OFFENSIVE MAY HALT BUT DAY OF VICTORY DRAWS NEARER

Illuminating Review of Strategy of Entente Powers Shows Ultimate Effect of Present Operations—Germany Fighting on Defensive on Every Front

East New York, Aug. 3.—(By Frank H. Simonds in the New York Tribune.)—After five weeks it is put that the Anglo-French offensive has come to one of those halts which are the familiar detail of contemporary operations when the attack fails to pierce the enemy lines in the opening thrust. Berlin is amply justified in its assertion that the effort to pierce the Somme front has so far failed; it may be warranted in its assertion that the effort has permanent significance, but that there is no proof. We are all familiar with the reasons for the lull or pauses in these attacks. New stores of ammunition have to be brought up, heavy artillery has to be moved forward to the new lines when a successful attack has gained several miles. Fresh divisions have to be put in to replace those used up by previous efforts.

Where it Counts. If the Russians continued to advance the allied offensive is a success, even if the German lines in the west spread out. The Germans and Austrians are outnumbered on both fronts. They have been beaten badly in the east and have so far failed to hold the Russian advance. They have been able to check the western attack so far, but to do it has taken men that were required in the east. Ultimately, if this situation endures, they will have to shorten their lines very greatly, either in the east or the west. And for the purpose of the allies it does not matter.

But One Battle. Actually one battle is going on, not many. In this battle, the Austro-German armies are being attacked along the whole line. They have succeeded in holding at one point; they have been heavily beaten and are in retreat at another. This is what the foreign correspondents have somewhat grandiosely described as the "battle of Europe." And for Americans the parallel of Grant and Sherman in 1864 and 1865 is both illuminating and accurate. Grant's strategy was pressure at all points, until some sector gave, until the strain became too great. For many months, he made no progress in the east, despite his enormous losses, for greater in proportion to his resources than those of the British at the Somme. But to hold him, the south abandoned its resistance to Sherman and ultimately lost the war.

VON HINDENBURG IS NOT POPULAR

Three Budapest Papers Suppressed For Criticism of New Commander of Eastern Front

London, Aug. 4.—A Vienna despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company says: "The announcement that the German Field Marshal Von Hindenburg had been appointed commander of the Eastern front, brought no joy in Austria-Hungary. Three Budapest papers were suppressed yesterday (Wednesday), owing to adverse criticisms of the appointment. The legislature is asked to contribute to the support of the sanitation and also to provide extra revenue to meet the decline in revenue arising from the war. It is understood that a special tax equal to one-third of the present rate is to be imposed all around."

A NEW DEFENCE AGAINST ZEPPELS?

London, Aug. 4.—(Toronto Globe cable)—The ineffectiveness of last night's raid on the east coast of England by six Zeppelins, the fourth during the present dark moon, is attributed by many Londoners to the operation of a mysterious new electrical device. It is believed that the government is using an electrical invention which wrests the control of the Zeppelins' rudders from the pilots, and either steers the big ships where they do not want to go, or so upsets the compass of the machines that it is impossible to do effective bombing through.

Special Provision Suggested For Prince Edward Island—Sanatorium For Returned Tubercular Soldiers

(Special to Times) Charlottetown, P.E.I., Aug. 4.—The special session of the legislature opened this afternoon. The governor's speech announced that the legislature will be asked to make suitable provision for the dependents of our soldiers; also that arrangements have been made whereby Charles Delfino's sanatorium will be used for the treatment of returned tubercular soldiers. The legislature is asked to contribute to the support of the sanitation and also to provide extra revenue to meet the decline in revenue arising from the war. It is understood that a special tax equal to one-third of the present rate is to be imposed all around.

WARNING TO DRIVERS

In dealing with some by-law cases in the police court this morning the magistrate said he would like to bring before the driving public the fact that the city regulation, which is over forty years old, is still in force and only allows one to drive a horse through the streets at a moderate trot and, in rounding corners, one must walk his horse. He said that teamsters and pleasure drivers are becoming too careless, the law is being violated and some one will be hurt. Then he got into court.

F. C. Breen was reported for rounding the corner of Pond and Mill streets and not sounding his horn on the night of July 23. Policeman Colwell testified Mr. Breen took the stand and swore that just before he came to the corner he lightly sounded his horn, as the traffic was not congested at that time of the evening. The case stands until Wednesday. Joseph Aarons was before the court for not stopping at the corner of Paradise row and Main street when ordered to by Policeman Hogg. A fine of $10 was struck.

Further evidence was taken in the case against Ward and Robert Stevens Richard Caples, proprietor of the saloon to which the two brothers caused damage to the windows, was called. He gave evidence and showed that the damage was about $2. He said that the men were not in his premises. The two defendants were further remanded.

MAY SHOW WHICH WAY THIS WIND IS BLOWING. Berlin, Aug. 3.—(Via London, Aug. 4)—According to a special despatch received here from Budapest, Roumania has bought 80,000 tons of coal in Austria-Hungary and Germany. The despatch adds that this fact may be interpreted as meaning that the Central Powers are without fear that Roumania will join the Entente Allies.

EMPIRE ENTERS THIRD YEAR OF WAR WITH GRIM DETERMINATION

Second Anniversary Marked by Public Meetings Throughout Britain and Her Dominions

London, Aug. 4.—Every town and village in the British Isles, as well as places throughout the Empire, today observed the second anniversary of Great Britain's declaration of war. Meetings were held and resolutions passed declaring a "determination to continue to a victorious end of the allies."

It was evident from the appearance of the city streets today that some special event was being celebrated. Banners throughout the city are bedecked with the flags of the Entente Powers and the throngs who wended their way towards King Square suggested that something out of the ordinary was taking place. It is a stranger in crowd appear this afternoon. The Allies had achieved some victory of importance, but to citizens it had a different meaning.

LOCAL OBSERVANCE OF ANNIVERSARY. It was evident from the appearance of the city streets today that some special event was being celebrated. Banners throughout the city are bedecked with the flags of the Entente Powers and the throngs who wended their way towards King Square suggested that something out of the ordinary was taking place.

Between three and four o'clock the Patriotic Society took up a collection for the benefit of the Patriotic Fund. This evening the programme will consist of musical selections rendered by the City Comet Band, after which His Worship Mayor Hayes will briefly address the gathering. An address by Mr. Justice H. A. McKeown will follow, after which Hon. Captain (Rev.) G. M. Campbell will deliver an address. Another collection will be taken up for the Patriotic Fund, and as the coffers are low and the cause a worthy one, those in charge are confident that a goodly sum will be secured.

Premier in Montreal. Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 4.—Sir Robert Borden leaves this afternoon for Montreal, where he is to address the big patriotic meeting tonight on the occasion of the second anniversary of the declaration of war. Tomorrow he will inspect the troops at Valcartier, afterwards leaving for Nova Scotia. Sir Robert on Wednesday will review the camp at Aldershot, and on the same day will address (Continued on page 7, fourth column)

ST. JOHN GIRL HAS WHIRLWIND CAREER IN STAD PHILADELPHIA

Breaks Into High Society and Cuts Wide Swath Before Disaster Overtakes Her

The story of how a well known St. John girl made her way into the smart set of Philadelphia, was entertained by prominent society people there and in turn, entertained them by giving tango teas, suppers and other elaborate festivities, appears in a recent issue of a Philadelphia newspaper. The paper devotes nearly two columns to the life of the girl, from the time she left convent to the present stage of her life, which is behind the bars in the jail of that place, charged with passing bogus checks, upon various Atlantic city merchants, once reaching the sum of $1,000.

The story goes on and tells the life of the girl has been leading, terming it as one "of continuous gaiety." When arraigned in court and asked why she did such a thing, between sobs and sobs she answered that she "wanted to live like a millionaire." With this idea she launched out upon her whirlwind life of pleasure-seeking and gaiety.

In beginning she went to the Billmore Hotel in New York, one that is patronized by persons of wealth. It possesses a roof garden and affords ample entertainment on a large scale for "fussy society." Here, upon her departure, she gave a check which, the article says, was apparently good. From here she started to Philadelphia, which is the real scene of her social activities. She extravagantly entertained, and, in due time, received social attention from certain people there. To live as she longed to, she started her game of bogus check passing, and, as a result, is now in the hands of the police in the very city which had been the scene of her social life, accused of defrauding Atlantic city business men by means of bogus checks.

The case is proceeding there now, but the question of her deportation may play an important part, as the girl has just been a year across the border. The story of her arrest and the description of her appearance in court was accompanied by her picture and the name, St. John, New Brunswick is given due prominence. The girl was using a married woman's name.

WIFE BEATING CHARGED. Samuel Lewis was taken into custody this afternoon and lodged in central police station upon the charge of beating his wife.

Submarine Shells Passengers of Italian Liner as They Take to the Boats—Other Craft Sunk

London, Aug. 4.—The Italian mail steamer Letimbro has been sunk by a submarine and twenty-eight survivors have arrived at Malta, says a Reuter despatch from that place. Two boat-loads with survivors have also arrived at Syracuse. The Letimbro carried a crew of fifty-seven and her passengers numbered 115. It is believed that a large number of them lost their lives. The passengers included women and children.

Survivors report that a submarine was observed at a distance of about 6,000 metres. It fired a warning shot, and then gave chase, firing continuously for half an hour. It finally overtook the Letimbro, which had begun to lower boats. "The submarine," adds the despatch, "continued its bombardment, smashing two boats, the occupants of which perished. Some of the survivors say that many were killed by shell fire."

All the crew of the Italian brig Robalo, torpedoed by an Austrian submarine have arrived at Malta. Other Victims. Two British schooners were torpedoed in the English channel on Wednesday night. The crews were rescued and brought here. The Japanese steamer Kohin Maru, and the British schooner G. C. Gradwell, have been sunk. The Kohin Maru was a vessel of 1,100 tons and was lost in a gale blowing from Barry for Bizerta, Tunis, on July 14.

It is twenty days since the Germans made their last big attack on the right bank of the Meuse, by which they obtained small results at a heavy cost. On the left bank of the Meuse, nothing beyond local actions have been attempted by the invaders for a week.

Paris, Aug. 4.—(Noon)—On the right bank of the Meuse, north of Verdun, the battle continues along the front of Thiaumont-Fleury, the Germans attacking several times during the night, with great fury, it was announced officially this afternoon by the French war department. At one period of the fighting, the French entered Thiaumont earthworks and withdrew, owing to the intensity of the German bombardment, taking eighty prisoners.

At another period of the fighting, the French entered Thiaumont earthworks and withdrew, owing to the intensity of the German bombardment, taking eighty prisoners. The French positions at Vacheriauville were attacked during the night, but the French war department declares the Germans were thrown back with great losses.

Bombers Prepared Way. French bomb-throwers for a fortnight past, in anticipation of the present offensive had been creeping forward by the Vignes ravine, west of Froide Terre, with the object of getting near Thiaumont wood, by working around Hill No. 962. The bombers first reached the Deshayes road. Then they separated into two parties, one going to the eastward, toward Thiaumont fort and the second pushing northward toward Vacheriauville and Pepper Hill. Last week the first party stormed a redoubt west of Thiaumont and after a stiff fight, went beyond that position. The second party reached the little wood of Vacheriauville. The whole section from Vacheriauville to the approaches of Souville thus were in the hands of the French, and the higher command judged the time ripe to attack from all sides at once.

Attacked from the northwest and the southwest, the Germans in Fleury offered desperate resistance, but the French bayonets finally prevailed. Some Germans managed to escape to the Vaux-Le-Chapelle wood, but a majority was taken prisoner. The French Gains. To sum up, the French in their three day offensive, regained all the ground that the Germans had taken several weeks to conquer. They took all the positions for a depth of about a mile from the slopes of Souville fort, to the approaches of Hill No. 960, as well as in the woods east of Vacheriauville and in the Vignes ravine, which borders to the west of Froide Terre hill. The French also installed themselves in positions southwest, south and southeast of the famous Thiaumont woods. The text of the official statement given out this afternoon by the French war department in which it is admitted the Germans have succeeded in recapturing a portion of the village of Fleury, follows:

"On the right bank of the river Meuse the battle continued along the Thiaumont-Fleury front, which the Germans attacked all last night with great ferocity. Several counter-attacks in large numbers upon our positions near the Thiaumont Work were repulsed with heavy losses for our adversaries. In the course of this fighting our troops even occupied the Thiaumont Work, but they were compelled subsequently to evacuate it under the powerful German bombardment. They brought back with them eighty prisoners.

There has been fighting no less violent in the region of Fleury. The Germans multiplied the number of counter-attacks upon this village. Each was preceded by an intense preparatory artillery. After several fruitless endeavors the Germans secured a footing in the southern part of Fleury, where very spirited fighting is still going on. All of

Verdun Again is the Centre of the War Stage

French Captured Entire Village of Fleury But Germans Again Gain Foothold—French Troops Enter Thiaumont Earthworks, Taking Eighty Prisoners

Paris, Aug. 4.—The French have captured the entire village of Fleury in the Verdun sector, according to an official announcement issued by the French War Office. A number of prisoners were taken.

Attacking simultaneously from the northwest and from the southeast, French troops yesterday stormed the village of Fleury, three miles north of Verdun, and captured several hundred Germans. In the evening, however, the Germans launched a furious counter-attack, and after several violent attempts succeeded in getting a footing in the southern part of the village. The French today continue to hold the northern section of the place, and heavy fighting is still in progress.

Verdun again is the centre of the war stage. The recapture by the French of the village of Fleury, which had been held by the Germans for more than a month, has caused great distress in France. It is the first time since the French slow and methodical offensive, begun to mark an epoch in the six months' battle for the great fortress on the Meuse. The Germans appear to be less and less capable of operating on their old, overwhelming scale, and the initiative, military men here think, is about to pass to the French for good.

While the German artillery continues to be as powerful and as well supplied as ever, the Germans no longer are able to gather the masses of troops necessary to reap the benefit of artillery preparation.

It is twenty days since the Germans made their last big attack on the right bank of the Meuse, by which they obtained small results at a heavy cost. On the left bank of the Meuse, nothing beyond local actions have been attempted by the invaders for a week. "LIGHTS OF NEW YORK" AT IMPERIAL TONIGHT

It has been a long time since the admirers of that stately beauty, Leah Baird, have had the opportunity of seeing her in a Vitagraph production, but such is the privilege today when she will appear on the Imperial curtain in a vivid drama entitled "The Lights of New York." This is a five-part Vitagraph story in which Miss Baird, supported by Walter McGrath, plays the leading role in a story of human interest, picturing the shadows in the dim half-light of New York's underworld. The background of this story is fashionable and exclusive society living in the full glare of the great city's white lights. The Vitagraph Company have deliberately produced a melodrama of the old-time high-power type in this story and as such, it will no doubt find much acceptance as a departure from more conventional stories of the hour. The Imperial's programme this change will also include a two-act Nestor comedy entitled "What Could the Poor Girl Do." There will be just one show this afternoon, commencing at two o'clock as usual, and ending in time for the patriotic concert in King Square.

TONIGHT AND SATURDAY AT THE GEM THEATRE

Lillian Gish, sister of Dorothy, is starred at the Gem tonight and Saturday in a play of great strength, "Sold for Marriage." It is five reels of scenes and action in Europe and America, and on the ocean. There are heart throbs in it. Roscoe Arbuckle (Fatty) is back again in a roaring comedy, "The Other Man."

GARNETT-GODDIN—Arthur Garnett, of No. 7 C. A. S. C., now at Woodstock, was united in marriage to Miss Elwelda Goddin yesterday afternoon in the presence of immediate relatives and friends. Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom left by train for Woodstock. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Goddin. Among the many presents received was a purse presented by members of the Army Service Corps. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Goddin, of 119 Queen street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. G. Lane.

SAUNDERS-CARPENTER—A pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Scribner, Rothery Grove avenue, on Wednesday when Miss Viola May Carpenter was united in marriage to William Leonard Saunders of St. John. The bride was prettily dressed in a flowered veil with a veil and orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of sweet peas and greenery. The bride was attended by her cousin, Mrs. A. T. Scribner and the bridesmaids were supported by A. T. Scribner. The bride was given away by her uncle, J. B. Carpenter. Rev. Mr. Daniel united them in marriage. Many useful and handsome presents were received, among them a set of silver knives and forks and spoons from the boys of No. 3 engine house, where the groom was employed. Near relatives were the only guests.

Lincoln held fast to the right as he saw it, whether in private or public life, regardless of consequences personal to himself, writes John T. Richards in the July Case and Comment. His successes were remarkable, for out of his 175 cases reported in the Illinois reports, he won the majority. That he was equally successful in the federal courts is probable, but, owing to the loss or destruction of the records of these courts by the Chicago fire of 1871, it is impossible to ascertain the facts. BATTLE ON THE ISONZO 1,500 YEARS AGO.

Romanas Met Defeat There at the Hands of the Ostrogoths.

Contrary to popular belief, says the National Geographic Society Bulletin, the Isonzo river along which the Italians made their attack against Austria and where their lines held more firmly against the recent vigorous Teutonic offensive than on the Tyrolean front, is not the boundary line between the two countries, but lies wholly within Austrian territory from two to twelve miles from the border. Its source is on Mount Terlog, the loftiest peak of the Julian Alps.

Before the devastation wrought by the war the valley of the Isonzo was a highly productive region, agriculture and vine growing being the chief occupations of that part of the population (mainly Italian) which was not engaged in silk-worm culture.

The leading city of the Isonzo Valley is Gorizia, with 30,000 inhabitants, known as the Nice of Austria, on account of its popularity as a fashionable resort. Its growth coincides with the decline of Aquileia, now an insignificant town of less than 4,000 people, six miles from the sea, but which was reckoned the ninth city of the Roman Empire and a great seaport during the closing years of the fourth century.

The fighting which is now occurring on the Isonzo recalls the great battle of the Isonzo (1809) in the fifth century, where the Roman Emperor Odacer met signal defeat at the hands of Theodoric the Ostrogoth. The vanquish-

THE KAISER'S DELUSION

Kaiser Wilhelm explained to some wounded soldiers on his recent visit to the eastern front why he is unable to take a more active part in the war. It is inconceivable that any of his soldiers have expected him to fight in the trenches or to lead charges. But it is quite understandable that as a military leader he feels regret that he is unable to make his personal mark on the enemy. He has been a man of action as well as a man of words. His words in this speech as reported in a dispatch which reached the rest of the world through Bern, were of a kind to astonish twentieth century democracies. It seems incredible that even his soldiers, born in an enlightened age, believe that the "Invisible Almighty" has burdened him with the leadership of his country and its armies. It is inconceivable that the millions of men and women of Germany, man birth or descent in this country can ever pretend to believe that the Kaiser acts by "divine appointment" that by force of divine destiny he must think and decide for a great nation.

There is no doubt of the sincerity of the Kaiser's belief in the divine appointment of kings. He has often expressed it. But most of the western world outgrew the notion of the divine origin of kings centuries ago. It would be difficult to say how many Russians still believe in the divine authority of the Czar, but Russia has not yet wholly emerged into the light. Germany is a progressive country, and has exerted a tremendous influence upon modern thought. But underlying all the show of enlightenment is this pernicious idea of earthly power responsible only to divine authority; a divine authority created by the German imagination for German use, an idea tolerated by the few, blindly accepted by the many. In its name Belgium was laid waste, France was invaded, helpless women and children have been brutally slaughtered. For this idea of a German right and wrong, peculiar only to Germany, the Empire is at war today with the other great Powers, and the current of sympathy in the countries not drawn into the war is strongly against her. It is the idea that must be crushed out of existence before this terrible war is finished.

When there is talk of crushing Germany, that is what is meant—the destruction of the vain belief which seems in the last two years to have obsessed the German dynasty that it is fulfilling its destiny under a divine will that knows no compassion, that discards all treaty obligations while they trample upon the rights of Germany's neighbors in its effort to extend upon the earth's surface a kind of power so repugnant to the rest of humanity. The Kaiser's delusion must be dispelled. —New York Times.

BOY CHASED BY TWO SHARKS

Swampscott, Aug. 3.—Elmer Brewster, aged thirteen, whose home is in Maine, but who has been visiting relatives in Lynn, had a narrow escape from death when swimming at King's Beach. He was chased by two sharks.

Brewster had been swimming for some time and people were on the beach watching the sharks. The Brewster boy went out nearly over his head and suddenly was seen to disappear.

Those on the shore thought the sharks had seized Brewster, but Stanley White of Swampscott, swam out to the spot where the boy sank, scared the sharks away and brought the youth ashore.

Brewster was hurried to the office of Dr. C. H. Bangs where it was found that the boy's lungs were filled with water. He was revived and taken to the home of his relatives.

For several days persons living in the vicinity of King's Beach and East Lynn have noticed what they declare are sharks swimming around there.

SHARK AND BABY KILLED

A four-foot female shark of uncertain species, with its baby were killed on the beach at Rainsford Island.

One of the boys at the Suffolk School for Boys on the island saw the big fish in shallow water while he was out playing with companions. With a whoop the boys rushed to the spot. One of them notified Supt. John J. Ryan, while another sought Policeman John J. Newman. Newman secured a good-sized piece of iron pipe and hurried to the beach.

Climbing over some rocks so that the shark could not reach him, Newman struck it several blows with the iron pipe and killed it. Just as it was being killed the sharklet was born and Newman also killed that.

Find Cure For Eruptive Typhus

Discovery Reported to Have Been Made by French Doctors; Big Reduction in Death Rate

Paris, Aug. 4.—A cure for eruptive typhus, the disease which made such terrible ravages in Serbia, has been discovered by Drs. Nicolas and Blaisot. The physicians describe their discovery to the Academy of Medicine. It is a serum which they found after exhaustive experiments. So far thirty-eight serious cases have been treated by injections, which were followed by rapid recovery in a number of patients.

In addition the injections of the serum prevented complications so frequent in this disease, and reduced the death rate from 25 to 3 per cent.

CONSERVATIVE VIEW OF MEREDITH-DUFF REPORT
(Toronto Telegram)

Canadians have reason to contemplate with humiliation the quantity and quality of intellect revealed in the Meredith-Duff report.

"Is intellect a word that can be used in any relationship?"

Is such a production as the report that bears the superscriptions of Sir William Meredith, Chief Justice of the High Court of Ontario, and Hon. Lyman Poore Duff, associate justice of the Supreme Court of Canada?

The Meredith-Duff report is a symptom of vacuity, a declaration of intellectual poverty, a confession of mental bankruptcy.

Two exceptional graduates of the Canadian bar and members of the Canadian judiciary were content to have their genius represented by such a production as the Meredith-Duff report.

Is the Meredith-Duff report the best and strongest and finest product of exceptional ability in the Canadian judiciary and Canadian bar? It is difficult to believe that an inferior product could be supplied by the average ability of the Canadian judiciary and Canadian bar.

The Meredith-Duff report is almost a national humiliation in its lack of quality. The report can be viewed as an illustration of reasoning, an example of research, a specimen of intellectual power.

The texture of the Meredith-Duff report would do no credit to a first year law student; in fact a candidate for matriculation should have to produce a finer sample of genius in order to get into the university.

THE 26TH BATTALION

The tribute paid by the citizens to Lt.-Col. McAvity when he returned to St. John some weeks ago told the story of his affection for the man who had been "a father" as well as their commander.

A Breezy One Great Doctor—"Your wife, sir, needs change of air."

Quite Indelible Randall—"Is Delaney a vulgar person?"

A Cold Deal Mrs. Young—"You getting our ice from a new man now, dear?"

What They Learned A visitor to a Sunday school was asked to address a few remarks to the children.

A farmer went into the office of an insurance company and told the clerk that he wished to cover his barn and a couple of haystacks against damage from fire.

"Yes, sir," said the clerk, producing various papers and beginning to ask questions.

"And now, sir, what facilities have you for extinguishing a fire should one occur?"

The farmer pondered deeply over the question, and he replied slowly: "Well, it do rain sometimes!"

Everything went well till the clerk said presently: "And now, sir, what facilities have you for extinguishing a fire should one occur?"

The farmer pondered deeply over the question, and he replied slowly: "Well, it do rain sometimes!"

A Picture Rich in Old Time Romance

"David Garrick" at the Opera House, Gives Faithful Reproduction of Colorful Days

The good old days with their happy, carefree views of life are admirably shown in the Paramount photoplay "David Garrick," shown at the Opera House yesterday.

The big scene in the old Nag's Head tavern is wonderfully staged. In the spacious room are featured a quaint types.

The poet with his parchment scrip, the sporting great with his gamecocks that soon are in deadly combat, the richly dressed gentlemen of title, the prize fight enthusiasts in friendly bouts, the gaming tables with the solemn players drinking from the leather drinking mugs, the now obsolete manners, all are of interest as being true-to-life touches of the bygone days.

This atmosphere frames a charming love story of the great Garrick.

A strong and masterly acted scene is the duel between Garrick and "one who has spoken lightly of a woman's name."

Not a stage duel between inexperienced and mediocre swordsmen, but a desperate and very real fray between daring and determined men.

Now Dustin Farnum is an expert fencer and his opponent was a European trained swordsman who knew every trick of the trade.

Beautiful enough to make any man fall in love with her is Winifred Kingstone's appearance as Ada Ingot in the play.

A garden, fair-lyric in its perfect beauty, the stalwart lover, and Winifred Kingstone in an old fashioned English teagown together, form one of the most romantically beautiful scenes ever shown on the stage.

The love story of this great man's life is played with feeling and power by Dustin Farnum supported by a strong cast made up of Herbert Standing, Lydia Yeamans Titus, F. Bonn, Olive White and Mary Mersch.

The programme also includes the English pictorial news budget and a remarkably funny comedy, "Lonesome Lake Lake the Villain."

BELGIANS LOOK FOR DELIVERANCE

Allies' Advance Brings Joy To Their Hearts Many Wrongs To Be Righted

German Tyranny Has Continued; Belgian Workers Have Felt the Iron Heel of the Foreign Despot

The approach of the day of Belgium's deliverance, according to reports, being received with transports of delight by the Belgian civilian population under German military control.

The steady pounding of the British and French armies in the German front at the Somme is causing as much concern in Belgium itself as in Germany or France or Britain.

It is no wonder that King Albert's subjects under German authority hail the dawn of deliverance with a fervor and eagerness and terror.

The wholesale tyranny and merciless rapine of which Belgium was the victim in the early days of the war was not the only bitter experience it had.

Never a day has passed but what the Belgian workers had to feel the iron heel of the foreign despot. Germany no sooner got administrative control of the cities and towns than it began to coerce the workers into laboring for Germany's war business.

Countless Belgian workers were taken out and shot, or refused to work as directed by their military task-masters. This was by way of frightening the mass into compliance.

Belgian workers were stripped of their machinery, particularly such machinery as contained copper or brass; Belgian warehouses were looted of their supplies; Belgian workers were forced to go to Germany, where they could be more effectively used.

The hideousness of Belgium's wrongs does not all belong to the early part of the war.

"Kultur" in the Communes. The British Foreign Office has issued a new report on the martyrdom suffered by the Belgian masses since they became servants unto the most high Hohenzollern.

On May 21, 1915, the German military governor, von Bissing, issued an order making even more stringent penalties on Belgian workers refusing to work in the mines, and in a remarkable imprisonment for a fortnight to a year; all persons, and other parts of the world, says a writer in Farm and Fireside.

Once the government of China and Japan guarded with similar jealousy the exportation of the tea plant, someone escaped with some seed on cuttings, however, some ten years ago and the original plantation of smuggled tea plants is still flourishing in South Carolina.

Fifty years ago Brazil was engaged in an effort to keep the rubber tree in confinement in that empire. The seed was smuggled to Ceylon, however, and for a century East Indian planters have been perfecting the rubber tree until now the best plantations are there rather than in Brazil, and the Brazilians who want the best varieties send to Ceylon, Java and other Asiatic countries for rubber trees—and in return Brazil has given the Asiatics the plague of the water hyacinth.

Suspected "Behind the altar," said the cathedral guide to a party of tourists, "lies Richard II in the churchyard outside lies Mary Queen of Scots. And who" halting above an unmarked flagging in the stone floor and addressing a tourist from London—"who do you think, sir, is a-lying 'ere on this spot?"

"Well," answered the Cockney, "I don't know for sure, but I have my suspicions."

FREE BUFFET FOR THE SOLDIERS AT EUSTON

London, Aug. 4.—More than a thousand men are welcomed every day at the soldiers' and sailors' free buffet and rest room, which Miss Featherbed has established at Euston Station.

It was the first free buffet to be opened shortly after the war started, and it has been very greatly appreciated by men on their way home on short leave from the trenches and on their return from different parts of the country. Tea, cocoa, Bovril, bread and butter, sandwiches, huns and cake are all at the men's disposal.

"We have just had the escort of some German prisoners in. We do not give anything to do to look after our own men."

"Yesterday we served 1,200 meals," said Miss Hannan, who is in charge of the buffet, to a representative of the Daily News yesterday. "It costs 2000 or 3000 pence to keep the buffet going."

"The money has to be found by the friends who support us. The assistants have been nicknamed 'the Blue Ladies' because of the blue costumes they wear."

STANDARD DIRECTOR LEARNS SOMETHING OF THE HIGHWAYS

W. B. Tennant, a director of the Standard, had an exciting experience on Saturday night last, when his automobile crashed through a rotten highway bridge along the Miramichi and stood on end in a brook below.

Fortunately no one was hurt but the party were forced to remain on the spot all night, some sleeping by the roadside, the nearest house being twelve miles away.

Sons of England Banquet At the banquet tendered by Marlborough, Portland and New Brunswick lodges of the Sons of England Benefit Society to their supreme president, W. H. Randall, and their supreme secretary, J. W. Carter, at Bond's restaurant last evening, it was shown that there were one-third of the local members of the Sons of England in khaki. Supreme President Randall said there are about 40,000 members at the present time and that Englishmen are gradually winning recognition in Canada.

Supreme Secretary Carter, who has been identified with the order for over thirty-five years, made a very interesting speech along fraternal lines. Other speakers were Commissioner Wigmore, Edward Sears, William Hawker, E. Lawrence, president of Marlborough lodge, H. Green, president of Portland lodge, and A. C. Cook, president of New Brunswick lodge.

JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY, THE HOOSIER POET

James Whitcomb Riley, poet, died recently at his home in Indianapolis. Had suffered all day from the heat, and the end came suddenly at eleven o'clock in the evening while his nurse was absent from the room for a few minutes. Death was the consequence of a stroke of paralysis.

Was More Than "Hoosier Poet"

James Whitcomb Riley, like another poet of the west—Eugene Field—had for his audience the great mass of Americans. He was the singer of plain matter-of-fact things, which he endowed with homely humor and broad sentiment, all clothed in the quaint dialect of the Hoosier farmer. Men called him the "Hoosier poet," but he was more than that. He was the poet of thousands of people who read little other verse but his. He was the most popular poet beyond the borders of the United States.

Riley, like Field, was a student of children and not a few of his verses dealt with the imaginings and joys of childhood. He also resembled the Chicago poet in other respects. Field was a married man, Riley a bachelor. But both were kindred spirits in the realm of good fellowship. Genial, warm-hearted and generous, Riley numbered his friends by the thousands. Those same qualities brought him strong friendships with a host of admirers. People loved him because he was one of them. Riley read his poems because he wrote of things he liked and they liked. Thus it is that today, in all parts of the country there is genuine regret over Riley's passing.

Riley wrote many verses of many sorts, but the average American thinks of him as the man who wrote "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," a poem that has been subjected to more manufacturing perhaps than any bit of American verse written in the last generation—from the backwoods of the West to the city ward boys' recite on gloomy Friday afternoons, to the town drawing room, where often first acquaintance with the rhymed story had been made through an atrociously illustrated holiday gift book. Yet the verses survive it all.

"An Old Sweetheart of Mine"

From "Old-Fashioned Roses," published by the Bobbs-Merrill Company this version of "An Old Sweetheart of Mine" is taken: (From Biographical Edition of works of James Whitcomb Riley, Copyright, 1914, by James Whitcomb Riley, Courtesy of Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

As one who sits at evening 'er an album all alone, And muses on the faces of the friends that he has known, So I turn the leaves of fancy till, in the 'shadowy design, I find the features of an old sweetheart of mine.

The lamplight seems to glimmer with a flicker of surprise, As I turn it low to rest me of the daze in my eyes, And light my pipe in silence, save a sigh that seems to yoke Its fate with my tobacco and to vanish with the smoke.

'Tis a fragrant retrospection—for the loving thoughts that start Into being are like perfume from the blossom of the heart; And to dream the old dreams over is a luxury divine— When my transient fancy wanders with that old sweetheart of mine.

And I hear, beneath my study, like a fluttering of wings, The voices of my children, and the mother as she sings, I feel no twinge of conscience to deny me any theme When care has cast her anchor in the harbor of a dream.

In fact, to speak in earnest, I believe I feel no twinge of conscience to deny me any theme To spice the good a trifle with a little dust of harm— For I feel an extra flavor in Memory's mellow wine That makes me drink the deeper to that old sweetheart of mine.

A face of lily-beauty, with a form of airy grace, Floats out of my tobacco as the gent from the vase; And I thrill beneath the glances of a pair of azure eyes As glowing as the summer and as tender as the skies.

I can see the pink sunbonnet and the little checkered dress She wore when I first kissed her, and she answered the caress With the written declaration that, "as surely as the vine Grew round the stump" she loved me—that old sweetheart of mine.

And again I feel the pressure of her slender little hand, As we used to talk together of the future we had planned— When I should be a poet, and with nothing else to do But write the tender verses that she set the music to:

When we should live together in a cozy little cot Hid in a nest of roses, with a fairy garden-spot, Where the vines were ever fruited, and the weather ever fine, and the birds were ever singing for that old sweetheart of mine.

When I should be her lover, forever and a day, And she my faithful sweetheart till the golden hair was gray; And we should be so happy that when either's lips were dumb They would not smile in Heaven till the other's kiss had come.

But—ah! my dream is broken by a step upon the stair, And the door is softly opened, and my wife is standing there! Yet with eagerness and rapture all my visions I resign To greet the living presence of that old sweetheart of mine.

James Whitcomb Riley was born in Greenfield, Ind., in 1843. He received a public school education and began to contribute to the Indiana papers when he was twenty years old. Much of his verse was written in the so-called Hoosier dialect, and he has been known for years as the "Hoosier Poet." His first book and his early writings in the district appeared under the pen name of "Benj. F. Johnson, of Boone." For his work in the field of letters he received the degree of A.M. from Yale in 1902, and Litt D. from the University of Pennsylvania in 1904. He never was married.

His father was a country lawyer and tried to make a country lawyer out of the boy, too, but "Jim," as he was called in his home town, though clever enough, was rather indolent, and writing verse seemed to him a much more attractive life than wangling in court. It was not long before it was recognized that a real poet had risen in the Hoosier State.

How Hamlin Garland Saw Him

In McClure's Magazine, in 1894, Hamlin Garland gave this description of Riley, whom he had visited in Greenfield: "He is a short man, with square shoulders and a large head. He has a very dignified and earnest countenance. His face is smoothly shaven, and, although he is not bald, the light color of his hair makes him seem as if his eyes were gray and round and generally solemn, and sometimes stern. His face is the face of a great actor—in rest, calm and inscrutable; in action, full of the most elusive expressions, capable of humor and pathos. Like most humorists, he is sad in repose. His language, when he chooses to have it so, is wonderfully concise and penetrating. He has a very dignified and earnest countenance. He is aware of what he is doing. In other words, he is a master of both forms of speech. His mouth is his wonderful feature; wide, flexible, clean-cut. His lips are capable of the grimmest and the merriest lines. When he reads they part like a child's, or draw down into a straight grin like a New England deacon's, or close at one side, and uncover his white and even teeth at the other. In the style of his language, and in his own proper person he is full of quaint and beautiful philosophy. He is a philosopher rather than a learned-wise with the quality that is in proverb, almost always touched with humor. His eyes are deep-set and his nose prominent. His head is of the 'ack-hammer' variety, as he calls it. The public insists that there is an element of resemblance between Mr. Riley, Eugene Field and Bill Nye."

To Garland the poet told some of his experiences, when, as a young man, he was trying his hand at everything from sign-painting to peddling patent medicine, and writing verse all the time as well.

He went down to Anderson and went into partnership with a young fellow to travel," he said, "organizing a scheme of advertising with paint, which we called 'The Graphic Company.' We had five or six young fellows, all musicians as well as hand-painters, and we used to capture the towns with other music. One fellow could whistle like a nightingale, another sing like an angel, and another played the violin and guitar."

When Riley returned after his last sign-painting to peddling patent medicine, he joined the staff of an Anderson paper and wrote free doggerel for advertisers. He was a while he drifted into Indianapolis, and began to write more serious things. He served on the Indianapolis board of health.

Many of Riley's poems show his love for children, and his sympathy with boy nature. Perhaps something of the boy feeling is reflected in the little poem "Annie," which shows him out of his dialect character.

And there is the one about "Little Orphan Annie" and the "gobblins." (From Biographical Edition of works of James Whitcomb Riley, Copyright, 1914, by James Whitcomb Riley, Courtesy of Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

Little Orphan Annie's come to our house to stay, An' 'shoo the cups an' saucers up, an' 'shoo the crumbs away, An' 'shoo the chickens off the porch, an' 'dust the hearth an' sweep, An' 'shoo the bread an' butter, an' 'earn her board-an'-keep; An' all us other children, when the supper's over, we need to capture the towns with other music. One fellow could whistle like a nightingale, another sing like an angel, and another played the violin and guitar."

of and which his own childhood was a part, for his theme and inspiration—asking nothing better, finding it so good that to sing it made life itself good. And though the Hoosier dialect in which his greatest poems are written, is perhaps the most uncouth of the world, and is strange even to the majority of the American people, the touchstone of truth, and the voice that captures the towns with other music. One fellow could whistle like a nightingale, another sing like an angel, and another played the violin and guitar."

Just an acceptance of a good world with a large streak of joke in it. "It's a purty good world, this is, old man— It's a purty good world, this is! For all time to come and shows and lies— Its rainy weather, and checks likewise, And age, hard-learnin' and rheumatism— We, not me, faultin' the Lord's own plan; All things jest At their best— It's a purty good world, old man!"

And at the bottom and the top of it all the sentiment of mother and child—the beginning, the middle and the end. As he himself is laid away in the burying ground, the lines of that come to mind are just these, which tell it all— Lay away the story— Though the theme is sweet, There's a lack of something yet Leaves it incomplete. There's a nameless yearning, Strangely undefined, For a story sweeter yet Than the written kind. Therefore, read no longer— I've no heart to hear, But just something you make up, O, my mother dear; With your arms around me, Hold me folded-eyed— Only let your voice go on; I'll be satisfied. Boston Transcript.

MORNING NEWS OVER THE WIRES The Frederickton police commission has appointed Chief George R. Rideout, of the Moncton force, to the position of chief of the Frederickton force, which was made vacant by the resignation of J. H. McCollom. It is expected that he will not refuse. The Moncton force, the organ of the French Academics, says that, immediately after the funeral of Sir Pierre A. Landry, a representative gathering of Academics was held at St. Joseph's to discuss the question of French representation on the judicial bench of the province. A convention will be held in Moncton next Tuesday to discuss the possibility of filling the vacancy caused by the death of Sir P. Landry, by a French-Canadian. The Minister of Finance, Sir Thomas White, has made arrangements to furnish Canada's indebtedness to the Imperial government and issue bonds from time to time to British Treasury to discharge obligations. Three hundred thousand railway men, out of 600,000 ballots cast, are in favor of a general strike in the United States. Between fifteen and twenty persons were drowned and enormous property damage caused by a cloud-burst on night. Russian Women and the War When I went to Russia to put my ear where I could hear beneath the crust, the new bubble and heaving of potentiality, the volcanic seething which the war has filled with new tremors, I did not think of the Russian woman at all. Yet she is of extraordinary importance, not, however, as a part of a woman's movement, but as a part of a great human movement. Her progress and her potentiality are so interwoven with the progress and potentiality of her country that the story of the women parallels the story of the new war-awakened Russian nation. It is to the women, I think, who today possess a vision calmer than that of the Russian men. From a woman I received the coolest and the wisest analysis of the politics of the empire and the most sensible forecast of the struggle between the people and the bureaucracy. Through a woman I obtained the greatest fund of information about the future commercial development of the land and about the opportunities for American business. A woman drew for me the action of self-interest or prejudice or fanaticism for military victories. It was the women of Russia who, without disclaimer picture of what was needed to fear, could see what the new human growth required of compromise with the present form of the government and what of a fight to a finish. And that is the most delicate question which Russia must determine in the decade which follows the final peace—Richard Washburn Child, in the August Century. "Tommy, you must make this dime go as far as possible." "All right, mother, I'll stay four hours in the movies instead of two."—Puck.

PUGILIST USES SWORD AND PEN

Frank Slavia, The Old-Time Ring Favorite

How He Learned To Fight

Sergeant in Canadian Scottish at Fifty-six, Chides Stay-at-Homes; What the Old Flag Means

London, Aug. 4.—Frank Slavia, the famous Austrian ex-heavyweight pugilist, has written an interesting article in the English Review on the British Empire.

Slavia, who is now a sergeant in the Canadian Scottish, writes in a breezy style, and in the opening paragraph says: "It is more than probable that a good many readers may wonder what a retired pugilist, turned soldier in his 56th year, can have to say about the inner feelings of the colonies and the Empire and the war, that is, anything worth reading."

"That wonder is quite natural, for, I suppose, very few people in these islands have ever heard anything about me or about my life outside the boxing ring. But, as a matter of fact, I became a professional pugilist more or less by accident, as most professional pugilists have done.

"My accident, if I may say so, was directly due to the centuries old antagonism between Ulster and the rest of Ireland, and made me not only a pugilist, but a politician as well."

He explained he was a fervent Home Ruler and because some near neighbors of his in Australia were condemned Orangemen, he learned boxing so as to be able to trounce the sons between whom and himself there was a deadly political feud.

With characteristic directness he has some well needed advice for stay at home Englishmen.

"Those of you," he says, "who have lived out all your days in England and have both abused and absorbed abuse of the Empire and its management may think you know all there is to know about the Empire, but you cannot. A man has to experience the roughest of rough times both under the Union Jack and a few other flags before he can begin to understand everything that the old flag really means."

Speaking of Ireland Slavia makes a rugged appeal for Home Rule. Admitting England may want to govern Ireland for her own good, he says, the English have got to get into their heads not what they may think is beneficial to Ireland but what is beneficial to the Empire. The wonderful loyalty of the colonies, he says, is due to the fact that they were trusted to govern themselves, and he is convinced that experiment would have equally happy results in the case of Ireland.

EFFICIENCY RESULTS FROM DRINK REFORM

Lord d'Abernon Believes Rules Should Be Maintained After the War.

In an interview with the New York Times' London correspondent recently Lord d'Abernon, chairman of the Central Control Board of Liquor Traffic of England, expressed the feeling that the drastic drink regulations put into operation since the war—involving non-treatment and restricting the opening of bars to five and one-half hours a day—have markedly advanced the effectiveness of the workmen of Great Britain. The effect is immediately felt, he said, in the spheres of activity directly related to the war.

Munition work has been largely improved and in every similar branch of the government's war activity the results have been reflected. The new drinking regulations—allowing liquor to be sold only between 12 and 2:30 p.m. and 6:30 and 9:30 p.m.—affect 20,000,000 persons. One striking feature, Lord d'Abernon pointed out, is the apparent readiness from the start on the part of all communities affected to aid the government.

"No serious objection of any character has been reflected. The new tribute to the law-respecting sentiment of the public that they have so easily and so unreservedly fallen in with our aim at curtailing the drinking privilege which has been, after all, only to

WAS WITH GEORGE TODD
Writing to a relative in Newcastle, on July 15, says Alex Ingram says: "I got a slight wound on Sunday night, just a piece of shrapnel on the top of the head, but I am all better now, and expect to get back to the battery in a few days. They just happened to knock our gun pit in on top of us and I was buried for about five minutes but do not feel any the worse for it. Two of the boys sitting right next to me were killed outright, and that made me feel worse than anything. One of them was from St. John, and Uncle Charlie well. His name was George Todd."

POLICE COURT PROGRAMME
In the course of the proceedings in the local police court this morning, Magistrate Nichol indicated that on Wednesday would be "toot day," in as much as all motorists who forget to "toot" their horns in rounding corners would be dealt with. He also mentioned the fact that, following the disposition of these, he would take up the reports against dog owners. The nature of these cases the magistrate did not make known, but it is thought that those who have not taken out their dog licenses, as yet, and it is known there are a large number, will be before the court and asked to give some sound evidence. So the local court will have what is known as a "toot day" and a "dog day" all combined.

IN YPRES BATTLE BUT NOW PRISONER

Thrilling Story Told by Former Member of the 6th C. M. R.—Was in Fight of June 2

Malcolm McCharles, of Baddeck Bridge, Cape Breton reported missing as a prisoner in Germany. Young McCharles was for two terms in Dalhousie, then took up agriculture, took his diploma at the N. A. C. Truro, and was going for his last term to Guelph, Ont., when the war broke out. He joined the 6th Highlanders, and was in the Sixth Mounted Rifles. In a letter to his mother, he said:

Dear Mother—I don't know what account the war office sent you concerning my condition at Ypres, so here is a brief: The Germans commenced their attack with a heavy bombardment on the morning of June 2. I had been out scouting the night before, so was asleep when the attack commenced. I got up and went up to the front line. I wasn't long there when another chap and I were completely buried. We were in that position for an hour or so when a couple of fellows dug me out and helped my comrade out, but by this time we could not move, for the trench was all blown down and to move would mean death by a sniper's bullet, so there we stayed through that terrible morning. Of all who were with me there, I think I am the only one alive. I was wounded about noon by a bullet which tried to dodge a trench mortar shell. I was hit altogether in the left side, in the right shoulder, back of the left ear, and several smaller wounds and scratches. I had lost all my clothes when I was buried. Just had a shirt on. A piece of stone or brick thrown by an explosion hit me in the head and knocked me dizzy. There I was when the Germans came over and took me prisoner. They took me over, bound my wounds up and gave me clothes. My wounds are healing up nicely and my temperature is normal. Yips is the second hospital I've been in. I'll likely be here till I am completely cured, which will be a month or more. We are well used. I get four meals a day. They have great doctors and are taking good care of us. Send me some cake, preserves, butter, soap, cocoa, cigarettes and socks. Try to get parcels through the Red Cross, England. Write soon and get every one else to do so, too. Love to all.

MALCOLM.
Address—Prisoner of War, No. 111880 M. D. McCharles, 4th Can. Mounted Rifles, Kronenhaus, Wintburg, Rhein, Germany.

SHABBY TREATMENT FOR RETURNED HERO

Cripple on Crutches Forced to Stand in Street Car While Able-bodied Men Fill the Seats

A returned wounded hero who is at Park's Convalescent Home and who is just able to hobble around on crutches, as he had his leg shattered by a German machine gun bullet, was given very shabby treatment yesterday. Between the hours of six and seven o'clock, last night, he was hoisted a street car at the corner of Mill street and Paradise row and rode to Douglas avenue, where he got out. The car was nearly full of able-bodied men who did not even have enough civility to get up from their seats and offer this crippled soldier a chance to ride in comfort.

This is hardly the kind of treatment a returned hero should expect from some of the young men of this city, men who should be out at the front doing their bit instead of allowing others to fight for them while they stay behind in comfort and enjoy life. The men at the front are fighting and giving up their lives and these chaps may enjoy the comforts of peace.

This young man who had to stand on his crutches so long on the car happens to be a member of the Fighting 26th N. B. Battalion.

The soldiers at the home speak highly of the kindness and generosity of the people of St. John and say this case is the exception and not the rule.
