all that you have done for me."

The missionary protested that it was too valuable a gift, and said it would give him great pleasure if the chief would restore it to its lawful owner. "That's impossible," said the chief. "Why?" asked the missionary.

"Well, you see, Hakim, he valued his carpet so much that I had to cut his throat before he would consent to part with it."

"But you can restore it to his relatives."

"Oh, no, I can't," he was on a pilgrimage to Mecca, and no one knew who he was or anything about him."

So the missionary ended by accepting the carpet.

Don't Shorten Your Lease of Life.

A Month's Suffering From Dyspepsia or Constipation Shortens Your Life By Two Months.

The stomach is the motor of life—food is the fuel, the stomach is the laboratory where combustion and the resulting changes take place. Therefore, digestion is the indispensable function, the absolute necessity to keep up the "vital fire."

Any trouble of the digestive tract affects the entire organism, and if this trouble is allowed to continue for any length of time it brings on most serious conditions that may often result in death. That is why it can be said without exaggeration that a month's suffering from dyspepsia or constipation shortens your life by fully two months.

If you are suffering from loss of appetite, nausea, pains in the bowels, heartburn, sense of fullness or weight in the stomach, or any one of the numerous ills resulting from the poor functioning of the digestive organs, take one or two "Gastronals" after meals.

They will cleanse your system, purify your blood and generally tone your digestive organ. "Gastronal" is a new scientific discovery that is specific in all troubles of the digestive tract.

Each box contains 50 Gastronals, each one bearing its own name—see that you get full count. If your dealer cannot supply you, address remittance direct to Dr. J. O. Lambert, Limited, 396 St. Antoine Street, Montreal. The largest manufacturers of Cough Syrup in the British Empire. nov15,tu,tf

A Levelled World.

If all the hills on the earth were used to fill in all the valleys, we should have a world as smooth as a billiard ball, completely covered with an ocean 700 feet deep. That depth is called the "mean sphere level."

The Atlantic ocean has an average depth that differs little from that level, for, compared with the other great oceans, it has an unusually large area of comparatively shallow water. First comes the shelf-like "continental slopes"; then follows, at much lower level, a vast plain of a uniform, dull-greyish-buff color, flat and featureless as the desert, unmarked except by an occasional rock or wreck, or a recently laid cable. This plain continues with hardly a break until it reaches the great mid-Atlantic ridge that extends from Iceland as far south as 53 degrees south latitude, and that roughly bisects the ocean. The ridge runs almost parallel with the eastern contour of Europe and Africa. Occasionally the ridge rises above the surface. The Azores, St. Paul's Rocks, Ascension Island, the island of Tristan da Cunha, and the Gough Islands are all parts of it.—Christian Science Monitor.

CARD!

To all the Voters of the City

At the request of every second man I meet I have decided to offer myself as a candidate at the forthcoming Municipal Election. From previous experience I have decided to make this the only appeal I shall make. Should you favour me with a seat I will do all I can, with the help of the other Councillors whom you may elect, and your co-operation, to make St. John's a brighter and a cleaner city.

Yours truly, S. G. COLLIER.

TO THE Municipal Voters of the City of St. John's.

Having decided, at the request of many friends, to be nominated as a Candidate for the approaching Municipal Election, I therefore solicit your vote, and more particularly your influence, to help elect me to the Council Board. Owing to existing conditions, it is impossible at present to suggest any line of thought or action relative to the improvement of the city's condition, but if elected thereto, I shall endeavor to prove by studious and strict attention to my duties that your confidence has not been misplaced. I am as yet an untried man in public life, but it is my purpose to prove to you, if elected, that you have honored an individual who will prove his gratitude by head and heart and unflinching work.

Harbor Grace Honors Heroic Son.

"From the Poppies of France now sleeps the late Corporal J. T. Kennedy, beneath his own native soil."

Thus far a large number of bodies of those who were killed in action whilst serving with the United States army during the great war, have arrived at the U.S.A. from France for burial in their own native land, and among the number was one of our Harbor Grace boys, viz., Corporal John Thomas Kennedy of Bear's Cove. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kennedy, on enquiry from the Militia authorities at New York as to burial, requested that the remains of their son be forwarded to his home town. On Monday, accompanied by Corporal M. L. Moseley, A.E.F., who had charge of the body from New York, it arrived by S.S. Rosalind in St. John's and was sent on here. On Monday night the corpse of the young hero arrived at his home town. Notwithstanding the fact that the train was not on time, a large concourse of people had gathered at the station. The Returned Veterans under the direction of Flight-Lieut. A. E. Parsons, met and arranged to take charge of the remains and accordingly marched to the station. When the train pulled in and the casket, covered with the Union Jack, Stars and Stripes and floral tributes was reverently borne to the hearse, there reigned among the large number present "a stillness that could be felt." The gathering seemed as one, in thought, with a special respect to the "Flanders Fields" where "Poppies grow, between the Crosses, row on row," and the other spots, which mark the resting places of our brave lads, from far and near, who fought and fell that we might enjoy the blessings of freedom, health and home. At the station the procession lined up and, wended its way to the dead hero's home at Bear's Cove, where on arrival the casket was placed by the soldiers and sailors attending. The next day, Tuesday, all places of business closed for the afternoon, in respect and honor to the young townsman, whose remains were to be laid at their last resting place at that time. At two o'clock the Veterans met at the Town Hall and formed up under command of Lieut. A. E. Parsons and proceeded to the house, and after a service was held there by the Rev. W. H. Browning, the casket was taken from the house and in the following order the procession moved to the Methodist Church:—

- Soldiers and Sailors (War Veterans)
- Squad of Police
- Guard of Honor (Veterans)
- Rev. W. H. Browning
- Hearse
- Father and brother of deceased
- Relatives
- Corporal M. L. Moseley, U.S. Army
- Citizens.

Outside the church and within crowds had gathered, and it may be said it was one of the largest funerals seen here for years. The church was completely packed with people, anxious to pay their last tribute of respect to one of the fallen brave; standing space there even being availed of. As the Dead March in Saul was being played the casket was taken into the church. The Pastor, Rev. W. H. Browning, and Rev. F. S. Coffin of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, conducted the service; the reading of the Scriptures fitting to the occasion, and singing of three hymns followed, viz.—

- (1) "O God our Help in Ages Past."
- (2) Kipling's Hymn—"Least We Forget."
- (3) "Nearer my God to Thee."

The Pastor in his address spoke in words of comfort and pride to the parents, whose gallant son, by his death, like many other brave lads "indelibly stamped his name on the pages of time," and prayed that this war, which has not long ended, may be the termination of wars. The Dead March in Saul again being played, the casket borne on the shoulders of six of his comrades-in-arms, was taken out of the church and the procession again lined up and wended its way down Water Street and up Carbonear Road to the Methodist Cemetery. The service at the graveside was conducted by the Pastor, and after the body was committed to Mother Earth, the first party under Sergeant George Webber, gave the final salute of three volleys, while Bugler L. Taylor of Carbonear, sounded the Last Post. Thus, with full military honors, was laid to rest our young townsman, the late Corporal John Thomas Kennedy, one of Terra Nova's bravest and best. Tom, as he was familiarly known, was the son of Andrew and Martha Kennedy of Bear's Cove. He was born here October 19, 1894, and spent the greater number of his boyhood days in this town. Some years ago he went to New York, where he took a position in the automobile business. When the call to duty came, he enlisted in the U.S. Army, and on October 4, 1918, with the 5th Machine Gun Battalion, at the Battle of St. Mihiel, he was killed. Besides his parents, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. W. McNeill of this town; Miss L. Kennedy, who is an officer in the Salvation Army, and now at Lamaline; two brothers, Clarence at home; Alex, who saw considerable active service whilst in the Naval Reserve and is now serving on S.S. "Kyle." The home-coming of their son and brother's body has opened the wound that has been caused by the loss of their dear one, but it will be a great source of comfort to them to know that they are enabled now to visit his last resting place, and place thereon floral tokens of love and remembrance. The War Veterans, under the management of Flight-Lieut. Parsons and Lieut. R. B. LeDrew, are to be complimented on the able manner in which they carried on affairs in respect to their late comrade-in-arms, and the town may justly feel proud of her returned heroes. Nothing lacked in making the funeral what it ought to be. Wreaths covered the casket; there being one sent from the G.W.V.A., St. John's, one from the Soldiers and Sailors of the town, and one from the local Women's Patriotic Association; also a large number from other sources. The military funeral of the late Corporal Kennedy will long be remembered in the second city—the old town of Harbor Grace. And, of our dead hero, we may say:—

"On deathless scroll 'tis written,
'He died that others might live.'

NOT AN ISSUE IN NEWFOUNDLAND.

(Ottawa Citizen, Nov. 7th.)
Doubt as to the earnestness of statesmen in seeking to make future wars avoidable was expressed by Sir Patrick McGrath, of St. John's, Newfoundland, in his interesting address to the Canadian Club of Ottawa on Saturday. Sir Patrick thought that the people in common should demand that active measures were taken to see that it was not necessary to sacrifice thousands of men on the altar of war again.

The subject of his address was "Newfoundland of To-day." It was listened to with deep interest by a distinguished gathering, including His Excellency Lord Byng. The speaker surveyed Newfoundland's past and explained her position at present. He made the statement that no one in Newfoundland to-day seriously considered confederation with Canada.

Mr. Desbarats, president of the club, was in the chair and introduced the speaker. In doing so he spoke of the fine qualities of Sir Patrick, his career and his fitness for telling them about his native land. Sir Patrick first of all expressed pleasure at the presence of His Excellency the Governor-General and said that he hoped Baron Byng would visit Newfoundland in the near future. Turning to his subject, Sir Patrick gave some interesting figures and facts regarding his country. There were less than 300,000 inhabitants, and this after nearly four hundred years as a British colony. One of the chief reasons that there were not more was that Newfoundland has been regarded merely as a summer settling place for the fishermen who used to come over each year from Devon and Somerset in England. It was not intended to be settled, and edicts were issued to that effect. It was once a penal offence to grow potatoes on the island. There had been no immigration, and Sir Patrick made the interesting statement that the inhabitants were over 90 per cent. British stock and native born. He spoke of the fisheries, the mail industry, the mines and the pulp industry.

He referred next to Confederation and gave reasons why Newfoundland was not one of the Canadian provinces. In the conference of the '60s it had been thought that the country's interests would be sacrificed if it accepted the Union. In 1895 another attempt to bring Newfoundland in failed for the matter of $60,000. "Nobody in Newfoundland to-day," said Sir Patrick, "would seriously consider confederation. We believe we can do better alone. Farming is the basic industry in all the Canadian provinces. Ours is fishing. We think that Ottawa would not be able to appreciate our viewpoint." He next spoke of Newfoundland's trade, and thought that Canadian business interests should get after it more aggressively.

Not Securing Peace. Turning to affairs in general, Sir Patrick said that he felt that statesmen were not doing all they could to prevent more wars and to secure the peace so dearly gained. He believed that Allied statesmen have been deciding peace with one eye on the matter in hand and the other on their constituencies. Whether or not they agreed with Mr. J. M. Keynes that the British house of commons was a collection of hard-faced men who had done well out of the war, he felt that the people in common were not asserting themselves as they should, so as to make war, so far as was humanly possible, impossible in the future. If they were to avoid wars in the future, there should be some man-

BRIGADE WEEK OFFENS.

Brigade Week was given added impetus by the success which attended last night's dance in the C.C.C. Hall. The affair was under the management of the Warrant and N.C.O.'s Mess, and was their share in the Brigade Week Programme. About 140 couples were present and all seemed to thoroughly enjoy themselves. The Hall was most tastefully decorated and at the southern end, were the letters C.L.B.C. made in multi-coloured lights. The C. L. B. C. dance orchestra under Capt. A. Morris was in fine fettle and discoursed excellent music during the evening, responding generously to the frequent calls for "encores." The catering was in the hands of Mrs. W. B. Fraser and her energetic helpers of the Ladies' Auxiliary and was of a very high order. During the evening Lieut. Colonel R. F. Goodridge and many of the Battalion officers were present. The dance has given Brigade Week a fine start and having gone over the top in good style, there seems every reason to believe that the objective will be gained. To-night the big Gymnastic display will take place in the Armory and a number of interesting and humorous events have been arranged. This display is under the management of the C.L.B. Athletic Association.

enches attended by the premiers of England, France and Italy.

Felleon Cattley, a prominent banker of Brussels and R. Everts, Belgian Minister to Peking, China, accompany the envoys.

Another important personage in the Belgian delegation is Lieut-General Baron Jules Marie Alphonse Jacques, whose gallant defense of Liege with General Leman was the admiration of the Allies early in the war.

In addition there are several clerks, translators and counsellors. Prince Yasuhiro Tokugawa, head of the Japanese delegation to the Washington Conference on the Limitation of Armaments, is president of the House of Peers and one of the most powerful and popular statesmen in Nippon.

If the imperial dynasty had not been restored to full authority with the resignation in 1867 of the last of the shoguns, or heads of the feudal system, he would to-day be the shogun or "great lord" of Japan in place of the present Emperor. The Prince, who is 58 years old, has been noted not only for his efforts to advance the welfare of Japan but for his devotion to works of charity. He has been characterized as "a democratic aristocrat and a man of peace and common sense."

The Prince speaks English fluently, having been educated in England, and has been a leader in the adoption of Western customs. He has never had any military training or connections. He has two favorite diversions, wrestling and singing old Japanese folk songs. This is his fourth visit to the United States, the last having been made in 1910 when he was on his way to Europe and when former President Taft entertained him at the White House. Prince Tokugawa has been mentioned as the next probable premier of Japan. Vice-Admiral Tomosaburo Kato, Minister of the Navy, the second member of the delegation, was the right-hand man of Admirals Togo and Kammura in the Russo-Japanese War. He is 62 years old, was educated at the Naval College and later became a professor there. For his services in the great war he was decorated with the Grand Cordon of the Rising Sun. He has been at the head of the Japanese navy since 1915 or during the Okuma ministry.

Baron Kijuro Shidehara, ambassador to the United States and formerly Vice Foreign Minister of Japan, the third representative of the Japanese Government, graduated from the law college of the Tokio Imperial University in 1895 and has held numerous diplomatic posts. He was minister to the Netherlands at the outbreak of the war. Previously he had been counsellor to the Japanese embassy in Washington. He is 49 years old and was educated in agriculture and commerce before taking up the study of law. Baron Shidehara is a Knight of the Order of Sacred Treasure.

Viscount Yasuya Utsuya, Foreign Minister, former ambassador to the United States, Russia, Austria-Hungary and China, the fourth envoy, is the eldest son of the late General Uchida, a samurai of the former Kumamoto clan. His wife is a daughter of Shozaburo Doguro, a millionaire Naraken who was educated at Vassar College. The Viscount is 65 years old and was educated at the College of Law of the Tokio Imperial University. He was decorated by the Emperor with the First Order of Merit for his diplomatic service abroad.

The personnel of the staff accompanying "The Big Four" as the envoys are called, is as follows:

Senosuke Tokota, Director of the Legislative Bureau; Masamasa Hanjima, Vice Minister for Foreign Affairs; Taneo Matsudaira, Director of the European and American Bureau, Foreign Office; Kiroku Hayashi, Counsellor of the Foreign Office; Toru Takao, Consul General.

Secretaries of the Foreign Office: Eiichi Kimura, Yotaro Sugimura, Shuichi Sako, Eiji Ama, Yoshio Iwate, Yoshio Shiratori, Eiji Kishida, Isago Gomyo, Hirofumi Terajima.

Translators: Tsunetaro Yamamoto, Tsuneo Yoniyama, Chuchiro Harada, Jotaro Takayama.

Chauffeurs: Yokiichi Okajima, Thuruya Tamaki.

Special appointees of the Foreign Office: Sakurata Tate, Eigo Fukai, Katsuji Inahara.

Secretaries of the Department of Finance: Tsunetaka Komuchi, Takeo Kawagoe, Tutaru Tomita, Secretary also of the Foreign Office; Major General Kusuhiko Tanaka, Lieutenant Colonel Noboru Morita, Major Kanichiro, Tashiro, Major Tanehide Furigo, Major Kanichi Nishihara, Captain Takamusu Tsuki, Kanichiro Morisima, Vice Admiral Kanji Kato, Captain Katsuroshi Yamashita, Captain Nobumasa Shimotsugu, Captain Yonji Takeueda, Captain Kichisaburo Nomura, Commander Teichichi Horii, Lieutenant Commander Akira Kuragana, Lieutenant Torao Kuwabara, Lieutenant Yoshihiko Mito, Lieutenant Commander Daisuke Takei, Naval Constructor Kasushi Teiji, Eno-moto, Counsellor for the Navy Department.

Fishermen! Here's the Boot for You-"EXCEL"!

"EXCEL"
Made 'All in One Piece'

"EXCEL" The Fishermen's Friend

All fishermen know from experience what happens to ordinary boots when used in fishing. You've seen how salt water seems to take the life out of rubber and how the uppers crack and the soles wear through in a surprisingly short time.

The "EXCEL" is a different and better kind of boot. It has been made especially to stand up under the unusually hard use a fisherman's boot gets. The rubber and fabric in "EXCEL" boots are of the very highest quality. But it is the special method of curing, under tremendous pressure, that makes the "EXCEL" so wear-resisting. The pressure forces the layers of rubber and fabric together so that they are actually "one-piece", without losing the least bit of the life or resiliency of the rubber. Salt water has practically no effect on "EXCEL" boots. The UPPERS remain pliable and weatherproof, and resist the drying-out action of sun, heat and extreme cold far longer than other boots. Consequently they don't crack anywhere near so quickly. The SOLES are almost wear-proof, because they are made like an Auto Tire, with 8 plies of rubber and fabric welded by tremendous pressure into a "fire-tread" sole that rivals an automobile tire for toughness and durability.

strain. There is not a single feature but what has been proved necessary and desirable by tests of severest use. Your own experience will tell you that a boot with these features simply must be a better boot.

Study this picture. Learn these features. Remember them when you compare "EXCEL" boots with ordinary boots. And remember, too, that very important point which the picture cannot show, namely, that "EXCEL" boots are cured under tremendous pressure, which leaves the rubber pliable, weatherproof and wear-resisting. It is only by the use of this tremendous pressure combined with highest quality materials that the best results are obtained.

Pliable Uppers. Weatherproof and Wear Resisting. Tough Tire Tread Soles. Made "All in One Piece."

"EXCEL" Boots are sold by all reliable dealers from Coast to Coast.

Rev. Dr. Greene PREACHES ON MODERN METHODS OF MORAL SUASION.

At last Mass on Sunday at the Cathedral, the Rev. Dr. Greene preached a sermon which in its ethics as applicable to present day influence used as apologies for moral suasion, was earnestly listened to by the large congregation present, many of whom waited on the good Priest after Mass and heartily congratulated him on his timely and well delivered discourse. The text was taken from the Gospel of the day, Matthew XIII, verses 31st to 35th, "The Kingdom of Heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed which a man took and sowed in his fields, which is the least indeed of all seeds, but when it is grown up it is greater than all herbs and becometh a tree." The doctrine of the Catholic Church is herein expressed as being placed in the hearts of her children, and growing there in its splendid soil of faith and truth is the greatest of all Christian seeds, and becometh a power to men's redemption. Unlike most modern institutions of the day, the Roman Catholic Church does not seek to be officious and spectacular, but in a quiet, unobtrusive, but as certainly winning and triumphant a manner, achieves that good which has made her the ruling power in persuasion throughout the world. The Catholic Church does not force men to goodness of will, she perceives the "humanum est errare" in nature, and by precept (that doctrine of love and human fellowship for all her children) aims and succour which touch the heart.

To restrain man from the side of his propensities to evil by legal issues to make men "good" by legal methods, to ask the law and its servants, the police, to make humanity virtuous and beatific, is to rob religion of its worth and what it is supposed to do. The creed of church that so acts, is a creed or church that must admit defeat of its own powers, for in that appeal to human Government to control what the church itself admits it cannot do, there is an antithesis acknowledged, and the creed and church of God places itself second to the modern legal institutions.

In all this modern method of "compulsory subduction" of personal right, and the apparent "goodness" that results, there is but the camouflage of religion. Legal suasion does not convince, but in men's hearts places a de-stestation and hate for the effort that makes them "good."

True religion does not repress, nor does it enforce or drive; it is dutiful to God, true to its traditions of compassion for the transgressor, and patient in its admonitions, probes to the very hearts and souls of men, and by kindly insistence wins to the nobler cause the finer feelings of the wrong-doer. It is not because the Roman Catholic church has 'appeared—or does appear inert, apathetic and less effusive and spectacular than some of our modern institutions, that she fails of her mission. Through all the centuries she has been the fighting power and foe against evil and asserted her domain as plenipotentiary for good, when most of the modern and advertising institutions of the day had not been heard of. The doctrine she teaches is the doctrine to help men to help themselves from the fundamental faith that is in them and kept aglow in splendid warmth of seal by the church's adequate prayers and teachings. Here is the crux of her instruction. Men will be taught to adhere to truth, to honor, to virtue, and to all things that are good, for the sake of those things, and will disintegrate from all that is evil, because "evil" offends God, robs the soul of its prerogative to immortal happiness, and merits eternal condemnation. The Catholic church is ruled by the "omnium vultu amant" beauty, she believes "there conquers all things," a love that is without dissimulation, hating that which is evil, cleaving to that which is good. This is the law and the Prophets, which is the Roman Catholic church.

Prohibition in U. S. A.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—As I promised in my last letter, I shall now give Mr. Wm. G. Shepherd's opinion on the "Gulp" Stream.

It is really our old friend the Gulp Stream. Its waters being of a deep blue can be easily distinguished from the green coast waters. Steamers bring liquor up from the West India Islands and sail up and down the Stream. Swift motor boats from the shore do the actual smuggling, but by no law can the main supply in the steamers be touched. A dozen such steamers passed his (Shepherd's) motor boat that day. There was always a ship in sight. On some the thirsty ones were drinking and waving their glasses. But they were outside the three-mile limit. (Remember he laid off only one port.) In the city of Savannah a year ago whiskey was scarce. Now it sells for five or six dollars a bottle. In St. John's it costs the same, with the "scrip." In Charleston it costs only three times what it cost before Prohibition. That would make it about four dollars a bottle—Controller's price. In inland towns the high prices still continue for imported whiskey. It has been calculated that over 2,000 small boats and 80,000 automobiles are in the liquor business on the Atlantic coast alone. These do not include the long-distance autos that run inland from the Atlantic or the cars that run southward from Canada, northward from Mexico, and eastward from the Pacific coast.

Florida he considers to be the wettest state in the Union. It will be wetter this year than last. He continues: "In making this statement I am granting that our Prohibition enforcement officers, in general, are doing their best; that our officials at Washington seem to be in dead earnest about Prohibition enforcement. But I base my statement on the fact that, unless the United States Army and the United States Navy are put on the job of keeping Florida and its surrounding waters, as well as the Eastern Atlantic coast, in a state of dryness, there will be no dryness."

In my next letter Mr. Shepherd will tell just why Florida is wet.
Yours truly,
WARWICK SMITH.

TO THE "TOO MUCH TROUBLE" MEN.

If we did but the things that we wanted to, it's little that mortals would ever do; If at "too much trouble" we always shielded And stopped to rest when our strength was tried, If we never went out of our way or stayed Close to our task while our neighbors played, If all that we did was to wear a smile, We'd never accomplish a thing worth while.

Work is the father of all that's good— He gets the fire who will saw the wood, He reaches the top who will dare to climb, With his face set upwards all the time; This you could nail on the highest post; He gets the most who has worked the most, And he who dodges the trouble here Is dodging his chance for a greater sphere.

Do it, whatever the task may be, For it may hold glory you cannot see. What if you'd rather lie late in bed Or go out fishing or play, instead? Few of us here on the earth to-day Would go to work if it paid to play, And 'tis the secret of each man's quest— He gets the best who will give his best.

A fellow must earn what his dream demands, Must pay for his joy with his brain and hands, Must bow to trouble and keep his grin And conquer his whims if he hopes to win. Fortune or glory will never find The man of the "too much trouble" kind. For 'tis the lesson that all must learn, We'll get no more than we're glad to earn.

ROYAL YEAST CAKES

Product of Canada

It was known many years ago that yeast is an excellent thing for the many ills that result from disordered stomach or run down blood condition. Lately eminent scientists have been investigating the matter thoroughly and their conclusions point to the fact that the beneficial effect of yeast has not been overrated. The yeast treatment is very simple and economical and altogether harmless.

Before each meal eat a Royal Yeast Cake, or take a cake dissolved in water or fruit juices. The scientific investigators say that the curative elements in Royal Yeast are the vitamins and nuclei which it contains. It is certainly well worth a fair trial by those who suffer from any of the ailments mentioned above.

PORTER—BOONE.
A very pretty wedding took place at the C. of E. Cathedral Thursday, Nov. 10th at 8 p.m. when William Robert Boone of this city and a member of the staff of A. E. Hickman & Co., Ltd., led to the altar Susie Evelyn Porter, a popular young lady of Kelligrews, but resident in the city for some time. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Canon Field. The bride, who was very prettily attired in a fawn costume with fox fur and hat to match and carried a bouquet of carnations and maiden hair fern, was attended by Miss Annie Porter and Miss Ida Pearl, cousins of the bride, who was given away by Mr. Andrew Payne of the Reid Nfd. Co. The groom was ably supported by Mr. Edgar Courtenay, his cousin, and also a returned veteran. After the ceremony the party motored around Quidi Vid Lake and back to the groom's parents', Bondcloddy Street, where a supper was served. The groom's presents to the brides were gold cuff links, and his present to the bride was a gold brooch, to the bridesmaids gold brooches. The wedding presents received were numerous and useful, testifying to the esteem in which the young couple were held. Games and dancing were kept up till the wee sma' hours of the morning. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Boone many years of happiness.—F.G.

CURIOSITY.
There is an old proverb which says "Curiosity killed the cat." I don't do anything about the cat, but I do do that women in all ages and in all climes, have less a great deal of curiosity about the cat. There are other alternatives. The female tortoiseshell is not to be despised. She will begin to see, not individual but whole constellations. And not especially those who are known just how a woman can be in Shakespeare's days it was evident a show was a very peculiar thing. Nowadays it would be difficult to find a woman who is not to some extent a show. If you are one of those who delight in tormenting girls, then you think you possess a secret. It is the very refinement of torture that you find and you will find it every time. If you satisfy a woman's curiosity she discovers your secret, then your doom is sealed. I may say that Curiosity is, not a woman's friend, but a man's. Even men are possessed with an insatiable thirst for knowledge of things which do not concern them in any other way than because they are in the secret. That is how they get about. A man or woman who starts a secret will inevitably start some story going concerning it, and the actual secret is
