Ends Two Years of Abortive Efforts By Six Finance Ministers

paris, April 1—The French budget is finally balanced, after two years of efforts, in which four cabinets and six finance ministers have fallen.

The Chamber of Deputies concluded an all-night session by voting new resources sufficient to wipe out the budget deficit was 2,400,000,000 frances. This success is looked upon as assuring the continuance of the Briand ministery, for several months at least.

The great number of abstentions makes it difficult to interpret the vote on the combined measures was 286 to 159, a majority of 77, with 190 deputies abstaining. The Senate is expected to pass the bills promptly without essential amendments, thus without essential amendments, thus without essential amendments, thus be sufficient to the measures to finance the sinking fund, which is depended upon to make French linances to finance the sinking fund, which is depended upon to make French linances to finance the sinking fund, which is depended upon to make French linances to finance the sinking fund, which is depended upon to make French linances to finance the sinking fund, which is depended upon to make French linances to finance the sinking fund, which is depended upon to make French linances to finance the sinking fund, which is depended upon to make French linances to finance the sinking fund, which is depended upon to make French linances to finance the sinking fund, which is depended upon to make French linances to sinking fund, which is depended upon to make French linances to sinking fund, which is depended upon to make French linances to sinking fund, which is depended upon to make French linances to sinking fund, which is depended upon to make French linances to sinking fund, which is depended upon to make French linances to sinking fund, which is depended upon to make French linances to sinking fund, which is depended upon to make French linances to sinking fund. PARIS, April 1—The French budget is finally balanced, after two years of efforts, in which four cabinets and finance the sinking fund, which is de-pended upon to make French finances pended upon to make French linances finally safe against all eventualities.

The government's success is attributed partly to Premier Briand's skill in utilizing the divisions in all the groups, and partly to the personal popularity of his Minister of Finance, M. Peret, of his Minister of Finance, M. Peret, will appear as the principal winner, since M. Briand failed with two other finance ministers to get a financial plan through the Chamber.

The petroleum monopoly project, which threatened for a moment, to upset the whole situation, was adopted in principle.

Frank Skinner

Frank Skinner, prominent King street merchant, died suddenly yesterday at Richmond, Va., where he had gone for his health. Mr. Skinner had not been in the best of health recently and serieral weeks ago went to Virginia with Mrs. Skinner in hope that the climate there would benefit him. Word received by friends was that his condition was improving and the news of his death comes as a surprise. It is believed that he suffered a heart attack.

Mr. Skinner was a native of f.ondon, England, and came to Saint John about to years ago. He entered mercantile life and for many years conducted a millinery business in King street.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Helen L. Ferguson, the daughter of the leta Lever R. Ferguson, the daughter form it is found.

THE Barnet Refrigerator is absolutely odorless. There is not the slightest taint of suspicion in the breath of dry, cold air from the opened door of a Barnet.

The most delicate flavors—custards, butter, milk, egg puddings and dainty desserts—are perfectly safe. Meats and vegetables, either raw or cooked, do not inflict their flavors on anything else. Neither does fish.

The Barnet system of ventilated refrigeration does away with all danger of cross-flavoring. The Barnet is unique among refrigerators—it is absolutely odorless.

Ask your dealer to explain the special ventilating system in the Barnet. Also the syphon system of cold-air circulation which makes the Barnet uniformly cold and prevents moisture from gathering. The provision chamber is lined with snow-white, vitreous porcelain. Notice, also, how easy it is to flush out with a dash of scalding water. There is no drain pipe to keep clean in a Barnet. Young Wife Whose Only Rival is a Radio-Advice to Young Man in Love With Married Woman-The Cruel Mother Who Whips Her Six-Months-Old Baby.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a young wife and mother. As we are just starting out in life, we cannot afford a nurse girl, so I have to spend most of our evenings at home. My husband is kind, considerate and generous, and does not go out and leave me at home alone. But he does spend all the evening, after reading the paper, at his radio. As I have to be in with our baby daughter most of the day, I crave his companionship in the evening. Won't you please tell us what you think about this?

A RADIO WIDOW.

Why, I think that any woman who hasn't anything to complain of in her husband except that he has the radio habit is so lucky that she should be down on her knees thanking God for her blessings, instead of weeping tears of self-pity over his not being a chatterbox.

I can understand a woman getting peeved with a husband who puts on his hat after din-ner and fares forth to his club or to see some good play or picture, leaving her to spend a dull evening alone watching a baby sleep. I can DOROTHY DIX.

But I don't understand the grievance of the wife whose husband puts in his evenings sitting three feet from her; harmlessly tuning in on Pittsburgh or ecstatically exclaiming from time to time, "I have got Honolulu or Squedunk!" It seems to me that he is

Believe me, my dear, being a radio widow isn't as bad as being a grass widow. It isn't even as bad as being a golf widow, for the golf husband is bodily absent, and just to have something alive that looks like a husband sitting around the house is sort of sociable and companionable, even if you have to punch it to make it speak.

As I understand your complaint, you yearn for conversation. Weil, most husbands, from President Coolidge down, are shy on that. I don't think I have ever known more than two or three real gossipy husbands in all my life. Most men shut up like clams as soon as they cross their own thresholds, and any information their wives extract from them is done by means of a jimmy and a cork-

Perhaps men talk themselves out during the day and want to rest their vocal organs when they get home. Perhaps they are too tired to have pep enough to try to sparkle in the home circle. Perhaps the thing that they love most about home is its just being a place where they can relax and do as they please; where they don't have to make any effort to be entertaining or witty or even agreeable. I don't know.

But I do know that the man who is the life of the party at-every gathering and who can set a dinner table in a roar very seldom considers his sparkling repartee and humorous cracks suit-able for home consumption.

In your particular case, I should suggest that you and your husband arrive at a compromise. Let him devote an hour every evening to a joint debate with you, and after that let him enjoy his radio in peace. It would help a lot if you would interest yourself in the radio. Then you would not

But remember this, dear lady, that if you nag your husband too much about the radio you will drive him away from home to some place in which he can enjoy it without being distracted by the complaining of a fretting woman.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a young man 24 years old and have been in love with a married woman for the last three years. I know I am doing wrong, as she has a very good home and a kind husband, who provides well for her and her two children. She says that she loves me, but I often wonder if I am not being fooled, because she gets jealous if she thinks her busband notices any other woman. What do you think?

ONE WHO DESIRES PEACE OF MIND.

ANSWER:

Well, if you desire peace of mind, son, the only way to obtain it is to break off your love affair with this married woman and have nothing more to do with her. You will never find serenity of soul as long as you are doing a thing that you know is wrong.

If the woman is jealous of her husband she still cares for him, and she is only amusing herself with you. It ministers to her vanity to have a man younger than herself in love with her. It gives her a romantic thrill to have younger than herself in love with her. It gives her a romantic thrill to have a clandestine affair. So she strings you along and makes you think that she loves you, and she eats your dinners and wears your flowers and accepts your presents, but she doesn't really care a rap for you. And she hasn't the faintest idea in the world of giving up her good home and her prosperous husband for a mere boy whose salary wouldn't keep her in silk stockings.

Many married women play this game, and it is a contemptible and dastardly one, because it is experience pitting itself against inexperience. It is a sophisticated woman who knows every lure of the flesh that can tempt an unsophisticated boy and who uses it mercilessly for the gratification of her own egotism, careless of the fact that she is robbing him of his faith in woman, that she is shaking his belief in goodness and purity, and that she is soiling his first love and making it a degrading thing.

Have nothing to do with a flirtatious married woman. It can do you no good. Even if this woman loved you, what happiness could it bring you? You would not want to break up another man's home even if you could. You would not want to take little children from a father who can provide for them far better than you can. You would not want to marry a woman older than yourself nor burden yourself with a ready-made family.

And believe me, the reputation for being a home wrecker or a Don Juan or a married woman's tame cat will do you no good in business. Decent firms don't want to employ that kind of a young chap. So I advise you to drop your married friend before she has the chance to drop you.

**PEAR MISS DIX—I live in a flat with a young mother who has a the chance to drop you.

DEAR MISS DIX—I live in a flat with a young mother who has a 6-months-old baby. It is her first child, and she whips it if it puts its fingers in its mouth or it doesn't take its bottle the way she wants it to. I can hear her say to it, "Don't act so dumb! I'll teach you to know something." And then I will hear her beating it. She slaps it in the face and the little thing is so frightened that it is afraid to cry aloud. What do you think of this?

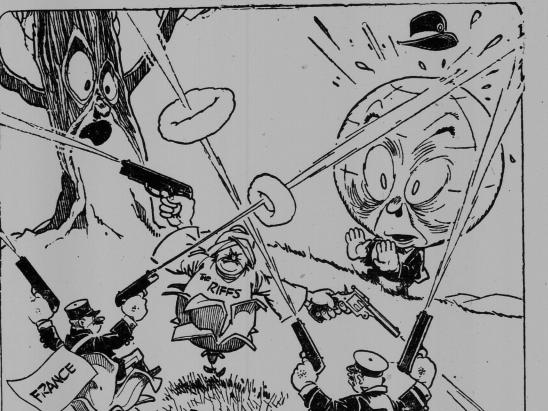

ELIZABETH.

ANSWER:

Why, I think the mother is a brute, and that you should call the case to the attention of the Society to Protect Children From Cruelty. Something with boiling oil in it should be done to any woman who is cruel and cowardly enough to strike a baby. A woman who can beat a 6-months-old child is not a mother. She is a ftend, and the helpless little creature should be taken away from her. It would be better off in an orphan asylum than with such a hard-hearted, unfeeling mother.

It was during the examination of Chief. Tingley that the fireworks began.

Mr. Allen, by a series of leading questions which Dr. Taylor objected to and ln which he was sustained, was attempting to get in evidence a conversation between Tingley and Inspector Dunphy relative to the matter of newspaper selling so far as The Timessian was concerned. The defence counsel objected to the questions as being leading and to the proposed evidence on the ground that it was inadmissible because the accused was not present when the alleged conversation took place. Sir Douglas spoke in glowing terms of the service of Lord Allenby at Vimy when he fought side by side with the Canadians and in Palestine. Ovation On Speaking In Saint John

IN the Palestine campaign of the Lord Allenby gracefully acknowledged the splendid reception accorded less side issue carried out but a him. He said that he purposed merely to tell what was the object and result very splendid piece of strategy of the campaign in Palestine and Syria, which assured to Canada and to a side issue of the Great War. The which assured to Canada and to the British Empire the freedom of the seas that is essential to their commerce and their solidarity, was the message that was given to the thronging audience in the Imperial Theatre last night by Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, whose military genius had planned the campaign. He spoke little more than an hour and gave in outline the progress of that remarkable campaign to the control in the Holy land.

He recalled the Bible time events and the Great War. The main issue, he pointed out, had been under the Great War. The peditionary force had been sent out to guard all the roads to Jerusalem.

The drive the Turks from the rather strong entrenchments on the south border of Palestine and the commander had not only built a standard guage railway but had taken into that dry land a water system drawn from the Nile. Two attentions the Allies were no nearer a decisive victory. Armies were exhausted and the submarine menace was acute. The Central Powers began to think that they might arrive at an indefinite conclusion in the West and surrender the gains in Belgium as well as Alsace-torraine to get peace if they retained control in the Holy land.

He recalled the Bible time events of the world in an equal area. The pedictionary force had been sent out to guard all the roads to Jerusalem.

The campaign in Palestine and Syria was objected to by theorists who said every available man should have been sent to the Western front, but Lord Allenby pointed out if the Central powers had retained control in the Balkans, and held the Bagdad railway they would surely have dominated

BRILLIANT DASH OF HORSE.

It was a brilliant dash of the cavalry brigade commanded by an Australian that had brought the fall of Beersheba With no swords or baynots the cavalry had made a galloping charge over two lines of the enemy's trenches. The allied army loss was only about 30 men and 60 to 70 horses, while so great was the slaughter of the Turks that the trenches in which they lay were filled in and made their grave. The German general had sent up every reserve against Beersheba, attempting to recover the pivot of his line and fought with great determination and under terrible conditions of thirst and hunger.

On Nov. 16 the troops pushed on against Gaza and captured it. The Turks fled before them up the plain of Philistia. The navy was of great assistance in the onslaught on Gaza and a gallant French captain who took his ship right under the Turkish guns drew upon his own vessel the greatest destruction but did great good work. As the Turks retired up the coast line they were pursued hotly and divisions of cavalry and infantry were sent out to guard all the roads to Jerusalem.

As a result of the campaign the League of Nations controlled the Bagdad railway, the French had the mandate of Palestine and Mesopotamia, giving complete control in the near East, making sure that all around the world the British had the mandate of Syria and the British had the mandate of Palestine and Mesopotamia, giving complete control in the near East, making sure that all around the world the British possessions formed a chain, each centre within easy distance by sea to the one adjacent.

He asked the audicnce to consider what would have been the condition if instead of having free passage through Suez British commerce had to follow the sea route round the Horn or around the Cape of Good Hope.

The nations of the British Empire, he said, were bound together by the sea which was the cheapest means of communication.

In March the seriousness of the situation in France made it necessary to take seasoned troops from Palestine to the western front and although a brillian Indian cavalry division was placed under Lord Allenby's command the strength of the forces in Palestine was materially weakened. Perpetual raids were carried out against the enemy at this time and the artillery positions

Lord Allenby told of the great support which the Arabs had given in the campaign. The present king of Mesopotamia, then military leader for the Arabs, was aided by Colonel Lawrence the brilliant Oxford don who was a better Arab than the Arabs were themselves and proved a marvellous leader in guerilla warfare. Lord Allenby's forces were in constant communication with Lawrence's Arabs whether the message came by rider or by aeroplane. During the summer the new plane. During the summer the new army was fully trained and in 1918 as in 1917 the enemy was deceived into thinking that the attack would be on one side while preparations were made to attack on the other side.

The pretence was to attack up the Valley of Jezereel while actually the attack was made against Joppa. On Sept. 16 the attack was opened with 400 guns and five divisions of infantifications of the state of cavalry follows. Three divisions of cavalry followed and the enemy was in rout. OTTAWA, March 31—"The Crown Prince from Saskatchewan," was how Bt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, referred in the House today to Hon. C. A. Dunning, with whom he had a lively interchange on Tuesday. Mr. Meighen, at the time, was anstwering certain remarks made by Malculan (Liberal, Melfort) on the resolution to increase the duty on eggs contering Canada. Apparently, said Mr. Meighen, Mr. McLean thought that the Interests of the Canadian poultrymen could be looked after by the reduction of freight rates. Did not Mr. McLean, however, read in the papers only a few days ago, that "his leader—the score from them an admission in the Crown Prince from Saskatchewan," was book of the opinion that a general reduction of the feet, trates could not be obtained.

The committee vent into session at the controversy an agree of separation, Mrs. Whitney submitted a series of "foutenpoints" as a basis for reconciliation with her husband, Arthur Whitney, Tr., a stunt filer. The points in dispute during the church an aroplane which left here yester and an aeroplane which left here yester and the point in dispute, an aeroplane which left here yester and the point in dispute, and are promound the point in dispute, and are promound the point in dispute, and hour.

Meighen, Mr. McLean thought that the Interests of the Canadian poultrymen creat in the papers only a few days ago, that "his leader—the score from them an admission in the Crown Prince from Saskatchewan," was bill that the Presbyterian Church was of the opinion that a general reduction dead.

Brief Address-Visiting Priests Here

A congregation that filled the Cathelittle snow-storm that again whitens the country. The prospect from their hotel window across the snowy blanket of King Square with welcoming flags that the automobile business here for some fluttering amid falling flakes will be, Their Excellencies think, a striking memento of the journey from Pacific to the Atlantic in an ever-changing series of climate. Canada's all-embracing moods and possibilities have taken in the automobile business here for some the automobile business here for some the automobile business here for some time will leave Saint John in a few glanc, assisted by priests of the Cathedral and from other parishes who have the come to the city for the special services of Holy Week. These services were begun last evening with Tenebrae. This morning, in addition to the mass, there was the blessing of the oils to be used thered this morning at 9 o'clock Regret was expressed that Mrs. Guy Fitz-Randolph, the president of the club, was unable to be present, on account of illness.

MRS. VROOM'S ADDRESS.

In her address of welcome to Lady Allenby, at the reception given in her honor by the Municipal Chapter, I. O. D. E., on Wednesday, at the Admiral Beatty Hotel, Mrs. Heber Vroom, the regent, said: "It is women like you who make victories."

"We hope both you and Lord Allenby have enjoyed your visit through this big country of ours. We have many problems to solve, and the more visitors of your type that England a-about that every-body knows me now.
