

When You Buy Boys' Clothing

You should watch quality first—style second—price last. The best made boys' clothing is the cheapest in the end; the so-called cheap clothing is unquestionably the most costly; for one really good and well-made suit will last the boy four times as long as one of the flimsy sort, and the cost is but a little more.

We confine ourselves exclusively to the sale of Boys' Clothing made on honor. We expect to sell the boy all his clothes while he is a boy, and then to simply turn him over to our Men's Clothing Department to continue the pleasant relations of many years.

SOME IMPORTANT EVIDENCE

Presented in the Cook-Stare Case Yesterday.

Case Adjourned Until To-Day After Several Witnesses Were Heard—Banquet to Bandmaster Robinson of the 13th—Got a Gold Watch—Who Will Be Sheriff?

Hamilton, Nov. 1.—(Special.)—W. B. Cook and A. L. Stare came before Judge Snider this morning for trial on the charge of conspiracy to defraud their creditors during August last. The prisoners had elected to be tried without a jury and pleaded not guilty.

During the trial, evidence was given by Harold Lamb, W. Hunter, bailiff, Mrs. Demun, Mrs. Jackson, Walter Jackson and others. Bailiff Hunter, who was in possession of prisoners' place on the night of Aug. 6, the day of assignment, swore he saw not less than 20 or 25 leases in a book, while Burkholder's evidence was to the effect that only eleven leases were handed to him.

Nehemiah Zoelme swore that he sold prisoners $380 worth of furniture. He saw Cook on the day of the assignment and he detailed the circumstances connected with the assignment and his attempt to get the estate into shape. He swore that the day before the assignment he had paid Cook $32 for goods bought by Thompson, York-street, and Jacob Mendall paid the firm $150 for a number of articles he bought during the week and which he afterwards sent to witness' auction rooms to sell for him.

Evidence was also given by Harold Lamb, W. Hunter, bailiff, Mrs. Demun, Mrs. Jackson, Walter Jackson and others. Bailiff Hunter, who was in possession of prisoners' place on the night of Aug. 6, the day of assignment, swore he saw not less than 20 or 25 leases in a book, while Burkholder's evidence was to the effect that only eleven leases were handed to him.

$241 on July 23. Prisoners wrote asking for 30 days' grace, as none of the carpet had been sold. When witness examined the stock the week following the assignment he found only $15 worth of the carpet.

Mr. J. Clancy of Toronto gave important evidence. Two lots of furniture, valued by prisoners at $380, were shipped to him in July. He sent them to Henderson's auction rooms to be sold. Mr. Clancy's explanation was that he had a note of Stare's for $300 due June 7 and Stare's sent him the goods in lieu of the money. Clancy admitted that he told Mr. Shaw, solicitor for the furniture dealers, that Cook also owed him money.

WRECK OF THE C. P. MINCH.

Heroism of the Mate of the Ill-Fated Schooner—Presence of Mind of the Captain.

Wilton, Ont., Nov. 1.—Following are full particulars of the wreck of the schooner C. P. Minch of Chicago, Captain William Kautman, which went ashore on Cove Island on Wednesday about 9 a.m. during a heavy northerly gale.

The vessel was lying to an anchor between Echo and Cove Island for shelter, and had both anchors down. The wind was in the southwest, but changed very suddenly to northeast, driving the vessel on to the beach. The boat was overboard and capsized, and broke away almost instantly.

When the crew found the vessel was starting to go to pieces, the mate, John Downing, made a line fast around his waist and tried to swim ashore, but the heavy sea washed him back and he was pulled aboard.

The captain then made a line fast to a stick of timber and cast it overboard, and it went ashore. They then threw lumber overboard, which jammed the timber on the shore, and made the other end of the line fast to the vessel. The mate made another line fast around himself, and went ashore afterwards pulling the men ashore one at a time. The captain was the last man to leave the vessel.

The mate ordered one of the men who had a match safe to seal it with tallow and bring it ashore. The mate said he was sure that some of them would have perished owing to the intense cold. They were all pulled ashore and landed safely.

The vessel went all to pieces in three hours. The last of the crew was rescued, a greater part of which was smashed up.

The captain's son, Gus, aged 17 years, was on board, and was badly chilled. Had it not been for the presence of mind of the mate, the boy would have been lost.

EXIT AND ENTRANCES

Suckling's Grand Series.

The announcement of Trebelli, Campanari and Musin in one concert would be sufficient to fill almost any music hall in any city or town where these great artists are known. Therefore, the large attendance at Massey Hall last evening was to be expected; and Manager Suckling must be congratulated over the fact that his efforts to provide first-class entertainment are properly appreciated.

In addition to the three great artists a debutante appeared in the person of Mrs. H. De M. Harvey of London, Ont., a young lady of good presence and with a fine voice. On the program she was classed as a contralto, but the World man ventures to say that her voice is a mezzo-soprano.

Ovide Musin opened the program with a series of variations on the gavotte of Corelli (by Tartini, with cedeza by Leonard), and at once entranced the audience with the magnificent command of his instrument, the perfect technique, the strong executive ability and the admirable musical thought, which made the listeners believe that there is only one Musin.

Many of the older concert lovers remembered the first time they appeared here at the Pavilion and captured Toronto, and those who heard him last night, while not astonished, will say that he never played better—perhaps not as well. His second number was a group including a Wagner-Leonard combination, followed by a Wieniawski legend, with a new mazurka of his own as the waltz. This group was his masterpiece, and introduced Musin in his different phases. He was fortunate in the music of Wagner perhaps overindulged in the waltz, but his playing of the Wieniawski legend, yet his own bit of mazurka was a pleasing bit of rhythmic music that helped to make the number successful. Musin's finely responded to the double encore with a pretty melody played with muted strings.

Mrs. Harvey sang "Across the Far Blue Sea" with a simple and unaffected style, which at once won the audience. Her every note is correct, and she displayed the good judgment of selecting something which would be popular. Many like so many debutantes, attempting a classical selection and performing it indifferently. Mrs. Harvey's voice is good and her diction is clear and excellent expression, made the audience friends at once. Her second effort, "Bid Me to Live" by Hatton, was beautifully sung, and her voice was in excellent condition. "I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby" was given as the first encore, and "Good-bye" as the second. Both of which were sung in first-rate style.

The interest of the evening was divided between the two vocalists. The soprano star was in good voice and gave a grand exhibition of the vocal art. Duvevay's "Grande Scene d'Elle," with her sweet and excellent voice, was a selection in which to show the great range of her voice, but the "Bird of Winter" given as an encore showed the wonderful vocalization in a way that captivated those who heard. The second effort, air and variations from the "Carnival of Venice," was truly a magnificent performance, which was appreciated by the audience, and earned; but the charming rendering of "My Secret" by Blumenthal and "The Swallows" by Towns was as fascinating as the most popular of songs. Trebelli was gracious, and after twice bowing acknowledgments gave the audience a most interesting and enjoyable performance in which to show the great range of her voice, but the "Bird of Winter" given as an encore showed the wonderful vocalization in a way that captivated those who heard. The second effort, air and variations from the "Carnival of Venice," was truly a magnificent performance, which was appreciated by the audience, and earned; but the charming rendering of "My Secret" by Blumenthal and "The Swallows" by Towns was as fascinating as the most popular of songs.

Mr. James H. Wallick.

Mme. Scelchi and her own company will furnish the program.

"Town Topics" Coming. Mr. James H. Wallick's "When London Sleeps" packed the Toronto Opera House in every nook and corner yesterday afternoon and the big theatre was crowded again at the evening performance. This popular play, with its startling portrayal of London life, did record business at the Toronto last season and is likely to continue on the wave of popularity throughout the present engagement. Another "bargain matinee" will be given tomorrow. "Town Topics" with the trio of clever comedians, Ford, Garnica and Mack, in the principal roles, is the attraction announced for next week. This bright "fun show" made an unqualified hit last season, and this year's cast promises even a better entertainment.

"Devil's Island" Draws Well. Last night's performance of "Devil's Island" at the Grand Opera House was free from disturbances in the galleries, and as a consequence ran along with considerably more smoothness and despatch. A large audience was present. Aside from some crudities in style the literary qualities of the melo drama are above the ordinary in this class of play, and the story of the extraordinary Dreyfus cases is unfolded with splendid theatrical effect. All the praise that has been lavished upon the play and its production is well deserved, the ship scene being one of the most remarkable ever produced on a stage in this city. This powerful drama will be the entire week with matinee to-day and Saturday.

At the Princess. Next week at the Princess Theatre will be given "Ours," a big military production, given by the 48th Highlanders, Royal Grenadiers and Queen's Own Rifles, under the patronage of His Excellency the Governor-General and the commanding officers, and "Hazel Kirke." "Ours" runs Monday and Tuesday, with the matinee of the same on the first two days, and "Hazel Kirke" on Wednesday and Thursday. "Ours" is one of the best of the military plays of British soldiers; it has a strong heart interest, interspersed with bright comedy, and it has not been seen in Toronto for some ten years.

"The Gaiety" Coming Next Week. "The Gaiety," the daintiest of comedies, is to be the attraction at the Grand Opera House the first three nights of next week, with a matinee on Wednesday.

The Question of Prices: We put prices down to the lowest notch. How is it done? By setting aside all between profits and going direct to the maker, and by getting and giving nothing that will bring a disappointment; by watching the markets and taking advantage of every turn. This week we are letting some stocks do some tumbling, and mail order customers will find it to their advantage to order from the lists that follow. Complete satisfaction comes to those who order from this store by mail—prompt, careful, considerate of every want of the out-of-town shopper.

Jackets And Furs. No shortage of goods in the mantle parlors. Sometimes you wonder who makes all the jackets, and what Simpson can do with such quantities. We sell them. That's what we got them for. Because we have so many we sell so many—why we give such good values:—
