LADY LAURA'S RELEASE

THE STORY OF A SPOILED BEAUTY.

CHAPTER XIX.

The ball was a most brilliant one. Angela seemed to enjoy it thoroughly, and she and her mother were surrounded with admirers. Lady Laura looked radiantly beautiful; but, though she laughed and chatted gaily, her blue eyes were restless, and wandered continually in search of her husband. She did not quite recover her color, and there was something in her smile that to a close observer would have suggested tears. And for what? When she asked herself that question, she was ashamed. A time came when she found herself near Angela, and she hastened to her daughter.

"Angela," she asked, "where is the captain? I cannot see him. Is he in the ball-room?"

Angela looked round with innocent, unconscious eyes.

"I do not see him, mamma. Ah, yes, there he is—near the conservatory door, with Miss Rane."

"I do not wish to stay here any longer," said Lady Laura. "Do you not think it is time we left? We shall be late for Pemburn House."

As plainly as if her mother had spoken them, Angela read her thoughts, read her jealousy and fear. "I am quite willing to go home," she replied.

"Tell the captain I want to speak to him, will you, Angela?"

Much against her will, the young girl crossed the room to him. He was so deeply engrossed in conversation that at first he did not notice her; but Gladys saw her and welcomed her kindly.

"Mamma wishes to speak to you, Captain Wynyard," said Angela, with her usual cold formality.

"I am engaged," he replied, brusquely.

Half an hour afterward he made his way to his wife's side.

"We had better go," she said; "we shall be late for Pemburn House."

But he did not care to leave Gladys Rane.

"I find it so pleasant here," he said, turning away, "that with your permission, I shall stay an hour longer."

CHAPTER XX.

It was not without many a hard struggle that Gladys Rane had compromised with her conscience, and accepted under the name of friendship what she well knew to be love.

She tried to set up to the honorable dictates of her heart. She said to herself that she had loved Captain Wynyard deeply and passionately; but, now that he was married, there could be no question of love between them; still they might surely be friends, even intimate friends. No one could possibly find fault if they were only that.

Yet she knew perfectly well that she ought to have avoided him, that her only safeguard lay in shunning him.

More—knowing that she missed no opportunity of meeting him whenever it was possible. She called it friendship, yet she knew that at the very sight of him her heart beat with a pleasant excitement, that her face flushed with joy.

When he spoke to her, it was as though the depths of her soul were stirred.

She knew that his face was ever before her; that her first thought on waking was of him; that his name was the last word she uttered at night; that her dreams were filled with him; that her whole heart was centered in him; that her whole being was engrossed in him.

Yet, knowing all this, she had not the moral courage to give him up altogether and see no more of him.

It was treading on thin ice; it was a friendship fraught with the most dangerous consequences to her. But she would not think of that side of the question; she only reasoned that, although he was another woman's husband, he would have married her if either of them had had money. He was not happy in his marriage, and if her friendship was a comfort to him he should have it.

So a few weeks ran pleasantly on. The captain was careful to do nothing that could arouse his wife's suspicions. He was kind to her in a careless fashion, and she had not the faintest idea that his whole heart was consumed with love for another woman. He was absent from home a great deal, but then he had so many engagements.

One evening, when he had been dancing with Gladys at the house of a friend, and had taken her afterward into the conservatory, she said to him:

"Do you know, Vance, we have not had a ride together for a long time; and, of all things, I enjoyed most a ride with you. I suppose you are always on duty with her ladyship?"

"I will ride with you to-morrow, if you wish it," he answered, eagerly. "It will be a greater pleasure to me than it can be to you."

"I should like it," she said. "But what will Lady Laura say?" she asked.

"Just what she likes. But there will be no need to tell her. We will not wait for the fashionable hour; let us go in the early morning. You can manage that, Gladys?"

"I will manage it, whatever the cost," she replied; and she did.

They had a long ride together, and both enjoyed it all the more because it was stolen pleasure.

But, seeing her husband looking somewhat tired that evening, Lady Laura said to him suddenly:

"Have you been riding to-day, Vance?"

And he answered quickly, "No."

Later that same evening the captain and his wife attended an "at home" given by one of the leaders of fashion, the Duchess of Everton. Among the guests was an old friend of Lady Laura's, a Mrs. Gilder Langton, a pretty, fashionable woman, who came to her now with a smiling face.

"I have just heard some one say that your ladyship has one of the handsomest husbands in London," she said, "and I am half inclined to believe it is true. I suppose he takes those early rides to preserve his health and beauty?"

"Early rides!" echoed Lady Laura. "I do not see how you can call them early. He rides with the rest of the world."

"It was not noon when I saw him with Miss Rane in the park this morning."

Lady Laura remembered suddenly what her husband had said.

"You are mistaken," she replied; "my husband has not been riding to-day; he told me so."

Mrs. Gilder Langton had not the faintest intention of making mischief, but she did not like to be contradicted, and she knew that she had seen the handsome captain.

"I assure you that he did ride, and with Miss Rane, too. I saw them both."

"You must have been mistaken; it was not Captain Wynyard," said her ladyship; and then some friends joined them and the subject dropped.

Lady Laura, however, did not forget it. When they were in the drawing-room at home—the captain recruiting exhausted nature with his favorite remedy, brandy and seltzer, Lady Laura looking beautiful and stately in her rich velvet and diamonds—she said to him:

"Vance, did you ride this morning?"

Again he answered "No."

"I knew you did not!" she cried.

Mrs. Gilder Langton told me she met you with Miss Rane."

Lady Laura could not help seeing how hotly his face flushed and how fierce was the gleam that came into his eyes.

"Mrs. Gilder Langton is a—"
Then he stopped suddenly and laughed. "She has mistaken some one else for me," he said, more calmly. "I thought that woman could not see."

"She seemed quite certain of it; but I knew you would not be riding with Gladys Rane."

"Certainly not," he answered.

How to wean Baby

The critical time in baby's life is the change over from breast feeding. This is the time when great care is necessary in the selection of baby's diet.

Cow's milk alone cannot take the place of human milk, but Virol contains just those food elements that are necessary to build the body. It is essentially the food for growth.

Virol makes firm flesh, strong bones, good colour.

More than 3,000 Infant Clinics use Virol regularly.

FOR WORK OR AS A "HOME" DRESS.

3809. Here is a very comfortable frock, with graceful lines, in one piece style. The pockets are a useful and attractive feature. The sleeve may be finished in wrist or in elbow length. Figured percale, gingham, drill, linen, serge, mohair, saten, gabardine and taffeta are good for this model.

The Pattern is cut in 6 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. A 38 inch size requires 5 yards of 36 inch material. The width of the skirt at the foot is about 2 yards.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

A MODEL FOR SERVICE AND PROTECTION.

4163. This "easy to make" apron model is nice in unbleached muslin with facings of contrasting material, or, in gingham, chintz or percale. The side seams are free below the hips, but if preferred may be closed their entire length.

The Pattern is cut in 4 Sizes: Small, 34-36; Medium, 38-40; Large, 42-44; Extra Large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A Medium size requires 4 3/4 yards of 27 inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

A SIMPLE "EASY TO MAKE" APRON STYLE.

4276. Figured percale in blue and white, with banding of black bias tape, is here shown. This is a good model for gingham, rubberized cloth, linen, crepe or saten.

The Pattern is cut in 4 Sizes: Small, Medium, Large and Extra Large. A Medium size requires 2 1/4 yards of 36 inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

A PRETTY HOUSE OR PORCH FROCK.

4270. Checked gingham in brown and white is here illustrated. It is trimmed with white piping. Figured voile or percale will also be good for this model. Taffeta or tub silk would be very pleasing, with stitching or embroidery for trimming.

The Pattern is cut in 6 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. A 38 inch size requires 5 1/2 yards of 32 inch material. The width of the skirt at the foot is 2 1/2 yards. To trim as illustrated requires 3/4 yard of 36 inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

A COMFORTABLE WORK DRESS.

4161. It is the little touches in the finish of this garment that will please you—as well as knowing that it is easy to make and comfortable to wear. In seersucker or chambray or a neat pattern of percale it is quite as nice as if made up in gabardine, dimity or dotted Swiss.

It is cut in 7 Sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measure. A 38 inch size requires 5 yards of 36 inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

FOR PORCH OR KITCHEN WEAR.

4161. Trim and neat is the style here portrayed. The development and adjustment are equally simple. Figured percale was used in this instance, combined with white lining.

The Pattern is cut in 7 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 48 inches bust measure. A 38 inch size requires 5 yards of 40 inch material. To make vest, collar and cuffs of contrasting material requires 1 1/4 yard. The width at the foot is 2 1/4 yards.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

TRAINING OF JIMMY McBRIDE

Jimmy McBride was a common sense boy. He had a common sense mother and a common sense father. He had been born and bred in the town of St. John's. He had been taught, what a common sense boy should be, to be honest, and useful, and ought to be. He had been given what men call a "common sense" education. He had been given what men call a "common sense" education. He had been given what men call a "common sense" education.

When you've all the equipment the greatest possess, some men have risen to glory with it. Some men have risen to glory with it. Some men have risen to glory with it. Some men have risen to glory with it. Some men have risen to glory with it.

Jimmy came home with the dirt on his face. He had been out and about. He had been out and about. He had been out and about. He had been out and about. He had been out and about.

When their old age came upon them at last, they were glad to see their children. They were glad to see their children. They were glad to see their children. They were glad to see their children. They were glad to see their children.

When they had the wisdom in dealing with him, they were glad to see him. They were glad to see him. They were glad to see him. They were glad to see him. They were glad to see him.

Other Side of the Story. Following, taken from an English newspaper, is being distributed in form throughout the United Kingdom by a local business man:

It is of interest to recall that following States of the American Union are in default to British creditors for sums borrowed by the British market—for public improvements—which have never been repaid:

Alabama	$1,740,000
Arizona	1,400,000
California	2,540,000
Colorado	1,200,000
Connecticut	1,400,000
Delaware	2,520,000
Florida	1,200,000
Georgia	2,120,000

Alabama is also in default, but details of the amount are not available. West Virginia was in default for $3,048,000, but a settlement was reached in 1920. These money were borrowed for the purpose of raising 40 and 70 million pounds. The principal owing is twelve million pounds while the interest at compound interest total at $150,000,000.

Princess of Wales Visits War Hospital. WAR VETERANS DISFIGURED FOR LIFE, SPENDING THEIR DAYS IN THE INSTITUTIONS.

London, Feb. 15.—The story of a visit made by the Princess of Wales to a hospital where 36 hopelessly disabled war veterans are spending their days is printed by the London Mail.

Seeing 29 of the men and of them his condolences, the Princess asked where the other seven were. He was told that these were hopelessly mutilated that it was not desirable for him to see them.

Princess, however, insisted and attended accordingly took him into the ward. With each of the six who were there the Princess chatted and then asked where the other seven were. He was told that no one was to see this sufferer, who was in another ward. The Princess expressed a desire to see him.

STANLEY DEFEATED.

LONDON, March 4.—The House of Commons failed to secure a seat in the Commons for Lt.-Col. G. F. Stanley, Under Secretary for Home Affairs, in the by-election for the East Division of Wiltshire, necessitated by the retirement of H. Mallaby Dealey. The Liberal candidate H. Johnstone was elected by 14,821 to Col. Stanley's 9,642. Stanley was defeated in the general election last November.

ESSEN HAS WILD NIGHT.

ESSEN, MARCH 4.—Last night Essen experienced the wildest night since the beginning of the occupation and in the early morning hours food stores were looted and others broken into by armed mobs, said to be composed of unemployed. One of the largest cabarets, the Troadero, was held up last night while the entertainment was at its height and several hundred patrons were robbed of their cash. The robbery was carried out by fifteen or twenty men whom the Germans declared were Communists who had taken advantage of the expulsion of the Security Police, which force has not yet been completely replaced by Municipal Police. The city is virtually without police protection at the present time and many of the citizens, in fear of further robberies or violence are arming themselves the best they can. Early this morning a German workman was shot and killed by French sentries, and another German wounded while in the railway yards near the main passenger station in the centre of the city. The French assert the sentry ordered the Germans to halt and when they did not reply he shot to kill in compliance with orders. They charge the Germans with attempting sabotage, but the German authorities maintain that the men did not realize they were encroaching on ground under military control.

FIRST OF HUN FLEET ARRIVES.

NEW YORK, March 4.—The first unit of a rum fleet reported recently to have sailed from England for United States waters was reported off Sandy Hook late today by the United States Coast Guard Service. The vessel is described as a medium sized liner with uniformed officers and crew. Her description is said to answer that of a steamer reported to have sailed from Glasgow with seven hundred thousand dollars worth of liquor.

CONGRESS ADJOURNS.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR FALLING OUT OF HAIR.

Capt. Jones, M.H.A., Taken to Task.

(Editor Twillingate Sun.)

Dear Sir,—I notice by the Advocate of 18th Inst., a message to that paper from Pilley's Island giving account of a public meeting held at that place on the previous night, and addressed by Capt. George Jones and Mr. Boone. It is not to Mr. Boone's vapourings that I wish to refer to as these are worn out repetitions and now well committed to memory by the rev. gentleman, being the one and same recital delivered on every platform. The message states that "Mr. Jones in an able speech scattered to the four winds the theory that 25 per cent. reduction of tariff was possible, and showed that Morine canvassers (meaning delegates of the United Fishermen's Movement) were fooling the people by asking for the impossible. Capt. Jones gave us a mass of facts and figures proving that this reduction was impossible."

I can imagine, Mr. Editor, that our local member must have felt very cheap when but four days after his notable speech, the news went broadcast that this reduction had actually taken place, thanks to the United Fishermen's Movement.

Whom all the credit must be given, both for this reduction and the abolishing of export tax on fish.

I should think, Sir, that the electors all over this district will be absolutely disgusted at the action of our representative in endeavouring to further encourage the Government in continuing to saddle us with our unbearable yoke of taxes, surtaxes and super taxes. Certainly Captain Jones will not dare to face us again within the next two months seeking re-election as guardian of our best interests.

Did not this same Captain Jones, less than four years ago, promise that if elected he would do all in his power to lessen our taxes and advance our interests? Does our member presume he is the embodiment of the Government when he speaks thus? Can Capt. Jones explain why he was not consulted by the Government before this reduction was made, his speech going to prove that he would never have consented for even the slightest reduction in taxation.

Capt. Jones does not feel the pinch of taxation; ah, no. He is drawing between two and three thousand dollars a year wrung from the fishermen, and why should he worry. We, who elected Capt. Jones, expected him to do all in his power, as promised us, to lighten our taxes, but we have been sadly disappointed. Certainly these men of Pilley's Island who signed the message to the Advocate dictated by Messrs. Jones and Boone, must now feel that they stood in their own light and now regret their actions.

Electors of Twillingate District, you now see your member in his true light, and when you see him on your public platforms in the near future you will be in a position to correctly size him up. This district cannot afford to further trust its destinies to men of such stamp as Capt. Jones.

Yours truly, VOTER. Feb. 24, 1923.

Britannia's Honor.

(The Ottawa Journal.) Thank Heaven for Old England! In gold and blood and energy she put most into the war, and now when it is all over, and the time of reckoning has gone, she alone steps up to the world's counter and promptly pays her shot.

She is not doing it without strain. She is burdening her people and manning her industry with taxation. She is playing policeman to the world. On all corners of the map, at colossal cost, she is striving for human liberties and peace. No creditor nation in all history could have more justly asked better terms.

But Britain's word is her bond. She borrowed, and she must pay. That is all. Again we can quote with pride those splendid words of Walter Pater. "It isn't mere accident that such people got so far."

Woman Suffrage.

THE RIGHT TO VOTE.

At the M.C.I. a few nights ago we were permitted to sit and listen to discussion on Woman Suffrage. It was decided that, when women get the vote it will mean that Chivalry will vanish. But what kind of chivalry is it that denies justice and fair play to women? The poor widow who returns home after a hard day's scrubbing, with the pittance which has to pay for rent, food and clothes for her family does not care whether you hold the door open for her or not. Her idea of chivalry is for you to see that she gets enough to live on and that if she falls sick her children will not have to beg or steal to live. And the woman of brains and intellect cares not whether you honour her by lifting your hat whilst you permit her to be classed with criminals and idiots.

Premier Squires told the Woman's Committee that the days of chivalry were past, and if we were to judge by his treatment and broken pledges, would seem so. But we ask him what of the Knights of Flanders Fields? Chivalry is not Kultur. It is a bigger thing than the performance of polite ceremonies. It means nobility of soul. It is pleasant to read of the good old days when knights went to the rescue of fair damsels, but Rebecca and Ivanhoe may have also gone for the good old days. The phrase leads us in logical retreat back to Adam and Eve. Scientific discoveries have made it impossible for the world to return to the times before the use of electricity, steamships, wireless, typewriters, aeroplanes, etc., and with the invention of machinery women's work began to be taken out of the home into the factory, store and shop, and the woman to follow her work. In the good old days that we hear so much about, women had to melt the tallow to make candles—they had to spin the wool from the sheep to make into garments for their families. Even if it would, how can the world return to those days.

And what are men and women given brains for if not to develop them and help on the struggle for a better humanity? It is difficult to realize that until a short time ago women were denied the right to an education. It was not until 1850 that women were allowed to enter college. And it is significant to notice that the arguments used against the education of girls were the same used at the present time against the enfranchisement of women. How can anyone say that a woman has nothing to do with politics? Why, from birth to death politics plays an important part in woman's life. Her birth must be registered according to law. She cannot marry until the law has been complied with and a marriage license secured. When she and her husband decide to establish a home, they find they cannot build until the approval of Municipal officials is obtained; when her children are ill with contagious diseases the Health Department compels her to obey its rules. She sees bread dropped in the filthy streets, she has to give her family milk from tubercular cows, she pays extra prices because of the exorbitant tariff, she assists and reforms in connection with her Child Welfare or Social Service work, but without the vote she is powerless to have her demands carried out. In every direction through life woman is confronted by practical politics, and finally when she dies the law has its last rules and regulations to be complied with.

If men want to prove their Chivalry to us they will leave no stone unturned to see that women get the vote at the coming election.

A PLEA FOR GOOD PLUGS

"A defective sparking plug can be the cause of many and peculiar troubles. It is, therefore, false economy to purchase cheap plugs on the supposition that they are all 'much of a muchness.' It is true that a cheap plug may be perfectly satisfactory for many hundreds of miles; a plug of first-class make, however, for which a fair price is paid, will generally suffice for at least one season's running in an average engine."

The LODGE plug is known not only as a plug of first-class make which will last, but also as one that clearly manifests its superiority in the firing of a petrol engine.

Political Paragraphs.

The tide increases every day To sweep the squadders away.

Men of St. John's West, ask Sir Richard Squires does he think the breaking of stones is work good enough for you whereby to get a living in your native land?

Remember that ever since we first had Responsible Government the Public Institutions were supplied by "Tender" to the lowest bidder. Under the present system the very needs of the sick and poor are prostituted and used for political purposes to try to influence you in casting your vote on polling day.

Four weeks ago Sir Richard Squires in a lecture at St. Mary's Hall dwelt on the fact that the Newfoundlanders he met abroad all had splendid positions and were making good, but he seems to think that breaking rocks is good enough for them in their own country.

Newfoundlanders, whom will you trust when the time comes to conclude the Humber Deal? Do you want it done by clean and patriotic business men under patriotic John R. Bennett, or by the incapables who wasted fifteen million dollars besides the current revenue in three years and have nothing to show for it but doled taxation?

Do you want it done by men who muddled the railway contract, ruined the fishery and brought the people to the verge of starvation and whose names will pass down to history as the party that ruined our country? If the Humber Deal is to be consummated elect men who will do work honestly and sincerely.

If you give the Squires Government another chance they will spoil whatever prospects are left to you to get a living in your own country. Their three years record will show what they are capable of in squandering your taxes and making it impossible to live. They are now up for trial. You are the jury. What is your verdict?

They stand accused of the most heartless and callous waste of your hard earned money in the whole history of Newfoundland. The total debt they have piled up from thirty-eight to nearly sixty millions—stagners as all and our children too must sweat to pay it back. To make matters worse they have ruined the fishery by their insane Fishery Regulations.

They can never get back their record is too scandalous.

And still they come, recruits to Bennett's standard.

Stalwart fishermen and labourers determined to defeat Squires and Coaker are rallying to the Opposition every day.

Bennett will have a landslide like that of 1900.

The sentiment of the country is showing up every day so strongly for the Opposition that the new Government supporters are turning pale with fright and take refuge in silence. They realize now that Squires and Coaker are down and out. Sure thing. The country wants a change more than ever before.

The Government cannot get candidates for the Districts and it is said that Dr. Barnes seeing no hope in Harbor Grace like Hon. W. R. Warren in Fortuue Bay has gone north under the wing of Mr. Coaker. "Oh what a fall is there, my countrymen!" The big guns of the Squires party throwing up the sponge.

Bennett on the other hand has the pick of the country for his candidates. They all see how the election is going and can feel in the very atmosphere that the country is going to have a change. They see also that Squires can't win and that Bennett is gaining every day in every way.

It will be a regular landslide in St. John's West. Three men sure for Bennett. Loyal old St. John's West will do its duty this time and strike the blow that will bring back prosperity.

Fishermen and labourers of Newfoundland, you know that Coaker's crazy fish regulations impoverished you and kept you from getting a fair price for your toil. Do you want a continuance of these conditions? If you do not then vote for Bennett's men and a return to prosperity.

The Fish Regulations destroyed you, men of the West Coast merchants and fishermen alike. Mr. Coaker has another equally crazy policy to put in force if he gets in called "Nationalization of Fish."

But we feel confident that the West Coast will get even with the destroyer of her prosperity by voting for Bennett and clean, safe government.

Squires and Coaker must get out.

Sealers' Service.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR PRESENT.

A very large gathering attended the Sealers' Service at the Grenfell Hall last night. Mr. Charles Watson was chairman. His Excellency the Governor and Lady Allardye being in attendance were welcomed by the chairman, who expressed the pleasure it was to have them present. His Excellency then gave a splendid address which was frequently applauded, referring to the kind words spoken by the chairman, his Excellency told of Lady Allardye's interest in the Girl Guides and hoped that before another year went by that they would all know more about the splendid work in the outposts. This would depend upon their co-operation and assistance. He told of the varied experiences of Lady Allardye in nursing both before and during the war and expressed the hope that she might help in this also. Speaking of the work at the icefields his Excellency confessed he knew little about their experiences and not much about the harp and hood. His experiences had been limited to seeing these countries of our seal—the fur seal which had been completely exterminated from the Antarctic regions; the sea lion, which had a heavy mane and weighed more than a bullock. The sea elephant, which weighed over 2,000 lbs. with its expanding proboscis. He drew special attention to the fact that when they signed up to go on the sealing vessels Terra Nova, Vitings, Neptune etc., under Captains Keen, Winsor and etc., that they were signing on with a part of that great British Mercantile Marine which had such a glorious record in the past and which had led the world and still leads. It is up to every sealer to maintain the splendid reputation of that mighty British Mercantile Marine. During the war, with the aid of the British Navy this branch of the service had transported over 13 million men with only a loss of slightly over two thousand due to enemy attacks. At the conclusion his Excellency received prolonged applause, following which the chairman announced that owing to unforeseen circumstances, Rev. E. C. Earp, Rector of St. Thomas's parish, was unable to be present, but that Rev. Hammett Johnson had kindly consented to say a few words. The Rev. gentleman reminded his hearers that although enlistment in the British Mercantile Marine was a splendid thing as had been mentioned by his Excellency, yet enlistment under the Great Master was even more important. No class of men had been dealt with by Jesus as had the men who went down to the sea. He instanced the incident of the care and thoughtfulness of Jesus when the fishermen had toiled all night and caught nothing, that besides telling them where to throw the nets to catch the fish he also had a meal prepared for them when they came ashore.

Again in the 6th Chapter of John, was the incident of Christ walking upon the water and stilling the waters and saving the men. No man who signed up under this Master need fear the results of the voyage. He prayed that they might have a successful voyage and a safe return to their families and to us all. In conclusion he hoped that they all would enlist under the Master of men. The chairman followed in an expression of appreciation to his Excellency for his excellent address and to Rev. Mr. Johnson who had so kindly helped at so short notice and to Prof. Mawer and choir of the Presbyterian Church for the fine music rendered.

After the closing hymn, Rev. Mr. Johnson pronounced the benediction and every sealer in the room came forward and shook hands with Sir William and Lady Allardye. The men received refreshments in the dining room, relay after relay being served until all had been helped. To-night, and on Tuesday evening, the Grenfell Institute will provide free concerts to which all sealers are heartily invited.

Kyle's Terrible Experience.

SHIPS CREW ENDURED GREAT HARDSHIP.

S.S. Kyle, Capt. Gross, after a run of five days from Port aux Basques, steamed into port 9 o'clock Saturday evening. The ship, before leaving for St. John's, had temporary repairs effected at Port aux Basques, to damages, the result of the terrible storm which the ship ran into off St. Pierre while on her last trip from this port.

After the damages had been repaired the ship left Port aux Basques on February 27th, for St. John's. Fair weather was experienced all the way down until Friday last when a snowstorm was encountered. The ship stalled harbored at Trepassay out of the storm until the weather abated, and no damage was incurred. Fuller particulars of the Kyle's trip West have been received. The passengers and crew met with an experience which they will not soon forget. Practically every member of the crew was frostbitten and all were bruised, being knocked about by the seas which swept over the ship. The Kyle left St. John's for Port aux Basques on Saturday, February 3rd at 10.45 p.m. After leaving port the ship ran into a snowstorm which gradually increased in fury until the next night at 10 o'clock, when a terrific blizzard was encountered. Capt. Stevenson would not take any chance in trying to seek shelter, as it was too risky to approach the land. All day Sunday the storm raged, and the heavy sprays as they washed over the ship froze on the rigging and masts. On Monday the whole of the ship's crew were ordered on deck to chop away ice which had accumulated on deck, bulwarks and railings, and the men endured severe hardships in accomplishing a difficult task. They worked under the most trying conditions, and there was no let up all day Monday. Tuesday the ship was laced up just as had on the previous day. The seas were mountainous. The second officer, Robert Carter with Fred Blackmore were on the forecastle deck clearing away the ice. Carter was chopping, and Blackmore was shovelling. Carter was resting on his axe handle when suddenly a huge wave swept over the ship and knocked them both down. Blackmore fell on the deck and broke his leg but Carter was hurled into the sea. He had been thrown a considerable distance with terrific force, and it is believed by his shipmates that he was killed instantly. His body was seen floating on the water for a few minutes close to the ship. It was buoyed up by a patent rubber suit which the unfortunate man was wearing. The cry of "man overboard" was raised, and the ship was brought around in an endeavor to get the body on board. At the time of the unfortunate occurrence, the seas were running so high, that it was impossible to effect a rescue. George Pelham, the bosun, volunteered to jump overboard with a line attached to him. Capt. Stevenson, however, realising the futility of such a course, wisely kept him from doing so. As nothing further could be done the ship resumed her voyage. The tragic happening cast a gloom over the whole ship's company. On Wednesday the steamer ran before the gale in order to get the ice off. At five o'clock that evening the ship met with ice floes, and at 10 o'clock she stopped to lay-to all night. Early next morning, an attempt was made to get underway again when it was found that the steering gear was broken. After much difficulty, wire cables were rigged up on each side of the rudder gear and by nine o'clock Thursday evening the ship was underway again. The high lands of Grand Bruni were sighted at 11 o'clock and at 5 o'clock the ship arrived at Port aux Basques in a crippled condition with her flag at half mast. Temporary repairs were then effected, until Tuesday last, when she left for St. John's. Heartly congratulations are due Capt. Stevenson for the excellent seamanship displayed, while the crew share these with him for the manner in which they conducted themselves in a situation which only the bravest could surmount. The ship will go on dock immediately and repairs will occupy about 14 days.

He instanced the incident of the care and thoughtfulness of Jesus when the fishermen had toiled all night and caught nothing, that besides telling them where to throw the nets to catch the fish he also had a meal prepared for them when they came ashore.

Again in the 6th Chapter of John, was the incident of Christ walking upon the water and stilling the waters and saving the men. No man who signed up under this Master need fear the results of the voyage. He prayed that they might have a successful voyage and a safe return to their families and to us all. In conclusion he hoped that they all would enlist under the Master of men. The chairman followed in an expression of appreciation to his Excellency for his excellent address and to Rev. Mr. Johnson who had so kindly helped at so short notice and to Prof. Mawer and choir of the Presbyterian Church for the fine music rendered.

After the closing hymn, Rev. Mr. Johnson pronounced the benediction and every sealer in the room came forward and shook hands with Sir William and Lady Allardye. The men received refreshments in the dining room, relay after relay being served until all had been helped. To-night, and on Tuesday evening, the Grenfell Institute will provide free concerts to which all sealers are heartily invited.

Sagona Arrives.

SEVERAL HAD LENGTHY VOYAGE
 The Sagona, Capt. Tavorson, after a long run of nine days from Louisbourg, arrived in port at 4:30 a.m. yesterday. The round trip occupied a period of three weeks, the ship having left here with mails on Feb. 12. The greater part of delay was due to meeting heavy ice of Scatena. The Sagona left St. John's on Monday, February 10th for Louisbourg via Port aux Basques. The ship was delayed at the latter port after a fair run on the 14th, and landed engineers and appliances for repairs to the following day. She left there the following day for Louisbourg. The ship ran off of Lunenburg and was some 65 miles off Channel Head that evening when she became jammed in the ice. The ship laid in the same position for days, with the ice rafting on all sides of her. On the 20th, the ice melted off, and Louisbourg was reached. After landing freight and replenishing bunkers the steamer left Louisbourg at noon on the 22nd on the return trip, and by four o'clock had covered about 20 miles in slob ice off Scatena. During the evening the ice melted and the ship again became unimpeded. She drifted and steamed until reaching the other side of Sable I. Sagona did not get free of the ice until Friday, March 2nd, and getting into clear water steamed on her course. The ship passed Cape Race at 10 p.m. and arrived in St. John's at 11 a.m. Saturday already mentioned. It is all stated that it was due to Tavorson's superior skill as a navigator and the careful manner in which he handled the ship that she was able to get safely to port. The Sagona has on board three carloads of fish. This will be discharged with much as the ship has to be put in readiness for the seal fishery, and very likely get away with the rest of the fleet.

TAKEN TO TASK.
 The Evening Telegram Editor—Now that the House has dissolved, everyone appears to be talking politics and especially of the success attained by the United Women Delegates. However, when it happens to turn to the Advocate, imagine that all those who sign the petitions of the United Fishermen are fools. There may be fools among the many who signed the petition just as there are fools among the members of the F.P.U. I take it, however, that one who signs a petition is not a fool. I noticed recently some letters in the Advocate, Princeton, Open Keels and King's Cove appearing in the Advocate. All I have to say, Editor, is that if these of this class ever appeared in the official organ of the F.P.U. Editor had sense enough to get some of the silly stuff, there would be more members in the F.P.U. in the district of Bonavista. As it is, a few men in the Councils of the F.P.U. think they own the shooting match; but they will be up some day and find that they are wrong, and just as in the past they were helped to down another political party in 1913 will these down the Squires-Coaker party. They tell us that Jesse Winland his delegates are looking for a job. Probably they are, but is there any in the ranks of the F.P.U. who are in the same lookout. What are the Moss of Open Hall and Henry Keels seeking? I am not unkind enough to say they are seeking a job, but then someone has said Hummuth and Collectors. Keels of Open Hall in recent letters mentioned cutting off poor relief from the people who signed the resolutions. I answer, if it were not for the Government of the Government and with the after effects of the latter of course being not only a control and a burden which will be gladly shared) there are not so many people needing relief to-day. Surely the Union men think they are going to run us because we dared sign our names to a petition. In other words are trying to impose slavery on us. Henry Hobbs does not tell us anything about the happenings at St. John's. He does not tell us how the Union Store at Keels. We do not refer to John Fitzgerald, as being in the employ of the Trading Store as storekeeper, is supposed to be as he is hidden. You know, Editor, if a child has a toy which he is stocking at Christmas, that he would be supposed to blow out the candle which could blow into it. As Mr. Dan Moss is concerned I blame him for his eagerness in when men are all chasing the dollar. No one blames these men but do not let them think that anyone else is a fool and so on.

On the Exploitation of Tombs.

The Editor of Punch writes these forceful lines to Lord Carnarvon:—

"When under earth I too am laid,
 I hope they let my body be;
 I hope no person with a spade
 Comes excavating after me,
 To pinch my treasure—just a ring—
 As if I were an ancient King."

"What close-time do you fellows fix
 Ere on the dead you peg your claim?
 How long's allowed before the picks
 Are free to start your gruesome game?"

Or does the question (this sounds odd)
 Turn on the dead man's view of God?

"Must only Pagans yield their clay
 For only Christian hands to rear?
 And mayn't a Polynesian (say)
 Come here and ask the Dean for leave"

To penetrate our Abbey's gloom,
 And hoick Queen Anne from out her tomb

"To all the dead their equal due!
 You'll die yourself one day, and then

What if some Gypsie dees to you
 The thing you've done to T-Amen,
 And makes (if I may be so blunt)
 Out of your corpse a paper stunt?"

BECKETT HAS SIGNED FOR BOUT WITH DEMPSEY.

Southampton, Feb. 9. (Associated Press.)—Joe Beckett, the English heavyweight champion, has signed articles to meet the world's champion, Jack Dempsey, in New York next July or August, he announced to-day. He understands that Dempsey's signature also has been secured.

"I am to get a good sum for my end of the purse," Beckett added, "but it won't be anything like so large as Dempsey's; I can't expect it to be, because he is the champion of the world. The only condition made, so far as I am concerned, is that I must beat Dick Smith on Feb. 19th, and if I fight Carpenter I must beat him, too, but it doesn't matter whether I meet Carpenter or not."

Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, last night denied that he had accepted terms from any promoter for a bout between Dempsey and Beckett. Kearns added that he had no intention of making a trip to England for bouts. "Dempsey has not signed with any promoter until he finds out positively whether he can box Harry Willis or not," said Kearns.

DEMPSEY PICKS WILLARD.

Chicago, Feb. 8.—Jack Dempsey, on his arrival here to-day en route to Salt Lake City, where his father is seriously ill, said he planned to take his parent to Rochester, Minn., to consult specialists. The elder Dempsey is ill of stomach trouble.

Of the New York boxing situation Dempsey said he anticipated an adjustment and believes that his manager Jack Kearns, will be able to arrange at least two bouts.

The champion boxer expressed the opinion that Jess Willard, from whose brow Dempsey pounded the crown in Toledo, should be able to beat Floyd Johnson, Iowa heavyweight, when they meet in New York next May.

"If Willard can't beat Johnson, then he ought to step down and out," Jack said.

CHANCE FOR SIKI.

Paris, Feb. 8.—It has been suggested that the French Boxing Federation celebrate its twentieth anniversary next Monday by proclaiming amnesty for all recent offenders against its rules. If the Council of the Federation decided to take this step, Battling Siki would be among those pardoned.

TOM GIBBONS GETS BOUT.

Cincinnati, Feb. 8.—Negotiations were closed to-night for a bout between Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul, contender for the heavyweight championship, and Jack McAniff, of Detroit, to be held in Madison Square Garden, New York, March 19, Eddie Kane, Gibbons' manager announced.

Kane, who has been spending the past few days here, said the contest will go fifteen rounds to a decision, the winner to meet the winner of the Willard-Johnson fight.

WILLARD TRAINS INDOORS.

Jesse Willard, former world's heavyweight champion, who signed on recently to meet Floyd Johnson in a bout of fifteen rounds at the Yankee's Stadium on Saturday, May 12, visited Madison Square Garden yesterday afternoon and indulged in a short workout in the gymnasium. He went through one round with each of three sparring partners, but did not attempt to extend himself. The ex-title holder remained on the defense, and permitted his opponents to do most of the hitting. Ray Archer, Willard's manager, declared yesterday that the Kansas giant will remain in town for probably two weeks, and will indulge in short daily workouts in the Garden gymnasium. When the weather moderates, Archer declared, it is almost certain that Willard will go to Saratoga to begin his outdoor training.

W. Coast Hard Hit.

From the Evening Telegram, Thursday September 16, 1920.
 From being the most prosperous of this Dominion, the South West Coast from Paris to Chatham, has fallen to an alarming state of depression, paralysis of business and unemployment, poverty in one short year. It is to be the El Dorado of the financial traveller and the shining temple of progress and prosperity for all the rest of Newfoundland, and its fishing industry, its trade and commerce lie prostrate and the men are feeling from the countenance of hundreds, and business people are putting up their shutters to avoid bankruptcy and await better times. These must be well known to Messrs. Warren, Cheeseman, Foote and all, and how they can look on and do nothing, and how they can make no effort to relieve their constituents and save them from impending ruin, passes our comprehension. The Gorton-Pew Commission have been driven off the coast, the great Harris, Patten and Forster, Messrs. Garland, J. Penney, Moulton and others have been hit so hard by the Fish Regulations that their losses by being held up and prevented in sending their fish to market, run up into a million dollars in the face of all these facts, the members of the Fish Regulations are the affray to keep up the regulations that the Regulations have been imposed on the country, and the names ought to be the name of Cooker.

There is nothing in common between the fishermen of the South and West Coast and those of the North, their operations and times of season their fish are so different that even though the regulations will turn out a boon and a blessing to the North, they would be certain to lead out to the ruin of the South West Coasts. The latter of June, all July and August are the best shipping months, and the catches that have been given them in nature must be forgone and sacrificed, and they must be kept out of the markets to suit the selfish ends of the fish exporters in St. John's and Port Union, who were always the cause of the prosperity and independence of the shipper west of Placentia Bay. They have now got a chance to kill them out of competition by the laws, and they are doing it in good style. Mr. Foote should know this better than we do, so does Mr. Warren, Mr. Cheeseman and Mr. Small. They are doing it by and seeing these people die, and the young men who voted for them so trustingly, all fleeing out of the country in such they see no hope of making a living at the fishery under the new laws made by Mr. Cooker and Mr. Warren. It is in their power to save their constituents to-morrow from impending ruin, and say to Mr. Cooker "I am at once; you have done far enough." But will they do it? Will the sweets and emolumenta of office, the little jobs and pickings they are receiving, be a sufficient inducement for them to keep quiet and allow these people to be ruined? It is the question that is in the minds of the residents of the South West Coast, and there is one thing they may regard as certain, and that is, if they do not, their political careers may last out three more years, but never again will they be useful for their constituencies.

This is something the music public relish—something entirely new and novel—something never before.
 The picture is another great Rupert story, entitled "From the Top of Moore" featuring the popular Moore and pretty Helene Chadwick. The idea of Mr. Hughes for this picture has been entertainingly worked out. It is a story that fits Mr. Moore's personality closely. His happy smile, his good nature, his ability to depict with such sincerity that it all lend themselves to make his picture an excellent vehicle for seven talents.

Our Weekly Letter.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Montreal, Feb. 24th.—The devastating element has destroyed one of the most notable Anglican churches in Canada. All that remains of the famous old Trinity Church, at the St. Denis Street entrance to Viger Square, is the outside line of walls. Its tower collapsed and fell in the body of the church. Historic Trinity was three quarters of a century old. When the firemen arrived on the scene, seven to the solid construction of the doors the fire-fighters were unable to effect an entrance, and were obliged to break the leaded glass windows with axes and thus effected an entry. The interior at that time was a mass of flames, and fire had been burning for some time before it was discovered. The flames had eaten their way up the rear walls of the church along the roof and the pews below, and as far as the tower. The fire practically burst itself out, taking about seven hours to do so. After the tower crashed through the roof, the firemen confined their efforts in saving adjoining buildings. The church was closed linked with the military life of Montreal from the early 60's to the beginning of the present century. It was essentially the military church of this city, and was possessed of many war memorials. The church was to have been sold two years ago to the Franciscan Fathers for $120,000, but the deal was blocked by the ecclesiastical authorities of the Archdiocese and the church remained in the hands of the Anglican authorities. A little over two months ago, the Syrian Catholics purchased the building for $60,000. It was being redecorated and prepared for its official opening under that body on March 11th, St. Saviour's Day, under whose title it was to have been named and dedicated. The usual rumors about the work of an enemy or enemies for the burning of the building were "killing the rounds," but the firemen believe the fire was caused by an overheated furnace. Since the burning of three big Catholic churches here lately, several of the other churches have been guarded night and day. At the midnight services on Christmas Eve in one of the leading Catholic churches, everything was in readiness in case of fire and an explosion, as the pastor was warned a few days before that the church was next on the list to be destroyed. Throughout the church, the pastor had policemen, private detectives, firemen and others all ready for the event. The ushers were supplied with candles, matches, and flash lights, while a line of hose was placed near the hydrant just at the side of the church. The alarm was a false one. Since the burning of Trinity Church, a letter was received by Chief Gavel of St. Lambert, across the river, warning him that St. Michael's Academy and the Knights of Columbus Hall would soon meet the fate of Trinity Church, together with St. Michael's Catholic Church of that place. The letter was signed K. K. K. So far nothing has happened, but the three places are heavily guarded night and day, and all men of the parish take turns at watching and are well-armed. The Syrian Catholics will lose $12,000 by the burning of their church, as the insurance covered only $50,000. The extra amount of $2,000 comes for rebuilding, new altars and a few minor things. The church will be rebuilt by the insurance company take place. The property, including the land and church, is assessed at the City Hall for $175,000.

The carnival, organized by some of the Hotel magnates, has been a failure. Outside of a big parade on a bitter cold day, where people stood for hours "waiting and watching," the affair was more or less of a fiasco. $20,000 was collected for the carnival, and nearly all of it was spent in events of which the public has seen little or nothing. The ice palace intended was only a dream of some persons' imagination, for up to the present there is no sign of it. Too bad, that such a large sum of money should be practically thrown away.

Some people sleeping soundly at night, while thieves break through and steal. A restaurant keeper at 207 St. Lawrence boulevard had $200 worth of candy and cigarettes stolen from his store when burglars smashed two windows not more than 6 feet from the sleeper's bed. When the constable noticed the broken window and proceeded to awaken the proprietor. He beat on the door and shouted, all to no avail. Finally he was forced to enter the same way as the thieves, and, after a good shaking the proprietor came to life. He explained to the guardian of the law, that the reason for his heavy sleeping was, that he worked every day from 5 p.m. till midnight without a stop.

The snow storm last week has cost the city over $30,000. It gave employment to 3,000 men, 306 single sleighs and 468 double. The cost of cleaning up after the storms is heavier on the city this year than last, for up to February 15 the amount expended had been $195,000 as compared with $105,000 for the same period of last year.

The total expenditure by the French authorities has exceeded five million francs, and the men in charge have shown their conviction that the result will tend further the trade between the two countries.

The products to be displayed will be all-Canadian, with a view to reminding the French consumer of the commodities he has used, and to introduce such articles of manufacture as he has not hitherto known.

The train will have over 40 cars trailed in such a way as to place them in parks and public places en route through the country. The city is to borrow $1,000,000 in order to have a satisfactory Water Works System. It will mean enlarging and developing the aqueduct, the construction of reservoirs and additional filtering basins. The last time the city attempted to enlarge the system, it almost amounted to a failure and should a break occur at the main point, Lachine, it would mean a water famine. Montreal is in a bad shape so far as the water supply is concerned. The taxes are mounting up every year, owing to the heaviest debt of its size on the continent, and one third of the total revenue goes each year to pay the interest on the debt. So it's not all sunshine running a city with a population of nearly 800,000.

Considerable improvements are planned by the Canadian Pacific Railway Stations at Westmount and Montreal West. A subway is contemplated for the Westmount Station. An up-to-date interlocker to control traffic in and out of the Glen Yard will also be installed. At Montreal West an umbrella shelter over the platform will be built. Considerable other improvements will be effected during the year. Additional trackage will be provided at Adamsville, Berthier Junction, Three Rivers, in Quebec at Enniskillen, Lakeview, Canterbury and Deer Lake, in New Brunswick; and at several points in Ontario. The rock ballast program will be continued to the extent of 150 miles on the main line between Montreal and Toronto. Twenty-five miles will be done of the Three Rivers subdivision, completing the rock ballast line between Montreal and Three Rivers. It is the intention of the company to build a steel water tank at St. Johns, Que., and modern coaling plants will be constructed at Megantic, Que., and Jackfish, Ont.

According to a report on the General Shipping situation given by the President of the Shipping Federation, Robert W. Reford, the year 1922 was one of the worst on record. While business was somewhat brisker, the lower freights and greater competition more than offset this advantage. The high cost of shipbuilding have caused stagnation in the shipbuilding industry. Mr. Reford said that the new direction finders station at Halifax had well proved its worth, and that shipmasters reported it as more satisfactory than similar stations, both on the United States and British coasts. In addition to Halifax, stations erected at Canso, Red Head (St. John Harbor) and Cape Race also gave excellent results. Direction finder stations should also be provided at Bell Isle, Point Armour, Heath Point, Cape Ray, Fame Point, Grand Manan and Cape Sable. "I would again urge on the Government the immediate necessity for the installation of these stations," said Mr. Reford. "We cannot afford to take any chances with vessels trading to the St. Lawrence." Immediate action was also advocated regarding the smoke nuisance in the vicinity of Three Rivers, which, Mr. Reford said constitutes a grave menace to navigation. The president reported that the liner tonnage entered during the year amounted to 804,437 tons, an increase of 142,625 tons over 1921, and tramp tonnage to 516,892, an increase of 135,851 tons. Canadian registered tonnage also, showed an increase amounting to 186,898 tons compared with 135,740 in 1921.

Missing his step as he turned on a scaffolding in the belfry of St. Enser's Church in the east end of the city, a young man of 23 years pitched seventy feet to the ground. He was admitted to the Hotel Dieu where he died three quarters of an hour afterwards without regaining consciousness.

Burglars don't seem to have any respect for persons, as was shown here lately when two men entered a house in the west end of the city and attacked a woman who was lying alone, finding nothing in the room, they approached the woman who was in bed, seized the edge of the mattress and pitched her out on the floor. Concealed between the mattress and spring was $150. It is thought that the burglars had knowledge that she had the money in the house.

Does it pay to have your fortune told? Well, some may think so but not Arthur Gauthier of 549 Notre Dame Street, West. Two gypsies entered his store at 10 o'clock in the morning, and offered to tell him his fortune for 25 cents. Arthur decided to have a peep into the future, while one of the Gypsies decided to have a peep into the till. While the grocer was deeply interested in the exciting and wealthy career revealed to him, $4 was stolen from the till. Arthur's faith in fortune tellers is shattered and he'll wait some time for his "wealthy career."

A young pupil of the Ballantyne School, the Protestant High School of Verdun, named Norman McKnight, 14 years old, collapsed after running in the physical exercises of the school on Monday morning, Feb. 19, and died a few minutes afterwards. Death was due to heart failure. Charges against the physical drill instructor for being too severe, and using his cane and sometimes his hands to beat the pupils are being investigated.

Montreal judges have launched a campaign against inebriates who drive automobiles. Judge Enright gave two of them a pretty stiff dose when he fined them $100 each and costs, of 3 months in jail for one and 1 month for the other. "Liquor and motors do not mix," the judge told them.

The funeral of Sir Thomas Roddick, whose death occurred at the family residence, 705 Sherbrooke St., on Tuesday morning, Feb. 20th, took place on Thursday afternoon, Feb. 22nd, and was very largely attended. The service was held at the house by Rev. R. W. Dickie, pastor of the Crescent Street Presbyterian Church. Representatives of all the hospitals in the city, from McGill University, the Federal and Provincial Governments, the Newfoundland Society, and many other bodies, together with hundreds of citizens made the cortege a very imposing one. Throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion the name of the great Doctor Roddick was well known, for he had shed lustre not only on his work as a famous surgeon and a skilled physician, but also to good old Newfoundland his birth place. The Montreal Daily Star says editorially:—"The name, Roddick, stands high in the list of those who have made McGill Medical School and the hospitals of Montreal famous all over the world. At the dawn of the twentieth century there were few men on this continent whose name carried the authority as a surgeon that Dr. Roddick's did. Thousands of sufferers thanked his merciful skill and kindly human sympathy for restoration when hope seemed almost gone. Public health was his master-passion. He gave his life to hospital work and to training those who followed in his footsteps. His students are the surgeons of to-day in many lands, gratefully acknowledging the stimulus his leadership gave them in their youth. Without his being a professional politician, public life claimed him, and for some years he represented a most important constituency. In the House of Commons he devoted himself to the special task of making all-Canada an open field to labor for the graduates of any recognized medical school in Canada. Up to that time there had been provincial jealousies that made it necessary, for instance, for a medical graduate of McGill to pass a supplementary examination at Kingston before he could practice in Ontario. Dr. Roddick doggedly and fearlessly set himself to work to overcome these sectional prejudices; by a campaign of education he developed a strong public opinion, and after several failures succeeded in placing on the statute books of Canada his Dominion Medical Registration Bill. The anti-tuberculosis campaign found in him a powerful leader and to his influence is due much of the machinery that now exists for combating the dreaded "white plague." When the honor of knighthood was conferred on him it was generally conceded to be in acknowledgment of his invaluable public services. Sir Thomas Roddick will be mourned widely and sympathy with Lady Roddick will be general. He was a good citizen and a generous-hearted friend."

The passing of Sir Thomas Roddick removes from Canadian life a notable figure. While eminently successful in his chosen profession, the most outstanding monument to his memory will be his persistent effort, which happily was crowned with success, to enact a Dominion registration bill for physicians and surgeons.

For many years previous to his entry into public life, he was convinced of the advantages of such a measure, and whether or not this was the sole contributing motive which influenced him to enter parliament, the fact remains that his fight in the House of Commons extended over a considerable number of years and that this self-imposed duty was anything but an easy task. Opposition of the various provinces had to be overcome, and this required an extraordinary amount of work which he faced with an indomitable spirit. It must, however, be said that his high standing in the medical profession was an asset of incalculable value in this work, as it was recognized that he was animated only by motives of the loftiest nature. He had nothing personally to gain, beyond the satisfaction of knowing that he had been instrumental in removing a system which had assumed the aspect of an anachronism.

In his electoral campaign of 1906 he contested a seat with the late Hon. Robert Mackay, a life long friend and for whom he acted in the capacity of medical advisor. This orientation of personal relationships gave rise to a rather amusing story. During the campaign, Mr. Mackay was taken ill and sent for his opponent to treat him. When Sir Thomas entered the room Mr. Mackay facetiously observed that he was taking a big chance by taking the medicine which his political opponent was about to prescribe.

Graduating from McGill University, Dr. Roddick subsequently rose to the deanship of medicine, and throughout an active life gave up much of his time to unremunerative labor at his alma mater. Many graduating classes at McGill remember him as a painstaking teacher, whose methods were eminently practical and designed to equip the young practitioner with an education which would most nearly meet the requirements of his work. His lectures were always characterized by a remarkable directness free from verbosity, and his surgical clinics never failed to reveal some method which was the fruit of a ripe experience. Such great success as he achieved comes to few men, and it is rare indeed that a man rises to such eminent heights as he rose to, in two such relatively unrelated fields as politics and science."

As the North Sees it.

(Villagale's Son)

BE CAREFUL.
Newspapers should adopt a policy of careful journalism in putting before the public the policies of the Government and the Opposition, so that all can give a fair judgment in favour of the pro and con.

It is often the policy of the Government to bluff and pull the wool over the eyes of the electorate, but, today, what is needed is truth and honesty, and the journalist whose duty it is to form their conclusions in a fair and plain method, will better serve a hearing from those who need a hearing in this country. Too much wire-drawing and party grievances hide the merits of many measures which, if given in the true spirit, gain the support of the people.

It is true that newspaper talk is taken as seriously as some journalists imagine, and if the press is to be trusted it should adopt truthfulness with temperance in all things. A fight is asked by the intelligent by all who want to hear the sense of party politics in their true light as it is feared that many will give their vote.

WHY BLUFF?

The Advocate still likes to bluff. He thinks that it hardly has the effect upon the intelligent fishermen of this country. The latest is in connection with the U.F. Delegates meeting at Summerford, when it claims that the Delegates, Carter and Winfield, held no meeting but left their resolutions behind for a few Tories.

What about the meeting given by Mr. Theo Brown was the chairman and when it was also stated that a unanimous vote was shown in favour of the reduction of Expenditure of Taxation? The Advocate admits that there is a need of taxation. Well! What a change of front after only a few days!

What a sad contrast in a short space of time when we view the prosperity and signs of continued progress of 1919. But then the dictator's threats must be lived up to, and the curse which is so clearly manifested in Coaker rule and Coakerism is about to come to pass, unmodified, and unchecked.

This is the price Newfoundland must pay until such time as the people rise in their might and rightly destroy these demagogues for all time. By electing to office a Bennett Government, the people have but the only available opportunity. Successful men of the type of Bennett, Crosbie, Cashin, Monroe, Higgins, Ayre, Hunt, Harris, Ouldriffe, the electorate can feel assured of an honest attempt to legislate with the clear intention of promoting all that means best for the general advancement of the colony.

Bennett Government stands for everything that is safe and sane and to such a Government we commend the support of the people.

It seems that a weakness is shown in the political spurge in the Advocate and the last straw is reached to boost the accuracy of the Advocate's correspondence, even though the signatures are put in bold type through the messages from the different places. Suppose all the names published that signed the U.F.M. list, it would fill the Advocate's cover to cover.

Suppose you wish to misrepresent the truth and you will be revealed in every foolish argument. It is also claimed that the Delegates did nothing on the North side of the Bay. What about the meetings at St. John's, New Bay, Leading Tackles, Regale, Nipper's Hr. and many other places which gave accounts of what was made?

THE CAUSE!
It seems that an eruption has been made in the Government camp and to some division in the Executive over the Humber Project. Sir James was pressed to accept the project bearing a breaking up of the Government on this question, and that the Opposition might be in a position to hold the public funds in an election, which would mean a defeat on the voting of the Humber Project.

Such a "trick" as the Advocate has done here, yet giving no reason why an election or why a break-up in the Executive Government? Perhaps another loan is impossible and now that it will take lots of capital to square up accounts and pay up through waste, they feel that in a pretty bad fix.

They show a surplus of $3,000,000 as did the Cashin Government? Now the Advocate admits a surplus but gives credit to the Government for the surplus. The paper of last year describing the thousands of quintals of fish caught, by the fishermen and fishermen of Bonaville, Franksy. The like was never known before, and accounts showed that the surplus of this was true especially at the time of the surplus.

It is a fact that this Government has borrowed millions more than any Government that ever reigned in this colony.

The Grass is Growing on Water Street.

When the fisherman and planter is prosperous the whole country is prosperous. When the fishermen realise fair voyages and fair prices general prosperity prevails. When the output are prosperous St. John's is prosperous and the two go together in a year's history of progress or depression. When Mr. Coaker was permitted by Sir Richard Squires and the Government to stab the trade of St. John's, Conception Bay and the West Coast, he knew only too well the result of his interference and how far he succeeded is evidenced by the state of Water Street and the business interests in the other mentioned sections of the Island. The past year and the year preceding he has been watching with satisfied interest the grass growing on Water Street and so with the Government, the members of which are contented with salaries and bait, are afraid to oppose his meanest act. They are watching the grass growing on Water Street but not one of them has the nerve to contradict or offset his plans. They see business houses handicapped, hundreds of honest workmen walking the streets, factories and local industries curtailing their outputs and reducing their wage lists. Fishermen suffering unexpected hardships and thousands threatened with dire distress and privation—all because of the dogmatic rulings of a political usurper who is gloating over the evil results of his doctrine to tear down. Coaker has proven himself to be a menace to Newfoundland, and as long as Coakerism reigns so long will the menace be endured. The evidence already furnished corroborate these statements. We are approaching dark days and it is the belief of not a few that they will be much worse before they become brighter.

What a sad contrast in a short space of time when we view the prosperity and signs of continued progress of 1919. But then the dictator's threats must be lived up to, and the curse which is so clearly manifested in Coaker rule and Coakerism is about to come to pass, unmodified, and unchecked.

EDGEWORTH SMOKING TOBACCO

They changed their blends too, occasionally—always seeking a tobacco a trifle more suited to their taste. Now you may already be 99 p.c. pipe-happy. The purpose of Edgeworth is to give you the additional one per cent. that makes complete pipe-smoking satisfaction.

"Edgeworth" Smoking Tobacco is made in two forms. Sliced Plug and Ready-Rubbed, and we honestly don't know which you will prefer. Both forms have their enthusiastic devotees. Try both and then decide which you like best.

"Rogue" Horses That Have Worried Jackeys.

Just as there are dangerous dogs and vicious cats, so is it with horses. When you see one of the latter animals muzzled in the street while between the shafts of a cart you may safely put him down as a "rogue" or a "savage"—the terms are practically synonymous.

A horse of this type is as dangerous a brute as it is possible to conceive. He will bare his teeth and bite—if unmuzzled—in the slightest provocation, or on none at all. And a horse's bite is no joke; it tears, and crushes, and lacerates.

Moreover, a "rogue" horse wants a lot of persuasion before it will consent to release its hold of a victim if has once got its teeth into.

When Chuck-a-Penny savaged the Comfort Your Skin With Cuticura Soap and Fragrant Talcum

In another well-known incident of the kind Fred Arthur was the victim. In this case, however, it can scarcely be said that the horse that savaged him, an animal called Muley Edris, was naturally a "rogue."

The attack was rather in the nature of an isolated act of vengeance. Archer had punished the animal in a previous race on the same day, and Muley Edris, watching his opportunity, went for him in the most vicious manner and savaged him severely.

MUTT AND JEFF

JEFF HAS AN ORIGINAL IDEA ONCE IN A WHILE.

Four Steps.

He stood at life's fair threshold
A pure and tender babe;
A flower that bloomed and blossomed
Seemed impossible to fade.
The eyes so pure and innocent,
The lips so free from sin,
He seemed too pure in a sinful world
To live and dwell within.

The years pass on we see him again
In youth's bright happy hour;
But alas! the pure and sinless
Is a victim to Satan's power.
The once bright eyes are haggard,
The hands by sin are spotted,
Though the outward dress is pleasing
The inmost soul's defiled.

Again in life we see him
A staid and saddened man.
The strands of white are in his hair
His heart is filled with pain.
His life so quickly dying,
Of work so little done,
No place of joy to which to fly
In his dark life there's no sun.

Once more we stop to listen
To the sob of an aged man,
So old, so worn, so weary,
No peace, no friends, no home;
No happiness to look forward to,
No pleasant thoughts behind,
His days mislapsed as through life he went
A record of sin and crime.

Four steps in life he had taken,
Beginning, youth, middle life, old age.
But always in life he'd forgotten
To keep a stainless page.
Now death itself is knocking
At the silent chamber door,
What has he to say for his sinful way
As he stands the judge before.

My busy friend and brother
Four steps, too, may be thine;
But be careful how you spend your life
In the happy Summer time.
The winter of life is coming,
The shadows are falling fast;
Let your days be bright and your life
be right.
Ere the shadow of death is cast.

Deadlier Than War.

The great need for accident prevention is well emphasized in the recent reports of the United States National Safety Council. This organization announces the number of motor deaths last year in the United States as 12,000. Those injured more than slightly may have been four times as many. The death list was greater than that at Waterloo. It was more than twice that at Austerlitz or Gettysburg, and even yet the figures are not quite complete.

New York City, for instance, reported 784 dead, not including December. Chicago was second, with an even higher percentage of dead, 735. There follows a surprise, Los Angeles which was only tenth of American cities in population in 1920, is third in the number of deaths, 321. The climate, which invites to all-the-year motoring, may partly account for this, but reckless people and careless law enforcement are believed to be the main reason. Boston, seventh city in size but blessed with more adequate laws and stricter enforcement, is eleventh in automobile deaths, 105. Other Massachusetts cities show a creditably low total of motor fatalities. Detroit, Cleveland and Baltimore, considering their population, have relatively good records.

By no prescience of man can motor deaths be entirely prevented. But a very large part of the 12,000 fatalities in one year are needless and preventable. They are the inevitable result of intrusting powerful engines on the public highway to unit drivers, whom rigid tests and deprivation of licenses for cause would put out of business.

The report is also evidence to the carelessness and indifference of pedestrians. While the greater responsibility rests upon the motorist, the care called forth from the pedestrian must not be overlooked. The death rate will continue large until those on foot and those in cars both exert the proper amount of care.—Ex.

Belverson Arrives.

ENCOUNTERED STORMY TRIP.

S. S. Belverson, Capt. Busch, 5 1/2 days from Halifax, arrived in port at 9 o'clock this morning to A. E. Hickman Co., Ltd., with a full freight and 100 bales of mail matter. The ship left Halifax on Tuesday last and met the first ice 65 miles southeast of Cape Sable. The captain by good seamanship managed to get the ship clear of the field and, putting her to sea, made a good run until Friday night last, when a northeast blizzard was encountered. The captain decided to leave for the night, continuing the voyage slowly to port after the storm had abated on the following morning. The remains of Robert Clancey, fireman, who died in hospital at Boston, arrived by his ship. The body was removed to his late home, Sebastian Street, upon arrival. The Belverson rescued the crew of the schr. James O'Neill off St. Pierre on Friday, the story of which appears in another column of to-day's Telegram.

Mailman's Trying Time.

RESCUED BY CONSTABLES SON.

Leaving here on Friday last with a mail for Bay Bulls the local mail man had a most trying time and only reached his destination this morning. The road for the greater part is unbroken and every few hundred yards his horse would stall. The mailman owes his safety and that of his horse to the kindly assistance rendered by Constable Forsey's son who happened to come up with man and horse as they were nearly exhausted.

Col. Cosby's Visit.

VIEWING GRENFELL ENTERPRISE.

Col. Arthur F. Cosby, who arrived here by last trip of S. S. Rosalind to look over the general situation of the Grenfell Enterprise, will remain in the city for about 10 days. Col. Cosby, who is General Manager of the Grenfell Association, is an expert in his particular line of work. Amongst other advances, which he proposes, is the creation of a general headquarters at New York, and the erection of a large orphanage at St. Anthony. The Grenfell Association is now endeavoring to raise an endowment of one million dollars in order to insure the permanent carrying on of this philanthropic work. On Saturday last Col. Cosby was the guest of His Excellency at Government House. He has since met quite a number of prominent people of the city including Sir Patrick McGrath.

The Mercantile games this season have added new interest in local hockey circles, and a large crowd is expected to witness the teams battle for the silverware to-night. The line-ups are as follows:—

ROYAL STORES BOWRING'S

	Mr. J. M. Tobin Referee.

Train Delayed.

ROTARY PLOW CLEARING LINES.

As a result of the heavy snow storm the movement of trains on the railway was interfered with considerably. Snow fell to a depth of six to ten feet in places. As soon as the storm abated gangs of men were started clearing the lines. This morning a rotary plow left Clarendville coming east. The train which left Bonavista at 10.30 a.m. yesterday, remained at Catalina all night.

TRAIN NOTES.

The local express from Millertown Junction is due at St. John's to-morrow morning. The Carbonear train arrived at 2 p.m.

Mr. Percie Johnson wishes to acknowledge the receipt of Seventy Dollars ($70), consignment money.

What About the Premier's Spanish Treaty?

NORWAY AND PORTUGAL.

CHRISTIANA, March 2.

The Norwegian Government resigned following rejection by the Storting of its proposal for a commercial treaty with Portugal. The proposal was voted down by 119 to 22. The above paragraph appeared in the Public News telegraphed on Saturday. It was the announcement of this treaty and the arrangement of the Anglo-Spanish Treaty that sent our Premier, Sir Richard Squires to Madrid last Fall when he consummated some treaty with the Spanish Government, which he has kept dark ever since and which we suppose he intends to startle our country with in his manifesto in a few days. There is no mistaking the meaning of the above paragraph. The Norwegian Government has been turned down by an overwhelming majority of its members for daring to negotiate a treaty allowing Portuguese wines into Norway in return for reduced duties on codfish. The treaty that Sir Richard Squires is keeping up his sleeve will more than likely prove a boomerang on himself in a similar manner when we hear the particulars.

The following will give an idea of what we are up against on this question. The millions of peasants scattered throughout France, Spain, Portugal and Italy drink the wines and spirits that they themselves ferment and distil from the grapes. It is estimated that fully ten per cent. of all the people of France are connected with the wine industry, producing about seven hundred and fifty million dollars per annum. In Northern Europe beer is the drink they produce and as this is a "capitalist enterprise" the small farmers and workmen have no financial interest. For the past half century the Scandinavian States of Northern Europe, that is, Norway, Sweden, Finland, Denmark and Iceland, have shown spectacular advances in prohibition growth. Long before the opening of the great war these Scandinavian countries had projected temperance education and enacted laws that were changing these districts from some of the hardest drinking parts of Europe to the most temperate. During the war when stringent rationing of foodstuffs became necessary, Iceland was bone dry except for the busy and universal bootlegger, and a light beer, Iceland was bone dry except for 2 1/2 per cent. beer. Norway prohibited the manufacture of all distilled spirits, and of wines and beer of over 12 per cent. alcohol, and permitted communities to vote themselves bone dry, except for 2 1/2 per cent. alcohol by volume. Sweden since 1914 has been selling spirits only under the Blatt System, which gave sober adults the right to purchase up to four litres of spirits each month through their individual "coupon book," that means the individual was licensed as well as the control department. Denmark started a Local Option whereby districts could refuse granting licenses. Many of the districts or communes have voted themselves dry and Denmark is not using one-third of the drink she did twenty-five years ago.

Women's Suffrage.

AN APPRECIATION.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—Would you kindly grant me space to voice the appreciation of some ladies who availed themselves of the privilege accorded them and attended the Debate on Thursday evening at the M.C.L.L. Several members of the Franchise League were present and were grateful for the courtesy extended to our Hon. Secretary to make a few remarks on our behalf and to place our present position and aims clearly before them. Among the many definitions of "Chivalry" we think Mrs. McNeill's was excellent and as for Chivalry in its truest sense, we women are not afraid it will ever depart from our island home men of such "nobility of spirit" as the members of the M.C.L.L. proved themselves to be that night. Such mannerisms as lifting the hat, exchanging seats, opening doors, etc., which is often done for those for whom no respect is felt, may well disappear. If, as our Secretary pointed out so clearly, the more chivalrous part and grant us the true rights of citizenship. An educated, intelligent woman should have equal status with an educated intelligent man, not put on a par with lunatic and convict. Every social, industrial, yes and political problem, that affects home life should have women's voices on these matters during legislation. Rest assured it will never make us less womanly. We may be more companionable, less frivolous and more clearly headed, more helpful in bearing the burdens of the day. Thanking you for space, Mr. Editor, and the M.C.L.L. for a very interesting and entertaining evening, I remain,

Yours truly,
 ONE WHO WAS THERE.
 March 3rd, 1923.

removed that Norway would be excluded from business with France. Norway finally arranged to import annually 400,000 litres of French spirits and brandies for "scientific and medical" use and at the same time changed the 12 per cent. wine limit to 14 per cent. alcohol. The temperance advocates of Norway said it was necessary to keep on friendly terms with France, even if they had to pour these wines into the North Sea.

Spain once more steps to the front, and says in effect, we buy 4 million dollars worth of your dry codfish every year, and as you have nowhere else to sell your fish except to Portugal and ourselves, we demand that you take 500,000 litres of our wine annually. Norway had hardly recovered her breath from this dose of hot wines, when Portugal boldly walked into the limelight and blustered before "If you want to load your fish on us you must take 1,200,000 litres of our Port Wines and these wines will run 20 to 21 per cent. alcohol."

For one hundred years, over 60 per cent. of all the codfish in Norway has gone to Spain and Portugal. Then again her steamers must find profitable employment or her people will starve and how can they get along with unfriendly customers. The Norwegian Government made the best terms they possibly could with the laughly wine growers, and has just placed the first treaty before the "Storting" at Christiania with the results shown in the first paragraph of this article. We are pleased to give Telegram readers these facts for their consideration before our gad-about ex-Premier gives us the results of his negotiations at Madrid.—Contributed.

CREW RESCUED BY S.S. BELVERSON.

S.S. Belverson, which arrived in port this morning from Halifax, brought the crew of the schooner James O'Neill, which was abandoned off St. Pierre on the morning of the 3rd inst. The Belverson sighted the schooner 310 miles S.S.W. 1/4 W., of Cape Race, but at first did not think anything was amiss although the weather was very stormy. Drawing closer the lookout on the Belverson spied the signal "N. C." flying from the O'Neill's topmast. Capt. Busch immediately steamed down to the vessel, and being informed that she was sinking he signalled that the crew leave in their own boat. Heavy seas, however, smashed the boat to pieces as it was being put over the side. A large lifeboat from the Belverson was then launched and in charge of Mate Llewellyn Lush, and seaman H. Curran, Sward (3), and P. Crofty they rowed to the rescue. Near the foundering vessel, however, the lifeboat twice came within an ace of being swamped. The crew were eventually taken off, and after another trying pull the Belverson was reached. The James O'Neill left Oporto Jan. 15th bound to Harbor Grace. She had a fine time for half the way after which terrific weather was encountered. On reaching the Grand Banks, ice was met and an endeavour was made to circumnavigate it, but the vessel unfortunately got caught when off St. Pierre. In the storm of Friday night, the transom stern was carried away and the port bow stove in. The crew were hard at the pumps when the Belverson was sighted. The master, Capt. Davis, and crew, as follows, belong to Carbonari—John Moore, Bosun; Robert Forward, Harry Ash, Herbert Legge, cook. The weather was too rough for them to save any of their belongings. When first sighted the vessel was reaching under reefed storm sail and double reefed foresail. Before leaving the wreck Mate Lush fired the hull. Before the Belverson left the scene the vessel foundered. First she hove to port, then back to starboard, finally staking head foremost.

Plight of South West Coast.

FOOD SUPPLIES SCANTY.

Commercial travellers who arrived in the city by S.S. Kyle report appalling conditions existing on the West Coast due partly to the tie-up of the coastal steamers as well as the inability of several freight laden schooners to reach their destination. Reminiscent of the war period the residents are using rolled oats to make bread, owing to no flour being available. Kerosene oil is all gone and many people are using gasoline in their lamps, that is, those who have gasoline. The stores in some places are closed owing to stocks being sold out and those people who have any supplies at all are living on scanty rations. In many places the people are doled out a stone of flour and pint of molasses to suffice for several days by the relieving officer.

CREWS SIGNING ON.

The crews of the steamers Ranger and Eagle signed articles this morning. The Terra Nova will sign crew this afternoon.

On his return from Solomon, Captain Raouf Amundsen said he had received word from Norway that his ship Maud was in daily communication with Spitzbergen, the exact position of the vessel not being given, but Captain Amundsen said he thought it had not changed much since she was last heard from, when locked in the ice and drifting towards the Pole.

MAKING HEADWAY.

BLAMES THE ALLIES.

DUSSELDORF, March 5.

Germans hold Ruhr Allies indirectly responsible for the disorders at Essen early on Sunday morning, when several hundred patrons of a large cabaret were robbed of their cash by fifteen or twenty armed men, and also for the looting of food stores. The expulsion of the security police, Germans point out, has left the city practically without protection, and marauders took advantage of this situation.

BOOZE PIRATES ON THE JOB.

NEW YORK, Mar. 5.

The rum running schooner, Victor was found south east of Ambrose Lightship, abandoned, with lifeboats, sails and rigging gone. This carries a hint that the crew were victims of "booze pirates," since a table was found, set with fresh food, and all the evidence pointed to a hasty departure.

Accident to Sleeping Car

PIPES FROZEN SOLID.

The unfortunate plight of passengers on the sleeping car of the express which came through last week is related by a gentleman whose veracity is unquestioned. It appears that when coming over the Galt Topella the heating apparatus of the sleeper got out of commission from some unknown cause, with the result that all the pipes became frozen solid. At Hishop's Falls another sleeper was put on and the cold one returned back to Humbermouth. At Clarendville, however, a similar accident happened to the substitute sleeper, and it arrived in St. John's in no better condition than the one at the other end of the line. The repairs, it is said, will cost in the neighbourhood of $2,000.

WHAT THE WIFE HAS.

"But what have I that she hasn't?"

Why should he prefer me to her so far as attractiveness goes?"

A middle aged woman asked me that question.

She is a woman of 40.

Her husband, who is of the same age, has been much in a young stenographer's office, a girl of twenty-two.

"I don't think I have neglected myself the way the women in stories do. I have done exercises and tried to take good care of my skin, but a woman of 40 can't look 20 unless she spends all her time on that sort of thing. And I have had four children and run a house and take an interest in my husband's business and in the neighborhood and I couldn't spend all my time that way."

"And yet when I look at her and talk with her and feel how charming she is, I wouldn't blame him if he did fall in love with her. Why shouldn't he? What have I that she hasn't? Why should he prefer me to her as far as attractiveness goes?"

I imagine there are many women who have faced things as they are, and asked themselves that question.

And answered it with secret tears and bitter resentment at the passing of the years.

I do not wonder at the tears but I do not think they need be the only answer. Far from it.

The Wife's Advantage.

If a husband and wife have been happy together, have been friends and companions, there is a great deal that the older woman can give that the girl, however pretty, however charming, however intelligent, cannot give.

There is between the husband and wife the kind of understanding that grows through years of loving. She is quick in sympathetic reaction to his interests, to his moods, to his line of thought. He does not have to explain to her. If he wants to talk on any subject with her they have the background of former talks and do not have to start at the A.B.C. They know each other's vocabulary, they know each other's danger signals, each other's antipathies and sensitive spots. If she wants to use this knowledge wisely she can give him a sympathetic understanding, a response of the mind, that the girl however intelligent, however eager cannot give.

A man said to me once: "You talk to these young girls a while and enjoy them and then suddenly you get talking about things that interest you and you find you aren't getting any response. They are saying 'Yes' and 'No' and smiling but you know you are talking to a blank."

A Background Shared.

And then besides, there is a background of tenderness, of family catchwords, of jokes shared, of memories of hard times and happy times gone through together. You have that big bond between you that cannot be broken between him and her.

There is a paragraph in a recent novel that comes to me in this connection. The man's wife is very ill and he realizes that after all he does care

Wallace Reid No Speed Demon in New Picture.

PARAMOUNT STAR OF "THE HELL DIGGERS" TRAVELS ONLY HALF A MILE A DAY.

Wallace Reid, has driven almost every kind of vehicle in his "Paramount screen offerings. In his recent picture, "The Hell Diggers," his late picture written by Byron Morgan, which will be shown at the Majestic Theatre to-day, the star operates one of the most unusual machines in the world—the giant dredger which is used to pan the precious metal from the earth in Northern California. On this occasion, however, he was unable to make more than half a mile a day.

This lack of pep in the speed of the big machine, however, is more than compensated for by a thrilling fight when the dredger is converted into a floating fortress and which it is up to the fraction headed by Mr. Reid to storm and capture, and by many other unusual scenes and situations.

Obituary.

ALEXANDER DOWNTON.

The death of Mr. Alexander (Sandy) Downton, 123 Circular Road, will be heard with profound regret. The deceased up to three weeks ago, was in apparent good health, but becoming suddenly ill, the doctors were called in, and pronounced his condition serious. Everything possible was done for him, but death claimed him on Friday morning last a change for the worse took place, and at 10 o'clock he lapsed into unconsciousness. He lingered for some hours and breathed his last 10.30 at night, death having been due to Diabetes. Deceased who was only 30 years of age was a splendid type of citizen. He had been employed at Carnell's Carriage Factory for the past eighteen years and was considered one of the finest mechanics in the city. The deceased was a prominent member of the C.L.B. and Old Comrades Association who will be sorry to hear of his passing. The late Mr. Downton was the second son of Frederick and Elizabeth Downton of Fleming Street. Besides his parents, he leaves to mourn a wife and infant child, two brothers, William and Herbert, two sisters, Clara at home, and Mrs. Dwyer. The sympathy of the whole community will go out to the bereaved in their hour of sorrow. The funeral took place from the home of the deceased, 123 Circular Road, this afternoon, interment being made in the Church of England Cemetery.

Who Reaps the Harvest?

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Many of those now profiting by the sale of liquor, when fighting for the present Prohibition Act, used the argument that publicans were reaping enormous profits. At that time publicans sold rum at 50 cents per bottle in spite of the fact that the duty was only less than it is now, by the addition of sur and sales tax. At the present time Controller charges $1.50 and dispensing druggists $2 for a bottle of the same strength liquor as the publicans sold for 50 cents. The medical man who furnishes the script takes one dollar, and in some cases a double fee for his trouble. Nothing is said now about enormous profits. Why? The medical man's declarations for prohibition (being above mercenary) makes one wonder at the number of people it is now necessary to prescribe "poison" for. Former publicans wonder at prohibitionists accepting their per capita share of the revenue from the present liquor sales. Formerly the revenue was legally obtained. It appears now as if they are in a less favorable position than those who formerly were accused of having the devil as their constant companion. It may surprise many to hear that the Government makes a profit of about $1100 on every pancheon of rum sold. The doctors about $1000 and the druggists $500. A grand total of $2,600. It figures out thus. The Government pays no duty in reality. The Controller for $300 buys a 100 gallon pancheon of 42 over-proof in Demerara. (pre prohibition cost $120) He adds 75 gallons of water. One hundred and seventy five gallons fills 1050 bottles, sold at $1.50 per bottle, the gross returns are $1575. If $475 is allowed to cover costs the net profit is $1100. It is quite plain from the foregoing where the medical man and druggist stand. I do not wish to strike a cripple with his own crutches. Thanking you Mr. Editor for space.

Yours sincerely,
ECHO.

We return 25 p.c. after Five Years.
