THE EVENING TIMES

TODAY'S DEVELOPMENTS IN THE STRIKE SITUATION ARE MORE SERIOUS

Strike Breaker Reports That He Was Forced to Remain in the Car at the Point of Pistol---Donaldson Line Manager Says His Line Will Cancel Sailings Here if Strike Continues---Desertions From Strike Breakers' Ranks---Of Forty-two Men Brought Today, Twenty-seven Refuse to Work.

Among the developments of the strike situation here today is a statement made by one of the men brought from Montreal. The longshoremen state that proceedings will be taken against Chief Clark for his part in having the barricades erected at Sand Point.

Mr. Nairn of the Donaldson line states that if the strike is not settled shortly they will cancel their sailings from this port. The longshoremen state that proceedings will be taken against Chief Clark for his part in having the barricades erected at Sand Point.

It was seen that a large crowd of men had gathered on the wharves and cries of "Don't you work," "Silly, there's a strike on here," "Come sailors, we'll give you all the work you want," and such like were heard. The tug drew alongside the steamer, and after a ladder had been dropped down the men were sent aboard.

The crew of the men on the wharf were treated with vigor, and before anyone was aware of their intention two of the new arrivals walked across the deck, and down the gangplank to the wharf, amid the cheers of the crowd.

One of the most exciting incidents since the trouble began, was the arrival of a group of laborers from Montreal, numbering 42, of whom only 15 were secured by the Donaldson people to go aboard the steamer Aldeide.

Between 200 and 300 members of the Longshoremen's Association and others had gathered at the Furness line wharf, and when the men were brought from the west side on a tug, there was a continuous fire of shouting and advertisements to the newcomers to leave the steamer and not to be sent.

One of the men who deserted from the strike-breakers says he was threatened with a revolver when he attempted to leave the train at Fairville.

ST. JOHN MAY LOSE TRADE

Superintendent Nairn of the Donaldson line was interviewed on board the tug Lord Roberts this morning after his arrival from Montreal. He said the Donaldson people could not afford to cancel the 30 cents an hour wage demanded by the longshoremen.

WAITING AT THE DEPOT

The Atlantic express hauled into the Union depot at noon today, about seventy-five longshoremen were awaiting the arrival of the train.

President Moore of the union said this morning there was practically no change in the situation so far as the longshoremen were concerned.

WILL INJURE ST. JOHN

Montreal, Nov. 22.—(Special)—Discussing the St. John strike, Secretary Robb of the Shipping Federation, said today: "Many laborers come from St. John and work here during the time navigation is open and they are free to do so, but the city of St. John imposes a head tax upon every outside laborer."

WHAT THEY SAY IN MONTREAL

Shipping men here who have vessels plying to St. John state that the strike is not causing them any trouble. The Allan line officials said today that they had all the men they wanted and that the Parisian would leave St. John on time Sunday next.

WILL GET AFTER THE CHIEF

At two o'clock fifteen of the imported men went to work on the Aldeide. A committee of about thirty longshoremen met this morning and one of them informed the Times that they were their intention to hold a mass meeting composed of all organized labor and ask the government to remove Chief Clark from office on account of the barricades erected at Sand Point.

THE EVENING TIMES.

ST. JOHN, N. B., NOV. 24, 1905.

THE SITUATION.

The Times begs to suggest at this stage of the present controversy that the longshoremen hold a meeting of all the members of the association and take a secret ballot, voting yes or no on the question of accepting the thirty cent rate.

It is an open secret that a considerable number of longshoremen would cheerfully go to work at thirty cents per hour, and are only prevented from doing so by fear that if they did so they would lose caste with other members of the association.

The question at issue is not to be settled by sympathy, but by the law of supply and demand in the labor market. If the steamship people get men at thirty cents per hour, they can get men at thirty cents per hour.

The two or three officials of the association whose influence undoubtedly is strong with the members undoubtedly are sure of victory. Has any one? Will the month show that they have given the men good advice? The steamship people say they can get all the men they want.

The evidence thus far is in their favor, for they are getting men every day, and after this week there will be a much larger number of the men in Montreal. It does not need to be said that St. John does not want these men to do work which its own men should do.

Complete returns of the police census taken on the night of Sunday, Oct. 29, give the total population of Toronto as 292,749, which is an increase of 41,106 over the figures for 1901, when in November of that year the police census returned the population as 251,643.

Municipal ownership of public utilities was the prominent note at the annual civic meeting held at the Winnipeg theatre last week. The mayor, the aldermen and the would-be aldermen all declared themselves for public control.

FOR MONTREAL, READ ST. JOHN (Montreal Star). The chief topic of comment and conversation in business in Montreal at present is the filthy condition of the thoroughfares.

material and adds to the testimony of others to the effect that the great and growing market of the west can be successfully exploited by St. John manufacturers. He points out further that causes apart from legitimate ones were responsible for industrial failures in this city in former years.

As the Times has clearly pointed out, every additional factory, even if it employs but a few hands, is of great benefit to the city. One industry helps another, and more money is put in circulation. The wage earners, the store keepers and the city's revenue all derive benefit.

HALIFAX CONFIDENCE

At a time when attention is given in a marked manner to the question of national ports, the following remarks by a Halifax man to the Ottawa Citizen are quite interesting: "Halifax is bound to be the national port of Canada—summer as well as winter," asserted Mr. George E. Boak, a well known shipping man of Halifax, to a Citizen representative this morning.

A GREAT RAILWAY. The Canadian Northern, which extends from Port Arthur to Edmonton, and has 2500 miles of track, is third among the railways of Canada. It has now reached Edmonton, and a despatch from Winnipeg says:

The road will meet the case about the end of the week at Edmonton, when a silver spike, shaped from metal taken from a silver mine owned by Mr. D. D. Mann, at Fort Steel, B. C., will be driven into a tamarac tie out from the forests of Rainy River, Ontario, thus marking the completion of the Canadian Northern Railway to its westward terminus for this season.

Provision has been made by the authorities of the Toronto General Hospital for extra attendance on patients suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis, who go to the out-patient department, daily for treatment. A special nurse will be detailed to visit the home of each of such patients to teach the families how to nurse the case. This arrangement has been made possible by two generous citizens placing at the disposal of the hospital the sum of $1,000.

Complete returns of the police census taken on the night of Sunday, Oct. 29, give the total population of Toronto as 292,749, which is an increase of 41,106 over the figures for 1901, when in November of that year the police census returned the population as 251,643.

WHY NOT YOU?

If we were asked to "point with pride" to any particular part of this splendid stock of men's fall suits, we should probably pick out the particularly fine line of suits of fancy Tweeds at $15. Fifteen dollars is a popular and much abused price for a suit. In the eyes of some people "everything goes" in material and making, as long as the suits will sell at the price. We take a different tack—crowd as much merit, in stylishness of pattern, in excellence of all wool fabrics, in carefulness of making and fit, into the suits as we possibly can, and—make the man who has bought one sack suit come back for another the next time he needs it.

Do Not Try to Drive and Force it to Work When it is Not Able or You Will Suffer All the More.

You cannot treat your stomach as some men treat a balky horse; force, drive or even starve it into doing work at which it rebels. The stomach is a patient and faithful servant and will stand much abuse and ill treatment before it "balks," but when it does you had better go slow with it and not attempt to make it work. Some people have the mistaken idea that they can make their stomachs work by starving themselves. They might cure the stomach in that way, but it would take so long that they would have no use for a stomach when they got through. The sensible way out of the difficulty is to let the stomach rest if it wants to and employ a substitute to do its work.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will do the work of your stomach for you and digest your food just as your stomach used to when it was well. You can prove this by putting your food in a glass jar with one of the tablets and sufficient water and you will see the food digested in just the same time as the digestive fluids of the stomach would do it. That will satisfy your mind. Now, to satisfy your body, your mind and body take one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after eating—eat all that you want—and you will find that your food is being digested because you will feel no disturbance or weight in your stomach. In fact, you will forget all about having a stomach just as you did when you were a healthy boy or girl.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets act in a natural way because they contain only the natural elements of the gastric juice and other digestive fluids of the stomach. It makes no difference what condition the stomach is in, they go right ahead of their own accord and do their work. They know their business and surrounding conditions do not influence them in the least. They thus relieve the weak stomach of all its burdens and give it the much needed rest and permit it to become strong and healthy.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 25 cents a box. They are so well known and their popularity is so great that a druggist would be soon tired of being out of stock of this medicine. In fact, physicians are prescribing them all over the land and if your own doctor has recommended them, he will tell you frankly that there is nothing on earth so good for dyspepsia as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

ON FIRE AT POKIOK

A fire which for a time appeared to threaten the destruction of the United States schooner William Marshall, occurred Wednesday at Pokiook, Port of the rigging and one of the topsails were destroyed, and damage done to the deck.

The schooner was lying off Charles Miller's mill taking in a cargo of fish, and it is said that sparks from the mill chimney caused the outbreak. The fire was first discovered in the top rigging and, spreading with great rapidity, it obtained a hold on one of the topsails.

Before effectual measures could be taken the mast was burnt through and fell with a crash into the deck and causing a large hole through into the hold. The vessel was insured.

Captain Williams, speaking of the occurrence, said it required the united efforts of himself and crew to prevent the conflagration from spreading to other parts of the vessel. He claimed that the orders falling on board in all directions kept them constantly at work, and that the water. He said he regarded the place as dangerous for a vessel to load on account of the proximity of the mill chimney.

THAT STAB-LIKE PAIN IN THE SMALL OF THE BACK COMES FROM THE KIDNEYS AND CAN BE CURED BY DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

It is not the back that is aching, but the kidneys which are situated beneath the small of the back. Therefore, dull pain in the back, or sharp, quick twinges, are warnings of sick kidneys.

THE RESURRECTIONISTS

Both Timms and Dirk Lane hold a very prominent place in the "Newfoundlanders" of last century, owing to their daring, their curious defence, and the extraordinary nature of the proceedings in court when they were tried for their atrocious crime.

The pair were well-matched, both in villainy and in occupations—Timms being an acknowledged "conjuror," or hood-wallah, and Lane an undertaker of shady repute.

Timms, by an adroit manoeuvre, managed to obtain possession of the body from the hospital, and represented to Lane's daughter that her father had been quickly buried, and that she must perform the usual rites.

To recount the adventures of these two gentry should be to pursue their nefarious callings in the city churches in the dead of night would be a gruesome task indeed.

When a length of the arm of the law descended upon them, even then they retained their brassiness, and Lane even had the hardihood to bring in a defence. Fortunately, we have been able to obtain a verbatim account of the sensational defence.

"You see, please you, my lord," he said nonchalantly—"you see, I saw the poor old gent walking in Fleet Lane, looking very bad. What to me he remarks, 'Dirk, old fellow, I'm feeling groggy, and I suppose I'll ever get over this 'ere caper.' So, you see, please, my lord, I took him into a tavern and treated him to a pint of porter, to 'say nothing' of a pipe of 'bacca, which there he stopped till night-time. Presently he got wassery and wusser, and as there wasn't no place I could do the core at, I see I'd take him to hospital. He said he'd be in, and I cut a long story short, I took him to St. Bartholomew's."

"And now to it that you completed your work by taking him away from it, according to 'wards' put in Alderman Winchester. 'Well,' replied Lane, when the hangover in court had subsided somewhat—"well, to see, my lord, as when I'd got him all comfortable and snug off I took to the darter, and I sole her, I says, 'Your dad's dyin'.' But she never seemed very grieved, though she did go so far as to say as 'ow she was obliged to me for leavin' so kind as to let her know. But, my lord, here comes the rub: Law was said, and asked for a stick which I went to his house to fetch outen kindness. Then, shiver me, if the darter never turns round, and accuses me of stealing the stick, for which I was tried."

"At which a great roar of laughter arose from the court. 'Very true,' remarked Sergeant Arabia. 'You, doubtless, saw to that part of the business. Can you prove where it is buried?'"

"In the ground, I suppose!" retorted Lane. "That's the usual place to bury dead folk, I think. Bless me, my lord, I never seed the dead body arterwards, and they charges me with robbing it! It's too hard—straight off, my lord, I should I do with a corpse if I had it? It wouldn't be no use to me, like the body of a cow or a sheep might be. And surely you don't think I sit it! 'Fa no cannibal, me lord!"

"At this point, it having become so evident that the two prisoners were guilty, the jury, saying there was no need for a summings-up, stopped the case and gave their decision. Lane was sentenced to 'nibe months' imprisonment, and his accomplice to three months."

MAINE LUMBER BANGOR, Me., Nov. 19.—It is said that the mills of Aroostook County will saw from fifty to a hundred million feet of lumber which will be sold at a profit of $3 per thousand, which, but for the new Seacoast Railroad would not have been sawed.

At this point, it having become so evident that the two prisoners were guilty, the jury, saying there was no need for a summings-up, stopped the case and gave their decision.

OLD IRISH NEXT TO SANSKRIT

(Boston Transcript.) Students of languages and folklores everywhere would have been delighted with the lecture delivered before an audience of Harvard men last evening in the University's new lecture hall at Cambridge by Dr. Douglas Hyde, president of the Gaelic League of Ireland.

The lecture was on the general topic of Irish literature, and was given under the auspices of the Harvard English department, with Dean Briggs to introduce the speaker. Dr. Hyde said in part:

"The Irish language is highly indented, pure and unmingled with other tongues. The Irish people were probably the last to break off the original Aryan stock. Their language contains many remnants of its old Aryan origin. It bears this resemblance even in its outward surface so that it is apparent to a casual student of the language. For philological purposes, old Irish ranks second only to Sanskrit.

"Before the rise of the Neobrunswick and the troubadours of the Langue d'Oc and Langue d'Oïl, Ireland swarmed with bards and poets and singers. The volume of Irish literature is enormous. But it is not of the written literature that I wish to speak; though I deemed it necessary to give this short introduction, as Irish literature is very little known in this country. The folk tales of back centuries carry back centuries before the art of writing was invented. The folk tales that are found in poems, ballads, and in the old sagas give us the only possible clue to the habits of those early peoples. The study of folklores has found its home in Ireland and Harvard has in its library the best collection of folklores in the world.

"The folk tales of back centuries are recognized as the basis of all literature, in them lies the germ of the novel, the romance and the drama. The great national epics are really built up on folk tales. In Irish literature there are three cycles. The first is the mythological cycle, the second is the heroic cycle, and the third is the cycle of the gods and the heroes of the sagas. The second cycle is the most important, and the most interesting, and the most valuable. It is a study of very recent years that the study of folklores has become a science. It divides the folklores of my people into three classes. The first is the detective, or remanence of the tales which still continue to be told in the present day. The second contains the stories of folk belief, such as the banshee, the man who rides around with his head under his arm, and a host of others; and, lastly, the real folk tale. These last can be told by the people of the present day. The first class has had very little recognition, and the product of a romantic imagination. The folk tale is an old, old tale, a long, long tale, a tale of modern realism, and it is the best of all.

"The folklores as collected from peasants' lips represents thoughts more primitive than the oldest sagas. This is because of the conservatism of the peasantry, who do not rationalize the tales as the sagas writers have. Then, again, the writers of the tales have been heroes and knights, fighting men and hunters, such as Fin MacCool and his band.
